ANIHARA IN NOTE DENIES "VEILED THREAT" INTENT

sures Hughes Congress Misread Phrase; Opinion Divided as to Effect on Fate of Bill

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Masanao Hanihara, the Ambassador, in a letter to Secretary of State Hughes Thursday, which was made public today, disavowed any of uttering a threat when he said in his letter of the inst. that enactment of Japanese exclusion legislation by States would bring "grave consequences" upon the happy and mutually advantageous relations between countries.

Ambassador was greatly by the interpretation of in the Senate where another the leaders of asserted that in view threatening attitude of the government there was no but adoption of the clause.

YORK (Eng.) April 19.—Take the reparation experts' report as a whole and put it into operation all at once with everybody back of it, was the course advocated by Prime Minister MacDonald in addressing a crowded meeting in the Theater Royal here today. He urged that the Allies accept Germany's word and advocated her admission to the League of Nations as another step for bringing peace to the continent.

In urging unity among the Allies in applying the plan outlined by the report, Mr. MacDonald said it was clear from that document that if they went on for another

PAUL REVERE RIDES PAST

Takes Horse to Lexington

Descendants of Minute Men Stand at Attention on Anniversary

Elaborate Ceremonies and Colonial Costumes Feature Day

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BOSTON (Mass.) April 19.—Paul Revere, today, again clattered along the streets of Boston and the outlying communities. Mounted on a spirited horse and starting from the house where the original Revere lived, he galloped through the streets of the old north end and through the Middlesex countryside to Lexington.

This time, luckily, he was not bearing a message of "up and to arms," but the patriotic message of commemoration, which was intrusted to him was spread far more effectively than the more dread news borne by Paul Revere himself. For a squadron of airplanes circled over the route and a radio broadcast from the Medford hillside station helped to distribute the tidings.

The event which was re-enacted is now 149 years distant. The rider wore a costume of that period and followed the original route as nearly as possible. This rider, however, was Sergt. Carroll F. Austin, of the One Hundred and Tenth Cavalry, Massachusetts National Guard, and had company in his ride. Other members of his outfit, also on horseback, formed an escort of honor.

BEATS AIRPLANES

The ride differed from the original furthermore in that it was made by daylight so that groups of school children and committees of leading citizens might turn out to greet the horsemen at principal centers along the way. Descendants of the Lexington Minute Men, garbed in the colonial uniforms such as their ancestors wore, were present at the start of the ride as guests of the city of Boston and after following the ride by auto-

THRONG SEES BANDIT TAKEN

Unarmed Officer Quells Gunman at Hellman Bank as Hundreds Are Thrown Into Furore by Hold-Up

Alarm bells clanged, the bank doors were slammed shut and bolted and hundreds of persons peered in the windows and huddled in the lobby of the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings Bank at Sixth and Main streets last night while Patrolman George A. Neustedt captured a bank bandit.

Patrolman Neustedt, unarmed, on sick leave while recovering from an accidental gunshot wound, took away the bandit's gun and covered him with it until members of the police flying squadron arrived to take the prisoner to the police station.

The bandit said his name is Louis Pico and that he had just arrived in Los Angeles from Tucson, Ariz. He is 27 years of age.

"I was broke and thought the bank would be easy," the police quoted him as saying after his capture.

CAREFUL PLAN

The hold-up of the bank apparently was planned carefully along the lines of several hold-ups that have given the police trouble during the last few months. Up to the point where the demand was made for the money, the bandit's plans moved like clockwork.

Pico, according to the police, first prepared his note. It read: "Hand over $3000 or all the money you have. Don't move or make a sound until I've gone. Otherwise I shoot. There are others with me."

Entering the bank crowded with customers, the robber approached Teller C. F. Menke's window. Pico first tendered a deposit slip for $3 and then showed the note, unbuttoning his coat and exposing a pistol at the same time.

PULLS ALARM

Menke had been reading about bank hold-ups, too, and he also had mapped out a plan of action. When he saw the note and the gun, he dropped to his hands and knees, pulling the burglar alarm. Attendants slammed shut the doors at the first clang of the alarm and the customers began to mill about the bank as the cry of robber was taken up.

Pico stood looking in the window, bewildered that his plans had gone wrong.

Patrolman Neustedt was one of the large group of customers. He pushed to the front of the crowd when the alarm started and was standing within a few feet of Pico when Teller Menke arose from

ORCHID NOW DISPLACES EASTER LILY

Takes Leading Place for Street Wear; 50,000 Sold in New York City

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 19.—The orchid has replaced the lily as the Easter flower for street wear, according to wholesale dealers here. More than 50,000 orchids have been sold here during the last few days.

This Easter will go down as the greatest flower-selling Easter in history, according to one wholesaler, who sold more than $125,000 worth of orchids during the last week.

"The sale of the flowers this year will be twice as large as that of last year," said one dealer.

"Before the embargo was placed on foreign flowers the prices were much lower. Orchids from South America four years ago sold for 35 cents a flower at wholesale. Today the same variety sells for $1 a blossom. Though the orchid has displaced the lily for street wear at Easter the lily will probably always be in demand for home display.

"Apparently the tendency of husbands, sweethearts, brothers and sons has turned to flowers instead of candy and other gifts during Easter. This is not only evidenced by the large amount of orchids sold but by the great sale of other varieties of flowers."

Special Brand of Weather Ordered for Early Services

Tucking the left hind foot of a rabbit in his vest pocket, Col. H. B. Hersey, in charge of the local Weather Bureau, handed Los Angeles and vicinity the following Easter egg:

"There is going to be glorious Easter weather," said Col. Hersey. "We have arranged for a special brand of weather for the sunrise services—not too warm and not too cool. During the day it will be warm enough to wear new spring clothes."

The warm spell continued yesterday, the maximum temperature being the same as that of the day before—87 deg.

The sun will rise approximately at 5:17 o'clock.

ARIZONA LETS TOURISTS PASS; BLOCKADE STANDS

Bars Lifted for Stranded 800 After Fumigation, Then Put Back; Feeling Runs High

YUMA, April 19.—The vanguard of the 800 tourists marooned in the desert at the California-Arizona line for the past eight days began trickling across the Yuma bridge and into Arizona territory at 5 p.m. today.

They had been thoroughly fumigated and disinfected in an oven-hot corrugated iron fumigation shed erected for this purpose at Knobs Siding, in California territory, about twelve miles west of this city.

Under a scorching sun with no real shade for miles around, the wilted and dispirited motorists lined up in front of the corrugated-iron shed to await their turn at fumigation. They are being hurried through the structure at the rate of twenty minutes for each party and in thirty-six hours it is expected they will all have been fumigated and sent on their way.

When all of the 800 tourists have undergone the process the blockade will be restored by the Arizona authorities with the intention of keeping it airtight until the danger of a spread of the hoof-and-mouth epidemic is considered over.

The first automobile party to take its formaldehyde spray, shower bath and steam treatment for clothes, automobile and baggage was composed of Robert Wiseman, two other adults and seven children from Oklahoma City, Okla.

FIVE FUMIGATIONS

Mr. Wiseman stated that he had been marooned in the desert for eight days and that he and the other members of the party had gone through five fumigations since leaving Southern California.

A. E. Pellew of 1224 H. street, Washington, D. C., and his wife were the next to undergo the fumigation and disinfectant process. They had been held up at the desert blockade line for exactly a week and Mr. Pellew stated that he had been unable to change his clothing once during that time.

To relieve the suffering of the stranded tourists a large supply of food, blankets and tents has been sent to Knobs Siding by business men of Yuma. The first tourists who crossed the line into the State late this afternoon heartily praised the efforts of the Yuma emergency committee in their behalf.

BLOCKADE TO STAND

Once the blockade is re-established, authorities here said, not a soul will be permitted to cross the State line. Col. Charles W. Harris with eight National Guardsmen and a machine gun is patroling the line, assisted by a large squad of special officers and deputy sheriffs. Col. Harris will take personal command of the blockade in this area after the 800 tourists get across.

Sheriff Gillette declared that he intends to "defend Imperial county from invasion by any armed soldiers or residents of Arizona" and that he had full police power to keep California roads open in the face of the Arizona foot-and-mouth blockade.

L. L. Odle, superintendent of the Fort Yuma Indian Reservation, has also taken a hand in the affair and has sent a wire to Washington protesting against the action of California authorities in lifting the blockade on the Yuma road across the Indian Reservation. He declared that this action constituted a violation of the Federal quarantine.

YUCATAN IS PACIFIED

Revolt Crushed by Federals

Resistance Virtually Ended With Fall of Merida and Progreso

Rebel Leaders Reported in Flight and Alvarado is Said Assassinated

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MEXICO CITY, April 19.—The capture and occupation yesterday by Federal troops of Progreso and Merida have virtually crushed any semblance of resistance to the government in the State of Yucatan, according to dispatches received by the War Office today.

The capture of the two towns also served to halt the spread of anarchy in the peninsula, the dispatches say. The rebels who ruled the two towns did so without any attempt to enforce the law or to keep their troops in hand. Before evacuating, the rebel chiefs ordered the wholesale plundering of Merida in a last effort to provide themselves with funds and provisions. They also imposed large forced loans on firms doing business in the district and on the wealthy hemp planters.

OBREGON SENDS PRAISE

President Obregon late yesterday wired his congratulations to Gen. Eugenio Martinez for the capture of Merida and also commanding Jose Maria Itturrea to resume his office as Governor of Yucatan.

The majority of the leading insurgent chiefs have disappeared. A number of conflicting reports have also been received here regarding Salvador Alvarado, successor to De la Huerta as leader of the revolt. One is that his followers have turned on him and killed him and others are that he has fled to Havana.

In the meantime the government is centering its efforts in an attempt to raise sufficient funds to pay salaries due to government employees. Approximately 50 per cent of the 14,000,000 pesos due these employees has been obtained from money lenders and the remainder, it is expected, will be raised in a short time.

KEEP AUTO HOME TODAY!

Officials in Foot-and-Mouth Disease War Urge All to Avoid Trips; Trespassers Face Fine, Jail

A ray of hope began to shine into the foot-and-mouth disease situation yesterday when officials in charge of the battle against the plague announced that they are better able to cope with the situation at the end of the first month of the outbreak than they were after a full year of effort in the 1914-15 outbreak that reached into twenty-two States.

While the broadening of quarantine restrictions and increasing efficiency of the disease-fighting forces has led officials to look to the future optimistically, they do not claim that the disease is under control or that there is any immediate prospect of the lifting of the quarantine. The increase of the disease is merely being curtailed and will be stamped out in time, they say.

KEEP CAR HOME

"Keep the car at home," is reiterated as rule No. 1 which citizens must adopt if full co-operation is to be given to the fight against spread of the malady. Warnings were broadcast by the Automobile Club of Southern California and other agencies yesterday against the usual Sunday pleasure trips.

From headquarters of the county fighting forces came the announcements of three new outbreaks—all of which, however, were in old territory. One was in a head of 128 cattle at Van Nuys and the other two at Lamanda Park in herds of thirty-five and fifty-four head.

Federal, State and county forces are uniting in the war on the disease with every possible remedy being applied. New outbreaks are occurring in the quarantined areas, but they have been expected and provisions have been made to care for them. The new quarantine rules issued by G. H. Hecke, director of the State Department of Agriculture, and made effective immediately by proclamation of Gov. Richardson, are more stringent than any promulgated previously and make their violation a misdemeanor offense, punishable by a fine of not less than $50 or more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months.

TRAVEL CUT DOWN

In the closely quarantined areas, including Los Angeles county, all movement of live stock and other animals, manure, hay, straw, fodder, grain and things of like nature, is prohibited except under special permit. All persons are forbidden to trespass upon any public or private ranch, farm, range or pasture land, whether adjacent to a highway or not.

The quarantine regulations have spread into the canyons and mountains and include the closing down of train service to Mt. Lowe by the Pacific Electric Company.

National forest reserves and mountain ranges are closed to vis-

FUND FOR STATE VOTED IN HOUSE

Added $1,500,000 to Fight Cattle Disease

Passage by Senate Also is Expected

Federal Officials Confer on New Measures

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The House this afternoon passed the $1,500,000 for Federal use in connection with the foot-and-mouth disease in the State of California.

There was not much opposition and Congressman Fredericks silenced the principal objector, Blanton of Texas, after he had intimated that everything was being done for California. It is expected that the Senate will follow the House promptly in making this additional money immediately available. A delegation from California to confer with Federal officials over the quarantine measure is expected to be in Washington Monday when conferences will be held with Secretary Wallace, Dr. Mohler, head of the animal husbandry division of the Agricultural Department and others.

Frankly alarmed over the situation which has arisen in the Far West as a result of neighboring States, embargoes against California, the Federal officials today sat in conference to consider means of preventing possible serious consequences.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Hoover were called to the White House soon after receipt this morning of scores of telegrams protesting against the embargoes and following the replies of three State governors to the messages of President Coolidge which demanded that "other States should not interfere" with the government's efforts to meet the California situation.

The motorists who last night attempted to storm the California-Arizona border line and break the stringent blockage imposed by Arizona sent a telegram to the President signed "400 American citizens" in which they protested in strongest terms against the embargo and declared that as a result of their enforced stay in the California desert they were becoming "destitute."

The governors of Nevada, California, Utah and Arizona have replied thus far to the Coolidge protest, but as yet the White House has not made public their messages. It is known, however, that Gov. Hunt of Arizona, informed the President that his State would be "courting disaster" if it modified its embargo against California products and vehicular traffic.

President Coolidge in his telegram to the governors of California, Washington, Idaho, Nevada, Arizona, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, New Mexico and Hawaii stated frankly that he believed the quarantine measure being imposed by States touching California "are altogether more severe than necessary."

TO START ON MISSION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 19.—On the eve of their departure to visit Western States in an effort to obtain uniformity on foot-and-mouth disease quarantine regulations, members of three committees recently appointed to visit those States on behalf of California interests today issued a statement in which they expressed the hope that they would be successful in their mission. The statement said:

"It is our purpose to go into Western States to inform them fully regarding the foot-and-mouth disease that has broken out in certain limited districts in California. We will ask that uniform regulations regarding quarantines, providing every safeguard justified by science and experience, be adopted in these States and that unreasonable restrictions on California products be removed.

"We expect that when the facts are understood, these States will remove certain bans now existing against farm products from noninfected areas, as such products as fruit and vegetables have never been known to carry this disease.

"We will ask that authorized representatives of their departments of agriculture be sent from these States to California to ascertain just what the situation is. We will guarantee that these officials will receive every assistance from State and Federal authorities who are now actively and closely cooperating to meet this problem.

"The economic welfare of all Western States is so closely related that evil effects of unreasonable quarantines against California products will react seriously on these other States.

"We are eager to have every justifiable precaution taken to prevent the spread of this disease, but we believe the entire West will sustain unnecessary injury if beneficial commerce in commodities that may be moved without hazard is held up."

PAUL REVERE RIDES AGAIN

mobile took part in elaborate ceremonies at Lexington.

Although the airplanes could make immeasurably faster time than the historic steed it was a case of the hare and tortoise today for Revere actually finished the ride before the fliers. So Revere really might have done no better had he had an air squadron at his disposal originally. The reason was that a strong wind prevented the airmen from starting when Revere did. The hopoff was postponed and postponed until Revere had finished his trip to Lexington, but it was only a question of minutes for the aircraft to make up the lost time and complete the entire journey.

CONVOY OF BOYS

With his cocked hat at a jaunty angle over his right ear, "Paul Revere" clattered over the cobblestones from North Square a few minutes before 10 o'clock while a sailors' band played and Mayor Curley and Patriots Day officials stood at attention. About 100 Italian youngsters accompanied on the run as far as Hanover street but no farther. Their breath gave out at that point.

Before he cantered away "Revere" received from Mayor Curley an envelope containing congratulations. This informal ceremony, conceived on the spur of the moment, took place in front of the real Paul Revere's house.

The house was decorated with American flags and children were crowded inside.

blockade along the California-Arizona line would be restored immediately after the last of the 800 tourists marooned there are across. The telegram reads:

"Please warn all tourists not to head toward Arizona. In order to relieve the situation at Yuma we are going to fumigate and permit those there to pass and immediately thereafter close the border."

FEELING RUNS HIGH ON BORDER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WINTERHAVEN, April 19.—This hamlet, perched on the California side of the Colorado River, is fanned tonight by alternate breezes of verbal war and peace, the result of Arizona's foot-and-mouth blockade against eastbound automobile travel.

To the east is the bridge over the river into Yuma, Ariz., whose Arizona end is guarded by its State militiamen, but back of whom are Yuma officials and citizens, who have been laboring all day to alleviate the privations of the stranded travelers, now going through the process of fumigation and proceeding eastward.

On the Imperial Valley Cal. side is Sheriff Gillett of Imperial Valley, who declares threats have been made from the Arizona side that the Arizona guards will cross the bridge and re-establish the road blockade in the Indian reservation—California soil—which Gillet broke down yesterday.

Gillett says he has authority from Gov. Richardson of California giving him "full police powers" over the situation. He is reported to have ordered guns and ammunition from El Centro to oppose the threatened invasion.

To this, Col. Charles W. Harris, Adjutant-General of Arizona, replies, that neither he nor his men have any intention of trespassing on California soil.

While talk of peace and near-war was flying back and forth, the blockaded travelers were being fumigated fourteen miles west of here, at a station established at Knobs Siding in the desert. Fumigation will proceed tonight until all are handled, then the border will be closed again under orders from Gov. Hunt of Arizona.

NEEDLES VICTIMS TRY NEVADA LINE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEEDLES, April 19.—Several of the approximately 250 motorists stranded here as a result of Arizona's embargo against motor travel from California, headed for the Nevada State line today in hope of getting through to the East, following the receipt of a wire from Dr. S. E. Douglas, Arizona State Veterinarian, stating that under no conditions would automobiles be allowed to cross the Colorado River into Arizona territory.

The remainder of the stranded tourists continued to remain here, with the hope that orders may come permitting them to cross the State line, which was closed because of the foot-and-mouth disease among live stock of California.

When Detectives Finn, Wilde and Hartmeyer of the flying squadron reached the bank a few minutes later, they found the crowds about the windows blocking the traffic on both Sixth and Main streets. With Neustedt they conducted Pico to Central station where he was booked on a robbery charge.

Neustedt received the commendation of Capt. Home, chief of detectives, and his brother officers for his fast work. He was particularly praised because he has been out of bed but a few days and is still weak from the gunshot wound that he suffered accidentally several weeks ago while on duty in the desk sergeant's office at Central Station. He was shot through the neck and for several days his recovery was doubtful.

two years and carried out the policy that had been practiced for two or three years past there would be no hope for relief, no hope for reparation and none for security or peace. To take the chance that now was offered and put the plan into operation as a whole and then "go on and finish the job and bring peace and security to the continent," was what he cared about and what he was going to work for.

POINTS OUT DANGER

By letting Germany join the League of Nations they could complete the organization upon which he would like to found the future peace of Europe. He regarded the rise of an extreme nationalism in Germany as a very great menace—dangerous to Europe and deplorable for Germany as well. The policy of the Allies, he said, was largely responsible for this rise of the German nationalist movement. He urged that the Allies' attitude should be to accept Germany's word and he pointed out that the greatest thing Germany offered to Europe now was not the danger of arms, but the danger of industrial deterioration.

Mr. MacDonald described his government as "a human government, a government that has made mistakes and is going to make mistakes.

"But," he went on, "it is a government that considers first and foremost how it can help undistinguished, orderly, hoping, striving men and women and children with human souls and with an appreciation of human duty and human rights."

THREE-YEAR TASK

The Premier said the chairman of the meeting had frequently used the word "Socialist."

"He is a very rash man," commented the Premier. "Does he not know that one of the few remaining hobgoblins of our youth is the word 'Socialist?' We have departed, nearly all of us now, from those delightful faiths which made us afraid to go out at night, and Mr. Churchill alone is striving to adapt Hans Anderson's story to the intelligence and requirements of gray-headed adults."

The Premier said he believed it was his duty to carry on the government and keep off a general election which nobody wanted. He saw no reason why there should be a general election for two or three years. It would take at least that time, he added, to put Europe on a peaceful footing and get industrial relations established in anything like a normal way.

ASSAULT SENTENCE IS CUT BY GOVERNOR

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 19.—Gov. Richardson today commuted the sentence of Herbert W. Reed, former music teacher of Lodi, from an indeterminate prison sentence of from five years to life to ten years. The Governor's action was taken on recommendation of the judge who sentenced Reed and the District Attorney, who prosecuted him. Reed was convicted of assault in San Joaquin county on March 27, 1921. In July of the same year the law under which he was sentenced was amended by changing the sentence in such cases to from one to ten years. The Governor said his action had been in accordance with the law.

LATER DATE DECIDED FOR MARINE ACT

Section 28 Will Go Into Effect June 20 Instead of May 20 by Order

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The effective date of Section 28 of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920 was delayed from May 20 to June 20 today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The action was taken to give rail carriers sufficient time in which to adjust their schedules so that the rates will conflict as little as possible with the Interstate Commerce Act.

Johnson's Hotel Space Curtailed for Convention

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CLEVELAND (O.) April 19.—Half the space that Senator Hiram W. Johnson had reserved for his convention headquarters here in June has been cancelled, according to F. L. Bonneville, acting manager of the Hotel Cleveland tonight. The cancellation was made upon request of Frank H. Hitchcock.

State Senator George H. Bender, manager of the Californian's campaign in Ohio, said the cancellation did not mean that Mr. Johnson would quit the fight for the nomination.

Mr. Johnson is scheduled for a speaking tour in Ohio cities within a few days.

LARGE STILL SEIZED; RAIDERS ARREST MAN

VICE SQUAD OFFICERS FIND 200-GALLON PLANT IN OPERATION

Vice squad officers found a 200-gallon still in operation when they broke into a house at 1848 Avon street, according to Patrolman Crane, who led the raid and who booked W. J. McCardeia at Central Station for asserted violation of the Volstead Act.

McCardeia was tending the still, according to Officer Crane, when the raiders entered. Ninetten barrels of mash and fifty-five gallons of whisky was destroyed.

themselves body and soul in order to meet foreign obligations and keep up their foreign credit.

Warren believes that if Mexico can maintain her service on her foreign debt that help from New York bankers can be obtained to tide over the present critical financial situation. Questioned on what security Mexico could offer Warren indicated that this could be arranged if certain negotiations at present under discussion can be satisfactorily agreed upon.

The Ambassador stated that since his arrival here Washington has exchanged notes with Mexico in which the United States asked that special care be exercised to protect American property and lives when the Federal troops attacked Progreso, and declared, further, that consular reports he had received from Yucatan State indicated that this had been complied with.

The rebel general, Marcial Carazos, heading about 500 men, attacked the important mining city of Pachuca, State of H'dalgo, less than fifty miles from Mexico City, this morning, but was repulsed by the Federal garrison under Gen. Juan Rios Zertuche after considerable street fighting.

All of Honduras but Tegucigalpa Is Under Control

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Provisional President Davila of Honduras advised his personal representative here today that the counter-revolution in the west had been completely routed and the entire country except for Tegucigalpa brought under control. The rebel general, Romualdo Figueroa, was said to have been killed in an encounter at Ocotopeque.

Active negotiations for restoration of peace in Honduras have been opened by Sumner Welles, acting as personal representative of President Coolidge. State Department advices today said Mr. Welles had arrived in Tegucigalpa, and was in touch with the de facto and revolutionary leaders.

TAKES FATHER'S GUILT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LOUISVILLE, April 19.—Hugh L. Grooms, former cashier of the bank of Fountain Run, entered a plea of guilty to three charges of embezzling government bonds left at the bank by individuals. All other cases against Grooms and a few cases against his father, Ed Grooms, were dismissed. He agreed to take eight years in the three cases in order to save his father, who is 70 years old and in failing health.

The "Professional" Timekeeper

It is doubtful if in all the world of mechanical science any one name is better known than "Elgin." One of the first Watch Companies established in this country, the character of their product has always been a matter of pride to all Americans. Of late years the popularity of Elgin Watches has become so great that their output exceeds the combined volume of all other American manufacturers while their record for unusual reliability has earned for them the title "The Professional Timekeeper."

Right now you may be carrying one of the large size thick model watches so fashionable in bygone years. Right now you may intend giving to some friend or relative a watch that through the future years will be a dependable companion. In either case you would make no mistake in buying an Elgin—"The Professional Timekeeper." Indeed such a selection would be extremely creditable to your good judgment.

At this store you may see all the models—all the grades and have them demonstrated by watch experts of lifetime experience. Come in any time and welcome.

HANIHARA NOTE DENIES THREAT

Asserts Congress Misread Clause at Issue

Hughes Said to Have Urged Veto of Measure

Opinion as to Effect of Letter Divided

by the Ambassador's explanation, the President, it is argued, would have an additional reason for vetoing the measure in order to permit elimination of the provision on repassage.

SEE REPASSAGE

If that were the case, however, the error could still be corrected in Congress, through action of the conference committee and approval of both houses. Administration leaders in Congress expressed the opinion tonight that the latest exchange of letters between the Ambassador and Mr. Hughes would not change the situation. They were sure that the exclusion provision would have been adopted by both houses in any event and that the Ambassador's letter, construed as a threat, merely increased the majority in favor of the measure.

The bill with the exclusion clause intact will go to the President in a few days, it was predicted, and if Mr. Coolidge should veto it, it would be repassed by the required two-thirds majority in both chambers with votes to spare.

The Ambassador's letter to Mr. Hughes follows:

"In reading the Congressional Record of April 14, 1924, I find that the letter I addressed to you on April 10, a copy of which you sent to the chairman of the Senate Committee on Immigration, was made a subject of discussion in the Senate. In the record it is reported that some of the Senators expressed the opinion, which was apparently accepted by many other members of that body, that my letter contained 'a veiled threat.' As it appears from the record that it is the phrase 'grave consequences,' which I used in the concluding part of my letter that some of the Senators construed as 'a veiled threat,' I may be permitted to quote here the full text of the sentence which contained the words in question.

NO THREAT INTENDED

"'Relying upon the confidence you have been good enough to show me at all times, I have stated or rather repeated all this to you very candidly and in a most friendly spirit, for I realize, as I believe you do, the grave consequences which the enactment of the measure retaining that particular provision would inevitably bring upon the otherwise happy and mutually advantageous relations between our two countries.'

"Frankly, I must say I am unable to understand how the two words, read in their context, could be construed as meaning anything like a threat. I simply tried to emphasize the most unfortunate and deplorable effect upon our traditional friendship which might result from the adoption of a particular clause in the proposed measure. It would seriously impair the good and mutually helpful relationship and disturb the spirit of mutual regard and confidence, which characterizes our intercourse of the last three-quarters of a century and which was considerably strengthened by the Washington conference as well as by the sympathy shown by your people in the recent calamity in my country. Whereas, there is otherwise every promise of hearty co-operation between Japan and the United States, which is believed to be essential to the welfare not only of themselves but of the rest of the world, it would create, or at least, tend to create, an unhappy atmosphere of ill-feeling and misgiving over the relations between our two countries.

SPIRIT OF CANDOR

As the representative of my contry, whose supreme duty is to maintain and if possible to draw still closer the bond of friendship so happily existing between our two peoples, I honestly believe such effects, as I have described, to be "grave consequences." In using these words, which I did quite ingeniously, I had no thought of being in any way disagreeable or discourteous, and still less of conveying "a veiled threat." On the contrary it was in a spirit of the most sincere respect, confidence, and candor that I used these words, which spirit I hope is manifest throughout my entire letter for it was in that spirit that I wrote you. I never suspected that these words, used as I used them, would ever afford an occasion for such comment or interpretation as have been given them.

"You know, I am sure, that nothing could be further from my thought than to give cause for offence to your people or their government and I have not the slightest doubt that you have no such misunderstanding as to either the spirit in which I wrote the letter in question to you or the meaning I intended for the phrase I used therein.

"In view, however, of what has transpired in the course of the public discussion in the Senate, I feel constrained to write you, as a matter of record, that I did not use the phrase in question in such a sense as has been attributed to it."

PARLEY WITH HUGHES

To this Mr. Hughes replied:

"I am gratified to receive your letter of the 17th inst. with your frank and friendly explanation of the intent of your recent note in relation to the pending immigration bill. It gives me pleasure to be able to assure you that reading the words 'grave consequences' in the light of their context, and knowing the spirit of friendship and understanding you have always manifested in our long association, I had no doubt that those words were to be taken in the sense you have stated, and I was quite sure that it was far from your thought to express or imply any threat. I am happy to add that I have deeply appreciated your constant desire to promote the most cordial relations between the peoples of the two countries."

It became known here today that Ambassador Hanihara and Secretary Hughes had a full discussion of the "grave consequences" incident last Thursday, when the Ambassador called at the State Department. At that time, it is understood, the Ambassador expressed himself in much the same fashion as in the letter made public today, explaining that the phrase was intended to be construed with the language which followed, and that no threat of any kind had been thought of. Mr. Hughes, it is understood, likewise stated that he never had imagined for a moment that a threat was intended.

OFFICIAL JAPAN CALM DURING CRISIS

By Roderick Matheson

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, April 19.—The official Japanese attitude continues calm as the nation discusses the Japanese exclusion acts adopted by the American Congress. The spokesman of the Privy Counsel says that body will not attack Premier Kiyoura for his failure to take action regarding the situation, nor will it make a presentation to the throne.

"Until final action is taken by America it will be unwise to take precipitate steps," he said. "It behooves the Japanese to remember the friendly attitude of the American press and a large section of the American public which shows that all Americans are not exclusionists. Now is a time for Japanese to speak cautiously and carefully so as not to wound the feelings of our many friends. The time may yet come when the Senate may reverse its action."

Premier Kiyoura states that the attitude of the Cabinet is one of waiting final action by America, hoping that something better may come.

THREAT BY PRESS

The publication of Secretary of State Hughes's reply to Ambassador Hanihara has tended to calm public opinion. The danger now is that the opposition in Japan may seize the matter for political capital in the national campaign which is now progressing. There are indications already that the opposition leaders plan to arouse popular indignation over the exclusion clause placing the blame for it on the government. The first shot has been fired by the Kenseikai party spokesman who demanded the immediate resignation of Premier Kiyoura, whom he blames for Ambassador Hanihara's diplomatic blunder."

Discussing the situation the Nichi Nichi says:

"President Coolidge may sign the bill. If so and the law is enforced Japan will not submit. We must demand a reversal by all means lest the relations become more strained, leading to 'grave consequences.'" The paper praises the attitude of the American press, concluding:

"As far as the Senate is concerned if it remains unreasonable, it must take the responsibility for challenging a good neighbor to take whatever course is necessary to amend the evil. It is an international insult which may be blotted out at an early date."

WOODS ASKS VETO

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HONOLULU, April 19.—A cable from Tokio to the Nippu Jiji, a local Japanese newspaper, states that the American Ambassador, Cyrus Woods, has cabled President Coolidge urging him to veto the Japanese immigration bill.

NURSES HURL DEFI; BOB HAIR

Four Hospital Students Suspended Until Tresses "Recover;" Backed by Internes

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—During the next two months the energy of four student nurses at the County Hospital will be dedicated to raising hair. If it isn't long enough by that time they'll have to purchase false tresses before being allowed to return to duty.

The young women were suspended by Miss Mary C. Wheeler, Superintendent of the Illinois Training School for Nurses, because they disobeyed her edict against bobbed hair.

There was much ado at the hospital when news of the suspensions became known. Sixty of the internes took a vote on the question, and all, except one, favored bobbed hair. That one explained that the style is O. K., but so many of the girls fail to keep their necks clean.

The feelings of the internes also were made plain in a notice which was posted in the main elevator at the hospital. It read:

"The Spanish inquisition ended in 1572, and the use of bustles was discontinued at the time of our venerated Abraham Lincoln. Internes are requested to vote on the proposition:

"Resolved that bobbed hair for nurses neither is iniquitous, an index of inefficiency, nor is it an indication of low moral tone or depravity. Those who believe that a nurse's dignity resides in her hair vote 'no' and move back to the farm."

Most of the 300 nurses at the County Hospital favor bobbed hair. A dozen of them became indignant when Miss Wheeler ordered all girls with shorn locks to wear nets and false hair and forbade any more of her charges to visit the barbers. The twelve caucused and agreed to have their hair bobbed. The four girls aforesaid carried out the agreement.

Why the nurses resent Miss Wheeler's dictum was made plain by one of them in a single sentence:

"When we appear at a dance with long hair," she complained, "we're the only ones there that are in the horse and buggy class!"

LIEUT. WOOD TAKES VILLE DAVRAY HOUSE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—Lieut. Osborne Wood, a son of Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, who became a millionaire almost over night, has taken a house at Ville Davray, near Paris, where he will spend the next three months. Friends describe the lieutenant's new home as a palatial villa bordering on a chateau. It is understood that Wood is remaining in France to perfect his French before entering the Diplomatic Corps. It was announced last week that he had offered his resignation from the Army.

WIFE IS FORBIDDEN TO SPEAK SHE SAYS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 19.—"You will speak when you're spoken to, and then your answer will be 'Yes' or 'No,'" said William A. Smith to his wife, Mrs. Portia Smith, of Brooklyn, according to her affidavit in her separation suit filed yesterday. She further charges that the "total amusement he gave me during the four years we lived together consisted of one motion-picture show." Smith, an insurance agent, replying to his wife's action, charged that she left him. Mrs. Smith asked for reasonable alimony and counsel fees pending trial, Decision was reserved.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BROWNSTOWN (Ind.) April 19. Five of the officers and directors of the Crothersville State Bank, which failed last September, are held under bond on indictments returned by the Jackson county grand jury. The men indicted were Frank Butler, former president; Gordon Butler, former cashier; William Rider, Howard Rider and Harry Kovernor, directors. The failure of the bank cost citizens of Crothersville $100,000.

TYPHOID HITS MONASTERY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VIENNA, April 19.—The Roman Catholic monastery in Meidling, near here, where hundreds of missionaries live, is being guarded by a cordon of officials in order to prevent the spreading of virulent typhoid, which has broken out among the 150 friars. The monastery is a training school for missionaries. It is thought the disease was brought from Asia by returning friars. Numbers of them already have died.

FORECAST ZONE TO GET EXPERT

Washington's Weather Man to Come to Coast

Maj. Bowie Transferred to San Francisco

Gets Key Position Because of Fine Record

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Maj. Edward H. Bowie, Washington's "weather man" since 1909, is going to leave the district the first part of June it was learned today. He will assume charge of the Pacific forecast district at San Francisco because of the retirement of E. A. Fields, who has been seeking for some time release from his long period of service.

It was learned at the Weather Bureau that Maj. Bowie was selected by reason of the need of an experienced meterologist in taking care of the Pacific Coast forecasts, which have become a key to the weather predictions for the western and southwestern sections of the country.

The work on the Pacific Coast is in a stage of development which has brought very important problems in meterology to the attention of Weather Bureau officials and not only because of his efficiency record as supervising forecaster of the national capital, but also because of his desire for Pacific Coast climate the officials in command of the bureau picked out Maj. Bowie.

REPORTERS' FRIEND

During his service here he has endeared himself to newspaper men by his humor, promptitude and all-around readiness to serve. One of the first things a "cub" reporter here learns is that Maj. Bowie is the weather man—and his friend.

Maj. Bowie worked himself up from the bottom in the weather service since 1891. He was in the field service when he entered, serving in Iowa, at Montgomery, Ala., at Galveston, St. Louis and many other stations prior to 1909, when he was selected for the Washington post because of the efficiency record he had hung up during the field service.

In the bureau, when radio was in its infancy Maj. Bowie was among the pioneers who saw the vast possibilities of utilizing this discovery to expedite weather reports and to pick up weather reports from ships at sea.

STEADY SERVICE

When the talk of sending the Shenandoah to the North Pole was at its height Maj. Bowie was considered for the work of handling weather reports from that dirigible in its projected cruise in the Arctic. It was then that the idea germinated which eventually resulted in the decision to send him to the Pacific Coast section.

Maj. Bowie saw continuous service as the local weather man since 1909 except for the time he spent in France during the war.

He sponsored the plan for obtaining cruising weather reports for a forecasting basis from the French officers' training ship during its trip across the Atlantic about a year ago.

While regret was expressed among his associates at the Weather Bureau today at the news that he was about to leave Washington it was tempered by the fact that the new field would offer him even broader possibilities than the local one and by the knowledge that he would be placed in a situation agreeable to him.

ASK PERMIT TO LAY RAIL TRACKS IN CITY

SOUTHERN PACIFIC, UNION PACIFIC, PREPARE FOR JOINT DEPOT USE

In order to enable the joint use of the Arcade station by the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific lines, as recently sanctioned by the City Council, the two railroads yesterday applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for permission to construct approximately eleven miles of tracks within the city limits of Los Angeles.

The new track will connect the Union Pacific system at a point on the Los Angeles River bank with the Southern Pacific freight yards along San Fernando Road. All freight traffic in Alameda street must be removed according to the permit granted.

BANKER'S ESTATE HELD FOR DEBTS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KANSAS CITY, April 19.—The death of John M. Moore, president of the Fidelity Bank and Trust Company, following disclosure of his $600,000 shortage, does not affect the recovery by the Fidelity company of at least $250,000 from property owned by the former president. Deeds to a 10,000-acre Texas ranch and to Excelsior Springs, Mo., property have been recorded and the rest of Mr. Moore's known property, including 355 shares of Fidelity stock, was in the bank's possession. Mr. Moore carried life insurance, the amount of which was not known to his former associates. As a creditor, the bank would participate with other creditors if any insurance might fall to his estate. It was not known whether Mr. Moore had made his estate beneficiary, or had named his wife or other persons. One estimate was that Mr. Moore probably carried about $50,000 insurance.

EPIDEMIC COMPELS MEET CANCELLATION

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ANAHEIM, April 19.—Word of the postponement of another public gathering in Anaheim, due to the foot-and-mouth epidemic, reached the city late yesterday when City Manager O. E. Steward was advised that the big Boy Scout field meet scheduled for April 26 had been cancelled. That the postponement would be only temporary if the epidemic was brought under control in a short time was expressed but no new date was set pending further developments in the quarantine regulations.

BOND PUT UP BY WHEELER IN FEE CASE

Must Appear in Montana May 5 to Answer Charge in Indictment

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Senator Wheeler of Montana, appeared before United States Commissioner MacDonald here today and furnished bond of $1000 for his appearance May 5 at Great Falls, Mont., to answer an indictment charging him with accepting money illegally for appearing before the Interior Department in land cases.

The Daugherty committee prosecutor went before the commissioner voluntarily soon after he was advised by the District Attorney's office that the indictment had been forwarded here with a request for service.

Investigation of charges on the indictment against Senator Wheeler will be resumed Monday by the special Senate committee.

Chairman Borah said today that L. V. Beaulcu, "land lawyer" for Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator, and W. G. Glosser of Great Falls, will be among the witnesses. Information reaching the committee is that Glosser was one of the witnesses before the grand jury.

Blair Coan, who has been described as an agent of the Republican National Committee, and who returned here from Montana last week, also will be heard Monday.

COOLIDGE HOME HAS NEW FACE

White House Really White Again With Easter Coat of Glistening Paint

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Easter Sunday will find the White House in a dazzling new dress of white, the first in four years. Painters have been busy all week and the scaffolding is still up on part of the wings, but the front entrance to the lovely home of the President is so clean and bright that it puts the many-pillared old Treasury Building on the left and the sprawling brown Army and Navy Building on the right to shame.

Out from the pure white portico the new grass presents a field of vivid green. The old-fashioned scythe went over this a few days ago, for it had grown long and unkempt under the rains and the warm air. Then the mowers cut it down to a perfect carpet, which is studded with giant elms, Japanese maples, acacias and flowering magnolia and shrubs. There are daffodils and pansies in bloom and the air is sweet along the high iron fence where the faces of many visitors are pressed to get a glimpse of the comings and goings in this first home of the land.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge plan to attend church as usual, occupying their pew in the First Congregational Church, and then spend the afternoon on the Mayflower for a trip down the Potomac with intimate friends.

Clara K. Young, Operated on, Is Close to Death

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

FORT WAYNE (Ind.) April 19. Miss Clara Kimball Young, actress, who collapsed while on the stage in a local theater Tuesday, was secretly rushed to a local hospital early tonight and operated on. Her condition, it is understood, is extremely dangerous.

Miss Young was removed from the operating room at 10:35 p.m. still under the influence of the anaesthetic. The surgeons said it would be midnight before she fully regained consciousness and that no statement of her condition would be given out until that time.

It was revealed for the first time after the operation that Miss Young was suffering from an abdominal tumor and is gravely ill. She was reported as making "satisfactory progress" this afternoon, but suffered a relapse early this evening.

CIRCULATION CHIEF DROPS DEAD AT HOME

JOHN H. PETERS, NEWSPAPER EXECUTIVE, SUCCUMBS TO HEART DISEASE

John H. Peters, city circulation manager of a local newspaper, dropped dead from heart disease at his home in Ocean Park Heights yesterday. His death came as a great shock to his family and many friends. He was 45 years of age and well known in newspaper circles in the city.

Although definite arrangements had not been made last night it was said that funeral services would probably be conducted tomorrow afternoon at the undertaking establishment of Walter C. Blue, 717 West Washington street. He is survived by his widow and a stepson, Harold.

PASADENA SERVICES WILL BE IN STADIUM

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, April 19.—Sunrise Easter services will be conducted in the Tournament of Roses Stadium tomorrow morning. Thousands from various parts of the Southland are expected to assemble in the picturesque Arroyo Seco for the event. An immense cross, twenty feet high, decorated with flowers, will be on the speakers' platform. Dr. Merle M. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Church will make the principal address. Other ministers taking part will be Rev. J. A. Campbell, Rev. Carl Henry, and others.

GOVERNMENT HELD LIABLE FOR FIRES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MINNEAPOLIS, April 19.—For the second time a jury in the Duluth District Court found the United States Railroad Administration responsible for that part of the forest fires of October, 1918, which destroyed approximately $4,000,000 worth of property in the Woodland district, a suburb of Duluth. After deliberating exactly twenty-four hours on the "model Woodland fire case," eight women and four men awarded Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. McCool a verdict of $5985 against the railroad administration. A motion for a new trial is to be made by attorneys for the defense.

COLLAPSE OF CLIFF KILLS BOY ON BEACH

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19.—Collapse of a thirty-foot cliff buried Joseph Alvera, 12 years of age, under tons of earth and rock this morning as the boy and his uncle were walking near by. The mass came tumbling down upon the two without warning. The uncle leaped to safety after a vain attempt to rescue the boy, whose body was recovered by policemen. The accident occurred at the foot of Redwood street, close to the bay shore. Tide waters are believed to have undermined the base of the cliff.

SOVIET CLAIM ACCEPTED

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MOSCOW, April 19.—It is reported from Vladivostok that representatives of the Japanese fishermen have accepted the Soviet claim of nearly 3,000,000 yen for their old fishing contracts, and that new agreements have been concluded.

NEED OF POLICE BONDS DETAILED

More Protection Held Vital in Association Appeal

Present Force for City of Only 300,000 Persons

Crime on Upgrade, With Loss of $7,000,000 Yearly

Concrete facts and figures showing why the passage of the $1,600,000 police bond issue to be voted on May 6 is vitally necessary to the future welfare of the city are contained in a statement issued yesterday by the Association for Better Police Equipment.

The statement was prepared with the assistance of Chief of Police Vollmer and shows in detail the city's needs in the matter of more adequate police protection and the losses it sustains annually through the activities of crooks of all sorts.

CRIME INCREASES

In the first place, it is pointed out, the University police district alone comprises a territory as large as the area of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley combined. This district must be patrolled, but by relatively a handful of officers.

The police department as at present constituted is equipped to protect a city of but 300,000, the statement continues, and largely because of this criminals are enabled to collect from the city $7,000,000 every year. There are more burglaries, hold-ups and murders committed in the city in one month than in all of Great Britain in the same length of time.

Crime, the report shows, has more than kept pace with the growth of the population. In 1919, for instance, there were 3200 burglaries, 285 robberies and 1700 automobile thefts. In 1923, however, burglaries increased to 10,500, robberies totalled 1175 and a total of 4500 automobiles were stolen.

But this in itself, it is pointed out, constitutes but one phase of the evil situation. The loss to the city is tremendous. As an example, it is shown that municipal law enforcement machinery operates at a cost of $5,000,000 annually. Private watchmen are paid $1,000,000 a year. Federal and State law enforcement agents in this district draw another $1,000,000 and a total of $5,000,000 is expended in automobile insurance.

The crime loss totals about $580,000 a month. If the proposed bond issue is passed by the voters and results in a decrease of 25 per cent in the amount of crime the total saving to the city in four months would be sufficient to pay off the entire issue.

EXPANSION VITAL

The bonds would provide for the erection of eleven standard-type police stations in districts where they are vitally needed, in the opinion of Chief Vollmer. At present the department is materially handicapped because it is unable to answer calls with the necessary promptness. Speed is the greatest single factor in police work, according to Chief Vollmer, and the establishment of the proposed stations will make it possible to increase enormously the efficiency of the department.

"Crime is rampant in Los Angeles and will continue so until the police department is brought to a standard of size and efficiency warranted by the metropolis of the Southland. We have not and are not now keeping pace with the demands of a great and growing place such as Los Angeles. We cannot expect to control crime in all its forms unless the police department is so expanded that it reaches out to all quarters of the city with sufficient force to make control absolute and sure," Chief Vollmer declared.

CLUB TO HAVE NEW GOLF INSTRUCTOR

HANFORD, April 19.—The Kings County Country Club will have a new man in charge of the grounds near this city next Monday. Otto Bull, for some time with the Visalia club, but recently conducting a golf school at Long Beach, will be the new professor. The grounds of the local club, especially the fairways and greens, have been put in fine condition. Golfing is popular here and new members, both men and women, are being added to the club rolls.

ORATOR CHOSEN BY IDAHO UNIVERSITY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MOSCOW (Idaho) April 19.—Everett Ericksen of Spokane has been selected to represent the University of Idaho in the Tri-State oratorical contest to be held in May in Portland. Ericksen's subject is "The War."

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES AT SUNRISE TO MARK COMING OF EASTER IN LOS ANGELES

Easter dawn will be ushered in this morning with sunrise services to be conducted in open-air theaters and in many churches of Los Angeles. The principal sunrise service is that to be conducted at the Coliseum at Exposition Park and thousands are expected to enjoy the organ recital which will precede the program of song and sermon. The speaker will be Dr. Hugh K. Walker, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Preparations also have been made to accommodate a record crowd at Hollywood Bowl at which sunrise services will be conducted under auspices of the Hollywood Community Chorus. Hugo Kirchhofer will be in charge of the vocal part of the musical program and selections will be given by the Hollywood Community Orchestra. Dr. Samuel J. Skevington will give the address of the morning.

Another sunrise service of interest will be conducted at Mt. Forest Lawn, Glendale, and the chief speaker will be Dr. R. B. Von KleinSmid, president of the University of Southern California.

A program of Easter music will be given at the Ambassador at 5 a.m., and another on the lawn of the hotel in the evening. Churches of all denominations have arranged for special services to be conducted at various hours during the day in commemoration of the risen Lord.

DAIRIES OF TULARE NOW AT NORMAL

Rains and Better Feed Conditions Are Boon to Butterfat Production

TULARE, April 19.—Timely rains and better feed conditions brought butterfat production of dairies in this section back to normal with the result that, despite a drop in prices, a total of $307,018.42 was paid out to dairymen of this section for the March product. This is about $35,000 more than the February pay roll, which was $272,288.24.

Prices dropped about 2 cents, the decline being attributed to the unfounded scare in large centers as result of the hoof-and-mouth disease in other California counties. March churning cream brought 52 cents, as against 54 cents for February. Sweet cream sold for 55, as against 58 and 60 in February, while whole milk in March brought 60 cents and in February 63 to 66.

Green feed and pasture conditions are reported to be much improved and production among dairy herds is unusually high.

Plants handling dairy products included in this report are: Dairymen's Co-operative Creamery, Los Angeles Creamery, Peacock Ice Cream Company, Lucerne Creamery Plant, all of Tulare, and Paige Creamery and the Alfred Ice Cream plant at Tipton.

TAKES FIRST PRIZE IN WELDING CONTEST

HANFORD, April 19.—E. R. Nash of this city, has received the prize of $100 and the high honors which go with first award in the international steel welding contest conducted by the United States Welding Company of Minneapolis. Mr. Nash is one of the foremost mechanics of the San Joaquin Valley, being manager for the past fifteen years of the Cousins Tractor Company of Hanford. He has made a special study of welding, pursuing the subject, by reading and experiments, for sixteen years. In the March number of the Welding Engineer nearly two pages are devoted to the achievements of Mr. Nash, printed with a fine likeness of him.

VISALIA ELKS PLAN FOR MINSTREL SHOW

VISALIA, April 19.—Under direction of E. O. Chandler, assisted by members of the Elks' Glee Club, a home-talent minstrel show will be presented by Visalia Lodge of Elks in Theater Visalia in May. Preliminary work on the production is now under way.

Visalia is noted for its superior home talent and a number of local artists will participate in this affair. Beside the regular minstrel numbers, many special innovations have been introduced by Mr. Chandler, who has had considerable experience in presenting similar entertainments.

PREPARE PLANS FOR HANFORD AUDITORIUM

HANFORD, April 19.—Plans are now being prepared by Architects Coats & Traver of Fresno for the municipal auditorium in this city, bonds for which in the sum of $190,000 have been recently sold. The City Trustees have charge of award and construction. The limit of cost of the building is $115,000 and the lots cost $50,000, leaving $25,000, which will be used for furniture and equipment. The old Central Grammar School, on which the auditorium is to be built, is almost razed. A home for the American Legion post of this city, to be built at once on the same block as the auditorium, will harmonize with the Auditorium in general design.

OPEN TRAINING CAMP FOR SCOUT MASTERS

HANFORD, April 19.—The San Joaquin Valley training course for scout masters, Fresno district, opened its first session at the gymnasium of the high school in this city last night with thirty-eight present. Hanford, Stratford, Corcoran and Oilfields were represented. A dozen more entries are expected soon and the course will continue every Thursday night for six weeks. District officers are in charge. Additional scout troops are to be organized in Kings county as soon as this training course is finished as more scout masters are available, the work being comparatively new in this county.

DUCOR, April 19.—That Ducor youths are not ashamed of coming from a "cow country," is indicated by the "Sombrero Club," an organization of high school boys, students at the Porterville Union High School. The purpose of the club "is to furnish excitement, advertise fine cattle, and to protect complexions and health." Leading spirits in the organization are Don Witt, Keny Talpott, Edwin Dundas and Buster Braly.

Rockefeller Fellowships for Germans

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 19.—Dangers attendant upon the alarming decrease in the number of young medical scientists in Germany and other central European countries, led the Rockefeller Foundation to grant 194 resident fellowships in medicine in Germany last year, George E. Vincent, president of the Foundation, reported today.

The Foundation spent $8,431,075 in 1923, he said, of which more than $2,000,000 was used for combatting yellow fever, malaria and hookworm diseases in twenty countries, principally those of Central and South America.

DRUGS SMUGGLED AS PHONOGRAPH PARTS

HONGKONG OFFICIALS SEIZE $20,000 CONSIGNMENT FROM GERMANY

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

HONGKONG, April 19.—Great difficulty is experienced at this port in preventing the smuggling of opium and drugs. The latest dodge discovered has been to import morphine in phonograph spare parts.

Twenty cases, supposed to contain only graphaphone parts, recently arrived here on the German steamer Oldenburg from Rotterdam, but examination showed that they contained a very considerable quantity of morphine as well.

The value of the consignment of this drug was placed at $20,000. The whole has been seized by the government. The consignees of the drug are not known, as the morphine was not claimed.

OIL SHALE LANDS COLORADO ASSETS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DENVER, April 19.—Oil shale is falling in line with oil field development in Colorado and the coming summer promises to see marked activity in the sale of shale lands, the sales keeping pace with the drilling campaign that will be a feature of the oil development in the State, especially this summer. While it is estimated conservatively by petroleum geologists that fifty new wells will be drilled in Colorado before the year ends, there is no estimate made on the total acreage sales of oil shale lands. Shale has passed the stock sale period, passed the preliminary experimental state and with the supply of petroleum nearing the demand, big companies are turning to the shale lands as a protective measure and holding the lands for the time when the extraction of oil from shale must be a large part of the oil supply of the country.

BANK SEEKS PROTECTION

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OMAHA, April 19.—The Farmers National Bank of Pilger became a State Bank yesterday upon permission granted by K. C. Knudson, head of the State Banking Department. This is the first instance under the present administration of a national bank becoming a State bank. The failure of the First National Bank of Pilger recently and the huge loss to depositors as a result, Knudson said, was a cause of the change. As a State bank the depositors will be protected by the State guaranty fund.

NEW METHOD HEALS RUPTURE

Kansas City Doctor's Discovery Makes Truss or Operation Unnecessary.

Kansas City, Mo.—(Special)—A new discovery which, experts agree has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of Dr. Andrews, the well-known hernia specialist of this city. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of the Los Angeles Times who writes him at his office, 1813 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. DIVERSION DAM FOUGHT IN SUIT

Irrigation Companies Oppose Kaweah River Project

H. G. Nutt Named President of Lindsay Chamber

Exeter Chorus to Appear in New Concert

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VISALIA, April 19.—With the filing of an injunction suit by the Evans, Watson, Fleming, Oakes and Persian ditch companies against a group near Woodlake, including Philip, Albert, and Michael Sweeney, H. A. Hein, Jr., C. Hollwager, M. Hollwager and J. A. Hannah, to restrain them from taking water from the Kaweah River ahead of the plaintiff's ditches by means of a diversion dam built, it is said, in October, 1921, another legal battle to rights to waters of the Kaweah broke here.

The plaintiffs lay claim the right to sixty second feet of water through Lane's slough. The water is brought westward through the Visalia district. It is asserted that the defendants have banded together to build the concrete diversion dam and are taking water from the river ahead of the plaintiffs.

LIBRARY BOOKS

PORTERVILLE, April 19.—Mrs. Elsie B. Stone, who has been in Porterville for three months cataloging non-fiction books in the city library, has found this a much bigger job than anticipated and expects to spend the rest of this month at the work. Besides the books bought from time to time through the county library, Miss Sarah Louise Templeton, librarian, has recently purchased a number of volumes of an educational and scientific nature.

CLEAN-UP PLANNED

LINDSAY, April 19.—H. G. Nutt will head the Lindsay Commercial Club for the coming year. The election followed a banquet at the Hotel Lindsay. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, C. J. Kroells; treasurer, A. M. Hostetter; directors, George Delano, Earl Nash, F. F. Pollick and G. B. Moore.

The following holidays will be observed by the club; New Year's, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas.

Secretary C. O. Griffin of the Chamber of Commerce invited co-operation of the club in observance of Tulare county's clean-up week, starting May 5. Shade trees on the streets will be white-washed, a fly and mosquito campaign will be started and premises cleaned. The Tuesday Club will establish a free plant exchange, while the Boy Scouts and school children will co-operate.

CHORUS TO VISIT LINDSAY

EXETER, April 19.—Exeter's male chorus has responded to an invitation to appear in Lindsay and will repeat its recent concert there, the 29th inst., at the Methodist Church. Practically the same program as given here will be presented there. A few changes will be made to permit Lindsay musicians to participate.

INSURANCE WINS LEGION SUPPORT

Commander Quinn Indorses Present Bonus Bill

Fears Cash Option Would Endanger Passage

Curtis Explains Measure at Senate Session

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The American Legion today indorsed the insurance soldier bonus bill taken up in the Senate. In a message to each Senator, Commander Quinn asked that no attempt be made on the floor to amend the pending bill.

Commander Quinn mentioned specifically the proposed amendment by Finance Committee Democrats for a full cash payment option and expressed the belief that if it were adopted, chances of the bonus bill becoming law would be endangered.

Meanwhile the Senate took up the bill, Senator Curtis, Republican, Kansas, explaining the measure passed by the House and agreed to by the Senate Finance Committee. Advocates of the pending measure predicted its early passage in view of the division in the Democratic ranks over the full cash payment option.

CRUX OF CONTEST

Senator Robinson, Arkansas, Democratic leader, explained that while some members of the party were in favor of incorporation of a full cash option in the bill, others felt this would impair enactment of the measure and therefore many Democrats probably would support the insurance provision.

The fight for cash payments has been considered the crux of the bonus bill contest on the floor.

"The bill as it was so overwhelmingly passed by the House," said Commander Quinn's message, "and as it was reported by the Senate Finance Committee, is in accordance with the resolution adopted at the national convention of the American Legion at San Francisco this year and at Los Angeles last year. This meets with approval of members of the American Legion. The question of immediate payment in cash has not been before the ex-service men and women for more than two years. In the name of the ex-service men and women of the country, we ask your support of the bill as reported by the Finance Committee.

ASK SUPPORT

"We believe that this bill can become a law even over a veto by the President. What the ex-service men and women desire is that the bill become a law. Your active support therefore of this bill as reported by the Finance Committee will receive the sincere appreciation of the ex-service men and women of the nation."

Senator Robinson promised passage of the bill "within a few hours" if the President would make clear whether he would approve the pending measure and veto a cash option bill.

Senator Curtis replied that while he would not speak for the President, he thought Mr. Coolidge would be "more apt to sign the insurance bill than an insurance and cash-option measure."

Cummins Says Radicalism Has Begun to Recede

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—"Radicalism is becoming less general every day," said United States Senator Albert Cummins, Iowa, in an interview at the Congress Hotel today.

"It is due to the unrest of the times and conditions are much better now than they have been. There will always be some unrest and some radicals as long as there are some people poor and others rich."

The Senator also expressed the opinion that the investigations at Washington had about reached a peak.

THAW CONFERS WITH COUNSEL ON TRIAL

SANITY CASE TO BE UP AGAIN TODAY; EVELYN MAY NOT TESTIFY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PHILADELPHIA, April 19.—Harry K. Thaw conferred today with his counsel, former Judge John M. Patterson, on plans of action when his sanity trial is resumed on Monday.

Thaw left the Pennsylvania Hospital for mental and nervous diseases carrying a hugh sheaf of notes and books of testimony. After an hour's conference, Thaw walked to the hotel where his mother is staying.

"Everything looks good so far," he remarked.

Evelyn Nesbit, Thaw's divorced wife, whose 13-year-old son has been permitted to intervene in the trial, also conferred with her counsel, William A. Gray, and Arthur G. Dickson, attorney for the trustees of Thaw's estate. Mr. Gray indicated a disposition not to permit Miss Nesbit to testify.

MAN MISSING

Sheriff's deputies last night were seeking Edwin M. Hart, 37 years of age, 1379 North Hill street, Pasadena, who is reported to have been missing from his home since the 3rd inst. Hart was employed as a salesman and was last seen when he left his home announcing that he had to make a trip to San Bernardino, according to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hart of Van Nuys.

ENGLAND HAILS "OUR MARY"

Extraordinary Receptions to Fairbanks Couple at Southampton and London; Guests of Royalty

BY JOHN STEELE
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, by the Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, April 19.—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks arrived in London this afternoon as bright and shining celebrities among 1500 Americans who landed at Southampton this morning. Cheering crowds held in check by the police gave the pair extraordinary receptions both at Southampton and here in London, the newspapers donating "our Mary" a comfortable portion of their front pages.

The film sovereigns will be the guests of Lord Louis Mountbatten, cousin of King George, and present engagements include balls, receptions, dinners in their honor to be given in the next fortnight by the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, Sir James Barrie, the London Post of the American Legion and others.

TO MEET ROYALTY

They are also "commanded" by the king and queen of the Belgians next month and a similar command has been received from the court of Sweden for later in the season.

Mary Pickford said the first thing she would do in England would be to go down to Haddon Hall and "see how many mistakes I have made, when I built its reproduction out in Hollywood."

Then laughing she declared: "We are going to Moscow to present the premiere of Doug's picture, 'The Forty Thieves of Bagdad.'"

MOB OF REPORTERS

One mob of English reporters asked whether Doug was going to be on hand to rescue Mary from the Bolsheviks in case she needed him.

"He'd better rescue me, or the people would never believe him in the films," said Mary.

Today's liners brought the largest group of Americans yet this year and the London association stated that in the season now begun 250,000 tourists were expected to visit England before October.

HOWARD CARTER IS HOME

Arrives in New York But is Eager to Resume Work in Egypt; Takes Rap at Prohibition

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 19.—Howard Carter, co-discoverer with Lord Carnarvon of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb in the Valley of The Kings, arrived on the Berengardia today.

He hoped, he said, that the present litigation between himself and the Egyptian government might be settled so that he could resume work at the tomb next fall.

Young looking, vigorous and eager to talk of excavations, mummies and Egyptian legend, Mr. Carter laughed at mention of the superstition that the curse of an ancient god descended upon explorers of tombs and sarcophagi.

AGAINST SPOLIATION

Even the 700 natives who worked with him in the valley took the curse legend light, he said. He insisted, however, that he did not believe in permanent despoliation of tombs and he advocated that when pending researches were completed the mummy of King Tut, as well as all other royal mummies now adorning museums, be returned to their native resting places.

In answer to one query from the reporters' questionnaire, Mr. Carter said:

"On many ancient tombs, I have found this inscription: 'Let all those who love life and hate death wish thousands of geese, loaves of bread and beer to my soul.'

MUMMY OF GOLD

"That is what the old Egyptians thought of prohibition. And I believe I agree with them."

The explorer said he epected to find the body of King Tut "literally canned" in gold, with the sepulchral regalia adorning the mummy and the fingers and toes incrusted in gold."

Mr. Carter said he was "hopeful a novel would be found within the coffin—a story placed there for King Tut's delectation in the next world," and he hoped the narrative would disclose things about ancient Egypt which were available from no hitherto discovered source.

PING LUNG, KING'S PET, IS CORPSE

Famous Pekinese Dog Dies in Paderewski's Private Car at Chicago

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—Ping Lung is dead.

The Pekinese dog, also known as "Pingy," who once shared the sorrows of an Emperor of China and more lately the Chopin etudes and private car of the great Polish pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski, departed this life in the private car Ideal situated on the tracks north of the Illinois Central depot at 8:45 this morning.

He died as he had lived. On a crimson satin cushion that might have provided a fitting resting place for the head of Trojan Helen he breathed his last.

At the bedside were Mr. Paderewski once a Premier of Poland; Mme. Paderewski, her son, and Dr. W. P. Tague. Tears filled their eyes and they sobbed as they watched life ebb away.

Ping Lung was 15 years old.

Ping Lung's passing was simple, as befitted his dignity and position in life. There wasn't a shudder or a bark. He merely drew his last breath exhaled it and then breathed no more.

The tears of the sorrowing family dropped on the silken coverlet on the laquered bed. The slender finger of the great pianist, whose playing of a Chopin nocturne causes women to swoon, nervously sought his forehead. The little tuft of whiskers on his chin rose and fell as his lips quivered.

"He is dead," said Dr. Tague, his finger on the pulse in the left hind leg. "The lion heart has stopped beating."

SHIP CALVES NORTH UNDER SPECIAL ORDER

PORTERVILLE, April 19.—Special permit was secured from Tulare county livestock inspectors for shipment of ninety-four head of calves to Oakland last night for slaughter purposes. The stock was shipped by Harvey Frame, local cattleman, and was obtained from Hodges Brothers in the hills. Frame also shipped ninety-two head of hogs to San Francisco, which were purchased from Harry Sickles of Springville.

SEARCH FOR GIRL

A State-wide search was started by the Sheriff yesterday for Burnett Rose, 15 years of age, of 1217 East Seventy-seventh street, who left her home the 14th inst.

ORCHESTRA AT SERVICE IN VISALIA

Special Easter Day Music at Park; Exeter Gives Up Sunrise Event

VISALIA, April 19.—Special music by a six-piece orchestra will accompany the singing of Granier's "Hosanna," a feature of the Easter sunrise service at Hyde Park here. "Resurrection" will be rendered by a joint chorus from choirs of the various churches, led by Mrs. Charles Rucher. Hitherto the Easter sunrise service was at Rocky Hill.

Exeter has also given up the mountain sunrise service and will give a cantata, "Our Living Lord," in the high school auditorium in the evening instead.

Dinuba will have its annual Easter sunrise service on Haden Heights, Rev. Frederick R. Thorne delivering the message, while all other pastors of the city will participate in the exercises.

Lindsay has abandoned its sunrise service on Lindsay Peak on account of the fight against the cattle disease, but will have special exercises in the Methodist Church in the afternoon. Porterville, Strathmore, Orosi, Tulare, Terra Bella, Three Rivers and other communities will also have special services.

TWO AUTOISTS FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Robert McMeacham of Los Angeles found it expensive to take a nap in his car while it was parked along the street last night. Officers who peeped into it espied a five-gallon water bottle, which, according to their story, was filled with liquor. McMeacham was charged with having in his possession and being engaged in the transportaton of liquor. He was fined $300 on each count and paid the money and went on his way. C. H. Baker, suspected by the officers of being a rum runned plying between Bakersfield and Los Angeles, was stopped by the officers on his way through town from the north. According to the story told to the court by the officers seven bottles of liquor were found quietly reposing in his car beneath a mattress. Baker was also fined $300 on two counts. Walter A. Roberson, driving a Los Angeles baker's wagon at a speed said to have been faster than fifty miles per hour, was fined $50 and sentenced to the County Jail for a term of fifty days. In addition his driver's license was revoked for a year.

TO START CAMPAIGN TO BUILD GIRLS' CLUB

MEMBERS PLAN TO RAISE CASH FOR BUSINESS WOMEN'S HOME

Mrs. Willoughby Rodman will be the principal speaker tomorrow night at the Alexandria at a dinner for workers in the drive for $50,000 to buy and maintain a home for the Business Girls' Club of Los Angeles.

The campaign for funds officially opens tomorrow and will continue until May 1. Under the sponsorship of the Los Angeles Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the Business Girls' Club is maintained for the purpose of assisting the "less than minimum wage girl."

At the campaign dinner tomorrow night community singing will be led by Harry Girard, local organist and vocalist. Miss Orfa Jean Shontz, president of the Professional Women's Club, will preside.

LAST RITES AT VISALIA FOR WOMAN PIONEER

VISALIA. April 19.—Funeral services were conducted this afternoon for Sofie Kesner, one of the bestknown residents of Visalia, who died at her home here Thursday night following a long illness. Miss Kesner was 71 years of age and had lived in Visalia for forty-nine years, coming here from her birthplace at Carolyn, Ill. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Rose Dice of Visalia and Mrs. March of Orosi, and one brother, John Kesner of Visalia.

SUSPECTS NABBED IN GUN FIGHT

More Than 100 Shots Are Fired Before Two Fall Into Officers' Net

A running gun-fight between bandits and a squad of police ended at dawn yesterday in the capture of two burglar suspects.

The bandits were surprised by the officers in the act of loading tires and other automobile supplies into a stolen truck from a gasoline station at Sixth and Fremont streets. The officers had hurried to the scene in response to a call from a pedestrian who had informed them that the gasoline station had been broken into.

They called on the burglars to surrender but a raking fire was the response. In the gun battle which ensued more than 100 shots were exchanged but no one was hit.

The two suspects fled from the scene on foot. One was overtaken at Sixth and Figueroa streets and the other arrested at his home at 832 Carillo street. They gave the names of John Standford and Fred H. Baldus and each his age as 19 years. Baldus, according to the police, is an ex-convict, having served a year at Leavenworth for grand larceny. He also is declared by the police to be the youth who in 1921 shot and slightly wounded a man whom he attempted to holdup. At that time has was placed on probation because of his youth.

TAXI RATE CUT TO AID SHOPPERS

New Fare Schedule Will Go in Effect Tomorrow; Business Increase Seen

Moving to attract to their service the thousands of women downtown shoppers, new rates will be put into effect tomorrow by the Yellow and Brown and White Taxicab Company, recently consolidated, it was announced yesterday by Martin J. Kelly, operation engineer of the Yellow cab system throughout the United States, who now is in Los Angeles.

"We particularly want to demonstrate to the women that the day of the high-priced taxi is gone, and that they can use one on a shopping tour economically," declared Kelly. "We expect to increase our volume of business so greatly by low rates that ultimately I believe that we will be able to offer a 10-cent fare to women shoppers."

The new rates are 30 cents for the first half-mile, and 10 cents for each additional half-mile for one passenger. For each extra passenger 25 cents more for the entire trip will be collected. The same rates are in operation at Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, St. Louis and other eastern points, Kelly declared.

SCIOTS TO GIVE BALL

Lybian Guard of Local Pyramid To be Presented

The formal presentation of the Lybian Guard of Los Angeles Pyramid of the Ancient Egyptian Order of Sciots will be one of the features of the Friday night ball of the order at which, it is expected, several thousand Masons and their friends will attend. The Lybian Guard will be entered in the contest at the annual State convention of the order at Redding next November and it is already engaged in intensive drill for the event.

Arrangements for the Friday ball have been perfected by the entire membership of the guard, working as a committee under the direction of Dr. Joseph Bloom, chairman of arrangements. Invitations have been sent to all Masonic bodies in Southern California and responses indicate that one of the largest crowds every attracted by the annual event will be present.

WATCH BURIED FOR YEARS KEEPS TIME

ADA (Minn.) April 19.—While plowing a garden in his lot in Borup, John Larson unearthed a gold hunting case watch which had been lost there ten years ago and plowed under by Frank Miller, who was then employed as a foreman on the G. L. Thorpe farm. The watch was found in running order and is again proving itself a reliable timekeeper.

KITTLE RITES TOMORROW

Final Curtain to Come Down on Tempestuous Life of Daredevil Who Chose Death Rather Than Cell

The turbulent career of Hubert Kittle, who after flirting with death in scores of gun battles and daredevil stunts ended his own life with poison last Friday, will come to an end in a grave at Inglewood Cemetery tomorrow afternoon.

Kittle's funeral services will be conducted at the Wilshire undertaking parlors at 2 p.m. tomorrow. Rev. Glenn McWilliams, who served as secretary to former Mayor Sebastian, will officiate. The bural will be in Inglewood Cemetery.

The death of Kittle will not interfere with the continuance of the prosecution of those said to be guilty of robbing the First National Bank of Arcadia, for which three innocent Mexicans are serving prison terms. According to Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Wright, the search for Jack Sullivan, William McMahon and Eddie Burns, whom Kittle named as the real Arcadia bandits, will be continued. Though Kittle would have been a valuable witness in the prosecution of the case, Mr. Wright stated, he made and signed voluminous statements relative to his knowledge of the Arcadia robbery and other robberies and these will used if the three fugitives are ap- be used if the three fugitives are apprehended.

WIFE HAS TOLD ALL

A report yesterday that Mrs. Kittle, the widow, will be questioned concerning her knowledge of an underworld crime ring was discredited by a statement from a high official who declared that Mrs. Kittle already has been interrogated and that she has told everything she knows.

Kittle, with a long career as a train bandit, deep-sea diver, motorcycle racer, parachute jumper, aviator and friend of well-known criminals, ended his spectacular life by swallowing cyanide poison at his home, 618 Milton Place, to evade a possible prison term for receiving property stolen in the Arcadia bank robbery.

Pardons for the three Mexicans convicted for the Arcadia bank robbery were asked officially yesterday by Dist.-Atty. Keyes in documents, reviewing the case, to be forwarded to Gov. Richardson. Salvadore Mendival is serving ten years in San Quentin and Jose Hernandez and Broulio Galindo are serving twenty-five-year sentences in Folsom for the crime of which they are innocent. The three men have served seventeen months of their sentences.

FOLLOWS INQUIRY

The application for the pardons was made after a long and persistent investigation, made by Sheriff Traeger and Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff Wright, of information that "One-eyed" Tom Gray's gang of bandits and not the three Mexicans committed the robbery. The result of the investigation was the indictment of six men for the crime, including Frank Sullivan, Eddie Burns, W. F. McMahon and Tom Gray, who is a prisoner in the Oregon penitentiary.

The statement of the case and the request for pardons will be signed by Judge Houser of the District Court of Appeals tomorrow. It then will be forwarded to Gov. Richardson.

The document recites the findings of the long investigation of the Arcadia robbery, which occurred on April 5, 1922, and in which $6000 in cash and securities were stolen by four men. Following the robbery, four Mexicans were arrested in Coyote Pass. Each had a revolver. They were identified as the Arcadia bandits and, though one died before the trial, the other three were convicted.

KITTLE CONFESSED

Following the conviction of the Mexicans, repeated rumors that the convicted men were innocent were investigated. Hubert Kittle was the first man arrested in this investigation. He was charged with disposing of several hundred dollars in travelers' checks, stolen in the robbery. After numerous interrogations, Kittle confessed his knowledge of the bank robbery, absolved the Mexicans of the guilt, and named the Tom Gray gang as the guilty bandits. This confession was corroborated by a confession from James "Buck" O'Neil, recently found guilty for the robbery of the Norwalk Commercial and Savings Bank, and in which O'Neil also named the Tom Gray gang as the Arcadia bank bandits.

his fighting units to the Pacific Ocean. These ships had been transformed by order of Congress from coal burning to oil burning vessels. Years before Congress had established a coaling station at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, but had failed to provide any oil west of San Francisco and but very little any place.

SOUGHT TO PREPARE NAVY

Warned by the awful experience, and near-calamity of the recent past, Secretary Denby sought to have the Navy prepared for any eventuality. He deemed it wise to have oil at Pacific points, but relations with Japan were so strained that it would not do to advertise that we were making preparations for war. Therefore, every oil company big enough to handle the proposition was invited to bid, and of the five companies so invited three actually did bid on a portion of reserve No. 1 in California. Mr. Doheny's bid, being far better than any of his competitors, got the lease. Mr. Sinclair was the only bidder for Teapot Dome in Wyoming, and he got that lease.

The difference in practice between Secretary Daniels and Secretary Denby, briefly stated, is as follows: Secretary Daniels let his associate of the Interior Department make the leases with the President's approval. Secretary Denby and his associate of the Interior obtained an executive order transferring the management of the reserves to the Interior Department and then they jointly negotiated the leases, but Secretary Denby signed them.

It is charged that the leases made by Secretary Denby were corruptly made because, as the evidence shows, Mr. Doheny made Mr. Fall an unsecured loan of $100,000. I invite you to compare the terms obtained while Joseph Daniels was Secretary of the Navy with those obtained through the joint efforts of Secretary Denby and Secretary Fall.

Under no lease made by John Barton Payne, secretary of the Interior—Secretary Daniels made no leases—was a royalty obtained in excess of the requirements of statute of from 12 1-2 per cent to 25 per cent and no lease has actually yielded over 18 per cent. The lease of a portion of reserve No. 1 in California by Secretary Denby to Mr. Doheny's company calls for a royalty of from 12 1-2 per cent to 35 per cent and has yielded 32 per cent delivered at the refinery. The lease of Teapot Dome in Wyoming to Mr. Sinclair, a rival of Mr. Doheny, who admittedly had nothing to do with the $100,000 loan, provides for a royalty of from 12 1-2 per cent to 50 per cent, and has actually yielded over 27 per cent, more than 2 per cent in excess of the maximum that can be hoped for under any lease made during President Wilson's administration.

In addition to all this, Mr. Doheny agrees to build and deliver to the government storage for 4,200,000 barrels of fuel oil at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and he has built and filled storage for 1,500,000 barrels and has the work nearly completed for the balance of this contract. In addition, he agrees to maintain in storage, furnished by himself, 1,000,000 barrels of fuel oil at designated places on the Pacific Ocean and 3,000,000 barrels of oil on the Atlantic available at all times for the Navy on call at 10 per cent below market price at the time of delivery. Under the Teapot Dome lease Sinclair agrees to build and has built 500 miles of pipe-line connecting the Wyoming field with trunk lines extending to the Gulf, the Lakes and the Atlantic, and he takes the government royalty oil practically at the end of his pipe line for he agrees to pay the mid-continental price, 40 cents per barrel more than the government or any Indian trible, or any private operator anywhere in the Wyoming territory receives.

I have here photographic copies of letters and leases to substantiate the facts I have stated. They are all from the files before the investigating committee. Every Senator and Congressman knows all these facts, in short everybody is informed except the public.

What will appear to you as passing strange is the fact that Secretary Denby, while before the Senate committee on May 4, 1922, explained all that had been done, all that was proposed and advised the Senate without reservation or concealment concerning everything, including the Executive order. This was within a month from the date of the first of these contested leases and long before the last of them, and before any work had been done under either. The Senate then made no objection and neither then nor since has it sought to repeal the mandatory statute requiring that all oil reserves shall be developed directly or by contract or lease. If you ask why no objections were then made, perhaps you will be able to answer your own question. There was no Presidential campaign then in progress.

GREAT WAR PREVENTED BY LEAGUE

Graeco-Italian Solution Shown by Prof. Hudson to Justify Existence

At a cost of less than $20,000,000 the League of Nations has prevented at least one war, the financial toll of which would have reached billions, Prof. Manley O. Hudson, professor of international law at Harvard and a member of the legal section of the secretarial of the League of Nations, declared yesterday in an address before the City Club.

"On September 1 Greece appealed to the Council of the League of Nations in its controversy with Italy, and on September 27 the Italians evacuated Corfu," Prof. Hudson stated. "Personally, I think the indemnity demanded by Italy from Greece was exorbitant, but that is not the point. The big point is that today there exists the machinery with the power to call international conferences that did not exist in 1914. Had such a body of international representatives as the League of Nations been in operation in 1914, the greatest international tragedy of history might have been averted."

Prof. Hudson described in considerable detail the effective work of the mandate, legal, social and health sections of the secretariat, expressing the belief that immeasurable good has already been done by the League which had been impossible before the existence of the League.

"The United States will yet change its attitude toward and judgment of the League," the speaker prophesied in closing.

MRS. ASHURST DYING

All Hope Abandoned for Mother Of Arizona Senator

All hope for the recovery of Mrs. Sarah E. Ashurst, mother of the Arizona Senator, has been given up following a restless night which materially affected her vitality, according to report yesterday from Alhambra. Friends and members of the family are gathered at the bedside of the dying woman. Mrs. Ashurst's condition has been growing worse steadily for the past few days.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON HAS ANNUAL ELECTION

Annual election of officers of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity was held Friday night at the University Club, at a banquet at which forty colleges were represented among the 100 members attending. The new officers are E. W. Hiestand, president; Robert Bundy, vice-president, and Lynn Stenter, secretary. The "Deks" hold weekly lectures at the University Club Thursdays at noon.

Women Held on Dancing Charge Are Arraigned

Evan Morrow, Bonnie Sloan and Mildred Towne, arrested Friday night while they were giving a performance in a hall at 246 South Hill street on an immorality charge were arraigned yesterday in Police Judge Crawford's court and pleaded not guilty. The women asked for jury trials and their case was set over until next Thursday. Morrow requested a court trial and he also will be tried Thursday. The three suspects were held under $500 bail each. Police charge that the three dancing performers were appearing in the nude.

SHED DESTROYED AS SPARKS START BLAZE

Fire, believed to have been caused from sparks flying from a near-by trash pile, yesterday afternoon, destroyed a large shed on the rear of the lot of 2321 South Wall street. Damage was estimated by N. Anenburg at about $1000. The fire was under control within a few minutes after it started. The shed was used as a storage plant for junk by J. Sandrovitz, the tenant of the house in front, and Anenburg, who conducts a junk shop at Seventeenth and San Pedro streets. The building destroyed was owned by M. Moore.

Fletcher Company Protests San Diego Jurists

Asks They be Barred in Water Suit Case

Seeks Prohibition Writ by Appellate Court

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19.—Application of the Ed Fletcher Company to have all four of the San Diego Superior Court judges declared ineligible to try the case of the city of San Diego vs. the Cuyamaca Water Company, affecting certain water rights in the county, was denied this morning by Judge C. N. Andrews.

Counsel for the water company announced they would seek a writ of prohibition from the Appellate Court. The Fletcher Company, owners of the Cuyamaca system, hold that Superior Judges Spencer M. Marsh, William Cary, E. A. Luce and Andrews, by reason of personal interest in the controversy, were not qualified to try the case. It was argued that the judges owned properties the value of which would be affected by the outcome of the litigation.

With the settlement of the question of a judge, the case is expected to be tried in the near future. The appeal for a writ of prohibition leaves the matter of a jurist up to the Appellate Court.

The original suit was brought by the city, May 5, 1923. It seeks to establish the city's paramount right to the waters of the San Diego River, basing it on grants and use by the old San Diego pueblo, dating from 1834.

HE SINGS OF PARADISE AS PARENT DIES

Santa Ana Chorister Goes on Rehearsing Unaware of Mother's Plight

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, April 19.—"Verily I say unto thee, today shalt thou be with me in Paradise."

As the last strains of the sacred melody, sung by her son in a cantata at the First Congregational Church here Friday night, wafted out to her over intervening heads, Mrs. R. E. Miles, wife of a prominent local merchant, collapsed with emotion.

Three hours later she died at her home, 535 Orange avenue, at approximately the time her son, ignorant of his mother's condition, was singing in a rehearsal of the Choral Union, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my soul." Heart disease was given as the cause.

The son, R. R. Miles, was prostrated with grief.

The Miles family has been prominent in Santa Ana affairs for the past fourteen years, coming here from Pasadena. In addition to husband and son, the dead woman is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Kendall of Pasadena.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday morning.

ENGINEER DISCUSSES WATER CONSERVATION

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SIERRA MADRE, April 19.—Two hundred members of the Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce gathered for luncheon yesterday noon to hear Willis Jones, engineer, speak on the proposed water conservation project for Southern California and the $35,000,000 bond issue to be voted upon May 6. A part of this sum will, if the bonds pass, be devoted to the building of the dam in the Little Santa Anita Canyon near Sierra Madre. Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles county, will be the speaker at next week's Chamber of Commerce luncheon, it was announced. Alvin Langly will be the chairman of the day.

BANK CLEARINGS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, April 19.—Exceeding by more than $250,000 the total for last week, the five Pomona banks today showed total clearings for this week of $1,757,179.27. The figure is considerable above the average and only about $100,000 less than the record figure of the past six months.

OFFICERS OF CHURCH ELECTED

Redlands Presbyterian Has Its Annual Meeting; Finances Reported

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, April 19.—The annual meeting of the Presbyterian Church was conducted today and officers for the coming year were elected. The reports show that about $13,000 was raised in the church this last year, $8000 for the expense of the church and $5000 for benevolences.

Rev. A. G. Fessenden, moderator of the session of the church, was in charge. Elders elected are Roy Stone Kendall, B. L. Valentine, R. S. Elwood, A. B. Drake and Howard Andrews; deacons, J. H. Sutherland and A. J. Hancuff; trustees, R. J. Farquhar, H. R. Pastorius and H. E. Cromas. Dr. A. R. Schultz, Mrs. A. B. Drake and Glenn Farquhar were named the committee on pastoral relations.

The officers of the church are president, F. A. Leonard; vice-president, W. I. Wells, and secretary, J. G. Chapman.

Miss Lydia Salisch, in charge of the House of Neighborly Service, maintained in the Mexican quarter by the church, reported that classes in sewing, cooking and home care have been organized and that during the last year 4000 persons visited the house.

Coolidge Drive at Anaheim Is Set Under Way

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ANAHEIM, April 19.—An intensive campaign to insure the support of all Anaheim voters for President Coolidge at the primaries on May 6, has been launched here this week following a special meeting called by the president, Judge J. S. Howard.

Although the local Coolidge Club was organized several weeks ago and a campaign opened by a speaker from the Better America Federation, the work was stopped temporarily until after the municipal election here.

A number of local business men, members of the club, have made arrangements for another meeting next week when plans for an active campaign on the week preceding the primaries will be outlined. These will include an open air meeting for which a special speaker from Los Angeles is to be secured.

VALUABLES SEIZED IN SUSPECTS' HOME

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19. — Jewelry, furs and costly garments, valued at $15,000 and believed by the police to represent loot in robberies in a number of Pacific Coast cities, were seized today in an apartment occupied by Leon Gilbreath, 30 years of age, who says he is a broker, and Myrtle Gilbreath, 23, his wife. Arrest of the couple followed a complaint from Coronado that a man and woman were trying to sell valuable furs in an exclusive neighborhood. When arrested the man said his name was Kinney, but the name Gilbreath was found on a marriage certificate when the apartment was searched. Furs, mesh bags, silverware, watches bracelets and scores of silk gowns were uncovered. Gilbreath and the woman said the articles had been purchased from an unnamed man.

SAN DIEGO PLANS SUNRISE SERVICES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19. — San Diegoans will observe Easter with the annual sunrise services at Mt. Helix tomorrow morning, and at the outdoor organ pavilion in Balboa Park in the afternoon.

Ideal weather conditions are assured. The forecast issued this afternoon said that Easter Sunday should dawn clear, dry and warm. Extension improvements have been made at Mt. Helix, including a new road up one side of the peak, and another road down. The Advertising Club of San Diego, as usual, will have charge of the services. Provisions have been made to accommodate upward of 5000 persons. An organ concert and community singing will make up the program at the Balboa Park organ.

BRIDE ELECTS JAIL TERM

Pleads Guilty to Petty Larceny; Prefers Cell to $25 Fine; Says She Will Leave Husband

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ONTARIO, April 19.—Mrs. Bell Davis, 23 years of age and pretty, a bride of a few months, chose jail today when Judge George R. Holbrook pronounced a sentence of $25 fine or twenty-five days. The sentence followed the bride's plea of guilty to a charge of petty larceny.

Mrs. Davis was arrested on complaint of Gilbert Tidwell after Capt. Arthur Axley of the Ontario police force, armed with a search warrant, had visited the woman's apartment at 205 West Main street and recovered a number of articles alleged to have been stolen from May Tidwell, wife of the complainant.

ADMITS THEFTS

In court, Mrs. Davis freely admitted her thefts and refused to offer any explanation for her acts. Sentenced following her plea of guilty, the woman, who was attired in a smart tailored suit and chic hat, announced that she would serve her time.

Claims of Mr. Tidwell that a manicure set found in Mrs. Davis's apartment was the property of his wife, were denied by the bride, who declared that her husband had purchased the set and given it to her as a wedding present.

HUSBANDS CLOSE FRIENDS

S. B. Davis, the husband, and Tidwell are both employed at a local citrus packing concern and a friendship is reported to have sprung up between the men which resulted in intimacy between the two families, Mrs. Davis having been a frequent visitor at the Tidwell home in Stowell street, it is said. The Davises are reported to have come to Ontario only a few weeks ago from Texas.

Articles stolen by Mrs. Davis included a pair of women's low shoes with rhinestone buckles, two pairs of silk hose and four yards of silk dress goods.

Mrs. Davis today announced her intention of leaving her husband when she gets out of jail, but offered no explanation for the statement.

DEATH CLAIMS LA HABRA TRIO

W. F. Hankemiere Dies of Acute Indigestion

Albert Drake is Killed by Pipe in Oil Fields

Sam Berry Succumbs After Few Hours' Illness

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LA HABRA, April 19.—Three residents of La Habra died suddenly yesterday within a few hours of each other.

W. F. Hankemiere, formerly of Santa Ana, but for the past few months manager of the new Hilbert's department store in La Habra, was stricken with acute indigestion and was rushed to the Anaheim Sanatorium where he died a few hours later. He was 63 years of age and leaves a widow and three children.

Albert Drake, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Drake was instantly killed when his head was crushed by rolling pipe during the loading of a truck in the Santa Fe Springs oil field. The family expected to leave for Arkansas next week, and the body will be sent there.

Sam Berry, for years a character in La Habra, died at the Murphy Memorial Hospital in Whittier after being ill but a few hours. He was 73. He leaves a sister in the East. Although he had made La Habra his home for years he was something of a mystery and was said to be well to do. He lived alone but was a familiar sight strolling around the streets, quaint in dress and personality, but well liked by the entire community.

IRATE WIFE SHOOTS SELF AFTER DANCE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BAKERSFIELD, April 19.—Mrs. J. N. Curtis of South Taft near here, lies in a West Side hospital with a bullet wound in her chest, said to have been self-inflicted following an argument late last night with her husband upon their return from a dance at Maricopa. Relatives and friends of the young couple say jealousy on the part of the young wife was responsible for her action. Mrs. Curtis is said to have upbraided her husband for his actions at the dance. Following this she entered her room and fired a shot from a revolver through her left breast. At the hospital, it was said, Mrs. Curtis probably would recover.

SANTA MONICA SEEKS DIVISION OF TAX FUND

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, April 19.—This city is anxious to lead the State in a movement to enact a constitutional amendment, the design of which is to divide the motor vehicle fund and gasoline tax so that cities, as well as State and counties might obtain a share for road improvement. By resolution city commissioners have gone on record unanimously favoring such an amendment dividing these funds equally among the three political subdivisions.

CATALINA COMPLETES NEW WATER PROJECT

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

AVALON, April 19.—Gushing in a mighty torrent from its 12-inch outlet, the first water from Middle Ranch Canyon, Catalina, reached Avalon yesterday. Pumped for ten miles over hills and valleys, up mountain ridges, over canyon spans or dropping down precipitous declivities, the pure, overflowing spring water has been brought to Falls Canyon reservoir back of the city to serve the residents of Avalon and the thousands of visitors who continually flock to the Magic Isle. The competion of the project was celebrated by all Avalon residents and property owners in a water carnival.

YOUNG FOLK CONDUCT SERVICES AT EASTER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, April 19.—At 5:10 Easter Sunday, just as the light of the rising sun creeps over the eastern range of mountains, Lookout Point, at Ganesha Park, will find hundreds of pilgrims on the hillside for the Easter services which have become renowned throughout the valley. The service this year is in the hands of the members of the Christian Endeavor Union of Pomona and Claremont, and will mark the first time that the young people of the valley have taken charge.

NAVEL SEASON AT PEAK OF SHIPPING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, April 19.—With approximately 4500 cars of citrus fruit, or about 70 per cent of the Navel orange crop shipped so far this year from the Pomona Valley district, hte Navel orange season here is near its peak with expectations that another week will find the Pomona Valley houses shipping to capacity. About 500 cars of fruit were shipped this week. Citrus fruit is now packed almost exclusively 462 boxes to the car.

McKINLEY HOME GETS ANOTHER DORMITORY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

VAN NUYS, April 19.—Permits have been issued for construction of another dormitory at the McKinley Home. This structure, to cost $35,000, will be of hollow reinforced concrete. The two-and-a-half-story administration building also is expected to be under way in a few days. This is to cost $80,000. Specifications are being prepared for other structures to be added to the buildings now being erected.

VALENCIA DIRECTORS CONFIDENT

Arrange Plans in Hope Show May Still Become Reality

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ANAHEIM, April 19.—In the hope that the Fourth Annual California Valencia Orange Show may yet be a reality and that the hoof-and-mouth disease may be sufficiently under contral for the exhibition to be given this year, arrangements are being made by the board of directors to store all properties and retain the present show headquarters until all hope must be abandoned.

The headquarters building will be retained for another sixty days and the work of grading the show grounds will be completed. It is estimated by the board of directors that even though the show is delayed until next year, there will be a comparatively small financial loss. Most of the advertising literature can be rearranged for a later date and the management has been able to cancel all contracts.

Herman Stern, chairman of the board of directors, is in constant touch with the State health authorities, so that with the first sign of the abatement of the hoof-and-mouth disease, activity for the holding of the exhibition will be renewed.

CITY OFFICIALS OF VENICE QUIT POSTS

PRESENT RESIGNATIONS ON EVE OF SEATING OF NEW TRUSTEES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19. At the last session of the old Board of Trustees in the City Hall this morning several resignations of civic officials were dendered and accepted. The acceptance of the resignations was the last official act of the old board which will give way to a session of the new administration Monday. Voters in a municipal election the first of the week elected three new trustees, who will be installed in their new offices Monday morning.

Among the resignations accepted were those of J. B. Griffin, City Manager and City Engineer for the past two years; his secretary, T. W. Golightly; George Nettleton, City Auditor, prominent in civic circles for a number of years, and Thomas Heffron, police inspector.

Griffin's resignation is take effect May 1, Golightly's and Heffron's the 22nd inst., and Nettleton's May 6.

In tendering their resignations the civic officials refused to comment but it is rumored that they believe changes would be made in the civic offices with the installation of the new members of the Board of Trustees.

SIERRA MADRE PLANS EARLY MORNING RITES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SIERRA MADRE, April 19.—Easter services have been planned by the ministers of all Sierra Madre's churches for tomorrow morning. A lenten cantata, "The Cross," was rendered this evening at the Episcopal Church. Members of the church choir were the participants. Hall Perry, Mrs. Randolph Wood, Mrs. J. N. Hawks, and Howard Lieben were the soloists. Special morning services will be conducted at the Congregational Church tomorrow by Rev. William A. Tate; at the Bethany Temple by Rev. Ellworth Lyon; at St. Rita's Shrine by Rev. Peter Hanley; at the Christian Science Church, and at the Episcopal Church by Dean William Carson Shaw.

SUBDIVIDERS ARE ARRESTED

Three Arraigned, One Sought on Accusations of Fraud in Hollydale Lots Sale

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, April 19.—Warrants charging conspiracy to defraud were issued yesterday by Police Judge Helwig against H. H. Townsend, head of the H. H. Townsend Real Estate Company, F. H. Hamilton, another prominent real estate operator of the city, C. D. Adams and A. E. Parkford, real estate salesmen.

Townsend, Hamilton and Adams were arrested a short time later and arraigned before Judge Helwig, who released Adams on his own recognizance but held the two real estate operators under $2000 bail each and set their trial for next Wednesday.

ONE AT LIBERTY

Parkford is still at liberty but his arrest is expected in a short time. He is believed to be out of the city at present.

The four men are charged with misrepresentation in the sale of lots in the Hollydale subdivision near the County Farm. This subdivision was opened by Townsend and Hamilton some months ago and Adams and Parkford are said to have been employed by them as salesmen.

FACTORY PROMISED

The complaint against them was made by George F. Townsend of the Better Business Bureau of Long Beach. He asserts that the four men sold to F. H. Carpenter four lots in the subdivision for $3800 after representing to him that a mattress factory had purchased 20,000 square feet of ground in the subdivision and would erect a factory there in a short time.

Mr. Townsend of the Business Bureau asserts that the officials of the mattress company had agreed to erect their factory in the subdivision only if Townsend and Hamilton would sell $35,000 of the company's stock. No attempt to sell the stock has been made by either of the real estate operators, it is charged.

LAUDS BOYS WHO SMILE AT LICKING

Rotarians Hear Talk of "Uncle Ben" Pearson on Regenerating Youths

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, April 19.—"The worth while boy is the one who can take a licking and come up smiling," was the declaration of "Uncle Ben" Pearson of the Southern California Company, addressing the Rotary Club of Inglewood today. The speaker told of the wonderful regeneration of many girls and boys at Whittier State School, these being related with such feeling as to bring lumps into the throats of his hearers, among them the leading professional and business men of the community.

Mr. Pearson for a number of years was a trustee of the Whittier State School.

The delinquent boy, the speaker emphasized, is often more misunderstood than wilfully bad.

"Take your boy out on trips show him that you know he likes boyish things—don't treat him as an adult all the time," said the speaker in conclusion.

New Apartment House at Venice Will be Erected

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19.—Announcement of the erection of a $100,000 apartment-house to be built on Westminster avenue between the Speedway and Trolleyway by O. L. Patske was made public this morning.

The lots upon which the new apartment-house is to be constructed are valued by the owner at more than $30,000 and the building will cost in excess of $80,000. Plans for the building have been prepared by W. D. Lee and the actual work of building will be started following excavation work which will be completed next week.

In design the building is to be fashioned after the Gaylord Apartments in Los Angeles and will contain twenty modern housekeeping apartments. On the ground floor an elaborately decorated lobby will be built featuring alluring Spanish gardens. The structure will be completed the latter part of August, it is anticipated.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT HUNTINGTON PARK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19. Easter will be observed in a most fitting way tomorrow at all the churches in the city, the Easter entertainments to be given mostly in the evening. The Christian Church starts with a sunrise prayer meeting and it is the only church at which there has been announced baptismal services for afternoon and evening, that day marking the close of a revival in which about fifty new members have been added to the church. There will be special union services at the First Methodist Episcopal Church in the afternoon when Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam of Los Angeles will spake on "Interest of International Peace and Goodwill." The night services at all the churches will be in the way of Easter cantatas.

INJURED IN COLLISION MOTORCYCLIST DIES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19.—Willis Reese, 803 Venezia avenue, 18 years of age, died in the St. Catherine's Hospital as a result of injuries received early today when a motorcycle upon which he was riding collided with a large truck at the intersection of California and Electric avenue. Reese, according to hospital authorities, suffered from fractures of both legs, probable fracture of the skull and internal injuries. According to police records, Reese did not notice the truck in time to avoid the accident. The truck was driven by Charles Harp of Santa Monica. Harp was not held.

FLOATING RESORT TO BE INSTALLED SOON

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19.—The new floating amusement resort will be anchored two and one-half miles off the amusement zone here early next week. Capt. William Ball, owner and originator of the idea, is in San Pedro arranging for the removal of the ship from Los Angeles Harbor, where it is being built. The boat which will contain a fishing, dancing and recreation deck will be the first of its kind to be anchored in the Santa Monica Bay. Small boats will run upon schedule from the Venice pier to the floating playground.

BEACH HEARING SCHEDULED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, April 19.—A public hearing on the development of the Orange County Harbor, Newport Beach, will be held here May 5 by Maj. E. D. Ardery, United States District Engineer, for the purpose of obtaining additional data to be incorporated in his report to the Army Board of Engineers.

HOME MADE TARGET OF EXPLOSION

Mystery Blast Frightens Inmates of Pomona House; Police Investigate

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

Pomona, April 19.—Considerable mystery is attached to a supposed attempt to either frighten the occupants or to blow up the home of Frank Vejar, Lincoln and Palomares streets, late last night, when a sharp explosion awakened neighbors and smoke from a supposed bomb filled the rooms of the Vejar home. Mrs. Vejar, who is recovering from a short illness, was suddenly awakened by a sharp explosion just outside her window. Smoke filled the rooms.

Police were called and upon investigation, found that some explosive substance had been placed upon the window sill just outside Mrs. Vejar's room and had been touched off by a fuse.

A few weeks ago the same family was surprised to hear the report of a small caliber rifle, the bullet from which crashed through a living-room window and buried itself in the woodwork of the room, narrowly missing Mr Vejar at the time. Neighbors said that they saw a man running from the scene last night shortly before the explosion, but with only this meager clew the police are baffled.

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

En obsequio a nuestros numerosos amigos de habla española, y para beneficio de los lectores americanos de "The Times" que estudien esa lengua, publicamos diariamente esta columna en castellano, con un extracto de las más importantes noticias de última hora.

Buena parte del futuro progreso de Los Angeles, que es la metrópoli de los Estados Unidos que más cercana se halla a territorio latino-americano, habrá de depender de las relaciones que logremos establecer con nuestras hermanas, las repúblicas del sur. Para que lleguen a ser enteramente cordiales, no hay nada tan importante como que nuestros ciudadanos se familiaricen con la lengua castellana. Tan se dan cuenta de este hecho nuestros habitantes, que hay al presente más de 25,000 personas que estudian español en Los Angeles. A ellas les conviene leer todos los días esta columna, en la que encontrarán español correcto y enteramente moderno.

NOTAS TEIEGRAFICAS

Noticias de Washington

WASHINGTON, Abril 19. — La comisión de agricultura del Senado estuvo oyendo testimonio adicional acerca de la oferta que han hecho Hook-White-Atterbury por Muscle Shoals.

Los representantes del gobierno provisional de Honduras recibieron noticia de que todo el país, salvo la capital, se halla dominado por sus fuerzas.

El Senado comenzó a estudiar el proyecto de ley de la prima al soldado. Los oficiales de la Legión Americana han encarecido que no se intente enmendar dicho proyecto desde la tribuna.

La Cámara votó una moción que provee a una consignación adicional de $1,500,000 para combatir la enferemedad de patas y hocico en California.

El Ministerio de Estado ha recibido del Embajador Hanihara una explicación formal de su reciente protesta contra la legislación que excluye a los japoneses.

Ha sido aplazada de Mayo 20 a Junio 20, por la comisión del comercio entre estados, la vigencia del Artículo 28 de la ley de marina mercante.

Declaró el Ministro Wallace que eran suficientes para proteger los intereses de todo el mundo las medidades federales de cuarentena contra la enferemedad de patas y hocico en California.

El Senador Wheeler, demócrata de Montana, prestó fianza ante un comisionado de los Estados Unidos para garantizar su comparecencia en Great Falls, Montana, el 5 de Mayo, a fin de responder a la inculpación que se le hace de haber aceptado honorarios ilegales.

El Senador Walsh, demócrata de Montana, anunció que no terminaría la investigación de la comisión petrolera del Senado, en tanto los tribunales no determinen si ha de obligarse a Harry F. Sinclair a responder a las preguntas que le ha hecho la citada comisión.

Los Federales Mejicanos Ocupan Progreso y Mérida

CIUDAD DE MÉJICO, Abril 19. Con la toma y ocupación de Progreso y de Mérida, efectuadas ayer por las tropas federales, ha quedado sofocada toda resistencia al gobierno en el Estado de Yucatán, según dicen los mensajes que hoy se recibieron en el Ministerio de la Guerra. Ha servido también la ocupación de esas dos ciudades para contener la marcha de la anarquía en la península, pues los rebeldes que dominaban en ambas poblaciones nada hacían por poner la ley en vigor, ni para contener los desmanes de sus tropas. Antes de la evacuación, los jefes rebeldes ordenaron el pillaje general de Mérida, como último esfuerzo para hacerse de fondos y provisiones. Asimismo impusieron grandes préstamos forzosos a las casas que tienen sus negocios en ese distrito y a los ricos plantadores de henequén.

Ayer, ya tarde, el Presidente Obregón envió por telégrafo sus felicitaciones al General Eugenio Martínez por la toma de Mérida, y trasmitió por igual vía sus órdenes a José María Iturrea para que vuelva a hacerse cargo del gobierno de Yucatán.

La mayoría de los mas significados jefes insurgentes han desaparecido. Se ha recibido buen número de noticias contradictorias respecto a Salvador Alvarado, sucesor de de la Huerta como líder de la revuelta. Una de esas versiones es que sus secuaces se le voltearon y le dieron muerte; según otra, huyó a la Habana.

Entretanto, el gobierno está concentrando sus esfuerzos en la tentativa de allegar fondos suficientes para pagar los sueldos que se adeudan a los empleados oficiales. Un cincuenta por ciento, aproximadamente, de los $14,000,000 que se deben a dichos empleados, ha podido obtenerse de prestamistas de dinero. Confíase en que pueda arbitrarse el saldo en poco tiempo.

DEPORTES

Baseball

CHICAGO, Abril 19.—Frank L. Chance, gerente de los White Sox, salió esta noche rumbo a Los Angeles por el ferrocarril de Santa Fe. Va a ver si recobra su salud por allá. Entretanto, John J. Evers, instructor en jefe de los Sox, y gerente interino del club durante la temporada de entrenamiento y la serie de apertura con los Browns, tomará el puesto de gerente en sustitución de Chance, con amplias facultades para obrar en todos los asuntos importantes relacionados con el juego del club.

Atletismo

SAN FRANCISCO, Abril 19.—Por primera vez en cuatro años ha sido derribado de su pedestal de campeón el equipo de pista de la Universidad de California. La Universidad de Illinois realizó esa hazaña esta tarde en el óvalo de California, habiendo sido el tanteo de 72 1-3 a 58 2-3. De un modo general, el tiempo y las distancias han sido los mejores de este año en la costa del Pacífico. Lo que produjo la derrota de los Osos Dorados fúe la fuerza de Illinois en la pista.

SEA SHELL AUTHORITY DEAD HERE

William Henry Golisch is Victim of Bright's Disease; Funeral Monday

William Henry Golisch, for thirty-eight years a resident of Los Angeles and an acknowledged authority on sea shells, died Friday at his home, 814 East Twenty-first street, of Bright's disease.

Mr. Golisch came into public notice in 1916 when he presented to Southwest Museum here one of the finest collections of sea shells extant, gathered from the beaches of the United States in a twenty-year search. The collection comprised approximately 80,000 specimens of some 15,000 species found in American waters.

Mr. Golisch was born in St. Paul in June, 1863, and came to Los Angeles at the age of 17 years. For twenty years he followed the occupation of a scenic artist, retiring in 1906 and devoting himself to the gathering of his collection. The first shells he picked up on Los Angeles Harbor beaches but since that time he had visited many beaches on both Pacific and Atlantic Coasts and in Cuba.

A few years ago he made a tour of the East with his collection, which was exhibited at many of the large museums.

He is survived by his widow, Ellen Golisch, and two half-brothers, John and Daniel Hofert.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock at the Pierce Mortuary where the body is now held. Interment will be in Rosedale Cemetery.

PICTURE THEATER FOR SAN FERNANDO

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

SAN FERNANDO, April 19. — Local property owners interested in the development of the city were today forming a syndicate for the purpose of financing the construction of a motion-picture theater to be erected on the site of the old Presbyterian Church. Those who are heading the movement are confident of success and are arranging to meet Monday night to complete their organization and make a drive for the remainder of the fund, provided the quota is not reached before the hour set for the meeting. The project is being urged as a good investment as well as an important factor in the development of the city.

CLOTHING SLASHED

Two Women Have Garments Cut While Shopping

Appearance of a "Jack the Ripper" in the downtown district was reported to the police yesterday by Mrs. M. G. Cowley of 7283 Clarington avenue, Culver City, who said her clothing was slashed while she stood among a crowd in a candy shop at Seventh street and Broadway. The clothing of another woman was slashed but she would not go to the police station.

Highly civilized Greeks and Romans with land under cultivation were conquered more by malaria than by decadence and barbarians, according to some historians.

Wise Buyers Detect and Avoid The Danger Line
In Choosing a Piano

REMEMBER, quality cannot be where price is TOO low! It is false economy that tempts one to buy an inferior piano for the sake of a few dollars. It is the part of wisdom to make selection where you have choice of only fine piano names—not one, but many of them! Let the firm who guarantees every piano it sells, serve you! Practice safe and sane economy by buying where you KNOW price is the lowest consistent with quality. Barker Bros. have, through forty-three years of service, built and maintained a reputation that embodies these principles.

CHILD LIVES THOUGH RUN OVER BY TRAIN

VENICE GIRL STRUCK BY INTERURBAN; MAY HAVE INTERNAL INJURIES

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19.—Patricia Kersell, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Kersell of 2422 Grand Canal, had a miraculous escape from instant death shortly before 9 o'clock tonight when she was run over by the Del Ray limited at Trolleyway and Twenty-seventh avenue.

The child was walking with her mother when she suddenly darted in front of the oncoming car. She was caught by the fender and after being carried for about thirty feet was dropped, the car passing over her as she lay on the track between the rails. According to Dr. Craik, city physician, the child appears to be suffering from internal injuries. At a late hour she was reported to be regaining consciousness.

WOOD NEW HEAD OF BURBANK CHAMBER

(LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE)

BURBANK, April 19.—Charles B. Wood was today named president of the Chamber of Commerce, to succeed R. W. Colburn, who tendered his resignation. This civic organization at the same time voted to change its headquarters and will move into the new Mae Clark Building on Olive avenue just as soon as that structure can be made ready for occupancy. Work on construction of the building is to start at once. The chamber has decided to labor unceasingly for the success of the Greater Los Angeles Association movement and will co-operate with the local committee in making the banquet planned for Friday night an immense affair. The banquet, to be given at Benmar, will be planned for 800 covers. Able speakers will be on hand to explain the several phases of the industrial expansion movement.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Coast and Geodetic Survey
Tides. Los Angeles Harbor.

Note—The following tabulation of the tides is compiled from the Pacific Coast Tide Tables of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. The tides are arranged in the order of their occurrence, beginning with the first tide after midnight in the left-hand column. There are usually four tides, two high and two low, each day; but occasionally what would be the fourth tide occurs after midnight and thus becomes the first tide of the next day. The columns of heights give the elevation of each tide above the plane of reference of the Coast and Geodetic Survey chart soundings, except where the numbers are preceded by the minus sign, or dash, when heights are below the plane. The tabulations are furnished by the Field Station of the Survey, Custom House, San Francisco, Cal.

Sunrise and sunset are computed for Los Angeles Harbor. Moonrise and moonset for Los Angeles.

PORT NOTES

Twenty tankers were in Los Angeles Harbor yesterday, said to be the largest number ever in port at one time. They represented fourteen companies and three nations and have a combined carrying capacity of approximately 1,500,000 barrels of oil. They sail to the Atlantic Coast, the Orient, Europe and the Latin-American States. Ten of the vessels arrived yesterday, while eight sailed, others either loading or undergoing repairs at local shipyards. Among them were the American naval tanker Ramapo from the south and the Japanese naval tanker Manju Maru from Yokosuka, loading fuel oil from the General Petroleum station for the Japanese Navy. Others are the Swift Arrow, Utacarbon, Agwimoon, Japan Arrow, E. L. Doheny, Jr., Mojave, F. Q. Barstow, J. A. Moffett, Halo, Nora, Hagan, Kewanee, Vistula, Gedania, Warwick, Coalinga, Tascalusa and the British tanker San Ugon.

The Norwegian steamer Ranenfjord, formerly the old American-Hawaiian steamer Isthmian, came back to her old familiar waters yesterday, bringing 6800 tons of sugar, nitrates and ore from Callao, Peru, and way ports. Capt. F. Haaberg reported strong head winds the last three days out, which cut the vessel's speed to five knots. One hundred and fifty tons of cargo were discharged here and the Ranenfjord sailed at 4 o'clock for San Francisco and northern ports. Capt. F. Svendsen of San Francisco, marine superintendent of the Latin-America Line, came down to ride back on ship. Capt. Svendsen said his line had been striving for sufficient local cargo to justify having the vessels call southbound, but declares business still fails to justify the move.

Intercoastal passenger travel eastbound has become so heavy that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company has contrived a half-land, half-water trip to New York and back, with a saving of $75 over other means of transportation. Beginning June 1 and extending until September 1, a trip to New York by rail and back by Pacific Mail liners will cost $300.20, it was announced yesterday by Clay Hutchison, Southern California operating manager for the line.

Movement of vessels anchored in the outer harbor began yesterday, clearing the way for the arrival Tuesday of the battle fleet. The schooner Sequoia was towed to the inner harbor, while the schooner Rose Mahoney and the barge Dacula were anchored in shallow waters toward Long Beach. Other vessels, including E. L. Doheny's yacht Casiana, will be kept close to the land end of the breakwater.

The Japanese steamer Venice Maru, Capt. M. Kaneko, arrived from Shields, Eng., yesterday with 6000 tons of pig iron and coke, 2000 of which are being discharged at this port. The vessel will remain in port a week, sailing for San Francisco and the Orient. It will be the ship's first visit home since the earthquake last September, which destroyed the captain's home and killed relatives of a number of the crew.

The motorship William Donovan went to the Los Angeles shipyards yesterday for repairs to her bow, damaged while coming out of Aberdeen, when she collided with the Norwegian motorship Helen.

The Los Angeles Steamship Company's liner Calawaii sailed yesterday noon for Honolulu with 160 passengers and large consignment of general freight. Among the passengers was Thelma Murphy, 4 years of age, who is traveling alone to join her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Murphy.

News of Ships and Sailings at Pacific Ports

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—Sixty-three vessels have brought 35,000,000 feet of lumber into the port of San Francisco since the 1st inst., the marine department of the Chamber of Commerce made known in figures compiled today.

Passenger travel from the Hawaiian Islands to California continues heavy, according to local steamship offices. All passenger liners touching Honolulu eastbound are taking all the passengers they can accommodate, it is said. The Maui of the Matson fleet is due here Tuesday morning with 232 cabin passengers, a capacity list.

Tourists prevented from returning East by motor because of the foot-and-mouth epizootic quarantines are shipping their machines by water. The Finland carried a number today when she sailed for New York. The Finland also carried 450 passengers.

Following the Finland out of the bay, the T. K. K. liner Taiyo Maru sailed for the Orient.

The power schooner Point Reyes, confiscated as a rum runner, was sold at public auction today for $6700 to W. Ha Thornly, ships broker representing salmon interests of the North Coast. The schooner, 18 tons net, was built at St. Helens, Or., in 1914.

Offer to furnish music and theater tickets and necessary entertainment for the crew free was contained in the low bid opened today for packing of sea valves and certain calking of seams on the steam schooner Dorothy Wintermote, operated by the Paramino Lumber Company. The specifications called for nothing but the repairs. The low bid was made by the Hanlon Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company and was only $45.

Three offshore liners are due here tomorrow. The T. K. K. liner Genyo Maru will be first, calling en route from Hongkong to South America. The second will be the Union Line steamer Maunganui from Australia and New Zealand with passengers and freight and the third the Matson liner Lurline from Honolulu.

SEATTLE, April 19.—Diverted to Puget Sound because of the foot-and-mouth disease in California, the Army transport Edgemoor will arrive in Tacoma at 7 a.m. tomorrow to load 1294 tons of hay, 115 tons of oats and a shipment of bran for Hawaii.

The Admiral Oriental Line freighter Wheatland Montana came off the dry dock at a local plant today and will commence loading for another voyage to the Orient Monday.

The freighter West Cadron finished discharging at Smith Cove today and was awaiting orders tonight.

The Northland arrived Friday evening and sailed this morning for San Francisco via Seattle.

To load hay and feed for the quartermaster department at Honolulu, the Edgemoor is listed to arrive Sunday morning.

The Hawaii Maru is to return from Vancouver Sunday to complete eastbound freight.

ASTORIA (Or.) April 19.—The steamer West Jena shifted this morning from Portland and after loading 3500 barrels of flour at the Astoria terminals sailed tonight for Shanghai.

The steam schooner Daisy with 500,000 feet of lumber from Warrenton, and 250,000 feet from Knappton, sailed tonight for San Francisco.

The Norwegian steamers Golden Gate and Key West, which are taking on lumber for the Orient at Coos Bay, will come to Astoria to take on fuel oil and then proceed to Gray's Harbor, where they will complete their cargoes.

The Dutch motorship Dinteldyk shifted this afternoon from Portland to the Astoria terminals, where she is loading salmon for London and Rotterdam, lumber for London and Genoa and 2000 cases of canned salmon for London. She will sail tomorrow.

The steam schooner Daisy Putnam, after taking on 500,000 feet of lumber at Knappton, is to sail Monday for Los Angeles.

TACOMA (Wash.) April 19.—Only one day apart the steamers Lurline and Manukai of the Matson Line are due at Tacoma the latter part of the month. These vessels show a combined tonnage amounting to 14,000 but it is said there will be Puget Sound cargo destined for the Islands left behind when the ships sail.

Reports received from the Barbara C. coming up the coast from California state the vessel has a broken steam pipe and will arrive some time Saturday night to load lumber.

ROBBERIES ADMITTED BY WOMAN

Suspect in San Francisco Confesses Local Thefts; Not "Cat-eyes"

Held at San Francisco and accused of being "Cat-eyes," a woman burglar, Frances Hawley, alias Frances Moore and many other names, has confessed to stealing jewels valued at $12,500 from Los Angeles homes, but has convinced her captors that she is not "Cat-eyes," according to a telegraphic message to the local police from Police Chief O'Brien of San Francisco yesterday.

The woman was arrested in San Francisco the 13th inst. She at first denied she was wanted by Los Angeles police, but later admitted three offenses which had been charged up to "Cat-eyes," according to telegraphic messages.

The crimes which the San Francisco police say the woman under arrest admitted include the robbery of Mrs. H. Taubert of 1527 Orange Grove avenue, who lost $7500 in jewels. The woman who committed the robbery was employed as a maid in the Taubert home and held up her mistress at the point of a gun to obtain the jewelry. In the other two jobs, the burglary of the home of James Miller of 734 South Gramercy Place and the home of J. G. Schutte of 621 South Norton avenue, the maid disappeared with the jewels of a total value of $6000.

The woman under arrest at San Francisco has denied all knowledge of the stealing of jewelry valued at $20,000 from the home of W. R. Staats of 349 South Grand avenue, Pasadena, the principal job of which "Cat-eyes" is accused.

NAMES TRIO AS HANDLING NAVY CASES

Wilbur Says McAdoo and Senators Backed Claims Against Government

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, and former Senators, Hoke Smith of Georgia and J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, were named today by Secretary Wilbur as the only former government officials listed in Navy Department records as having recently prosecuted claims there against the government.

Responding to a Senate resolution, the new Navy Secretary said Mr. McAdoo appeared in behalf of Albert C. Burrage, owner of the yacht Aztec which had been leased by the department during the war. The claim in this case was for $385,000 but it was settled for $300,000.

Former Senator Lewis was reported to have had the Edward Valve and Manufacturing Company of Chicago as his client, with a claim for $2,259,000. The company received $574,000 in settlement.

The case in which Senator Smith appeared involved a claim for $37,000 by the Federal Sugar Refining Company and still is pending.

The report covered the period since January 1, 1918.

BEAVEN IS VICTORIOUS IN LIFTING

Grabs Middleweight Honors in Olympic Try-outs; Willoughby Also Wins

Beaven of L.A.A.C. won the western division Olympic tryouts in the middleweight class last night at L.A.A.C. with a total score of 852 pounds in five lifting events. Betty took second with 803 pounds. Kingsbury third.

The light heavyweight championship was won by Willoughby of the L.A.A.C., Betty second. The total points were not computed. If the mark set by Willoughby and Beaven in their respective classes is not beaten in the eastern Olympic tryouts to be held in Pittsburg next Friday, these two men will represent the United States at Paris.

In connection with the weight lifting contest the State gymnastic tournament was held. Kempel, 1920 Olympic representative for the United States in the gymnastic events had little difficulty winning the all-around championship of the State scoring first place in the horizontal bars, sidehorse and parallel bars. Sleigh of the L.A.A.C. won the rope climbing event. Linnes won first in club swinging. A fair-sized crowd witnessed the exhibitions.

Rain May Spoil Easter Fashion Parades in East

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, April 19.—A western disturbance moving eastward may interfere with many Easter fashion parades tomorrow, in the Ohio Valley, lower Great Lake regions and sections of the Atlantic States north of Virginia, but the Weather Bureau expects Tennessee and the East Gulf and seaboard States south of Virginia to enjoy their usual sunshine.

The disturbance, now centered over Western Iowa, will be attended by considerable cloudiness over northern portions of the country east of the Mississippi River and light rains are probable tonight or Sunday in the Ohio Valley, Lower Great Lakes and northeastern seaboard sections.

ASK FOREIGN VAUDEVILLE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—The first International Congress of Variety Artistes, which is holding its sessions here, is informed by one of its members that the German public is so tired of German vaudeville artists that the leading managers beyond the Rhine are offering salaries in either dollars or pounds to good foreign talent.

The winning of this event was quite a surprise as the Pacific Coast runners faced teams from all the Middle-West universities. Buckman, who started, got the pole within 50 yards from the start and after that the Tigers were never headed.

In the college class Occidental won the two-mile relay with Ellsworth, Morey, Montgomery and Carter performing. The time was 8m. 12s., Carter finishing nearly a hundred yards ahead. Manifestly the Coast runners could have materially bettered their time if pushed. In the half-mile college relay Occidental used the same men who won the University 440, and started from seventh lane but Buckman again gave the Tigers a good lead on the pole position. The time was 1m. 31-5s.

The college one-mile relay fell to the Occidental delegation with Buckman, Ellsworth, Spangler and Powers running the race in 3m. 24s. without particular effort. LAWRENCE (Kan.) April 19.—The ten-man track team from Occidental College, Los Angeles, which was the outstanding team to compete in the Kansas relays here today, will take back twenty gold watches, two medals, and five silver cups as the result of their efforts in winning the four college division relays, one university relay, and placing men in both the pole vault and 100-yard dash. In addition to cornering all this jewelry, the Occidental athletes set four records. They leave tomorrow for Philadelphia, where they will compete in the annual Penn relays.

TWO HUNTERS REACH FINALS

Willie and Paul Victors in Semifinal Matches

Wright Eliminated 1 Up on Thirty-seventh Hole

Johnny McHugh Loses 2 and 1 to Defending Champ

BY CHARLES WEST

Experience triumphed yesterday at Annandale when Willie Irvine Hunter and Dr. Paul Hunter survived the semifinal rounds of play for the Southern California golf championship by defeating John McHugh and Fred Wright, respectively, in two hectic thirty-six-hole battles. The two Hunters, whose relation extends to nothing more than a similar uncanny ability with golf weapons, will meet tomorrow in a thirty-six-hole match for the championship.

Willie Hunter, playing-through champion in the tournament, had a terrible time eliminating McHugh, holder of the State title, but finally succeeded in disposing of the youthful San Franciscan on the thirty-fifth green, 2 and 1. Dr. Hunter had even more of a struggle than Willie, Fred Wright carrying him to the thirty-seventh green before accepting defeat, 1 up.

NIP AND TUCK

Both matches were hotly contested, but proceeded along entirely different lines. Hunter and McHugh were never more than two holes apart throughout their battle, being all square after the first eighteen holes, while Wright was never up on his opponent after the first hole, and was seven down at one time. At the luncheon recess Wright was trailing by six holes. The spectacular manner in which he squared the match made the Hunter-Wright contest the feature of the day, in spite of the fact that both Willie Hunter and McHugh were playing more consistently good golf.

Dr. Paul, three times holder of the title for which he meets Willie tomorrow, played his best game in the morning, completing his round in even par figures largely by sensational putting. It must be admitted that he got all the breaks, as Wright was playing in his usual brilliant style and only a few unlucky hops, a couple of stymies, and several putts which defied the law of gravity, put him down to his veteran opponent. The first hole was halved, and Wright went up for the only time during the match by scoring a birdie four on the second. Dr. Hunter squared the match on the next hole, and took the lead at the sixth, when Wright took three putts. A terrific drive on the seventh and a perfect midiron shot gave Wright a birdie four to square the match on the seventh hole, but Hunter retaliated by chipping a ball in the cup from twenty-five feet from a lie in the rough on the short eighth, and retained his lead of one hole at the turn.

Wright's hard luck pursued him on number ten. He was lying three and putting for a win after Dr. Hunter had missed his fourth. In trying to curve his ball around a stymie, Wright knocked Hunter's ball into the hole, giving him a win. A beautiful putt on the eleventh after keeping Wright in company in a deep trap, gave Hunter another hole, and he was four up, going to the thirteenth tee. A perfect iron shot, obtained in spite of a difficult stance on a bunker, was instrumental in winning the twelfth for Hunter.

Wright won back a hole on the thirteenth when Hunter sliced an iron shot out of bounds, but a nice pitch to the green from the rough, coupled with a twenty-foot putt, put Hunter four up again at the fifteenth. Taking the sixteenth and eighteenth, Hunter was six up at the turn, and it looked like curtains in a hurry for Wright.

CROWD LEAVES

Hunter won the twentieth hole, and the gallery drifted toward the Hunter-McHugh match and more excitement. Wright won the twenty-sixth, the rest of the holes on the way out being halved, and was six down at the turn.

Then Wright began to play golf. His tee shot on the tenth was within easy putting distance of the pin, and he won the hole. The eleventh he played perfectly and won back another hole, although Hunter rallied on the thirteenth when Wright got in trouble in a trap. A three on the short fourteenth by Wright put the match at three up once more, and birdies on the next two holes cut Hunter's advantage to one hole, and Wright squared the match on the thirty-sixth green with an excellent four.

News of Wright's sensational recovery had traveled across the densely populated links, and a mob of some 2000 gallery golfers watched Hunter subdue Wright on the extra hole. Wright's approach shot stuck in the rough above the green, and his recovery was weak. He took a five, while Hunter ran down two putts for the hole and match.

OFF TO A FLYING START

Cleve Morrison, star Hollywood Athletic Club diver, was one of the bright spots of yesterday's swimming program at the Ambassador Hotel plunge. Morrison won over Leland Tipton and Ben Thrash in the low-board diving contest.

WALLACE O'CONNOR STARS

Stanford University Swimmer Cops 220-Yard Dash at Ambassador Hotel Meet; Kahanamoku Wins

BY BRAVEN DYER

Wallace O'Connor, star Stanford University swimmer, racing under the colors of the Venice Athletic Club, had an easy time trimming Colin Smith and George Wolf in the special 220-yard dash staged as part of yesterday's program at the Ambassador Hotel plunge. The Cardinal water dog is being talked of as a likely Olympic Games participant and he looked good yesterday, although neither Smith nor Wolf were able to push him to any extent. O'Connor's time was 2m. 28⅗s., which is moving right along.

Duke Kahanamoku eased through the fifty-yard free style event without straining himself, winning over Phil Daubenspeck and Lee Jarvis in 24 1-5s. Daubenspeck, who is a Venice High School student, did his heat in 24 flat, but lacked this speed in the finals. The Duke splashed through his heat in 23 4-5s. This race was for the Southern Pacific Association championship.

In the 200-yard senior national relay race for women, Fred Cady's Los Angeles Athletic Club team came home an easy victor over the Venice Athletic Club outfit. The time was 2m. 10 s., with the San Diego Swimming Club team placing third.

Olive Hatch, star Los Angeles Athletic Club mermaid, won the fifty-yard back-stroke race in 37s. Marion Himmelstine of the Venice Athletic Club gave the local swimmer a good race of it. Miss Hatch also copped the 220-yard free style race in 2m. 32 2-5s.

Sammy Cohen, eccentric diving comedian, amused the crowd with a few fancy stunts from the ten-foot board. Dorothy Poynton, 8-year-old marvel, showed wonderful diving form for such a little tot. Cleve Morrison of the Hollywood Athletic Club got the judges' decision in the low-board diving contest, Leland Tipton taking second and Ben Thrash third.

The complete results follow:

50-yard back stroke for women—Won by Olive Hatch (L.A.A.C.) Marion Himmelstine (Venice A.C.) second; Marion Goldstone (Hollywood A.C.) third. Time, 37s.

100-yard breast stroke for women—Won by Sarah Freeman (L.A.A.C.) Ella Rose (Sunset Swimming Club) second; Dagmar Nisen (San Diego Swimming Club) third. Time, 1m. 34 2-5s.

Low board diving for men—Won by Cleve Morrison (Hollywood A.C.) Leland Tipton (Hollywood A.C.) second; Ben Thrash (unattached) third.

200-yard relay, senior national championship for women—Won by L.A.A.C., Venice second; San Diego third. Time, 2m. 10s.

220-yard free style for men—Won by Wallace O'Connor (Venice A.C.) Colin Smith (L.A.A.C.) second; George Wolf (Venice High) third. Time, 2m. 28 2-5s.

220-yard free style for women—Won by Olive Hatch (L.A.A.C.) Helen Bernardini (Ambassador Club) second; Frankie Bart (L.A.A.C.) third. Time, 3m. 32 2-5s.

50-yard free style for men, southern Pacific championship—Won by Duke Kahanamoku (L.A.A.C.) Phil Daubenspeck (Venice High) second; Lee Jarvis (Hollywood A.C.) third. Time, 24 1-5s.

HARLAN FENGLER TO GO IN BIG RACE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

INDIANAPOLIS, April 19.—The entry of Harlan Fengler, youngest driver in the A.A.A., in the annual 500-mile automobile race to be held at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway May 30, was announced today. Fengler won his first fame in California several months ago when he established a world's record for 250 miles, his average being 116 miles an hour.

LEEDS AND ARNOTT ARE GOLF VICTORS

W. R Leeds, finishing 6 down, 4 handicap, 2 down in match play against par yesterday, won the Class A sweepstakes of the Los Angeles Country Club. William Arnott was the victor in Class B, finishing 11 down, 9 handicap, 2 down.

BOXING TOO TAME FOR FIRPO; WILL BECOME RACING DRIVER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—Fast on the heels of the cabled newspaper reports that Luis A. Firpo, "the wild bull of the Pampas" and one-time contender for world's heavyweight championship honors, intended to forsake the primrose path of the prize ring after his coming bout with Al Reich, comes word direct from Firpo, himself, which seems to confirm the press rumors.

A cablegram from the Argentine "Gambino" sets forth information which indicates that Firpo since his visit to Indianapolis last fall has been acting as distributor for an American car in his native land, intends to enter the more prosaic paths of business in a more vigorous way and on a broader scale than before.

However, true to his sporting instinct, Firpo, in his cable sets forth the interesting information that in addition to the more quiet pursuit of selling motor cars he intends to invade the field of road racing and is now having built a "special racing car that will do at least 115 miles an hour and be especially adapted to muddy roads."

ANGELS ANNEX IN THIRTEENTH

Bengals Finally Subdued by Score of 7 to 6

Seraphs Make Seven Errors Behind Hughes

Slade's Bobble Starts Ken Penner's Downfall

BY ROBERT E. RAY

The Angels made seven errors behind Tom Hughes yesterday but still managed to beat Vernon, 7 to 6, going thirteen innings to do it. Los Angeles should have won in nine frames, but Babe Twombly dropped McDowell's fly and allowed Gillespie to score the tying run in the ninth, thus forcing the athletes to work overtime.

Hughes should get a lot of credit for winning yesterday's ball game as the support his mates gave him would have discouraged the average pitcher into tossing it away. Hughes kept right on going in spite of the terrible support and now has a brand new win in the pitching averages to show for his work.

HURLS GOOD GAME

Ken Penner hurled a good game for the Tigers and an error by Slade paved the way for his downfall. The Angels shoved over three runs in the thirteenth, but needed all of them to win for the Tigers came back in their half with a rally that netted two runs and forced Krug to derrick Hughes for Root with two out and the tying run on first.

Over 8000 fans paid to witness yesterday's tilt and it is expected that about 17,000 will be out to Washington Park this afternoon to watch the local teams close their series with the usual Sabbath twin bill. The Tigers are leading the series, three games to two, and have to win but one of today's pair to capture the odd tilt.

Marty Krug and Bill Essick both presented slightly changed line-ups yesterday, Beck holding down short and Whaley left for the Angels, and Rod Murphy playing second in place of Griffin for the Tigers. Both Wally Hood and Griffin are out with injured ankles.

BECK HITS HARD

Beck had a field day with the willow, clicking out two triples and a double, driving in two runs and scoring three more. Durst also got three hits for the Angels, while Slade, Deal and Dan Murphy hit well for the Tigers.

Vernon got off in front by counting once in the second. McDowell started by walking and took second on Rod Murphy's infield out. Jimmy advanced to third on Dan Murphy's out and came home when Slade singled over short.

The Angels went in front in the third when Byler singled and came home on a triple by Beck, who scored on Durst's infield hit. Vernon went in front again in the sixth when singles by Dan Murphy and Slade, Durst's error and Menosky's triple accounted for two runs.

ANGELS EVEN COUNT

The Los Angeles evened it up once more in the seventh on Whaley's double, Jacob's single and Golvin's sacrifice fly, and went in front by scoring one more in the eighth when Beck tripled and came in on Slade's error of Durst's hot roller.

A walk to Gillespie, Deal's single and Twombly's error of McDowell's fly let the Tigers tie the score in the ninth. Vernon almost scored in the twelfth when Gunther and Durst made errors, but Hughes forced Rod Murphy to foul to Byler for the third out.

The Angels rapped Penner for three runs in the fourteenth and sewed up the pastime. Gunther started the fun with a single to left and took second when Byler sacrificed. Hughes was an infield out, Gunther taking third, from where he scored when Slade muffed Twombly's ground ball. Beck drove Twombly home with a double to center and scored when Durst singled to right. Penner threw Whaley out at first for the third out.

TIGERS ALSO RALLY

Vernon came back strong in the last half of the fourteenth, Deal starting the rally with a double after Hughes had retired the first two men. McDowell singled Deal across and took second and then third without the Angels trying for him. Rod Murphy's single scored McDowell and put the tying run on base. That was too much for Krug's nerves and, amid hoots from the wiseacres, he derricked Hughes and put in his ace, Root, who forced Dan Murphy to arch to Durst and end the lengthy contest. Score:

CALIFORNIA STRONG IN FIELD, WEAK ON TRACK

Middle West Team Wins by Decisive Count of 72 1-3 to 58 2-3 in Interesting Meet

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CALIFORNIA OVAL, BERKELEY (Cal.) April 19.—The University of Illinois defeated the University of California by 14 points in a dual track meet here this afternoon replete with thrills. The final score 72 1-3 to 58 2-3 was in doubt until the last event. Although Illinois, showing consistent superiority in the races, had amassed a commanding lead early in the meet, the California boys, fighting desperately, came near tieing the score by taking several unexpected places in field events.

Illinois and California each made clean sweeps in two events. Illinois took first, second and third in the quarter-mile and two-mile runs, while California annexed all the points in the shotput and discus-throw.

In the track events, Illinois made 51 points, California 26. In the field events, California scored 32 2-3, Illinois 21 1-3.

Captain Bill Neufeldt of California was the highest individual scorer with eleven points. The other high scorers were Evans and Kinsey, both of Illinois, with ten points each.

Neufeldt won the shotput and discus and took third in the javelin.

Evans won the two sprints with ease making the 100-yard run in 10 seconds and the 220-yard run in 21 6-10 seconds. Kinsey was first in both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard low hurdles.

Brownell of Illinois, world's indoor and collegiate outdoor record holder in the pole vault won that event with 12ft. 4in. He was handicapped by a lame shoulder. McHose, his teammate trailing closely behind was tied for second place by Upson, California. Upson's performance in clearing the bar about 12 feet, was a surprise as he had not been measured before in anything like that height.

Angier, collegiate record-holder in the javelin, threw the stick 191 ft. 11 in. for first place. Schildhauer, Illinois, was second.

Boren, California, in winning the broad-jump, beat all his previous leaps, making 24ft. 1¾in. Another California man, Witherspoon, upset predictions by defeating Wright of Illinois in the high-jump. Witherspoon cleared 6ft. 1in.

California, strong in all the field events and victor in the mile relay race and in the half-mile run, could not overcome the handicap of the Illini's dazzling prowess in the sprints, the hurdles and the distance runs.

The relay race was perhaps the most exciting event. The rivals ran almost dead heats for three laps; then Fessenden, Illinois, took a lead over Hurst, of California. Hurst trailed three-quarters of the way around the track, then caught and passed the Illinois athlete in ample time to break the tape.

This was the first defeat suffered by a California track team in more than three years. For the past three seasons California has won the national intercollegiate track title. It was the third dual meet between California and Illinois and the first victory for Illinois in these encounters.

The athletes competed under a warm sun. The grandstands were more than half-filled with cheering fans, University of Illinois alumni occupying one section.

Coach Harry Gill of Illinois and Coach Walter Christie of California both entered twenty-five men in the meet.

"There is a string tied to 'em, but you hold the string. At the end of it is a ninety days' guarantee and a month of Hoffman service. Makes a pretty safe bet on a used car, doesn't it?

"Gosh! but they sell 'em fast at the Hoffman used car stores. I have sent a lot of my friends around there to get cars I saw on the floor and I'll be doggoned if they don't have to find something else than the one I told 'em about.

"Do you know Hoffman is the biggest used car dealer in the west? Sells more used cars than any other individual dealer out this way.

"No secret about the reason. He delivers the goods at prices you cannot beat anywhere and with every one of his Certified Studebaker Sixes he gives you a ninety days' guarantee and a month's service.

"If you fancy a Ford, or a Dodge, or a Maxwell, or most any other well known, reliable make he can fix you up pronto.

Carpentier and Gibbons Sign Articles to Exchange Punches in America

NEAR CHAMPS MEET MAY 31

Carpentier-Gibbons to Fight at Michigan City

Contest Has Backing of a Moneyed Syndicate

Frenchman Signs Articles Through Manager

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—Georges Carpentier will meet Tommy Gibbons at Michigan City, Ind., on May 31, it was announced today by Floyd Fitzsimmons, matchmaker for the syndicate back of the bout.

Fitzsimmons issued this statement on receipt of word from Paris that Carpentier, through Manager Descamps, had met with Jack Curley, the Frenchman's American representative, and Eddie Kane, Gibbons's manager, accepted the terms Curley had previously arranged for and signed articles.

FIGHT MAY 31

The Paris dispatch set the date for May 30. Fitzsimmons declared this was an error, that May 31 was the correct date. Curley and Kane were sent to Europe by Fitzsimmons to forestall possible action by New York interests which claim to have Georges's promises for a match with Gene Tunney in New York in June.

Fitzsimmons previously had declared that he had three possible sites for the match: Michigan City, Detroit and Windsor. He withheld definite announcement until he received the word from Paris.

Work of renovating the sky-blue arena is going on, Fitzsimmons added, the tickets have been ordered and he has the promise of authorities that there will be no interference with the match. The prices will range from $5 general admission to $25 for ringside seats.

TO GET BUNCH

Carpentier, it is said, has been guaranteed $70,000, while Gibbons is to get 30 per cent of the receipts. This means that a gate of $100,000 must be drawn to take care of this expense alone. Fitzsimmons asserts that he expects to draw between $250,000 and $300,000.

There is still the threat from the New York interests as an obstacle to the match. Billy Gibson, manager for Tunney, asserts that he will get out an injunction against Georges to make him box Tunney first.

STANFORD TEAM IS WINNER OVER BEARS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA BERKELEY, April 19.—Stanford University defeated the University of California at baseball here this afternoon, 7 to 3. A week ago the California ball team beat Stanford. The third game of the series will be played at Stanford next Saturday.

Today's game was featured by a Stanford batting rally when the score was tied, 3 to 3, in the eighth inning. With two men on bases, Mulcahy of Stanford knocked a home run. Score:

Stanford	7	7	6
California	3	8	3

Batteries: Nevers and Johnston; Toomey, Minty and Loynd.

The freshman baseball team of the University of California defeated the Stanford university freshman nine, 7 to 4, here today. The California Babes, having won a previous contest with Stanford, clinched the annual series. The score:

California	7	10	1
Stanford	4	10	6

Watson and Clymer; Riese, Collins and Baillard.

NEW YORK, April 19.—A combined Yale and Harvard tennis team, a team representing Stanford University and, in all probability, a team from Princeton playing in conjunction with some other college tennis team, will invade Europe this year for a series of international matches with some of the college and club teams of the Old World.

Santa Maria in Close Win Over Oxnard Outfit

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA MARIA, April 19.—With eleven teams entered the Santa Maria High School won the invitation track and field meet here today by a margin of only three points over the Oxnard High. The meet was closely contested and the winner was in doubt until the final half-mile relay was won by Santa Maria. This is the third victory on the track for the Santa Maria team this season. Santa Maria scored 38½ points while Oxnard was a close second with 35½. Other schools placing in the contest were Lompoc, 21½; Santa Barbara, 19; Hicks School, Santa Barbara, 10; Santa Paula, 10; San Luis Obispo, 1½, and Templeton, 1.

TWO HUNTERS REACH FINALS

hole with a four, and padded his lead on the short fourteenth, when he all but scored a hole in one. Hunter replied by winning back the next two holes, and although McHugh's three on the sixteenth after a perfect tee shot put the youthful northerner in the lead, Hunter scored a birdie on the eighteenth to square the match.

A thirty-three on the first nine of the afternoon round was a little too strong for McHugh. Hunter's approaching being little short of marvelous, and the little Briton was two up at the turn. McHugh's birdies on the fifth and sixth, obtained by brilliant mashie shots, kept Willie from piling up even more of a lead. They traded holes the rest of the way in, Hunter's lead being too much for McHugh to overcome, and the match ended when he lost the seventeenth.

MANUAL ARTS GET A GOOD TRIMMING

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19.—Clouting the ball with frequency and playing pretty clever ball throughout, the San Diego High School nine easily defeated the Manual Arts High Squad here today, 9 to 0. The contest was a practice affair for both teams.

In the fifth inning, Miller, pitching for the northerners, blew up, and Dudley was placed on the mound with the bases loaded. Three hits, including a triple, were obtained off him in that frame, and the winners totaled six runs in the inning.

"Speed" Martin, San Diego High pitching ace, performed well on the slab, allowing six scattered hits and tightening up in the pinches. Only one Manual Arts player reached third base.

SIG HAUGDAHL HAS HARD JOB

Seven Speed Demons Out to Trim Norwegian

Duray Leads Rival Gang Today on Ascot Track

Easter Bathing Girl Parade Precedes Races

Sig Haugdahl, Norwegian speed king, has a task cut out for him at Ascot this afternoon which speed fans declare will prove far more difficult than that he faced when he raced Ralph De Palma last Sunday. The famed European will be called on to battle seven other daring drivers in the Easter sweepstakes and five others in the Ascot helmet dash. Every entrant, including the interpid Leon Duray, French speed demon, will go after "Hug" from the instant Paul Derkum drops the starting flag and continue to fight him until the checkered cloth descends and the winner is evolved.

Those who have belittled the ability or sportsmanship of Haugdahl will have a plendid opportunity to get a line on the real class of the little driver. Before he lost the first match to De Palma at Ascot Haugdahl had not been defeated in five years of racing over the I.M.C.A. circuit. His defense of his driving the big Fiat which was his mount in the earlier appearances of the Norwegian at Ascot, is that a sturdy, powerful car is essential for dirt speedway driving. His present Miller car is not the fragile, finely balanced steel steed that De Palma tools. With extra heavy rear-end construction, Haugdahl's mount is almost rough-track proof. He has never traveled farther then five laps in a race at Ascot.

AFTER HUG'S SCALP

This afternoon "Hug" will be forced to play the gasoline hare-and-hounds game for fifteen laps. Leon Duray will be the leader of the gang banded together with but one object in view. "Lick Haugdahl at any cost," is the slogan.

Fred Horey, Fred Locklider, Eddie Meyer, Frank Lockhard with Steve Elmore's new Miller, Eddie Frame, Babe Stapp, Art Davidson and Gus Schroeder are the others to oppose the Norwegian. There will be no breathing spell for Haugdahl once the big race is started. Ten events are on the motor-racing card. Three motor-bike events will be contested. Johnny Seymour, Jim Davis, Ralph Hepburn and "Curly" Fredericks look to be the class of the two-wheel boys. The track is in superb condition, according to both the auto and motorbike pilots. The invitational race will be run in three heats, two qualifying and a final. No races at Ascot in the future will have more then eight starters in any one heat.

Preliminary to the racing program Ascot will stage the first of the 1924 bathing queen revues, a prologue that will start at 12:30 o'clock and last for two hours.

Every effort of artists has been bent to make this spectacle something so big as to be a feature in itself, and 200 beautiful girls will take part in the pageant.

The program follows:

12:30 P.M.—Formation of atmospheric tableau, "Easter at the Beach," with twelve groups on the improvised beach in front of the pits. The frolicsome bathing girls will stage all beach games. This will continue until after the parade. "Beach Loungers" from many Hollywood studios will be among the groups.

Beginning at 1 p.m. and continuing until after the parade, famous diving stars under sanction of A.A.U. and direction of Fred Cady of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, in exhibitions, from springboard into huge diving pool. Janet Ford, Marion Fletcher, Katherine Van Buren, Harriet Nielsen, Margaret Bernardi and Clarita Huntsberger will be among the stars. Sam Cohen, comedy diver from the Ambassador Hotel pool, will give exhibitions.

2:45 P.M.—Start of first annual Ascot bathing beauty parade. Two hundred girls under direction of Miss Jewell Pathe. Mlle. Irene Beauregard, winner of Deauville parade, and Miss Noreen Decker, Fresno Raisin Day queen, will be among the beauties. A gorgeous display of 1924 model bathing suits from Europe and the East, together with the latest things in California suits will be worn. The famous Loomis Twins, Billy Lord as drum major, leading the Huntington Park band, and "Bubbles," trained seal, will also be in the parade. Juvenile display by La Verne Mae Abbott and twenty girlies will stage a number. Fred Solomon's kiddies will also participate.

3:15 P.M.—Awarding of cups to winners and disbanding of parade.

3:30 P.M.—Start of automobile races.
Qualifying time trial events.
Bentel Helmet Dash—Motorcycles, one lap.
Ascot Helmet Dash—One lap.
First heat Invitation Race—Five laps.
Second heat Invitational Race—Five laps.
Tennent Lee Stakes—Motorcycles, five laps.
Final heat Invitational Race—Ten laps.
Flying Circus side-car race—Five laps.
Easter Sweepstakes—Fifteen laps.

Knighthood Victorious at Tia Juana

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19.—Knighthood from the stable of W. M. "Red" Walker, won the feature race at Tia Juana today, defeating Jack Bauer, the favorite, and Fighting Cook. Knighthood, Ellis in the pilot house, ran the five furlongs in one minute flat.

Long shots were interspersed throughout the card, the scramble for getaway money being on. The Aurevoir Handicap of a mile and one-sixteenth in which Little Chief, Cherry Tree and other stake horses are entered, features tomorrow's card, the 126th and final day of the season at the border course.

The summaries:

First race, six furlongs: Good Hope (Baker) won; Rockwurm (Hoagland) second; Pay Off (Neal) third. Time, 1:14 3-5.

Second race, one mile: Zillah (Clark) won; Black Shasta (Corbett) second; Contusion (Frey) third. Time 1:41 1-5.

Third race, five furlongs: Yochan (Neal) won; Edison (Baker) second; Nellie A. (Smith) third. Time, 1:01 1-5.

Fourth race, five furlongs: Raven Wing (Baker) won; Marion North (Frey) second; Albenna (Roberts) third. Time, 1:01.

Fifth race, five furlongs: Little Tem (Clark) won; Dr. McArthur (Baker) second; Ethel Brown (A. Collins) third. Time, 1:01 1-5.

Sixth race, five and one-half furlongs: Miss Nantura (Molter) won; Mouzie (Hoagland) second; Trusty (McKnight) third. Time, 1:07.

NORFOLK DEFEATS GREB ON A FOUL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

BOSTON, April 18.—Kid Norfolk of New York, negro light-heavyweight, won from Harry Greb, middleweight champion, on a foul in the sixth round of their scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. The boxers engaged in an unofficial fight when Greb struck Norfolk after the bell had rung, ending the round.

Race Season at Tia Juana to End Today

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, April 19.—The 1923-24 winter racing meet of the Tia Juana Jockey Club will come to a close tomorrow with a program of ten events, topped by the Au Revoir Handicap over the mile and one-sixteenth route.

Yesterday the "Blaze of Glory" wind-up was inaugurated with a record Friday crowd. Augmenting the crowd today were many from Los Angeles and way points, with indications that the Sabbath attendance for the final event will be one of the largest of the year. Ideal weather conditions are expected to boost the gate.

The pick of the horses at the track will go postward in the Au Revoir Handicap. Little Chief, winner of several important races this season, and who has two track records to his credit, is the most likely of the starters. Cherry Tree, a consistently good performer, will be a contender of the $2000 purse. The Araucanian and Sunnyland, both good steppers, are among the others entered.

Popularity of the sport during the season drawing to a close was attested by the crowds which turned out day after day. More than 1000 races were run during the season, which started Thanksgiving Day, and President Jim Coffroth declares it has been the most successful in the history of the track.

WASHINGTON TEAM DEFEATS WHITMAN

MANY STARS IN EASTERN MEETS

National and International Entries at Relays

Events at Drake and Penn Attract Athletes

Walter Eckersall Writes of Olympic Games

BY WALTER ECKERSALL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—Stars of national and international prominence, many of whom will represent America in the Olympic Games in France this summer, are scheduled to compete in the Penn relays and Drake University relay carnival, both of which will be held on Friday and Saturday.

This pair of track and field games are by far the most important of the early outdoor season and results of the various events will go a long way toward determining the make-up of the American team which will strive to uphold the record of American track and field athletes in Olympic Games.

The track and field competition of the Olympic Games will be held July 5 to 13, inclusive. While Yankee athletes have had more or less of a corner on this competition in former Olympiads, it is a known fact our athletes will meet with much stiffer competition than at any time since the world's games were revived in 1896.

FINLAND REPRESENTED

Finland will be represented by an evenly balanced team as will France and England. Italy is said to have improved greatly and the same is true of Norway and Sweden. Foreign countries have adopted American methods and in some cases coaches from this country have been engaged to instruct foreign athletes in the fundamentals of their specialties. All of which goes to prove our athletes must be ready for a supreme test and be prepared to pick up points in events in which other countries are weak.

According to Olympic rules, each country will be permitted to nominate four athletes for each event. Three, however, may start. Under such conditions, America should send a strong team, well fortified in most events. In the shot put, for instance, there are Wanser of the New York A.C.; Hartcranft of Leland Stanford, Hills of Princeton and Houser of Southern California. Each of this quartet can put the shot 47 feet or better. In the dual meet with the University of Southern California, Hartcranft put the ball 49ft., 4in., an effort which will win the event in the Olympic Games.

In many other events, America will be represented by quartets of athletes who are near world's record holders. In some, however, there will be a weakness. We have shown a decided weakness in distance running in former Olympiads and the same is true of middle-distance events in the more recent games.

The Drake and Penn relays will go a long way toward determining the runners who will compete in the middle-distance runs. At both sets of games four-mile relays will be held with the result the cream of the country's milers will meet each other. Runners of possibilities will be brought to the surface with the result there is still time for development before the sectional intercollegiates are held, forerunners of the final Olympic tests in the Harvard stadium on June 13 and 14.

Both sets of games will be featured by the appearance of stars not only of the United States but of England and Scotland as well. Charley Paddock, formerly of the University of Southern California, who lives in Pasadena, will be the chief attraction at the Drake relays. Charley is generally considered the world's premier sprinter and it will be his first appearance in the Middle West, called east to Californians.

PADDOCK AT DRAKE

Paddock's first outdoor appearance in the section will be watched with interest throughout the country. There are some who believe the Californian has lost some of his speed while others maintain he should be better. His appearance in the Drake games will prove his worth to the satisfaction of all concerned.

In addition to Paddock, another world's record holder, Harold Osborne of the Illinois A.C. will be seen in action at the Drake event. Harold is the holder of the world's indoor record in the running high jump at 6ft., 5 3-4in. He will attempt to shatter the world's outdoor mark of 6ft., 7 5-16in., held by Eddie Beeson of California.

Among others who will perform at Drake are De Hart Hubbard of the University of Michigan in the running hop, step and jump. The Wolverine will also compete in the running broad jump. Milton Angier of the University of Illinois, holder of the American record in the javelin throw, will be another star competitor as will Dean Brownell of Illinois, holder of the world's indoor pole-vaulting record at 13ft. 5-8in.

The big feature of the Penn relays, the oldest event of its kind in the country, will be the appearance of the Cambridge University team of England. The British quartet will be a contestant in the two-mile relay and a great race it should be. Indications are the event will bring together two of the greatest half-milers of the day on the last relay. Lowe of Cambridge is looked upon as England's greatest half-miler, while Allan Helffrick of Penn State is about America's best bet in the event. Both will run in the anchor positions on their respective teams.

Still another feature of the Quaker University event will be the appearance of Eric Liddell of Edinburgh University, Scotland, in the 100-yard dash. The Scot is the sprints champion of England and Scotland and has a record of .09 7-10s for the century. Liddell will be pitted against such well-known American flyers as Bowman of Syracuse; Clarke of Johns Hopkins; Wittman of Michigan, and several others who have covered the distance in even time or better.

The American Olympic committee will occupy two boxes at Franklin Field to make a careful study of the American performers, while the results of the Drake carnival will be scanned carefully not only by the committee which will select the American track and field team, but by every follower of amateur sports interested in the welfare of the men who will be our representatives in the world's games.

Tod Morgan Popular With Boxing Fans

With comparatively little known about his real ability against class, Tod Morgan may enter Jack Doyle's Vernon ring Tuesday night a favorite over the St. Paul featherweight, Stewart McLean, simply for sentimental reasons. Everywhere the youngster is being given the glad hand by fight fans, business and professional men and women, and is a welcomed visitor in many of Los Angeles' most exclusive homes.

All because he is such a swell little gentleman and not adicted to telling of glories of his ring battles. Down along Spring street, and around the gymnasium, Tod has become a big favorite among the dyed-in-the-wool boxers, presumably because he is so different from the usual run of mine fighter. He is unscarred, his hands are in perfect shape and he has yet to start a conversation about the boxing game. Ask him a few questions, he will answer them concisely and briefly but will offer no comments.

In fact, he has won everyone who has met him so completely that it is not at all surprising that he may meet McLean as the favorite, although the latter has never lost a contest in the four-round racket. Morgan's popularity is taking nothing away from the St. Paul boy, but Stewart is a quiet individual who takes his training and fighting as a matter of business and when through at the gymnasium, finds the shortest way home. All in all, most folks who know are anticipating a whale of a brawl Tuesday night.

HALL DOWNS DUCKS

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, April 19.—Veteran Charley Hall took the mound here today and though he was pelted for a quartet of safe blows in the opening inning, aided by brilliant fielding he held the Portland sluggers to a single run. From there he settled down and was touched for only five scattered singles for the rest of the way. In the meanwhile the Solon swatsmen got busy, first on Schraeder and then on Bedient, and won by a count of 8 to 1, pulling ahead once more on the series, three games to two. Score:

Soccer and Lacrosse Matches Are Scheduled at Maier Park Today

Maier Park is to be the scene of action today when a double header soccer and lacrosse championship card will be offered to the local lovers of sport.

At 1:45 sharp the Scots and Danes will go to the post in what will decide which nation's descendants have the best soccer players in sunny California. It is generally understood that the "Musheaters" are past grand masters at soccer, but the Danish eleven are expected to give them a real tussle on Sunday.

At 3:30 Referee Joe Pierce will send the lacrosse boys on their way, when the fast stepping hickory wielders representing the California Canadian Club will hook up with the Long Beach squad in the championship C.A.L.A. series.

Lacrosse is gaining a lot of favor among the local sport followers as has been shown in recent matches played here, when the fans got thrills galore out of this fast and exciting game, and have at times been treated to some real "Donnybrooks" which happen quite often in this game.

The boys held their final workout last night and have announced their teams as follows:

Caltech Nine Triumphs Over Pomona Team

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLAREMONT, April 19.—In a long-drawn-out affair, called a baseball game for courtesy sake, Coach Musselman's outfit of Caltech Engineers took the measure of the Pomona College nine on the latter's diamond this afternoon, to the tune of 8 to 5. Groat, Moyse and Fricker, Caltech's clever first baseman, were the material factors in the Sagehen defeat; Groat and Moyse being responsible for two hefty hits apiece and Fricker putting out ten men on first.

Coach Schott's men failed to get started on the right foot when Rawson, Sagehen mound artist, allowed the Caltech sluggers to pound out five hits in the first two innings, netting the visitors four runs. To make matters worse, Rawson lacked support and the Sagehens took on early indications of being a grammar-school nine, lacking alert mentality and committing a host of bobbles that cost their opening encounter.

Rawson was relieved after the first of the fifth frame, and Don Holsinger took charge of the pitching destinies of the Sagehens, allowing the Beavers two more runs in the sixth inning, but holding them scoreless in the last three frames. To Groat belongs the credit for the Beavers' victory, for during the entire game he pitched consistently and started out the season with an enviable batting average of four hits out of five times at the plate. Groat was not the only willow slinger that connected with the ball, however, as every man on the Caltech team ruffled the horsehide, except Fricker and Allyn, for a grand total of fifteen hits.

Afook and Frater were the only shining lights for the Sagehens, Afook connecting with the apple for three safe rides out of the five times at bat, and Frater making four hits out of the same number of times at the platter. Afook was accountable for two runs, while Frater brought in an additional score for the Blue and White. The score:

INTERCLASS BOXING COMMENCES MAY 2

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CLAREMONT, April 19.—Interclass boxing between the two lower classes at Pomona College begins May 2, in the Sagehen gymnasium when the first annual sophomore-freshman stag rufhouse will be held. Alfred Tarr, a 205-pounder has been put up by the sophomores for the heavyweight championship of the two lower classes but as yet no worthy competitor among the Babes has been found to face him.

Three matches will be held during the evening including bouts between Ralph Roble and Earl Merritt, both varsity football men; Jack Cowan and Lamson, and Paul Home and Berger. All six of these men are handy with their mitts and some first-class bouts are expected. The two classes will also engage in a tug-of-war and an indoor baseball game during the evening's smoker. Ray Moremen, former Sagehen distance track star, has been placed in charge of the musical arrangements for the rufhouse.

Contribution boxes in churches are an American idea that evolved from the "passing of the hat," by placing the old fashioned warming pan in front of each attendant at church services.

OLYMPIC GAMES GOAL OF PREPS

Six Los Angeles Lads in Line for Trip to Paris

Barnes is Best of High-School Pole Vaulters

Hank Coggeshall Looks Good in High Jump

While there has been considerable talk of Charley Paddock, Cliff Argue, Norman Anderson, Bud Houser, Roy Goodenough, Glen Graham, Kenny Grumbles, Bob Maxwell, Otto Anderson and Charley Daggs going to the Olympic Games this summer very little has been noised about concerning the chances of several prep stars making the trip. There are at least a half-dozen men who have been doing so well of late that they are sure to be dangerous competitors for some of the older stars when the local try-outs are staged at the Coliseum on May 24.

Chief among the prep sensations is Lee Barnes, Hollywood pole vaulter, who has repeatedly cleared 12ft. 6in. this season. It is said that in practice the Foothiller does 13ft., and in the annual Southern California high-school meet scheduled for next Saturday at the Coliseum he'll be pushed hard enough to make this mark. Smith, a brother of the Harry Smith who did so well at San Diego last year, has been following in his brother's footsteps and can be counted on to give Barnes a warm afternoon of it.

Hank Coggeshall, Polytechnic High School high jumper who holds the national interscholastic record at 6ft. 1 5-8in., is one of the most promising local jumpers among either the varsity or prep athletes. Oliver Cory of U.S.C. is the only man around these parts that has anything on Coggeshall. The Poly lad has been improving steadily and if he can keep it up he is sure to clear 6ft. in the try-outs. Many expect him to hit this mark next Saturday.

Among the hurdlers De Wolfe Requa, Manual Arts sensation, and Ross Nichols of Huntington are the two most likely prospects. The former has been coming up so fast that no one knows just what he will do within the next month. His best race seems to be in the lows and in the city meet he was clocked in the very respectable time of 24 7-10s. for a new record, the knocking over of one hurdle losing him this mark. Nichols is at his best in the highs and has covered the tall barriers in 15 5-10s. this year. He should get under that in next Saturday's meet.

When Otto Anderson and Charley Daggs made the United States team in 1920 they were only slightly better than Requa and Nichols are now and at the rate the two prep stars have been traveling of late they are certainly promising material.

Van Fleet, Chaffey Union High School athlete, has been tossing the twelve-pound shot over 49ft. in every meet this season and may be good enough with the heavier missile to force Hartranft and Houser.

FOUR MEN TIE IN BIG TARGET SHOOT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PORTLAND (Or.) April 19.—W. G. Warren of Los Angeles, Dr. C. F. Cathey of Portland, E. D. Farmen of Sand Point, Idaho, and Levi Taylor of Kent, Wash., made a four-man tie of it for the leading score in the 150-target shoot from the 16-yard line today in the Rose City annual tournaments. Each made 147.

CHANCE HEADED WEST

White Sox Boss Coming Back to Los Angeles to Recover Health; Evers Holds Down Job

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—Frank L. Chance, manager of the White Sox, started for Los Angeles tonight over the Santa Fe Railroad, where he will attempt to recover his health. In the meantime John J. Evers, chief coach of the Sox and acting manager of the club through the training season and the opening series with the Browns, will serve as manager in place of Chance, with full power to act on any and all important matters as they pertain to the club's play. He will also issue releases or contracts for new players to strengthen the club as he sees fit.

Chance has an asthmatic and bronchial affection which has grown steadily worse since he came to Chicago, a week ago yesterday, and he was ordered today by the personal physician of President C. A. Comiskey of the White Sox to delay no longer in getting to a warmer, drier climate. Contrary to opinions, other than medical, Chance has no lung trouble, but a choking sensation when he attempts to walk or become active has weakened his condition greatly.

Dr. Philip Kreuscher today urged Chance to go to the west coast and plans were already being formulated today by the peerless leader for the purchase of a bungalow in the mountainous country at Palm Springs, Cal., where he will go for recovery. There he will continue to live the outdoor life he did before joining the Sox this spring.

Camp Fire Girls now number more than 100,000 in this country, and the membership will be at least 10 per cent greater by the time of the annual program of camping next summer, it is believed.

Occidental in Easy Win Over Redlands Nine

The Occidental Tigers won over Redlands at Patterson field yesterday beating the Bulldogs, 14 to 3. The Bulldog pitchers insisted on passing Occidental batters throughout the afternoon. The Redlands boys were also decidedly off color in the field, making many costly errors.

Fulton of the Tigers pitched a good game, fanning five Bulldogs, issuing five hits and led his team in batting with three hits in four trips to the plate. "Zuke" Tanaka starred in the field for Occidental, making some neat stops at short.

The Tigers started out the first with four runs. De Mandel and Tanaka received passes, Hazeltine laid down a pretty bunt filling the bases. Hosegood forced two runs in by passing Fulton and Westgate and Wiley, who relieved Hosegood, issued another walk with the bases full scoring Hazeltine. Fulton scored on a sacrifice by Link.

Redlands tallied in the second on a two-bagger by Yochem and a sacrifice by McGilbra. In the third the Bulldogs threatened to tie it up when Yokem singled, Over got on when Purcel bobbled one, and Brumbaugh scored both men by doubling to center. Beginning in the fifth the Tigers scored runs in every inning through ineffective pitching, as the Bulldogs changed nearly every inning. After three men had scored for the Tigers in the sixth the Bulldogs executed a neat double play, Jeffers to McGilbra to Brumbaugh. The hitting of Yochem and the fielding of Jeffries featured the play of the losers.

MILLION FLOWERS READY FOR PARIS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—Approximately 1,000,000 flowering plants have been transferred to the cold frames in the city of Paris' great nursery garden near Auteuil, awaiting the time when they will be planted in their beds in the public parks of Paris. Geraniums, fuschias, petunias, marguerites and many other varieties, they will add their color this spring and summer to the beautiful picture that is Paris. Great as is their number, they are but a part of the many plants being reared for Paris. Inasmuch as the gardens of the Luxembourg and of the Tuileries are state and not city property, it is in the nurseries of the French Republic that flowers are grown for those beautiful spots.

ADMIRALTY JURISTS RETAIN USE OF WIG

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 19.—The Admiralty Court of British Columbia is the last stand of the horsehair wig and quill pen in the administration of justice in this Province. Today when this court sat with Mr. Justice Martin on the bench, his lordship wore the customary historical headgear and entered the proceedings of the sitting in a large book with a well-feathered quill pen. Several years ago judges in the Supreme Court and in the lesser courts made the wearing of the wig optional.

FRENCH LIFT BAN ON YANK CAMERAMAN

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—Count Clery yesterday received the Paris committee of the American publishers' committee on cable and radio communications and heard a strong protest against the French Olympic Committee's decree that no American photographers will be permitted inside the stadium during the Olympic Games.

After conferring with Frantz Reitchel, chairman of the photography committee, Count Clery announced the composition of the membership of the photography squad—now exclusively French, and numbering twenty—will be "reorganized" and means may be found to place one or two American photographers on it. American publishers are asked to apply the strongest pressure on the American Olympic officials in New York and insist that they cable Count Clery demanding at least three American photographers be upon the committee.

In the factories where bottle corks are made, special machines are made which cut the cork into the size desired. The cork refuse and odd pieces left over from this cutting process are not thrown away, but are carefully ground down with mixed rubber to make floor cloth.

MANY SIGN FOR TRIP TO HAWAI[illegible]

Chamber Party to Sail on Refitted Liner

Program Outlined Includes Varied Entertainment

More Business Links to be Forged by Visitors

Following the recent announcement that the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce would conduct its trade extension excursion to the Hawaiian Islands on June 21, when the giant liner City of Los Angeles returns to service following the installation of new engines at a cost of more than $1,000,000, Charles P. Bayer, manager of the chamber's organization service department and also in charge of the forthcoming business trip, reports widespread interest in the trip.

With a large number of reservations already made and numerous inquiries from citizens living in all parts of the Southland arriving daily, Mr. Bayer says that with the sailing date more than two months distant, ample assurance is given for a comfortably filled ship for the voyage.

Under the leadership of Mr. Bayer, through experience gained in conducting a similar excursion last year, members of the next excursion of commerce will be offered one of the most complete programs of entertainment ever attempted for the pleasure of passengers sailing for the islands aboard a passenger liner from Los Angeles Harbor. Mr. Bayer is now working on the program, which will include varied races and competitive deck games, masque balls and entertainments in the public salons at night.

FIRST VISIT RECALLED

The fostering of trade and social relations between the Hawaiian Islands and Southern California has been a project close to the hearts of the officials and directors of the Chamber of Commerce. This was evidenced by the hearty manner in which that body got behind the inaugural sailing of the Los Angeles Steamship Company's first vessel to Honolulu in September, 1922.

The same spirit was shown in September, 1923, when the chamber conducted its last excursion to the islands aboard the City of Los Angeles. Several hundred citizens of Los Angeles and near-by cities visited the islands and forged additional links to the gradually strengthening chain that is binding, commercially and socially, two great ports of the Pacific—Honolulu and Los Angeles. Immediately upon conclusion of the excursion the giant liner, City of Los Angeles, was withdrawn from service and placed in the yards of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Drydock Corporation for installation of an entirely new power plant and for further refinements to her already luxurious passenger quarters.

It has been the particularly expressed desire of Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, that in the return of the City as the most luxuriously appointed passenger vessel in the trans-Pacific service be fittingly celebrated. The fulfillment of this desire is marked by the coming excursion.

RETURN IN JULY

Extensive entertainment plans for the ten-day stay in the islands include numerous luncheons, dinners, feasts and celebrations in Honolulu, Hilo and other island points visited. The members of the chamber party will be given extensive motor trips so arranged to include all of the most important points of interest.

A feature planned by Mr. Bayer is a special trip of the City of Los Angeles to Hilo by way of the leeward coast of Molokai via Kahului on the Island of Maui. Visits will be made to Puunene, Paia, Wailuku and the Iao Valley, points seldom visited by the casual tour[illegible]

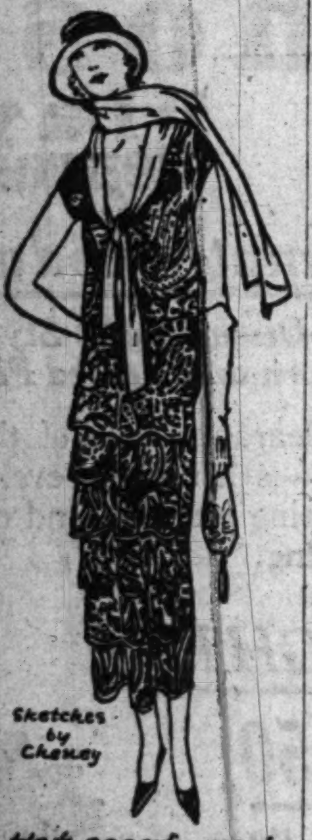
EASTER BRINGS DREAMS OF FINERY TO MILADY

Freshness of Season Expressed in Modes Here; Color and Lack of It Twin Notes in Dress

BY OLIVE GRAY

Easter, the time for blossoming, both in nature and in feminine habiliments, sees a less radical change here than in more rigorous climates; but Easter readiness in wardrobes is by common consent essential.

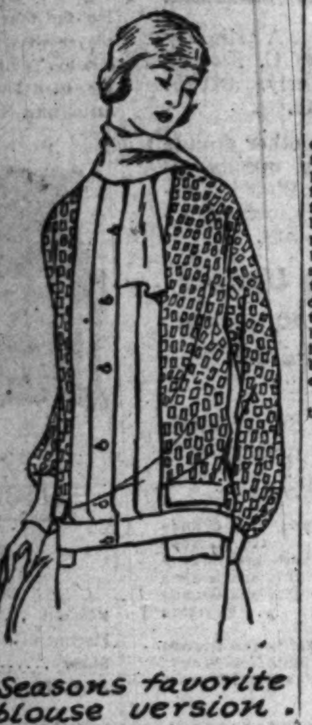
As a famous beauty individualizes all that she touches, lending to her possessions that something of personal charm which is her chief characteristic, so Los Angeles in assimilating modes from far and near transmutes them to her especial taste.



Hat scarf, neck scarf, clinging ruffles.

The undisputed originator of sports attire, it is her whim to lend the outdoors atmosphere wherever it is possible so to do. In sports clothes, Los Angeles has set the mode for New York, for Paris, for the world.

Sports wear, with her, is not confined to country clubs, to golf links, to beach or mountain resort, but is chosen for street and for dinner, for all informal use. Even when the strictly tailored garb dominates the theme of feminine wardrobes, it is more than likely that a touch of the sportish will appear in some accessory, in color or in line.



Seasons favorite blouse version.

Also, we must own that our fair climate enables Los Angeles to choose the more elegant, the more dainty, for usual wear; to eliminate the cumbrous and the weather-defensive garments and footwear, needful elsewhere.

First to strike the eye is the silhouette. This is not radically changed in line, the straight and narrow, being as popular as ever, even when modified by drapery or frills; but this change is notable, skirts are to be decidedly shorter. Paris, usually reluctant to concede the shorter skirt, has said that these may be from eight to fourteen inches from the floor. That America will carry the permission to the extreme, there is little doubt and Los Angeles, always fond of abbreviated skirts, and desirous of displaying her fine foot wear, will probably go Paris as much better as she dares.

orate dress will take on swirling flounces, often in the shape of pointed ruffles clinging closely from waist-line to hem, or in side frills, or circular skirts set upon basques; but whatsoever the expression of the new mode in this particular slimness is not to be destroyed nor minimized; but on the contrary, with youthfulness dominant in feminine appearance, that youthfulness not content with being girlish, but bent upon being even boyish, any fullness must be obviously of the garment, rather than of the figure beneath.

While color is no less prevalent than heretofore, there is a strong tendency in many instances toward the adoption of the all-black, the all-white, the combination of black and white, and white and black. The freshness of those shades, in all their expressions, cannot be denied: and when one

GREAT TRIBUTE PAID TO DAWES

Ex-Associate, Now Angeleno, Lauds Financier

Finds Reparations Expert is Fearless

Vivid Picture of Leader is Drawn in Interview

Do your work, do it yourself. Be thorough in performance, be fearless of consequences. Be honest with yourself, be frank with me. Tell the truth and, if you convince me, I'll back you up against the whole United States.—CHARLES GATES DAWES.

In the event that Gen. Dawes should need references, let him apply to Frederick J. Kinney, 1831 West Twelfth street, Los Angeles. Mr. Kinney, who worked for him three years and has been his friend for more than twenty years, would make the reference broader.

"Let him apply," Mr. Kinney would say, "to anybody who ever worked for him. All his men loved and worshiped him."

With his wife contributing to the conversation, Mr. Kinney told yesterday of his long acquaintance with the man, who, as chairman of the Reparations Commission, stands today in the forefront of these who are making international history; of his personal qualities, his kindliness and humanity, his indefatigable industry, his loyalty to his fellow-workers and subordinates, his aggressive honesty, his constitutional fearlessness, his gift of solvent analysis, his pride in constructive achievement, his plain manners, plain speech and plain dress, his executive dominance of his staff and his working material.

LOVABLE AND FEARLESS

Emphasis in the end rested chiefly on his sweetness and courage comingled.

"He is the most lovable man," said Mr. Kinney, "I ever knew."

"He is the most fearless man alive," said Mrs. Kinney. "Once convinced that he is right, he fears nobody and nothing. He might have been the man who invented the saying God and one always constitute a majority."

In 1898 Mr. Kinney was cashier and manager of the private bank of Mitchell & Linde, at Rock Island, Ill., when Charles Deere of Deere & Co., the great plowmakers, then chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Illinois, took him to Washington to meet the new comptroller of the currency, Charles G. Dawes. The introduction, with other recommendations, was sufficient to win him an appointment as special bank examiner, with the nation for his field. He remained a member of the comptroller's staff until 1901, when he resigned to become vice-president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company of New Orleans, which he had helped to organize. Subsequently, he came to Los Angeles and is now retired.

SOUTHLAND INTERESTS

"Not many Californians realize," he said, "that Gen. Dawes is one of the largest security holders in Southern California gas companies. After he left the practice of law in Nebraska—he was born at Marietta, O.—for business he became interested, with others of his family, in the development of gas properties in Evanston, Ill., in Wisconsin, in Seattle and ultimately, all over the country. As president of the Central Trust Company of Illinois, at Chicago, which he helped to organize, he is one of the foremost bankers of the country.

"'Hell-and-Maria' Dawes, the nickname given him by the newspapers, is really an unkindness, for he isn't in the least a blustering man and he doesn't believe in brandishing the big stick. 'Hell-and-Maria' was just a sputter of exasperation, a vivid way of flashing to the imagination, by linking two incongruities, the futile way in which Congress was 'pawing over the litter of war expenditures.' To his mind the war had been won and the money had been spent and that was an end to it."

"Yes," put in Mrs. Kinney, with a smile, "but he does love a good, round, mouthfilling phrase."

LOVED BY HIS MEN

"Well," continued Mr. Kinney, "the boys picked up the phrase and anyway it stuck, though I think it does him an injustice. He and the boys were always great friends. They got along together fine. They all liked him and respected him and he was always just as frank and free with them as he was with everybody else.

"In his relations with his office force, he was always positive but never truculent or overbearing. He had the faculty of commanding deference without inspiring fear. The man who is sure of himself needs no artificial barriers for self-protection. He was easy to see but nobody trespassed on Gen. Dawes's time or patience, because he had the secret of plucking the heart out of what a man had to tell in the fewest possible moments and when that man left, he left because he had nothing more to say and had been made to know it, not because he had been edged to the door.

"His appetite for work was something fearsome to see; he positively devoured it; but when his business day was done it was done. He did not take his worries home with him from the office. I have seen him with a stenographer at each elbow, shoveling aside correspondence, memoranda of letters to be written and sheets of statistics, with both hands, while carrying on a running conversation with a caller.

"BUDGET" FALLACY SHOWN

Noted Engineer Finds $10,285,000 Plenty for Power Bureau After Study of "Meager" Data

Adolph H. Koebig, one of the leading consulting engineers of the United States on hydroelectric projects, has made a thorough examination of the first "budget" issued by the municipal Bureau of Power and Light, setting forth the purposes for which the bureau declared it intended to expend the $21,000,000 in bonds the Bureau is asking the taxpayers for at the May 6 election. He declares in the following statement that from the "meager" data submitted by the Bureau of Power and Light the sum of $10,285,000 "would cover the necessary expenditures in a very generous way."

Here is given in full the comment of Mr. Koebig on the Power Bureau's so-called $21,000,000 power bond budget:

BY ADOLPH H. KOEBIG

LOS ANGELES, April 16, 1924.

I have carefully examined the three different estimates in regard to the lease of the city of Los Angeles for extensions and betterments of its electric power system.

On page No. 1 is a copy of the various items submitted to the voters of the city of Los Angeles by the City Light and Power Bureau. Pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 show an itemized statement presumably submitted by the Southern California Edison Company, entitled "Estimated cost of additions and betterments to the Los Angeles system if handled by Southern California Edison Company for the next three years." Page No. 8 dated the 4th inst., purports to be submitted by the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and shows the same articles which have been submitted in the first and second estimates, however, with various changes in the figures.

NO DETAILS GIVEN

While the estimate for the items enumerated on page No. 1—purporting to give a full preliminary estimate to be submitted to the voters is all the law requires, it does not furnish sufficient data for an engineer to check intelligently the correctness of such an estimate because no details are given.

The estimate submitted by the Southern California Edison Company, however, goes more into detail than any of the other estimates you have submitted to me. With the assistance of the three estimates submitted to myself, comparing the same back and forth I came to the conclusion that the amounts estimated by the Southern California Edison Company and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation would be more nearly correct than the $21,000,000 estimated by the Power Bureau of the city of Los Angeles. In fact, from the meager data submitted I should judge that even the lowest estimate of $10,285,000 would cover the necessary expenditures in a very generous way.

OUT OF PROPORTION

While the different items enumerated in the estimate of the Power Bureau of the city of Los Angeles are more or less varying from the other estimates, considerably, the last item, however, "Extensions to care for new business, and purchase of lines of Southern California Edison Company in the recently annexed territory amounting to $9,975,000," seems to me entirely out of proportion when compared with the same item in the two other estimates, basing this conclusion upon my knowledge that the two corporations are in possession of the facts underlying such an estimate.

I am sorry it is impossible for me to give a more detailed estimate on account of the lack of detailed information.

MEAGER IN ITS DETAIL IS BUDGET

Power Bureau Estimates Bring Condemnation Even from Its Friends

Here is the now famous Power Bonds Budget No. 1 of the Power Bureau, which has been condemned roundly even by friends of the bureau as "meager" in details and "exorbitant" as to the cost for the items set down as the purposes for which the bureau says it will spend the $21,000,000 it is asking for on May 6—if the bonds are voted. This is the budget examined by Engineer A. H. Koebig and declared by him, in effect, to be exorbitant as he said the work set forth in the budget could be done for about $10,000,000.

At the demand of the Chamber of Commerce, the Power Bureau is now preparing a new budget, but this is the one which the bureau now would like to suppress.

Fifteen local distributing substations	$ 2,000,000
High-tension lines and rights-of-way connecting distributing substations	3,500,000
Additions to 33,000-volt underground cable and conduit system	375,000
Reconstruction of present 15,000-volt transmission lines, adapting them for 33,000-volt operation	150,000
Supply warehouses, pole yards and shops	250,000
Additions and betterments to street lighting system	175,000
General betterments to the overhead distributing system	2,750,000
General betterments to the underground distributing system	925,000
Extensions to care for new business, and purchase of lines of Southern California Edison Company in recently annexed territory	9,975,000
Total	$21,000,000

The Power Bureau has declared that it will spend this $21,000,000 over a period of three years, or $7,000,000 a year. The bureau also claims to be making a profit of $2,700,000 a year represented by the amount of revenues over operating expenses. For three years this profit would be $8,100,000 and this profit the bureau claims to be expending for the extensions to its system. If the bonds are voted, this will give the bureau nearly $10,000,000 a year or $30,000,000 for the three years in extending and bettering a system, most of which was purchased from the Edison Company for but $11,000,000.

JOYOUS DAY FOR TOTS IN HOSPITALS

Ice Cream to Be Given to All Children Confined in Various Institutions

More than 3500 Los Angeles children confined today—Easter Sunday—in a score of local hospitals will be supplied with all the ice cream they can eat, or rather all their respective doctors will permit them to eat, by seven Los Angeles ice cream manufacturing companies which make a custom of making of each holiday a red-letter day in the lives of the youngsters. The children confined in all orphanages, homes and children's institutions also will be served.

The firms which follow the custom of making holidays brighter for the city's little unfortunates are the Alfreds Pure Ice Cream Company, L. J. Christopher Company, Crescent Creamery Company, National Creamery and Produce Company, Hughes Ice Cream Company, Globe Ice Cream Company and the Excelsior Ice Cream Company.

The institutions scheduled for attention are the Boys' and Girls' Society, Japanese Children's Home, Jewish Orphan's Home, Kiddie Coop, Los Angeles Orphan Asylum, Los Angeles Orphans' Home, Maud B. Booth Home, McKinley Industrial Home, Regina Coeli Orphan Asylum, Mother Cabrini Preventorium, Maryknoll Japanese Home, Conveant of the Good Shepherd, Children's Hospital Society, California Home for Crippled Children, Lark Ellen Home, Los Angeles Orthopedic Home and others.

FINAL DISTRICT CONTESTS FOR ORATORS THIS WEEK

All Semifinal Contestants to be Chosen; Chief Justice Taft Tells of Constitution

This week the second step in the National Oratorical Contest will be completed in Southern California. All the districts that have not chosen their champion orators for the semifinals will conduct contests for that purpose. About half the districts have conducted these meets and the young orators who have been selected for the semifinals, which begin May 2, are now engaged in improving their orations.

In order to assist these aspirants, it was thought appropriate to present the views on the Constitution of America's leading jurist, William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and former President of the United States. His interest in the National Oratorical Contest is evidenced by the fact that he recently addressed a meeting of thousands of Illinois contestants in Chicago.

His views on the subject are set forth clearly in the following excerpts from a lecture delivered by him some time ago.

BY WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

The Constitution of the United States was not born as Minerva is said to have been, full armed from the brain of Jove. No great and abiding institution ever is. It was the first written constitution of an independent nation which, after creating its governmental organization and the agencies by which it was to be carried on, imposed on those agencies effective limitations of their powers by creating machinery for enforcing most of them. It recognized the ultimate power in the people of the United States and in their name proceeded to frame restrictions upon themselves as to how they might exercise their power through their appointed or elected agencies. In independent nations, this was a new conception.

The second feautre of the Constitution having a novel aspect was its Federal character. The States would not merge themselves in one government and the federation plan was adopted to retain local self-government and sovereignty in the States and yet to create out of the people of the States a nation having all needed functions for national purposes, and presenting a united front to the world in international matters.

THIRD FEATURE

The third feature of the government under the Federal Constitution was its purely representative character. It vested the ultimate power in the people, but it secured to them the exercise of that power only through representatives.

The slightest study of the history of the framing of the Constitution shows that the members of the convention in large majority thought that the permanence and safety of the new government required provisions which should prevent a change of policy to meet every temporary wind of popular passion. The checks and balances between the popular will and its ultimate control created by our Federal Constitution are greater than with most popular governments. The rigid term of four years, by which the Executive remains in power no matter how strongly the people may give their verdict against him in the mid-term Congressional election, the six-year term of each of the Senators, arranged in three classes, so that only one-third of the Senate can be changed every two years, and even the certain full two years of each House of Representatives, however great the change in popular sentiment in a year, all make a contrast to what is called Responsible Government, like that in Great Britain. Certainly, we are not a pure democracy governing by direct action, and the great men who framed our fundamental law did not intend that we should be.

The Constitution makers had it in mind to secure individual liberty, the right of personal and religious freedom, right of labor and of contract, and the protection against reprivation of any of them save by due process of law. The Federal Constitution today, therefore, guards a man in the enjoyment of his personal liberty, his property and his pursuit of happiness, whether violated by the Federal or State government. Thus are preserved to the individual that liberty of action and that equality of opportunity which it took a thousand years of struggle to secure from monarchy and aristocracy.

AMENDMENT IDEA

The last feature of our Constitutional government which we need notice is the machinery for its amendment. To change it, two-thirds of each House of Congress and the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States must concur. It is a referendum to the people's representatives. We may reasonably infer that the framers of the Constitution did not intend to have our fundamental law amended by any temporary wave of popular frenzy.

When the Constitution was adopted the proportion of the electorate to the whole population was much smaller than it is now. The steady trend since that day has been toward an enlargement of the electorate, so that today we are a much more popular government than we were under Washington. Property and religious qualifications have all disappeared. The greater the number of the governed who can take part in the government, the juster it is likely to be to each group or class, and so the stronger and more permanent it will become, assuming that all are sufficiently intelligent to know what their interests are.

Ours is the oldest popular government in the world, and is today the strongest and most conservative. It is not an oligarchy or an aristocracy under the guise of Republican forms, and it never was, the people do rule and always have ruled in the United States. They have their will but they have it after a wholesome delay and deliberation which they have wisely forced themselves to take under the restrictions of a Constitution which they have fully approved by more than 130 years of acquiescence. It is this voluntary self-restraint that has made their government permanent and strong. It is a fundamental error to seek

EASTER BRINGS FINERY DREAMS

Freshness of Season Here Expressed in Modes

Color and Lack of it Are Twin Dress Notes

Los Angeles Sets Pace for All in Sport Wear

elects to add, possibly, to white a dash of prevalent color combining, as is so often the case with the new bordered yardage, the effect is excellent. In all black, the choice is for satin, especially in the new strictly tailored suits and dresses. Still, much woolen yardage is used, as also is crepe in its many variations. Flannel holds its own for smart little dresses and for blouses and also is seen in neckwear and vestees.

For more elaborate wear come the lovely silks, weaves most fascinating and colorful as could be desired, even [illegible] peasantry. Plaids, stripes, brocades, plain tints ranging throughout all the flower tones are shown in silken weaves, of shimmering surface or in rougher finish.

The cloche, long the very synonym for the feminine hat, although still popular, finds many variants and some radical changes. Fabric has sprung into vogue and that fabric silken. A recent mode is that of bengaline, a corded silk once used largely for dresses and wraps. Black—the essence of chic in the wardrobe of the French woman—is prevalent in the new millinery for dress occasions; but one must not forget that color holds its own, also, especially in sports millinery. For wear with the summery fabrics, organdies, voiles and other cotton materials, and with linens, hats will gain in brim and will adopt the appropriate flower trimmings usually associated with the season. Milan and other Italian weaves in straw, offset by ribbon, fabric and flowers, will constitute the more practical hats, while the filminess of horsehair, quite lace-like in effect and lovely in the new colorings, will find a favored spot in the wardrobe of the well-dressed woman.

TWO TYPES

Hats toning well with the suit or dress, or those in striking contrast, will share popularity. Veils are "in," both in modifications of the close veil, all-covering to the features or reaching to the upper lip, topping the nose, or shadowing merely the eyes. The larger veils are more than likely to become the entire trimming of the hat, the long ends used as neck-scarfs and floating across one shoulder. Such veils are not becoming to all, but when so, lend a charming air of mystery, particularly when the upper part of the face is practically concealed. Lace, sometimes in the shape of broad banding, trims some of the wide-brimmed hats, or on the smaller ones, forming band and bows, scarves or flanges, through which peep sparkling feminine eyes.

Brilliant ornaments are used to vivify many of the all-black hats and it is declared that the hatpin of former days will return, more than ever gay and interesting and put to unexpected uses.

Even though the strictly tailored suit seems to have usurped the field, every wardrobe must possess several wraps for the many events engaging feminine attention. There must, of course, be the polo coat—informal, woolly, smart in its odd touches by way of belt, buttons or pockets, collar or cuffs. This is the bread-and-butter wrap, for ordinary use. Then there should be the better, more dressy coat, preferably in striped or plaided wool, builded upon long, slim lines and enhanced by trimming of fur, in the form of narrow bands, or a small upstanding collar, against which comes a metallic braid, perhaps, or a band of ribbon and then a narrow braid of gold or silver, bronze or old Dutch metallic tint.

For theater or restaurant wear, for opera or for reception use, the variety in the more voluminous wraps passes from those sumptuous furs, all enveloping masterpieces, to the less pretentious ones in silk, velvet or some of the pile fabrics masquerading under various trade names. Nearly always, for the dressy wrap, there is some touch of fur and usually it is the short-haired fur, such as ermine, or its similations. And it goes without saying that every woman or girl who can afford it, will own at least one short fur jacket or jacquette for informal wear.

Never before, it is safe to say, have shoes possessed so much distinction as at present. Every variation in leather and in fabrics, in cut, in last and in ornamentation, may be seen in footwear. Los Angeles is the paradise of fine footwear, many world-popular designs being originated here. The somewhat intricate cut-out effects are a feature of the season, and so is the unusual combining of different fabrics with or without leather. Possibly the more open effects are for the purpose of displaying the finer hosiery which is in vogue. So fine as to be almost invisible, are many of the more expensive stockings, especially when in the colors "nude," in onion skin, freckle, sunburn and in a new creamy beige, looking like actual human flesh. Those hose accompany black shoes, when not chosen to match the suit or gown. A fad is to have the monogram embroidered or painted upon the hose in some conspicuous place.

KID GLOVES AGAIN

Gloves, after having been of fabric so long as to have almost spoiled our hand by ever-indulgence—so easy are they to wear—are trying again to become kid. The effort results in a return of suede, so soft as to resemble fabric. Glace gloves are shown also and are gaining in favor. Much trimming is seen upon both fabric and kid—embroidery, cut-work, fancy silken linings to gauntlets and contrasting materials set on in many shapes. The short gauntlet, with short or no sleeves, has not as yet taken a strong hold, here; but as the season advances, it probably will.

Among the most striking fads, in dress, is the fob, which has become in reality a part of almost every informal costume. Jeweled, plain; contrasting in color; fashioned from some item composing the dress or suit, the fob is an opportunity for individual expression.

The same is true of the monogram, which seems to have no end of possibilities in design and in placement. Allied with the pocket, which has come forth in undreamed-of variations, both for informal and for formal dress, the monogram is ubiquitous.

As fraught with possibilities of distinction as are Milady's habiliments, is the hand-bag. One smiles to recall the day when one "bought the hand-bag;" for now one must own as many of these as one possesses dresses, suits or wraps. Each must be companioned by its appropriate hand-bag. The masterpiece in petite point, or in beads; the vanity, large, small, medium; the leather pouch; the fabric bag or case; that of silk, moire, striped, plain or brocaded. Many rank quite within the realm of jewelry, so handsome are the trimmings, clasps and ornaments. Then, of course, there are the individual bags and boxes, thought-out or constructed by their owners—the Ritz bag, of homespun with embroidered scenes; the various Chinese developments of the hand-carrier.

COSTUME GEMS

One formerly thought of costume jewelry as that composed of semiprecious or simulated stones, devised to carry out a color scheme in dress. Now, however, so pliant has become the jewelers' craft, that one may carry out such couturial plans in the genuine gems. In fact, any woman who can afford to do so, is certain to select the genuine to match her every costume. In semiprecious stones, however, there is a broad and interesting choice. Crystal, in the many new cuts, especially in square or cube, holds first attention, perhaps, the white glistening material adding zest to the black-and-white mode. In colors, the range is limitless. Carnelian is very popular; so also is jade in its differing tones; jet, of course and also onyx, with the crystal; the blue stones and amethysts, usually intricately carved, "going well" with the summer garments in lavenders and mauves. The yellows are found in topazes, ambers and variants of these. Sapphires and rubies should be genuine, to look well, in costume effects. Of course, all women covet the best in gems and she who possesses such, will band her attire to offset them. Bracelets are the season's high note in jewelry.

It is doubtful if ever was neckwear so important or so interesting as now. From the collar and cuff sets worn with or without the vestee, to the lingerie or the boyish blouse, distinction rests in these accessories. White, creamy or colorful, the daintiness and originality of these addenda, often spell success to the costume. Ties, narrow and medium, of woven silk or knitted often serve to complete the "boyish" effect so prevalent, giving just the needed touch of color to the suit or dress.

LACE HAS SUPPORT

Lace, for entire costumes, for afternoon and for evening, for blouses and for accessories, finds much support; the new fad being for hand-painting upon the design, forming the trimming effect. In lingerie dresses, lace together with fine embroideries, is almost bewildering in profusion and in loveliness.

Lace also finds its place in lingerie, both for underthings and for boudoir wear. Color, in this realm, has taken on new and beautiful variations, the flesh or mauve tints yielding to more vivid expressions in yellows, greens, blues and rose colors. Even black seizes upon its opportunity to go with the all-black costume.

In addition to the omnipresent hand work, dresses, wraps and hats enhanced by pleatings, tucks, stitchery, bands, beading, ruffles, flounces—all maintaining the slender silhouettes—and newest note, by feather and by fur bands, in high or in pastel colors. The beaded gown for dinner and evening refuses to yield its place, but takes renewed hold by means of increasingly artistic designs and finer development. Ribbon, ribbon! Put to all possible uses—even composing entire dresses, wraps and hats! Ribbon flowers, ribbon bandings, ribbon plisse, ribbon bordered, ribbon plain.

Those who never try will never triumph.

FOR FOREST CONSERVATION

A plea for observance of forest protection week, proclaimed by President Coolidge for the 21st to the 27th inst., inclusive, has been made to representative organizations throughout the State by the California Development Association through its conservation committee. The association also has forwarded to schools, Boy Scout headquarters and other bodies material to be embodied in programs in observance of the week.

"The forests of California," stated the letter to the organizations, "are one of the greatest resources of the State. They cover hundreds of thousands of acres in our mountains and are worth millions of dollars. They furnish us wood for building, water for the irrigation of crops and orchards, grass for countless cattle and sheep and summer playgrounds for the motorist, camper and sportsman."

The aim of the week, explained in the letter, is to drive home the importance of safeguarding our forests from fire. It pointed out that in 1922, California's fire loss in forests was greater than any other State. During the last five years, the letter stated, there have been more than 11,135 grass, brush and forest fires and they have burned over more than 2,750,000 acres. Eighty per cent of these fires were said to have been caused by carelessness.

CONFIRMS NEEDS FOR CHILD AID

Report on Germany by Dawes Board Analyzed by Maj.-Gen. Allen

A message from Maj.-Gen. Henry T. Allen, successor of Gen. Pershing in command of the American overseas forces at the close of the great war, in which the Dawes report is analyzed with reference to the German child relief movement now in progress in this country, has been received here by Dr. C. N. Thomas, Southern California director of the relief drive, at his headquarters, 228 San Fernando Building.

"The Dawes report," declares Maj.-Gen. Allen, "confirms the fact which the world has clearly envisaged, namely that 62,000,000 virile people under normal conditions should relieve their own suffering without outside assistance. It is absence of such conditions that makes the appeal to charity and humanity at the present time absolutely necessary. The report states that 'the task would be hopeless if the present situation in Germany reflected her potential capacity. The proceeds from Germany's national production could not in that case enable her both to meet her national needs and insure payment of her foreign debts.'

"It is exactly the present situation," continues Maj.-Gen. Allen, "that we are called upon to meet, in hope, however, that the near future may so change it as to preclude any necessity for further assistance at an early date."

like a solvent acid, but I admire more his gift of building up. Years before the Federal Reserve Act became law, he was working, talking, planning, moving pieces on the financial board, to bring about the set-up of interest that finally permitted Woodrow Wilson to force a reluctant Democratic Congress into enacting the legislation now on the books. The real author of the Federal Reserve Act to my mind is Charles G. Dawes. I say that as the result of long reflection on the many conversations we had together, while the subject was taking form in his mind, and I regard his administration of the Comptroller's office as one of the determinant forces in the financial history of this country.

"Ever since I have known Mr. Dawes, he dressed well but plainly. There was no suggestion of the fop or the exquisite about him.

"He enjoyed congenial society but was in no sense a social climber.

"He has no fads. Literature and music are his recreations. Several of his compositions are here in the house. He does not play golf and is not a sportsman. A strong vein of sentiment and imagination run through his personality. The death of his son was the tragedy of his life.

HATER OF PRETENSE

"Courage, honesty, independence, industry, hatred of pretense, are the framework of his charcter. Obstacles and differences of opinion are literally nothing to him. I don't mean that he is a provocative man. I mean that he is so constituted that he puts out of sight and memory everything except the truth and the right as he sees them. He thinks in straight lines and single purposes.

"What he requires of himself, he demands of others. 'Do your work, do it yourself,' he used to say. Nobody dared bring him slipshod performance or tell him less than the full truth. He exacted in his personal relations with his staff the same personal honesty that he was always endeavoring to instill into their intellectual attitude toward a difficult problem. 'Tell the truth' was his word, 'and I'll back you against the whole country.'

"As I know him, I cannot conceive of his dealing in any other spirit with France, Germany and the whole reparations problem. He has done a great work and he is one from whom more can be expected. The measure of the man is greater than the measure of his work or even of his talent."

Study of Opera Will Begin This Week by Chorus

The study of "Romeo and Juliet," the third of a series of operas to be presented this fall by the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association, will be undertaken then week by the chorus. The words and music of two other operas, "Andrea Chanier" and "Manon," have already been mastered.

Rehearsals, in charge of Alexander Bevani, are conducted four times a week at the Y. M. C. A.

New committees are at work selling patrons' and founders' books to guarantee the giving of the season next fall. According to Merle Armitage, business manager, the halfway mark in the campaign should be reached before the end of the week. The amount to be subscribed is $35,000.

Such Metropolitan Opera stars as Benjamin Gigli, Claudia Muzio, Giuseppi de Luca, Tito Schipa, Sabanieva and others will appear in the cast of the operas in addition to the Philharmonic Orchestra and a large chorus of local singers.

REPORT ON FLOOD CONTROL DISCUSSED

The flood control report of J. W. Regan, chief engineer of the Los Angeles County Flood Control district, was made the subject of discussion at a special meeting of the Los Angeles section of the American Society of Civil Engineers. The report was both attacked and defended by members of the society. Much of the contention centered around the advisability of voting a bond issue of the magnitude required for flood control. The meeting, which was held in the assembly room at the Chamber of Commerce, was one of the most largely attended meetings of the year.

BOWL TO OPEN MUSIC WEEK

County Choral Festical at Hollywood, May 4, to be First Important Event on Program

While the celebration of Music Week will really begin by radio concerts and announcements on Saturday, May 3, with band concerts in the evening, the big opening event of the week will be the County Choral Festival and Community Sing program at the Hollywood Bowl Sunday afternoon, May 4, under the auspices of the Hollywood Community Chorus, the Hollywood Bowl Association and the Civic Music and Art Association.

In this program all the leading towns in the country will participate and individual contests and conferences are being conducted in all the neighborhood communities preparatory to the big event.

Among the definite features secured will be a concert by the Los Angeles Mexican Band, sponsored by the international section of the Civic Music and Art Association, Manuel Lucero, director; selections by the Hollywood Community Orchestra, Jay B. Plowe, director; the Girl's Whistling Chorus of forty under the direction of Miss Agnes Woodward and the Santa Paula Community Chorus in special numbers, directed by H. F. Humbert. This chorus won the first prize in a mixed choral contest at Oxnard in which choruses from various communities in Ventura county participated.

GLENDALE PROGRAM

The Glendale Choral Club under the direction of J. A. Meyers and sponsored by the Glendale Community Service will render special numbers accompanied by the Glen-Glendale Community Orchestra of fifty pieces.

Another striking feature will be a series of negro spirituals by a chorus of 100 negro children under direction of Elmer Bartlett.

Ben F. Pearson, president of the Civic Music and Art Association will give an address on "Music and Democracy."

At 3 p.m. led by Hugo Kirchhofer there will be a general program of community singing by the community choruses of Alhambra, Sierra Madre, Santa Monica, Beverly Hills, San Pedro, Long Beach, Hollywood, Vermont, Highland Park, Arroyo Seco and other communities. Mrs. J. J. Carter, president of the Hollywood Community Chorus is in charge of the festival and is making elaborate plans for the event, it is announced.

The members of the Community Choral Festival Committee are: Mrs. J. J. Carter, chairman; Hugo Kirchhofer, Gage Christopher, J. A. Lewis, A. Rae Condit, Mrs. Marion Tracy Whiting, Mrs. Alpha Wood Anderson, Mrs. Clarice Grandle Hurtt, Mrs. Lynda Sims, G. W. Van der Grift; R. S. Teele, Santa Monica; V. M. Hollister, Glendale; William Tyroler, L. D. Frey, Long Beach; Mr. Livengood, Alhambra; Charles LeRoy Munro, Mrs. A. F. Hopkins, Glendale; Mrs. Emma Bartlett, Inglewood; Mrs. C. J. Colden, San Pedro; Arthur Farwell, Pasadena; Mrs. Milton Steinberger, Sierra Madre; D. W. Lott; Clarence Krinbill, Long Beach; Squire Coop, Mrs. Arthur N. Lee, Anna Blanche Foster, Redlands; Mrs. Olga Sutherland; C. D. Weir and Ralphy Nye.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Participation in Music Week throughout the county will be far more active this year than was anticipated by the general committee. Programs embracing band concerts, recital, community sings and pageants and other public performances will be carried out by practically all the important towns in the county it is revealed by reports collected and given out yesterday at the headquarters in the Bullard Block.

Mrs. J. Milton Steinburger, president of the Sierra Madre Community Sing announces an elaborate program for Thursday, May 9, and a big open air song festival in the public park of Sierra Madre Sunday, May 11, all the churches and schools participating, with Mayor Mitchell honorary chairman.

At Inglewood a special event will be the local artists concert to be given at the high school auditorium, May 6, by native musicians. Mrs. Lyminnie Evans as chairman and Mrs. Evan Lewis, president of the Woman's Club, will preside at the Students Concert in the grammar school auditorium, May 7, and a community concert night will be held on May 8 opening with a community sing, supplemented by the Municipal Band under direction of Ellison Hornaday, while Mrs. Minnie Baum will be chairman.

STUDENTS IN FESTIVAL

On May 9 the students of the high school will present a Mother's Day program and May Day festival under direction of the physical education department, Mrs. Danke-Bessiri and Mrs. White instructors, and the high school orchestra participating. During the entertainment there will be a display of the work of the art, woodwork, electrical and all the mechanic departments of the schools. Mrs. Emma M. Bartlett is general chairman.

Beverly Hills has promised a big Music Week festival but participating of course in the County Choral Festival at the Hollywood Bowl, according to Charles LeRoy Munro the Chamber of Commerce Community Sing, Womans Club, Realty Board, a men's chorus, the Catholic Church and the Girls Junior Auxiliary are co-operating. It is said that Beverly Hills will give six full programs during the week. There will be orchestral and band concerts, individual organ recitals, a children's May-pole program and a big open air festival put on by the united church musicians on May 11. It is expected that special professional programs will be possible due to the fact that several famous artists are residing in Beverly Hills.

MUSIC FOR INVALIDS

Approximately eighty professional artists have pledged themselves to be in readiness to present any requested program before the individual invalids or shut-ins during Music Week, it is announced by Grace Adele Freebey, chairman, who invites all incapacitated people or bedridden folk to write to Music Week headquarters in the Bullard Block, 156 North Spring street, at once, stating what kind of program they would like to hear and as many musical or recitative numbers will be given as requested, within reason. She states that the character of these programs will be established strictly by the preference of the sick person and if they have no organ or piano in the place that one will be brought there for the occasion.

The general Music Week Committee comprising approximately 100 chairman will fire its last pre-campaign gun at a dinner 6:30 p.m. next Friday at the Elite Cafe, 633 South Flower street, it was announced yesterday by Gen. Chairman Pearson. All committee members will be invited and they will be permitted to bring as guests those interested in music development in Southern California. Owing to the large number of nationally famous artists on the committee a remarkable musical program has been promised, it is said.

Reservations may be made at the Bullard Block headquarters up to the 23rd inst. The official program for the week will go to press this week, it is announced all units being warned to get their program copy in early in the week to be included in the booklet.

poison of crass materialism, of the selfish and cruel pursuit of wealth, of the ignoble lassitude of luxury and the evils of plutocracy. But these evils must not blind us, as they do blind many well-intentioned, dreamy reformers, to the fact that personal liberty and the right of property are indispensable to any possible useful progress of society.

EDUCATION NEEDED

It goes without saying that if the government of the people would save itself it must secure to the individual person the education indispensable to his exercise of world and wise discretion as a constituent member of the government. Our public school system is one of the foundation rocks of our community and, in theory at least, has always been declared by us to be so. It is not possible to give every man and woman a university education or even a secondary education, but it is possible to give him a thorough primary or common school education upon which, in the university of his life experience, he can build, as many of our greatest men have builded before him.

We have always prided ourselves on our public schools; but we had a great shock to that pride when we examined the statistics of illiteracy revealed by the rigid examination of men enlisted or drafted into the army for the late war. We found a most distressing number of men who could not read or write among the native whites of our citizenship. It is notorious, too, that our teachers are not properly paid, and that, therefore, they are not properly prepared to teach. We have a heavy task before us but we must do it. Not only is there this large number of native whites, but the negroes and the foreign-born greatly increase the number needing especial attention. It is so great a work that the agency of the national government must be invoked to help in some practical and unobstructing way.

REAL AMERICANISM

With the native-born as well as with the foreign-born we must inculate Americanism in its true sense. The greatest of the country, the good it does its citizens, the freedom it secures them, the equality of opportunity evident in the success of the humblest born and the leadership of the self-made, must all be enforced as a basis of grateful love of the country. But more than all should be pressed into the mind and soul of each boy and each girl that he or she is the country, and that as he or she shall pursue an honest independent industrious moral life, he or she will be making for a greater America.

Not only is education necessary but even more essential is moral training— a sense of responsibility for what we do. Its cornerstone is unselfishness. It is the antidote for class hatred. It makes for the love of human kind. It prompts patriotism. It lifts one out of the sordid view of things. It broadens our horizon. It reveals true Americanism. And it reconciles individual freedom and responsibility with respect for Divine authority. That 's why the anarchist and the Bolshevist will have nothing, of religion. Look over the world's history and tell me the nations who deserved well of the human race for their progress, and you will find that religion was the moving cause of their effort, their sacrifice and their success. As long as the United States remains a religious nation, there is no danger of the corrosion of Bolshevism, Communism or any destructive and cruel cult.

I am an optimist. I believe profoundly in our constitutional system and its value to us, because I believe it is the expression, accurate and responsive, of our American people. As it has preserved our liberties and happiness in the past, so it may serve us in our greatest difficulties and achievements of the future!

STREET IMPROVEMENT PETITIONS GRANTED

ORNAMENTAL LIGHT POSTS ALSO ORDERED INSTALLED BY COUNCIL

Petitions have been granted by the City Council for the improvement of the following streets:

Damford Place, from Avenue Forty-nine to a point 300 feet westerly; I street, from Machado street to Anaheim street, at the Harbor district; Eighty-ninth street, from Main street to Moneta avenue; Ascot avenue, from Vernon avenue and Thirty-second street; Florence avenue, from Western avenue to Redondo Boulevard; Fourth street, from Flower street to Figueroa street; Hyde Park Boulevard, from Van Ness avenue to West Boulevard; Seventh avenue, from Slauson avenue to Florence avenue; Avenue Fifty-one, from Hub street to Irvington Place; Laurel Canyon Road, from Hollwood Boulevard to Sunset Boulevard.

The installation of ornamental lighting posts has been ordered for the following streets:

Eighth street, from Figueroa street to Vermont avenue; Figueroa street, from Eleventh street to West Adams street; Sixth street, from Loomis street to Vermont avenue.

GIRLS ROBBED BY BANDITS

Four bandits in a closed car overtook Olive Hamilton and Harriett Bennett of 1032 South Hill street while they were driving home from work yesterday morning and robbed Miss Hamilton of $120 in cash and a lavalliere valued at $300. The robbery occurred near the intersection of Tenth and Hill streets. Police are seeking the bandits.

BEACH CITIES IN INDUSTRY DRIVE

Santa Monica and Ocean Park Back Local Project

Sawtelle and Venice to Open Campaign Monday

Greater Los Angeles Plan Indorsements Warm

Santa Monica and Ocean Park chambers of commerce yesterday put themselves behind the Greater Los Angeles Association and its resolve to "Keep the White Spot White." Assurances received from Sawtelle and Venice make it certain that those cities will join tomorrow in launching a Bay District drive for membership.

Objects and purposes of the association will be explained at a dinner tomorrow night at Miramar Hotel, Santa Monica, to which 200 business and professional men have been invited. Principal speakers for the association will be Harry S. Merrick, president; John H. Blair, vice-president, and S. H. Woodruff, engineer and community builder. Carl Schroeder of Santa Monica is in charge of the program.

Four hundred solicitors were busy reporting at the main offices of the association yesterday that business men everywhere are giving them a reception even more cordial than the management of the membership drive had expected. The campaign really has not got under way yet, but already receipts from those who have paid up their initiation fees are running into the thousands. The sales force will be enlarged this week to 500 and their territory districted.

Indorsements have been voted thus far by the chambers of commerce of Long Beach, Fullerton, San Fernando, Burbank, Santa Monica, Ocean Park, Huntington Park and Glendale. At Glendale all other civic associations joined in the indorsement.

In Los Angeles, indorsement has been given by the Chamber of Commerce, Realty Board, Better Business Association of the Advertising Club and the Kiwanis Club. The Los Angeles Rotary Club heard an outline of the purposes of the association and of the Industrial Finance Corporation of Greater Los Angeles, presented by A. E. Farrington, and referred proposals to the proper committee for consideration of indorsing. Members of the Rotary Club pledged themselves individually to extend full co-operation.

BOYS WILL HOLD FORT FOR WEEK

Central Committee of High-School Students to Direct Program

Final arrangements for International Boys' Week, which will be celebrated from the 27th inst. to May 3, has been placed in the hands of a Boys' Representation Committee. These boys are selected from the high and junior high schools and the group from the Los Angeles schools will begin operations tomorrow.

Each boy will, with his principal's co-operation, call an assembly in his school, and from this gathering will select his subcommittee. These committees will appoint the boys who will preach in the local churches next Sunday, Boys' Day in Church. They also will elect boy speakers to visit the various men's clubs, which meet for luncheon, for instance. They will canvass the schools for musical talent to accompany these speakers at the luncheon clubs. They also will find speakers for Monday, Boys' Day in School, and for the playgrounds and radio.

In addition to this every school will have its own unit in the Loyalty Day parade on May 1. Every school that has a band has offered it for this parade, and in many cases the boys are assembling floats.

Dr. Devine to Lecture Here at University

Dr. Edward T. Devine will give a series of lectures on "Industry and Social Welfare" as a member of the summer session faculty of the University of Southern California, it was announced yesterday.

Dr Edward T. Devine.

Dr. Devine is nationally and internationally known. He was head of Red Cross relief after the San Francisco temblor and fire and the Dayton flood, and was prominent in Red Cross refugee work in France and Russia. He was general secretary of the Charity Organization Society from 1897 to 1917, and established The Survey, a magazine for social workers. He was professor of social economy at Columbia University, 1905 to 1919.

Dr. Devine will arrive here in June.

PLAN TRAFFIC SIRENS

Police Chief and City Electrician To Attach Them to Signals

Police sirens are to be attached to automatic traffic signals in the downtown district, according to the plans of Chief of Police Vollmer and City Electrician Manahan. The sirens will be used to warn traffic of approaching police and fire machines and also will be to summon policemen to answer emergency calls at police telephone boxes. The sirens can be installed at thirty-one street intersections for $1500 and City Electrician Manahan has asked the City Council to appropriate this amount.

VALUATION OF SEWAGE FARM HIGH

Oil Enhances Torrance Site; Claimants Seeking to Settle Title

The sewage of Torrance is disposed of on real estate worth $1,500,000, it developed in trial of a suit concluded yesterday to quiet title to the forty-three-acre tract in question at the outskirts of the town.

Oil gave it the value that makes it probably the most expensive sewage farm in the world, for its size.

In 1920 the Dominguez Land Corporation sold it for $20,000 to the California Chemical Company; which two years later sold it for $40,000 to F. C. Carlson. Then came the oil boom, and Carlson leased it to the Petroleum Midway Oil Company. Its present value of $1,500,000 was estimated during trial by counsel.

The land corporation brought suit to quiet title against the successive purchasers of the land. The city of Torrance intervened with a claim that it had obtained surface rights for sewage disposal purposes. The land company contended it had sold the real estate with the understanding that a chemical plant was to be erected and that instead of putting up a plant the chemical company sold the land. Judge Elvarado, who heard the evidence, withheld decision.

STARS PLAN PEPPY ACTS FOR BENEFIT

Billtoppers Revue for Children's Hospital Aid Thursday Evening

There is no dearth of good things on the program for the Billtoppers Revue which is to be given next Thursday evening at the Philharmonic Auditorium.

This vaudeville entertainment is planned to benefit the Children's Hospital, where many sick and crippled children find shelter, care and nursing and are given a chance for health and strength.

Each year an appeal is made to the public for funds through the giving of some entertainment by a group of prominent women actively interested in the management of the institution. Mrs. Russell McD. Taylor is chairman of the general committee, which includes Mrs. Albert Crutcher, president of the Hospital Society; Mrs. Rob Wagner, Mrs. Cecil de Mille, Mrs. William May Garland, Mrs. Thomas E. Newlin, Mrs. Gardner Bullis and Mrs. Tompson Buchanan.

Donald Crisp, screen director, is supervising the program for the revue and has an array of talent that promises great entertainment. The program will include everything from a one-act play to a song and dance feature.

Among the stars who will be on the program are Will Rogers, Frances Ross and Felix Adler and the Carlo Concert Children.

The entire proceeds from this benefit will go to the support of the Children's Hospital.

Oil Man Is Held Here; Indicted in Montana Case

Charles F. Bloomhuff, indicted by a Federal grand jury at Great Falls, Mont., on a charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the promotion of an oil concern, was arrested here yesterday by Federal officers. He waived hearing before United States Commissioner Long and gave $2500 bond.

The defendant is said to have been prominently identified with operators in the Montana and Wyoming oil fields. According to information from Federal officials at Great Falls, he assisted in promoting an oil company that is asserted to have been formed as a means of defrauding purchasers of stock. Misrepresentations were made in letters and circulars concerning the assets of the company, it is alleged.

FEES DUE ON MONDAY

Additional Time Given to Pay City License Obligations

The quarterly payment-time for city licenses expires at 5 p.m. tomorrow, and it is announced by City Clerk Dominguez that the quarterly collections for the period now ending will amount to $132,000, as compared with $271,710.08 for the January quarter. Quarterly licenses would expire at 5 p.m. today, but as this payment-time came on Sunday, an additional twenty-four hous is given. On payments made after 5 p.m. tomorrow a ten per cent penalty will be added. Monthly licenses became delinquent on the 10th inst.

DAUGHTER CONTESTS FATHER'S TESTAMENT

Mrs. M. Mabel Duncan has filed a contest of the will of her father, Edward J. Farmer of Alhambra, which disposes of an estate appraised at $36,083. The document directs that the widow, Florence Batrick Farmer, be given $10,000 in satisfaction of a pre-nuptial contract, that six lots in Alhambra be turned over to H. Burt Farmer, a son; and that residue be divided among his three chilchildren, H. Burt Farmer, Mrs. Duncan and Mrs. Annie Farmer Clark. Mrs. Duncan asserted that her father was unduly influenced by the son in drawing the will.

SPEEDER APPEALS

J. R. Turner was sentenced to pay a fine of $150 and serve thirty days in the City Jail by Police Judge Chambers yesterday for reckless driving. He appealed from the decision and his bail was fixed at $300. Turner was convicted of driving recklessly on Sunset Boulevard. His car crashed into a machine driven by Albert Chapel of 433 South Flower street, injuring Chapel and the three passengers in the car slightly.

NOTHING DOING

The Hollanders do not care to have any doings with the soviet government in Russia. When it comes to a showdown the Dutch can furnish their own caviare.

BROADCASTING EDUCATION

The British government is now broadcasting a regular course of popular instructions, under the auspices of the Postmaster-General. No other government has as yet tried the experiment.

THE DRAMATICS

The New York convention will probably outstay the Cleveland affair—in fact, it looks at this distance as if the Tammany tangle might endure a month. As a Madison Square Garden event it will command the sporting page for a week at least.

VOICE OF MICHIGAN

The Michigan Democrats on their primary ballots gave their Presidential indorsement to Henry Ford. Henry himself indorses Calvin Coolidge and is doing what he can to bring about the election of the incumbent. To be consistent the Michigan Democrats will vote for Coolidge in the fall election, and it is perfectly safe to assume that thousands of them will do so. This should help to make it all the more unanimous.

WELCOMES THE KIDS

One of the big apartment-houses in Chicago not only finds room for children, but pays them a bonus. Families with little ones are not only specifically welcomed, but the landlord has posted a signed statement in which he offers a purse of $25 and a nobby little cradle for every infant born on his property. It may not add anything to the value of his holdings, but it indicates an amiable and considerate nature rarely found in worldly dealings. The average landlord of today has no glad hand for the little ones and behaves as if he thought parents should drown them before they have their eyes opened.

DEFYING VOX POPULI

Out of 1000 persons asked by a newspaper to give their opinions upon methods of tax reduction 852 gave their unqualified approval of the Mellon plan and voiced their reasons therefor. It was practical; it was sensible, and it promised the desired results. When, out of various means of attaining an end, 85 per cent of the taxpayers approve a certain specified program it would seem that a Congress elected by the people would find a way to respond to that declaration of unanimity. But there are representatives who place party or personal politics first and who deliberately flout the wish of the majority through persistence in partisan quibbling.

NEWSPAPERS AND SCHOOLS

The Journal of the National Education Association calls school-teachers to account for their supercilious attitude toward newspapers. It says: "While the newspaper man is commencing to get the schools into the range of his vision there has been no corresponding development of the school man's interest in the press." Newspapers could doubtlessly be used to great advantage in educational work, yet the average teacher shows suspicion the moment a reporter appears. The educational influence of the newspaper is quite as effective as the schools, and newspapers never take vacations. The schools are full of news, which would be interesting to parents—but try to get the news and you'll find why practically no space is devoted to the daily doings in "our own" public schools.

ON THE RAILWAY

According to the compilations of the Railway Age wages of railroad workers not only increased 126 per cent since 1916, but the hours were materially shortened. If 300 days are to be measured as a working year the average employee in 1916 labored 10.4 hours per day as against 8.6 hours in 1923. The earnings increased from an average of 27 cents an hour in 1916 to 61 cents in 1923. The average earnings of the rail workers in 1916 were $868 and they put in a total average of 3148 hours for the year. In 1923 the earnings were $1588 and the hours were 2584. These figures do not include the salaries and hours of the officers, who have not fared as well as the men. The railway employees of this country live well when measured against like workers in other lands.

LOADING UP

Take the whole country over the residents of America are paying a per capita tax of $6 a year merely for interest on their municipal debts. The actual payment of this falls upon perhaps 20 or 30 per cent of the total population and, therefore, has the making of quite a burden. Yet the rulers of the cities go blithely on in heaping the load. Upon the scantiest pretense fresh loans are floated and the taxation for interest purposes is ever mounting. One would almost think that the people were themselves growing to love it. The fact that most bond issues are exempt from State and Federal taxation makes their issuance rather easy and the foolish belief that the bulk of the burden is being passed on to the next generation completes the chain.

HAIL THE CONQUEROR

Christendom rejoices today in the hope and faith and the deep conviction of eternal life brought to the human race by the Man of Galilee.

Regardless of his religious beliefs, no thoughtful—much less devotional—person can consider the account of the birth, life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ without exaltation of consciousness and without a happy, wholesome reaction upon his thought and conduct.

Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Shakespeare, Dante, Homer, Newton, Franklin, Galileo, Napoleon, Alexander, the Caesars and all other characters who, down the centuries, have towered so high above their fellow-beings, were but pygmies by the side of this Man who was born in a manger, persecuted by hypocrisy, crucified between thieves and yet who taught the most sublime doctrines that ever fell from the lips of man.

Christ offered release from the influence of the objective world and then, in His life, teachings and resurrection, accomplished the redemption of man and of all God's creation. Buddha made men think, Rabelais made humanity laugh, Christ makes men weep. And it is in the tears of contrition that the heart finds peace.

No account of the mythological meaning of the cross, no amount of mystic lore that would place Christianity on the same plane with other philosophical and ethical systems can explain away the divine mystery of atonement nor shake the faith of him who, in spirit, has accompanied the Master to Calvary and who today shares with Him the glory of "The light that never was, on sea or land;

The consecration, and the Poet's dream."

THOSE ABANDONED FARMS

There are few sadder spectacles in nature than an abandoned farm. Weeds growing in neglected furrows; windows broken in the ranch house and gaping holes in the roof of the barn; dead limbs where buds once burst and fruit ripened—all these bear mute evidence of a human tragedy. It is the abandoned trench marking the site where a battle was fought and lost.

When the land fails all fails. When the farmer goes hungry and gives up in despair there will not be long food in the cities. When a manufacturing establishment goes to the wall others fill the gap. But when the tiller abandons the soil, when once-fertile acres are relinquished to weeds a real menace looms.

In the United States this spring there are tens of thousands of these abandoned farms. The number is greater than at any other time since 1914; and the records of the Department of Agriculture show that it is steadily increasing. All is not well with the farmer. In many parts of the Middle West last year farming did not pay. The cost of land has doubled in ten years; taxes for the same acreage are four times what they were ten years ago; the cost of farm implements has about doubled; wages for farm labor have risen from 50 to 100 per cent; and the price of cattle, hogs and grain is approaching that of 1914.

Population has drifted to the cities. The proportionate number of farmers to the whole population is only one-third that of 100 years ago; and yet an increasing number of those who remain on the farms are not able to make farming pay.

Something is wrong with the system. But what? There is the rub. How can the dwellers of the cities aid the farmers without giving up some of the luxuries which habit has accustomed them to regard as necessities? We are all willing to extend to the farmer sympathy and advice, but not to divide with him a portion of our income or of what we now possess. Expressions of good will neither lift mortgages nor pay taxes.

Everything the farmer buys is at an artificial price level, due to combinations of labor or combinations of capital; while everything he sells is priced according to supply and demand. He has to pay the artificial wages created by conditions which would rob him of his help if he did not meet the competition. Having no real organization of his own he is at the mercy of those who do have.

Due to a general increase in industrial wages, it costs about double what it did twenty years ago to carry farm products to the great centers of world population and market them. The products, meeting world competition, will sell for no more, so the cost of that transportation and marketing must be subtracted from the price which the farmer received when the cost of marketing was less.

Plainly this industrial handicap cannot continue. The farmer forms the base of our economic structure; and if the foundation weakens and collapses the whole structure must topple. There cannot long be prosperous cities in a country dotted over with abandoned farms.

The peasant, the man of the hoe of Millet, has disappeared. We are glad that he has gone. But with him is disappearing the food that the acres cultivated by his sweat produced.

We must examine seriously the proposition that the higher the standard of living rises in the cities the lower it must descend by comparison on the farms; and also consider that we cannot chain the agricultural worker to the acres, cannot compel him to produce, to labor under conditions that offer less remuneration than the same about of labor in industry.

Abandoned farms must lead inevitably to empty stomachs. Yet everybody organizes but the farmer. Every other group offers ultimatums and makes combinations to increase profits. And every one of these organizations hits the farmer's pocketbook. By increasing his burdens we are surely killing the goose that lays our golden eggs.

DRASTIC MEASURES NEEDED

Last year there were more than 500 cases involving persons who started fires in the mountains, either intentionally or through carelessness.

It is very important that right now, before the beginning of the dry season, which is the season of special danger, that teeth should be put into the law against fire-setting; that every possible preparation be made for the adequate and energetic prosecution of all such violations of the law.

The danger to Southern California from forest fires cannot be exaggerated.

Every such fire registers its tragic result on the water sources of this section. Rain water which should be conserved by the vegetation runs off in disastrous floods, leaving a water shortage to follow.

Campers and hikers must be made to understand that the illegal starting of a fire is not an amusing adventure with the law; but an act that meets with prompt retribution and punishment. This can only be assured by providing adequate machinery of prosecution.

COMBATTING CATTLE PLAGUE

Experience in other States has shown the wisdom and the urgent necessity for vigorous measures in combatting the foot-and-mouth disease which now exists in some California counties, but all quarantine and embargo regulations should be tempered by reason and sound judgment so that the economic loss be kept within the limits of necessity.

President Coolidge, in a message to the Governor of Arizona, suggests a conference of authorities of the States interested and the modification of quarantine regulations to meet the requirement necessary to furnish full protection. The President calls attention to the fact that the Federal authorities have had experience with three previous outbreaks and that its control measures are based on experience.

The President declares that he believes that some quarantine measures now imposed by States touching California are more severe than necessary to fully safeguard them and that, if continued, they will work a great and unnecessary hardship on growers and shippers of fruits, vegetables and other commodities which do not carry the disease.

The danger to border States, if the disease should get across the border, is serious and there can be no doubt of the wisdom of adequate preventive measures, as pointed out by the Governor of Arizona in his reply to the President. However, to go beyond the limits of reason in imposing an embargo would not really increase the protection to other States and would entail heavy losses.

The situation, though serious, cannot be satisfactorily met with hysterical or exaggerated precautions. The condition calls for sound judgment on the part of the authorities and strict and cheerful compliance with regulations by individuals. Since no disease carrying shipments are permitted to pass from infected territory, it were well to heed the President's suggestion that other States should not interfere with necessary movements of farm commodities from territory not infected.

SAFETY INSURANCE

The Los Angeles police force must be reorganized on a permanent basis, with properly located additional divisional stations, if Chief Vollmer's ambition to make this the "safest city in America" is realized. This was emphasized yesterday by police officials in stressing the need for support of the $1,600,000 police bond issue to be presented to the voters May 6.

For years what additions in personnel and equipment have been made to the police force have been allowed in a hit-or-miss piecemeal fashion, without any scientific program for efficiency and permanence. Since Chief Vollmer came to Los Angeles he has made a careful study of local problems considered in the light of his wide and varied experience, and if the bonds are voted the money obtained will be so expended as to give to every section of the city and every individual citizen a greater measure of security than ever before enjoyed.

It is Chief Vollmer's plan to redistrict the police area, so locating the new stations that no one division will serve more than 100,000 persons. The ideal division is one with fewer than this number and a territory not exceeding ten square miles.

As the city is now divided the divisions are too large to permit of fixing responsibility upon any police officer or of the police having sufficiently intimate contact with the law-abiding citizens or definite knowledge of the crooks. University division, for example, has a population of 250,000 and an area of approximately forty-five square miles.

Decentralization, which means efficiency to the police and safety to the citizen, will be impossible, in the opinion of Chief Vollmer, unless the bonds are carried.

HAUGHTY, BUT WHAT OF IT?

It should be recognized as a social pronouncement that one may be exclusive without starting a quarrel or even provoking harsh criticism. It takes two to make a fight.

THE GHOSTS OF CALVARY

On Easter morn the shining sun
  Bestirs me from my quilted rest
To hear the hum of day begun
  In happiness, the Christ's bequest.
The lily, in its potted stand,
  Is symbol of the One, reborn.
True Godliness, throughout the land,
  Comes to my heart on Easter morn.

On Easter morn the dawning light
  Seeps through the windows of my soul,
To banish doubt from out my sight;
  I feel as if to see that knoll,
Its silhouette against the sky—
  Where shades of those who came to scorn,
'Tween thieves to watch the Master die,
  Return to pray on Easter morn.

THE ADS

I always read the ads of lids and liver pads, of snaps in real estate and bargains truly great in lollipops and lyres and tools and rubber tires. There are some futile lads who do not read the ads; they scan the sporting news, the editor, his views; the news from round the globe, the latest startling probe, the dope from many grads—but do not read the ads. They clamor when we meet, "Where in the name of Pete did you secure your hat? We've wanted lids like that, but knew not where to find that grand and princely kind." "I bought it at a sale, for very little kale; the man was selling out because he had the gout; and so he advertised some prices that surprised, and in his busy store I bought for dollars four a kelly truly great that used to sell at eight. I always read the ads; they save me many scads. I do not care so much for news about the Dutch, for cablegrams from Cork or stories from New York, the daily grist of news about illicit booze or murders dark and dire or tenements on fire; all people have their fads, and mine is reading ads. If one would save the dimes in these stemwinding times, would husband the doubloons, the groats and picayunes, the dollars of our dads, he has to read the ads." WALT MASON.

THE SAGE OF CALABASAS

Fanatic is one of the most overworked words in English. It has been hurled at prohibitionists, antiprohibitionists, blue-law advocates, antiblue-law advocates, suffragists, antisuffragists and almost everybody else. And yet it hasn't been satisfactorily defined, nor is there an accurate test to tell when it has rightly been applied.

The dictionary suggests "governed or produced by too great zeal, excessively enthusiastic," but fails to enlighten as to how much zeal is too much and how much enthusiasm is excessive.

This may do as a starter: A fanatic is a man who believes so thoroughly in anything that he considers no one can differ honestly with him about it.

It is at once a definition and a test and it suggests also that tolerance and not charity is the greatest of the virtues.

Chief Vollmer says he needs new police stations, and as the Chief has produced the goods so far people are inclined to take his word for the rest of it.

By this time the political Power Bureau must be in doubt itself as to whether it needs any money and if so how much. It has told so many different stories about it.

THIS IS THE DAY

"Bacon's rebellion" started in the year 1676. Nathaniel Bacon was chosen by the colonists to defend their homes against the depredations of the Indians. Gov. Berkeley refused to acknowledge his leadership, calling it a presumption. The volunteers under Bacon defied the Governor, who immediately proclaimed Bacon a traitor. This was the first militant opposition to English authority in America.

The Legislature of Massachusetts created a State Board of Education in the year 1837. Horace Mann was the originator of the bill.

The Lancer

MY SOUL has had a bath.

I had begun to think there was no one left in the world except real estate men bragging about options; and illiterate immigrants squabbling over their motion-picture productions.

In that state of mind I went to the banquet given for Dr. Millikan on the occasion of his departure for Europe to receive the Nobel prize.

It was like a breath of fresh, clean air let into a fetid room.

I dare say it was the most distinguished gathering of gentlemen ever assembled in Los Angeles—modest, quiet men known throughout the world for their achievements in science—men of great wealth who think of their wealth not as dollars, but as responsibilities that they hold for the world.

A Great Drama

DR. MILLIKAN is simple, rather boyish—an extremely matter-of-fact gentleman. He looks a little like Conrad Nagel, the actor.

And he is an actor. He is the star actor in the most terrific drama in the history of the world.

How cheap our little newspaper sensations seem in contrast—strumpets with murderous hammers . . . corpses stuffed into trunks . . . policeman shot in duels with thugs . . .

It would be a poor dead soul which would not tingle with the thrill of hearing from this young man's lips the story of the lifting of the curtain from secrets that have been locked in the heart of our old Mother Nature since the days when we were all tadpoles swimming around in the swirling primeval waters, waiting for the land to appear.

Great Discoveries Coming

DR. MILLIKAN said that California will witness, within the next few years, three great world discoveries which will influence all human life; the harnessing of the electrical power of the sun's rays, the transmission of electrical power and the perfection of the internal combustion engine.

I will not attempt to explain it; but he sent a thrill through the big banquet hall when he said that, only two days before, an experiment in the Norman Bridge Laboratory in Pasadena had disclosed a new scientific explanation of the nature of light which might revolutionize our whole theory of the universe.

Earl Rogers's Prediction

IT BROUGHT back to me a talk I had years ago with Earl Rogers. Earl's enlightened, prophetic, penetrating mind leaped centuries ahead of the automobile engine, which was just then coming into general use.

I remember that he picked up a lead pencil and said: "There are explosives so powerful that enough juice to fill that lead pencil will blow up an office building. Some day a great scientist will discover means of harnessing that power to run machinery."

If Earl's poor, tortured soul, somewhere out there in the fathomless night, heard Dr. Millikan's talk at the University Club he will realize how great was his vision.

All Dressed Up

THE predicament of the Scotch coal miner who is amazed to find himself about to move into Holyrood Castle as the chief high something or other of the Scottish church recalls a similar incident I once saw in California.

It was at the time of the first visit here of Theodore Roosevelt, then serving his first term as President.

On the Reception Committee was a representative of the San Francisco labor unions. He was a red-faced little bricklayer with a fat neck. In order to show his familiarity with the ways and customs of high society he got all dressed up.

In broad light of high noon he came sauntering out in a languid and elegant manner with a stovepipe hat and an open-faced dress suit into the gorgeous white vest of which he had thrust a silk handkerchief of alarming color and design.

He looked like a misfit Queen of Sheba.

One of the committee grabbed him and hissed something in a hoarse whisper into his ear. The bricklayer gave one startled look around the assembled throng; saw the way everyone else was dressed and simply ran for his life, his little fat feet slapping the pavement in his frenzy as he ran.

Teddy, the Show Man

LIKE all great mob-herders, there was something of the charlatan in "Teddy." His intentions were always good, but his methods were those of the show man.

When he was out here that time he had a great gag that never failed to work.

Each time that he came out on the platform of the little town meetings he looked down upon the throng of voters held back from too close contact with him by a rope.

He would always say: "Who put up that rope? Take it down." And the crowd always cheered as it loyally surged in close to him until it almost stood on his feet.

But in the next town there was always another rope and another demand, "Who put up that rope?"

Hinton Arms Sold to Chain Store Owner

J. C. Penny, operator of one of the largest chain store systems in the United States, has puhchased income property approaching $400,000 in value, according to the Frank Meline Company. The Hinton Arms Apartments, a two-story brick apartment building at the northwest corner of Sixth and Hobart streets, with 150 feet frontage on Sixth street, was bought by Mr. Penny. A four-story brick building in Salt Lake City was included in the transaction as part payment.

George J. Lawson, manager of the exchange department of the Frank Meline Company, represented both parties in the deal, the previous owner being F. M. Simpson. The consideration for this apartment was $250,000.

The other property acquired by Mr. Penny was the northeast corner of West Jefferson street and St. Andrews Place. Improvements on this property consist of ten stores under lease, four apartments, a double bungalow and a large brick garage. The consideration for this deal was $140,000.

Mr. Lawson of the Meline Company's exchange department, also handled the negotiations in this transaction. The Penny chain of stores is widely known. Over 500 Penny stores are located in the United States alone, the organization doing a general merchandising business of medium-priced merchandise.

Tenth Street Corner Bought as Investment

Continued activity in business and investment property is indicated by an announcement made this week by the Frank Meline Company through O. S. Strain, general manager of the brokerage department. Both business and residential property sales were included in the report, as well as several important leases.

The southwest corner of Tenth and Arapahoe streets was purchased by Mrs. Elizabeth Kneal Bond from the owner, A. Priceman. Roland Belgiano and F. F Jackson of the Wilshire Boulevard office of the Frank Meline Company handled the transactions for both parties. Mrs. Bond bought the property for investment purposes.

A valuable site on Witmer street near Crown Hill avenue was purchased by Mary J. Phillips from the owner, G. S. Holmes. R. G. Howell of the Frank Meline Company handled the deal for both parties.

The northeast corner of Fourth and Alexandria streets was purchased by Violet Reid Urson from Harry Belden. O. S. Strain represented both parties in this transaction.

An important lease reported was the lease of the property at 411 South Hill street to the Factory Shoe Company. Mr. H. R. Bergh of the business property department handled the negotiations for both lessor and lessee.

Organizer in Eastern Star Passes Away

Mrs. Orilla Webster Williams dried Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William R. Myers, 311 North Avenue Sixty-six. She was 88 years of age and a native of Detroit. She was a daughter of Price Blinn Webster, a descendent of John Webster, fifth Governor of Connecticut.

For many years Mrs. Williams was active in the Order of Eastern Star, having helped to organize the grand chapter of Iowa in 1878. She became the first Grand Matron in that State. She served both as Grand Chaplain and Deputy Grand Matron. In 1909 she became a member of Garvanza Chapter No. 23. She was also a member of Tierra Alta Chapter, D.A.R., and a past member of Royal Court Order of Amaranth.

She leaves two sons, Dr. Henry Smith Williams of New York and Dr. Edward Huntington Williams of Los Angeles, a daughter, Mrs. Myers, and three grandchildren, Mrs. W. D. Jones and Mrs. R. W Rohrer of Los Angeles and Mrs William Hartigan of New York.

STORE IS ELABORATE

Skelton & Wise Will Observe Opening Tomorrow

Striking innovations in both arrangement and decoration mark the new electrical fixture and appliance store at 308-310 South Spring street, to be opened to the public tomorrow by Skelton & Wise, who began their business in a small way at the present location four years ago and who are now expanding to the use of more than 20,000 square feet of floor space for sales " display purposes.

The display in addition to other elaborate corations, contains an electrically illuminated fountain which gives color effects to the spray. A number of small rooms and alcoves are available for display of individual fixtures and sets.

The opening day will be a public reception and no goods will be sold during that period.

LAY PLAN TO TRANSPLANT ORIENT HERE

Sponsors Say Studio Dance Will be Redolent of East in Song and Story

Picking out a drab corner of Los Angeles, and transplating to that spot an oriental atmosphere, is the aim of the carnival and dance to be held on "The Thief of Bagdad" set at the Pickford-Fairbanks studio May 24, for the benefit of the Overseas League.

The entire set on Santa Monica Boulevard, one of the largest in the industry of turning out moving-picture films, is to be used for the spectacle.

Not a thing is to be left undone that will add to the illusion. Bazaars and kiosks will be in the hands of appropriately garbed tenders who will dispense oriental works of art, refreshments, cigarettes and knick-knacks of the type that the traveler buys in the streets of Bagdad, Teheran, Basra or anywhere east of Suez. Costumed attendants will be on the job. Ushers clothed as the natives of Persia will attend to the wants of guests. The music will be of the nature to bring up the land of roaming Bedouin and Arab mendicant.

Tickets for the carnival are going rapidly. A corps of fair sellers is disposing of the pasteboards all day long. Their efforts are to be rewarded in ample manner. No less than a trip to London and return will be given the woman selling the most tickets to the event. The trip is being donated to the cause the league is championing by the authorities in charge of the excursion to the British Exposition.

Mayor Vetoes Ordinance for Zoning of Cows

Mayor Cryer yesterday, in a veto message forwarded the City Council, declared that one cow to an acre was sufficient for many sections of San Fernando Valley.

The Mayor pointed out that an ordinance had been enacted by the City Council only six months ago establishing a "cow district" for a part of the San Fernando Valley in which, under the ordinance, the keeping of the cows was restricted to one cow an acre of land, thus preventing the establishment of dairies in the cow district. The Associated Chambers of Commerce supported the ordinance, but recently the Council repealed it, and it was this repealing ordinance that the Mayor vetoed.

The Mayor declared that the city should not change front in zoning matters of this kind, unless there was an urgent reason for doing it, and in this case he could see no reason for the repeal. The repeal of the cow district ordinance had been opposed by many residents of the valley.

MAIDEN CRUISE IN MAY

"Yukon" Almost Ready for First Alaskan Trip

J. L. Criswell, district passenger agent of the Alaska Steamship Company, announced Saturday that the company's new 7300-ton passenger boat "Yukon" will make its maiden trip on May 17, sailing from Seattle to Seward and connecting with the government railway for interior points.

The "Yukon" will be the largest vessel in the Alaskan service. Her sister ships, operated last season, are the "Alaska" and the "Northwestern." Unprecedented increase in demand for Alaskan accommodations made the new boat necessary, Mr. Criswell said. The present early demand for reservations for June and July, he said, indicate that all space might be reserved as late as May 1. The Alaska company also operates the steamers "Alameda" and "Jefferson" to Skagway, connecting with the Yukon Railway and interior points.

Sales by Cigar Stores Disclose Our Prosperity

Of all the "white spots" in the cigar store business in the country, Los Angeles is the whitest and widest, according to Edwin Raf Snyder, Southern California and Arizona superintendent of the United Cigar Stores Company of America.

"Cigar stores are good barometers of business conditions, and prosperity in general. Judging by the business activities in the United Stores in my territory, prospects for Los Angeles and the near-by cities are brighter than ever," Mr. Snyder declares.

The marvelous growth of Los Angeles, Mr. Snyder pointed out, is exemplified in the development of the United Cigar Stores business here. From two stores in 1906 the system has grown to twenty-eight stores, and forty-two agencies, twenty-two of them in the Owl and Sun drug stores.

Plans for the establishment of several additional stores here are being made, Mr. Snyder said.

EXPERTS IN FOOD LINES ARE COMING

Nationally Known Men and Women on Program for Annual Show

An elaborate program in which some of the most noted men and women food experts in the country will take part is now being arranged for the first annual pure food and household show which will be given at Exposition Park, June 14-22.

Invitations have been extended to Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce; E. W. Long of Chicago, known to baking interests all over the nation; James Anderson of Morgan, Utah, president of the American Canners' Association; Frank Meyer of New York, representing the Fleishmann Yeast Company, and many others.

Many of the firms who have taken space at the show will have a corps of expert demonstrators who will come from the East. Demonstrations of bread-making, pastry-making, how coffee is roasted, how canned goods are packed, how food cartons are made will be among the interesting features of the show. Almost every variety of foodstuff imaginable is to be exhibited. Some exhibitors are arranging exhibits showing just how their various products are prepared for the public.

Each day there will be a different program with different subjects presented by experts in their respective lines.

All delegates to the convention will be entertained by the grocers of Southern California. These grocers have been pledged to distribute 200,000 or more tickets so the attendance is assured.

During the national convention the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association will provide entertainment for the guests in addition to the food-show activities.

That many of the eastern delegates who will be here for the convention will take part in the food show is evidenced in a wire from Frank Meyer of New York, representing Fleishmann Yeast, who reserved four spaces at the show. Mr. Meyer advised that he would make his headquarters at the show during his stay here. He is chairman of the transportation committee of the national convention.

COUNCIL COMMENDED

A resolution strongly commending the City Council for its action in rejecting the park site at Olive Hill, Hollywood, offered to the city by Aline Barnsdall, has been adopted by the Hollywood Post of the American Legion. It is pointed out in the resolution that the members of the post consider the conditions and restrictions of the offer to be unpatriotic and un-American. One of the conditions of the proposed gift was that no monument to war heroes or to war should be placed in the park and that no war demonstrations should be conducted in it.

Thank God that the transient cares

ULTERIOR AIM IN BOND PLAN SEEN

Power Bureau Issue is Not Needed, Says Expert

Luckenbach Holds Profits Cited Are Ample

Estimates Declared Twice as High as Necessary

A bond issue by the city is not necessary for the purposes specified by the political Power Bureau in its statement asking for $21,000,000 and the money must be wanted for some other purpose, Charles A. Luckenbach, vice-president of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation declared in a recent speech to 500 workmen near Eagle Rock.

Analyzing the Power Bureau's statement, Mr. Luckenbach showed that $11,175,000 was more than ample to carry out the work proposed by the Power Bureau, and this amount could be supplied from earnings, assuming the accuracy of the Price-Waterhouse audit which showed a book profit of $2,700,000. In three years, with the net profits increasing in proportion to increased business, the earnings should amount to $13,500,000 or $2,325,000 in excess of the amount needed.

ANALYZES PROJECT

The Power Bureau estimates $3,000,000 for fifteen local distributing substations, Mr. Luckenbach said. Modern substations can be built, he said, at $15 or less per kilowatt capacity, and assuming the Power Bureau's business triples in three years, the necessary substations can be built for $1,500,000, half the amount asked for.

Similarly, said Mr. Luckenbach, the $3,500,000 asked for high tension lines and rights of way is sufficient to erect 322 1-2 miles of transmission line, enough to go more than twice around the entire incorporated limits of Los Angeles.

"The chances are," he said, "that 100 miles at $10,000 a mile, or $1,000,000 would be a large amount for transmission lines for this purpose." The Turlock Irrigation District, he pointed out, built a steel pole line for 66,000 volt transmission at less than $5000 a mile. He asked where it would be necessary to purchase right-of-way since the city had plenty of streets and avenues that could be used.

THRICE TOO HIGH

The third request, for $3,675,000, for general betterments to distributing system, Mr. Luckenbach proved could be scaled down to one-half, or $1,833,000. Even this amount, he declared, would be excessive for the purpose named.

The system desired to be rehabilitated, he said, was principally that of the Edison company, taken over at a cost of $11,000,000. Taking into consideration the various depreciation reserve mentioned in the Price-Waterhouse report, said the speaker, the amount asked for "means that in excess of 54 per cent of the physical value of the properties is desired for rehabilitating the system within five years of its purchase."

Mr. Luckenbach then turned his attention to the fourth request, for $9,975,000 for extensions to take care of new business and purchase of Edison lines in recently annexed territory. These lines, Mr. Luckenbach said, are worth $600,000 or at most $750,000, which leaves $9,225,000 for extensions to take care of new business.

ULTERIOR PURPOSE

Increase of consumers last year on city lines was 11 per cent greater than on the lines of his company, said the speaker. Assuming that it will be 50 per cent greater, the city should expect to spend for this purpose $1,650,000 or in three years $4,950,000 instead of $9,225,000, a difference of $4,275,000.

"The question of municipal ownership is not involved in the election of May 6, nor is the question of the Boulder Canyon dam involved. The money is asked, not for the building of generating stations or dams but for the specific purpose of bettering and extending the distributing system," said Mr. Luckenbach. "The only questions are, is $21,000,000 necessary for the purposes stated, if not, how much is necessary; how much can be supplied from the earnings, and how much additional is necessary?

"From these figures I conclude that these bonds are not necessary for the purposes stated, but are desired for some other purpose which the representatives of the Power Bureau are unwilling to disclose."

PAY BONUS FOR LEASE ON WESTERN

Property Owned by Mayor Cryer is Transferred by Lessees to Local Company

The sale of the ninety-nine year lease on property owned by Mayor Cryer at the southeast corner of Beverly Boulevard and Western avenue at a bonus of $85,000 was announced yesterday by William E. Welborn, realty broker, who represented the seller, the Dalton Investment Company, in the transaction.

The Dalton Investment Company acquired the ground lease from Mayor Cryer about nine months ago at a rental of $1000 per month for the first ten years, and $1250 per month for the remainder of the term. According to the terms of the lease, the corner, which has a frontage on Western avenue of 253 feet, with a depth of 143 feet on Beverly Boulevard, must be improved with a building to cost not less than $75,000 before 1933.

The lease was purchased by the Western Beverly Company, which was represented by K. C. Wells in the transaction.

RESOLUTION PLEDGES AID TO COOLIDGE

Young Citizens' League Lays Campaign Plans to Support Candidacy

Members of the Young Citizens' Republican League met yesterday at the office of Assemblyman Fred Roberts and perfected plans for the campaign which they will conduct in the behalf of President Coolidge.

Officers to direct the organization's activity were elected and a resolution indorsing the policies and administration of President Coolidge was unanimously adopted.

Lorenz B. Graham was elected president; Miss Emma Banks, Miss Grace Broyles, Dr. Herbert Fairs, Andrew J. Allen, Frank Rivers, Herman A. Davis and Campbell Banks, vice-presidents; Lloyd Griffith, recording secretary; Lorenzo Clark, financial secretary; Miss Ruby Slaughter and Errol Jones, assistant secretaries; Mrs. C. Spears-Bass, treasurer; D. A. Graham, Jr., campaign director.

The following resolution was adopted by the organization:

Wheras, the United States of America was bereft of her President on August 2, 1923, and a great responsibility fell upon the shoulders of the then Vice-President, Calvin Coolidge, and

Wheras: this same Calvin Coolidge assumed the duties and responsibilities of President at the earliest possible moment and has since that time faithfully executed the duties and borne the responsibilities of that high office, and

Whereas, this same Calvin Coolidge, President at this time has shown himself to be capable, fair, sincere, and willing to and desirous of upholding the principles of true Americanism as enunciated by such preceding Presidents as Washington, Lincoln, and Roosevelt;

Be it resolved, that we, the officers and members of the Young Citizens' Republican League will do everything within our power, individually and collectively, to aid Calvin Coolidge, and

Be it further resolved, that we will give our votes and lend our support to the end that Calvin Coolidge may succeed himself in office at the close of the present Presidential term.

REVIEW FOR GUARDSMEN ON TUESDAY

Adjt.-Gen. Mittelsteadt to Inspect Local Unit; Public is Invited

Adjt.-Gen. Robert E. Mittelsteadt will inspect the One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry of the California National Guard Tuesday evening at the armory at Exposition Park. The regiment will be turned out for review and inspection at 8:30 p.m. by Col. Walter P. Story, commanding. This regiment is rated by the War Department as one of the crack National Guard outfits of the country.

Guests at officers mess Tuesday night will be a delegation from the Lions Club including Jack Frauenfelder, Sam Carpenter, Earl Baker, Henry Citrin, Judson Davis, Clark Dennington, J. J. Frauenfelder, C. C. Eichenhofer, Dr. W. V. Goodfellow, Eddie M. Gore, J. B. Hall, Walter L. Frost, Nick Harris, Ralph Zane, Bertin A. Weyl, Dale H. Parke, A. J. Tobey, H. F. Stevens, Harry O. Marler, Irving J. Mitchell, Adolph Koebig, Jr., Clem S. Glass, Dr. W. G. S. Koebig, J. F. Riley, Dan B. Miner, Col. Charles W. Decker, Felix McGinnis, H. B. Howeth, T. J. Protheroe and Arthur R. Maas.

The public is invited to witness the review and drill.

The regiment will go into two weeks' field training at Del Monte August 2. According to Col. Story, it promises to be one of the most successful camps conducted by the National Guard.

Men of the regiment who are employed by the State, city and county and in many other lines will be given their two weeks' stay with full pay in addition to the pay they will receive from the Federal government during the encampment.

Moving Platform Is Economical

It is proposed to operate a moving platform in New Yirk City and a method of handling the great crowds of passengers traveling between the Grand Central Station and Forty-second street, which is now taken care of, in a very indifferent manner, by shuttle trains. As a means of demonstrating the practicability of the scheme, a short stretch of platform has been built and subjected to dynamometer made to arrive at the actual cost and because of recent improvements introduced, it has been found that the system is very promising. The platform is made up of a number of loops connected by universal couplings, three lines running side by side, at varying speeds. As there is no stopping and starting the amount of power required is very small and the resistance is rendered very low as the platforms run on greased tracks and all the bearings are fitted with balls.

NEW TYPE OF BUS TO OPERATE

Order Place for Five Six-Wheel Double-Deck Cars for Use Here

Operation of double-deck buses of six-wheel type will be the next step in the development of motor-vehicle transportation by the Los Angeles Railway and the Los Angeles Motor Bus Company.

Orders have been placed for five of the six-wheel busses which will be built by a Southern California bus and truck manufacturing concern. The new type is designed to seat sixty-four passengers. A six-cylinder motor will be used and all wheels will have pneumatic tires. Air brakes similar to those used on the double-deck busses now operated on Sunset Boulevard and Vermont avenue will be installed. Some of these busses will be operated by the Los Angeles Railway and the others by the Los Angeles Motor Bus Company. Arrangements for the distribution of these busses and the routes they will serve have not been completed.

The Los Angeles Railway has placed an order for five other double-deck busses similar to the latest one put in service by the Los Angeles Motor Bus Company. This type has seats arranged longitudinally on the top deck. This arrangement makes the bus lower than the average double decker.

Twenty more double-deck busses similar to the five to be delivered to the Los Angeles Railway have been ordered by the Los Angeles Motor Bus Company. In all, there are thirty double-deck busses on order for local service and delivery is scheduled to begin within sixty days.

A Valley of Fire

The Valley of Mexico seems to be guarded from outside intrusion by a ridge of mountains along which rises many a rounded crater which speaks forcibly of the many baptisms of fire which Mother Earth has poured out on the choice spot. While the destruction wrought by these visitations of wrath of the fire god has evidently been terrific, yet the earth thus enriched has become a veritable treasure house which needs only to be touched to yield vast stores for the use of man. The most recent of these craters is known as Xitli, a bowl 1500 feet in diameter and 300 feet deep. Over the rim of this bowl there flowed a tongue of lava down the northern slope of the mountain forming a path of stone 15 miles long and 3 miles wide. Many geologists have examined them and the last one to tackle the problem has determined that this was deposited 7000 years ago.

The only reason girls behave that way is because nobody likes to be a wallflower.

TRANSFERS FOR NAVAL OFFICERS

Pacific Fleet Captains to Get New Posts

Skipper Stirling, Jr., to Go to Washington

No Changes Contemplated in Admirals' Staffs

Virtually all of the twelve dreadnaughts of the United States Battle Fleet will receive new commanders shortly after the return of the fleet to this base on the 22nd inst., under orders issued by the Navy Department yesterday, which call for the transfer of twenty-three captains of the line and twenty-four junior officers.

Of special interest is the proposed transfer of Capt. Yates Stirling, Jr., now commanding the U. S.S. New Mexico, to Washington as commandant of the Navy Yard and superintendent of the naval gun factory. Capt. Stirling trades posts with Capt. Frank H. Drumby.

Other important proposed changes include the shift of Capt. John Fore Hines, commanding the U. S. S. Pennsylvania, to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. He will be succeeded on the Pennsylvania by Capt. Ernest J. King, now commandant of the submarine base, New London, Ct., and Submarine Division Eleven.

Capt. Andre M. Proctor, commanding the U.S.S. Texas, has been assigned to duty in the Third Naval district, New York, and will be succeeded here by Capt. Ivan C. Wettengel, now captain of the Puget Sound Navy Yard. Capt. Roscoe C. Moody is to be relieved as captain of the U.S.S. New York and will be succeeded by Capt. David W. Todd, who has completed the course at the Naval War College.

Capt. J. G. Church, commanding Destroyer Division Thirty-six, Battle Fleet, will succeed Capt. J. H. Tomb as commander of Destroyer Squadron Twelve. Capt. Tomb is to relieve Capt. Wettengel at the Puget Sound Navy Yard.

Other proposed changes are: Capt. Cyrus W. Cole, from the Naval War College to the Twelfth Naval District, San Francisco; Capt. David G. E. Helm, to be relieved as captain of the U.S.S. Florida by Capt. David E. Theleen; Capt. Albert W. Marshall, to be relieved as commander of the Aircraft Squadrons of the Battle Fleet by Capt. Stanford E. Moses, now assistant commandant of the Twelfth Naval District. Capt. Marshall will go to duty in the Navy Department, while Capt. Moses is to be relieved by Capt. Cole.

No changes are contemplated, it is reported in the present staffs of Admiral S. S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet, of Vice-Admiral Henry A. Wiley, commanding Battleship Divisions and Division Five; of those of Rear-Admiral Louis Nulton and Rear-Admiral W. V. Pratt, commanding Battleship Divisions Three and Four, respectively.

UNCLE JOHN'S COLUMN

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

Back to the deserts of Nevada we go today, lads and lassies. It is that time of year when the hills are peeping forth from the brown cocoon of winter, resplendent in velvety green and vivid wild flowers—the time of year when tingles tickle the soul of an old prospector and the bottoms of his feet itch. Solitudes and far-reaches of landscape have a depth of thought in them, which, like memories, can never be entirely cast aside. They call you back.

Uncle John will tell you about wild horses as he saw them in Nevada in 1905. He had been driving a tunnel, single-handed, into the heart of Blackcap Mountain, six miles east of Goldfield. One morning, reaching the crest, he paused on the summit before dropping down to the tunnel, attracted by a band of wild horses far down on the desert. The canteen was not removed from the shoulders, and the little bag of "grub" for the noontide meal was tied to the canteen strap. Tucked through his belt was a little short-handled prospecting pick, and on his hip was a revolver.

I had been working very hard and faithfully for many weeks, driving toward the heart of the mountain, with no indication of a pay-shoot in sight. Why not follow the band of wild horses? They might lead to the hidden fortune which Mother Earth so carefully guards! Men encountered in wandering had often told of the wild horses of Nevada, and the subject was interesting to me. To spend that perfect day following these nomads would be recreation—chipping off outcroppings here and there, to be examined with a magnifying-glass, gathering samples to be later pulverized with mortar and pestle, panned and tested. So I dropped down the canyon toward the desert, little thinking that I was embarking on one of the hardest tasks of perseverance and patience ever undertaken.

MEAT TASTE LURES

"You can talk about your hambone and turkey, but if you want something really tasty kill a two-year-old from a band of wild horses," an old prospector had told me. I needed meat and the suggestion was a challenge. "Stalk the bunch, split it if you can, pick out the colt you want and keep on stalking; but you will hike many miles before you get within killin' range with that shootin' iron—you need a rifle," added the old prospector. I had no rifle, but the task, once undertaken, I found interesting. A flaming red Stanford sweater and a red turban cap which I wore seriously handicapped the establishment of friendly relations with that wild band, although I did not realize it at the time.

The majestic stallion leader had evidently "spotted" that dash of color long before I was half-way down the mountainside, and, when I reached the floor of the desert it was necessary to take up the tracks of the horses and trail them. Again and again throughout the day a ridge would be crossed and the band would come in sight, but never once did I get closer than a quarter of a mile. As the day wore on and the full scorching heat of the sun began to be felt, an increasing restlessness was apparent among the horses upon the appearance of that dash of red bobbing over the hilltop, and by mid-afternoon the horses began to travel in circles. Little whinnies of fear were heard. By circling with them and maeuvering, I was able to force them into a canyon. A quick rush divided the herd, half passing out of the canyon and the other half going up into its jaws. By inaccurate count an estimate of the original number of horses was thirty-six. By nightfall the bunch had been split until I was trailing seven animals, the stallion, three mares, two colts and one little spider-legged, wobbly colt less than a week old.

BREAD AND WATER

When nightfall came there was nothing to do but find a sheltered spot behind an outcropping and curl up for rest. Sleep came instantly. The canteen was still half-full, and there were two slices of bread left. With the gray of dawn the long draught of cold water and one slice of bread were taken with greater relish than that of a multimillionaire at the Waldorf. Strange to say, the frightened equine family had hardly changed their position, but at the first appearance of the red turban and the sweater, away they went like wildfire. The demon of the day before and which had caused them restlessness throughout the night was still haunting them. Thrice during the morning they were terrorized. Apparently the realization that an enemy was untiringly following them had gradually broken down their resistance until they became panicky. Noon discovered them in a narrow box-canyon, a near-fatal mistake, for after going up the canyon a mile they were confronted by the impassable barrier of a waterfall.

I had crossed the left-hand "hog-back" of the canyon, and without being seen dropped down almost in their midst, revolver in hand. With a wild stampede they milled at the foot of the waterfall and then bolted down the canyon, passing, passing like a flash within twenty feet of me. In the melee the poor little baby colt was knocked over, trodden upon, and one of its legs broken. Above the sound of hoofs I could hear its plaintive cry of pain. My revolver dropped to my side. I could not shoot. Poor little fellow! He tried to get up, but only wobbled on three legs and fell over in a heap. I rushed to him and placed a knee on his head to stop his struggling, and tried to tell him how sorry I was; but the pain and fear in those baby-eyes of that little colt haunt me still, and never again will I go wild-horse hunting.

CURIOSITY AROUSED

Another time, lads and lassies, Uncle John was resting in a sheltered niche of an outcropping, when a band of wild horses came up over the "hogs-back" about half a mile away. The red sweater and turban were still in evidence, but in this case I sat very still. For many minutes the horses stood motionless, looking at the strange color—new to them in their desert haunts. Curiosity is strong in wild animals, and finally the big stallion, snorting and pawing the ground, began to advance toward the color-spot, followed by the herd. He came forward zigzag—slowly to the right, then a pause, and then another advancement to the left—never straight toward me. A strong breeze was blowing straight from the band of horses, and it was evident that they could get no scent of the man who sat so motionless. The tension became almost painful, and by the time the stallion had reached a point within twenty feet I held my breath and thought of the little colt. How his eyes blazed with vengeance!

It was a wonderful study—the magnificence of that king of the band. He was coal-black, and for years had been known in Nevada as "Noir." Again and again rangers and cattlemen had tried to run him to earth and lasso him. Once he had been forced into a stockade, used on the desert for the purpose of catching wild horses, but they never got him, for he kicked the stockade to pieces when they attempted to rope him.

SIGHT ELECTRIFIES

This great stallion seemed perfectly fascinated by the red sweater and turban. He must have known that it was a human being he was approaching, and for a moment it seemed that he would actually attack the immovable statue there in the rocks. The strain of immobility and silence was too much for me. I felt myself becoming hypnotized. Suddenly, with a flinging-out of arms and a blood-curdling yell, I leaped outward! Never shall I see quicker action than the frenzied whirl and stampede of those wild horses! Even now the thunder of their swift hoofs echoes in my memory!

It was a strange demonstration of instincts in nature, for after all the man and the beast could have become the best of friends. The devotion of a horse has been almost the faith of a dog in many cases, and I have often wished that little colt could have lived to become my pet and pal.

Listeners Urged to Use Detector Without Aid of Amplifier

BY B. BRADBURY
Radio Engineer

When receiving very weak radio signals from distant stations it is found that amplification of the audible tones as heard in the telephone receivers is of little or no benefit, since the strength of tube noises, static, or other interference is increased in greater proportion than the signal strength. Under these conditions the most satisfactory signals will often be obtained directly in the output from the detector without additional amplification, since the signal, although weaker, is much more distinct in the telephones than when amplified.

To secure a louder signal with good quality, or to receive more distant stations, some other means of amplification must therefore be adopted. This other means is the amplification of the signal frequency as it is received on the antenna, before it reaches the detector. Detector efficiency decreases with a decrease in the energy received, so that if we can increase this energy before it reaches the detector, better efficiency will result.

One of the most common methods of obtaining radio frequency amplification is the utilization of regeneration in the detector tube itself. Since perfect rectification does not take place in the detector, a certain amount of radio frequency flows in its plate circuit, so that by coupling this circuit back to the grid or input of the tube, the amplified signal frequency is made to re-energize the grid and cause a still greater change in the variations of the plate current.

Regeneration may be accomplished by means of capacitive or inductive back coupling, or a combination of both. Short wave receivers are often constructed with a variable inductance in the plate circuit which can be toned to the signal frequency. Sufficient voltage is thus built up across the plate circuit to feed a small amount of energy back to the grid through the capacity between the grid and plate within the tube itself. For long wave lengths the tube capacity becomes insufficient for good regeneration, and some additional means must be provided, such as inductive coupling between the grid and plate circuits. This consists of placing a coil of wire in the plate circuit and coupling it back to the input or grid circuit of the tube.

Another method of obtaining radio frequency amplification is to use one or more vacuum tubes ahead of the detector tube with suitable coupling between them to transfer the energy from one tube to the next at the signal frequency. As with radio frequency, the coupling between tubes may be resistances, inductances or transformers but they cannot, of course, have the same values as for audio frequency coupling. Just as it is somewhat of a problem to build a transformer which will transfer signal voltages uniformly over a wide range of audio tones, so it is difficult to build transformers which will operate well over a broad range of radio frequencies. Since there is such a great difference in the frequencies of the various wave lengths in use, it is necessary to change transformers to receive all of the different classes of communication.

At short wave lengths amplification is accompanied by more or less regeneration through the grid and plate capacities of the tubes, as mentioned in connection with detector regeneration. For some wave lengths the sufficient the amplifier tubes come this tendency means must be provided an adjustable grid can be made positive cure stable operation.

Resistance coupling advantage of letting noises and other audible cies, so that it is cult to use it with addition to the stages following has, however, the ing effective over a frequencies and uniform amplification er wave length tive coupling.

Inductive or transformer coupling, as previously transfer energy at a of frequencies. ductances and transformers for use in the high frequencies of lengths will not noises or disturbances limited to audible eral stages may in cascade to amplify without distortion the detector. Audio may then be added obtain whatever volume is found necessary.

Three or four stages of quency amplification sible to use a loop good results. For cast signals a loop ing ten turns of wire eights of an inch apart three feet square, right size to use. transformers on the will give good signals tion with a loop and tion of such a set gratifying results.

Radio Concerts Appreciated by Convict Labor

The following letter sheds light on another angle of radio:

We have always found your programs at KHJ well worth while and entertaining.

Radio has proved a wonderful treat to the 200 convicts employed building State highways who are unable to leave camp limits. It has made the men feel that they are again active members of society as well as road builders and for that account we are anxious to thank all members of Radioland who are contributing to our happiness.

With every wish for your continued success and again thanking you for your high-class broadcasting service, we are,

Greenhorn Convict Camp,
E. J. CAMPBELL,
Timekeeper.

STYLE DEMANDED IN LOUD-SPEAKER HORNS

The feminine influence is commencing to make itself felt in radio. One large manufacturer of loud-speaker horns has received orders for horns to be made in nine different pastel shades to harmonize with the color schemes of boudoirs and the complexion of their owners. Dealers report that where a man will insist only on purity of tone and volume from a loud speaker, the women buyers devote just as much attention to the coloring and design of the outfit. Incidentally, the loud-speaker industry is assuming tremendous proportions, 600,000 horns and 90,000 complete loud speakers being fixed as the 1924 production from one factory.

CTURE-RECITAL PLEASES

Program of Merit Given by Claire Forbes Crane Through Barker Brothers Courtesy bright the sun of Barker Brothers shines upon Radioland!

the listeners sit, and let the sounds of music into their ears; soft stillness, and the day, the touches of sweet harmony."

Brothers still are preach- gospel of better music their courtesy, Claire Crane, arranged and pre- lecture-recital devoted to composers and their Melba French Barr, so- Sol Cohen, violinist, as Southland's most gifted selected to illustrate styles. Sol Cohen the program with Arthur "Song Flight" through wonderful bowing resem- brilliant-hued bird floating space with motionless outspread. Melba French the "Sakura Blossom of Gertrude Ross with a that crowned her notes halo of mother love.

POEMS

Robinson's "Relec- described by Miss Crane written along lines, but with the facility for preserving It was interpreted with a subtle appre- artistic phrasing. A Chinese lyrics written by Wakefield Cadman around of Chinese poems of 600 to Miss Crane, a from this composer's Melba French Barr Tears" and "The of Fate," the two num- this suite with a profound respect for of wisdom. Spencer's "Valse Fugitiv" by Sol Cohen with quality which marks and seemed appropriate found in the fingers of Claire sweeping over the keys through Homer Grunn's "Desert Suite" seemed to resemble the rapidly changing movement of the sands as they swelled in waves under the breath of the simoom. J. Humphrey Stuart, who was the official organist of the San Francisco Exposition and considered by Miss Crane one of the most scholarly composers in California, was represented in the lecture with three selections, "The Night Song," "Indian Song" and "Love Song," all of which were sung by Melba French Barr with affectionate regard for the amour which reposed in each number.

Sol Cohen played Ernst Morrison's "Melody" and as a befitting conclusion to an afternoon with California composers, Melba French Barr sang two comparatively unknown works of Carrie Jacobs Bond, "The Little Lost Youth in Me" and "My Son."

GLENDALE MAYOR SINGS

Community prosperity, a form of music that appeals to all its members, was transposed to a different scale and brought to KHJ by the Glendale Realty Board and their assembly of performers. Spencer Robinson, Mayor of Glendale, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, sang "Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charms" with a youthful spirit that was born in his thoughts of courtship days and pride in his city.

The warmth of tropical climes in his voice, K. A. Louis, Hawaiian baritone, rendered the "Glendale Song" with an ordor that fired the blood of Peter Hanson, president of the Glendale Realty Board, as he later sketched the course of events in the progress of his home town. Hazel Linkogel astir to the occasion, played two violin solos that delighted her listeners. Lucille Whitson, pianist, glided over the keyboard through Raff's "Polka de la Reine" with smoothness.

Mayor Robinson, accompanied by Mrs. Robinson, obliged with another number entitled "Annie Laurie," after which followed another talk by Peter Hanson on the advantages of better homes. W. L. Truit, entertained with a monologue which traveled to the listeners under the label of "Realtor Radiographs." Clyde Lott, cornetist, concluded the Glendale program with several solos.

STRING QUARTET PLEASES

The Pizzicato Quartet composed of Frank Folsom, mandolin; Bob Cottrell, mandolin; A. E. Sussex, mandola, and Nellie Russell, guitar, demonstrated the musical heights to which the fretted instruments could be carried by capable hands. Bickford's "Foxy" was rendered with a briskness that made the notes fairly leap into the microphone. "Effervescence," by the same composer, seemed to bubble gleefully as it was sent into the air by these artists. Di Chirari's "La Spagnola" was rendered with the vivacity and abandon of the Latin at play. Bob Cottrell played two of his own compositions, "Two Slumber Songs" that were as restful as the shade of a weeping willow tree on a warm afternoon in July.

E. Morgan Isaac, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Eagle Rock, Cal., told of Love the eternal huntsman, who was on the trail of every individual with the one purpose of capturing him for the Kingdom of Love.

Lenore Killian, mezzo-soprano, accompanied by Claire Forbes Crane, rendered a program noticeable for its serious import and discriminating variety. It also presented exceptional opportunities for the range of Miss Killian's voice and offered no difficulty to the performer.

Dr. Mayer Winkler, rabbi of the Sinai Congregation, delivered a scholarly dissertation on the Jewish Passover ceremonials and rites.

FOR HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Floryane Thompson of the open heart, responding to the appeals she had received from numerous bedridden listeners and other hospital inmates to hear her sing again, gave a program for the benefit of those unfortunates whose sorrows and cares had been cut in twain by the joy in her voice.

Realizing that alert ears drank in every note that dropped from her lips, Miss Thompson poured her very soul into each number. And her voice carrying the call of nature like a sweet murmuring brook, flowed through the dew-laden fields so "Sweet and Slow" out past the saddened home of "Ben Bolt" and into the "Holy City" where it paused in awe of the Omnipotent while the gentle breezes of "Abide with Me" rippled over its silvery surface. Under the stimulation of "Love's Old Sweet Song" it resumed its former gayety and babbled through shaded glens, over mossy dells and out to the abode of "Darling Nellie Gray" where it stopped at the special request of Mrs. Hanby, the 89-year-old widow of the composer.

Two other numbers of particular significance to her vast audience, were "Sweet Genevieve" which Miss Thompson sang with Uncle John and Miss Thompson's composition, "If Your Eyes Were the Windows of Your Soul." After the performance the telephone bell tingled and a woman sobbed out a story of the memories of other days the program had stirred and she wished Miss Thompson to know that her tears were of joy and gratitude. Grace Eaton Dow was of artistic assistance at the piano.

His hearers wishing to get better acquainted with David Ziesberger, Prof. Walter Sylvester Herzog furnished further details of this famous Moravian missionary who spent his life amonst the Indians of whom he wrote more than fifty manuscripts describing their customs, mode of living and mental attitude toward life. The professor spoke of Zeisberger's work in the Allegehanies and the tremendous influence he had with the red man.

Jack Cullen, 13 years of age, accompanied by Edyth Petesch, played two classical numbers on the violin in a manner that brought applause from the studio audience. He then joined his younger brother, Richard, 11, in two violin duets that proved a pleasant surprise to their hearers. In both these numbers they were again accompanied by Edyth Petesch.

Pearl Mary Copeland, 6, read several short stories with an ease that spoke of long practice and an enunciation that pointed to careful instruction. Billy Anderson carried his four years lightly and joined the party by reciting several verses. Mary Katherine Link, 8, pianist, pupil of Marguerite Hauber, showed the splendid results of her training in her musical maturity at the piano. Uncle John concluded the program with his bedtime story.

Chico Songster Joins Canaries in KHJ Concert

Gleaned from the correspondence is the following letter:

Your concerts from KHJ enjoyed very much from a listener-in at Chico. I wish to say that I have a canary by name of Laddie who joins in with Kindness and Happiness when their little songs come on the air real plain as they did last night (Friday) when the Mexican orchestra played the "Swallow." He is quite a radio fan. I thank you very much and the rest of the kind people who furnish such a wonderful concert.

Yours very truly,
MRS. ANNA KENNEDY.

BROADCAST ARRANGED FOR COOLIDGE SPEECH

The address of President Coolidge to be delivered at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press on Tuesday, will be broadcast by WGY, the Schenectady broadcasting station. The luncheon will be in the main ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, to which the Schenectady station will be connected by special circuits. The broadcasting will start at approximately 1:45 p.m. Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, also will speak.

STATIC FLASHES

A broadcasting station in an important city on the Pacific Coast will broadcast a dance program of an orchestra representning a milk products company more commonly known for its trade-mark "From Contented Cows." A radio bug learning of this program wished to learn the source of the dance music.

One of the American naval commanders whose ship, while steaming to Panama, picked up KHJ, according to his letter, and heard The Times concerts every night until they were 2200 miles away. The long arm of KHJ respects neither time nor distance.

A boomerang, imported from the wilds of Australia where this weapon was at one time used by the natives to kill game and obstreperous neighbors, will be presented by the American Radio Relay League to the first radio amateur in this country or Canada who establishes two-way communication with an amateur in Australia or New Zealand. The winner will no doubt have no squealing sets in his neighborhood when the neighbors are reminded of the prize's potential powers.

Negotiations are under way to have Gen. Jouaust and Maj. Mesny, eminent radio experts of the French Military Wireless Laboratory of Paris, stage a series of demonstrations of their new invention, yet unnamed, with which they recently succeeded in transforming light waves from the star Capella into audible sounds, during the First International Radio Exposition at Madison Square Garden, New York City, next September.

Radio, not content with merely visiting the clouds, has invaded the Kingdom of Heaven. The word of God is now to be had in the home. The Radio Bible Service Bureau has been organized in their words to send His messages of spiritual light. Some sunny Sunday afternoon, a radio modernist will meet a church-going conservative and the battle will begin all over again.

A new form of radio invitation has appeared. Kathrine Thompson whose saxophone band has been heard many times from KHJ, has struck upon the ingenious method of sending printed cards to her friends and followers indicating her next appearance on the radio. The date line is blank making it possible to utilize the cards for an indefinite period by merely filling in the date desired.

"STAND YOUR GROUND! DON'T FIRE UNLESS FIRED UPON, BUT IF THEY MEAN TO HAVE WAR, LET IT BEGIN HERE"
CAPTAIN PARKER.

WHY THE NAMES LEXINGTON AND CONCORD, MR. ANSTED?

Down in Boston Town they don't have to ask me that. Because of the historical significance attaching to these names, they quite appreciate the message we have been for years trying to bring home to the motoring public--"that the Minute Man Six" could be likened to the "Minute Men of Old," Trustworthy--"Quick on the Trigger," Absolutely dependable--"Full of Pep," a Champion of Independence, a Champion of Pikes Peak.

Then after fifteen years of endeavor in building quality motor cars comes the CONCORD--our new and smaller model (with larger Ansted than ever before in any car) but priced at a popular delivered figure so that even those people who always believed in Lexington superiority might experience the thrill and likewise the everlasting satisfaction without sacrificing a home to enjoy the greatest Motor Car that Lexington craftsmanship has so far been able to develop.

The Spirit of "76" is again typified by strange coincidence, if you please, in our Motor Cars when Lexington with car entries Numbers 7 and 6, won 1st and 2nd place in Pikes Peak Hill Climb contest Labor Day of 1920--finishing only six seconds apart.

POLITICS

THE WATCHMAN

Trend of Political Thought and Action

By the Sentry on His Beat

Two weeks from next Tuesday the Presidential primaries of California will be held and delegations will be elected to represent this State in the Republican and Democratic national conventions.

California Republicans, with the candidacies of President Coolidge and Senator Hiram Johnson before them, either will send a delegation to Cleveland instructed to uphold the President and his administration or a delegation committed to a candidate and a cause that already have suffered defeat—a candidate and a cause that will have no part in the considerations and decisions to be reached at the national republican conference.

California Democrats in the primary May 6 must choose between a delegation pledged to the candidacy of William G. McAdoo or a delegation of unpledged candidates, the second group apparently representing more a movement against McAdoo than a direct effort in behalf of any other candidate. W. R. Hearst is credited by many Democrats with responsibility for the anti-McAdoo ticket.

McAdoo supporters are confident that the former Secretary of the Treasury will be indorsed by the Democracy of California, one of their leaders here, John P. Carter, even going so far as to infer that the increase in Democratic registration in this State is due to the McAdoo candidacy.

"There is no doubt," asserted Mr. Carter, "that the present increase in Democratic registration is due in large part to the candidacy of Mr. McAdoo, and that this fact will be reflected in the primary results of May 6. The only apparent result of the attempt to set up opposition to the regular nominations for Democratic delegates has been to arouse a wave of indignation against the attempt of William Randolph Hearst to exercise absentee control over the Democracy of California.

"If the situation was at all complex, or the opposition serious, such matters might warrant investigation and exposure, but all indications are for an overwhelming McAdoo victory, and our only purpose now is to get out the Democratic vote here so that the Democracy of California may put itself on record before the nation."

And if California Democrats feel justified in ascribing to the McAdoo candidacy the increase in their own ranks, perhaps, in view of the tremendous increase in the Republican registration, supporters of President Coolidge may logically assume that the President's candidacy is responsible therefor.

Regardless of the cause, the Coolidge leaders here believe that the result will prove favorable to their candidate. Los Angeles county, according to latest available returns from the registration for the May primary, will have more than one-third of the Republican registration of the State and more than 44 per cent of the State's total registration.

Although President Coolidge, with 542 delegates now pledged to his nomination, needs an additional twelve before obtaining a necessary majority in the Republican National Convention, this slight deficiency will be more than overcome next Tuesday when the Republican electors of New Jersey and Pennsylvania express their choice for the Presidency, a good majority, if not the entire delegation in each of these States being regarded as certain for Coolidge.

This will leave California in the peculiar position either of indoreing and augmenting the action of the Republicans of the nation or of dissenting from a decision that has been to date almost unanimous where an opportunity for expression has occurred.

Frank F. Merriam, manager of the Coolidge campaign in Southern California, after receiving reports from all sections of the State, is of the opinion that Mr. Coolidge will give Mr. Johnson strong opposition in the northern and central portions of the State and that he will sweep Southern California. All of this, of course, being based on the inference and determination that the President's supporters will continue active until the balloting actually begins.

The continued apathy of the public towards the candidacy of Dist.-Atty. Keyes, accompanied by an apparently undiminished feeling that the prosecutor's office is not functioning efficiently, is causing many potential oponents of Mr. Keyes to look over the field with an opposition candidacy in view.

Police Judge Sheldon, who has been making a record at University Station, has had the matter in mind for some time and is now engaged in sounding out sentiment concerning his own chances for the office. State Senator Harry A. Chamberlin and State Senator Charles W. Lyon, potential candidates for several months, remain, apparently, undecided as to the course they will pursue.

Interest in the contest for Chief Justice and Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court, judicial posts now held respectively by Judge Louis W. Myers and John W Shenk of Los Angeles, is keen and many of the representative members of the bench and bar throughout California are taking the position that neither of these men, because of their exceptional training and qualifications, should be opposed.

Volunteer committees pledged to work for the election of Myers and Shenk have been organized here and in San Francisco and an active campaign will be conducted in their behalf. It is thought possible that Appellate Judge Houser may become a candidate either against Chief Justice Myers or Associate Justice Shenk, in which event one of the most active judicial campaigns in recent years may be looked for and, possibly, a very determined and emphatic expression from the membership of the California bar. Associate Justice Lawler, whose health may become a consideration, is said to be considering a race against Chief Justice Myers.

Members of the California Coolidge campaign committee met in San Francisco yesterday and perfected plans for the final drive that is to be made in behalf of President Coolidge's candidacy in this State. Marshall Hale, chairman of the committee, returned from the East and immediately took up the direction of the campaign. He expressed satisfaction at the progress which had been made throughout the State by other members of the committee during the time that he has been in Europe.

"The entire nation is looking to California to express a vote of confidence in President Coolidge." Mr. Hale said.

"This is one of the most critical periods in the history of the American nation and it is imperative that all persons who believe in sane government should vote. Observation which I have made in the eastern part of the United States convinces me that Calvin Coolidge is overwhelmingly the choice of the Republican party. It is expected that the people of California will unite with the citizenry of other States in supporting President Coolidge.

"With the nomination of President Coolidge practically assured," Mr. Hale said, "California would make one of the greatest mistakes in its history to support any other candidate. There is much work to be done in California to insure the election of a full Coolidge delegation, but the unanimity of purpose which is so prevalent on every side, practically insures success for the Coolidge forces."

Atty. Luther G. Brown has contributed the following:

Oh! Mr. McAdoo
What did you ever do,
To get yourself
In such a stew?
What we mean is,
What did you
Do to make Doheny do
What Doheny did for you?
Tell us, Mr. McAdoo!

ENTER MANY INFANTS IN BABY TESTS

Southland Mothers Offer Offspring to Determine Healthiest

A total of 1294 babies are registered in the contest to pick the healthiest child in Southern California, according to an announcement made at the "Baby Week" headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building, yesterday. The contest is a special feature of the week, which opens tomorrow.

According to Dr. Maud Wilde, director of the Mother's Educational Center and one of those in charge of the contest, so far nearly 500 babies have been examined by the various boards in the surrounding counties. The remaining 796 entered in the contest will be examined next week by the corps of trained baby specialists, including some of the best known physicians in Southern California, who are acting as judges in the contest, assisted by a staff of trained nurses.

Registrations for the baby contest closed Friday night, and those in charge spent yesterday in arranging the names of the entrants in preparation for next week's examinations.

"Baby Week," set aside by official proclamation as a special occasion for infants, will be featured by the examinations of the city's small children. The winner, when picked, will be awarded the title as the "healthiest baby in Southern California."

Examinations in Los Angeles will be conducted at the Plymouth Congregational Church at 650 West Twentieth street, where the judges in the contest will be on duty all week. The winners will be announced at a ceremony to be held at the church building on May 1. At this time a program is to be presented featuring young children, as a part of the educational movement for mothers.

NAMES DAY FOR STUDY OF CHARTER

Mayor Sets Thursday Aside for Education on Proposed Changes

Realizing that the average voter is unaware of the importance to the city of the proposed new city charter which is on the ballot May 6, Mayor Cryer yesterday issued a proclamation setting aside Thursday, as "Charter Day."

The Mayor suggests that on "Charter Day" every citizen study the proposed charter, and already arrangements are completed for luncheon meetings by the City Club, the 100 Per Cent Club, and the Optomist Club at the Biltmore, with almost every prominent organization arranging meetings for either noon or evening. At these meetings the differences between the new and the old charter will be explained to the voters.

Every school room in the city will observe this day with discussion on the charter as the Board of Education will follow the example of the Mayor and declare Thursday as "Charter Day."

The present city charter was adopted in 1889, thirty-five years ago, when this city had a population of 40,000. Today, with a population of more than 1,000,000 Los Angeles is still governed by the same form of government.

A little over a year ago representatives of eighty-one civic organizations of the city selected a Board of Freeholders which was elected at the spring election, 1923. This Board of Freeholders, many of them men and women whose time was invaluable, labored nights for six months preparing the proposed charter which is Proposition No. 1 on the ballot.

The proposed charter carries the indorsement of practically every civic organization in the city.

DOWNTOWN BLAZE

Defective Wiring Starts Fire in Wilcox Building

Fire believed to have been caused by defective wiring broke out in the Wilcox Building at Second and Spring streets yesterday causing damage estimated at about $3000. The blaze ate its way into the Veribest Clothing Company establishment on the third floor of the building and destroyed a quantity of clothing. Small losses also were sustained by the Continental Pantmakers and the Portraits Painting Studios. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze after their arrival.

FLOOD RELIEF GIVEN

City Engineer Griffin yesterday reported that the flooding of West Adams street to Culver City, including the Glen Airy district at the end of West Adams street-car line, will be ended permanently by the construction of storm drains and the paving of the street. A majority petition asking for this improvement has been filed with the City Council, and as soon as the final ordinance is adopted the contract for the work will be awarded by the Board of Public Works.

SEEKS FAMILY HERE

M. S. Eckles appealed to police yesterday to aid him in locating his wife and three children who came to the city about three weeks ago from Los Molinos. At the time of their arrival, Eckles said, he was in the East, having left the city to see his father, who was seriously ill. Since his return here, he said, he had heard nothing from his wife and their three small children though he has made every effort to find them.

SALVATIONISTS OUTLINE NEEDS

Prepare to Provide Budget of $150,000

Direct Appeal to People in Week of May 12

Charles S. Hutson Chairman of Fund Drive

The needs of the Salvation Army for the ensuing year were outlined at a meeting of the advisory board of the organization yesterday, the result being that preparations are under way to provide the budget of $150,000. The direct appeal to the public to assist the Salvation Army will be made during the week starting May 12.

In attendance at the meeting were Henry W. O'Melveny, Frank Ryan, Charles H. Toll, Harry Chandler, William May Garland. Charles S. Hutson was elected a member of the board and participated for the first time in its deliberations. Harry M. Haldeman, chairman of the board was the only member absent, due to his being abroad.

Brigadier C. R. Boyd of the Salvation Army presented a budget showing the activities of the organization and the respective financial needs. The milk fund will require $18,000; family relief, $25,000; fresh air camp, $6000; Christmas dinner, $5000; Rescue Home for Women, $5000; day nursery, $6000; Lytton Home for Boys and Girls, $5000. To this must be added $50,000 to carry the Army's building program, also maintenance of the eight corps and the officers' training college bringing the total to approximately $177,000. The Christmas kettles provide about $27,000, leaving $150,000 to be provided to carry on the 1924 work.

The advisory board which has served for the past four years selected Mr. Hutson as general chairman to arrange for the raising of the budget. C. W. Lee was named campaign manager. Headquarters were announced at 609-611-613 Broadway Arcade Building through the generosity of A. C. Blumenthal.

One of the largest projects of the Salvation Army plans is in its proposal to erect permanent buildings to care for the increased work which is much greater than ever before due to the rapid growth in population in Los Angeles city. A four-story building is to be erected on a lot adjoining the present Industrial Home at 127 Weller street. The Salvation Army owns the lot. Appeals have been so great that only a portion of them could be cared for. The new building will be completed before next winter and will accommodate 400 men. It is proposed to make the top floor an industrial home for men.

The day nursery located at Eighth and Towne avenue is entirely inadequate at the present time and the plans call for a new building which will care for a larger number of children. This institution takes care of little tots' whose mothers must work and for this service the mother pays, if she can, the sum of 10 cents per day. Due to the industrial growth of Los Angeles and increased population, the nursery must care for a greater number of children than ever before, hence a larger building is essential.

MILK DISTRIBUTION

One of the greatest activities of the Salvation Army is in its providing milk for the undernourished children. It is stated that more than 500 children are daily provided with a quart of milk who, were it not for the milk fund, would be continued sufferers.

Chairman Hutson has started action looking toward raising the necessary budget and has secured for Vice-Chairman Ralph Zane. The success of the Salvation Army fund raising campaign is assured for the public has never yet turned a deaf ear to the organization's plea for support.

RABBI SPEAKS OVER RADIO ON PASSOVER

START OF ONE-GOD IDEA IS CITED AS SIGNIFICANT FEATURE OF TIME

Dr. Mayer Winkler, rabbi of Congregation Sinai, spoke from The Times radio broadcasting station yesterday on "The Passover.' He said in part:

"Religion today rightly applies the methods of the newest discoveries of our age to proclaim its eternal truths. Before my mental vision I see the great number of unseen listeners who lend the speaker of the radio their ears and good hearts.

"Passover bears a religious aspect. It is the beginning of the one-God idea. The God Supreme—the God of all the nations—the Father of Mankind. Have we not all one Father? Has not one God created us? Why should man discriminate against his brother?

"Passover bears an agricultural aspect. It is the festival of the springtime. As nature reawakens in the springtime, so Israel awoke to new life in the season of the springtime. It brings a message of life—of hope and rejuvenation to mankind.

SLAYER IS CONVICTED

Negro Found Guilty of Shooting Asserted Calumniator

B. T. Vernon, a negro, yesterday was found guilty by a jury in Judge Hardy's court of second degree murder after several other persons had testified that Vernon shot Luther B. Willis, also colored, following an argument over some letters Willis wrote to Vernon's landlord in which he stated Vernon was a poor tenant.

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Van Cott was the prosecutor. Vernon will be sentenced on Wednesday.

Film 'Stew' Is One Off-Stage, Declares Wife

Charles Howard West frequently is seen on the screen in the role of a "stew," according to his wife, Delta Brown West. His off-stage habits contributed to his facility in the role she told Judge Burks in a hearing of her suit for divorce.

"How often was he intoxicated?" Judge Burks inquired.

"Always," declared Mrs. West. She was awarded a decree.

ANGELENOS TO START TOUR AROUND WORLD

SCORE OR MORE TO LEAVE HERE FOR TRIP OF SIX MONTHS

A score or more of Angelenos under the direction of the D. F. Roberstone Travel Bureau, will sail from Los Angeles Harbor at an early date on a six-months' cruise around the world. The first port to be touched on the itinerary is San Francisco, from where the party will sail for the Orient, visiting Honolulu, Japan, China, the Philippines, Malay Peninsula, Ceylon and Egypt.

On arriving in Italy the tourists will proceed by automobile through Austria, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, Spain and England.

Included in the party are Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Duel, Mr. and Mrs. D. Parker Bryon, Mrs. J. H. Gautier, Mrs. Mathilde Hauser, Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Smoot, Mr. John Read, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kellogg, Misses K. C. and M. Z. Schmitt, Mrs. A. Dutton and Mrs. D. F. Robertson.

BRASS COMPANY USES NOVEL DISPLAY TRUCK

A display truck of the Ohio Brass Company, presenting a novel method of displaying the materials manufactured by the company, has arrived in Los Angeles after having traveled approximately 80,000 miles back and forth across the United States. C. H. Burkhalter, who has been at the wheel of the truck in all of its wanderings, drove the truck into Los Angeles. The truck is provided with a drop-side panel arrangement, attached to which are samples of the complete line of the company, and provided with electric lighting to permit night display. The truck replaces the familiar sample trunk of the commercial salesman.

$112.50 in Gold for a Name

EVEN a child may easily win a prize in this simple contest. Children can think of just as good names as grown-ups. For several years now we have been marketing an almost instantaneous pain-killer under the name of Sed-A-Vol. While Sed-A-Vol stops headaches, pains peculiar to women, rheumatism, earache, toothache, etc., almost like magic, we have discovered that the name is one hard for the average person to pronounce and also hard to remember. The product cannot be improved but the name can. We want a name which will be easy to pronounce, short and easy to remember, and if possible, one that will give some indication of the remarkable things which Sed-A-Vol accomplishes.

You are just as likely as anyone to figure out the name that will be worth real money to us, and if you do, we will gladly send you the $112.50 as payment for a few minutes of your time. And in the event of a tie, a prize of equal value will be awarded to the tieing contestants.

Every one, except members and employees of this company, is eligible to enter this contest. All you need to do is to think for a few minutes and send in whatever name you wish and as many as you please. Your names may be better than anybody else's. Only one name can be used. However, we will give a second prize of $25 for the second best name, $15 for the third best name, and $5 each for the next three best names. The Board of Directors of the D. P. C. Laboratories, proprietors of Sed-A-Vol, will decide the winning names and will award prizes immediately after ascertaining from the Commissioner of Patents at Washington, D. C., the registerability of the name.

Blanks for use in turning in your names will be found in each package of Sed-A-Vol or they may be sent in on blank paper if you prefer. It is not necessary to purchase a package of Sed-A-Vol in order to enter this contest, and there is no obligation. However, if you try it, and examine the product, and read some of the literature which comes with the package, you will probably be able to submit better names than otherwise.

All names must bear a postmark of the town from whence mailed of not later than June 30th, midnight, 1924, which is the closing date of the contest.

You may obtain a package of Sed-A-Vol at practically any drug store.

Send your names early to the D. P. C. Laboratories, Holton, Kansas.

Next Tuesday, April 22nd, we will open the most beautiful Electrical Fixture and Appliance Store in Los Angeles, at 308-310 South Spring St.

We invite you to visit us on the opening day. No goods will be sold. Souvenirs for our guests.

ECONOMIC AND MARKET REVIEW

Current Price Average Shows Loss of Nine Points

Major Downward Movement is Clearly Indicated

Important Group Resistance; Some Local Issues

BY HERBERT R. JACKSON
(Howard G. Rath Company)

At the close of business on Thursday, the average price of twenty standard industrial stocks stood at 93.12, as compared to a high of 101.34 and a low of 90.83 during the three and one-half months that have elapsed in 1924. During the entire year of 1923 the extreme high was 105.38 and the low 85.76. Thus it will be seen that current prices represent a loss of practically 8 points from the year's high and 13 points from the culmination of the major upward movement in March a year ago. Furthermore, the current average price of the twenty standard industrials is within 1 1-2 points of the year's low and within 6 1-2 points of last year's low.

The swings in the averages are a true reflection of the general market movement, though there are numerous individual stocks which have had much wider fluctuations than the average. This is true of such motors as Studebaker, equipments such as Baldwin, steels such as Crucible, Gulf States and even United States.

Other groups have withstood the downward pressure to a large degree, for instance, the higher grade railroads, oils, public utilities and manufacturing stocks such as General Electric. There have been wide movements in mercantile stocks such as chain and department stores, reflecting the excellent position of these companies.

In this connection Secretary Mellon comments that sufficient new business is originating to check the present tendency toward a lessening of activity. Stocks of merchandise held by retailers are low and replenishment is imminent. Renewed buying by retailers might very easily stimulate manufacturing activity.

STOCK MARKET OUTLOOK

The movement of average prices, referred to above, clearly establishes the existence of a major downward movement. This is subject, of course, to intermittent rallies, one of which appears to be in immediate prospect. There is sufficient ground for belief that oils, rails and public utilities will continue indefinitely to resist the downward movement.

As for the balance of the list, one is prompted to speculate on how far the decline may go and how long the movement will endure. Conditions and prospects are not such as to induce re-establishment of the lows of 1921 when the industrial average stood at 63.90. At that time a drastic deflation had taken place.

The average duration of a bear market is in the neighborhood of nineteen months. If we date the inception of the current movement from March, 1923, there would appear to be about five months of declining prices in prospect. Yet the strong technical position of the market must not be overlooked.

INVESTMENT SITUATION

In direct contrast to the speculative position of stocks is the strong position of the bond market. Some of the conditions reflected in declining stock prices, (notably lack of employment for money in merchandise, etc.,) are reflected in a strong demand for bonds and other corporate investment securities. This diversion of capital is resulting in a marked reduction of the floating supply of bonds, according to dealers.

Then there is the real estate situation. The actual investment of funds in income property for increment over a period of years continues with little curtailment, but speculative activity in land (along the same lines as speculation in low priced, nondividend common stocks) is waning.

Investment dealers are thoroughly conversant with this condition and recognize it as a very necessary part of the business and economic cycle, a movement as immutable as the law of gravity. Money heretofore employed in this direction is seeking outlet in the security field, thus establishing the futility, at this time, of turning income securities into taxable and nonproductive realty.

Investment analysts and analytical investors point out under present conditions the superiority of investment in securities based on real estate, rather than in land itself. For instance, it is possible to obtain safe, sound bonds, largely secured by real estate, paying as high as 7½ per cent and running for as little as ten years, where the investor is sure of principal and total income over the period amounting to 75 to 78 per cent on the principal, with no real estate taxes in the meantime.

LOCAL ISSUES

One can even buy Los Angeles Investment Company stock and feel that the realty holdings alone impart reasonable safety because of conservative book value. The most recent statement of this company shows a book value of $3.03 per share. Developments at Baldwin Hills might very easily increase this by several dollars through finding of large oil pools.

It is interesting to recall that the same property which is now causing so much activity was partly responsible for the difficulties of four years ago. Now, it begins to look as though this property would be the medium of greatest profits.

Beyond the activity in Los Angeles Investment, fluctuations in local issues were relatively unimportant. Oil stocks sagged off slightly, reflecting conditions in other markets, but public utility stocks were notably strong, Edison common again moving upward.

Bank stocks showed little change, yet there was a stronger tone to them. Public inquiry for bank stocks is on the increase, probably reflecting a change in the economic outlook, a shifting of activity from speculation into pure investment.

VOGUE FOR CONVERTIBLES

The demand for convertible bonds emanates from that class of investors, who, recognizing the fickleness of speculation at the present stage, desire to have safety first, certainty of income second, and speculative possibilities as the last instead of the first consideration. These requirements are largely met by bonds which are convertible into stock.

The present financial and economic situation presents little cause or ground for uneasiness. It calls for caution, not fear. It calls for work, not worry. Business is good and can be kept good. Bad times are brought about more by conversation than any other factor. Business is largely a matter of salesmanship.

DAILY TRADE TALK

Dummies Are Great Saleswomen, Let's Humanize Them; at the Week-end; Gold Coming Back

BY CHAPIN HALL

Next to newspaper display the best advertising medium is attractive window dressing. That is what some of the managers of the big stores say.

While this may not be true in other cities where weather dodging takes up more of the pedestrian's time, Los Angeles is admittedly the greatest window-shopping city in the country. Also it has the finest displays, most advantageously exhibited and lighted. If all the show windows in the Western metropolis were placed end to end, they would extend in an unbroken line all the way from here to there with enough mileage left over to stock a basement remnant sale.

The window shopper is a great gospel spreader and in many instances may be directly responsible for increased or decreased trade, and while the woman with unlimited funds at her disposal may not be particularly interested in the window teasers of her favorite shop the 90 or 95 per cent comprising the great middle-class trade upon which a business advances to success or goes down to failure study, with eager determination to make their dollars do the greatest service, first, the advertising columns of the newspapers, and second, the shop windows.

In this connection I have often wondered why some genius did not humanize the dummies. Need a window dummy really be so frightfully dummified, or need they bear such a distressing family resemblance one to the other?

WHY THE LOOP?

There are blond figures with eyes fixed in a glassy blue stare and there are brunette beauties with brown lamps. Their necks are twisted at an angle which suggests a fear that the third button from the top has given way, while the expression, such as it is, has a fifty-fifty choice. That is it either resembles a can of syrup or a dame instructing the brave firemen to save the child regardless of hell or high water. Most of them extend their right arm with the thumb and forefinger looped. This, a draper told us, indicated class, but to those whose memory goes back to preflivver days it more clearly recalls a hitching post with a ring into which the holding strap was snapped. The left arm is usually trailing along behind with a cute little 45-degree slant at the wrist. It is a position familiar to any good tight-wire artist.

In one window there is a dummy holding the spotlight position of the display. She leans forward, balanced on her toes and apparently waiting for the starter's word to "go." A string of big beads hang from her neck like a swing and for no apparent reason.

PLEA FOR THE FAT GIRL

This problem of the dummy has been surging through our system for so long that another criticism comes knocking at the door of a layman's appeal for originality. Who, for instance, ever saw a fat dummy? Yet there are a lot of fat girls left and some of 'em don't look so bad either. However, that's neither here nor there. The point is that a style may look like a million pesetas on a ninety-eight-pound flapper, that wouldn't look nearly so well on a thick girl. In justice to the "short stouts," let some hardy pioneer invent, or order or manufacture, or whatever it is that one does, a nice, wholesome, chubby, comfortable, size 42 dummy.

Another thing some folks just can't get used to is the presence of he-men amidst the figures performing in the capacity of maids. It's all right, of course, and the modesty of a chunk of plaster-of-Paris is nothing to get excited about, but just the same and notwithstanding, a pretty girl would look a lot nicer putting nighties and things on the dummies than a puzzled-looking shirt-sleeved, collarless man, who usually acts mad and looks as if he were wondering where "this darned thing went." The young women window shoppers have a sort of hesitancy about participating in the exercise. If a woman were in the window mingling with the wax girls there would be a better understanding all around.

AT THE WEEK-END

The past week has been one of uneven activity. The pre-Easter buying has stimulated retail trade to a marked degree, the warm weather at the end of the week providing a still further incentive to stock up with seasonable apparel. Good Friday was generally observed as a holiday by exchanges and financial interests, and as usual when the Saturday half-day follows a break in the week's routine business for the entire period is more or less affected. The major downward trend which appears to be under way in the stock market was more obvious and while certain groups resisted this tendency the general result was a lower price average. The bond market is strong. This is also in line with usual procedure on a declining stock market.

In Southern California the foot-and-mouth disease continues to have an effect in slowing down some lines of activity. Auto tourists are inconvenienced and the embargoes laid against California by border States will result in serious losses if long continued. However the situation is believed to be clearing and relief may reasonably be expected within a short time. Industrial inquiry continues brisk, and while the week's averages may run somewhat below normal the underlying situation is strong and the outlook excellent.

GOLD COMING BACK

The seeker of gold coin is rapidly regaining his position as a reputable member of society after several years of financial ostracism. Since the government practically recalled gold from general circulation at the beginning of the war it has been harder to secure a "yellow boy" than it is for a traffic cop to look pleasant. At the bank it took considerable "pull" to get a $5 gold piece and involved a trip into the vaults, and if one was well enough acquainted with the teller the inquiry as to how one "got that way." Now gold is coming back, and yesterday at a Spring-street bank we saw a modest little pile of gold coin sunning itself behind the bars to be had for the asking; provided one's check was good, and one didn't ask too much. It looks good to the old Californian who seldom saw a bit of paper money in the ante-bellum days.

An important factor in the business world is the relative supply of money gold of which the United States now holds over $4,000,000,000 representing about 40 per cent of the world's supply. This is too much and if we continue to draw on the supply eventually the world, outside of this country, would be compelled to adopt another money standard. The danger of demonetization, however, is remote, and other means of reaching monetary stability will probably be worked out with the solving of the European economic troubles, chief among which is likely to be the purchase of foreign securities by American investors, a process which will increase as peaceful and stable conditions are restored in Europe.

BUSSES FAIL AGAIN

Busses are all right as auxiliaries to street cars, but they won't do as an exclusive means of transportation. This has again been demonstrated in Akron, O., a city of 200,000 population which recently endured a siege of twenty-seven days without street cars, depending upon bus or jitney service for its entire urban transportation.

But the service proved insufficient, uncomfortable, inadequate and distressingly slow and congested.

The newly elected officials of Akron were trying to force the company to accept new franchises carrying a 5-cent fare provision. This the company could not do without operating at a loss. The result was no street car service.

Busses were ready and were immediately put on all runs, the city taking over the entire burden of keeping the streets free of snow.

The public began to protest at once, and finally, led by several women's organizations, the protest became so loud and strong that the Council yielded.

Car service has been restored at 5 cents with 1 cent for transfers, paving charges are to be remitted and busses are to cease operation.

Akron's experience, like that of Des Moines, proved that jitneys and motor busses can't successfully displace street cars.

DAY'S BEST INTERVIEW

Los Angeles is too far on its way toward financial, commercial and industrial supremacy to be seriously or more than transiently affected by such setbacks as result from epidemics. This situation at home, coupled with general political ambiguity and unsettlement has slowed down business everywhere, but any community that can absorb 1000 new industries in a year and has eighty-three buildings of ten or more floors in its business district, and these insufficient to care for the demand, is not in very bad shape. The most encouraging sign of the times, as I see it, is in the steady flow of inquiries from eastern manufacturers seeking information preliminary to establishing their enterprises here being received by my own and other houses interested in this phase of our development.

DEPRESSION IN PETROLEUM LIST

Oil Securities Shaded in Local Selling Campaign

Traders Are Still Friendly Toward "LAI"

Little Activity in Shares of Other Corporations

BY FRANK L. GARDNER
(Banks, Huntley & Co.)

The week on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange was featured by a decline in the representative oil stocks, which depressed three of the issues to figures recording new lows for this year.

An increase in crude production throughout the country was used as the excuse for a drive on this group on the eastern exchanges and quotations on local issues naturally were influenced sympathetically. Giving consideration to the substantial expansion in seasonal demand for crude and its products the moderate production increase should furnish little trouble and shares of the strong companies hold attractive possibilities around current levels.

Standard of California at 58, Pacific Oil at 47 3-4 and California Petroleum at 23 touched new low prices for 1924 and at these figures made an average decline for the week of more than 2 points. During the latter part of the week better support made its appearance and final quotations for these issues were up fractionally from the low.

Union Oil of California, trading in small volume, slumped off 3 points from 121 to 118 and closed there, while Union Oil Associates was off a point around 52 3-4. Displaying exceptional strength, Associated Oil moved within a narrow range and sold steadily around 30. General Petroleum changed hands in unusually light volume and sold as low as 40 3-4 with final sales at 41 1-8. Sales of Shell Union were at prices from 17⅛ to 17, closing at 17. United Oil reached the lowest price recorded since January when sales were made at 26 1-8.

Among the low-priced oils United States Royalties attracted considerable attention. Under heavy selling pressure Royalties was forced down to 18½ cents on Tuesday but subsequently has shown gradual improvement and final quotations were around 22. Globe Petroleum, on reports of good prospects for placing its Brunson well back on production, improved to around 6 cents and closed in good demand. A weaker tendency developed in Mascot Oil which sold around $1 all week. Republic Petroleum lost a half cent this week with the recent improved demand lacking.

"L.A.I." SOARS

Although no new announcements were forthcoming during the week affecting Los Angeles Investment stock, the quotation fluctuated from the previous week's close of 4.47 to 4.04. From the low, strong buying influenced the price and a substantial advance carried the market to a high of 4.60, ex-dividend 10 cents, and closed at 4.54. Goodyear Tire preferred and Goodyear Textile both remained at previous week's levels and Globe Grain common was inactive at about former quotations.

Considerable activity developed this week in Sun Finance and Investment at from 1.10 to 1.00 with final transactions around 1.07.

Southern California Edison common moved up from 103 to 103¾ during the week, largely on account of the May dividend disbursement of $2 per share, and closed yesterday at 101 ex-dividend and Edison 7 per cent preferred displayed more than usual activity around 104¼. Improving a point to 95½, San Joaquin prior preferred closed strong with little stock offered, and Los Angeles Gas and Electric 6 per cent preferred advanced fractionally to 91 1-8. No transactions were recorded during the week in Southern California Gas 6 per cent preferred, but closing bid of 91.50 represented a quarter point improvement.

BANK STOCKS

Advancing 2 points to 134, Bank of America stock recorded the only noticeable improvement in the bank list. In fact excepting a few odd-lots, and one sale of ten shares of Security at 310, no transactions were recorded in this group and bid and asked quotations were practically unchanged.

Stocks in the mining group were dull with few price changes worth noting. Tom Reed sagged 6 cents on little selling and United Eastern was conspicuously inactive at about its former level around 65 cents. Telluride lost a point, and the balance of the Oatman list changed hands on a small scale. Richmond Copper settled down again around 13 to 14½ cents with few transactions and several thousand shares of Virginia Louise sold at 2½ cents.

Constantly Growing

THE business of the Blue Diamond Company (largest producers, manufacturers and distributors of basic fireproof building materials west of Chicago) is constantly growing in volume, in earning capacity, and in prestige as a result of the increasing popularity of Blue Diamond products. Sales for the first quarter of 1924 made a gain of 24.8% over the corresponding period of last year, as compared with a gain of only 5% in building construction.

The ever-growing tendency toward the use of stone, sand, gravel, roofing aggregate, lime, gypsum, stucco, ready-mixed mortar, etc., in building construction, and the superiority of Blue Diamond products, a number of which are produced under exclusive patented processes, are responsible for the rapid growth, unusual stability and high earnings of this unique organization.

The first mortgage 7% bonds of this company at today's price, to yield more than 7%, are exceedingly attractive. Descriptive circular will be mailed upon request.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Quiet Market

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 19.—Despite selling of Interborough and Wilson & Co. issues, bond prices generally held firm in today's dull post-holiday market. Foreign government obligations and speculative railroad liens attracted the best inquiry.

Liquidation of Interborough bonds followed official announcement that the transit company had failed to reach fixed charges in the last eight months of operation and would have to resort to drastic measures to reduce expenses. Recessions of 1 to 2 points took place in three of the company's issues. After the recent sharp rally in Wilson & Co. mortgages, aided by the efforts of bankers to extend all bank loans for six months, profit taking occurred as a natural development and accounted for a 4 point loss in each of the two convertible issues.

Strength of French bonds and the rise of Belgian 8's to a new high record for 1924 at 102½ followed another rally in European exchanges, many of which touched the best figure of the year.

SALES

Sell $195^00 yearly BOND Income Buy $1250 yearly LAND Income

By John E. Kennedy

IS the best 6% BOND any SAFER than a strong LEASE from highly responsible Tenants?

Can you require better or more responsible Tenants than the Cudahy Interests, whose 37-year-old Cudahy Packing Co. marketed last year more than $190,000,000. of Meat Products against $160,000,000. the year before?

Edward A. Cudahy, Sr., is President of both Cudahy Packing Co. of Chicago and Cudahy Farm Operating Co.

John E. Wagner, Treasurer of Cudahy Packing Co., Chicago, is Vice-President of Cudahy Farm Operating Co.

Roderick Scott, for 17 years Gen'l Mgr. of Cudahy Packing Co. branch at Los Angeles, is Treasurer and Gen'l Mgr. of Cudahy Farm Operating Co., California.

The Cudahy Interests are SOLE owners of the Cudahy Farm Operating Co., signers of the Lease.

Do you want an ultimate "$1250.-per-Year-Income" from a $3250. Investment in Five Fruit Acres—payable $500. per year over 6½ years?

Do you want 10% Net Income yearly average from Cudahy cash Rentals, WHILE your property is growing from $650. per Acre to a probable $1350. or $2000. per Acre—through Cudahy operating Capital and cultivation?

California Income Fruit Land, when leased for Seven Years to SUCH Tenants, can be a SAFER source of Steady Income than many kinds of "Government Bonds" (Foreign.)

Buy Five Acres (or more) of this Cudahy Leased Land, while the Opportunity is open to you.

Pay for it with capital now invested in low-earning Bonds, or other Securities that yield less than 10%.

(What have you got that we can Convert for you?

AN Investment of $500. per Year for 6½ Years,—totalling $3250,—will produce following Comparative Income results:

—In Net Rentals from Cudahy-leased Lands $975.00
—In Bond Interest at 6% $727.50
—Increased Earnings—$247.50—or 34% more Income from Net Rentals than from Bond Interest.

But,—when you buy Five Acres of these Fruit Lands, safely leased for Seven Years to a subsidiary of the Cudahy Packing Co., Chicago, you receive MORE than a mere Stock or Bond CERTIFICATE for it.

You receive an outright DEED to the LAND itself.

This with a guarantee of TITLE in your own name, from a strong Title Insurance Co.

You receive with the Deed a Transfer of Seven-Year Lease,—making the Cudahys YOUR responsible Tenants, at a fixed, clearly specified, NET Rental of $285.00 per Acre,—or $1425.00 Rental from 5-Acre Tract during the unexpired (6½) years of Lease.

No Contract, no mere "Agreement"—but outright DEED to the LAND, with strong LEASE which pays all Taxes and other Expenses as well as the Rental.

Meantime, during term of Lease, the Cudahy Interests have already invested $216 per Acre, and are investing up to first commercial Crop, $194 per Acre more,—or $410. per Acre,—in the Planting, Cultivation and Care of this Land,—as per their signed certification.

This, to produce, and own, 4 Crops in the 7 years.

Add to that $410. the $290. per Acre rental they pay under the Seven-Year Lease, and you will see how STRONG their confidence in the LAND and PRODUCT.

Own a DEED to Net-Income Fruit Land Long-Leased to Cudahy's

THE CUDAHY Interests have STAKED $700, per Acre of THEIR money on the exceptional QUALITY of the particular Fruit Land here offered for sale by Kennedy, Hardie & Co.

THEY selected that Land for Planting, and the particular Permanent Crop THEY have planted on it.

Valuations by American Appraisal Co. indicate that when the Seven-Year Lease expires, matured Fruit Lands like these should be WORTH $1350. to $2000. per Acre.

From that time onward they can produce,—for whoever then OWNS the Land,—a probable Net Profit of more than $250.00 per Year, per Acre,—or $1250.00 per year from Five Acres,—under continuing Operating arrangement as provided for in Lease, at Option of Land Owner.

Now consider THIS:

You can buy today, while offered, Five Acres or more of these highly developed Fruit Lands (subject to current Cudahy Lease) at the relatively low Price of $650. PER ACRE,—with SIX years to pay for it and 5% Interest.

Buy it and let your increasing Land-Value CUMULATE, during the 6½ years of Lease, into a Competence.

By the year 1930, when your prospective "$1250-per-Year" return on Five Acres is due, Federal Income Taxes on Income and Profits will doubtless be much lower than today.

No banker should need greater safety combined with high Earnings.

NO WAGE-EARNER who can spare $50 per month need lose THIS rare opportunity to build a safe Competence for his family and himself,—provided he has the Energy to act promptly.

Buy Five Acres of this INCOME—FARM—LAND while it is open to you.

It will pay a positive Net 10% average on every Dollar you invest in it from your first $100. per Acre payment, during term of lease.

This with reasonable certainty of "$1,250 per Year for Life" after the Seven-Year Lease expires, and extension arrangement goes into effect at YOUR option.

It will provide a permanent Pension for Life, carrying its own Charges, without your living on the Land or knowing anything about Farming.

It will guard you and yours against the dangers of Disability or Destitution in Old Age.

So—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY.

ORANGES

The market on California navel oranges eased off somewhat the past week, particularly on 150s and larger, which have commanded a premium over the smaller sizes. The demand continues active, however, and the statistical situation favors a steady market on the balance of the navel crop.

At the present rate of shipping, navels and miscellaneous varieties of oranges should all be shipped by May 15, leaving the field clear for the Valencia crop, which is estimated at approximately 24,000 cars.

Valencia shipping from Tulare county is now well under way. The yield is anticipated as between 50 and 60 per cent of average. The quality and size are said to be the best for several seasons. The coming week will see a fair movement of Valencias from Southern California districts, principally Orange county. By May 1 shipping will be in full swing.

Shipments for the month of May last season totaled 6854 cars of oranges, an average of 221.1 cars per day. The first half of the month showed average shipments of 290.3 cars daily, while the last half averaged 147.7 cars daily.

For the month of May last year, Florida shipped 3420 cars of oranges and grapefruit. The combined shipments of Florida citrus fruit and California oranges for May last season was 10,274 cars, or an average of 331.4 cars daily.

F.o.b. California quotations show no change over a week ago. The range for fancy navels is as follows: Size 100s, $4.75; 126s, $4.50; 150s, $4.25; 176s, $3.50; 200s, $3; 216s, $2.50; 250s, $2.25; 288s, $2; 324s, $1.75. Choice fruit 50 cents per box less on sizes 176s and larger and 25 cents per box less on 200s and smaller.

Sweets are quoted at 25 cents a box under the above prices and seedlings 50 cents a box less.

LEMONS

There is a good demand for California lemons in all markets.

The volume of sales is increasing daily. There is considerable speculative demand developing in all markets and the outlook is better than it has been for some time.

The late rains have sized up the fruit so that the size situation has reversed itself. There now exists a shortage in 360s size. This size is now in demand.

F.o.b. California quotations on extra choice lemons ranges from $2 for 360s size to $3.50 for 300s.

There are on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days at all United States ports approximately 103 cars of foreign lemons, as against 267 cars for the corresponding period last year, and 344 cars two years ago.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Speculative interest again concentrated in Los Angeles Investment in yesterday's half-day session on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, carrying the price from initial sales of 4.42 to 4.60 at the high, or 19 cents above the final price of the previous session. Realizing sales made their appearance near the close, and the price receded to 4.53½, a net gain over the preceding session of 12½ cents.

Petroleum stocks were irregular in their trend. General Petroleum common advanced 1-8 of a point to 41 1-8, while Standard of California fell 1 5-8 to 57½. United Oil dropped 3-8 to 26, and U. S. Royalties moved forward at the finish to 22 cents.

Goodyear Tire preferred was the strong spot in the industrial list at 92½. Mining shares were featureless, Tom Reed sinking from an opening of 32 to 29, Oatman United selling at 6½ and Richmond Consolidated at 14 cents. Following are the closing quotations and sales:

Upward Thrust in Grain; Gains Are Recorded

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, April 19.—A wave of short covering swept over the wheat market, and with closing of spreads between wheat and corn and back spreading with Winnipeg, May advanced to 1.04⅝, the highest figure since March 24, and closed at 1.04⅜@1.04⅝, going to 2 cents under the July, compared with 2¼ cents in the early trading. Closing figures showed net gains of 1⅛@1⅝c. Corn was ⅛@⅝c higher, oats ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher and rye ⅝c higher.

There has been some change in sentiment amongst wheat traders during the past week, with fears that the McNary bill might have a radical effect on values.

Between the various influences the close was about the top, with net gains of 2⅛@2⅝c for the week. Corn was up ⅝@1⅛c, oats ⅛@⅝c and rye ⅝@1c for the week. Lard declined 2½@5c, while ribs gained 10 to 17½c and bellies 17½ to 22½c.

There was a noticeable lack of pressure on wheat and the advance was easily attained. A local house with Northwestern connections started to buy May and sell July at 2¼c difference and the surplus May in the pit was repeatedly absorbed. Later those who have been short wheat against purchases of corn started to close spreads, causing the latter grain to weaken, but without having much effect on wheat. The Winnipeg-Chicago May spread widened to 3⅝c at the last compared with 2⅛c earlier in the week. May closed at 1.04⅜@1.04⅝, July at 1.06⅜@1.06⅝ and September at 1.07⅜@1.07½.

Houses with export connections were buyers of futures at Winnipeg. Traders on the whole showed more disposition to pay attention to crop damage reports from the States east of the Mississippi River, and the complaints of dry weather in parts of the Northwest and on the Pacific Coast. Export sales at the seaboard were 300,000 bushels, presumably all Manitobas, and charters have been made the past week for around 3,000,000 bushels. With lake navigation a factor the trade anticipates a fair decrease to be shown in the domestic visible supply for the week.

Corn was decidedly unsettled, due largely to spreading operations with wheat. Locals got long early, and sold out later, only to see the market rally and close about the top, with May 78⅜@78½, July at 79⅜@79½ and September at 79⅝@79¾. Demand for cash corn from the East was again slow, with receipts of 122 cars.

May oats failed to get into new ground and weakened after an early bulge on selling induced by reports that Canadians were offered at equal to 1c under domestic grain in New England. May finished at 47⅜@47½. Export sales of 100,000 bushels Canadian were reported at the seaboard. Weather conditions were general favorable for field work.

Rye was dull and derived the greater part of its strength from wheat. Export inquiry remains slow.

TELEPHONE SERVICE IMPROVEMENT NOTED

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SANTA MONICA, April 19.—Telephone service in the Bay District is much improved under the new management of the Santa Monica Bay Telephone Company, according to information received from directors of the local Chamber of Commerce. Secretary McKenney of the Chamber has been instructed to write officials letters of congratulation commending the company upon the service. Before the change of control directors of the Chamber made an appeal to the State Railroad Commission to order improvements in the service locally. The change in management came before the commission had time to take action, it is stated.

HEATER CAUSES FIRE

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

VENICE, April 19.—An overheated water heater resulted in a fire at the home of R. N. Baker, 119 Paloma avenue early today, when $1000 damage was done. The heater was left burning while occupants of the house were out, it was said. The loss was covered by insurance.

Copper Co. (Globe)
1000 Common—"Cheap"

We say "cheap" because it appears that it is cheap when compared to the "Class A" traded in on New York Curb at $2.75 and $3.00. Our advice from the Corporation Commissioner of Phoenix, Arizona, indicates that the "Class A" is worth only 5c per share per year more than the COMMON. We understand that the Board of Directors can call in the Class "A" at any time and give the holders thereof—share for share—the same amount of Common Stock. Better investigate.

ABOVE OFFERINGS SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE OR WITHDRAWAL. ERRORS EXCEPTED

"Well, Look Who's Here," "Folks" "It's Nobody Else But"

And whether that old saying, "you can't keep a good man down" prevails, or whether it is a case of "a bad penny being sure to always turn up again" is up to you to decide.

However, here I am breaking back into print with that same old line of chatter that I've peddled to you so long.

And by way of a new introduction to you all, I'm going to give you a little "low down information" that if you take advantage of right now, might make you a tidy piece of change in a hurry.

The "Julian Petroleum Corporation" have been drilling a well on the Q.T. for the past three months, near "Durango, Colorado," on a solid block of land comprising nearly ten thousand acres, and I have just received a telegram, in fact I've received a dozen of them from our Superintendent, J. A. Leidecker, there, advising me that he has picked up at 3015 feet, what looks to him like "a knockout well," with the oil testing nearly 50 gravity, and requesting me to hurry up there and see them drill in a gusher, so I'm on my way today, and if she's the candy, I'll burn the wires up telling you.

Remember, I'm not vouching for this well being a gusher until I see it flowing into the tanks, because sometimes on a wildcat like this baby, the boys in the field get a little over enthusiastic about a showing, but in view of the fact that on a "cold blooded appraisal," of the assets of the "Julian Petroleum Corporation," she showed that every unit (2 Preferred and 1 Common) which I sold at $100, has an actual value of better than $116 today, I'd say from the road, that you couldn't go far wrong in tying onto a little "Julian Pete," and if we have picked up the grease in Colorado at our present depth or even if we have to go 1000 feet deeper than we are now, she'll sure be milk and honey on that one bet alone.

Just bear in mind that this 10,000 acre lease in Colorado didn't even show in our list of assets as appraised by the "Investigating Committee," in fact our Corporation owns many thousands of acres of leases in California on some of the best looking structures in this State, that we refrained from including in our assets owing to the fact that we did not care to make that information public.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

As forecast exclusively in The Times several months ago, the Pan-American Petroleum Company will shortly launch itself in the retail gasoline business here. It was learned yesterday that the Doheny organization already has at least nineteen service stations under construction in this vicinity.

These are located as follows: Bernard street and North Broadway, Eight and Crocker streets, B street and Wilmington Boulevard in Wilmington, Vermont and Third street, Browning and Western avenue, Main and Llewellyn streets, Jefferson and Hoover streets, Santa Barbara and Main streets, Vermont and Forty-third Place, Fourth and Crocker streets, Sixth and Downe avenue, Alameda and Macy streets, Exposition Boulevard and Vermont avenue, Twentieth street and Central avenue, St. Louis and East First street, Vermont Place and Vermont avenue, Union and Washington streets, Forty-third Place and Moneta avenue, Washington and Alameda streets.

The stations are being built of steel segments. According to current rumor in oil circles a contract has been let to a local steel plant for the construction of 150 of these stations.

Sandburg Starts Second

Although its first well in the Rosecrans area has not been completed, the Sandburg Petroleum Company is starting its second hole there. According to John Sandburg, president of the company, the second hole is being started on the strength of showings in the first one.

This new project is known as the Steele No. 1. It is located 700 feet from the company's Moreland No. 1, which is now down 4700 feet. Mr. Sandburg says that the Moreland well has seventy feet of sand at the bottom of the hole, and that it will be cemented off as soon as the crew can fish out a bit that was dropped a few days ago.

It was learned yesterday that the Sandburg company now has four different leases at Rosecrans, totaling ninety-two acres.

Large Lease Taken

The Eskridge and Craise Oil Company has acquired 1320 acres east of Olinda, it is reported by officials of the company. The tract is held partly in fee and partly by lease, and is two miles east of the Olinda fields, it is said. According to Dr. F. A. Craise, who directed the geological examination of the property, there are distinct evidences of a dome on the eastern extremity of the lease.

Completion Near

The U. S. Royalties Company is preparing to bring in its No. 16A on the Hub lease in the Torrance field, according to officials. The plug has been drilled out, and the crew is swabbing, with the expectation of putting the well on production today or tomororw.

Gasser Controlled

After sixty hours of work the crews of the Union Oil Company yesterday succeeded in taming the Callender No. 2, which broke loose last Wednesday night and for nearly three days spouted gas and oil over the derrick. A new valve fitting was installed yesterday and the production was turned into the tanks. According to reports of the Union Oil Company the well is making 3000 barrels of oil and 30,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

Plug Bixby Well

The Bixby No. 1 of the United Oil Company in the Signal Hill field is to be plugged back to 4600 feet from 5335 feet, it is reported. Officials of the company are said to have abandoned hope of getting a productive formation below 4600 feet. The well was on production from the shallower depths for a short time, the well blowing in unexpectedly, and flowing 500 barrels per day.

Try New Plan

The California Drilling Company which has been trying to complete the Long Beach Petroleum Corporation's well at the western edge of the Signal Hill field, has decided that production at 460 feet, is not feasible, and will make its next production test at 3900 feet, it is said.

Prolonged efforts to solve the water trouble in this well have apparently confirmed the theory that it is in the edge of the sand, although some good cores have been taken, it is said. Sands which looked good enough for production were found at around 4000 feet, but no production test was made at that time.

Ventura Prospects

According to reports from the Ventura district a summer filled with oil developments is in prospect there. No less than half a dozen of the big companies are planning to drill new wells on their properties there.

Ralph B. Lloyd of this city was in the Ventura district during the week, looking over several properties which are operated by some of the larger companies. He declined to discuss the nature of his plans, but declared that things should be moving briskly there in the course of a few weeks.

The Shell Company and Associated Oil Company are heavily interested near Ventura, and E. J. Miley recently took over about 3000 acres of prospective oil land there.

California Crude Output

According to the latest report of the American Petroleum Institute, the total production of crude oil in California during March was 19,913,262 barrels, and the combined stocks on hand at that time amounted to 96,666,713 barrels.

The increase in stocks amounted to 1,206,214 barrels. One hundred and thirty-one wells were completed in the State during the month, these having a combined initial output amounting to 62,771 barrels.

WILL INCREASE CAPITAL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

TOPEKA (Kan.) April 19.—Application of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad for an increase of $100,000,000 in capital stock was granted today by the State Charter Board. The new capitalization will include 1,314,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock and 3,300,000 shares of common stock, all $100 par value.

(Special dividends not listed.)
Total sales of stocks—316,900 shares.
Total sales of bonds—$7,400,000.

MARKET REVIEW

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 19.—The positive tendency, which was entirely lacking in today's uncertain stock market, was much in evidence on the foreign exchange market. Under wheat seemed to be heavy buying, sterling rose 3 cents to $4.38½, closing nearly at the highest, while francs passed the previous high point of the year, reaching 6.34 cents. This price was higher than the rate quoted on several days of January and February, 1923, when France was beginning her occupation of the Ruhr. The day's sterling rate went for the first time in the present month above the previous high point of 1924; today's rate was above that of last November, when the foolish "British inflation scare" had coincided with Baldwin's equally foolish announcement of a general election on the protective tariff issue.

Considering that today was as close a financial holiday as Friday on the European markets, this advance in rates, which the other European exchanges followed, was particularly noteworthy. It may have been helped along by discretionary orders by Europe with our bankers; but the New York initiative was undoubtedly the essential factor. Even financial London has lately been admitting, with much humility, that the course of sterling exchange would this time depend on Wall street. But whatever the immediate source of the buying orders, this week-end rise of exchange rates can hardly be called surprising.

In so-far as European rates move and have hithertofore moved for "sentimental" or "psychological" reasons, the Dawes report and the sequel to its publication have been quite as important in their way as was the French advance into the Ruhr. But there are tangible influences also in the market. The "flight of European capital" to New York has visibly ceased; something of a return flow would now be natural. Our own monthly surplus of merchandise exports "mostly occurring in trade with Europe," has lately fallen to one-fifth or one-sixth what it was in December and November. Today's cables brought a statement of the foreign trade of France for the completed quarter, showing an export surplus of 748,000,000 francs as against an import surplus of 394,000,000 in the same three months of 1923.

Today's movement on the stock exchange was of no significance whatever. It was equally divided between advances and declines and, while changes were only fractional as a rule, there were both upward and downward movements of a point or more. But they clearly represented nothing but footless backing and filling on the part of the professional speculative group whose own longer view of the financial future seems to be quite as cloudy as that of other people.

Trading Light; Prices Firm

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, April 19. — Total stock sales, 386,400 shares. Twenty industrials averaged 91.78; previous day, 92.12. High, 1924, 101.24; low, 90.83. Twenty railroads averaged 81.87; previous day, 81.95. High, 1924, 86.32; low, 81.00.

Acute weakness of the Chicago Yellow Cab issues, which broke to new low levels for the year, was the outstanding development in today's irregular stock market. Prices in general held relatively firm, but the volume of trading was unusual small owing to the absence of many traders over the Easter holiday.

Foreign exchanges were the center of special interest, with the British, French and Spanish rates soaring to new high levels for the year. Demand sterling was pushed up nearly 3 cents across $4.38 and French francs mounted several points to around 6 1-3 cents. Spanish pesetas crossed 14 cents for the first time. The improvement in European exchanges reflected the more cheerful sentiment concerning the reparations problem.

Yellow Cab Manufacturing, which was selling around 84 when it was listed on the New York Stock Exchange a few weeks ago, recorded an overnight drop of 9 1-2 points to 50 1-4, while Chicago Yellow Cab slumped 3 3-8 points to 96 3-4. A sharp break of 9 points in Atlantic Refining followed publication of the annual report showing total income of $12,451,683 last year, as against $17,427,053 in 1922.

Good buying support was in evidence for the usual market leaders. Oil shares were inclined to lose ground despite the announcement to higher prices for Smackover crude. Losses of a point or more were recorded by Pacific, Phillips Petroleum, Houston, Pan-American B, Cosden and Standard Oil of California. Standard Oil of New Jersey broke below 36 to a lowest price for the year.

American Sugar preferred broke more than a point to 87 3-4, a new 1924 minimum, and the common dropped one, selling of these issues apparently being influenced by the erratic course of commodity prices, following the publication of the government report indicating a record world crop of sugar.

The weekly bank statement showed decreases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments dropped $19,454,000; cash in own vaults $807,000; net demand deposits $20,982,000, and time deposits $2,029,000. Aggregate reserves totaled $502,641,000, making a deficit in reserve of $8,532,370, an increase of $2,573,120 above a week ago.

Week in Review

Chief financial interest this week centered in the strength of the European exchanges, which reflected the rapid progress being made toward the acceptance of the Dawes's report. A burst of week-end buying sent demand sterling above $4.38 and French francs to around 6 1-3 cents each at new high levels for the year. Japanese yen broke 41 cents to a new low in response to developments at Washington on the Japanese exclusion feature of the immigration bill.

Standard industrial and railroad stocks showed strong resistance to selling pressure during the week, although bear traders succeeded in uncovering a number of weak spots in the specialty list. Bond prices held relatively firm with the United States Liberty and French and Belgian issues mounting to new high levels.

"The weekly bank statement showed increases in most of the principal items. Loans, discounts and investments increased $26,186,000; cash in own vaults decreased $1,748,000; net demand deposits increased $30,270,000; time deposits increased $8,133,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $554,143,000, making a deficit in reserve of $32,172,900, an increase of $40,755,270 above a week ago."

PRODUCE MARKET IN SAN FRANCISCO

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19.—As a result of special Easter demand strawberries cleaned up early at higher prices, although receipts amounted to [illegible] chests and 2100 crates. Liberal receipts of bananas have materially weakened the local market and prices now range from 6½ to 8 cents per pound.

Strawberries, Imperial, 1.75@2.75 per crate. Local, 1.00@1.25 per drawer.

Bananas, Hawaiian, 7@8; eastern 6½ per pound.

New potatoes, tomatoes and peas were in good demand with higher prices reported on the first two commodities. Best tomatoes sold from 2.50@3.00 per lug. City cold storages held 47,056 sacks of onions and 54,418 sacks of potatoes on April 18, 1924.

Asparagus, graded, 10@12 per pound.

Lettuce, load best, 2.25; Salinas load, 2.75@3.25 per crate.

Onions, dry jobbing, browns, medium to large sizes best, 1.25@1.40.

Potatoes, new stock, Garnets, 6@7.

Tomatoes, Mexican best, 2.50 per lug; repacked, 2.75@3.00. Poorer, 1.50@2.00 per lug.

No dairy markets today.

Receipts: Flour, 2380 quarter sacks; wheat, 1618 ctls.; corn, 800 ctls.; potatoes, 2049 sacks; onions, 422 sacks; hay, 120 tons; hides, 121 no.; lemons and oranges, 4050 boxes. Livestock, none. Hay and grain unchanged.

CANADIAN PACIFIC TO OFFER BONDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B.C.) April 19.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Company is making inquiries of bond dealers throughout Canada as to the possibility of placing the recent issue of $12,000,000 in the Canadian market.

Local bond dealers claim that the market is well cleaned up on good bonds and such an issue would be well received. If this issue is floated in Canada it will be the first flotation of this nature that the company has placed in the Dominion in ten years and is good evidence of what the directorate and financial advisers of the railway company think of the powers of the Canadian market to absorb such an issue.

FIRST QUARTER SALES SHOW IMPROVEMENT

The Blue Diamond Company, producers, manufacturers and distributors of basic fireproof building materials, reports sales of $944,798 for the first quarter of 1924 as compared with $758,559 for the corresponding period of 1923. This represents a gain of 24.5 per cent as compared with a gain of approximately 5 per cent in building operations. The increased ratio of business is attributed to the growing tendency toward the use of stone, sand, gravel, roofing aggregate, lime, gypsum, stucco, ready mixed mortar, etc., in building construction, and by the increasing popularity of Blue Diamond products, a number of which are produced by exclusive patented processes and delivered to the building operations ready for use.

FLOOD CONTROL NEED STRESSED

Engineer Says Work Should Not be Delayed

"Skeleton" System Piling is Going to Decay

Permanent Conservation of Water Urged

BY JAMES W. REAGAN
Chief Engineer, County Flood Control District

Following the disastrous floods of 1914, when more than $10,000,000 in damage was done in Los Angeles county, the flood control district came into being. It was the purpose of a board of engineers, named shortly after legal machinery had been approved, to survey the county and determine the best possible steps to be taken for prevention of another such disaster.

That survey occupied some few months and reports to the County Board of Supervisors differed, chiefly on one score. The majority of engineers recommended immediate construction of dams and reservoirs to check these flood waters, at a cost then of some $20,000,000. Another report suggested the expenditure of between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 for "skeleton work," a foundation for control along the river beds around which ultimately could be built a true control system.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE

The county has accomplished that smaller endeavor. Waters have been guided down permanent channels, when heretofore they cut new channels during flood period; safety work has been done in river beds to prevent overflow. About 35,000 piles have been driven along the rivers. In six or seven years from now that piling will be badly decayed.

The time has arrived when this first effort of the flood control district should be carried on to a point where permanent insurance against flood disaster can be accomplished and water conserved.

One of the chief conservation purposes of the dams and reservoirs to be built, providing the bonds are voted on favorably on May 6, will be the replenishing of underground reservoirs.

Water can be regulated and released from the impounding sites in such a manner as to permit its seepage into the earth and refill these subterranean reservoirs. Originally, when engineering figures were first taken there was an area in Los Angeles county, between the city and harbor, of 177 square miles of artesian acreage. In 1904 that area had dwindled to 110 square miles and now, in 1924, the total artesian area is but twenty-eight square miles! Engineers who have studied our water problem predict this artesian area will be gone entirely, unless steps such as planned are undertaken, within the next eight or ten years.

MUST PROTECT PEOPLE

In the past four years some 100,000 acres of land in and around Los Angeles has been subdivided into lots. Ultimately homes will be built on all these lots. Many now are being built. This tremendous increase in population must be protected, just as the population now here must be protected.

I will take up in a series of articles the work to be done under the program which has been proposed for adoption this coming election. Consideration now centers on the San Antonio Canyon impeding dam, the Thompson Creek reservoir and the Big Dalton Canyon dam.

In San Antonio Canyon the area of the watershed is twenty-six square miles and in times of heavy rain furnishes a very violent runoff. During flood stage, considerable damage is done to Claremont and Pomona city property. The plan for controlling these waters and conserving them is by means of a concrete masonry impeding dam across the San Antonio Canyon, of gravity type, 125 feet high with a reinforced concrete spillway at its east end, the sill of which will be fifteen feet below the top of the dam. The elevation from sea level will be 2625 feet. The area of the reservoir will be approximately thirty-six acres. Below the reservoir and dam would be a spreading ground, with crudely bottomed ditches spread over the area, without protection to bottom or sides. These ditches, being porous, permit absorption of the water into the ground. Cost for this work would total $450,000.

TWO DAMS PLANNED

At Thompson Creek Canyon, where flood runoff also does damage to the city of Pomona, a reservoir requiring two dams would be built. The larger dam would be earth and rock fill, sixty-five feet high, with reinforced concrete core wall and wide puddled sections on either side. The smaller dam would be plain earth and rock fill, the reservoir being created occupying about forty-five acres. Cost would be $146,000.

In Big Dalton Canyon the storm and flood waters from this watershed have been destructive to lands in the center of Glendora and at various places between Glendora and Dalton Park. Area of the shed is about seven and a half square miles, but no favorable dam site offers itself at the mouth of the canyon. However, at a point where about five square miles of the watershed and its tributaries lie above it, a favorable dam site presents itself. The structure would be of concrete masonry of the multiple arch type and would be built to a height of 140 feet. The project here would cost $555,000.

In these three works that very fertile land surrounding such cities as Claremont, Pomona, Glendora, Dalton Park and other places would be protected against flood hazard; the levels of wells in the territory raised and water stored in the reservoirs themselves for use during dry seasons.

IMMUNIZING PLEA VOICED

Dr. Dunshee Urges Parents Take Advantage of Science in Guarding Tots Against Diphtheria

Despite the discovery of antitoxins twenty-five years ago, which is regarded as one of the greatest triumphs of medical science, diphtheria today is causing a greater mortality among children than any of the communicable diseases, according to a statement of Dr. J. D. Dunshee, in charge of the Los Angeles Health Department, division of child welfare, in an article which the American Child Health Association will circulate shortly throughout the country in its magazine.

The article contends that while diphtheria has been found to be the most easily eradicated of all communicable diseases following the discovery of antitoxin, a growing laxity among parents in becoming more noticeable as regards the prevention of disease. So long as this condition prevails authorities only can attempt to protect the public by means of quarantine, but are helpless to save the approximate 20,000, who die each year, according to the doctor.

PROOF IS CITED

Some doubt might have existed when preventive measures first were introduced, Dr. Dunshee said, but present-day statistics show that not a single case of diphtheria has developed during the past four years in the local institutions where children are immunized against the disease. Previous to this when the methods were not employed these same institutions were under quarantine for diphtheria from two to four months every year, he declared.

Lack of information on the subject has been the principal cause for parents' laxity in not insuring their children's health, the doctor asserts. As an example he points out that a nationally known life insurance company recently carried on an educational campaign of preventive medicines. As a result, he said, the longevity of their policy holders has increased to the extent of returning the company many years of premiums and vast savings in death claims.

EARLY LIFE MEASURE

Conclusive figures have been obtained, the doctor writes, indicating that if preventive measures are to be taken to insure immunity from diphtheria throughout life they must be instituted at the age of 6 years. The process employed today is practically painless and does not result in a "sore arm," Dr. Dunshee explains.

The article appeals to women's clubs, parent-teacher associations and other community organizations as the best agencies for assisting in the local and national efforts now being made to insure a healthier population.

MARINE RECORD FOR CITY

President Harrison Due Tomorrow; First Liner to Circle Globe in Regular Service

Marine history will be made at the harbor at daylight tomorrow, when the Dollar liner President Harrison comes in, the first liner in history to circumnavigate the globe in a regular service under any flag.

She is making the pathfinding voyage in the record time of 110 days, an iron-clad schedule to which she has adhered on every leg of her 30,000-mile swing around the world. Five continents, twelve countries and twenty-two ports were visited by the President Harrison, the first in service of the Dollar world fleet of seven 21,000-ton sister ships.

ON SEVEN SEAS

She is bringing thirty-one passengers and 3000 tons of freight from the Orient, Mediterranean and eastern ports for Los Angeles. Among those to disembark here are B. C. Chatt, Andros Mirovitch, Mrs. D. G. McDonald and son, James, and Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ward. The President Harrison is in command of Capt. K. A. Ahlin, one of the best known mariners sailing under any flag.

The seven ships of the Dollar Line will be scattered around the world on the seven seas when the President Harrison arrives at Los Angeles tomorrow. The President Hayes is in the North Atlantic at Boston, the President Adams in the Indian Ocean at Colombo, the President Garfield in the China Sea en route to Singapore, the President Polk in the Inland Sea of Japan on the way to Kobe, the President Monroe on the Pacific near Honolulu, and the President Van Buren will be on the Caribbean Sea near Havana.

OFF FOR ORIENT

The President Harrison will also take aboard thirty passengers for the world tour and 2000 tons of Los Angeles cargo before sailing at 10 p.m. on the 22nd inst. for the Orient via San Francisco.

Another notable passenger arrival of the week-end will be that of the Panama-Pacific liner Finland, due from San Francisco at noon today on her way to New York and Havana. She will sail tomorrow afternoon with 350 passengers and 7000 tons of California products.

SUED IN SLAYING

Officer Convicted Faces Action for $35,000 Damages

Charles R. Florer, former head of the vice squad of the University Police Division, who was convicted of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Ellis D. Rogers, 16 years of age, during a raid on an asserted crap game, was made defendant yesterday in a suit for $35,000 damages filed in the Superior Court by the slain youth's parents, Robert H. and Della Rogers.

According to the complaint, which was prepared by Attorney Charles R. McCarty, Florer "negligently and maliciously shot the boy December 30, 1923.

In prospecting for ore, miners often look for certain plants which are said to grow in soil where mineral deposits can be found.

TREAT IN STORE FOR RADIO FANS

Manuscript night last Thursday at KHJ made the past week one of the eventful in the history of radio broadcasting. It was the dawn of a new era in which the budding and unknown composer would have his or her hearing at the bar of public opinion. Not content, however, with its previous successes, KHJ has arranged for the coming week programs including some of the old favorites and several new personalities.

An attraction extraordinary will be the appearance of Mario Rubini, the premier tenor of what is declared by its creators to be the greatest prologue in the world, that of the Ten Commandments showing at Grauman's Egyptian Theater. Mr. Grauman through whose courtesy this gifted and noted artist will appear, brought him from Chicago after scouring the country for a lyric tenor possessing the wealth of tone quality found in Rubini's voice.

INSTRUCTORS FAMOUS

A protege of Trevisan, Bonci, Raisa and Dolci, he is not only justifying their highest expectations but is daily adding to his fame the plaudits of countless numbers and the generous praise of critics. An artist whose instruction has come from masters, this young tenor has ascended with unusual rapidity toward stardom, a journey which bids fair to continue uninterrupted. Radioland will be privileged to bask in the warmth of his voice tonight. A musical treat that is not served daily.

Sam Hinds of Champagne bottle fame will be master of ceremonies on his own program which includes Floryane Thompson, Mildred Marsh, Carl Gantvoort and Edward Murphey, director of the Pasadena Community Broadcasters, whose deep voice is well known. Five additional reasons for arranging your affairs to prevent the intervention of any factor to prevent you from hearing this wonderful program.

On Monday Olive Ann Alcorn, famous beauty, will divulge secrets of her charms. Don't order any dessert for that lunch hour.

ROSITE'S ORCHESTRA

Rosite's Mexican Typical Orchestra will be on hand to woo you with melodies of sunny Spain. In the evening a decided novelty will be offered by twelve young girls who will present a beautiful basket of flowers. The removal of each flower will be accompanied by songs that have not been heard in many years. Instructive facts regarding flowers, birds and butterflies will be given to the listeners.

PROGRAM OF JAZZ

White's Californians will snap them up on Wednesday with their own brand of jazz. Have the carpets rolled up in preparation for some good dance music. Queen Titania and the Sandman will make their weekly visit and as they never fail to surprise the lads and lassies with new stories of Fairyland or possibly a trip to strange lands, everyone may expect an interesting evening. Through the courtesy of Paul G. Hoffman a group of artists who require no introduction will appear to entertain you. None other than Claire Forbes Crane, Tilda Rohr, Sol Cohen and Robert Alter, which makes it imperative that you cancel all other radio engagements for Tuesday night.

The Studebaker Radio Orchestra of Long Beach will drive in Wednesday with a spicy program and put pep in your step. This will be a splendid opportunity to give that delayed dance you had planned. Antch Chris and his Hawaiian guitar will also be amongst those present. Dr. Baumgardt was prevented by family illness from appearing last week but reports have it that he will arrive with his solar special and steam up for another trip through the heavens.

TRAVEL STORIES

Capt. Salisbury will appear Thursday with a flock of travel stories that should prove as interesting as his previous narrations. Dickie Brandon will be there to tell stories of a different nature. On Friday Gladys Terrell, whose noonday programs, two weeks ago stirred more memories than Radioland realized existed, returns in a program with Sol Cohen which makes a splendid combination. Edward Murphey, the proficient director of the Community Broadcasters of Pasadena will present another playlet which he promises will equal in interest his last presentation of "The Chess Game."

The week will be brought to a close by Florayne Thompson, who helped to open it; Helen Pirie with another installment of the verses to her radio friends, who are always delighted to hear them and the Mary Christine Albin Trio.

Affairs of the week

By Juana Neal Levy

[illegible] California every day is joyous, for the sunshine and flowers are "ever with us," still Easter Sunday is one of the most glorious holidays of the entire year. Coming as it does after the Lenten period, there is more than [illegible] festivities in social circles, and every one is trying to [illegible] up, as it were, for the quiet season just ended.

[illegible] week this year will be a [illegible] one, and teas, din[illegible] luncheons and weddings will [illegible] the attention of the social [illegible] philanthropy also will [illegible] space in its activities. [illegible] "Whispers Revue," mam[illegible] Thursday evening for [illegible] Children's Hospital, that insti[illegible] holds a great place in [illegible] of the loving Los An[illegible] which is never too [illegible] too weary to give of its [illegible] abundance to the "kid[illegible] helping them in every pos[illegible] to regain health and [illegible] will be a feature of the [illegible]

[illegible] Adeline Thompson, attrac[illegible] daughter of Mrs. C. S. [illegible] of West Thirty-first [illegible] is planning a delightful [illegible] holiday. With her aunt, [illegible] Stanton, and her [illegible] friend, Miss Margaret Jor[illegible] is motoring up to pass [illegible] in the north. They will [illegible] several days to visit with [illegible] and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Stanton, in Menlo Park, [illegible] go on to San Francisco. [illegible] Thompson is a senior this [illegible] Collegiate and while [illegible] are not quite formulated [illegible] contemplating attending the [illegible] of California. Her uncle, [illegible] T. Campbell, is president [illegible] university and is quite anx[illegible] her to make it her Alma [illegible] While in the north she [illegible] guest of Dr. and Mrs. [illegible] at their Berkeley home.

[illegible] the most attractive young [illegible] of local society is Mrs. [illegible] Hunter, wife of the well-known golf enthusiast, who, as Miss Betty Hixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon, was one of the most popular debutantes in Pasadena and Los Angeles society. Mrs. Hunter, who returned several months ago from her honeymoon in Honolulu, has been the honor guest at a number of charmingly arranged affairs. She will assist as matron of honor at the wedding next month of Miss Elizabeth Taylor and Dr. John Moore Schmoele, which will take place at the home of the bride's parents on May 10.

The announcement several weeks ago by The Times of the engagement of Miss Charlene Brizzolari and Miss Dorothy Brizzolari, charming young twin daughters of Mrs. Virginia Phelps Brizzolari of West Fifty-fourth street, was of much interest to local society. Miss Charlene will soon become the bride of Nelson James Dexter, and Miss Dorothy will pledge her troth to Clifford Waldon Anderson. The Misses Brizzolari are nieces of Sir Joseph Seddon, former premier of New Zealand, and cousins of William Walter Phelps, who was Ambassador from this country to the Court of St. James for a number of years.

Wedding Party

The wedding of Miss Cecile McLaughlin and Richard Tracey St. John will be solemnized in St. Vincent Church, Wednesday at high noon. Mrs. Edward McLaughlin will assist as matron of honor, Miss Hortense McLaughlin will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Olga Simpson, Miss Nora Morres and Miss Eleanor MacGowan. Henry Grandon will serve Mr. St. John as best man and the ushers will include Clyde Burr, Barton Stebbins, Howard G. Kath, Edward McLaughlin, John B. Winston and Marion Terry. Last evening Henry Grandon and Clyde Burr entertained with a dinner at the Ambassador in honor of Miss McLaughlin and Mr. St. John, this being the only affair accepted by Miss McLaughlin for several weeks. Among those included were Miss Cecile McLaughlin, Miss Hortense McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLaughlin, Dr. and Mrs. Sven Lokrantz, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Winston, Miss Margaret Kellogg, Miss Olga Simpson, Miss Eleanor MacGowan, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Margaret Gray, Miss Dorothy Gray, Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Mary McCillan, Miss Nora Morres, Miss Marion Wigmore, Miss Gwendolyn Longyear, Miss Genevieve Maier, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O. McLaughlin, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. George Martin, Barton Stebbins, Joseph Wallis, Gabriel Duque, Collis Holladay, Howard G. Rath, Frank Simpson, Guy Earl, Garrett Winne, Wheeler Chase, Howard Cunningham, Thaddeus Up de Graff, Louis Torrance, Richard Tracy St. John and the hosts. After the wedding ceremony a wedding breakfast will be served at the home of the bride's parents in South Figueroa street for the bridal party and immediate relatives only.

At California Club

One of the enjoyable affairs of the past week was the luncheon with which Mrs. Frederick William Braun entertained Friday afternoon at the California Club, preceding the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra concert, the guests attending the concert afterwards. Spring flowers in profusion were artistically combined in the table decorations. Those enjoying the luncheon being Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Mrs. J. Crampson Anderson, Mrs. Albert Menke, Mrs. Chester Wallace Brown, Mrs. Alfred J. Bayerf, Mrs. W. J. Bettingen, Mrs. Samuel Starrow, Mrs. Van Slyck, Mrs. Sloan Orcutt, Mrs. Martin V. Beiger, Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Perkins, Mrs. William Eric Fowler, Mrs. John Martin Graham, Mrs. Secondo Guasti, Mrs. Albert C. Bilicke, Mrs. Michael Francis Regan, Mrs. Rufus von KleinSmid, Mrs. Charles Jeffras, Mrs. Charles E. Seaman, Mrs. Alexander B. Barrett, Mrs. Robert London, Mrs. Hansen Moore, Mrs. J. J. Carter, Mrs. Chappell Q. Stanton, Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, Mrs. Robert Ladd Gifford, Mrs. Richmond Pearson Hobson and Mrs. John Pike.

For Visitors

Honoring Mrs. Herbert S. Collins and Mrs. John Martin Graham of New York City, a delightfully planned luncheon will be given at the Ambassador, Wednesday afternoon, by Mrs. William H. Kennedy. Fifty guests have been bidden. Mrs. Collins, who has been passing the winter here, recently purchased a beautiful home in the Arroyo, Pasadena, and will enjoy the winters here each year.

Afternoon Tea

Mrs. Shirley C. Ward and her two daughters, Miss Katherine Ward and Miss Beatrice Ward, are entertaining with a tea at the Los Angeles Country Club Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Elizabeth Terry of San Francisco, whose engagement to Robertson Ward was announced recently. The hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock. Those assisting the hostesses will be Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, Mrs. Dan Murphy, Mrs. Jefferson Chandler, Mrs. Leo St. Clair Chandler, Mrs. Raymond Stephens, Mrs. Richard Lacy, Mrs. Donald Frick, Mrs. Albert M. Stephens, Mrs. Walter Hughes, Mrs. John P. Burke, Mrs. Fowler Shankland, Mrs. W. B. La [illegible] Pierce Sherman, Mrs. John Macfarland, Mrs. [illegible] Banning, Jr., Mrs. Preston Hotchkis, Mrs. Ezra Fish, Mrs. John Shirley Ward, Mrs. Robert Miller, Mrs. Annan Cook, Mrs. Wayland Morrison, Mrs. Helen Lacy, Miss Helen Burke, Miss Elizabeth Bixby and Miss Reavis Hughes. Miss Terry, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Terry of the northern city, is expected to arrive tomorrow afternoon, and will be a guest at the Ward home in West Twenty-first street.

Luncheon Party

Honoring her houseguests, Mrs. Charles Farquarson and Mrs. Murray Innis of San Francisco, who are enjoying a delightful visit in Los Angeles, Mrs. Harry Dana Lombard entertained yesterday afternoon with a luncheon party at her home in Beverly Hills.

Dinner Party

Among the many delightful affairs of recent date was the dinner party with which Mr. and Mrs. William Threlkeld Bishop entertained at their home in West Adams street, their special guests of honor being their sister, Mrs. Godfrey Holterhoff, who recently returned from an extended trip, her house guest, Mrs. William A. Redick of Omaha, and Dr. Anna McFarland Sharp of Chicago, who is visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith in Western avenue. The tables were most artistically decorated with a profusion of spring flowers, tulips and iris in the orchid, purple and yellow tones predominating. Twenty-six guests enjoyed the evening, bridge and mah jongg being played after dinner. This is one of the series of similar affairs with which Mrs. Bishop is entertaining this spring.

Dancing Party

Last evening the Question Mark Club entertained with a dinner and dance at the Los Angeles Country Club, Dr. and Mrs. Walter C. Brem chaperoning. Those enjoying the evening were Miss Elsie Wilson, Miss Lorna Brem, Miss Adeline Stanton, Miss Kathryn Gude, Miss Dorothy Bouck, Miss Margaret Jordon, Paul de la Vergne, James Bush, William Black, Pat Swarthout, Lincoln Clark and Robert Jared.

Dinner Party

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Francis Regan of 869 Burlington avenue are entertaining Tuesday evening with a dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson. Mrs. Wilson recently returned from several months' visit in Washington, D. C.

Dinner Club

The Dinner Club will entertain with its last party Saturday evening in the ball-room of the Biltmore with a dinner dance, numerous charmingly arranged dinner parties being given. This organization, which is celebrating its "fifth birthday," is composed of a group of young married couples and a number of young girls and bachelors who give three dinner dances during the season. The first one this season was given December 7, 1923, the second celebrated Washington's Birthday and Saturday evening will close this season. The hostesses of the club include Mrs. Andrew Baldwin, Mrs. Ernest Duque, Mrs. Paul Hammond, Mrs. Eugene Hawkins, Jr., Mrs. Van Buren Jarvis, Mrs. James Scarborough, Mrs. Edwin Stanton and Mrs. Dwight Whiting. Among those who will entertain with parties Saturday evening will be Miss Mary Gray, Mr. and Mrs. John Garner, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nourse, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carey Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Lobdell, Mr. and Mrs. John Pike, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Boothe, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. John Philps and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanton.

Luncheon Party

Mrs. Mary Miller and Mrs. Alice Noyes Smith were hostesses Tuesday afternoon at a charmingly arranged luncheon party given at the Alta Arms, where a profusion of California poppies formed the centerpiece and decorations for the dining and living rooms. Those included in the luncheon and bridge games afterward were Mrs. Charles Purvos, Mrs. Sue H. Leonard, Mrs. L. F. Bartlett, Mrs. Blanche Bean, Dr. Alice Roble and the guest of honor, Mrs. Grace N. Price, who recently returned from a two years' trip abroad.

En Tour

Dr. and Mrs. West Hughes of West Twenty-third street, who have been enjoying a delightful trip abroad, sailed from Cherbourg Tuesday and will arrive in Los Angeles the last of the month. While in Rome they were entertained by Consul-General Francis Keene. They made an extended trip up the Nile and passed several weeks in Cairo. While in Florence they met and were entertained by Capt. and Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner and also by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fisher, formerly of Redlands, who have a beautiful estate just outside of Florence. During their absence Mr. and Mrs. Paul Corrigan (Georgia Kean,) the latter a niece of Mrs. Hughes, have been occupying their home. Mr. and Mrs. Corrigan moved into their own new home at 1070 South Wilton Place several days ago. Dr. and Mrs. Hughes will be accompanied back to Los Angeles by Mr. and Mrs. Shelley Tolhurst, who crossed on the same steamer.

Easter Week Is "Open House Week" at the "California"

EASTER stands at the portal of Spring. In tune with this season of rejuvenation and home beautifying, the "California" designates this week as a propitious time to maintain "Open House." Very wonderful and inspiring displays of home furnishings have been specially arranged for you to see and study at your leisure. Never have the displays at the "California" been so extensive and interesting.

You and your friends are cordially invited to visit the "California" during this "Open House" occasion. We believe your visit will prove both enjoyable and helpful. We want you to come as our guest with no feeling on your part that there is any obligation to purchase. A real welcome awaits you.

The windows of the "California" during Easter Week are of unusual interest to those who admire the artistic and beautiful in home furnishings. In one window there is a very wonderful grouping of living room pieces covered in fine needlepoint tapestry—the most impressive display of needlepoint pieces ever shown in Los Angeles. In the other window there is shown a very magnificent hand-decorated dining room suite of mahogany, satinwood and primavera.

For Visitors

Honoring Mrs. Robert Lenox Banks of Superior, Wis., who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Weirick, in Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Young entertained Sunday evening with a charmingly arranged dinner party at their country home in La Crescenta. Mrs. Banks, who has been here for several months, is planning to return to her eastern home within the week, stopping en route for a visit to her former home in Butte, Mont.

Bridge Luncheon

Honoring Miss Madeline Brewster, one of the brides-elect of the season, Mrs. Stephen Berbard Robinson of Arden Boulevard entertained Saturday afternoon with a bridge and mah jongg luncheon party. The decorations carried out the bridal motif. Guests included Mrs. Allen M. Culver, Mrs. Hanson McDonald, Mrs. Sam L. Altar, Mrs. George W. Brown, Mrs. Nye Goodman, Mrs. Charles Stavnow, Mrs. James Sheldon Riley, Miss Eva Stavnow, Miss Schmitz and the guest of honor. The wedding of Miss Brewster, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Brewster of Arden Boulevard, to Dr. William L. Schmitz will be one of the events of the early summer.

For Bride-Elect

The home of Mrs. Harold Young, 2233 Eighth avenue, was the scene of a prettily appointed affair Saturday afternoon honoring Miss Marjorie Tallman, whose marriage to Robert Hutchinson, will be one of the events of the 26th inst. The table was centered with a bowl of pink and white roses and pink shaded candelabra shed a rosy glow over the board. Tint bridesmaids in pink carrying pink parasols marked the covers for the guests.

Riding Party

Complimenting her house guest, Miss Edith Miriam of San Francisco, a charmingly arranged party was given by Mrs. Blanch Tuck Davis of Beverly Hills Hotel. The guests rode horseback from the stables of the hotel, taking a box picnic luncheon to the pits of the Bel Air estate. Those included were Mrs. Davis, Miss Miriam, Miss Gwendolyn Longyear, David Osborne, James Osborne and James A. Goodell.

Miss Jesselyn McCully,

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McCully of the Burlington, whose engagement to Paul Packard of San Francisco was announced at a bridge-luncheon given at the Mary Louise. Miss McCully was graduated from the University of Southern California and is a Kappa Alpha Theta. The wedding will be one of the events of next month.

Emery-McCrory

The marriage of Miss Muriel G. Emery, daughter of Dr. W. J. Hunter Emery of Toronto, Can., to J. Gillies McCrory was solemnized Saturday afternoon, the 12th inst., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gorham L. Olds in South Commonwealth avenue, Rev. J. Lewis Gillies of Riverside, assisted by Rev. John Gillies of Los Angeles, uncle and grandfather, respectively, of the bridegroom, officiating at the double-ring ceremony. Only relatives and a few close friends witnessed the ceremony. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of blue crepe and carried an arm shower of pink roses and lilies of the valley. Preceding the ceremony Walter D. Emery of Porterville, brother of the bride, sang "O, Promise Me," and Miss Louise Gillies, cousin of the bridegroom, sang "Beautiful Eyes." Mrs. E. V. Emery played the wedding marches. Mr. and Mrs. McCrory belong to the teaching fraternity, Mr. McCrory being a teacher of science in Venice Junior High School and Mrs. McCrory is an adjustment teacher in Los Angeles schools. Dr. E. V. Emery gave his sister into the keeping of the bridegroom at the altar. Following a wedding supper Mr. and Mrs. McCrory left for a brief wedding trip and will make their home in Los Angeles after their return.

Visiting Here

Mrs. Agnes Porritt of London, Eng., and Victoria, B. C., is the house guest of Mrs. Alice Jane Girdlestone of Wellington Road. A number of post-Lenten affairs are being planned in honor of the visitor.

Wedding Ceremony

At the home of her mother, Mrs. Anna Trowbridge, 2551 Kansas avenue, Santa Monica, Miss Mildred Holman Trowbridge plighted her troth to Clarence E. King, formerly of Elgin, Ill., the ceremony taking place Wednesday evening. The marriage was solemnized on the lawn beneath a canopy of vines and orange blossoms in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served and after receiving congratulations Mr. and Mrs. King left for a wedding trip to Catalina. The bride wore a gown of tailored white serge with hat to match. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. William Feuchter, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Timerhoff, A. L. King and Miss Louise Timerhoff. Mr. and Mrs. King will be at home after their return at 395 South Marengo avenue, Pasadena.

Supper and Dance

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin L. Hunt of 412 West California avenue, Glendale, entertained a group of friends with a supper and dance Saturday evening. The table was beautifully adorned with lavender and yellow, a bowl of spring blossoms centering the board. Places were marked for Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hunsberger, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Veloy Gough, Miss Erna Pottenger, Miss Bessie Carney, all of Glendale; Charles Knuchles of Los Angeles, Clifford Round of Manhattan, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Pahlond of Highland Park and the hosts.

Birthday Party

Last evening the Maryland Hotel celebrated its anniversary with a birthday party, the occasion being the twenty-first anniversary. D. M. Linnard, original owner and operator of the Maryland, was especial host, and entertained many of the first guests of the hotel and friends who have contributed to the success of the pioneer venture. The major party of the entertainment was given in the large dining-room and consisted of dramatic and musical numbers. The fashions in dress, songs and dances were compared and two large orchestras provided musical accompaniment. The huge birthday cake was carried in and souvenir portions distributed to guests. Miss Marjorie Day entertained with a dinner party, her guests including Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klamp, Mr. and Mrs. William Lee Woolett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffras, Mrs. Johni Taylor Houx, Mrs. H. W. Underwood, Mrs. W. A. Ramsay and Gerald Morse.

Dinner Party

One of the delightful affairs of recent date was the dinner party with which Mrs. A. D. E. Carscallen of El Molina avenue entertained her guests, including a number of Los Angeles friends. Spring flowers and roses were used in the table decorations. Those enjoying the evening being Mr. and Mrs. Frank Furnival Peard, Sir. Frank Popham Young and Lady Young, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. Willis Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Harold [illegible] and Mrs. Frank W. Suffel and Miss Florence Bush.

En Voyage

Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Catlin and daughter, Miss Dorothy Catlin, sailed Tuesday for New York by way of the Panama Canal. After a visit in various eastern cities they will return by way of the Canadian Pacific, stopping at the principal cities of interest on the Pacific Coast. Miss Dorothy Catlin recently was graduated from the University of California.

To Make Home Here

Miss Marvin and Arthur Norbury interpreted dances of 1903 and the Conroy Sisters and their pony chorus presented songs and dances of the present time.

Honoring their son and daughter-in-law, Lieut. and Mrs. Paul L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Williams of Prospect avenue, gave a charmingly appointed dancing party at their home Saturday evening with eighty guests present. Red, white and blue were the colors employed in decorating the supper tables, with small flags and airplanes being used to carry out the motif. Spring blossoms were effectively arranged in the rooms. Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Williams in entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Guy H. Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Gray. Lieut. Williams is connected with the United States air service and will leave early in May for service in the Philippine Islands.

The marriage of Miss Mira Ong, popular Pasadena girl, to Charles H. Brown, will take place June 21, according to the announcement at a delightful miscellaneous shower given in honor of Miss Ong Saturday by Mrs. E. Neal Ames of 663 South Lake avenue, who entertained at the home of the hostess's mother, Mrs. C. G. Brown of 665 North Marengo avenue. At the tea tables, which were effectively decorated in purple and white iris, the announcement of the date of the wedding was made on cards borne by small Cupids which marked each place.

Celebration of the seventieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Sheriff, who have made their home with Mrs. E. J. McDermid of 335 Lincoln avenue for seventeen years, was the motive for a dinner party given Tuesday evening at their home. In addition to the honored guests those present were their son and grandson, George and Ray Sheriff. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hulbert of Hollywood, Mr. and Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. Leona Spaulding, Miss Mabel Forbes, Mrs. E. J. McDermid and Miss Calla McDermid.

Pasadena friends of Dr. Clarence J. Gamble, youngest son of Mrs. David Gamble of Westmoreland Place, are interested in the recent announcement of the engagement of Dr. Gamble and Miss Sarah Merry Bradley of Boston. The wedding will probably take place in the summer.

Miss Glennie Jackson, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Jackson of 442 Garfield avenue left Tuesday for Perry, Iowa, where she will visit with her sister, Mrs. Florence Camp. While there she will be married to Guy Freeman of Jefferson, Iowa. The wedding is scheduled to take place in June.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Pearl Sansome to Donald S. Cameron of Altadena, was the motive for a prettily appointed dinner party with which Mrs. Alice S. Swartz, grandmother of the future bride entertained at her home at 743 North Raymond avenue Thursday evening.

Glendale

Spring flowers and greenery centered the beautifully appointed dinner table, at the Oakmont Country Club, last Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Owen C. Emory entertained twenty-nine guests at a dinner-dance. Place cards suggestive of the Easter season marked the places for the guests who were, Dr. and Mrs. F. R. Gartley, Mrs. Charlotte Busby, Mrs.

What Society Has Been About; Many Plans for Future

F. E. Bowerfind, Mr. George Karr, Mrs. H. S. Webb, Mrs. Helen Sawyer, and Messrs. and Mmes. C. C. Cooper, W. Q. Roberts, W. T. Burton, T. H. Menk, E. U. Emery, J. V. Rea, T. D. Watson, O. L. Andresen, W. L. Hyde, W. A. McCormack, and Seymour Smith.

Miss Bessie Ross and Lorne Scholtzhauer were married last Saturday evening at the First Methodist Church. Roses and sweet peas of pink and white formed fragrant decorations and a beautiful setting for the bridal party. The bride was gowned in white silk crepe with a headdress and veil of lace, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Vera Scholtzhauer wore a frock of green organdie and gold lace, and her bouquet was of pink roses. The bridesmaids were Misses June Hamill, Dorothy Peart and Mary Rich of Glendale, and Miss Priscilla Remseyer of Los Angeles. Their frocks were of organdie in the pastel shades. They carried sweet peas to match their frocks. Little Mary and Martha Sinclair were the flower girls. The bridegroom was attended by Gideon Ramseyer as best man and William Rich, Norman Ramseyer, Charles Rich and Elwood Ingledue as groomsmen. The double-ring ceremony was used. Rev. B. Dudley Snudden assisted by Rev. Harry Rasmus, Jr., officiated.

Easter colors and motif were a feature of the luncheon given Monday by Mrs. S. H. Waller of 343 West Broadway, when she entertained the members of the Monday Afternoon Card Club. There were two tables of cards, Mrs. Emil Johnson making high score.

Miss Ruth Randall, who is to be an early summer bride was the guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower last Friday evening, given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hall at their home on Alexander street. As co-hosts and hostesses there were Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker. A feature of the evening was a mock wedding. Cards and dancing were enjoyed until a late hour when a buffet supper was served. There were twenty-five guests.

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hunt gave a dinner-dance at their home on East Elk street. Covers were placed for Mrs. Daniel Hunsberg, Misses Bessie Carney and Erma Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Eustace Rowley, Mr. and Mrs. Veloy Gough of Glendale, Mr. and Mrs. William Pahland of Highland Park, Charles Knuckles of Los Angeles and Clifford Rounds of Manhattan.

Downy chickens in a huge egg centered the luncheon table at the home of Mrs. Horace Hosford, 233 North Central avenue, when she entertained the members of the Milford-street Card Club. The places for the guests were marked by a number of tiny toy chicks, each guest to count the chickens, the number to correspond to the number of children each one had. Floral decorations were of yellow and white. Covers were placed for twelve.

Long Beach

"The Pageant of Shawls" presented by the Ohio section of the College Woman's Club Saturday afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce in connection with their mah jongg tea, was one of the most brilliant and colorful affairs of the spring season. Shawls of historical and sentimental value; shawls representing different countries and weaves; shawls belonging to tourist guests, pioneers of the city and many members of the club participating in the pageant and wearing their valuable possessions were on display. One lovely black shawl with a deep fringe, worn by Mrs. Frank Dimmick of Norwich, N. Y., and a guest here during the winter, came into the family in an oyster can sent through the port of Yerba Burna, now San Francisco, by Kimball Hale Dimmick on his Cape Horn trip to the Pacific Coast from Norwich. Mr. Dimmick was chairman of the first Constitutional convention in California, which met in San Jose and was the first Supreme Court justice in the State. Two of the loveliest of the Spanish shawls belong to Mrs. Horace G. Chase. They are close to 100 years of age. An elaborate musical and dancing program was an added attraction. Vividly colored serapes draped about and baskets of spring flowers gave the banquet room a festive appearance. Serving was done at the quartet tables arranged in a hollow ring around the room. Mrs. O. P. Bell presided as general chairman. Mrs. Gertrude Johnson had charge of the program and Mrs. E. H. Price, Mrs. F. F. Richards and Miss Rosemary Button served.

The marriage of Miss Esther Elizabeth Lodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lodge of 434 Atlantic avenue, and Dr. William F. Stein of Fresno, was solemnized at 10 o'clock Saturday morning in the home of the officiating clergyman, Dr. Oliver J. Fairfield, pastor of the First Unitarian Church. The bride wore her traveling gown of brown charmeen with hat of coral and blue. The wedding breakfast was served in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Belle Benedict, 18 Pier Place, where orange blossoms and jonquils were used decoratively. Dr. and Mrs. Stein left immediately after for San Diego, where they will remain for two weeks before leaving for their new home in Fresno. Here Dr. Stein has been practicing his profession for more than four years. Mrs. Stein had made her home in Long Beach until four years ago, when she was called to Washington, D. C., for personal service in the War Risk Bureau. Two years ago she was transferred by the department to Fresno, and has since been transferred to Los Angeles.

Hunting eggs on the lovely lawn and among the shrubbery and flowers at the Thomas Gilcrease home in Los Cerritos, featured the celebration of the thirteenth birthday anniversary of Eugene, son of Mrs. Wanita Gilcrease, who entertained sixteen juveniles. The Easter motif was used in the table decorations.

Lankershim

Mrs. Florence Failor at her home entertained the 1923 officers of the local chapter of the Eastern Star. She was assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. C. L. Kennedy. Among those for whom covers were laid were Mrs. Myra Moyse, Past Grand Deputy, and Mrs. Blanche Bouslog, Past Matron.

One of the social affairs of interest during the week was the social-business session of the Realty Board Monday night, when Will C. Chapin of Hollywood was the main speaker. Mrs. Chapin also took part in the program, speaking in general on the good results of co-operation.

Wives and sweethearts of Kiwanians were guests at the meeting of the Lankershim Club's Thursday luncheon, when John McGroarty was the chief speaker. Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kean, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Deal and William Brown were special guests.

Van Nuys

The Knights of Pythias Hall was the scene of a pleasing social session Wednesday evening, when the Modern Woodmen of America entertained their friends and members.

Card playing will be the feature of a function to be staged at the Woman's Clubhouse Friday afternoon by the club women of the ways and means committee. The affair is given as a benefit for the club building fund and it is expected there will be a large attendance.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the high school auditorium will be the gathering-place for valley lovers of Comedy-drama, as on those nights the Kiwanis Club will stage "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" as a benefit for the Boy Scouts.

All members of two casts selected from high school seniors for the presentation of the senior play are under full rehearsal for the presentation of "Mrs. Bumstead-Leigh," which was selected as the vehicle for the high thespians. Competition between the first cast and the understudies is keen, as should it be determined during the rehearsals that the understudy is superior, the positions will be reversed.

Arcadia

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Seaquist, proprietors of the Seaquist Pharmacy on North First avenue, and their daughter, Sylvia returned to this city on Wednesday after a several weeks' stay in Minnesota. During this time Mrs. Seaquist made a short trip to Canada.

Miss Ruth Montgomery was hostess at an informal party on Friday evening. A number of Arcadia friends were invited for an evening of games and music.

Mrs. George Thomas, wife of Rev. Mr. Thomas of the Arcadia Community Church, was treated to a delightful surprise recently when a number of ladies of the church tendered her a handkerchief shower. The charming affair was arranged by members of the Missionary Society and held at the home of Mrs. W. F. Loucks.

While their husbands were attending a regular meeting of the Elks' lodge on Monday evening, a number of ladies were charmingly entertained at the home of Mrs. Palmer Weberg in this city. Bridge furnished amusement for the evening after which Mrs. Weberg served a dainty supper.

A delicious four-course dinner and an evening of bridge, was the way in which Mrs. A. W Buehler delightfully entertained a number of friends at her home on Saturday evening. The dinner table was attractively decorated in yellow and pink. Guests for the enjoyable affair were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bowes of Whittier, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Reynolds, Miss Mardell McDougal and Mrs. Harold Denling of Monrovia.

In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Travers Clover who have been away from this city for a year and who recently returned to their home on Santa Anita Drive, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart entertained a number of friends at their home on Double Drive on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Candee of Baldwin avenue, this city, invited a number of friends on Tuesday evening in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas, who are leaving the pastorate of the Arcadia Community Presbyterian Church. About fifty close friends of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas were present and enjoyed the charming affair.

Mrs. F. Pierson and Mrs. Jack Wilson were joint hostesses at a delightful dancing party on Tuesday evening at the Pierson home on Camino Real. A six-piece orchestra, led by Miss Bessie Walker of Pasadena, furnished music for dancing. Following the dancing a supper was served at small tables attractively decorated.

Monrovia

Mr. and Mrs. John Graham of West Palm avenue entertained the members of their mah jongg club and a few other guests on Monday evening in a charmingly informal manner at dinner, followed by an evening of the fascinating Chinese game. Sweet peas made a lovely centerpiece for the dinner table.

A most enjoyable birthday dinner was given on Monday by Mrs Mary A. Banning of East Walnu avenue in honor of Mrs. Crosby Richard Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Klein of East White Oak avenue, celebrated his seventh birthday anniversary on Monday afternoon with a merry party at the home of his parents. Twelve little schoolmates were invited to help celebrate the happy event. Various games for the amusement of the small guests were arranged by Mrs. Klein. Among those who won prizes at the guessing games were Charlotte Kellogg, Vernetta O'Mara, Loren Day and Gene Peltcroff. The main feature for the youngsters was the birthday feast served late in the afternoon. There was a big birthday cake with seven candles, dainty Easter favors and other pretty features. Easter decorations were used, there being bunnies, Easter eggs and other symbols of the season.

W. A. Chess, cashier of the First National Bank, entertained the office personnel of both the First National and the Monorvia Savings Bank at dinner at the Chess home on West White Oak avenue. Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock, after which the evening was spent informally.

Whittier

Miss Marjorie Harris entertained at the home of her parents, Prof. and Mrs. Herbert E. Harris, 648 North Greenleaf avenue, Saturday evening, the occasion being the visit of Miss Bernadine Boyd and Miss Virginia Dove of Los Angeles.

Local society people, particularly those of the younger set, are looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the third annual Easter dance by the Alpha Iota chapter of the Kappa Alpha Phi Fraternity, Whittier, at the Woman's clubhouse the first Saturday following Easter. William Braden, social chairman of the fraternity, is in charge of the dance and will be assisted by the Messrs. C. L. McCorkindale, Reed Johnson, John J. Macrorie, Leo Jones, Jr., and Robert Block.

Outstanding in its loveliness of appointments was the golden wedding reception which Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Downing gave at their hospitable home, 446 North Friends avenue, Saturday afternoon from 4 to 8 in compliment to Mr. Downing's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Downing of Los Angeles. Miss Ruth Linrud of Los Angeles, harpist and vocalist of note, furnished the entertainment, singing well-known and popular love songs of Carrie Jacobs Bond and Charles Wakefield Cadman.

Miss Ida B. Lindley, who has been prominently identified with the best educational interests of the Coast, both in private schools and colleges, was hostess at a series of entertainments at her home on East Hadley street during the week. Sunday she entertained with a dinner party, places being laid for eight.

The many college friends and others will be interested in learning of the splendid progress of Millard Scott, son of Mrs. Sallie O. Scott, who is to be one of the ninety candidates for a bachelors' degree in agriculture at the Oregon Agricultural College at the celebrated school at Corvallis, Or., at the close of this semester. Mr. Scott was formerly captain of the famous football team, the "Oregon Aggies," one of the strong teams of the Pacific Coast; he was president of his class and house president of the Alpha Tau Omega, national fraternity.

To celebrate the birthday anniversary of her husband, Mrs. R. M. McFadden entertained at their home in East Whittier Friday evening with an attractively appointed "stag" dinner. The guests were former high school friends of the host and hostess and interesting reminiscences were features of the entertainment. The guests were Mr. Hal Smith, Mr. Mirt Castor and Mr. Dewey Moss.

Tuesday was again ladies' day at the Hacienda Country Club and the day an ideal one for golf. Owing to certain restrictions during the prevailing epidemic no guests were entertained and only those with membership cards were admited to the links. Mrs. Wallace Gregg and Mrs. E. A. Albright were hostesses.

Alhambra

Wednesday evening, at a prettily appointed wedding, Miss Dorothy Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Boyd, became the bride of Harold Bourne, the ceremony being performed at the family home, 129 North Sequoia avenue, San Gabriel. The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white sweet peas. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Chester Woodward, as matron of honor and Chester Woodward was best man. After a honeymoon trip the young couple will reside here.

Mrs. Cecilia K. Shope opened her beautiful new home on Huntington Drive, Thursday, on which occasion she entertained at luncheon. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of spring flowers. Covers were placed for thirty-five guests.

Mrs. T. L. Strong of 225 South First street, assisted by Mrs. Bessie Lytle of Pasadena, was hostess at a charming tea, given Friday, complimenting members of Southland Chapter, U.D.C. Thirty-five guests enjoyed the affair which included a splendid musical program.

South Pasadena

An interesitng event of the past week was a house party at Balboa enjoyed by a group of popular members of the younger social set of South Pasadena, who were guests at the Frazer Apartments at the island during the spring vacation. Those who made up the group and entertained at several delightful affairs during the week were the Misses Margaret Doerr, Harriet Hunt, Tisah Gates, Evelyn Hough, Katherine Kedzie, Priscilla Frazer, Jane Lord and Mary Hillis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Montgomery, 1819 Oak street, entertained at their home on Sunday with a dinner party in honor of Mrs. Harry Gordon Martin, sister of Mrs. Montgomery, Miss Peggy Blair of San Diego and Miss Minnie Keith.

Mrs. J. W. Wilson, 1710 Fletcher avenue, entertained at luncheon on Monday, complimenting members of her bridge club. Pink and white was attractively used as a color scheme in decoration. There were twelve guests present.

Miss Marion and Miss Margaret Brackenridge, popular debutante daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Brackenridge, 525 Orange Grove avenue, plan to sail from New York June 9 on a world tour in company with their uncle, Charles Brackenridge, of New York. They plan to be away during the entire summer.

Lieut. and Mrs. Paul L. Williams, who will leave May 5 for the Philippines, where Lieut. Williams will be stationed for two years, were honor guests at a charming bon voyage party given Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Williams, 807 Prospect avenue. Hosts for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gray.

Inglewood

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bush presided over a beautifully appointed dinner party on Thursday evening, having as their honor guests Mr. and Mrs. R. Leonard Bush, whose marriage was one of the recent events. The table was attractively decorated with a fragrant profusion of roses and ferns, and covers were laid for fifteen. Dinner was served at seven.

The members of the Colo-Phon Club, an organization made up of a number of the younger social set of Inglewood, were delightfully entertained last Saturday evening at an informal dancing party at the home of Roland Robbins on West Kelso street. Those

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheals briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.—[Advertisement.

Cured Her Rheumatism

Knowing from terrible experience the suffering caused by rheumatism, Mrs. J. E. Hurst, who lives at 204 Paris Avenue, B114, Bloomington, Ill., is so thankful at having cured herself that out of pure gratitude she is anxious to tell all other sufferers just how to get rid of their torture by a simple way at home.

Mrs. Hurst has nothing to sell. Merely cut out this notice, mail it to her with your own name and address, and she will gladly send you this valuable information entirely free. Write her at once before you forget.—[Advertisement.

The Truth about the "STARS"

Star Sandal $5

WE'VE always claimed that Star Shoes represented the greatest shoe values obtainable at their standardized prices of $5 and $7.50. It's even greater this spring than ever before because our business has increased considerably, enabling us to buy closer and in greater quantities than ever before. We buy direct from the factories, which saves middlemen's profits. Another reason why we are able to offer such remarkable values is that stores are just out (or above) the high-rent districts and are plainly furnished, cutting down our "overhead" considerably.

These are plain, logical facts that prove our claims!

Our spring showing of smart footwear includes scores of the newest and most exclusive designs in all the wanted colors and fabrics for dress, street and sport wear.

Teas, Dinners and Receptions

Mrs. Paul William Rous,

One of the popular young brides of the season. Mrs. Rous was formerly Miss Ruth Elizabeth Apperson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Apperson of Sabina street, and her marriage was one of the events of March 2.

present were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Taylor, the Misses Lucy and Jean Grieve, Dorothy Moomaw, Gladys Keyes, Violet Putnam, Justine Johnson, May Driskill and Messrs. Russell Zillgitt, Clem Miller, Everett Burrows, Rowland Robbins, Kai Jensen, Harold Hukill, William Duelke, Harold Nelson, George Brauer and the host.

Paul Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Green of South Commercial street, was host last Wednesday evening at a delightfully planned dinned dance, having as his guests the Misses Connie Abshire, Betty Stuart, Mary Bell Hughs, Neva Abshire, and Messrs. James Lewis, Clifford Divilbiss, Cecil Foster and Philip Green.

The Go-Getters of Inglewood, a social set which meets frequently for dancing, was delightfully entertained at a dancing party at the Rendezvous in Santa Monica on Friday evening by Dr. and Mrs. R. S. Friend.

Santa Ana

The beauties of Rome, wasted or restored, were portrayed to the Business and Professional Woman's Club here Tuesday night by Mrs. J. C. Schmidt, whose talk, given at the dinner at St. Ann's Inn, was described by her auditors as a "personally conducted verbal tour." Miss Lena Thomas presided in the absence of the president, Miss Doris Robbins, who is vacationing in the north.

The Misses Helen and Grace Smiley, assisted by their mother, Mrs. A. J. Smiley, entertained a party of friends at a dinner-dance Friday night at their home on West Washington avenue here. Mrs. D. P. McBurney and Mrs. W. R. McBurney assisted in hostess duties. Flowers and balloons were used as favors.

Spring flowers were combined to make a pretty setting for the members of the Inter Se Club, who were the guests of Mrs. Merle Morris, 1006 French street, at an afternoon affair late last week. Paper fruit was made by the guests during the pastime hour.

Marked by informality, a dancing and card party of recent date, at which Mrs. R. W. Townsend, 926 South Main street, was hostess, was a delightful affair. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Reinhaus and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fields, respectively, won first and second prizes, while consolation was offered Mr. and Mrs. X. Y. Ayres. Husbands and wives added their scores in tallying.

Burbank

Walter Story, prominent Burbank business man, has returned from a tour of San Diego and other southern counties with his bride, and the young couple will soon be at home in the new bungalow that is being erected for them on Angeleno avenue at No. 933. Their marriage was celebrated at Hollywood, the bride being Miss Catherine Allison of Hollywood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. Roberts of the Santa Ana Presbyterian Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ripley at their new home on Angeleno avenue entertained a number of friends Sunday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Martha Ripley, mother of the host, who has recently come here from Huntington Park to make her home. Until recently the honored guest was a resident of Montrose, Colo., having been a pioneer of the western part of the Centennial State. With her husband, the late Henry Ripley, they took one of the first printing presses to cross the Rocky Mountains into Western Colorado and established one of the first papers printed in the Ouray district.

Their children and friends tendered Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Hardie a surprise and assisted in the housewarming that dedicated the new home of the couple at 1046 Olive avenue. Mr. Hardie, who is a Los Angeles pioneer of 1873, has just completed the erection of a handsome residence on property he has owned for a number of years.

San Fernando

Announcement is made of the approaching marriage of Miss Pauline J. Haag of Branford avenue to Paul L. Cochems. The wedding will be a social affair of early June. The bride-elect is well known here, where she has many friends, having been for a long time employed as nurse at the San Fernando Hospital.

An elaborate musical program will feature the Easter services at the Methodist Church Sunday night, with Charles Scudder directing the choir of twenty-two voices. Mrs. Clifton Judy will be the organist. Mrs. William Reisen will direct the twelve-piece orchestra. The program will include solos, anthems and instrumental numbers.

Fullerton

Charming in all its details was the informal tea at which members of the social section of the Ebell Club presided in the home of Mrs. J. T. Hillion, Spadra Road recently. This is the first of a series of similar events planned as a means by which the social section will add its bit to the clubhouse building fund. The guests particularly admired the home's floral decorations, for Mrs. Hill had artistically arranged vivid California poppies in harmony with other yellow blossoms. Each guest entertained herself as she preferred. For card lovers the games of Five Hundred were arranged, others played bridge, while a few chatted. Easter eggs and wee yellow chicks tumbling from little Easter baskets were presented as favors during the tea hour, which concluded the afternoon.

Miss Margaret Shay, well loved Americanization teacher in Fullerton, is leaving soon for San Diego, where she will do similar work. Her many friends are regretting her departure, and several little social events are being planned as farewell courtesies. One afternoon last week she was honor guest at a party tea given by Miss Drusilla Mackey. Last week-end she spent at the Lyle Wickersheim home, where other friends joined her on Sunday.

Marked by impressive simplicity the wedding of Lorell Forsith and Miss Margaret Lee Balton, solemnized on Sunday morning following the regular services in the Christian Church, was a happy surprise to the congregation who witnessed it. Mrs. Dorothy Horner had arranged appropriate music for the occasion. She sang, "I Love You Truly," and as the bridal couple entered Mrs. W. H. Wickett at the organ played, Lohengrin's Wedding March. Soft music accompanied the vows, with Rev. Thornton as the officiating minister. The bride, who was a Los Angeles girl, was very attractive in a gown of white satin, and tulle, carrying a bridal bouquet of orange blossoms. Her corsage was of pink rose buds. Without waiting for the congratulations of the many friends of the groom the young couple left

Eagle Rock City

Miss Lena Lawrence arrived last Sunday from San Francisco for a visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lawrence of Virginia avenue. Miss Lawrence, her mother and sister, Miss Bettie Lawrence, plan to attend the State P.E.O. convention which is to to be held in Los Angeles next week.

Mrs. Sherrill Osborne, Mrs. Ada Boyce, Mrs. J. C. Reiter and Mrs. Van Lee Hood attended a luncheon in Los Angeles Wednesday given for members of the president's council by Section 13 of the P.-T.-A. Federation.

Rev. Robert Freeman was the lecturer of the day at the regular weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club given last Tuesday in the dining-room of the Woman's clubhouse. Mr. O. J. Root, president of the Chamber of Commerce, is chairman of the day for next Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. O. Kembis and family, formerly of West Colorado Boulevard, moved on Friday into their delightful new home recently completed at 405 South Sierra Bonita, Pasadena.

The regular monthly dance held under the auspices of the Woman's Twentieth Century Club will be given next Saturday evening with Mmes. C. E. Spencer, V. W. Bailey and W. W. Weir acting as hostesses.

In honor of her cousin, Mrs. Harry Breckenridge, Mrs. J. H. Moshier entertained on Thursday with a luncheon and matinee party. Mrs. Breckenridge, with her husband and daughter, is a visitor here from New York and many pleasant events have been given in her honor.

Gardena

A dance was given to the high school students and alumni of the Gardena High School last Friday night, sponsored by the Wednesday Progressive Club. The High School orchestra furnished the music for the dancing and about fifty young people from the high school and their friends enjoyed a good time.

A birthday dinner was given last Thursday evening, the 17th inst., honoring the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Hon J. S. Crandall at their home in Gardena. Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. Marcus A. Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin, Russell Crandall and Judge Crandall. After dinner the party adjourned to Dr. Pierce's beautiful home on the Redondo-Riverside Boulevard where a large group of friends had gathered for a surprise party for Mrs. Crandall. Dancing was the entertainment of the evening.

Ontario

Mrs. O. E. Klockenteger was hostess Wednesday afternoon at a tea of charming appointments at her home, 906 East D street. A yellow color note was used in the decorations, daffodils being the predominating blossoms employed. Informality marked the affair, the early portion of the afternoon being devoted to fancy work and chat, and a delicious collation followed.

Mrs. D. D. Crew entertained informally at tea Friday afternoon at her home on West F street. Purple fleur de lis were used in decoration. Mrs. Gordon C. Day of Los Angeles was the guest of honor.

Young Married Women Need Mother's Advice

MRS. PEARL STEELE
HOLDEN, MISSOURI

A GREAT many women after childbirth get up too soon and, too weak to care for the child and perform their household duties, often bring on serious derangements.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid tonic to take at this time; it is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers. Thousands of mothers advise their daughters to take this grand old root and herb medicine for such conditions because of their own favorable experience with it.

Following We Publish an Interesting Letter From Mrs. Steele of Holden, Which Should Interest Every Mother in the Land

HOLDEN, MO.—"When my second child was born I got up too soon as my mother wasn't able to do for me. I could not stand on my feet without being dizzy and my back would ache so badly that I would have to lie down at times through the day. My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a bottle of it at the time so she begged me to take it which I did and I cannot tell you how much better I felt after taking it. Then a year later my husband got back from overseas and we went to keeping house by ourselves and I got all run down again. I couldn't work long at a time but would have to sit down and rest. My husband kept begging me to take the Vegetable Compound again so I have done so. I recommend it when I can as I know it is good for women's troubles and I thought you might like to know what it has done for me."—MRS. PEARL M. STEELE, Holden, Missouri.

Another Interesting Case

CLAYMONT, DELAWARE.—"I was all run-down and in a weak condition when I married. I had many of the troubles women often have and the birth of my children left me almost a wreck. One day my brother-in-law was visiting us and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I said 'It's no use, as nothing does me any good.' He asked me if I would take it if he would buy it, and to please him I said 'Yes.' He bought me three bottles before there was a change, so you see I was pretty badly off. I couldn't do my work before this, and kept a girl. I got so well I did my own work and later had [illegible] more children and kept my good health. I do all my work and take in sewing too, and am raising plants for Memorial Day. I feel younger than I did at twenty because I have good health."—MRS. L. A. LAMEY, Claymont, Delaware.

Mrs. Herbert R. Yerxa entertained with a small luncheon at her home on West Olive in compliment to Mrs. Laurance Hendersoin of Minneapolis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jeffery.

The wedding of Miss Nyna A. Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Gregory of the Terrace, and Austin T. Park, president of the First National Bank in Redlands, was one of the events of the week. They were married at the First Congregational Church, the Rev. H. C. Ide officiating. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Park left for Santa Barbara. They will make their home in Mill Creek Canyon, where they have built a mountain home.

Mrs. W. C. Collett entertained with a pretty affair at her home in Cypress court in honor of Miss Carrie Andrews, whose marriage to Cyrill Margotts of Hemet will take place soon.

A pleasant birthday surprise for W. R. Baughman was given by his family in a dinner at the home on San Bernardino avenue in his honor.

The Orange Belt Shrine Club entertains next Wednesday with a dinner dance at the Glenwood Mission Inn.

The American Legion clubhouse was the scene of a happy gathering during the week, when the Pi Chi Fraternity entertained for their ladies. A program was given by Laurence Cummings, Leroy Pettijohn, Walter Berger, Lovell Fowler, Forrest Young, Donald Graffam, M. Garner, Elmer Easley, Marshall Ball, Maurice Wiley and Merrill Brown.

The Kappa Sigma Fraternity of the University of Redlands kept open house during the week in their new clubhouse in the Leipsic Building.

Azusa

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Powell entertained with a dinner in honor of the birthday anniversaries of W. R. Powell and their little daughter Kathryn, who's birthdays are on the same day. The home was attractively decorated with sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Post and Mrs. A. Goalby returned from Yuma, Ariz., on Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Post have been living in Yuma and have returned to their former home in Orange. Mrs. A. Goalby has been visiting with them for the past three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ayers had as their guests over the week-end Mrs. C. W. Clawson and daughter Ruth of Camarillo; Mrs. Clawson and Mr. and Mrs. Ayers were old-time friends in Alvin, Texas.

Miss Verua Brubaker entertained with a delightful luncheon on Sunday in compliment to the Misses Verna Shirk and Lucile Studebaker of La Verne and Lucy Eller of this city.

Mrs. J. H. Durrell, sister of Mr and Mrs. S. G. Durrell, who has been making a week-end visit with them has just come west from their winter home in Havana and is making the circle north through California and the Canadian Rockies. Upon reaching New York City she will sail for Cherbourg, France, and she and her family will spend the summer in Switzerland. Mrs. Durrell expects to return to this city after a brief visit in Long Beach before leaving California, this being her first visit to the Pacific Coast. She is very much delighted with Southern California, and especially mentions that the stores and hotels are much superior to those in New York City.

Sierre Madre

Sunday evening of last week was the occasion for the repetition of the sacred-song service, which had previously been rendered at the Church of the Ascension on such a rainy evening that too few were able to avail themselves of the really beautiful music. Under the direction of Miss Frances Webster the choir work was excellent. Mrs. Howard Lieben, as guest soloist, sang "The Publican." Mrs. Hawkshurst, one of the leaders in the choir, gave a solo, and Mrs. Randolph Wood and Mrs. James Hawks rendered a beautiful duet. The most interesting number on the splendid program was the debut of a young lad, Robert Mitchell, son of Mayor Mitchell, at the organ. His selections included the "Pilgrims' Chorus" from "Tannhauser" and one of the works of Ole Bull. As a pianist Robert Mitchell has played more than once for Sierra Madre audiences and his command of the organ was considered remarkable. The audience was appreciative of the Lenten quality of the music.

The Ladies' Aid of the First Congregational Church meets once a month at the house of one of the members. On Tuesday they gathered at the home of Mrs. E. Waldo Ward on East Highland avenue, bringing their needles and thimbles. There was much merriment as well as achievement in the way of garment-making. Refreshments were served, as is customary at more gatherings than those sponsored by the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Sierra Madre community sing under the direction of Mr. Hugo Kirchhofer meets on Thursday night of each week from 8 until 9:30 o'clock at the clubhouse. The chorus is working on a group of songs to be rendered when Alhambra comes to Sierra Madre for a return contest. It will be remembered that last January Sierra Madre defeated the Alhambra chorus on her own ground with the tiny margin of four points. There are good voices in Sierra Madre and application and training of the group here should make the contest this spring a worth-while and interesting one.

Glendora

The decline of Egypt was studied by the art and travel section of the Glendora Women's Club at the meeting held last Monday afternoon with Mrs. W. R. Powell of Alosta avenue. Papers of exceptional interest and which showed much care in their preparation were read by Mrs. J. A. Stewart, Miss Ida Belle Haney and Mrs. Arthur Powell. Lilacs predominated among the spring flowers used by Mrs. Powell as decorations for the pleasant gathering. During the social hour, in which ice cream and cakes were served, the members of the section enjoyed the opportunity of meeting Mrs. L. E. Spaulding of San Diego, who for the week was the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Powell.

"Rolla's Wild Oak" was cleverly given by students of the Citrus Union High School last Friday night before a large and enthusiastic audience. The play was under the direction of Bruce Clark, supervised by Mrs. Laurabelle Dietrick, English supervisor. Those having the most prominent parts were Joe Dietrick, Elizabeth Griffith, Clyde Nickle, Hilda Suydam, Harold Hoff, Geraldine Ramsay, Robert Pinkstaff, Walter Wiley, Myron Green, Anna Burns, Mabelle Casper and Edward Murden.

Anaheim

Important matters of business occupied the attention of the Delphians at the opening of their April meeting here this week when plans were perfected for a number of events, among them the final Delphian luncheon to be held Thursday, June 5, with the officers and section leaders providing the entertainment and serving on the reception committee. Miss Oril Wing, district supervisor, will be in Anaheim for the meeting of May 9 and at that time will organize the society for the coming year so that when the chapter opens in autumn everything may be in smooth running order. This is a departure from the practice that has prevailed of leaving such matters until the autumn. The final study meeting of the year will be held May 27. A special campaign for new members will mark the closing weeks of the club year. Since this is the last opportunity for receiving new members an effort will be made to enroll all those women of the community who really are interested in Delphian work.

Under the direction of their teacher, John D. Adkins, sixth-grade intermediate school pupils delightfully entertained the West Side Parent-Teacher Association at a "father's night" meeting Monday evening, presenting the operetta, "The Pink Parasol," by Clara Buckley Chow. Alice Kathryn Irwin took the leading part of Ruth in the production and other principal characters were Elizabeth Morgan, poppy maid; Howard Schmid, farmer, and Venus Bywater, queen.

Miss Lenora Espolt entertained members of her class of first-grade pupils, with an Easter party Friday afternoon. A luncheon was served and games and an Easter-egg hunt provided entertainment for the little tots.

Buena Park

Their luck apparently opposite to tradition's rules, members of the Jolly Thirteen Club enjoyed the usual happy session Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. R. Miller. They played bridge. Mrs. Warren secured first honors and Mrs. Thomas took second. Mrs. Miller served a dainty luncheon to her guests.

To celebrate the birthdays of Mrs. C. L. McComber and her daughter, Miss Margery McComber, a family dinner party was enjoyed Tuesday evening at the McComber home. The families of Donald and Gerald McComber were present in addition to the C. L. McComber family.

Yorba Linda

Honoring a new resident of Yorba Linda, Miss Tresa Ross, who formerly lived in Fullerton, Miss Percy Hammer entertained informally at her home Friday evening.

It being the birthday of her sister, Mrs. Leon Englesby, a pretty dinner party was given Thursday evening by Mrs. Platt Godfrey. The honoree was presented with a number of gifts. Covers were laid at the flower-decked table for Mrs. Englesby, Mrs. D. Borrowman and daughter, Mrs. Mayers and children, Mrs. Stalle, Mrs. R. Dillinger, Mrs. F. Young, Mrs. N. Hammer, Mrs. G. Englesby and daughter and the hostess.

Election of officers for this coming year in the Missionary Society of the Yorba Linda Friends Church resulted in the selection of Mrs. Clinton Marshburn as president, Mrs. Mary Stanley, secretary, and Mrs. P. S. Emstutz, treasurer.

Garden Grove

Members of the Tuesday Club and guests were entertained this week at the home of Mrs. Willis Newsome. Guests of the club were Mrs. W. Downs a visitor from Chicago; Mrs. R. B. Richey of Olive, and Mrs. O. H. Anderson of Garden Grove.

Members of the Garden Grove Lions' Club entertained a number of guests at the luncheon meeting Wednesday noon. Fred Gallienne presided. Among the guests were M. Schloff of Los Angeles; R. Lee, secretary of the Placentia Chamber of Commerce; Courtney Clark of Anaheim, Rev. C. P. Morris, pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Rev. Carstens, Baptist evangelist.

Are Not So Anxious to Follow in Fair-'s "Thief of Bagdad" Steps This Time

BY HELEN KLUMPH

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH)

YORK, April 19.—When first reports of the making of "The Bagdad" reached Broadway months before it was shown, many wisely wagging his head and announcing "there wave of film fantasies following 'Bagdad'." One heard it began to have the familiar ring of "the movies are infancy" or "Mr. Laemmle really wants you to write and what you think of Billy Sullivan."

But no one would be greatly surprised if Mr. Duell resigned from the presidency of the Inspiration Company, a man more agreeable to Dick elected and all their troubles adjusted.

BEST COMEDY BET

So far as I am concerned the high point of entertainment in the movies is "The Galloping Fish," which Thomas H. Ince produced. My vocabulary is too limited to express my huge delight over this picture.

At the moment it seems to me the one perfect work of art that I have viewed since my favorite Ben Turpin's classics.

The seal who plays the title role has the naivete of an ingenue start combined with sleek, debonair charm of a Lew Cody. And his emotional facility! Many of our young Astors should study his technique.

Of course any picture that had Louise Fazenda, Sidney Chaplin and Chester Conklin in it would find me standing in the lobby of the theater when the doors were opened. But the delicious humor of "The Galloping Fish," is more than anyone has a right to expect.

During the last few weeks the Broadway film houses have not been doing very good business but this week they more than made up for it.

"Nellie, The Beautiful Cloak Model," played at the Capitol and drew terrific crowds. No one can just understand it. It had been rumored about these many weeks that the manager of the Capitol didn't want to run the picture as he—in company with many others—thought it was simply terrible.

ANYWAY, IT'S POPULAR

This picture was one of my pet illusions. I thought, of course, that it would be overplayed so as to make first-class burlesque with lines from the original play such as "How now, my proud beauty," introduced as subtitles.

Instead of that it was conventionally presented as a cumbersome melodrama. Not until the last quarter of the picture is there a good thrill and even such first-rate performers as Mae Busch and Raymond Griffith are hopelessly lost in it. Claire Windsor looks lovely, of course, and has nothing else to do and Edmund Lowe makes an appealing hero.

But you should see the crowds that it is drawing! And last night a girl behind me at the new Thomas Meighan picture was telling her companion about "Nellie" and exclaiming that it was "simply lovely."

I always go to see every Thomas Meighan picture determined to like it and I never do. I hear such lovely things said of him on all sides that it convinces me that mine is a base nature because I don't appreciate his sunny charm. His last picture, "The Confidence Man," seemed to me better than most of the others because he didn't reform until well along in the picture.

Of "The Enchanted Cottage" I cannot speak without deep feeling because of my trials and tribulations getting into it. Being partially encased in a plaster cast because of a recent accident and forced to go about on crutches, I found progress through the crowds in the lobby of the Strand Theater rather slow. And they, always suspicious that an exploitation stunt is being pulled on them, thought I was a lobby display and pushed on ahead of me, but not without stopping to stare.

MAY SCORES SUCCESS

The picture is exquisite and in May McAvoy's performance of the homely spinster has one of the outstanding achievements of the screen. Never since "Sentimental Tommy" has she shown such tenderness and feeling. The picture has a rare quality of breathlessness, of suddenly discovered beauty and for catching this ephemeral charm Josephine Lovell and John Robertson are to be highly commended. Richard Barthelmess performance, of course, is gripping and sincere. When has he ever been anything else.

Jackie Coogan too is winning new glories on Broadway this week. "A Boy of Flanders" is playing at the Rialto and everyone tells me that it is great. My verdict is second hand for after seeing "The Enchanted Cottage" any further attempts to get through terrific crowds had to be given up. But if half of what I hear of it is true, I want to go and see it.

Frequently the Dumbest Player in the First Act Turns the Tables in the Last

You never can tell anymore who's going to foil the villain. Staff Artist Bob Day pictures herewith how it all started, and some of the results.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

ENTER the slow-motion hero!

Yep, the slow-motion hero has crashed the gates of all the theaters these days.

That is, he seems to be slow. He is, in fact, the real speed boy. You are finding this out if you go to the theater.

A season of unsophistication is setting in with unusual severity arount the theaters. It is Old Home Week these days with the John Gardensass heroes carrying off the County Fair blue ribbons. Dialects are as thick as powder puffs at the Biltmore petticoat corral.

The stage seems to be leaving the sophisticated drama to the screen, where the fans sit gazing pop-eyed at the hero living in an apartment with a perspective like the public library and at the heroine's lingerie and ingrowing bathtub. Oh, dear, yes, we outgrew the Old Homestead era on the screen long ago, and our best film patrons just cannot bear to see a picture in which the place isn't all cluttered up with multimillionaires and such!

HE'S A BRIGHT LAD

But this new John Gardensass here is a smart boy. Say, he could sell gold bricks to the city slickers, by heck.

Usually the slow-motion hero is a kind of linen-duster Prince Charming, hailing from the South or the West. He is a wise-cracking guy, too, a sort of jitney Will Rogers, and every time the villain comes around he floors him with an epigram. He isn't so much to look at but he's a bear with the villain dizziers.

The play opens sometimes in a city club or drawing room. But you can't fool us. We're getting wise. We know that pretty soon the country guy or some other slow-motion hero will enter, settle his neck more easily in his soft collar, deposit his black cotton umbrella and carpet-bag in the corner and light into the villain. Even when he's a city man, the slow-motion hero, we know him by his drawl. "You can take them out of the country, but you can't take the country out of them!"

The minute a man comes on the stage and drawls his lines, these days, you are safe in suspecting that he is the hero.

ALL SIGNS FAIL

We used to think we could reconise the hero first pop by the staycomb on his hair. But not now. He was a lithe, clean-limbed fellow, he was, and if sojourning in the country he had his shirt open at the collar on the slightest pretext!

Now you'd think that the young lawyer fellow in the play who helps the girl save her property from the villain was the hero. But he isn't necessarily. Not unless he drawls. By his drawl ye shall know him. Like as not the hero may even be the old josey with the line of nifties in his talk and no occupation whatever.

Just as often as not the hero is near middle age or is even old. How we do cry over the dear old fellow who lets his wife take in washing, but who never struck her a blow! He has the sympathy of every woman in the audience! And he always slings the nifties too.

The villain in these plays is

EDUCATING WIVES HARDLY HIS FORTE

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Surely no man could be as righteously innocent as Creighton Hale seems to be.

But that is the kind of motion-picture hero I have been striking lately. Did not Tony Moreno himself entertain me for two hours with the charms and perfections of Mrs. Tony? So did Tommy Meighan.

Creighton Hale, you see, is featured in a picture with the insidious title "How to Educate a Wife." Hence there was the best reason in the world why Creighton should stand me a lunch and set forth his innermost convictions on the subject to me.

He began right off with the utterly innocent announcement that he felt lost in the big bustling city and—er—where did one lunch, don't you know? And this driving a stylish Dupont through the busy traffic was so flustering to a secluded country gentleman. But somehow we negotiated the traffic in great style, not unaided by familiar nods from traffic cops—and we were certainly met by unctious and servile recognition from the maitre d'hotel at the lunch place, where my hero was affectionately addressed by name.

WIFE WITH SALAD

We tackled the educating-a-wife question over the salad. You see, pictorially, my hero makes an awful botch of it—the system simply doesn't work at all. But privately he has made an absolutely brilliant success of matrimony—so much so that to all intents and purposes Mrs. Hale and the babies might have been right there between us. (Yes, I thought of that too—my interview should have been with madame on how to educate a husband.)

Because, you see, Creighton's very first a propos remark was "Why paint the lily?" And half a second later he was assuring me that Mrs. Hale is a first-class housekeeper, a corking good cook, an ideal mother, a talented amateur physician, never under any circumstances intrudes upon "the lot" to remark that possibly some love-making scene is a shade too realistic, but that nevertheless this is not indifference to her lord's career, but supreme sympathetic understanding and fadeless trust.

PEACE AWAITS HIM

In fact, I gathered that when Creighton takes his frazzled soul home after a harassing day at the studio, peace, content and fireside solace await him. And, as a matter of amiable reciprocation, hubby is careful to withhold any and all

CAMEL THROUGH A NEEDLE'S EYE

Lens Greedily Devours Every Scene

Camera Angle Determines Many Things

Can Easily Alter Actors' Appearance

BY DOROTHY CALHOUN

Every year millions of dollars are poured into a hole an eighth of an inch in diameter. Through the Cyclops eye of the camera lens must pass mob scenes with thousands of people and close-ups of a single face, exterior shots of wide horizons and interiors showing one corner of a closet, glimpses of speeding autos and of a spider painfully weaving its web! The passage of the Red Sea in "The Ten Commandments" was recorded by the same lens as the scenes in the homely family sitting-room in the second part of the picture.

What the camera sees and shows us on the screen is not what the camera-man sees. No lens ever made has the wide vision of a human eye. The cameraman who took 3000 extras in one scene saw not only the milling crowds but the board fences that kept the tourists off the lot, the hot dog wagons on the outskirts of the set and the electricians focusing their "sun" arcs.

CAMERA VS. EYE

The eye sees more and less than the camera. Less, because it can focus on only one thing at a time. When we look at a crowd we see only a few faces clearly; when the camera looks at a crowd it sees everything with equal clearness.

Moreover the motion-picture camera sees what the eye cannot. It is able to look across a 100-foot canyon and record the emotions of the face of a man standing on the other side, it is able to follow a moving object so closely that it is clear instead of blurred at all times, it is able to make an ordinary, everyday actor into an Adonis, and a girl with a retrousse nose and a receding chin into a ravishing beauty.

The betterment of the camera angle is perhaps the greatest mechanical advance in the movies since the days when picture fathers turned picture daughters out into the storm with a semaphore gesture of the arm, picture villians attacked their victims with a great overturning of furniture and picture comedians used pies as weapons of offense all within a carefully chalk-marked triangle with the camera as its apex.

Cinema fathers are still turning erring daughters out into the night, film comedians still throw the same kind of pies, but the camera is no longer on the floor with them. It may be on a platform towering over them, hung from the ceiling or peeking up through a hole in the carpet underfoot.

DISTINGUISHING MARK

It is the difference in use of the camera angle more than any other factor which distinguishes the work of one director from that of another. To some the story and characters are more important than pictorial effect, to others beauty is the first consideration. One may strive for startling camera shots, another may make his points with frequent close-ups, while a third alternates long shots and more intimate views.

In "Greed," Von Stroheim tried the interesting experiment of making his audience a part of his cast of characters. You are invited right up onto the screen, ladies and gentlemen! The most sacred tenet of moviedom—that an actor shall not look at the camera, was broken, and the characters of "Greed" look straight into the eyes of the audience and include them in their conversations, problems and affairs.

In one scene the audience plays

Film Scenes of Revolution on Old Field

George Nash has been chosen to play George Washington, Mabel Taliaferro will be Betty Schuyler and Allen Conner, Hamilton, in "Alexander Hamilton," one of the "Chronicles of America" pictures now being produced by Yale University Press. Kenneth Webb is directing.

The picture shows the inauguration of George Washington as the first President of the United States and traces the fearless manner in which the new nation handled the problems of taxation under the financial direction of Hamilton. The tax on whisky, since it provoked resistance, provided the real test for the government to show its courage and power. This incident, which has become known as the "Whisky Rebellion of 1794," is graphically depicted in the new film.

A second production unit, under the direction of Webster Campbell, has just returned from Yorktown, Va., where 1700 United States soldiers and sixteen officers assisted in re-enacting the important battle of Yorktown over the very ground on which Washington and Cornwallis fought in 1781. The scenes of Cornwallis's surrender are said to be particularly impressive.

SELECTING HIS DIET

The fact that a director turns down a story submitted to him as screen material does not mean that it lacks value. Authority for this statement is found in Victor Schertzinger, himself the author of many successful motion-picture productions, who is now directing "Bread," the Metro screen version of Charles Norris's novel.

"The important thing for the author to do is to get his story to the right director," said Mr. Schertzinger. "Kreisler plays a simple melody more effectively than any other living man while Ysae is the greatest interpreter of Bach the world has even known. Because Kreisler does not play Bach does not mean Bach is not a great composer. It means that Kreisler is a sufficiently intelligent showman to realize that simple melodies are his forte.

"Some famous dramatic directors would not be good managers of a comedy. A director, in order to succeed, must do that for which he is best fitted. I have turned down stories in which I recognized great screen possibilities but which I felt were not just the type I could do best.

"The important thing after you have completed a story is to try to find a market for it. If the story does not meet the requirements demanded the next thing is to find out what's wrong with it. Then find the remedy and apply it. It isn't a bit easier than it sounds."

Among the players Mr. Schertzinger is directing in "Bread" are Mae Busch, Robert Frazer, Wanda Hawley, Pat O'Malley, Eugenie Besserer and Hobart Bosworth.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

THE time has come for somebody to smash the theatrical records again, and nobody is going to make big noise unless he gets a play or a picture that will run over a year. Exclusive of the "Mission Play," which is established as an annual attraction, there has never been a show that has lasted much over nine months steady as yet. But there will be. That is as sure as shooting shark with shrapnel.

There have been some astonishing runs in the past few years. "Civilian Clothes" started the ball rolling just after the war, when it topped all previous productions with about forty weeks of continuous performances. Came shortly after "Abie's Irish Rose," which did an equal engagement at a local stock and production theater.

About this time the pictures also commenced to set a pace. "Male and Female," "Why Change Your Wife," "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," "The Three Musketeers" marked the beginning. Finally came "Robin Hood," with a run that stretched into six months. Immediately after arrived "The Covered Wagon" with thirty-four weeks to its credit.

Perhaps "The Ten Commandments" may outstrip all previous competitors. They have not even whispered the thought of taking this feature off yet, and it is in its twentieth week. The impression seems to be that it will run through the entire summer, which would make the record exceed that of any other film, and possibly even the stage shows, which are still slightly ahead.

"White Collars" appears to be the current winner among the speakies. The hundredth performance is already history. "Lightin'" too, is assuming the high record for visiting productions.

I DON'T know when I have looked at so many features that are laid around the hearthside. Domestic drama seems the coming thing. It promises even to push the sexier plays that are making quite a flare off the cinema carpet. Between the two there is little or no choice with the general public. They may go to the sex plays for a while, but the ones that they talk about and remember are the intimate sort of features that remind them of their own experiences.

The best venture recently in this direction was John Stahl's "Why Men Leave Home," the title of which was unfortunately too farcelike. Those who saw this have all been mentioning it in conversation. It ran only a week, and I don't know that the house broke any attendance records, but nearly everybody who looked at the picture talked about it subsequently to their friends and generally with a lot of superlatives.

ONLY a few players appear to succeed in the domestic sort of picture. One of the best that I know is Lewis Stone. He can make himself absolutely at home in a lady's boudoir, and there is absolutely nothing offensive about it. He has a gentlemanly manner that will get him by the most delicate of domestic situations. He can be as mean and as thoughtless a husband as he likes, but everybody is going to approve him just the same.

Monte Blue is another, who curiously enough seems to fit into these new domestic complexities. He generally plays the downtrodden sort of husband. Some woman is always trying to vamp him, and getting him in trouble, or he has a duece of a notion what a wife should be like, and tries to make her live up to this with disastrous results but he generally manages to remain thoroughly appealing. "The Marriage Circle" made a name for him in this sort of picture, and he plays a somewhat similar role in "How to Educate a Wife."

SLOW-MOVING HERO WITH US

often at first mistaken for the hero. He is a personable young chap with his hair roached up on the side, clean finger nails and a line of talk that would do credit to the graduate salesman of the correspondence school. Yes, indeed, the villain is often the real male come-on of the show for looks. He always persuades the heroine that he is working for her interests and the fact of the matter is very often he isn't such a black crook; his villainy is just a sort of dirty-whitey-brown.

But from the moment that the bobo from the country begins firing nifties at him, he is lost. He might just as well give up in the first act, but they've got to have three, so he keeps on to the bitter end and exits R as the heroine butts her head into the bosom of the hero.

THERE'S A REASON

Sometimes the low-gear hero is there merely to save the lady's reputation. In that case he is speeded up when the flapper throws her arms around his neck. It is just as though he had taken a pint of lightning from then on. He may settle back to the ten-mile gait, but not until he has handed the lady's honor back to her as spotless as a shirt from a government-inspected laundry.

Sometimes he is a rich boy, the hero, who wants to find out how the other half of the world lives, or who wants to show that he is democratic.

Then he marries the daughter of a white-collared clerk and goes to live with the girl's folks. He wouldn't in real life, of course. He would go to a first-class hotel and take his wife along with him. Everybody would realize that a wife always takes her husband's position in life, and there'd be no pother. But then there wouldn't be any play. The bride's brother couldn't air his socialistic views to make the audience laugh, and the younger flapper sister couldn't start the back-fires when the hero gets too smart.

MAY BE SLOW, BUT SURE

Most often the hero is a country lawyer. Oh, you can't beat these log-hacking heroes when it comes to the nifty line of chatter and the high-amperage brain power. The city slicker wants the heroine's property for oil or a railroad or something. You see her in the first act, all dolled up to go down to lunch with the villain. When in comes the slow-motion hero with the drawl. He is so slow that she never keeps her date with the villain, who rushes in and tears his hair to the great glee of the audience. Sometimes the villain himself doesn't recognize the slow-motion hero, and kids him, but he soon gets as good as he sent, by heck, and ofttimes a darned sight better.

But the hero has to do all his good work for the heroine against her will. He is pulling up-stream all the time. But he keeps right on no matter what the heroine says to him, nor how she stamps her feet at him. Naturally she misunderstands his motives, being fooled by the slicker's hair and finger-nails. Even heroines haven't got used to the snail understudy yet. But by the third act, she realizes what the slicker really is, and that a true heart beats inside the slow works of the huskleberry hero.

HE WON'T HURRY

You simply can't hurry the slow-motion hero. He just will take his time. Like the mills of the gods, he grinds slowly, but he puts a fine finish to the job. The villain has to take his dust. He won't sign the papers nor let the heroine or the good old man sign them. And that's when he grows perfectly killing with his dialect and his epigrams.

Just as the girl and the dear old man are about to sign away their rights, in comes the slow freight. He throws a monkey wrench into the works, tosses off a few epigrams, and the villain once more is foiled.

But just wait until he gets into court. That's where the slow-motion hero shines. He may have had no practice before, but once he gets started before a judge, he could argue mermaids into buying bedroom slippers. He wins the old home, with the green stuff over the porch and the mildewed mortgage on it, back for the heroine and the sweet old man. Mayhap, too, he wins the old man's wife back to him. The old fellow may be lazy, but the hero persuades the wife that he is a treasure just the same.

By and by even the stage villain will begin to look out for the soft-shirt hero. He doesn't suspect him yet, kids and bullies him and calls him funny names.

He's so smart, in fact, the slow-motion hero, that you don't see why the nation has never heard of him before.

HUMAN TOUCH IS NEED OF THEATER

"If there were more human stories of regular people to be found in our theaters the audiences would increase proportionately," says Robert Ober, who plays a leading role in "White Collars."

"The hard facts of daily life tempered naturally with the dreams and loves of the common people form the most interesting of all entertainment combinations. Because 'White Collars,' which we are now doing at Egan's, contains just this material it is enjoying an extraordinary Los Angeles run."

HALE IS HOME LOVING CHAP

criticism of her department of the firm's activities.

Creighton Hale gazed at me with utterly convincing innocence as he assured me that successful marriages must be this sort of a partnership and that husbands have no more right to criticise things at home than wives have to butt into husbands' business.

"What about careers for wives?" I wanted to know, this being a hectic sort of a question these days.

"Well, I am glad mine is not professional in that way," smiled my hero with smug satisfaction. One did sort of feel that Creighton could not be quite so satisfied a husband under any careerful-wife condition. Nor could I, for instance, have been so assured of being frightfully proud of my sartorially perfect escort. I sensed a strong conviction that Creighton never knows what it is to wear a frayed shirt cuff or a buttonless vest or an imperfectly darned hose. No man ever did his wife more credit in this respect than Creighton.

STAGE FOR DIRECTORS

Like so many of the screen's best actors, Creighton Hale was first on the legitimate stage. This sort of training, thinks Mr. Hale, is even more essential for directors. He drew my attention to the fact that the best directors were all stage actors first.

That is why his own talents shone so advantageously under Lubitsch in "The Marriage Circle," and that is why he joyfully expects to make no end of a hit in "How to Educate a Wife" under Monte Bell.

But pretty soon this sort of conversation led around to screen babies, which naturally brought us back to the Hale babies—and you may know that said Hale babies are never, never going to be picture actors—no, sir.

HOME, SWEET HOME

One reason why my hero is so rapidly domesticated is that motion-picture work provided the first opportunity for an established home. Before that, as a stage actor, he largely lived in trunks. He never wants to go back to the stage or to leave Hollywood, and, like Tony Moreno, he assured me that running around to cafes and shows held no allurement for the Hales whatever.

Home cooking and his feet under his own dining table for him. His own babies on his own knees by his own fireside were Paradise enow. He doesn't care if he never hears grand opera or visits a big store or dines at a chic cafe or drives through crowded traffic ever anymore. He even hates to be away from home overnight when away on location—and if he wasn't within telephone call of those babies—well, he jolly well wouldn't accept the role.

HOW IS IT DONE?

Yes, this story was supposed to be about educating a wife. But I shall have to ask Kid McCoy or Jimmie Young or some other widely experienced fellow about that. But my hero certainly is a shining example of a model husband—the sort of spouse that every woman craves—and whoever educated him so successfully for the role should hereby claim the honor. Creighton tried to say something profound about the education of wives being the responsibility of parents, so maybe their mammas should educate the husbands too, and maybe Creighton's mamma is responsible for him, if Mrs. Creighton repudiates the honor.

But you can see for yourself, with all our motion-picture heroes being such handsome, sartorially perfect, utterly charming, yet domesticated specimens, those matinee girls who crave romantic attachment therewith are not so misguided after all. It is a perfectly righteous instinct.

beginning to look forward to the concerts at the Hollywood Bowl. What a divine institution these open-air programs are! Within the last few years they have become almost as much of a necessity as the seaside or the mountain stream, and nothing outside of these more familiar rendezvous, conjures such a spell of summery beauty.

I am glad that Alfred Hertz is returning to conduct the concert. He first started the bowl music and though Emil Oberhoffer who followed him became much beloved, nothing could quite erase the impression of Mr. Hertz's pioneering.

THE BATHING girls simply didn't want to be left behind. So they recently got together and organized a club, that will, it is predicted, take its place beside Our Club, the Regulars, and the Climbers, which are now Hollywood's chief groupings of girls in the pictures. "Our Club" is the oldest, the the Regulars and the Climbers are of recent origin. The bathing girls have called their club expressively the Little Dippers.

WHO WILL DIRECT?

Just who will direct Norma Talmadge's next picture is still undecided. So far Sidney Olcott, Frank Borzage, Fred Niblo and Sidney Franklin have been mentioned, but now that Mr. Schenck is in town something definite may soon be learned.

Woman Lawyer at Old Bailey

Miss Helena Normanton has the distinction of being the first woman counsel to defend a case at the "Old Bailey" in London.

The case was one in which three men were charged with obtaining goods by fraud. One of the defendants, Charles Eyles, picked out Miss Normanton from the dock to defend him under the impression that she was a man. On finding his mistake he said he would "stick to his choice."—[Manchester Guardian.

Come on, Hal Roach, "Let Not Man Put a Cinder."

It's come at last.

You will soon be seeing "The Mysteries of Mah Jongg" at your favorite theater. And it isn't a burlesque of a Chinese murder mystery, either.

And one suburban theater advertises "Stinger Jim McKee." Maybe that's how the manager feels.

Wallace MacDonald started smoking when he was 7 years old. Says he regrets the loss of the first seven years.

Ministers of Church Endorse Biblical Play

Inclusion of "The Ten Commandments" in their observance of Easter Sunday, or in the days immediately following, is being urged by clergymen on both church members and those aligned with no particular religious creed. Since the Cecil B. De Mille classic of the screen began showing, ministers of the gospel and their organizations have given whole-hearted endorsement of the spectacle, which now is nearing its 300th performance at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater. More than a thousand letters of commendation have been received by Cecil B. De Mille and the files at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian carry many indorsements, the import of all being reflected in this expression of Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, who says:

"'The Ten Commandments' is the most impressive film I ever have seen. It is a great sermon—greater than any I ever have heard by a preacher. It is more than entertainment—it is a great spiritual uplift and inspiration for all that is best."

In a letter from Santa Ana comes the opinion of Rev. H. G. Bingers, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which says: "Masterful in presentation, correct in detail, unflinching in truth, 'The Ten Commandments' as a picture is the most forceful moral message, unspoken, I ever received."

LOOK OUT, WILL ROGERS

Marguerite Clayton has challenged Will Rogers to a fancy lassoing contest. Ordinarily an expert horsewoman and lasso artist, Miss Clayton is daily perfecting her skill in her role opposite Harry Carey in the wild western feature of Hunt Stromberg's "Tiger Thompson."

LENS RULES IN LAND OF CINEMA

eavesdropper wil an old woman who is pressing her ear avidly to the wall to listen to what is going on in the next room. So close is the onlooker brought to the scene that he actually experiences a sense of ear strain!

In another scene at a cafe the onlooker finds himself sitting at the next table to McTeague and his friend, Marcus. This picture was taken from the "practical" angle, that is, the angle from which a human being would be likely to see the same scene in real life.

"If the locale is a small room," Von Stroheim explains, "the characters are not seen from above as though the onlooker were perched on the chandelier or draped over the picture moulding."

"A Woman of Paris," and "Name the Man," were both introduced in the same way—first a long shot of a house, then a closer view of the house with the heroine's face looking from the window, and then the spectator is brought into the room, a familiar if somewhat breathless method of starting a picture. But in "Greed" there are no rapid alterations of distance during the course of a particular episode. In real life, asks Von Stroheim, do people approach within three feet of something, then instantly draw back a couple of blocks, only the next moment to dash down the middle distance?

The scenes in "Greed" are taken from a fixed point, either near or far. Occasionally the onlooker may change his position but not as a restless kangaroo afflicted with St. Vitus dance might do.

Quite another technique was used by Carl Brown, cameraman for James Cruze in the taking of "The Fighting Coward." In the first place, where other directors use from three to five cameras to take one scene Cruze shoots with one. In the second place this director leaves the details of picture-taking to experts—he never troubles about lighting, make-up or costuming, and turns the camera work over to his cameraman, giving him a free hand to work out his own ideas.

LIKE AN ENGRAVING

"Mr. Brown first studied hundreds of steel engravings, which represent the art expression of the period of the picture.

"These engravings, I found, were all made from a low angle of vision, he says, the artist sat on a stool below the scenes and characters he was depicting, looking slightly up at them. And so, in as many scenes as possible—scenes in which there are not too many people on the set—I am reproducing the engraving point of view and shooting from below, looking up, with the tripod straddling out almost to its full width. People will not know what I have done, but they will feel a certain quaintness and old-timeness about the picture.

"Personally I think it is the duty of the cameraman to catch the spirit of the scene he is taking, and to interpret it by his manner of taking it. In some cases this means deliberately sacrificing the photography to the story. I remember a shot in 'Stella Maris'—the finest example of motion-picture photography ever made to my mind—which was interpreted in this way. The lighting was dead, flat and dull and the camera angle was deliberately distorted to bring out the despair and wretchedness of the character in the scene. It was bravely done—but most of us are cowards when it comes to making a bad photograph to get a good picture."

DEMANDS BEAUTY

Cecil B. De Mille has a director of photography as well as a number of cameramen. This unique position is held by Bert Glennon, who stood back of the cameras which shot the amazaing piece of photograhpy in motion, "The Ten Commandments."

He will tell you that De Mille shoots his pictures from the audience angle, never losing sight of the picture effect. When other directors subordinate their settings and background to the action of the story Cecil De Mille always requires a beautiful picture with a background subdued but clear to the tiniest detail.

"He is rather like Belasco in his methods," Mr. Glennon says, "detail, finish, beauty of setting, these he must have. To him a motion-picture is first of all a picture, something to look at."

SPECIAL CAMERA

To get the mob scenes in "The Ten Commandments" the cameras were lifted thirty feet off the ground on scaffoldings. The higher the camera, the wider its area of vision. A natural camera angle may be able to portray action in a close-up, but it takes a distorted angle to get pictorial effects. Other of the amazing shots in this picture were obtained by the Ackley camera, a camera arranged on ball bearings and steered in any conceivable direction by a lever so that it can lie down, roll over and over and stand on its head. It is panoramic and also telescopic, making it possible to get the close-ups of Rod la Rocque's face in the tossing motor boat from the top of a breakwater half a mile away.

"We used the Ackley in 'Triumph' to keep up with an auto going seventy miles an hour and take close-ups of the faces of those riding in it," Mr. Glennon said, "but the most interesting camera work in this picture is that used in taking a small but vitally important scene centering around a blackboard.

"Seven cameras were trained from every possible angle on the characters at the board, and all of the cameras were ground every moment during the scene. Some took long shots, some side and back views and two were trained on the faces.

"This gives us an unbroken sequence, and when it is cut from long shot to close up the lighting, the action and every smallest detail will be smooth. You won't see the girl with a lock of hair loose in the distant view and carefully combed in the close-up or the man smoking a fresh cigarette in the long view and a stub in the near-to, as is often the case when the two views are taken at a slightly different time."

ELEVATES LENS

"De Mille always raises his camera slightly when there are more than three or four characters in the scene. It is the only way to see many faces," he gestured toward a group of supers waiting to be taken in a factory scene, "when the human eye looks at a crowd on the same level it sorts out features and figures but if the camera stood where I am now and took what I see, that girl there would have three noses, the one beyond two heads of hair, and the girl beside her would seem to be wearing the hat of the man just back of her."

George Melford is a director who takes his picture from the story angle. Backgrounds and settings are not so important to him as the human interest. He often carries his cameras onto the set itself in order to get intimate side and back glimpses of the characters, hiding it behind a piano, a door or a curtain. Instead of taking his picture from the front of the set only he goes all around his actors, carrying the spectator with him. He shoots from a shorter angle and takes many close-ups.

William De Mille likewise uses close-ups freely.

"These shots take the place of opera glasses at a stage play," he asserts. "If you watch the audience you will see that one moment there will be no glasses pointed at the stage and the next—when strong emotion is being expressed by the face instead of by gesture, there will be hundreds trained on the actor.

"The audience wants to study facial expression at vital moments, and the only way the producer has of bringing the audience nearer the player is by a close-up. Of course, it should not be so large that the impression is merely that of a huge nose and magnified mouth."

THE ACTOR KNOWS

Every actor knows what the camera angle can do for him or her. The particular position from which the picture is taken can perform miracles, making brunettes into blondes, stout into slender, flattering the players' best points and concealing their worse ones. Most screen players have a "bad angle," some of them several. Perhaps the full face is better than the profile, or the left side than the right.

A low point of view with a high background can made a short player tall. This trick is so successful that Henry Walthal, a short man in reality, seems often of almost supernatural height in a picture.

This is only one of the trick effects which the cameraman knows. Harold Lloyd's skyscraper pictures which whitened the hair of his audiences were made possible by clever manipulation of the camera angle.

A recent Goldwyn picture had an odd camera angle showing the tops of the heads of a dinner party taken from directly above the table. But the tendency is strongly away from the startling and freak effects toward naturalness. It used to be a cardinal cinema sin to turn the back to the camera, but in "Three Weeks" and "The Turmoil" this occurs over and over again, giving the fans an opportunity to become acquainted with the backs of their favorites' heads.

THAT WEALTHY FEELING

Ralph Lewis says that he has a certain feeling of affluence in playing the role of the multimillionaire father in "The Man Who Came Back," after so many months of portraying the impecunious fireman, policeman and mailman.

TWO LEGITIMATE THEATERS CHANGE

Two changes occur among the legitimate attractions this week. Beginning with today's matinee "Shore Leave" will be presented at the Morosco Theater. Also opening this afternoon is "La Golondrina," John Steven McGroarty's new play, which goes on at the Mission Playhouse, San Gabriel.

The other theaters hold the entertainments of the last few weeks. "Lightnin'" at the Biltmore, "White Collars" at Egan's, "The Invisible Husband" at the Grand Avenue Theater, "All Alone Susan" at the Majestic, and Robert Mantell at the Mason, all continue.

Composer on Bill

Ernest R. Ball, the composer and Alma Nielson, premiere ballerine will share the headline honors at the Hillstreet this week, and John T. Murray and Vivien Oakland will be specially featured. Tom Mix will be the screen star appearing in "Ladies to Board," with Tony, the wonder horse.

The Irish player, Robert Reilly is making his first American appearance in a song playlet, "Irish Romance," supported by Molly Kennedy and Little Larry, a clever juvenile comedian.

Other acts will be the Remos Company, comprising adult and midget athletes, and Ernest Mack and Margie La Rue, whirlwind roller skaters.

Comedy Opens Today

Today's matinee will usher in a sparkling new comedy drama, "Shore Leave," at the Morosco Theater. It was written by Hubert Osborne and is a genuinely brand new idea, rich in humor.

One of the biggest casts ever assembled will be seen in the comedy. Among the players are Harland Tucker, Charlotte Treadway, Gayne Whitman, Grace Travers, Mary Fisher, Edith Evans, Albert Van Antwerp, Douglas Rowland, Louis Dean, Evelyn Melbourne, Fanny Yantis, Bell Green, Ruth Long and others.

Enters Sixth Week

"Lightnin" continues to draw at the Biltmore Theater where it starts on its sixth week tonight. The fiftieth Los Angeles performance will be celebrated next Wednesday night, which sets a record that has not been touched by any traveling dramatic attraction that has come to Los Angeles in years.

Percy Pollock continues in the title role and is supported by a splendid cast, which includes thirteen of the original players who appeared in New York, with the late Frank Bacon.

Special Features

Once a year, vaudeville artists, who are ever ready to respond to every call made upon them, ask the public's support for their own good—their benefit, pension and death funds. The week beginning tomorrow is that occasion, and in every variety house throughout America, this week will be so observed. The Orpheum will insert many special features into its bill, impromptu and otherwise, and shows will be replete with surprises from start to finish.

The bill itself is headed jointly by Abe Lyman and his orchestra, and Sarah Padden. Lyman was here making his vaudeville bow only lately, but he desired, as did his followers, a final week before he left with "the favorite band of movie land" for a tour east, so it has been arranged for the coming week. He will offer a new program. Miss Padden is one of vaudeville's brilliant lights, and ever since she created "The Cloud" and made it a classic, she stood among the first dramatic stars. She comes now in a new play, "The Accusation," written by Edwin Burke and staged by herself.

Mary Haynes is a comely young woman who has some original and exclusive songs to proffer, with Eddie Litchfield at the piano.

Ernest Hiatt offers "Nothing Serious" and does it. "Reveries" is an art-posing act of supreme beauty, produced by Ray C. Wynne. Joseph Diska is a tenor many have heard here with delight; the Clinton Sisters are "Cartooning in Danceland," and Joe E. Brown in "Arrest Me" holds over.

Still It Runs On

"White Collars" runs on forever at the Egan Theater apparently, where this comedy starts upon its thirteenth week tomorrow. As it is played it is thoroughly entertaining and those who may have read Edgar Franklin's story "Regular People" from which the dramatization was made, telling of the wealthy chap who married his stenographer, there will be found special enjoyment in seeing its characters brought into the flesh.

The splendid cast numbers among its members Earle Foxe, Ruth Lee, Robert, Ober, Mabel Forrest, George Sherwood, Blanche Douglas, Zellah Covington, Paul Kruger and Isabel Foyer.

Curwood Story

The Hippodrome this week presents a fascinating story from the pen of James Oliver Curwood, screened under the title "Gold Madness," serving as a starring vehicle for Guy Bates Post. In the supporting cast are three performers, each of whom has been starred in his or her own right. They are Cleo Madison, Mitchell Lewis and Grace Darmond.

A vaudeville bill of decided variety is headed by George Wichman, in "Art and Comedy in Clay." Mack and Salle in "A Sure Thing and A Guess," offer a singing and artistic dancing act. Gertrude Dudley and company, in "Polite Sarcasm," sing and play their own compositions. Great Herman and Company offer "Fantastic Comedy and Weird Porblems." Murray and Park in "Nifty Nonsense," and Cecile Eldred and Carr in "Roof Garden Frolics," close the bill.

New Players

There will be rejoicing at the Burbank this week. In the ranks of the new musical comedy, alongside Lee Bud Harrison, will play Henry Sheer and Walter Van, both well-known comedians. The Baby Dolls have put on their most festive raiment.

Ruby Darby has a new blue number, Jean Darby, a peppy jazz song, William McKee, an unctious darky melody, and there is to be an hour of uninterrupted joy while the show proceeds.

The runway will dazzle with the costumes of the chorus.

Beauty Revue

The Pantages vaudeville program is headed by Andre Sherri and a beauty chorus with Max Hoffman, Jr., presenting the Andre Sherri revue. The dancing comedienne has not been seen in the West for several years. Carl McCullough, tenor, boasted by his friends as the John McCormick of vaudeville, makes his annual vaudeville tour. The Ting Foo Chinese orchestra, composed of ten oriental syncopaters, is the musical novelty of the show. Northlane and Ward, (Edna and Jack,) offer nifty nonsense, a smart program of song and talk and some extra good dancing. Little Yoshi and Company, Japanese gymnasts, and the Four Ylleroms, whose performance is as strange as their name, make up the list.

On the screen Dorothy Mackaill is featured in "The Fair Cheat," a comedy bubbling with laughter and love.

Comedy Pleases

"The Invisible Husband" Vincent Lawrence's stage success, will enter its third week at the Grand Avenue Theater this evening. No comedy presented during the past season has met with the same distinct success that has been accorded this play. The cast headed by Ramsey Wallace, Edith Lyle and Morgan Wallace, gives a splendid performance which adds a great deal to the success of the production.

THEY LIKE HER

Edith Allen, who won her first laurels as a motion-picture actress in "Scaramouche," has been warmly praised in New York for her work in "Virtuous Liars," he Whitman Bennett production in which she plays the principal role. David Powell plays the lead opposite her.

"WISE SON" DIFFERENT

Graf's Latest Production Said to be Novel in Theme

Max Graf, supervising director of the Graf productions, will shortly have another opus in the market that in all likelihood will have its local preview simultaneously with the Los Angeles premiere of his "Half-a-Dollar-Bill."

Mr. Graf is now in Hollywood burning the electricity far into the night with his cutting of "The Wise Son," which Al Cohn is titling. His reputation, by all accounts, for doing something "different" is fully sustained with his last picture, for the producer gleefully admits that in many respects it is highly radical as to theme, situations and treatment, for instead of following old stock stuff he has taken for his model life.

Featuring Alec B. Francis, the supporting cast in "The Wise Son" is of all-star caliber, and includes among others Bryant Washburn, Estelle Taylor, Kate Price, Ethel Wales, Eugenie Besserer, Lenore Casnova and Phillips Smalley. Phil Rosen directed and Lyman Bruning, who was associated with the photography of "Rosita" and "The Thief of Bagdad," was at the camera.

CONNIE'S DIRECTOR

Sidney Franklin will direct Constance Talmadge in her next comedy, "Learning to Love."

NOVELISTS' CHARACTER HER FORT

Blanche Sweet Wins Fam as Interpreter of Abuse Women for Screen

Blanche Sweet bids fair to wi for herself the title of the screen' outstanding interpreter of classi roles. It is not so many month since her "Anna Christie" was being hailed on all sides as one o the particularly bright spots i a year made illustrious by such other masterpieces as "The Covered Wagon," "A Woman of Paris," and "The Marriage Circle." As a play it already had a three years' run in New York, London and Chicago, and was by no means a novelty to the public; but Miss Sweet's fine screen interpretation called forth praise, even from those who had Pauline Lord's stage triumph still fresh in memory.

Miss Sweet is now undertaking to transfer "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" from the pages of Hardy's classic novel to the screen, under the direction of her husband, Marshall Neilan, who is making the film for Goldwyn. This is the first time that Mr. and Mrs. Neilan have worked together on a picture since they were married.

"The two roles are similar enough to form an interesting parallel, dissimilar enough to invite study," Miss Sweet says. "Anna and Tess are both women of the peasant type. They are too elemental to walk without stumbling in the complicated maze of an artificial society. They suffer the same personal indignity; they are both left to fight with their bewilderment on discovering how incredibly unreasonable and cruel men can be, even when they claim to love.

"With Anna, I had to portray a character who had not much of the woman left in her. Two years of a prostitute's life do that to a girl. But gradually the remorseful devotion of her father, an inescapable cave-man lover, their quarrels—there never was a tonic for a woman like having two men fight over her—all this combines to crack her shell. The dry branches of her womanhood blossom again.

"Tess, on the other hand, is all woman to begin with—full blown and desirable—in fact, too much so for her own good. She has the fatal gift of beauty combined with a modesty that will not let her make capital of her physical charms. And because she does not use them for her own advantage, men cannot keep from using them for her ruin.

"The greatest contrast in the two roles lies in the fact that it is the very quality that Anna lacked—womanliness—that wrecks Tess's life. There is not enough masculine hardness in her character; she has too much unadulterated womanhood in her; and it does not pay to be too simple-charactered in a complex world like ours.

"That is Tess's tragedy. She is too clean to know how to handle a brute like her seducer, and too devoted to be capable of rudely awakening her fastidious husband to his senses. This makes her probably the most purely feminine character in literature, and one of the most interesting ever portrayed on the screen."

RETURNS TO FILMS AFTER LONG BREAK

J. Milton Stewart

Returning to his motion-picture work after an absence of seven years, J. Milton Stewart is meeting with success in a number of widely varied roles. Stewart was with the Essanay company when that organization had a studio at Niles. With the closing of this studio in 1915 he dropped out of pictures, returning to his original vocation of railroad accountant with the Alaskan Engineering Commission.

Now Mr. Stewart is again in pictures. He has recently done character work in "The Life of Lincoln," "Flowing Gold," "Out of the Dark," "Where the Journey Ends," and other productions.

Co-Star Bill at Miller's on Second Week

The first appearance of Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen as co-stars was the signal for a week of extraordinary business at Miller's Theater, and so successful was this first seven days that the production is being held for a second and final week. It is a picturization of Basil King's sensational novel on marriage and divorce, "Let Not Man Put Asunder."

It is a picture of beauty; the sets are lavish and there is an atmosphere of luxury that places the picture far in advance of any recently shown here. It breathes wealth and society, yet possesses the element of greatness in drama, human characters who live and suffer and are regenerated through supreme sacrifice. It is a ringing indictment of divorce and the theme of love misguided provides one of the most gripping, human, heart-touching stories ever offered motion-picture lovers.

Both Miss Frederick and Mr. Tellegen give performances that are declared the best of their careers and they are ably supported, while the production was made under the supervision of the veteran producer, J. Stuart Blackton.

There is a big laugh on the bill too, furnished by Larry Semon and his latest gag comedy, "Trouble Brewing."

'On Location,' Star Helps Out Local Charity

"The Benefit King."

Thomas Meighan is earning that title in every American town where he goes on location to make scenes for his pictures.

During the last three pictures, Meighan has staged benefits for charitable institutions in the cities chosen for exterior locations and each has been a huge success. On each occasion, Meighan personally underwrites the show, guaranteeing its success.

The star added another worthy act to his list recently while making scenes for "The Confidence Man," showing this week at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater. At a leading hotel in Jacksonville, Fla., Meighan gave a ball to the residents and winter colony for the benefit of the crippled children of the community.

Meighan underwrote all the expenses of the affair, and all of the receipts, approximately $2000, were turned over to the charity. By the strangest of coincidences, Meighan in the picture, "The Confidence Man" is called upon to do practically the same thing on the screen that he did in real life. In his role of Dan Corvan he is a fake oil stock promoter who endeavors to get into the good graces of the people of the little town of Failfield. The country poorhouse is in a rundown condition, and Tom offers the use of his own house until the institution can be placed in proper shape.

"The Confidence Man" is a crook story, produced by Meighan by popular demand. It is one of those rare gems sometimes found in serial magazines and is now running in a popular monthly. Virginia Vail is leading woman and the cast includes Laurence Wheat, Charles Dow Clark and other favorites. Victor Heerman directed.

SHE'S NO GENTLEMAN

Kathleen Clifford Scandalized Club Attendant in Pasadena

Kathleen Clifford's most embarrassing moment, and she blushes deeply when she tells of it, occurred just a few days ago in Pasadena.

The way it happened, Miss Clifford is playing a boy's role in a new Christie comedy. It is the featured part, therefore she attracted much attention when a group of club women from Pasadent visited the studio one day. She was asked by the group to make a personal appearance at a benefit being staged in Pasadena, which she agreed to do.

The night of the appearance Miss Clifford walked into the club where the affairs was being staged. She wore her male attire, in which she had been working at the studio, and in which she planned to make her appearance. Once inside, Miss Clifford made a bee line for the ladies' dressing-room. But as she started in the door an attendant seized her arm:

"Just a moment there, mister," he said, mistaking the impersonator for a man. "The gentlemen's side is opposite."

SCENES IN LATEST FILM SUCCESS

Ways of Modern Society Depicted

Leatrice Joy

Alma Bennett

Leatrice Joy and Victor Varconi

Leatrice Joy in De Mille "Triumph"

IN HIS latest motion picture, "Triumph," which comes to the Grauman Million Dollar Theater Tuesday, Cecil B. De Mille returns to the type of modern society drama in which he scored his earlier and most decided successes.

Film fans who recall with pleasure De Mille's "Manslaughter," "Why Change Your Wife" and "Male and Female" are assured that in "Triumph" he offers them the same gripping, eye-filling combination of dazzling ladies and gowns, romance and thrills that made those pictures so popular.

"Triumph" is the story of a girl and two men who love her. The girl starts as a humble factory worker and becomes a famous opera singer, with two more worlds at her feet. Fate tumbles one man from a fortune to a park bench and another from overalls to a limousine and perfumed pajamas. And through it all one thing remains constant—their love for the girl.

Scenes filmed amid the thundering cogs of a great factory, a fight between rival lovers in a limousine going ninety miles an hour, spectacular cafe and modiste scenes, a daring fire scene and a charming vision episode of "Romeo and Juliet" are some of the delights awaiting you in "Triumph."

A typical stellar De Mille cast interprets the play headed by Leatrice Joy and Rod La Rocque and other scintillants include Victor Varconi, Theodore Kosloff, Robert Edeson, Julia Faye, George Fawcett, Raymond Hatton and Zazu Pitts. The picture will be presented with a number of surprise features musically and otherwise.

Writer Claims All Credit for 'Three Weeks'

"Three Weeks" is coming to the screen exactly as I wrote it." That is the statement of Elinor Glyn, author of the novel, came to California to supervise the filming of the story, which opened its second week at the California Theater yesterday.

Mrs. Glyn in her statement, said: "I send a message to all those who are deeply and sincerely in love with 'Three Weeks.' Flappers and flirts may stay away, for this story is only for those who understand, who are ready to sacrifice for their love, for after all, love that does not inspire sacrifice is not love at all.

"'Three Weeks,' as a book, received a lot of publicity it did not deserve. I determined that when it came to the screen it should be genuine and a real portrayal of my book. I spent every minute on the set. I oversaw the making of the costumes. I myself wrote the titles, so when I leave the finished product in America, I will do so with joy in my heart.

"The screen is getting more and more sincere in its efforts every day. And before long it will be the only medium through which genuine art and feeling are conveyed to the public.

"My idea has always been to rid a picture of a false note. The public responds to everything that is real and true.

"So in my production of 'Three Weeks,' I had a free hand. I had only to make my characters human, as they were in the book. My cast is perfect. My costumes are what ladies and gentlemen should wear. The servants' costumes were made in England. Everything is as it should be."

RAYMOND HARMON IS LAUDED BY WIRE

Raymond Harmon, the popular local tenor, was the recipient of a number of complimentary telegrams last week from the realms of Radioland. Among the number was a wire from J. F. Hinkle, Governor of New Mexico, lauding his rendering of Old Santa Fe and the New Mexico program. R. E. Twitchell of Santa Fe, N. M., was pleased in the extreme with the way Mr. Harmon sang Mela. From far-off Wilmette, Ill., Arthur M. Fournier telegraphed his delight in the tenor's offerings. The wire ran like this: "You are a big favorite with Chicago fans. May your success become greater and greater."

Mr. Harmon has been in big demand lately—so much in demand that he has been compelled at times to cut in on his pupils' hours for the purpose of pleasing many of his admirers. He has a number of recital engagements in the near future. He is also considering a big offer for a midsummer tour in the East.

REVIVAL OF 'BALDPATE' ANNOUNCED

Pasadena Players Offer Foil to Heavy Drama Last Presented Patrons

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" will be revived by the Pasadena Community Players. Each year they make a point of putting on again one of their past successes. There have been as many requests for a repetition of the famous George M. Cohen play as for anything else these volunteers have done.

There will be seven performances of "Seven Keys to Baldpate," beginning tomorrow night. Gilmor Brown has assembled a capable cast, which includes a number of those who took part when the farce-comedy was first done, two seasons ago.

Among those who will be seen in the piece are Ray Clifford, Virginia Lykins, Lawrence M. Jones, Walter E. Abbott, Mrs. Robert Loofbourrow, Mrs. Clyde Wolff, Robert S. Higginbotham, Marie Huxley, George Sabin, Percy Ubil and Frank Burnham. The stage settings are by Fred C. Huxley.

Earl Derr Biggers wrote "Seven Keys to Baldpate," and Mr. Cohen made the play version. It is interesting as being a unique contribution to dramaturgy, in that the audience is completely fooled, in case it does not know the story. This is in complete violation of all accepted principles of playwriting. Notwithstanding, "Seven Keys" is one of the most popular plays of recent years.

As a "chaser" for Molnar's "Liliom," which has just closed a run of three weeks, the Cohen opus is regarded as most appropriate because it is so different. It will be repeated every night next week and Saturday matinee.

SENNETT'S AS SCHOOL OF ACTING

Ambitious Girl Deserts Serious Work to Train in Comedy Class

Many ambitious girls have sailed from picture comedy into picture drama, but Madeline Hurlock is the first one to get herself a ticket going the other way.

Miss Hurlock is one of the most beautiful girls in pictures. She has midnight eyes and a willow-wand figure. She was regarded as a promising candidate for big parts in dramatic pictures when she electrified Hollywood by taking her make-up off and walking over to the Mack Sennett studio, where she asked for a job.

"But, Madeline," gasped her friends, "they might hit you with pies or—or something. Why did you do it?"

And then Madeline told them why she did it.

"When I looked around at the stars," she said, "I found that an astonishing number of them had climbed in from the comedy studios.

Madeline Hurlock

"I found that Charlie Chaplin, Marie Prevost, Louise Fazenda, Dale Fuller, Mary Thurman, Gloria Swanson, Wallace Beery, Noah Beery, Raymond Griffith, Mabel Normand and a host of other stars all got their training on the Sennett comedy lot.

"I realized that this could not be just a happen-so. There must be some reason for it. To be frank about it, I realized that my danger was in getting a little cheap celebrity on looks and figure and so on. I didn't want to be for decoration only. I wanted to learn acting from the foundations up.

"I read in an interview that Mary Pickford said she wanted some day to have Mack Sennett direct her in a picture; that she considered him to have the finest instinct for translating thought into action of any director in motion pictures.

"I talked to several of the stars who had found their training in comedy studios and I made up my mind. I came over to see Mr. Sennett and got a job.

"I soon found out what they meant. There is something you get here that you get nowhere else—that is, clear definition. You learn to make your work clear-cut and sharply outlined. You are not allowed to stand around and pose and leave it to the subtitle writer to get over what you are trying to express. You have to do something definite and clear. There is no other such training school in the world. I'm glad I came."

HER DAUGHTER SAFE

There are some mothers who will trust their daughters unchaperoned in the wild dens of iniquity, such as the motion-picture studios are sometimes described to be. Dorothy Devore, star comedienne of the Christie Comedies, who has been in pictures for six years, says that her mother has never been inside of a studio.

"D. W. GRIFFITH'S AMERICA"

IS COMING!

The Supreme Masterpiece of the wizard who has made your heart his plaything will be revealed EARLY IN MAY amid surroundings of splendor and opulence that will make Los Angeles gasp.

New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburg are athrob with the thrills of Paul Revere's hoofbeats, the shots of Lexington's Minute Men and the heart-warming romance of Nathan Holden and Nancy Montague.

And because it sets a new standard of realism, romantic fragrance and soul-clutching poetry in screencraft, it has been chosen above all other contemporary productions as the inaugural offering of the world's most luxurious temple of entertainment.

MEN FEATURED IN NEW CINEMA SHOWS

Masculine players come to the fore with the new pictures of the week. In the three new offerings on view today the sterner sex figure most prominently in the cast. Thomas Meighan is the star of "The Confidence Man," showing at the Metropolitan. Virginia Valli is seen in his support. Jackie Coogan's "The Boy of Flanders" is on the Loew screen. Herbert Rawlinson is holding forth at Clune's in "The Dancing Cheat," with Alice Lake in the chief feminine role.

On Tuesday Cecil B. De Mille's latest picture, "Triumph," opens at Grauman's Million Dollar Theater, with Leatrice Joy and Rod LaRocque featured.

Other pictures on view include "Why Men Leave Home" at the Alhambra, "Three Weeks" at the California, "Secrets" at the Criterion, "The Ten Commandments" at the Egyptian, "Let Not Man Put Asunder" at Miller's, "Thy Name is Woman" at the Mission, "A Society Scandal" at the Rialto, and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" at Tally's.

Jackie in Rags

Jackie Coogan, restored to his enduring rags, appears at Loew's State Theater in a beautiful visualization of "A Dog of Flanders," Ouida's story. Jackie, as you love him, in his funny trousers and ragged cap, with Teddy, the great Dane, as his pal, in one of the sweetest romances which has ever been told on the screen—that is the "Boy of Flanders," as the story has been renamed, a story of a little lad outcast by his own people, leaving him in grinding poverty, alone with his dog friend.

The cast includes Josef Swickard, Nigel de Brulier, Lionel Belmore, Nell Craig, Jean Carpenter, Russ Powell, Aime Charland, Eugenia Tuttle, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Larry Fisher, Sydney Franklin, Monte Collins and Teddy. The production was directed by Victor Schertzinger and adapted by Walter Anthony.

Loew's also presents Ben Turpin in his latest Mack Sennett comedy, "Ten Dollars or Ten Days." The program includes Fanchon and Marco's atmospheric stage presentation with Bessie and Tyrene Crouch, Arthur Kay and his orchestra, and the Knickerbocker Syncopaters with Ray Paige directing.

Tia Juana Locale

"The Dancing Cheat," featuring Herbert Rawlinson and Alice Lake, which opened at the Clune Broadway yesterday, is said to be one of the most entertaining films Universal has produced in some time. With Tia Juana as its setting, plenty of genuine thrills and exciting incidents make "The Dancing Cheat" unique.

A fun-provoking Century comedy, "A Lofty Marriage," fairly reels off laugh after laugh. It features one of the tallest men in the world.

Meighan as Crook

Thomas Meighan made his latest photoplay, "The Confidence Man" in direct response to the requests of numerous fans. The picture, which is showing at Grauman's Metropolitan Theater this week, presents Tommy in a crook role somewhat similar to the style of role he enacted in "The Miracle Man." For a number of months, Meighan received in every mail, hundreds of requests of his fans that he do another crook story.

Virginia Valli is leading woman and Victor Heerman directed.

Starts Fourth Week

"The Hunchback of Notre Dame" is going into its fourth week at Tally's Theater.

In the role of the Hunchback, Lon Chaney achieves his greatest triumph. He is supported by seventy-five stars and 10,000 others, making this great drama a surging, thrilling, ever dominating achievement. Wallace Worsley directed the picture, which has been produced on a lavish scale.

"Secrets" Continues

Energetic nods in the affirmative are still greeting the inquiries of Harry C. Arthur, general manager of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., anent the business being enjoyed by Norma Talmadge's "Secrets," her latest achievement at the Criterion Theater.

"Secrets" is a love tale of a woman's devotion that lasts for seventy years. Eugene O'Brien plays the leading male role. A splendid cast interprets the various parts.

Irving Berlin's act from the Music Box Review, "An Old-Fashioned Waltz," is also a featured attraction at the Criterion.

From Hopwood Comedy

The reason why men leave home has evidently been found truly explained by anxious wives, and at the Alhambra Theater John M. Stahl's epic of galloping husbands will contniue for a second week because there were not enough seats to accomodate all the anxious wives and sweethearts during the first seven days.

This picture, with the aid of Lewis Stone, Helene Chadwick, Alma Bennett, Mary Carr, William V. Mong and others, teaches wives and sweethearts how to find and keep love. It is told in a breezy manner, sticking closely to the original stage play manuscript by Avery Hopwood.

Frederick-Tellegen

Pauline Frederick returns to the screen after an absence of more than one year. The actress is seen playing oposite Lou Tellegen in "Let No Man Put Asunder," at Miller's Theater, where it is now in the second and final week of its engagement.

Miss Frederick has the part of Petrina Faneuil a modern young girl, who believes that a wife should not allow her husband to dictate to her; but learns there are some things worse than the dictates of a husband.

Only Two Weeks, So Far

Love has been declared to be the passion that makes the world go round, and there has been no greater analyzer of love and its power of ennobling than the English novelist, Elinor Glyn, whose success, "Three Weeks" is now playing in its second week at the California Theater.

The picturization of the novel was made under the direct supervision of Mrs. Glyn and was directed by Alan Crosland. The authoress picked the cast herself because they were her ideals of the people who pass through her book. Aileen Pringle, Conrad Nagel, Stuart Holmes, Dale Fuller, John Sainpolis, Claire de Lores and Nigel de Bruillier are the principals. Carli Elinor, leader of the California Theater orchestra, has arranged a special musical score which is said to exceed any of his previous efforts.

Moves to Rialto

Gloria Swanson's latest photoplay, "A Society Scandal," will continue its run at Grauman's Rialto following its week at the Metropolitan.

This is the screen version of Alfred Sutro's "The Laughing Lady," and offers Miss Swanson an ideal medium for both her ability to act and to wear stunning frocks. The story deals with New York society in which love and divorce play important parts, enacted by Miss Swanson, Rod La Rocque, Ricardo Cortez and Allan Simpson.

The latest Christie comedy, "Reno or Bust," featuring Bobbie Vernon adds to the merriment of the entertainment, and Jan Sofer conducts the orchestra through enjoyable musical selections.

Jubilee Closes

Today marks the close of the jubilee celebration which began with the 250th performance of "The Ten Commandments" at Grauman's Hollywood Egyptian Theater on Monday, the 7th inst.

For the final day of the jubilee Estelle Taylor, who is seen in the De Mille spectacle based on the decalogue as Mariam, sister of Moses, will act as hostess and George Fawcett will be host. Both of these players will appear at matinee and evening performances today.

Settles for Run

Greeted by capacity houses during the first week of its local premiere, Fred Niblo's "Thy Name is Wowan" seems to be settled at the Mission for a long and successful run. The picture is one of the strongest dramatic products ever turned out by Director Niblo, and is acclaimed by his greatest cinema offering.

Ramon Novarro, Barbara LaMarr, William V. Mong, Edith Roberts, Wallace MacDonald, Robert Edeson and Claire McDowell are in the principal roles.

A special music score given by the Mission Theater Orchestra, with Leon Strashun directing, greatly adds to the strength of the presentation, interpreting as it does the moods and situations depicted on the screen.

Three Local Dancers Star on Broadway

Broadway, New York, is not only showing the many pictures produced here, but is also exhibiting the talent of three Los Angeles dancers.

The dancers are Beth Beri in Eddie Cantor's "Kid Boots," Dorothy Dilley in Irving Berlin's new Music Box Revue and Lina Basquette in the latest edition of the Ziegfeld Follies.

Of the classic dancers on Broadway these three are said to be drawing marked attention. They were trained here under the direction of Ernest Belcher at his Celeste School of Dancing. With the exception of a few weeks vaudeville tour neither Miss Dilley nor Miss Basquette has appeared professionally outside of New York.

THEY WANT HIM BACK

Robert Frazer, who plays the leading masculine role in "Bread," a Metro production, has received an offer from a New York stage producer to return to the legitimate stage in Shakespearan roles. Frazer scored a personal triumph a few years ago as Romeo with Julia Aurthur in "Romeo and Juliet."

Cherniavsky Opens Studio in This City

Alex Cherniavsky, pianist, famed for his appearance with the Cherniavsky Trio, has recently located in Los Angeles, and will become a resident teacher. He is the youngest of the five brothers, the eldest being Gregor Cherniavsky, teacher of violin in this city, and with whom he will be associated.

The trio is composed of Leo, Jan and Michel Cherniavsky, who are now touring in New Zealand. The five brothers have "traded off" now and then in traveling, and for ten years Alex Cherniavsky traveled with the organization. During this time he visited Africa three times, Australia twice and New Zealand, and India, China, Japan, the Dutch East Indies (Java,) the Philippine Islands, Canada, South America, Russia and, of course, many times all Europe and the United States.

As a pianist, Mr. Cherniavsky studied with Leschetiszky, and also with Kavier Scharwenka. He is well schooled in pianistic traditions, and is particularly an authority of the classics.

A few days ago, in discussing teaching, Mr. Cherniavsky said that more than a few good pianists were not successful concert artists merely because they had not had sufficient practice before the public.

"Audiences," he says, "are wonderful teachers. Every audience is just a bit different, and the musician must be able to sense what this difference is, and appeal to them accordingly. Those who expect to win success on the concert stage should appear in public frequently, and in this way they will lose nervousness, know 'what goes over,' how to appeal to their audience, and what real polish and perfection mean."

CAREER DIRECTED BY FATE

Creator of "Lincoln" Role Educated by Destiny for Part He Plays

Philip Rosen

The story of Phil Rosen's life is romantic as was Dick Whittington's, that poor English boy, who, running to sea heard the bells of London proclaim him Lord Mayor.

And this young director rode on The Dramatic Life of Abraham Lincoln" into first row of class, must have heard prophetic voices in air to sustain him, for he first an unpaid clerk in Siegel Cooper's York department store and a street-car conductor.

But, poor as he was along material lines, he had a rich artistic power. A helping fate led him to the Edison studios to work a projection machine. Advance to cameraman came soon, and the distinguished photography of his great pictures, "The Miracle Man" and "Lincoln," can possibly be traced to the craftsmanship learned from this humble work.

Phil Rosen has two great qualities of the Russian intellect, simplicity and a love for fundamentals. Dorothy Farnum, who is doing the scenario of Grace Flandrau's "Being Respectable," which he will direct, declares: "When working with him you have to blow all superficialities away and hew down to the stark line of truth."

Speaking of this Flandrau story, he said: "It has a strong basic

While there is nothing salacious in the book, its treatment is blunt of a theme old as Methusaleh—the desire for love in a man, stronger than all the artificialities that try to keep it from him—but when applied to a society set in a provincial town it has a refreshing newness.

"I only expect to use one set, but I hope to offer the best actors I can find. For that is what the screen is evolving to now, not a show place for furniture or clothes, but a center from which human emotions radiate and where the interpreter and not the things that surround him hold the eye."

The educational side of the films is what especially enthuses Rosen.

"I have three little girls," he said, "and they know much more about the world today than did children before there were pictures. That was what I liked about working on the life of Lincoln—I could see how it would thrill the young heart getting its pure ideality for the first time. It was as if the Great Commoner were beckoning them to follow in his path, and through me he was able to make that gesture to millions."

COSTARS MAKE HIT IN 'SUSAN'

Whimsical Comedy to Have New York Production; Due for Long Run Here

With the stamp of approval of Los Angeles audiences upon it, Producer Thomas Wilkes is certain that he has another New York hit in Lea D. Freeman's whimsical comedy, "All Alone Susan," which begins its third weeks tonight at the Majestic Theater, with Margaret Lawrence and Wallace Eddinger in the leading roles. While the play is being produced by arrangement with William A. Brady, plans have already been completed to give it an early New York production under the Wilkes-Harris management.

Judged by the enthusiastic reception being accorded it, "All Alone Susan" is going to prove the comedy hit of the present theatrical season and capacity audiences at the Majestic attest that the play has struck the popular appeal for amusing entertainment.

In the title role Miss Lawrence captivates with her charming personality and delightful comedy talent and her interpretation of the role of the spinster, Susan Johnson, is the high light of the production. Wallace Eddinger, playing opposite, accounts for the role of the "Lochinvar," Tommy Shannon, in masterly fashion.

"All Alone Susan" is a whimsical comedy containing a noval story, amusing lines and situations of the funniest sort. The laughter starts almost with the rise of the curtain and continues throughout the play.

In support of the popular stars is a company of players well-known to local theatergoers, and includes Lillian Elliott, Franklin Pangborn, Barbara Brown, Nancy Lane, George K. Arthur, Vane Calvert, Florence Wix, Billee Leicester and Harold Howard.

Empty Tummy Best Incentive to Real Art

Gumdrops played a fatal part in the filming of an important scene in Jackie Coogan's new Metro picture, "A Boy of Flanders," now playing at Loew's State Theater.

Jackie plays the role of Nello, orphan hero of Ouida's tale "A Dog of Flanders," from which the little star's current vehicle was adapted. He is excluded from a birthday party given in honor of his child sweetheart, Alois. The little fellow is seen outside the cottage focusing a longing gaze on the festive board, piled high with cakes, cookies and sweetmeats.

Before the scene was "shot." Director Victor Schertzinger went into whispered conference with Coogan, who supervised the picture, and then called Jackie to his side. "Skipper," said Mr. Schertzinger, "we want a big scene here. It's up to you to make us all feel sorry for the poor little orphan who has not been invited to the party, and who hasn't had any candy for a long time. I've seen you looking at those gumdrops all morning. You've been a good boy in not asking for any after your mother cut candy from your diet for a month—so daddy and I have decided to give you six pieces if you put this scene over."

"Oh, boy!" exclaimed the Skipper, "Just watch me!"

Ten minutes later Director Schertzinger called "camera!" Jackie appeared at the window, looking at the table, but there was no desire in his large brown eyes. Again the scene was taken, but Jackie did not register hunger for sweets. Schertzinger queried him. Jackie is not in the habit of disappointing his director.

Finally a confession was obtained. During the ten-minute interim, little Jeannie Carpenter, Jackie's leading lady, had "bootlegged" six gumdrops to Jackie behind the scenes. Jackie, figuring that they would soon be his, took his pay in advance. He just couldn't put the scene—a fellow can't look hungry for something after the craving for that thing had been satisfied.

"But I'll tell you what," offered Coogan, Jr., "Let's wait until I feel hungry for candy again, then I'll show you a big scene."

DEFINING DIMITRI

Russian Director Latest Furore in Celluloid City; Pola Negri at Apex of Art Under His Guidance

In the light of art, everything stands revealed in Hollywood. For that reason, the film capital dearly loves a mystery and when a really good one comes along, Hollywood takes it to heart and discusses it with wholesome relish.

Dimitri Buchowetzki is the most fascinating mystery which has transpired in the celluloid city for a long time. His name, which is pronounced "Dimit-tree Boo-ka-vet-ski," is as current on Hollywood Boulevard as remarks upon the weather, comments upon "The Ten Commandments," or the next Presidential campaign.

When Buchowetzki reached California in the tag end of 1923 to direct Pola Negri in "Men" for Paramount, a buzz of excitement went up from the poseurs and critics, to whom every new personality is a jungle for research and classification.

MASTERLY EVASION

The massive Russian smiled upon everyone with European suavity. When he was asked how he liked America, he said "Thank you very much" and when his new acquaintances inquired about the differences in European and American film production methods, he replied, "Yes, I think so."

In three months he mastered English, adding fifty words each day to his vocabulary. By the time he had completed the production of "Men," he jested in English. At a dinner table where he was the guest of honor, he set the whole party roaring with laughter as he told story after story packed with humor.

Having accepted Buchowetzki as a man, Hollywood became anxious that he should also be found a man of genius.

"What has he done?" was the cry.

Inquiry revealed the fact that Dimitri Buchowetzki had done practically everything.

RECORD IS REPLETE

He was an actor and playwright in Moscow and a soldier with the Russian army on the Galician front. Under the Red Terror, he starved all day and spent half the night acting in a theater whose furnaces were without fuel in weather forty degrees below zero. In Warsaw he wrote and directed motion-picture stories and in Berlin he produced film after film which took Europe by storm.

Some of them found their way to America. Among them were "All for a Woman," "Mad Love," with Pola Negri; "Galilaer," and "Peter the Great," which was recently released as a Paramount picture.

Several prints of Buchowetzki's European pictures were stored in Hollywood film laboratories. It became the fashionable thing to secure one of these prints for private showings at social gatherings. Prominent motion-picture players who have projection machines and screens in their homes entertained their friends with the pictures of the magnetic Russian whose personality has captured the imagination of Hollywood.

IMPRESSIVE PERSONALITY

Everything which the Russian did was viewed and considered in the light of his unique personality. He picked his five-piece orchestra which accompanied the making of "Men" from a symphony orchestra of fifty pieces after listening to the musicians. His powerful voice made the traditional megaphone useless. He drank tea on the set with lemon in the Russian fashion and he never began work without a coffee percolator simmering at his elbow.

When he wanted players for his various characters he refused to interview them in his office, according to custom. Instead he went to lunch with them or seized a chance to analyze them with his quizzical brown eyes when they least suspected it.

The actor who was chosen to play opposite Pola Negri, Robert W. Frazer, was first seen by Buchowetzki playing in a western picture. Despite the sombrero and cowboy costume, the Russian discerned Frazer's ability to wear conventional clothing, and said so. Frazer was given the role of Georges Kleber, and with it an opportunity to play the greatest character of his career.

GETTING HIS NUMBER

Everyone who came in immediate contact with Buchowetzki was beseiged for information. The featured members of the cast supporting Pola Negri, Robert Edeson, Josef Swickard, Monti Collins, Gino Corrado and Edgar Norton, found themselves approached by total strangers who were eager to secure authentic stories about the Russian. Robert Edeson claimed that at least a dozen invitations to dinner parties received while he was playing in "Men" were directly traceable to curiosity on the part of his hostess concerning Buchowetzki.

Paul Bern, who adapted the story of "Men" to the screen, declares that Hollywood has never seen anyone like Buchowetzki before.

"This man is unique. He has the most amazing sense of drama and in making 'Men' for the screen he reminded me of nothing so much as a great musician executing a musical composition which exactly suited his tremendous range and interpretative powers. I believe both Buchowetzki and Pola Negri found in the story ofe 'Men' the finest vehicle for their genius they have yet discovered."

CUTTING COMMENT

Tale of Poet's Inspiration Draws Caustic Observation

Earle Foxe, playing in "White Collars," has been talking about an invention that would make it unnecessary for anyone to shave. Now along comes Robert Ober, in the same cast at the Egan Theater, and says that the waste of time in shaving is greatly exaggerated.

"I knew a poet once," says Ober, "who confessed that his brightest ideas came to him while he was shaving."

"I suppose the tragic muse came into play when he cut himself." said Foxe.

TO PLAY LEAD IN "LA GOLONDRINA"

Violet Schram

"La Golondrina," John Steven McGroarty's second historical California drama, will open at San Gabriel this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock, and will doubtless play before a crowded house, judging from advance reservations of seats made for the Easter performance.

"La Golondrina," as it will make its bow to the public today, will have on its best bib and tucker, the result of two years of furbishing, revising, readjusting of details, seeking the length and breadth of the land for just the right artists to portray the leading roles and two years of getting clothes made just the right fit and cut, color and design for the big cast.

Two years ago "La Golondrina" was presented by the Mission Play company for Mr. McGroarty, to see how he liked his second brainchild for whom he literally had not yet had the time to make proper "company clothes."

Today John Steven McGroarty presents "La Golondrina" to the public, all dolled up and every detail in order as he thinks it should be, for the public to see how they like his second California drama.

The entire script has been rewritten, the last act entirely changed to conform more closely to actual historical fact. The leads of "La Golondrina" have been recast. Miss Violet Schram has been chosen for the role of Concepcion Arguello. Miss Schram is conceded to be one of the most beautiful ingenus of today, her raven tresses, wondrous dark eyes and lithesome grace fitting her remarkably for the role of California's historic beauty.

Richard Sterling and Andrew Leigh, two well-known actors, will play the male leads, Count Nicolai de Resanof, the Russian and Ignacio Ayala, the young Spanish lover.

Every member of the cast of nearly 100 players has been especially costumed; every garment has been especially made for each character. So today "La Golondrina" tells a new story, shows new talent and new clothes!

NAVARRO'S BROTHER FOLLOWS FOOTSTEPS

Eduardo Novarro, brother of the screen actor, Ramon, is playing a small part in "The Red Lily," the Fred Niblo feature for Louis B. Mayer presentation. Ramon has a bevy of brothers and sisters. In fact, of the family he says "We are ten." Ramon is second father to the flock, as the oldest son, and he is seeing that all of his younger brothers and sisters have educational and musical advantages.

The elder Novarro plays the leading male role, that of Jeanne Leonnec, in "The Red Lily," which is an original play written for the screen by Niblo. Enid Bennett has the feminine lead, that of Marise La Noue, and Wallace Beery, Mitchell Lewis and Frank Currier play important parts.

THE PLAYHOUSE

Will Be Formally Opened on Monday Evening, May the Fifth

TO MISS DORIS KEANE, one of the world's most famous actresses, will go the honor of dedicating Los Angeles' newest and most charming theater—THE PLAYHOUSE—located in the Friday Morning Club Building, Figueroa at Ninth street. THE PLAYHOUSE, costing over $750,000, is the last word in modern construction, artistic creation and perfect comfort. THE PLAYHOUSE has over 1200 seats, with no boxes or gallery and only one balcony. THE PLAYHOUSE at all times will offer leading New York and London stage stars in their latest and most successful plays, under the direction of Louis Macloon, Arch Selwyn and A. H. Woods.

STARTING Monday Evening, May the fifth, MISS KEANE will appear for a limited engagement in her greatest success, "ROMANCE," exactly as given over 1100 times in London. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday, but no Sunday evening performances will be given during Miss Keane's engagement. Miss Keane will not be seen in any other city in Southern California this year.

Mail orders for the opening night and subsequent performances, up to and including May 17th, are now being received. Box office will open Thursday, April 24th, at 9 A. M. Telephone (for information—no reservations taken) VAndike 7344. Opening night prices, Orchestra $5.00; Balcony $3.00. Other evening performances, Orchestra $1.50; Balcony 50c, $1.00, $1.50. Matinees, Orchestra $1.00; Balcony 50c. Add 10% tax to all prices. Make checks payable to "The Playhouse" Figueroa at Ninth St. Out-of-town mail orders will receive prompt attention.

LENT HILLS GUARD WELL THEIR GOLDEN TREASURE

t Truly It Is There, Senor---Yes, Hidden Deep in That Cavern of Mission San Fernando---Lost

BY SYL MacDOWELL

[How much of this story is fact, or what portion of it is mere fancy ficult to determine. There is an ancient adage that asserts: "When man talks, Truth departs." Again, numerous episodes related by der are affirmed by written records. But whether or not entirely , this tale of the lost treasure of San Fernando is given as nearly ble in the exact words in which it was told.—S. M.]

Certainly, say the First People; each spring brings whispers out of the past, always saying that the lost treasure of Fernando still tarnishes there, back in the hills whence it

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

Mrs. Peckham Wilde, Who Drives From the Rear Seat

BY LEE SHIPPEY

There is an impression among the unthinking that in all modern lands motor cars have the left-hand drive, while in England they have the right-hand drive. But the fact is that in this, our own dear home of the brave and 'and of the freak, 70 per cent of the cars have the rear-seat drive.

And Mrs. Peckham Wilde is the perfect exponent of the fine art of rear-seat driving. If any national organization of husband-directors, such as might fittingly be named Daughters of the American Evolution, is formed in the near future, a great injustice will be done if Mrs. Wilde is not elected Serene Exalted Directoress.

Yet, contradictory as it may appear to some men, Mrs. Wilde is a most exceptional woman. For she illustrates the vast differences between a boss and a manager.

Mrs. Wilde never even dreams of taking the wheel away from the hands of her doting spouse and running things herself. She finds it much better to always let him take full responsibility for everything. But she daily demonstrates that while there may be only one kind of auto-suggestion which originates with the suggestee that there are more than fifty-seven varieties which do not.

TECHNIQUE MARVELOUS

Mrs. Wilde has never yet so far forgotten herself as to exclaim, as a boss would, "For heaven's sake don't go tearing around sharp curves like that idiot who keeps teasing you to race does." Instead, she murmurs with the sweetness of implicit faith, "What a comfort it is to know you'll never take such utterly foolish risks as that irresponsible person does." And the effect is much better. After such a remark the car has never been known to jump or swerve violently.

But though exceptional Mrs. Wilde is like all back-seat drivers in fundamentals. It is not merely while motoring that she drives from the rear.

When she learned by accident that Peckham was on the brink of plunging in a wildcat oil venture, she did not create a scene or say anything to rouse his native stubbornness. She did not even reveal her knowledge. She

The ques- greatest public interest at in New Jersey was the road program for which in bonds has been is- and which was under the of the State Highway Com- There had been wide- of waste and cor- in the building of the roads their personal re- the Governor knew members of the Highway had completely for- the confidence of the pub- after his inaugura- appeared in person before and in a vigorous laid bare the facts in the and announced that he removed from office all of members of the exist- Highway Commission. He and obtained the of a bill reorganizing the extending its powers upon it full responsibility for the expenditure of the funds and reducing its membership to four.

BRAVES DISPLEASURE

This action required more than ordinary courage for the reason that the Highway Commission consisted of a majority of Democrats and was the most important public office held by men of the Governor's own party, the Legislature being overwhelmingly Republican. Of course there were loud howls from the machine politicians but the Governor had so aroused public opinion by his frank statement of conditions that he was able to defy all opposition. He went even further by appointing two Republicans and two Democrats to the newly constituted commission.

"We have got to get the government back to the people," says Gov. Silzer, "and the only way that I know that that can be done is by keeping the people interested and informed in regard to what the elected representatives are doing. Part of the responsibility, of course, rests with the voters themselves. They elect a man to office and then proceed to forget all about him until the time comes around for another election. However, I believe the fault is more with our officials than with the public. I believe that Americans as a whole are very much interested in government affairs and will eagerly welcome any effort that is made to keep them informed. The great success of such organizations as the Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs where speakers on public affairs are always sure of a hearty reception is a very good indication of that."

END COMMITTEE RULE

I asked Gov. Silzer whether he could make a specific recommendation as to how the publicity in government which he advocated might be brought about.

"Well," he said, "one of the first and biggest things to be done is to call a halt to the ever-growing practice of government by committees. Anyone who knows anything about politics knows that the proceedings on the floor of a legislative assembly are of little importance compared with what goes on behind the closed doors of the committee rooms. That is true in Washington and also in every State Legislature in the country. It is a system which has steadily developed to a point where open sessions of Congress or of a State Legislature are more often than not mere forms. The people's Representative get up and make speeches for the sole purpose of their effect on their constituents, knowing that action on whatever subject they are discussing has already been decided and that nothing they say will have any effect one way or the other."

COAL NEEDS LIGHT

One national problem which Gov. Silzer believes is very much in need of publicity at the present time is the coal situation.

"We have got nowhere in the solution of this problem," he says, "and there is no prospect of us getting anywhere so far as I can see. The government is just letting things drift and the only way we will ever get any action is by arousing the public by showing them the facts of the case. At the present time we have no assurance that there will be any change in the old familiar situation when

Pagans Had Celebration to Honor Spring Goddess; Calendar Traced

BY GENEVIEVE D. O'NEILL

In ancient days the opening hours of spring brought joy to the hearts of old and young; for it was then that Nature burst into song and broadcast her sweetest perfumes of loam and flowers and gave promise of plenty through sparkling torrents formed by melting snows. The pagans held festivities in honor of the Goddess of Spring and many sacrifices were made on the altars in her honor. And then history tells us that certain wise men began to investigate the division of time, and calendars were devised whereby more accurate knowledge might be had as to the probable date of the coming of spring. Indeed the word calendar itself comes from the Roman Calends which means the first day of each month.

It is interesting to study the reasons for our own celebration of Nature's awakening, which we call Eastertide. As centuries passed mankind ceased to count out the days and weeks and months arbitrarily, or to insert extra days according to need, so as to make them harmonize with the freaks and whims of seasons. In the time of Julius Caesar the haphazard calendar was revised and a sort of season working-sheet was drawn up which was very satisfactory to civilized nations until 1851. Then it was discovered that, because of an error of eleven minutes occurring each year, ten days had accumulated for which

A MILK CONSPIRACY?

Liquid Commended for Complexion, Mental Alertness, as Narcotic Cure, Poultice, Shampoo, Etcetera; Seems to Be Arch Remedy

BY ALMA WHITAKER

Some one ought to psyche me—I am afraid I am getting a milk complex.

What's the matter with the town? Is there a conspiracy to drown me in milk?

It began about three weeks ago when I was interviewing a petite film charmer who doesn't use any make-up off screen. Lovely skin and all that—wouldn't dream of marring it with cosmetics. So of course I asked the obvious question and she looked as innocent as a spring morning as she confided in me archly, "Oh, just milk. Milk inside and out. I learned that from the great French beauties, you know."

"Fattening," I opined, meanly.

"Nourishing," she corrected, sweetly.

LIKE A MILK AD

And after that our interview struck me as suspiciously like a milk ad. Why that dear little Easter chicken even contended that the ultimate complete reformation of filmdom could be brought about by rivers of milk.

Then I went to lunch with a couple of newspaper girls—and they both ordered milk. So I told them about the screen lady.

But their milk, they assured me, was for the greater stimulation of their vivid young intellects. What those girls did not know about "brain-nourishing calories—"

The MOST INTERESTING PLACE in LOS ANGELES

BY BENNETT DAVIS

Out of the echoing cavern of the North Broadway tunnel it pours, downhill by the green lawns of Courthouse Square and plunges with a roar into the maelstrom of life—Broadway, the mighty pulsing heart, the most interesting place in Los Angeles.

You may snore in Sonoratown and slink in Chinatown and vegetate in the parks; but on Broadway you move fast in a turbulent current. Jostling throngs from every corner of the globe. More tongues than clashed on the Tower of Babel. Toilers and wasters. A grocer's clerk from Iowa who made a million (and kept it) in five years in real estate. A millionaire from Pennsylvania who went broke in oil and now is a grocer's clerk. A film star in a Ford coupe, buying at the five-and-ten. An extra girl in a limousine, shopping at an exclusive jeweler's. Pickpockets and timorous, aged couples, done with labor on some stubborn far-off farm and now walking with gnarled hands peacefully folded in the sunshine of the Southland of their dreams.

Night falls. A million electric lamps blaze out; evening clothes, theaters, gayety. Later, a dimming of lights and a diminuendo of sound into the early hours of morning. A lone owl trolley car. A party of revelers, careening their way home.

Stillness. The hush of dark before dawn.

Above the North Broadway tunnel, a faint shimmer of light. The sun. Two noisy street cars pass at the First street curve.

Clang! Off to another day.

"HOT-DOG" BARK SONG OF VENICE

Visitors to Beach City Eat Half Their Meals in Palaces of Siren

BY LA VERNE P. CUMMING

"Hot dog! Hot dog-g-g! Git 'em while they're hot!"

And another miniature, wine-colored puppy is unleashed from the endless chain and placed upon the red-hot griddle. A dash of mustard, two slices of pickle, a crisp piece of lettuce, wrapped in a split paper napkin and one has a hot dog, a product of one of the greatest industries maintained in Venice-of-America, the Southland's Mecca for recreation.

That an industry born in an oversized packing box, not so many years back, in the City of Canals down by the sea should have reached such proportions is astounding. It requires more than three and one-half tons of wieners weekly to appease the appetite of a pleasure-clamoring public.

So the packing-box is gone.

In its place stands an up-to-date hot dog palace, with shining steam tables, white-coated chefs and long counters laden with delectable food—food that is relished and enjoyed by persons in every walk of life.

Here, in front of the palaces, one finds a clerk, a schoolboy, a banker, a motion-picture celebrity mingling in the long queue, chatting as they wait their turn to be served with a hot dog. People who

EASTER MIRACLE

Southwest's Everlasting Plant Token of Resurrection

BY LELA COLE KITSON

One of the strangest plant growths in the world and one especially interesting at Easter time, is the resurrection plant—a native of our own Southwest.

Botanists call this little everlasting fern "selaginella lepidophylla"—a staggering name for so small a bit of life—but when one considers the plant's remarkable properties, and its astonishing ability to revive after months and sometimes years of apparent death, one is inclined to grant it any number of scientific honors.

The resurrection plant is a moss-like, terrestrial growth a few inches high, with slender stems branching erect, or trailing, bearing small, scale-like leaves in from four to many rows along the stems. It grows in our Southwestern and North Mexican desert mountains, being found in Southern New Mexico, West Texas and Northern Chihuahua. Other species of the selaginella family, of which there are some five or six, are found as far north as Montana, and as far east as Nebraska.

GROWS ON ROCK

It grows mainly on upturned rock slabs, thinly covered with soil, and to these it clings in rows and patches, each plant distinct from the others, looking in the dry season like neat but withered "settings" of brussels sprouts. In some localities where the resurrection plant abounds the "dry season" may be a period lasting three or four years. It is difficult to imagine anything related to the fern or moss families surviving such protracted droughts, but to the little barnacle of the desert these hot, dry seasons are but a time for resting and preparation for the great moment when that most precious of desert visitations, rain, comes to awaken it to splendid life.

Water is the magic element that resurrects the apparently dead plant, whether it be clinging to its native rock, or, having long lain on the shelf of some collector's cabinet, is brought out and placed in a bowl of the miracle-working fluid. Its remarkable hygroscopic powers causes the plant to rapidly uncoil its leaves, which have clung

The KAISER'S COURT AND ITS SECRETS

by Count Robert Zedlitz

[Copyright, 1924, in U. S. and Canada by North American Newspaper Alliance.]

(This is the third of a series of installments, appearing Sundays, from the diary of Count Zedlitz, for twelve years marshal at the Kaiser's court. The diary notes are not arranged in strict chronology but cover parts of the first two decades of the century.)

"WHAT WILL HAPPEN WHEN THE SHOOTING IS OVER?"

Last year Minister of Finance Von Rheinbaben figured out that he would be able to build the Kaiser's new palace at Posen for a cost of 3,000,000 marks, according to the architects' plans. He arranged for this sum with the finance commission of Parliament and obtained it with much less trouble than had been expected. In the meantime the Emperor has looked over the plans and has altered them, adding a number of gorgeous and expensive details. For instance, he has ordered the building of a cour d'honneur large enough for a four-horse carriage to turn in comfortably, as well as suitable apartments for the Crown Prince, the Crown Princess, and other princes, and large additional reception rooms. Hence, the total cost is to be 4,800,000 marks, and 6,000,000 if we include the furniture.

Our poor Minister of Finance! He now faces the task of going back to the Finance Commission of Parliament and demanding double the sum which he assured them last year would be the cost of the palace. . . .

It is interesting to observe how, chiefly during the Emperor's recent illness, his extravagance has increased and how his love of outer pomp and magnificence has become steadily more marked. He wastes hours every day talking over the new decorations of the White Hall of State, the appointment of ladies-in-waiting to the Empress, the aping of Austrian and Italian court etiquette, the appointment of imperial heralds for festive occasions.

I am not a professional pessimist. But I know that today (1903) Germany is at the crossroads; and while I doubt that we are on the eve of actual revolution, yet it is this very carelessness of the Emperor and the upper classes this refusal to understand the soul of the German race and the German nation's modern development, this lazy gliding back into reactionary channels, which may well bring on a political catastrophe.

The Emperor looks into the past, not into the future. There we have the whole trouble in a nutshell. . . .

SACRIFICE TO SONS

A few days ago Prince Joachim Albrecht von Hohenzollern was dropped from the army lists, dismissed in disgrace with no longer the right to wear the imperial uniform. Most people who are able to think unprejudicedly believe that this judgment was not only harsh, but incredibly unfair.

The Prince had been accused because he lived with a woman who, simply for the sake of bearing his name, contracted a marriage, really a mock marriage, with a ruined and worthless aristocrat, a certain Baron Liebenberg. She never lived with the latter. The Baron's divorce proceedings, naming the Prince as co-respondent, were nothing but blackmail.

Certain people wanted the courts to declare the Prince incompetent and have an official guardian appointed for him. They asked the Prince to submit to this decision. But on advice of his lawyer, Krause, the Prince refused to do so, and now, as a punishment, he has been dropped from the army in disgrace.

Quite justifiedly, the Prince de-

Boudoir Mirrors of Washington

LAME DUCKS—AND OTHERS

There is nothing in the Constitution about providing crutches for lame ducks but you might as well try to alter the Constitution itself as try to depart from precedent in this regard.

After defeat, they limp around Washington and put on full pressure when there is a vacant post—particularly an ornamental, remunerative one.

For instance we see the Poindexters limping off to the diplomatic paradise of Peru.

The Newberrys had a rather disastrous reign although President Harding had set the pace and allowed it to be known that entertaining the Newberrys would be considered a friendly act.

Atlee Pomerene could scarcely look for a soft seat. The women say that he got what was coming to him. He said the women of Ohio didn't want to vote. Well, he knows now.

Now, Frelinghuysen is a very rich man. He has a home in Washington, a residence in New Jersey and another at Palm Beach. He is the fifth Frelinghuysen to sit in the United States Senate, which is almost enough to establish a dynasty.

Tradition had a good deal to do with keeping the veteran, Lodge, from joining the ranks of the lame ducks. As one woman put it: "He is the last leaf on the tree of the Old Families tradition, which has always ruled Boston. I'll admit he never stood for a moral issue in his life, but he is a Cabot; he is one of us."

REAL MATCH

Everyone took it for granted that the News would be taken care of. They were Mayflower friends of the Hardings. One summer I remember Mrs. New and Mrs. Gillett, and I think Mrs. Frelinghuysen, assisting on one of the Mayflower cruises. We didn't know whether to wear afternoon clothes or sport suits or just summer afternoon frocks. Afternoon dress won. I believe that was the time Mrs. Nicholas Longworth came in an organdy that looked as if it had just come from the Treat-Em-Rough Dry Laundry.

Just as a sort of model for people who think that nobody gets married for keeps any more, the Sutherlands ought to be kept in Washington. A sort of working model of domesticity! Even if they put them in the National Museum and marked them "Exhibit A."

Whenever Mrs. Sutherland entertains, even at informal teas, Senator Sutherland manages to get there, and his manner to her, the way she looks at him—oh, well, of course it makes some of the rest a bit envious, but it is mighty good to see.

They call Selden P. Spencer of Missouri the naughty boy of the Senate, if you believe all you hear. He smiles with twinkly eyes and likes to hear his own oratory and will promise anything. He has such a kind heart he just hates to refuse any request. He is a friendly soul, too, and often finds queer friends on his hands.

His wife is a striking contrast; she is the ballast. Not that she is heavy, but she balances his faults. It always strikes me that a strong element of the maternal creeps into her affection for this distinguished but playful husband of hers.

Mrs. Spencer takes life seriously and her chief interest in life was the large Bible class she conducted weekly for the women of the Congressional set. It was unique in Washington official circles.

DEFEATED CANDIDATES

When about a third of the House of Representatives is defeated it means a lot of new faces in Washington. But that is all, so far as the public is concerned. It is a very different proposition, however, with the men themselves, and there are a lot of weeping willows among the wives.

You can take it from me that the English language doesn't hold words superlative enough to describe the feelings with which Mrs.

HILLS GUARDING GOLDEN HOARD

'Tis Hidden in Lost Cavern of Mission San Fernando

Only Padres Knew Site; and They Kept it Secret

But Yellow Metal Gleaming There Now; Forgotten

counties with a snap of his finger.

So Gen. Pico came to live at the mission. The old church, which stood for half a century, was rotting; so he dwelt at the arcade, which faces the El Camino Real, where the padres had moved even the chapel; also its hoard of yellow stuff.

So there, at Mission San Fernando, they put the general, for his own convenience, in a room just at the head of the steps which led to the wine vats. Ha! What a prank Time has played. For today in the very room where the general lived there is stored the immense copper still wherein once fermented the vintages of which he was so fond.

But to return, as you say, senor, to the story of the treasure:

About 2000 natives had been baptized at the mission. Out of these there was a neophyte with great affection for the church, who had been turned among the gentiles when Spain's rule ended in the secularizing.

This neophyte, a gentle-eyed maid, named Espiritu Chijulla, one day accompanied the padre on a ride toward the notch in the hills.

California had become undisputed American soil. Warriors no longer rode in the valley. Thinking it safe, the padre wished, I have no doubt, to glimpse La Placerita and see if the mine was safe. So he rode forth with Espiritu and an Indian boy.

They reached a steep place in the trail and the good father, with mercy to his beast, dismounted. His sandals had no more than touched the dust than there came the whirr of a snake.

TELLS TALE TO GIRL

It struck. The fangs sank into the good man's leg.

The Indian boy turned and raced toward the mission in quest of help. Espiritu stayed. The padre's leg swelled rapidly and the fear of death came over him. Although in great pain, he managed, in gasps, to tell the girl about the treasure; described the mine and told her that the deerhide bags were beyond the chancel rail in the new chapel.

"But why," she asked, "does the good father tell this to me?"

"Because I die," said he. "And the secret must not perish."

"No! No!" cried the girl. "Death shall not come!"

She had heard her old grandmother, a bag of many remedies, tell that where lurked culebra de cascabel—the snake of rattles—there also invariably is found yerba de vivora, which, if applied to the wound, will draw out the poison like a medicine stone.

Espiritu found the weed—that is true to this day, senor, and well for you to remember if ever you are bitten—chewed some and put it on the wound. By the time help arrived, the good padre, instead of being ill to the death, was recovering.

But they did not go on to the mine. The padre returned to the mission. Espiritu never saw the mine.

Now there stands near the mission an old adobe house whose thick walls are melting before the assault of many winter rains. this house was the one-time home of the owner of El Escorpion Rancho; Miguel Leonis, a Basque owner of sheep.

TWO ARE MARRIED

Escorpion Rancho bordered the holy soil of the mission. After a time Espiritu went to keep house for this Basque and as were the simple ways of those times, they drifted into matrimony. About this time, the Indian boy, who had rode the trail with Espiritu and the padre that day in La Placerita went away.

But, as I was saying, she wed the Basque, who seldom was seen near the chapel except when he rode over to join the general over wine glasses.

Perhaps Senator Del Valle will tell you about Don Miguel. The Senator used to come here sometimes in those days; a young man with a hearty way; he could hail every Californian between San Diego and Monterey by his given name.

Yes, the Senator remembers how the story went about that Miguel had suddenly become very rich.

Then there were whispers. People said that Espiritu had given him the secret of the mine. But I know she did not. For that day of the rattlesnake, Espiritu never went on to the mine.

But, senor, I seem excited. It is an old man's way, to become so wrapped in a tale as to believe himself one of the characters he tells about. A match? Gracias.

GOLD DISAPPEARS

Yes, they say that Don Miguel robbed the mine. None knew of the bags in the chapel.

One night I entered the chapel. I took—may the devil never know it—a taper from the altar. With it I searched. The deerhide bags were not there, I swear it.

Some may believe I went there to rob. Not so, senor. I did not intend to touch them, the Virgin knows. Only to see if they were there. That is all, I vow. Yes.

There was no gold, I tell you. Somebody else had found it. They say the padres, when they rode sadly down into Mexico, may have taken it with them. That is what they say, these later days. But the padres were not laden on their farewell journey. No, they did not take the treasure.

It is as plain, like I say, as the nose on your face. Before they left, the padres returned the gold to the mine in La Placerita.

I cannot give bettter proof than to tell you more about Espiritu.

When the Basque died, twenty-five years ago, there came a full hundred lawsuits. He had been a man of many quarrels.

So long was the estate in the courts that Espiritu lost El Escorpion Rancho. She was compelled to borrow. Sharp lenders took the land.

She wandered forth in the hills, half demented, some tell me. They say she sought the trail to the lost treasure; that she lived on acorns that fell from the trees.

But why, you ask, did not the man who had once loved her go forth and bring her to shelter and peace.

Ah! The faithless! After wedding the Basque, who had money! A pretty one, once; now a withered one. No let her tears wash the hillsides.

What is that? You think it strange that she should have wed wealth when already she knew the secret of the San Fernando treasure? Ha! Ha!

EMPTY SECRET

Listen, my friend. That was an empty secret that Espiritu knew.

Yes, empty. You seem, now, discreet and indeed a patient listener to an old man whose living matters little.

I will tell you. Prepare, senor, to learn another secret.

Trinidad arose from a strange old hide-trimmed chest upon which he had been seated. He lifted the top and brought out clutched between his clawlike hands, a crumpled wad which I recognized as several very old and mouldy deerhide bags.

He held one of them open, upside down, and shook it to show that it was quite empty.

Then he flung it down into the open chest, laughing shrilly, as a sane man seldom laughs.

HER SPHERE IS THE REAR SEAT

merely began to talk about how sorry she was for poor, dear Mrs. De Lyle, whose husband had gone broke in oil. "I cannot tell you, darling," she beamed, "what a sense of security it gives me to know that you are free from all taint of that oil gambling mania, and stick to surburban real estate, which is not only so much safer, but so much more dignified."

ALL FOR THE BABY

When everybody got to talking about the new Colehever mansion, which shadowed everything in Ourville, it was no mean feeling of rivalry that she desired to sell the home Wilde loved and erect a finer home in the new artistocratic district. She desired it only on account of the future of little Helen (2 years of age.) She could see that decadence had set in in the neighborhood in which they had ruled so regally, and though Peckham couldn't, what man dares oppose anything which woman in her mysterious way foresees is going to be best for the baby? For little Helen's sake they built a house $50,000 finer than the Colehever mansion in a slightly stronger strategic position.

And when Mrs. Wilde foresaw that dangerously beautiful Gweneth De Lyle, whose father had plunged so recklessly only as a last resort, soon would have to be applying to someone in their set for gainful, though not exactly skilled, employment, she performed her chef d'oeuvre of adroitness. She gradually brought Peckham to the conviction—so gradually that he thought it was his own discovery— that all really big men, such as presidents, governors, and railway executives had men private secretaries, and that even the most casual caller subconsciously was impressed with their bigness by that fact. He realized his mistake later, but then all he could do was give Gweneth a letter of hearty commendation.

HUSBAND SURPRISED

Peckham's mind was, in short, often as much surprised to find what turns it had taken as Willie Hoppe's billiard balls must be. And Mrs. Wilde has always been perfectly charming about it.

But Mr. Algernon Charles Swinburne once wrote quite a piece about

"The sweetest name that ever love Grew weary of,"

and love can grow weary of other sweet things besides names.

Success has turned more heads than pretty angles have and that secretaryship triumph convinced Mrs. Wilde that she hadn't been doing as much to help her husband as she might. She had merely been running the social, domestic, educational, religious and community investment departments, and had been letting Peckham struggle along with the office almost unassisted. It seemed a shame, now that she had to admit herself his mental superior in every way.

DANGER! SLOW!

But that is a dangerous admission for any wife to make to herself, no matter how true it is.

Wilde didn't really need a business, but had one as an escape. His office was the one place in which he did not feel personally conducted. It made him feel he was the engineer who made the whole train go—and that Mrs. Wilde was, after all, pretty much a passenger. He wanted her to have a fine trip and to command the sleeping, dining and parlor cars, and liked to have her signal him to go ahead, from back there. But when she wanted to take the throttle he suddenly changed from Wilde to Wilder—and suggested that she, also, change her name.

Mrs. Wilde was no fool. She climbed back to her rear seat, not sulkily or awkwardly, but with grace and agility. And there she still sits prettily, doing most of the guiding. For she learned in a flash that even the most artful back-seat driver, if too persistent, will find herself paddling her own coupe.

SILZER SPEAKS FOR PUBLICITY

winter comes around again. The producers will again reduce production in order to boost prices. The authorities will make a number of futile gestures and the public as usual will pay."

"What is the remedy?" I asked.

"The obvious thing is to have coal declared a public utility. Nobody can deny that it is that and if that step were taken as soon as coal was loaded onto the railroad trucks it would pass under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has ample powers for efficient regulation. The last time the coal situation became acute enough to attract public attention we got action in the form of a Fact Finding Commission. The Commission did good enough work in ascertaining the facts, but there they stopped. They proposed only half-hearted remedies and even these have never been given effect because the winter passed and the public forgot all about the matter.

"One of our troubles is that whenever a national problem does become acute there is always some clamor for additional governmental machinery to deal with it. The truth is that we do not need additional machinery. We have all we need if it was properly applied, and the only way to get it applied is through pressure of public opinion, which brings me back to my original contention that what we want is more limelight on our government."

would scorn to chew gum in the downtown district of a big city eat half their meals on the street in Venice—and if the look of contentment that overspreads the countenance as they twine their lips around a mustard-oozing hot dog is an indication, they enjoy them.

For the serving of hot dogs is an industry and an art. More than fifty palaces, many with a seating capacity of more than 300 persons, are maintained in Venice. And the proprietors are happy. One particular merchant who has converted his piano-box into a modern hot dog emporium, reports the sale of 1475 dozen delicacies in a single day.

So the industry is growing. No longer is the thin-coated mixture made up of the scraps which were good for nothing else and which were left standing in the vats of large packing-houses. They are now a recognized food.

And so Venice, the city of canals, of bathing beauties, of thrilling rides and bright lights supports an industry of considerable magnitude. And as one wends his way out of the amusement zone and even into the business streets to the station the lingering bark of the hot-dog merchant remains—"Hot dog! Hot Dog-g-g! Git 'em while they're hot!"

SECRETS OF KAISER COURT

manded: "Why should I be declared incompetent? What have I done to be labeled insane?"

ON DOWNWARD PATH

The only consequence is that, because of his official disgrace, so-called decent society will have less and less to do with him, driving him more and more into the arms of his adventuress, Baroness Liebenberg, and throwing him into the company of all sorts of questionable elements who will use him to their advantage, cheat him, and demoralize him still further.

The other day His Majesty said to some intimates:

"Whenever a member of my own family offends the moral code I make a point of treating him most harshly, so as to give a warning example to my sons."

Fine morality to destroy the lives of others so as vicariously to help the morals of one's sons!

Yesterday, (November 28, 1908) during the hunt at Suringe, the Crown Prince had a long talk about the political situation with Gen. Von Moltke, the chief of staff. The Crown Prince voiced the opinion that only war would be able to help us out of our muddle. Gen. von Moltke replied that the time of "cabinet wars," wars forced for ulterior reasons by a government, was past, and that a war, which the German nation did not want nor understand and with which it had no sympathy was an extremely dangerous experiment. It amounted practically to a sovereign shooting down his own subjects.

But I doubt if the Crown Prince understood or appreciated Von Moltke's reply. He is a nice and jovial young officer, a good sportsman, but half-educated, narrow, and cursed with the affliction of extreme youth.

NEVER READS

It frightens me when I hear the Emperor exclaim: "I never read newspapers!"

He says this in a most contemptuous tone and adds occasionally: "It is perfectly indifferent to me what these damned fools write about me!"

I often blame myself for keeping silent when he makes such remarks and I suppose I am as guilty as all the others who have had my position at court. Once in a great while I did try to argue with the Emperor, regardless of the personal risk. But I never achieved a thing, and whenever I voiced a liberal opinion, he made me pay for it. Instead of helping, I only hurt others as well as myself.

The first American exchange professor, John Burgess, made a speech before the Germania Society in which he said that no monarch had ever been so misunderstood as the Emperor.

"Never in my life," said Prof. Burgess, "have I met a man with a sharper brain, greater knowledge, higher ideals, more charming politeness, a truer consideration for the opinions of others, a greater intention to do good and help everybody, or a greater loyalty toward his friends, his nation, and the interests of the entire civilized world."

And so Prof. John Burgess is but one more proof of how thoroughly the Emperor succeeds in winning over to his side every scholar whom he greets. I have often watched Prof. Burgess when he was with the Emperor, and I am quite positive that he is influenced by no petty personal ambition nor with the desire to flatter His Majesty, but that he is simply fascinated, in the fullest sense of the word, by the Emperor's personality.

ENGLAND PITIED

Yesterday, (February 21, 1910,) His Majesty voiced the opinion that England was in the last stage of decadence. Later it appeared that on the preceding Sunday the Emperor had given audience to an American, a certain Mr. Robinson, whom he knew from the Regatta Week at Kiel and who had superimposed his own ideas upon His Majesty, with obvious success. It is remarkable how cleverly even foreigners know how to invent and say the things which he likes to hear.

The Emperor is complaining a great deal about the vacillating character of the Czar.

"When I write to him," he told me, "it is impossible to get a reply from him before three months." And he added: "It is due to his lack of energy, to the same congenital unwillingness to face the music and make a decision which brought about the Japanese war."

GETS EXCITED

A proof of His Majesty's pessimism where Russia's future is concerned is contained in the fact that, a few days ago, in spite of expert financial advice, he ordered the sale of all the Russian securities in his possession.

During the last week (Christmas week, 1904) the news of the riots at St. Petersburg, which had to be quelled by the army, has excited both Emperor and the Empress. The Emperor looks at the situation entirely from a military point of view, hardly considering that it is impossible to rule a land by force for any length of time. I was very much surprised when I heard the Empress say to him, calmly and simply:

"Very well: and even suppose the government succeeds in establishing its will by force of arms—what is going to happen after the shooting is over?"

(Next Sunday: He asks for jokes in his army reports.)

PLANT MIRACLE OF EASTERTIDE

together in a tight, grayish ball, brittle and dry on the outside, but curled inward and interlaced in such a manner that they are protected from the fiercely hot desert sun and winds.

RAIN ROUSES

A sudden rainstorm, the first one of summer, or perhaps of two or three summers, acts upon a rocky half-acre of the plants like the waving of a fairy wand. It is almost as though the tiny multitudes lifted up their arms in unison, in silent worship and thanksgiving for the longed-for gift of moisture. The rapid absorption of water seems to force the apparently dead branches to spread and uncoil, revealing the plants' rich, green hearts. In a few moments after rain has fallen, what was before a dry burned rock surface, with rows of grayish, brittle fungi clinging to it, becomes a vivid carpet of green.

Even more astounding perhaps is the transformation which takes place when a "dead" plant, which has been kept as a curiosity, is put in a saucer, or shallow bowl, of water. Slowly, while one's eyes grow larger and one's heart beats a little faster, the dead dry leaves uncurl, delicately and gracefully, as though feeling their way back to life in the measures of some solemn ritual dance.

RELATED TO "ROSE"

The southwestern resurrection plant is related to the beautifully named "Rose of Jericho," a small cruciferous plant which grows in the desert regions about the Red Sea. This plant is gathered and sold to tourists as a symbolic memento of all that the Holy Land means to the Christian world. The southwestern plant is also coming into some demand as a curiosity, and quantities of it are gathered and sold each year, principally to Europe.

One wishes that every child might find a resurrection plant among the lovely colored eggs that the Easter bunny leaves hidden about the house and garden on Easter morning. No object lesson could be more beautiful and touching than the sight of little dead branches uncurling, slowly but surely, to reveal the living heart within; and no matter what one's years, be they few or many, there is a deep and poignant meaning in this humble little plant, the gift also of Him who sent His only Son to demonstrate for all time the miracle of life everlasting.

RUSH TO MILK RAISES QUERY

with a little coffee all the same," I insisted—and they both looked so sorry for me.

GETTING FREQUENT

It was about this time that milk confronted one in the morning paper with marked persistence. A famous film lambkin had, pictorially speaking, gone in for the milk business. A narcotic expert held forth upon the milk cure for drug addicts. A lady sued a neighbor for throwing a bottle of milk at her. A man who is to be hung at San Quentin for stealing two bottles of milk (and committing a murder on the side,) had his date with the gallows postponed. Ramsay Macdonald, new British Premier, was the hero of a news item saying he took lots of milk in his tea—and could milk a cow. And local milk prices went up 2 cents because the rains did not come sooner.

Then I had a letter from a lady friend in San Quentin who complained that the inmates had too much cream and milk and butter and they were all fighting fat and couldn't I please do something about it. It was going beyond their sentence to fatten them up like that when it was fashionable to be slim.

Soon after that I met a friend with a bad cold and offered him our pet British remedy—hot milk and rum. Now in England that prescription is usually received with a facetious "Why the milk?" but this fellow merely looked at me sternly and said, "Why the rum?" You see, he is no scofflaw. But he certainly decided I was.

During a recent disturbing incident you may remember that Charlie Chaplin announced that he did not drink liquor. It seemed a good chance for his press agent to tell us what he did drink. Milk. There, you guessed it right off, didn't you? And I'll bet his new leading lady does, too.

Some one on our street developed a stye on his eye and appeared nicely poulticed up. A bread and milk poultice—his wife made me lose a couple of cars telling me how it was positively the best remedy.

At the same time a lady suing in the divorce courts was accusing her vicious husband of drinking up all the baby's milk himself—and he hadn't even paid for it.

THEN THE DENTIST

Then I visited a dentist—who, after extracting a couple of teeth and trying to flatter me by telling me I had one wisdom tooth too many, calmly advised a milk diet for a few days.

So I thought I would be sort of facetious when I went to have my hair shampooed. "Want to shampoo it in milk?" I remarked caustically.

"I've never heard of a milk shampoo, ma'am," she said anxiously, "but for a preliminary scalp treatment now . . ." And there actually is a milk-rub scalp treatment!

And pretty soon the damsel in the next chair was telling me that nothing whitened and softened the hands so well as soaking them in milk . . . And had I tried milk for cleaning my sapphires?

THE OLD SOAK

Well, of course, I expected it from Dr. Maude Wilde of Better Babies and Mother's Center fame, but when I met a gay old soak that I used to know in the dim and sinful past and whom I had never previously seen completely sober, and beheld him prosperous and kind to his wife and all the rouge on his cheeks instead of on his nose, I still wasn't quite prepared to have this milk stuff put over on me. Religion now, or California's great out-of-doors . . . But no, he sprung the nicest old hokum story about his baby girl gazing up into his eyes one day and saying, "Papa dear, why don't you drink my milk instead of that nasty stuff?" Well, I could see the fellow expected me to believe him, so I left it at that.

So when the editor said "Any inspirations this morning? Got anything on your mind?" And I said "Yes, milk milk, milk, it is closing in on me on all sides. Milk is the arch remedy of the world. There is a wave of milk flooding the country, it's the best cure for narcotic addiction, bootleg whisky, dandruff, sallow complexion, boils, lack of inspiration, crime, after-dinner speeches, toothache, scandals, oil investigations and writers' cramp, the high cost of living, votes for women, and the best method of winning world peace any knowing whether one would look well with one's hair bobbed." He just looked at me kindly and said I could go to it as it was all right with him.

DOUBLE SERVICE

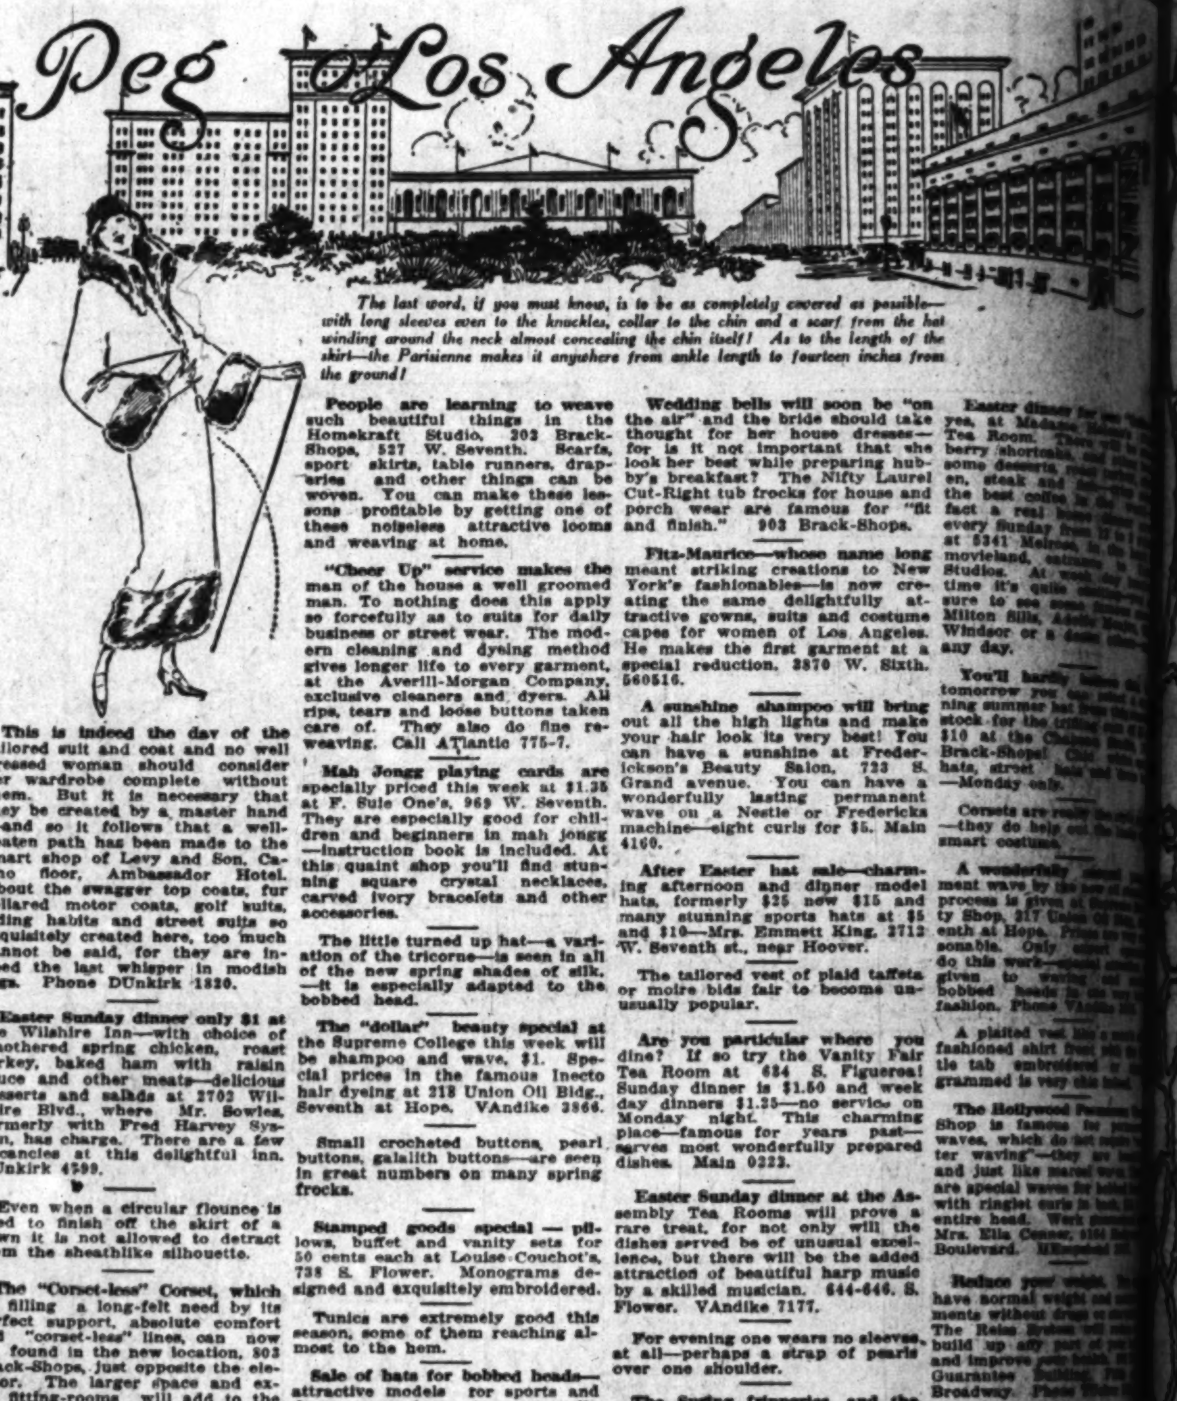
When I got home I found the maid soaking an ink stain out of her best tablecloth with milk—and cleaning her best patent leather shoes with it afterwards as a matter of intensive economy.

"Say, mother," remarked our largest offspring, "our track trainer says I'm to drink more milk . . ."

"Oh, yes, I know. Charles Paddock drinks milk, Jack Dempsey drinks milk, Secretary Wilbur drinks milk, Doug Fairbanks drinks milk, Chief Vollmer drinks milk and that boy who won the oratory contest drinks milk . . ." I interrupted.

"Why, mother, how could you possibly know . . ."

How could I possibly know?



The last word, if you must know, is to be as completely covered as possible—with long sleeves even to the knuckles, collar to the chin and a scarf from the hat winding around the neck almost concealing the chin itself! As to the length of the skirt—the Parisienne makes it anywhere from ankle length to fourteen inches from the ground!

This is indeed the day of the tailored suit and coat and no well dressed woman should consider her wardrobe complete without them. But it is necessary that they be created by a master hand—and so it follows that a well-beaten path has been made to the smart shop of Levy and Son, Casino floor, Ambassador Hotel. About the swagger top coats, fur collared motor coats, golf suits, riding habits and street suits so exquisitely created here, too much cannot be said, for they are indeed the last whisper in modish togs. EASTERTIDE IS TRACED BACK no provision had been made, and the vernal equinox had fallen on March 11 instead of on March 21, as it should have done.

Now, as the Council of Nice, which was held in 325 A. D., had decreed that Easter should be observed on the Sunday which followed the first full moon after the vernal equinox, this discrepancy of ten days worried the pious Pope Gregory XIII, and he determined to correct the error by means of a new calendar. Through long study, he decided that if only such years were called leap years which were divisible by four, the difference in time during five thousand years would not amount to a day.

By this new process of reasoning, of course the date of Easter has varied from year to year; but we must not lay it to the fault of the Gregorian calendar which we still use. Man may control the computation of days; but not the moon! She is her own mistress and defies all interference as to when she is to turn her full face toward us or merely give us a glimpse of her profile. Therefore Easter comes early or late, according to her caprices.

One of our strange customs in celebration of Easter is to consume vast quantities of eggs which we have colored with various paints and dyes. It is said this custom crept into the Christian church, because eggs were forbidden during Lent—the forty days preceding—and that they also represent regeneration. However, the custom is one long established among orientals; so it may be that we obtained it from them.

Red is the color of joy, and in earlier days was the color of Easter eggs—to typify the delight which humans felt because of the departure of the long, cold days of winter.

Easter Sunday is particularly given over to children and on this day they hunt for hidden baskets of candy eggs which the bunnies are said to have laid, or they indulge in other games such as egg-rolling. Here in the United States it has grown to be a custom each spring for children who live in Washington, D. C., to engage in an egg-rolling contest in the White House Grounds, and adults come from far and near to view the sport.

MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON

Mondell went back to Newcastle, Wyo. Nor Mrs. Pitt Campbell to Pittsburg, Kan., and the Copleys settling down to the social amenities of Aurora, Ill.

The Mondells, Frank and Mrs. Frank, came to Washington nearly a quarter of a century ago, and that is a long time to be away from Wyoming. I've serious doubts whether he could rope a steer and I am certain she has forgotten how to make prairie butter.

Newcastle is a little coal town in Eastern Wyoming and, for the first two or three terms of office, Mrs. Mondell kept thinking it was still home. After that it began to seep into her active mind that her real home should be Washington. So she came right on.

Soon Newcastle began to recede into the background and Mrs. Mondell paid the proper calls and accepted invitations, and entertaining on a gradually increasing scale followed. The Mondells played the game according to the Congressional Hoyle and were popular accordingly.

Every year the eastern manner grew a little more noticeable. The pretty daughter is wholly an eastern product. At the annual meeting of the Native Daughters of Wyoming, Miss Mondell simply doesn't belong.

GARDEN WEEK BEGINS TODAY

Move Touches Many Phases of Home Beautifying

Coolidge and Hoover Lend Support to Drive

Landscaping and Cabbages Get Attention

Today begins the National Garden Week with Mrs. John D. Sherman of the department of applied education of the G.F.W.C. as the leader in the movement. Mrs. Sherman is also a candidate for the presidency to suceed Mrs. Winter and it is just such work as this that has made her eligible to aspire to this high position.

"The United States—Garden Nation of the World in 1930." This is the slogan that goes from Maine to California, from Mchigan to Florida during the days of Easter week. Back of the slogan glow the names of Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter and Herbert Hoover. They are on the committee with Mrs. Sherman.

The program as outlined by Mrs. Sherman with the General Federation, churches and motion-picture companies back of her goes into every phase of gardening. Friday is tree day and the American Tree Association will send tree day programs and tree-planting suggestions to schools and clubs. Every civic organization has been asked to co-operate in the work.

According to reports to Mrs. Sherman school gardens in New York City last year produced food valued at $33,000 and that city is regarded as one in which gardening conditions are the most difficult. This year the federation through Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Winter ask for results in Los Angeles city and county.

Better Homes in America is another slogan to conjure with. A Better Homes Week will be conducted from May 11 to 18. These, said Mrs. Sherman, are virtually one and the same. More gardens mean better homes. Better homes mean more gardens. So the organized club women in sponsoring both become the shock troops of one army and active belligerents in the other. The plain truth is that Uncle Sam didn't wake up when opportunity knocked at his door with her call to establish a permanent national peace garden with substantial development along scientific lines. Now the work has to be done all over again. And now the appeal is not as it was six years ago to the exaltation of a patriotic war spirit but to common, everyday human nature—which is a very different thing.

President Coolidge wrote to Mrs. Winter: "National Garden Week seems now to be well on the way to establishment as a fixed national affair and I hope this year's observation of it will strengthen its position in the public interest and activities. I count it a happy obligation to remain chairman of the advisory council."

Secretary Hoover wrote:

"It adds to our appreciation and understanding of life. It builds self-respect in the individual and i nthe community and it may become an ennobling avocation and form a public service."

This week will not synchronize with actual garden-making in all localities of the United States, but the program of activities is so large that every community can feature, as Mrs. Sherman puts it, "some of the many phases of gardening in its relation to the home and the life of the community in terms of health, education and prosperity and from the viewpoint of utility and beauty." The program in detail includes everything from landscape gardening to the humbel cabbage; from tree-planting to lectures by radio; from the Sunday sermon to the Saturday children's pageants.

BIENNIAL PROGRAMS NEARING COMPLETION

Program plans for the biennial are rapidly being completed by Mrs. Robert J. Burdette. On the evening of June 5, Oswald Ryan, United States Commissioner, of Anderson, Ind., will speak on immigration. Other speakers included in the first list are Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mrs. Aaron Schloss of Berkeley; Mrs. Mary Gardiner of the Federal Civil Service Commission; Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Austin, Tex., chairman of citizenship for the General Federation, with Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer of Pasadena; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. Paul Harvey, editor of the International Interpreter, will speak on June 13, his theme being "The Menace of Europe." Whiting Williams's subject will be "The Mainspring of Men."

Capt. Paul Perigord will speak on "Internationalism and Civilization." Miss Jeanette Emrich will present an appeal for Near East Relief.

Notable Figures in Current Entertainment

Mrs. William H. Gilbert

Mrs. Blanche Mullen

Mrs Ralph Hardacre.

Miss Adelaide Hovey

Mrs. E.F. Kraemer

Mrs. Mellen Chamberlain

Miss Loren R. Barton

Miss Vesta Mills

Miss Margaret Longyear

Laurie Gregory Nicholson

Club and Charity Leaders

Mrs. Gilbert will be one of the pages for the biennial convention in June. A notable entertainment was given recently by members of Three Arts Club. Mrs. Chamberlain is a well-known patroness of art. Miss Barton and Miss Mills were prominent on the program. Miss Longyear is chairman of the committee for Mills College Club Night at the Criterion and Miss Hovey is one of her assistants. Mrs. Hardacre entertained a group of friends at the Ebell scholarship benefit card party last week. Miss Nicholson wrote the words and music of a song, "Memories of Mother," which was sung by Ada Potter Wiseman at the Press Club meeting last Tuesday. Mrs. Mullen is president of the Women's Overseas Service League and Mrs. Kramer was in charge of the entertainment Friday evening, given by the auxiliary of the Crippled Children's Guild of the Orthopedic Hospital.

INFORMATION BUREAU WORKS FOR BIENNIAL

Mrs. Charles E. Hutchinson of Glendale, chairman of the bureau of information for the biennial convention of women's clubs, has a committee preparing for service. The subjects included in the information course comprise history, geography, climate, population, landmarks and all that pertains to the West. Memory tests are given so that when anyone applies at the stations in the Biltmore and the Philharmonic Auditorium there will be no danger of "don't know" answers. At every session of the convention two members will be present to listen for notices.

HIGHLAND PARK EBELL CLUB

"Great Men of the West" is the subject of a lecture to be given Tuesday before the Highland Park Ebell Club by Mrs. A. S. Forbes, chairman of history and landmarks of the C.F.W.C. Eric Strathmere, soloist of Wilshire Presbyterian Church, will sing "My Ain Folk" and "The Message," by Caverly. The Shakespeare section will continue the reading of "Cymbeline." Mrs. C. W. Foote is curator.

TO AID DISABLED SOLDIERS

Women Will Meet Thursday in Biltmore Ballroom for Bridge Tea and Card Party

As a benefit for the disabled soldiers of the World War, Mrs. Henry T. Wright, who as chairman of the Los Angeles District Federation's division of co-operation with ex-service men and women, has done valiant work in their behalf and encouraged her confreres to the same generous activities, has arranged for a bridge tea and card party in the ballroom of the Biltmore Thursday with games beginning at 2 p.m.

Bridge, mah jongg and five hundred will be played and a music program heard. The benefit will assist the federation committee to raise a part of the $1200 pledged to the American Legion Service Bureau for the relief of men and women of the World War. Reservations and tickets may be secured from Mrs. W. K. Dodworth, 1137 Second street, Santa Monica; Mrs. W. T. Hearst, 2832 Leeward avenue, DRexel 0788, or Mrs. Wright, HEmpstead 5512.

Because of lack of employment and illness there is a great need among ex-service people, Mrs. Wright states, and this benefit will come at an opportune time. Each club in the district is urged to take one table ($10.)

"The service given by these men is worth that much and many times more to each club," urges Mrs. Wright. "Consider, had they not gladly and freely made sacrifices in what condition or position would our clubs be today? Would they be entertaining the delegates in biennial convention or building clubhouses?"

Philanthropists to Dedicate New Assembly Room

The formal dedication of the new assembly room of the Philanthropy and Civics Club will take place on Thursday at 1 p.m. Honor guests at luncheon will include Mrs. C. P. Clark, Mrs. Grantland Seaton Long, Mrs. Harriet W. Works, Mrs. S. B. Welcome, Mrs. Jay B. Millard, Mrs. W. W. Slaydon, Mrs. W. E. Mabee, Mrs. Boyle Workman, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, Mrs. Henry T. Wright, Mrs. J. J. Carter, Mrs. Frank W. King, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. Blanche Harriman Verbeck, Mrs. E. H. Lauer, Miss Antoinette Ruth Sabel, Mrs. Edward C. Higgins, Mrs. C. B. Slaughter, Mrs. S. E. Edgerton and Dr. Marian Tracy Whiting.

This symposium of club presidents is expected to be instructive and entertaining. The toastmistress of this first luncheon will be Mrs. Lillian B. Goldsmith, president of the club. A music program will be given by Mme. Kittie Delevanti, coloratura soprano, who has sung by royal command before Queen Alexandra and the President of France.

PENWOMEN TO MEET

The regular meeting af the Los Angeles branch of the League of American Penwomen will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Hollywood Branch Library, 6357 Hollywood Boulevard.

RECOMMENDED BY FEDERATION

The following photoplays have been recommended by the California Federation of Women's Clubs, Los Angeles District, Mrs. Roger Sterrett, chairman.

"Triumph."

CLUB NOTES

Complimenting Mrs. John F. Lyons, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, who is visiting in the city, Mrs. Cecil Frankel, vice-president of the federation, entertained Wednesday at the picturesque Hillcrest Country Club. The guests included women prominent in club and musical circles:

Mmes. Eva W. Hughes, Abbie Norton Jamison, William E. Mabee, James T. Fitzgerald, Florence Pierce Reed, Arthur S. Bent, Sylvain Noak, W. B. Goodfellow, Oliver P. Clark, William Duffield, Walter Henry Rothwell, Dean Mason, Charles E. Toll, Chester Wallace Brown, John F. Lyons, Miss Antoinette Sabel and Miss Florence Bartlett.

Miss Amy Cryan of Mills College has been visiting friends in the city for several days. Miss Cryan was official lecturer of the British government during the war and has been filling her second tour of lecture engagements in this country. She has appeared before Friday Morning, Ebell and Women's University clubs of Los Angeles, before the students of Pomona College and other student bodies. Her lecture, "International Relations and the World Court," given before Ebell, is considered by many to be the outstanding event of the year in women's clubs.

The Rowena avenue home of Miss Marina Norris was the scene Friday evening of a delightful party given in honor of Miss Winifred Rouzee, noted Bible teacher, to which all the members of the Rouzee class were bidden. This class meets Sundays at 9:30 a.m. at 1735 North Van Ness avenue, and a cordial invitation is extended to all young people of college age to attend. Novel games and a "backward contest" were features of the evening, the entertainments being punctuated by solos by Earl Kennedy. A buffet supper, where Easter colors predominated, was served, and the affair came to a culmination with singing. These parties are frequent events with the Rouzee Bible class students. Miss Rouzee is the director of Bible sections

MILLS COLLEGE PARTY DRAWING

Members of the society colonies in Pasadena, Los Angeles and Santa Monica are enthusiastic over the large theater party which has been planned by the Mills College Club, to be given at the Criterion Theater tomorrow evening to see Norma Talmadge in "Secrets."

The younger set is especially interested, and has rallied around Miss Margaret Longyear, the chairman of activities. An interesting note in the evening's proceedings will be he presence at the organ of a Mills College girl in the person of Winifred Perry Fall. Mrs. Fall was the organist at college, but this will be her debut as a motion-picture theater musician.

The assistant ushers for that evening will also be college girls, as will the candy girls. These girls will all be in appropriate costumes, and the sweet vendors will be under the supervision of Miss Sara Lee Chapman.

Others who have added their names to the already long list of patrons and patronesses include: Mrs. Modini Wood, Walter Raymond, Mrs. E. J. Vawter, Mrs. Eugene Tilden and Mrs. B. W. Valiat.

Press Women's Banquet Friday Promises Joys

Much pleasure is promised in the program offered by Blanche Harriman Verbeck and her committee for the annual banquet of the Southern California Women's Press Club, which will be the climax of a successful year under the presidency of Mrs. Verbeck. The affair will be given on Friday evening at the Alexandria, with dinner in the ballroom at 7:30 p.m.

Dr. Frank Nagel will present his own compositions, which will be interpreted by Vivian Hart, lyric soprano, recently of the Metropolitan Opera Company, with Celeste Ryus at the piano. A vivid Spanish touch will be added by Kathryn Von Blon in costume, singing a group of Spanish songs, with Raymon McPheeters accompanying.

Brief talks from the honor guests will add interest. Among them are Frederick Warde, Gene Stratton Porter, Marah Ellis Ryan, Alfred Allen, Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Beaton, Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Dixon, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Edwards, Lottie Blair Parker, Carrie Jacobs Bond, Capt. Gough, Mr. and Mrs. John Manning, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Hallet Gilberte, Emma Seckle Marshall, Clara Spalding Ellis, Chief of Police Vollmer, Hallett Abend, Alma Whitaker, Walt Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray, Mrs. Guy Bates Post, Elizabeth DeJeans, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Poore Shehan, Ida McGlone Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wright, Esther Birdsall Darling, Judge and Mrs. B. F. Bledsoe, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patten, Maj. and Mrs. James Hobson, Elinor Glyn, Sir Rhys and Lady Williams, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Shephard and Capt. and Mrs. Richmond P. Hobson.

PREDICTS ENDING OF RED RULE

Count Ilya Tolstoy Says Uprising or Return to Capitalism Near

The possibility that this season will see political changes of great importance in Russia was hinted by Count Ilya Tolstoy in his address before the Woman's Club of Hollywood on Wednesday. Count Tolstoy sees either of two climaxes approaching—an uprising and wholesale murder of the Bolsheviki, or a gradual return to capitalism.

Count Tolstoy referred with considerable sarcasm to the "information" brought out of Russia by various searchers after truth. He mentioned especially H. G. Wells.

Count Tolstoy commended the refusal of the United States government to recognize the Bolshevist rule. Such recognition, he said, would be against all principles of American democracy.

In conclusion, Count Tolstoy defended the communism of his father, Leo Tolstoy, as the Communism of love.

A Lenton musicale at the home of Mrs. J. F. Kent and a music section luncheon preceded Count Tolstoy's address. Mrs. John F. Lyons, president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, was a guest. She described some of the hopes and dreams of the federation. Mrs. Cecil Frankel also made a short address.

In this Easter week Carl S. Knopf of the department of religious education of U.S.C. will speak Wednesday at 11 a.m. on "A Great Bible Drama—Elijah." At the Shakespeare section luncheon following Manly P. Hall will speak on "Shakespeare and Occultism." Miss Florence Duvall will give a violin solo and at 2:30 p.m. Dallas Lore Sharp, scientist, will speak on "Education for Democracy." At 4 p.m. the junior auxiliary will meet.

Rebecca West Talks to Many at Friday Club

One who has heard Rebecca West speak three times in club circles is not surprised that she has sold film rights of her novel, "The Return of the Soldier." It is not that this little English author is so insistent but that she is so impelling in her personality.

At the Friday Morning Club session the huge Philharmonic Auditorium was filled with those who wished to hear her. Mrs. Andrew S. Lobingier, president of the club, was greeted, when she came upon the platform, with a prolonged ovation.

"In the Elizabethan period man felt no compulsion to frustrate women and everyone was happier in England than they have been before or since," Miss West said in part. "In the reign of Charles II there was much adversity and men insisted that women should be things to look at. In the eighteenth century the Englishman said to his womenfolk, 'I'm worried. Keep quiet.' Now we are coming to a time when we find many glories that life is capable of and some of the glories are for all. We are almost in sight of complete freedom for women. Only our own inhibitions prevent us. If we have courage we can carry on to ultimate triumph our business of being free women. Thus all life both for men and women will be more enduring, more orderly and more beautiful."

ANGLES and TANGENTS of CLUB CIRCLES

EASTER LAMENT

Mother bought a costly dress,
Sister bought one, too;
Father, showing real distress,
Cussed the air real blue.
Mother said: "Oh hush up, Dad,
Don't be harum-scarum,
Why should you be feeling bad?
You don't have to wear 'em."

A generation ago women reformers were strong for the prohibition of corsets. There were anti-corset societies formed and few in those days had not heard of Janess Miller and her corsetless gowns. Today reformers go in for enforcing stays upon the resistant girlhood. Fans of a certain radio were asked what article of wearing apparel they would like to hear about on a certain night. The corset led the list, so a corsetmaker, a physician and a preacher spoke on the air in favor of them.

A letter received from Mills College by a chairman in a federation of women's clubs here in this city was so illegible that it had to be returned to the address on the letterhead. Even the signature of the writer could not be made out by the recipient of the letter. It had to do with club work and was believed to be important. Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, at the convention in Glendale, made a strong plea for clear letter-writing by all committee heads and officers of clubs.

Alma Whitaker and Mrs. E. E. Leighton were the speakers for Wednesday Progressive Club of Gardena. Alma rode one of her many hobbies and Mrs. Leighton her one. Alma's was her hatred of the statistics, or was it statistician—regarding school children's use of narcotics as presented for public consumption by the Anti-Narcotic League and Mrs. Leighton's was her old steady reliable hobby—art.

When Alma leveled her lance with her anti-Barbara La Marr as a representative of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and the womanhood of the city story, her brave solo performance awakened a concord of approval. Now the Woman's Council of Sacramento has put a ban on Barbara's even appearing there in pictures.

Never before has Christabel Pankhurst come to Los Angeles without the blare of women's club brasses. This time she slipped in and is quietly making nightly addresses on the Bible at the Bible Institute. First she wanted to reform men and governments and things; so she smashed window panes. Then she wanted to reform women's organizations and she made smashing speeches. Now she wants to reform the spirits of all mankind and she speaks gently and appealingly. Christabel is right, for are we not told that it is the still small voice that redeems.

"Maple syrup and doughnuts will be the appropriate refreshments after the last meeting of the season." No, this is not for Easter week in Los Angeles where frijoles and chili con carne might be mentioned as refreshments. It was taken from a Boston paper concerning a woman's club called the "Daughters of Vermont."

The fine disregard of publishers for authors was never better indicated than when E. M. Boddy made Rebecca West to appear as 50 years of age or more at the Ebell Club club luncheon when they were both speakers. Mr. Boddy referred to an old author who had come to The Times-Mirror Printing Company: "He was very old when he came and he was writing popular stuff about thirty years ago. Probably no one remembers him except our distin-

SCREEN MATINEE PLAN LA

City-Wide Movement Will Be Launched Satur Pattern Already Tested

"I though I could do it. I saw it in the movies." spoken hundreds of girls to probation officers law when taken up for correction from bright-lighted bypaths.

Thus have spoken countless youngsters to irate and astonished parents when caught in bold acts of outlawry.

And thus have grown-up boys and girls admitted to themselves the source of some of their erring ways when appearing before the divorce judges.

It is in recognition of this highly ramified influence of the motion-picture, an influence which they declare may be for great good in the lives of the youth of the land, that the women's organizations of Los Angeles have joined hands with the suburban motion-picture theater owners in putting on special matinees for children throughout the city on all Saturday afternoons beginning next Saturday.

At these matinees, efforts will be made by community committees in co-operation with the theater managers to obtain for the children indorsed feature pictures and such comedy films as animal pictures and educational subjects.

"Heretofore, our children have in most theaters seen the worst picture in the week on Saturday afternoon," declared Mrs. Roger Sterrett, chairman of better films for the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs. "For managers usually show the same picture at that time that is shown Saturday night and theater men admit that the average intelligence of the Saturday night audience is that of a child about 12 years of age. The most sensational picture of the week is saved for that time and this same picture is shown Saturday afternoon to virtually a 100 per cent child audience."

This plan has already been carried out successfully in various suburban theaters of the city. Mrs.

MUSICAL

WILL PRODUCE HERE

THOMAS EGAN TO OFFER OWN OPERETTA

Thomas Egan, Irish operatic tenor, has arrived in Los Angeles to produce "The Minstrel Boy," a play with music. Mr. Egan expects to make his home here, and following the dramatic production of "The Minstrel Boy," it will be made into pictures. Ganna Walska, operatic soprano and wife of Harold F. McCormack, will, "if she doesn't change her mind," according to a statement by Mr. Egan, make her debut in pictures in the leading feminine role. The picture will be made in Hollywood.

Other projects in which Mr. Egan is interested include presentation in Los Angeles of a series of entertainments such as he has given to New York. Included in his plan is an outdoor production of "The Bohemian Girl," by Balfe.

"Muirgheis," a nationalistic Irish grand opera composed by the friend of Mr. Egan, O'Brien Butler, who perished in the Luisitania disaster, will probably receive an open-air production.

Mr. Egan is interested in producing operas in English, particularly some of the old English operas and the operas of Gilbert and Sullivan. While he intends including some of the Italian operas, operas in English, with English, American or Irish, or the home of some English-speaking race, for locales, will be of first importance with him.

His first production, "The Minstrel Boy," a work entirely from his own pen, with the exception of certain interpolated old songs, is a romance-comedy affair, and is not grand opera. It is a drama with music, but on an entirely different basis from comic opera. The cast is for twelve people, with opportunities for enlarging the personnel in atmospheric scenes.

Mr. Egan made his first success as an operatic singer in Italy. Later he appeared two seasons in Dublin as principal tenor of the Italian Grand Opera Company from Drury Lane (London) and since then innumerable times in New York, and several times throughout the United States. At one time he collaborated with Agustin McHuh in other successful New York musical dramas.

Easter Music

Among the numbers to be given today at the First Presbyterian Church, Twentieth and Figueroa streets, are (organ) "Chimes Caprice" (Kreisler,) "Resurrection Morn," (Johnston,) "Deo Gratias" (Frysinger,) "Cristo Trionfante" (Yon,) "Softening Shadows" (Stoughton) and "Hosannah" (Du Bois) by Sibley Pease; (choir) "Arise, My Heart, and Sing" (Emily Remick Warren,) "God Hath Appointed a Day" (Tours,) "King, All Glorious" (Barnby,) (cantata) "Easter Eve and Morn" (Frederick Stevenson,) (solos) "The Cross" (Harriet Ware) by Lucille Bowley, "Rabboni!" (Barker,) Melba French Barr, and anthem "I Will Lay Me Down in Peace" (Brown.)

Easter Pageant

An Easter pageant of flowers will take place this afternoon on the lawns of the Hotel Virginia, Long Beach. It will be under the direction of Adeline McAdam, and 150 dancers will participate.

Soprano in Recital

William James Chick will present Clara Louise Miller, soprano, assisted by Robert Howard, violinist, in recital at Ebell clubhouse tomorrow evening. The program follows:

"Sognai" .... F. Schira
Violin—(a) "Ave Maria" ...... Schubert-Wilhelmj
(b) "Hungarian Dance" in G Minor .... Brahms-Joachim
"If Love were Not" .... Clayton Johns
"Answer" .... Robert Huntington Terry
"Who'll Buy My Lavender" ...... Edward German
"Tomorrow" (from the opera "Osteria") .... Lillo
"April Weather" .... James H. Rogers
Lullaby from "Jocelyn" (violin obligato) ...... B. Godard
Violin—"Zigeunerweisen" .... Sarasate
"Bel Raggio Lusinghier—Semiramide" .... Rossini

Present "Messe Solennelle"

The Los Angeles Trio, May MacDonald Hope, pianist, Calmon Luboviski, violinist, and Ilya Bronson, 'cellist, will augment the choir this morning at 11 o'clock at the Cathedral Chapel of Our Lady of Guadalupe. The choir will present "Messe Solennelle" by Gounod. Services of Fulgenzio Guerreri, famous conductor, have been procured by Mrs Hope, director of the choir, and organist. Among the members of the choir are Ramon Novarro, William Pilcher, and Forrest Bell.

Representing Several Musical Attractions of the Week

Cecil Fanning, Baritone

Jeanne Gordon, Contralto

Isabel Zerteno, Soprano

Offer Comic Opera

Homer Grunn's comic opera, "In Woman's Reign" is to be given tomorrow evening at Chickering Hall, for the Music Teacher's Association. Hester Hugo Castle, baritone, will sing the leading comedy role. This afternoon Mr. Castle is soloist with the Long Beach Band.

Final Morning Musicale

The third and last of Bessie Chapin's morning musicales will take place next Wednesday in the ballroom of the Alexandria Hotel. Miss Chapin will deviate from her usual custom of giving costume-program, and will render a program of violin solos grouped as follows: Spanish, Slavic and Hungarian.

The Russian basso-cantante, George Shkultetsky, will make his Los Angeles debut on this occasion. Shkultetsky has only been in America six months. He recently arrived here from San Francisco where he created a furor in musical circles.

Employs Love Themes

Elgar's "Salut d'Amour" and Rossini's "Semiramide Overture" are being featured at the California Theater this week. As well the arrangements by Carli D. Elinor, popular musical director, of "Song's We Can't Forget" has met with applause. The picture "Three Weeks" has for its two love-themes excerpts from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah" and Puccini's "Boheme."

Build Dance Studios

St. Ritus Benda, Russian ballet master, came here just a year ago to direct Pola Negri in her dancing and soon after opened his school here. The school grew so rapidly that he was compelled to build closer to Hollywood. The new studios are at the corner of Western avenue and Fifth street.

Mr. Benda will feature a summer school where the children may come every morning for their lessons. Not only dancing will be taught, but also French and composition. While Leon Bakst was here a short time ago he worked out a novel exotic decoration with Mr. Benda, and the new studios will be a real innovation.

Chamber Music Plans

Variety has been the key-note of the programs offered by the Los Angeles Chamber Music Society this season. Many unique compositions from the classic writers have been given—things seldom heard, and the modern composers have been represented by such exponents as Arthur Bliss, Joseph Jongen and Ethel Leginska, the latter providing a program in which she played a group of her own compositions. One concert was rendered by the Chamber Music Society of San Francisco as guests of the local society. During the entire course a wide range of instruments have been required; besides the usual strings. Almost all symphonic instruments have been used, with the artists being taken from the first chairs of the Philharmonic Orchestra.

The society's plans for next season have developed only to the extent that the place of the concerts is announced as the Friday Morning Clubhouse. The dates will alternate with the Friday Symphony concerts. The first date will be Friday evening, October 17. The board of directors includes Allan C. Balch, president; Mrs. E. A. Bryant, vice-president; Sam T. Clover, secretary-treasurer, W. G. Kerckhoff and Ben R. Meyer.

To Teach Here

Announcement is made that Arthur J. Hubbard, singing master of Boston, will spend the summer on the Pacific Coast, and that he will teach in Los Angeles. Mr. Hubbard spent two months in Los Angeles last summer.

This pedagogue has long held an honored position as one of the foremost masters of the vocal art in this country. This prestige is based on a solid foundation for he is eminently fitted by personality and experience for voice training.

He is the sole teacher of the successful negro tenor Roland Hayes, who has just returned to Europe. He is also the sole teacher of Charles and Arthur Hackett. Many of the foremost operatic and concert singers in this country have received their whole training from him.

Mirovitch Back Soon

Alfred Mirovitch, Russian pianist, will arrive about May 15, for a master class in Los Angeles, coming via steamship through the Panama Canal from New York. This class is attracting artist pupils from all over America, more than twelve States already being represented. Two pupils coming from New York City to study and others from Winnipeg and other far away points.

Cadman and Tsianina

Charles Wakefield Cadman and Princess Tsianina will return to the Pacific Coast early in June, it was learned on the eve of Cadman's departure for New York.

These artists have not given joint recitals in California for the past season, and their return will be welcomed by their many admirers here.

On the present tour they will present twenty-five concerts, and will appear in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Arkansas, New Mexico and Arizona.

To Return For Recital

Paul Russell, tenor, and Edith Bullard, soprano, who accompanied Arthur J. Hubbard, vocal teacher, to Boston, where they studied all season, will be presented in recital by Mr. Hubbard in July, when the trio will return to Los Angeles.

Homer Simmons Returns

Homer Simmons, Los Angeles pianist who has enjoyed a successfu season as accompanist and pianist with Havrah Hubbard on his transcontinental tour, will appear at the next morning musicale of Bertha Vaughn, May 7, at Chickering Hall. Mr. Simmons recently played for Paderewski and won his instant attention and interest. Electa Felt Ferry, soprano, pupil of Bertha Vaughn who has been appearing with the Mission Play this season, will do songs in costume at this same event. Another pupil of Mrs. Vaughn who has been doing fine things professionally is Mary Teitsworth, soprano, who is appearing at the Wa-Wan Club on April 23.

Whistling Girls

America's Bird Whistling Chorus will present a program for the aged people at Hollenbeck Home next Firday evening. This concert is an annual affair. In addition to whistling numbers by the chorus, there will be whistling solos by Margaret Taylor and Genevieve Bretz, and a whistling trio by Livonia Somes, Dorothy Edouart and Helen Long Snelling. There will be vocal solos by Miss Minnie Dunker, a member of the chorus, and violin solos by Jack Pepper, talented 13-year-old pupil of Robert M. Staples.

Prominent in Artistic Circles

Alex Cherniavsky, Pianist

Grace Whistler, Contralto

Jerome Lebon, Dancer

To Present Operalogue

Miss Margaret Goetz will give the story and music of "Andrea Chenier," opera by Giordano, at the Egan school ballroom next Thursday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's League. The opera is to be given in October in Philharmonic Auditorium. Mr. Louis Hintze will be assisting artist appearing as pianist. Vocal numbers from the opera will also be played on the phonograph.

Miss Goetz will go abroad this summer to gain material for her next season of operalogues, which have won much commendable comment among club and musical circles for their real musical value. She will sail July 2, visiting Germany, Austria, France, Italy, Switzerland, Holland, the British Isles and will return to New York in September. It is understood that a party of music and art lovers will accompany her.

At Baden-Baden, Germany, she expects to attend the Mozart Festival, and hopes to bring pictures of operas which have successfully been given in Germany to present to schools and clubs here.

Director Had No Call to Tip Charlotte Off

Charlotte Treadway, who has one of the biggest roles of her entire career in "Shore Leave," which opens at the Morosco Theater this afternoon, gave her director, Augustin Glassmire, pause during the rehearsal of this pretentious drama with its cast of twenty-six persons.

Miss Treadway has the role of a queer little Back East dressmaker—and not only does the young actress have to seem to be sewing—she actually has to half-make a dress on the stage.

"Now, Miss Treadway," explained Mr. Glassmire, "you will have to take a few lessons on running a machine and sewing in general—it's the only way I know that you can get the necessary realism into your work.

"This morning, however, you can pretend to sew during rehearsal—so I can place you properly with the machine, dressgoods, and so on."

"All right, Mr. Glassmire," demurely assented Miss Treadway, as she deftly started running the machine.

"Charlotte," shouted the director, "Stop it, for heaven's sake, you can't make that much noise running a machine."

"Sorry, Mr. Glassmire," retorted Miss Treadway. "I can't run a sewing machine like this any more quietly—and besides, before I got so busy on the stage, I made all the clothes for my family each season. I've known how to run a sewing machine since I was twelve—and they don't make them noiseless—that I know anything about."

"Good—let's go on," said Mr. Glassmire, unabashed.

COMEDIAN TAKES PLEASURE SADLY

According to Victor Potel, the screen's longest comedian, filling two roles simultaneously is not light employment. Potel, who is a prominently placed member of J. K. MacDonald's "The Goof" cast, is also characterizing a hilarious part in F. B. O.'s "Telephone Girl" series.

"One interesting reaction from fifteen hours of intensive comedy work each day is a pronounced desire for tragic entertainment," says Potel. "I have derived great relaxation recently from Mr. Whiteside's refreshing rendition of 'Mr. Wu' and othr such subjects."

ECHOES OF MUSIC ACTIVITY HERE

Twice each month dance stories are to be sponsored by Jerome Lebon, young teacher of society dancing, who has opened studios at the Wilshire Place Apartments. Society will attend, and special solo dances are to be featured by pupils. Mr. Lebon comes from New York, where he has been engaged in teaching modern ballroom dancing.

At the Cummnock School of Expression on Wednesday evening Frederick Warde will give a lecture on Shakespearean actors. Mrs. Mable Van Alstyne will read and talk on the play "Every Man." The event is being given as an Alumni Association benefit.

Anita Arliss will present her pupils in a novelty recital Tuesday evening at the Ebell Auditorium.

The Soroptomists Club presented Melba French Barr, Nell Lockwood and Maud Gallantine, vocalists, accompanied by Gertrude Ross, Helen Gale and Claire Forbes Crane, in a musical program at the Biltmore Hotel Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Eleanor Maginnis was chosen to represent the Wa Wan Club in San Francisco to sing at the National Federation of Music Clubs. Mrs. Flora Myers Engle will present a program in Los Angeles during music week. Mrs. Bamford was chosen chairman of music week in San Pedro. She will sing for the San Pedro Woman's Club in May. These singers are coaching with Mme. Ragna Linne.

A program of unusual merit is being given today at the Pico Heights Christian Church. The choir is under the direction of Rev. E. Everett Hollingsworth. Mme. Bassett, of the Bassett Conservatory of Music, will assist.

Last Thursday morning two programs by juvenile and advanced students of Mrs. Lily Link-Brannon, teacher of piano, took place. Numbers by Beethoven, Chopin, Schumann, Brahms, MacDowell, Rachmaninoff and Paganini-Liszt were rendered.

Nell Lockwod, contralto, is to be the soloist for the Knights Templar Easter Service to be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Among the talented pupils in the studio of Mme. Melania Astro, voice pedagogue, are Faith Hope and Lillian Kay Kleinman. The artistic work of these two students has attracted attention, and when they appeared before the Men's City Club Thursday they were the recipients of many laudatory comments.

Leona Neblett Concert Trio (Miss Neblett, violinist, Ruth May Shaffner, soprano, Raymond McFeeters, pianist) will give the April Musical program for the Ebell Club tomorrow evening.

Samuel Pettigrew, Indian baritone, and pupil of Lester Hugo Castle, will sing a group of songs in costume for the artist pupils concert the 26th inst., at Chickering Hall. On Thursday evening, the 10th inst., a very successful recital was given by six of Mr. Castle's pupils.

Mme. Grace Whistler, contralto, will give a Soire Musical on Saturday evening at the Regent assisted by her pupil, Miss Vera Grindley. Mme. Whistler, who is a voice specialist and teacher, is organizing a school of music here, bringing her assistants from New York City. The Gamut Club greeted her with warm enthusiasm on March 5. March 2 she gave a program of ballads for Mrs. George Stocking of Chicago. The 11th inst. Mme. Whistler appeared at the Encino Country Club for Mrs. Gertrude Dibble.

Jolson's Newest Play Is Called Best of Career

Al Jolson

Never in his mirth-making career has Al Jolson been so funny as in "Bombo," the New York Winter Garden musical extravaganza in which the droll comedian has scored the triumph of a lifetime. Jolson, in this gay spectacle, comes to the Mason Operahouse on Monday night, April 28.

As "Bombo," the faithful colored retainer of Christopher Columbus, who accompanies the famous explorer on a voyage of discovery that is not recorded in history, Mr. Jolson has a most congenial role and makes the most of it. The book and lyrics of "Bombo" are by Harold Atteridge and the musical score by Sigmund Romberg. The whole production is on a most gorgeous and elaborate scale.

Pictorially, musically and mirthfully, this newest vehicle that the Messrs. Shubert have provided for Mr. Jolson is thoroughly satisfying. Every minute there is something to keep the audience amused and interested. Mr. Jolson is supported by a most unusual company that includes Franklyn A. Batie, Forrest Huff, Fritzi Von Busing, Janet Adair, Vera Kingston, Arline Gardiner, Harry Turpin, Harold Crane, Frank Holmes, Frank Bernard, Phebe Brown, Ann Mason, Jeanne Kay, the Wainwright Sisters and other principals, beside a large chorus of bewildering New York Winter Garden beauties.

TWO CHARACTERIZATIONS

Since leaving the journalistic fold, Lillian Gale, former motion-picture critic, has contributed two characterizations to the cinema art. In the recently completed production of "The Fortieth Door," Miss Gale portrayed the part of a trusted servant of a Turkish nobleman, and in the screen version of Emerson Hough's novel, "The Way of a Man," she played the part of Mandy McGovern, a hardened plainswoman.

RETURNS FROM NORTH

Aileen Pringle is back at the Goldwyn studios again after an absence of several weeks. She has been visiting her parents in San Francisco.

THEY LOOK ALIKE

Eulalie Jensen is playing the role of Eleanor Boardman's mother in King Vidor's production, "Mary the Third." A distinct facial resemblance between them is apparent.

On Tuesday evening the Bereans spent an evening of delightful sociability at the banquet hall of the Methodist Church. Roses and ferns were used in decoration forming a harmonious background and delicious home-made cake, whipped cream jello and coffee were served by the hosts and hostesses of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus R. Ryan and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Frisble.

Lindsay

Charles N. Minor was united in marriage Monday evening to Miss Mabel Marshall, the simple and impressive ring ceremony being performed by Rev. H. P. Spiller at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Minor, in the presence of only a few intimate friends and relatives. The bride was charming in dark blue satin, with accessories in harmonizing shades. She came here from Terrell, Texas, about six years ago and has formed many friends in this locality. The groom is a member of the Lindsay postoffice staff, coming to this city from Oklahoma, where he was engaged in the teaching profession, leaving his work to enlist during the World War. Mr. and Mrs. Minor will reside here.

Mrs. C. A. Knight of Fresno was hostess to members of the Half Century Club at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. L. Evans in this city on Tuesday afternoon. Guests of the club were Mrs. Champion and Mrs. Collins of Nebraska, house guests at the home of Mrs. W. S. Berry.

Upland

Mme. Vera George Hueck of Petrograd and Kiev, Russia, who has been a house guest for the past several weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Bradford Whitney, was hostess Sunday afternoon at a charmingly informal tea at the Whitney home, San Antonio avenue and Sixteenth street. The guests were especially interested in the handsome old silver tea service which Mme. Hueck had brought with her from Russia, and Russian confections featured the delectable collation. A score of guests from Claremont, Ont., Alta Loma and Upland enjoyed the affair.

Mrs. Hubert Lytle Manker entertained with a mah jongg tea Saturday afternoon at her attractive ranch home in Mountain avenue. Spring blossoms were used with pleasing effect in decoration. Prizes in the mah jongg tournament were awarded Miss Mildred Larson and Miss Freda Wedel.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Norton were dinner hosts Tuesday evening at their home, 793 Euclid avenue, to the officers of Upland Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, of which Mrs. Norton is Worthy Matron.

Visalia

Mrs. J. J. Philippe entertained charmingly at an informal bridge luncheon on Tuesday at her home on Highland avenue. Mrs. Lloyd Hamilton of Santa Rosa, house guest at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Garcia, was honor guest. Prize for highest score was received by Mrs. George Tschumy, while Mrs. Hamilton received a handsome guest prize, and the consolation went to Mrs. Howard Patrick of Los Angeles, guest of her mother-in-law, Mrs. S. P. Patrick. A number of out-of-town guests were among those present.

Betrothal of Miss Dora Levendusky of Visalia and Noel Orval Gipson of Clearing House, Mariposa county, was the motif of a delightful party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman H. Wever of South Court street, Thursday evening. Sewing and music formed the diversion for the affair. The happy news was announced in a novel fashion. Miss Anna Haas, who received a large paper ring as consolation prize in an Easter egg hunt, opened the trophy to find a dainty kewpie bride bearing the names of the young people. Buffet refreshments were served following a period of congratulations. The Easter idea embellished the decorations and dainty menu.

Tulare

Among outstanding social events of the week were the luncheon and party given by Mrs. J. R. Haskin in her home on North Cherry avenue Thursday, in honor of the outgoing board of directors of the Woman's Club. Covers were laid for twelve. Black and gold were the effective colors used in decorations, black satin and marigolds being combined in striking effects. Mrs. W. D. Cook, retiring president, was presented with a token of appreciation. Conversation and needlework occupied the afternoon hours following the serving of luncheon. The last business meeting of the retiring board was also held at this time. Enjoying the hospitality of Mrs. Haskin were: Mesdames W. D. Cook, F. P. LaBarrierre, J. I. Sheets, R. E. Rousaville, Guy Noble, C. E. Taylor, H. Newby, Homer Hunt, W. H. Hillman, Leo Smith and Tom Cook.

A pleasant social event was enjoyed Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. George Bauman entertained members of the Five Hundred Club at a one o'clock luncheon in her home on West Inyo street. Fern and bridal wreath, purple iris and pink roses were combined in a beautiful decoration scheme. The afternoon was spent in playing five hundred. Several guests were present.

Porterville

The second of a series of teas given by the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legior, as benefits for disabled veterans at the Palo Alto hospital, was held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Art Steinberg on Putnam avenue and proved one of the most popular pre-Easter affairs. A day coverlet for a bed in the hospital was made by the ladies during the afternoon. Mrs. Ada Beichert, Mrs. H. J. Willey and Miss Herma Templeton secured materials for this. Mrs. Leighroy Miller, Mrs. C. L. Gibson and Mrs. Kenneth Premo prepared an Easter box for the seventeen veterans the local auxiliary is caring for in the Palo Alto hospital. Mrs. Frank Delaney is chairman of the cookie jar committee for the veterans.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Robinson were charming hosts Monday evening at a pretty dinner party celebrating their eleventh wedding anniversary. Places were laid for fourteen at a daintily appointed table, pink roses and crystal adding to its beauty. The occasion was a double event in that it also marked the eleventh anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. George A. H. Farmer. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George A. H. Farmer, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Locher of Fresno, Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Tout, and Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Shoemaker of Lindsay, Miss Lucile Linden and Leon Linden, and Mr. and Mrs. Robinson.

Brea

Child clinic work being the topic of the meeting Tuesday afternoon when the two Parent-Teachers' Association of Brea held a joint session at the Laurel school, a clever little program was given by the kindergarten children. They held a better babies clinic. Two physicians of Brea were impersonated by small boys, while a tiny miss was dressed to resemble, Miss Durgan, child clinic nurse of Santa Ana. Other kiddies were parents; dolls underwent examinations as babies. After the skit, Miss Durgan, who was a special guest of the association, spoke on her work. A baby clinic has been established in Brea. After the program refreshments were served.

Little friends of Ruth Rymer assisted her to celebrate her seventh birthday Saturday afternoon when her mother entertained. Games and dainty refreshments made for a happy hour.

San Luis Obispo

Miss Elness McRae entertained at a delightful affair Friday evening in honor of Miss Dorothy Wintzen, whose engagement to Lou Wilcox was recently announced. The affair was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower, and the bride-elect was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. The hous was artistically decorated for the occasion in the Chinese motif, and the evening was spent at mah jongg. At the close of the play refreshments, which consisted of Chineses dishes, were served. Those present were Miss Wintzen, Misses Margie Ernst, Mabel Lyman, Alva Green, Cecile Farrell, Maxine Farrell, Anna Janssen, Edith Awalt, Beulah Leonard, Maxine Frank, Kathro Frank, Margaret Kelshaw, Aileen Shaug, Aileen McCabe, Helen Rogers, Mmes. Gladys McGlinchey, Anita Gorenson, Gladys Donnelly and the hostess.

The newly elected officers of the Home Culture Club presided for the first time at the meeting on Wednesday afternoon, which was held at the home of Mrs. F. W. Mitchell, with Mrs. R. L. Bird, the new president, presiding. The paper of the afternoon was given by Mrs. C. L. Smith on the "Value of Nature Study." Mrs. La Velle Robison of Santa Cruz, daughter of Mrs. Mitchell, gave two enjoyable readings. Mrs. J. W. Thomson was named chairman of the program committee for the year, the other members of the committee being Mrs. R. M. Bradbury, Mrs. C. L. Smith and Mrs. L. M. Puffer. Mrs. Mitchell was named chairman of the music committee. The program and business meeting were followed by the service of delicious refreshments and a social hour.

Paso Robles

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Heaton was the setting for a pretty home wedding Friday evening when their daughter, Miss Lenore Heaton, was united in marriage to Jared Perkins Brush, son of W. I. Brush of the Sacramento ranch. The wedding ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by the Rev. Leon D. Bliss of the Congregational church. The bride wore a beautiful gown of artichoke green chiffon and carried a bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Norris Heaton, herself a bride of only a few weeks, who wore a gown of sand color crepe satin. The bridegroom was attended by his brother-in-law, Norris Heaton. Following the ceremony an elaborate dinner was served to the wedding party, which included only close relatives. After the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Brush left by automobile for a honeymoon in the northern part of the State. This is the second marriage to unite the two families within the past month, the other having been that of the bride's brother and the bridegroom's sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Heaton.

Mrs. Herbert Nelson entertained at a delightful bridge luncheon on Monday at the Paso Robles Hotel in honor of Mrs. F. W. Sawyer and daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Sawyer, former residents, but now of Los Angeles, who are the house guests of the Nelsons. The guests were Mmes. G. W. Hamilton, F. G. Wetzel, W. A. Johnson, J. Stewart Campbell and Paul Brown and the Misses Dorothy Hamilton and Beth Pfister, in addition to the guests of honor.

San Pedro

An announcement of the week which came as a great surprise to the couple's friends was that of the wedding of Mrs. Ida R. Forbes of San Pedro and Francis J. McGowan, also of the harbor, both of whom are prominently-known socially throughout the Southland. They were house guests of Miss Janet Peck in San Francisco for several days after the wedding, which took place at Fresno Wednesday, the 2nd inst.

In honor of the ninth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Rosenfeld recently entertained with a smartly-appointed dinner given at their home at 3121 Pacific avenue.

Music was the principal feature of the brilliant Easter program given at the meeting of the San Pedro Woman's Club Tuesday afternoon and the musical portion of the program was provided by the Harmony Quartet of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles.

Carrying out well-laid plans, the members of the F. C. and L. Club honored Mrs. E. J. Batton with a delightful surprise housewarming recently. The self-invited guests invaded Mrs. Barton's attractive new home at 674 West Twentieth street, bringing with them flowers to fill the rooms with bright color, and spent the afternoon in social diversions.

Inviting several Los Angeles and San Pedro children, Mrs. D. Goldberg complimented her small son, Alvin, recently on the occasion of his sixth birthday anniversary, with an attractively arranged party, given at the hostess's home at 1325 Eighth street.

La Habra

Saturday evening the beautiful new country home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Espolt offered a pleasing setting for a group of merrymakers who enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Espolt. The guests were members of the L. W. Club with their husbands and families. Mrs. Espolt was assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Jessie Hooper and Miss Clementine Espolt and Mr. Espolt's sister, Mrs. R. F. Frantz.

Yellow was the springtime color used by Mrs. Emma Sweaney when she entertained with a family dinner on Sunday at her home on South Haitt street. It was the birthday of the hostess. Roses and California poppies centered the table. Easter favors marked the places.

With everything to delight the heart of a child on its birthday, Mrs. I. E. Leonard of the Lindaur Court entertained with a birthday party for her small son Bobbie, 4 years of age. After an hour's play in kindergarten games the little host and his friends were seated at the pretty table centered with a brown bunny in a nest of candy Easter eggs. Favors of Easter candy and chicken baskets were at each place. The birthday cake had four pink candles. There were twelve little guests present.

Pomona

A surprise to the journalistic and social circles of Long Beach, Whittier and Pomona, was the announcement of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wiley, 739 Junipero avenue, Long Beach, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Ruth M. Wiley, to Donald A. Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Cole, who is well known in Whittier and in Pomona College. The ceremony took place on February 19. Mrs. Cole is society editor of a local paper.

Members of the Music and Art Section of Ebell Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry L. Sheets, 135 Jefferson avenue, where the life of Amelita Galli-Curci was told in an interesting manner by Mrs. David Naftel.

California poppies and bridal wreathes decked the rooms at the Mountain Meadows Country Club Thursday afternoon at the monthly card party held by the ladies of the club. Mrs. H. E. Walker presided at the tea table while mah jongg, five hundred and bridge were played throughout the afternoon. Mrs. C. M. Warren was first prize winner at bridge, Mrs. W. W. Broughton of La Verne, first in mah jongg and Mrs. J. L. Tomlinson first in five hundred.

One of the beautiful events of the season was the double wedding Friday evening at 8 o'clock when Miss Thelma Tibbets became the bride of Dan More, and Miss Thelma Clark the bride of Harry Tibbetts. The ceremony took place at the H. B. Tibbetts home, 551 North Gordon street, with Rev. John Hall of the First Methodist Church officiating.

Miss Elsie Canning, daughter of Mrs. E. P. Canning, 927 East Second street, whose engagement to Arthur Dobbs of Claremont was announced about three weeks ago, was the inspiration of a miscellaneous shower Monday evening at the home of Mrs. M. A. Trobee, 905 East Second street. The wedding of Miss Canning and Mr. Dobbs will be an event of this month. Mr. Dobbs is the son of J. W. Dobbs, Mills avenue, Claremont.

Walnut Park

A wedding that is of especial interest will be solemnized at the St. Clement's Episcopal Church in Huntington Park tomorrow night when Miss Blanche Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hunt of this city, is to be united in marriage to Mr. Harry Lubeck, the ceremony to be performed by the Rev. Harry Gray. Miss Betty Cramer is to be the maid of honor while Mr. Herbert Herman of this city will be best man.

After a week's honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Hull are now located in their permanent home at 182 Live Oak street in Walnut Park. Their marriage came as a most pleasant surprise when it was announced that they had been wedded in Los Angeles one week ago last night at the parsonage of the Rev. S. E. Witty, pastor of the First Church of Christ, of that city. The ring ceremony was performed. Miss Louie Nichols of Los Angeles and Mr. Dudley West of Huntington Park were the attendants.

AT HOME IN THE AIR

Mr. Roger Mathieu, Art Editor of the Matin, a Noted Aviator

A highly popular and picturesque figure in Paris journalistic circles, M. Roger Mathieu, art editor of the Matin, has just been awarded the legion of honor. This signal mark of his country's gratitude has been well earned by M. Mathieu for his services to French aviation and art, quite apart from his brilliant record of war service.

He is, indeed, as much at home in the air as he is in a dark room or in bringing off photographic "scoops;" his professional rivals will be acutely sensible of the greatness of this compliment.

M. Mathieu was the first photographer to fly, having risked his neck and his camera in the earliest days of aviation. He looped the loop with Pegoud, and among his colleagues he holds the duration record for a flight in the performance of duty. His work has taken him along the airways to places as far distant as The Hague and Kakar (Senegal,) and he has been identified, officially or unofficially, with most of the important aviation events in France for many years past. Another notable name in the latest list of nominations to the legion of honor is that of M. Ch. Maillard, president of the Chambre Syndicale de la Publicite and a member of the French committee for the international advertising convention.—[London Mail.

Woman Lost Faith In All Medicine

But After Many Years Finally Does Find Permanent Relief From Gas On Stomach

"I had taken medicine for years without permanent relief, so I had no faith. But I am wonderfully glad I tried Adlerika for I have taken only one-half bottle and can eat anything now without causing gas. Before I could eat nothing but bread and milk, everything else soured and formed gas. Since taking Adlerika I enjoy eating." (Signed) Mrs. J. B. Manning.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports from Physicians.

"I found Adlerika the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. P. (Name given on request.)

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—[Advertisement.

HAWAIIAN ALIEN BAN TIGHTENED

Shake-up in Immigration Service Made

Chinese Smuggled Through to United States

Oriental Business Men Give Offers of Aid

HONOLULU, April 19.—Many changes in the immigration service have been made here during the last few weeks. The shake-up was started shortly after the unexpected arrival early in January last of L. F. Wixon, assistant immigration commissioner. He immediately deposed Richard L. Halsey as immigration director of this district. Mr. Halsey was assigned to other duties in the service in Honolulu and was about to be transferred to San Francisco when he committed suicide by shooting himself.

This tragedy occurred the day before the arrival here of W. W. Husband of Washington, United States Commissioner of Immigration. It was stated by Mr. Husband on the eve of his departure for Washington after a stay of several weeks in the islands, that so far as Mr. Halsey's connection with the immigration service was concerned there was nothing against him. He had spent more than twenty years in the work here and his proposed transfer was not because of any irregularities on his part, it was explained.

SMUGGLING SEEN

It is asserted that many Chinese have gained unlawful entry to Hawaii and that from here a number of them later made their way to mainland ports of the United States. For the purpose of investigating this condition of affairs A. R. Archibald, inspector from Baltimore, Md., and Monroe Kline, from the department headquarters in Washington, were brought here and they have since been joined by two other inspectors, John G. Clemson and Albert C. Weisgerber. Alfred E. Burnett of Los Angeles has been transferred from the Southern California district to the district of Hawaii as director, with headquarters in Honolulu.

Chinese business men and residents of Honolulu are giving the immigration authorities valuable assistance in identifying members of their own race who are said to have been smuggled into the islands. Arrests and deportations of the exclusion act violators may follow. Since the investigation was started a trans-Pacific liner brought into port thirty Chinese, all of whom are being detained pending deportation proceedings.

CHINESE TO AID

During his stay here Mr. Husband had several conferences with leading oriental residents and was assured of their co-operation in preventing future violations of the immigration law.

"There is trouble in the Immigration Department, there is no use trying to deny it," he said in addressing a meeting of American citizens of oriental ancestry." The work is no Sunday-school picnic. We have made mistakes and have erred on the side of mercy and done injustices to the United States. You may think there are immigration troubles here, but just come to New York if you wish to see real difficulties in this department. You will find persons at Ellis Island who will tell four lies while a Chinese is telling one, and not such good lies either. I wish to say that while I am at the head of the department the law will be enforced, but with all possible consideration. When you think that there are thirty-five reasons why a person should not be admitted, you may realize some of the difficulties we are constantly meeting with."

Mr. Husband said that for twenty years he had been making a study of immigration problems, mostly in regard to immigration from Europe and the Near East.

IT WAS "THE BOSS"

Speaking of new owners, the late Bert Leston Taylor once was an editorial writer on a Duluth paper. He used to work about half an hour a day, and spent the rest of it on the shore of Lake Michigan, reading Meredith. His editorials used to be, "What does the New York Sun mean by the following?" Then he'd paste up a half-column editorial, add, "We pause for a reply," and call it a day.

One day Taylor was sitting in the office reading. "What do you do?" asked a visitor. "Editorial writer," answered Taylor. "Hard?" "Hell, no," said Taylor, and described his method. "Well," said the visitor, "tomorrow you won't even have to do that. I own the paper now. Good-by." So Taylor went to Chicago and became a columnist.—[E. P. A. in New York World.

Gunning for Butterflies

In New Guinea, which was described by a recent writer as a "land of palms and sunshine," there are butterflies measuring ten inches across the wings. These fly high among the tree tops and are shot with special rifles with a very small bore.

The wormen of Misima have an unpleasant way of committing suicide." If they are annoyed, they climb quickly up a tall palm tree, and hurl themselves headlong on to the rocky ground below. When the day's work is over the blacks love to play football. Rain does not stop the game; the players put up their umbrellas.

Midget Eats Giant

At a London museum recently an interesting exhibit was a fish which had eaten another fish twice its length, using the most ingenious means. It had bitten its enemy in the stomach and had neatly doubled its victim over and proceeded to devour it. When the head and tail of the victim both protruded from the mouth of the voracious fish and refused to be swallowed, it merely folded the tail around the head, and so succeeded in finishing its meal. The actual fish, now safely pickled in alchohol, is one of the treasured specimens of the recent Dana Expedition.

PLAYHOUSE OPENING

The new Playhouse will positively open on Monday evening, May 5. This is the final announcement made by Louis A. Macloon, lessee, after an inspection of the new edifice that is now practically complete on Figueroa between Ninth and Tenth streets. The Playhouse is located in the new Friday Morning Clubhouse, that has a separate entrance on the north side and with club, lecture and dining rooms on the Figueroa street side.

The opening New York star will be Miss Doris Keane, who will arrive in Los Angeles in a few days from her New York season, just closed, and rest at Beverly Hills before opening her Playhouse engagement. Miss Keane will play her greatest success, "Romance" by Edward Sheldon, author of "Salvation Nell," "The Nigger," "Ira Drane" and "The Czarina" which Miss Keane played two years ago in New York and London under the Charles Frohman management.

Miss Keane's appearance in "Romance" will be a real labor of love, for probably no living star has been so closely associated with one single role that she has with "Mme. Marguerita Cavallina," the opera singer heroine of the Sheldon story. Her opening May 5 will be the 1900th-odd time that she has played the part and she will go down in theatrical history with the character, ranking with "Rip Van Winkle" as played by Joseph Jefferson, or "Lightnin' Bill Jones," as given by the late and beloved Frank Bacon.

Miss Keane played "Romance" more than 1100 times in London—all during the major part of the war—in the Duke of York's Theater, West End. No other star has ever played "Romance" on tour and this will be Miss Keane's first appearance on the Pacific Coast in ten years. She played here last in "Arsene Lupin," and after her engagement at the Playhouse will only be seen in one other city in California—at the Columbia, in San Francisco.

The box office of the Playhouse will be opened Thursday, April 24, when seats for the opening night and for the first two weeks will be placed on sale. Mail orders for the opening and subsequent dates are now being received, Mr. Macloon announces. The Playhouse will give the usual matinees on Wednesday and Saturday; however, during the engagement of "Romance" Miss Keane will not play on Sunday evenings.

OLD FIRES REVIVED

The stage has lost again to the cinema. Eugene O'Brien, one-time Belasco star, who jumped to the films and back to the stage again, is basking in the glare of the Kliegs once more.

O'Brien resumed his place on the screen as leading man to Norma Talmadge in her latest Joseph M. Schenck-Associated First National heart drama, "Secrets," which Frank Borzage recently directed.

Observers of Hollywood happenings are wondering what impelled O'Brien to abandon a successful stage tour and return to the films. In the midst of a tour, O'Brien suddenly planned return tickets to New York in the hands of each member of the company he headed, canceled all bookings and headed back to Los Angeles. The wiseacres hinted that the prodigal Joseph M. Schenck had opened his purse-strings again.

That he did some financial enticing the producer frankly admits, but the reason underlying all others was public demand, according to Schenck's word. O'Brien, of all Norma Talmadge's leading men, was the most popular, and the breaking up of the combination brought a flood of protests. Norma's fan mail was filed with expressions of the desire for a return of the two. Even the lapse of a year failed to halt the clamor.

O'Brien, strengthened in his determination by the width of the continent, was deaf for a year to Schenck's overtures. There were offers aplenty, but the elation of starring in his own play was stronger than financial inducements.

O'Brien's booking brought him to Los Angeles where Schenck could apply the persuasion direct. O'Brien wavered, but managed to hold out until the company got safely out of town. But when Schenck wired his latest offer, describing the role he could have in "Secrets," which is now playing at the Criterion Theater, the popular star's resistance broke down. The films had won again.

REBIRTH OF EMOTION

Patriotism is not dead.

A rather interesting report comes from New York anent the sudden and, apparently, sincere rising and walking again of that almost—in some quarters—somnolent virtue.

And the report comes from the Algonquin Hotel, that spot in the very center of the wit (or let's call it "wise-crack") population of that heterogeneous cosmopolis. Foregather there every day for lunch and fringed waggeries those cynics to whom no plays, few women, and hardly a man or child have virtue. What's more, to these people, if any nation has a beauty, a virtue, a tradition, it is most assuredly not our nation.

However, goes the report, these sapient ones, these wise-crackers de luxe, have reformed. Our informant may be interested—financially or spiritually—in the film, but he declares that it's all on account of D. W. Griffith's "America."

This picture has received all sorts of wild huzzahs from all sorts of people. More to the point, though, it has received some solemn, deep-toned praise from some extremely knowing people—people, by the way, whose main business it is, and has been for years, to do a bit of ground and lofty cavilling for their daily bread.

The Forum Theater, at Pico and Norton, will open its portals the second week in May with "America." Many of the reports herald it as "a much more vital piece of work than 'The Birth of a Nation.'" This is saying a great deal. There is, of course, possibility that this is true. One thing is certain: It is sure to provide one of the big emotional and spiritual—to say nothing of dramatic—reactions of latter-day film theatricals.

Carol Dempster plays the leading, and almost only feminine role. Leading the large supporting cast are Neil Hamilton and Charles Mack.

AN ASPIRING ARTIST

Sarah Padden's interest in athletics seems to be the answer to her remarkable vitality and the drive and force which have animated the long series of roles she has played on the legitimate stage and in vaudeville. The star of "The Clod" is at the Orpheum Theater this week in her new comedy sketch, "The Accusation," and is hoping to enjoy a daily round of thirty-six holes at some of the local links before matinees each day.

If Miss Padden achieves one-half of her ambitions she will add the titles of champion woman golfer and swimmer of the country to her long list of histrionic triumphs. Every day that weather does not interfere, wherever she is playing, she is on the links, and daily swimming stunts are also on her program. It doesn't require a vivid imagination to picture the tanned, bobbed-haired, good-looking Sarah as the nation's incomparable wielder of a putter, for she has a roomful of trophies won in various tournaments. Her aquatic record is almost as notable.

Last year she won the title of champion woman golfer of the National Vaudeville Artists' Association in New York. In many of the cities visited on her Orpheum tours she has challenged and defeated the best of their women golfers. She has played with some of the best-known amateur and professional golfers in the country, and one year won the Western Golf Association's tournament at the South Shore Country Club, Chicago. Her brassie shots are best and her putting is uncannily accurate.

"The only way to successfully combat indoor work is to indulge in some form of exercise every day," says Miss Padden. "I try to do the thing every day which the weather permits. If every woman would swim, ride horseback or play golf there would be a measurable increase in their well-being and some of the physicians would have to go out of business."

SUPERSTITION'S SLAVES

Are motion-picture folk superstitious? Wallace MacDonald, one of the featured players in Fred Niblo's production, "Thy Name is Woman," now at the Mission Theater, brought up the question during the shooting of the picture at the Niblo studios, in a conversation with Mr. Niblo, Barbara La Marr and William V. Mong.

It is a foregone conclusion that most of the people connected with the theatrical profession are indeed superstitious.

Barbara La Marr says she has a very strong belief in all the old superstitions of the stage. "I wouldn't let anyone whistle in my dressing room for anything in the world," she said.

"I can remember when I appeared on the stage it was customary never to rehearse the last line, the tag, as it was called, of the play. It meant that the play would not and could not be a success if those lines were uttered," Fred Niblo added.

"One thing that I won't do," joined in Billy Mong, "I simply won't hang a hat and won't permit anyone else to, at a height above my head. I am not really superstitious, but I am not going to take any chance by tickling Old Man Fate with one of his pet aversions."

"I am not superstitious any more," contributed Wallie MacDonald, "because I have defied all superstitions and on every hand have met with unusually good luck. When I used to heed the mysterious codes of superstition I actually seemed to meet with more mishaps than I have since I abandoned all such beliefs."

It is known that members of the theatrical clan for generations have believed in certain set superstitions. One of the most feared of all is whistling in a dressing room, and it is surprising how many folk abide by those old beliefs.

Girl of This Western Isn't Schoolma'am

Women have the edge on a good many professions these days and (cue for the gentlemen of the nation) you don't read of many failures among them.

There's one branch of business, however, that the fair sex doesn't hasten to enter. You seldom hear of lady ranchers.

With the release of "Soft Shoes," Hunt Stromberg's third production, starring Harry Carey, the world will be well informed on this subject for the heroine, instead of being the school teacher or traveling debutante of the conventional "Western," is introduced in this capacity.

Of course, in the picture, she has to get into a lot of complexities—or Harry wouldn't have any rescue work to do. But personally, the star, with his customary tolerance, doesn't see any reason why a bright girl couldn't run a ranch as capably as she runs a typewriter.

TWO MORE IN CAST

Sydney de Grey and Gloria Heller have been signed for parts in King Vidor's production of "Mary the Third." Leading roles in the picture are played by Eleanor Boardman, Ben Lyon, William Haines, Pauline Garon, William Collier, Bobby Agnew, Eulalie Jensen and E. J. Ratcliffe.

GIFTED STUDENT PROMISED CAREER

Mildred Costello

"The Gondoliers," a comic opera in two acts, by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented by the Hollywood High School in the high-school auditorium, Friday and Saturday evenings, April 25 and 26, at 8:15, with a matinee Thursday, April 24, at 2:30.

Although "The Gondoliers" is not so well known in America as some of the other light operas by this famous pair, it was very popular in England, and had several long successful runs there.

A point of interest in connection with "The Gondoliers," is that it is the last opera to be written by Gilbert and Sullivan, as their partnership was broken by a quarrel during the first run of the opera.

The cast is as follows:

The Duke of Plaza-Toro	Homer Canfield
Luiz, his attendant	Maynard Burgard
Don Alhambra del Bolero	George McHarg
Marco Palmieri	Sherrill Cohen
Giuseppe Palmieri	Louis Gordon
Antonio	Warren Peterson
Francesco	Dean White
Giorgio	Phillip Brigandi
The Duchess of Plaza-Toro	Julia de Armas
Casilda, her daughter	Marjorie Matheny
Gianetta	Gail Erickson
Tessa	Marie Weinreich
Fiametta	Marian Kilgore
Vittoria	Mildred Pringle
Giulia	Shirley Kennedy
Inez	Mildred Pringle

It is expected that the "hit" of the production will be the Spanish dancing by Mildred Costello. Miss Costello is the gifted young lady who won so much applause with her dancing at a recent shawl dinner, given by the Assistance League. This summer she will go to Philadelphia, to be featured at the big civic Fourth of July celebration. From there she will go to New York, where she will study with the Cansinos. She has refused many offers for professional engagements in order to continue her education as a junior in the Hollywood High School.

Bard of Avon's Natal Day Will be Celebrated

Shakespeare's birthday, April 23, will be celebrated by Robert B. Mantell and Genevieve Hamper and their company of players, at the Mason Opera House, where these interpreters of the works of the Bard of Avon are now appearing in an impressive series of his plays.

The most famous scenes from five Shakespeare's greatest plays will be presented on this occasion. Each scene will receive the same care in presentation which have marked the Mantell performances throughout his long career. Each scene will be presented with its proper scenic and costume investiture.

On account of the length of the program, the curtain will be rung up at 8 o'clock sharp.

The performance will start with the orchard scene from "Julius Caesar," to be followed by balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet;" play scene from "Hamlet;" murder scene from "MacBeth" and the tent scene, Act V, from "King Lear."

PROFESSIONS LOSE TO LURE OF SCREEN

The ministry and the medical profession lost to the stage and screen when Charles "Buddy" Post reached the age of discretion. His father, a Salt Lake City banker, had hopes that "Buddy" would either join the clergy or the medics, but the amateur theatricals of his school days gave him a taste for the stage which he could not overcome.

Post heeded the siren call of the silver screen in 1918, gaining his first part in one of Mary Pickford's pictures, "M'liss." Now he has the lead in a picturization of an E. Phillips Oppenheim story which Commodore J. Stuart Blackton is making for Vitagraph. Post is cast as the college man who, disgusted with metropolitan life, takes to the mountains and nature for solace. Irene Rich plays opposite.

STARS TO GATHER

Lasky Celebrities Hosts at Plantation Club

Many of the celebrities from Hollywood, and particularly those of the Lasky Studios, will gather at the Plantation Club in Culver City tonight in honor of Agnes Ayres and Ricardo Cortez, who will act as hosts for the evening.

Not since the days of the old Photoplayers' Frolics at Sunset Inn has there been a list of reservations like the one for this event.

A dancing contest for the Ayres-Cortez silver trophy will be one of the features of the evening. The management plans many novelties.

Festival for Fools Was Once Held in Paris

From time immemorial the fool has been the butt of punsters, scorned of the intelligent, and generally downtrodden. "A fool's a fool, and there's no denying that!" However, even as every dog has his day and the devil will have his due, so too, has the fool had his moment of glory in history.

It was in Paris of old that the fool held sway of power for the nonce. During the reign of King Louis XI the strange "Festival of the Fools" was celebrated in its palmiest glory. This was the one day of the year when full license was granted Parisians of every class. The result was that for the day the ancient city became a Babylon gone mad.

From early dawn the boulevards were thronged with people of every class—beggars who forgot to beg, thieves who forgot to ply their trade, and respectable shopkeepers who forgot to be respectable. Madness ran riot and buffoonery ruled. Music and song mingled with the hoarse shouts of the mob, and wine ran freely.

An interesting feature of the celebration was the serpentine dance which was executed at the height of the wild orgy. Marching in the form of an endless, weaving serpent, men, women and children swayed through the streets, chanting a weird sing-song.

The "Festival of the Fools" is one of the strange phrases of history revived in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," the Universal production now playing at Tally's Theater.

Wallace Plays Cook and Crew of Stage Craft

Morgan Wallace, now appearing at the Grand Avenue Theater in "The Invisible Husband," Vincent Lawrence's New York stage success, that enters its third week this evening, will be recalled by many local theatergoers for his successful directorial engagement at the old Burbank Theater when this famous playhouse was the leading stock theater in the country. Mr. Wallace also played leading roles in various Morosco productions, later achieving phenomenal success on the London and New York stages, where he featured in "Lawful Larceny."

"The Invisible Husband," in which Mr. Wallace makes his return to the local stage, was also produced and presented under his personal supervision, and the production as a whole possesses that fineness and completeness known to a real New York presentation.

In addition to playing the feature role, staging the play and cooperating in the management of the Grand Avenue Theater, in conjunction with Arthur Freed, Mr. Wallace is utilizing his spare moment playing an important part in Roland West's production at one of the local studios.

Magicians to Outdo Record in Black Art

The variety of novelties on the bill of the Los Angeles Society of Magicians' annual benefit show at Gamut Club theater, May 1, offers something to please every taste, according to Treasurer Frank Fewins and E. E. Phillbrook, master of ceremonies, who with Manuel Thomas have arranged the program.

Here is the complete bill: Billy Baxter and Big Ben—an alarm clock absurdity; Manuel, master of the mighty dollar; Frank Fewins, Egyptian cigarette act; Dana Walden, 'Chapeaugraphy, or a hundred heads under one hat; Prof. H. G. Cooke, anti-Spiritualistic feats; Floyd G. Thayer, magical revue; A. H. Shirk and Max Asher, ludicrous legerdemain; the Ushers, mentalists extraordinary; Marco, the master magician; Sid Marion, ventriloquist; Colman Minarick, Jr., youngest escape artist with the Spanish torture cabinet and, last but not least, Zahr Myron Bickford and Vada Olcott Bickford, mando-'cello and guitar artists.

The last named number offers the greatest woman guitarist in the world and both the players are well known to radio fans throughout the country. This is regarded as the strongest program of conjuring and allied arts ever offered.

Obese Screen Comedian Finds Indiana Range Poor

Walter Hiers has lost a pound. 'Sfact. Walter writes from Indiana, where he is making personal appearances, that the climate doesn't agree with him.

The hefty screen comedian is careful to keep his weight at exactly 246 pounds. But when he stepped on a set of scales in Terre Haute a few days ago, the hand registered 245 pounds. Excited, he hastened to other scales, with the same weight announcement. Before he completed his frenzied search for scales, he had deposited seven pennies and only one registered differently—and that one showed 244 pounds.

Walter is very much worried for fear the Middle West atmosphere will cause him to become thin. That is why he is calling on the dieticians for aid.

MUSIC GALORE

The Lenten season never seems to slow up New York's music activities. In addition to the six regular weekly opera performances at the Metropolitan, we have had some extra offerings, and with the Philadelphia Orchestra, the two final 1923-1924 appearances of the Boston Symphony, and programs by both the Philharmonic and the New York Symphony organizations there has been music galore.

Nor has the stream of recitals lessened materially. The great, the good, and the not-so-good have appeared and disappeared. It is a task, trying to keep a schedule of the places and times of all the music affairs hereabouts, and a still more difficult task to digest what is heard.

But there have been some highlights. There was Fritz Kriesler's concert, and the one offered by Jascha Heifetz—two fiddlers of widely contrasted types. And there came also the digitally expert, Moriz Rosenthal, whose pianistic accomplishments are taking on real color.

Percy Grainger's vital pianism, and the polished art of Erno Dohnanyi likewise attracted attention. There were some other efforts by musicians not so well known, but they were a trifle feeble in comparison with their more gifted and experienced confreres.

SOME SCRIABIN COLOR

We went from the farewell New York appearance of Pierre Monteux as conductor of the Boston Symphony to the home of Rachel Crothers, the playwright. There had been a Sciabin symphony in the final program offered by Monteux, and superbly played by the now superlative Boston organization. It was interesting, therefore, to approach some more Scriabin compositions, which Ruth Heyman was to give through the medium of the piano prior to presenting them publicly in recital.

Sir Paul Dukes, who knew the Russian composer when both were residing in Petrograd, prefaced the Scriabin compositions by a story of his characteristics and accomplishments. Works reflecting the composing done by this master at the three distinct periods of his creative life were played by Miss Heyman. The latest ones put considerable of a burden upon the listener, for the Scriabin of that day went far afield into ultra-modern composition.

Originator of Cinema "Still" is Recognized

One of the makers of motion-picture history is the man who shot the first "still" in connection with the making of a motion picture. His name is Theodore K. Hastings, and his importance and interest in the cinema world has just been discovered in Hollywood, where he has his laboratories on Santa Monica Boulevard. It was in 1900, in the course of the filming of "The Gentleman of France," starring Kyrle Bellew, produced by Vitagraph, that Hastings shot the first "still" ever made for any motion picture.

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, who was then actively in charge of Vitagraph productions, and who recently returned to the post at that company's local studios, directed "The Gentleman of France." On learning of Hastings's presence here, he sent him a book with the following autograph: "To Ted Hastings, the pioneer of the stills (not the hootch kind,) and one of the old boys of Nassau street." Hastings has been associated with newspaper photography all over the world, and during the last few years he has been handling stills for a number of important producing organizations.

DOROTHY MACKAILL AS STAGE NOVICE

Dorothy Mackaill, whose entry into the film world was made by way of the Zeigfeld Follies, will be the film headliners at Pantages this week in "The Fair Cheat," a story of stage life. In this picture Miss Mackaill has to forget all she ever knew of life behind the scenes and appear on the screen as a novice in the chorus—a rich girl taking a venturesome fling at life. "The Fair Cheat" has her adventures, which are mostly, but not always, humorous, and at the end of six reels, bubbling over with laughter and love and the joy of living, is unmasked and exposed by the king of detectives, Dan Cupid.

Her Turn is Turning Ankle to Applause

Everyone knows the intense pain that ensues when by some misstep the ankle is turned. To the Hillstreet this week comes a young woman who turns her ankles in every conceivable way and yet manages to preserve her smile through the performance. But, of course, there are ankles and ankles, and Miss Alma Nielson possesses a pair that are not only perfectly turned, but which have been trained constantly ever since their owner was 10 years old. And that is why they are able to execute such elastic steps and turns.

"But even despite their education," says Miss Nielson, "they give me more trouble and require more attention than a couple of wayward children. They must have their exercise every day, besides the regular dancing. Massaging, bathing in alternate hot and cold water, and alcohol rubbing are just a few of the things necessary to keep my ankles in condition. For, you see, if the slightest muscle or tendon is not perfectly soft and limber, I would not dare make such turns. They must be trained until they become absolutely plastic."

The miniature revue which Miss Nielson is presenting this year is one of the most attractive acts of this kind in vaudeville. The production was staged by Adelaide and Hughes, and is dressed elaborately in regard to scenery and costumes. Miss Nielson is assisted by her own jazz band of six dapper young men, who are expert dancers and singers. They furnish both the atmospheric and musical background for Miss Nielson's feature dancing.

HER WEIGHTY NAME BOWS DOWN LOUISE

COMEDY STAR ASSUMES SERIOUS ROLE IN NEW PLAY

"What's in a name?"

"Everything! History!" insists Louise Fazenda, whose progress from pies to poise on the screen has now reached a significant sign post marked with the stately name "Deborah." Must we explain that Louise is Deborah in "Being Respectable" for Warner Brothers and that Deborah is serious, dignified and manages never to trip or fall?

"Deborah" isn't a laughing name.

For a long time at Mack Sennett's Louise did a lot of "Maggie" comedies. Maggie wore ginghams, perplexity on her countenance and got the laughs by the wholesale. She baked and threw the pies, for the background was often the kitchen.

With comedy drama and more sophistication came such parts to Louise as Mabel Monroe in "The Gold Diggers," Undine in Frank R. Adams's "The Galloping Fish" and Arbutus Quilty in "Listen Lester"—names warranted to give audiences huge packages of laughs. Millie in Max Graf's "The Fog" was a half-and-half name, for Louise put over considerable drama as well as her usual fun. Small as this role was, it was nevertheless many steps forward to seriousness and Deborah.

"There is everything in a name," says Louise. "'Main Street' is said to be a state of mind and certainly 'Deborah' is such an obvious state of seriousness that it's easy to be serious and let the laughs go when for the time being Deborah is my name. There is a fixity to it like the Rock of Gibraltar!"

Louise Fazenda is doing her first serious role in "Being Respectable."

VIRGINIA IS FIVE WOMEN AT LEAST

LATE ROLES BRING OUT VARIOUS SIDES OF ACTRESS

That producers are giving their stars a wide variety of roles is evidenced by the fact that Virginia Valli, Universal star, has been given an opportunity in her last five pictures to demonstrate her versatility.

In "A Lady of Quality," Virginia appeared as a very aristocratic lady of the Queen Anne period in England. In "Wild Oranges" she was the only woman in the cast, and interpreted the role of a naive girl of the swamp lands of Florida. "The Signal Tower" shows her as the wife of a railroad man who keeps silent vigil in the lonely tower.

She is now at work on the screen version of Mary Roberts Reinhardt's well-known novel, "K." In this story she enacts the part of a nurse. It is understood that the next role scheduled for the beautiful star is the part of the notorious woman in "Damned," which Universal is planning to make. Virginia has been given an allotment of stories and parts which few actresses have received during the past year.

GETTING READY FOR WORK

William K. Howard is indulging in a couple of weeks vigorous exercise in the San Bernardino mountains preparatory to directing the first Schofield-Howard picture at the Ince studio, "Where is the Tropic of Capricorn?"

THROUGH WITH "WILDCAT"

David Torrence has just completed his work before the camera in the Lasky production of "The Wildcat." He played a Spanish don, in support of Antonio Moreno and Estelle Taylor.

AN ERRING PROVIDENCE

Mary Carr, the "grand old lady of the screen," who is eagerly sought by producers when there is a mother part to portray, has an unusually captivating role in "Why Men Leave Home," First National picture produced by John M. Stahl, which is now showing at the Alhambra Theater.

As Grandma Sutton she is very happy when her grand-daughter, Irene, becomes the wife of John Emerson, a staid business man. But she watches with concern the rift which appears, due to John's neglect of his wife, and her heart is broken when she learns that the bride has obtained a divorce.

In an attempt to effect a reunion she concocts a clever plot. She lures both to her home, and then falls in a faint. A doctor is called, declares that she has a contagious disease, and orders everybody in the house quarantined.

But Grandma Sutton, who believed that being forced to remain in the house together will cause the young couple to come to their senses, is unaware that Emerson had remarried that morning. And when his bride of a few hours appears on the scene and finds her husband with his former wife, many thrilling complications take place.

"Why Men Leave Home" is filled to the brim with humorous situations, and is enacted by a notable cast, which includes Lewis Stone, Helene Chadwick, William V. Mong, Alma Bennett, Hedda Hopper, Sidney Bracy, Lila Leslie, E. H. Calvert and Howard Truesdell.

55 Wonderful Linen Tablecloths, $8.75

We almost wish that Bullock's policy did not prohibit comparative prices, for we would like to tell you what tablecloths like these are priced in a regular way.

At $8.75, they are wonderful. A fortunate bit of buying brought them to Bullock's. In the popular 2x2½ yard size. Of heavy, double satin damask—the kind which will wear for years. Because some have soap stains or a soiled thread, they have been marked "imperfect"—but such "imperfections" will readily come out in the laundry.

2x3-Yard Tablecloths of the same excellent Quality are Equally Surprising Values, $10.75.

Linens which should sell themselves, they are so unusual—Monday—at Bullock's.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ANTONY ANDERSON

Immortals

All loved and lovely women, dear to rhyme:
 Thais, Cassandra, Helen and their fames,
Burn like tall candles through forgotten time,
 Lighting the past's dim arras with their names.
Around their faces wars the eager dark,
 Wherein all other lights are sunken now;
Yet, casting back, the seeker still may mark
A flame of hair, a bright immortal brow.
Surely, where they have passed,
 one after one,
 Wearing their radiance in the darkened room—
Surely, newcomers to Oblivion
 May still decry, in that all-quenching gloom,
Bare faces, lovely, lifted and alight,
Like tapers burning through the windy night.
—[David Morton.

SOME SCULPTURES, MORE PAINTINGS

The five pictures selected from the Fifth Exhibition of Painters and Sculptors of Southern California for the members of the women's clubs to vote on, that their generous purchase prize of $1000 may go to the right one, are: "Yosemite the Witchery of Winter," by Benjamin Brown; "When Evening Comes," by Fremont Ellis; "The Hudson, Midwinter," by Edgar Keller; "Monarch of the Malibu," by Hanson Puthuff; "Opal Surf," by Jack Wilkinson Smith.

These pictures are a highly intelligent choice—but how could the jury have the heart to pass by such fine things as "Portrait of My Mother," by Helma Heynsen Jahn, "Oh, Sacred Solitude, Divine Retreat," by Karl Yens, and "Salome," by Edouard Vysekal? They must have been in a quandary more than once. And we might mention a number of other pictures no less worthy. We are informed that "Salome" was quite out of the question, as our women couldn't, wouldn't and shouldn't vote on a nude for one of their clubrooms. Really? But Why?

Our protest being gently registered, we will now proceed to discuss the muttons. The starred canvasses—the piece de resistance of the bill of fare—received attention last week. That all deserved the stars was admitted, and no doubt some other pictures would have been so honored if their authors hadn't sent in two canvases instead of one, thus dividing the votes of the jury, which were to be unanimous if a picture was to go into the May exhibition. A little puzzling, this method of selection, but on the whole as fair as any other.

Once again, the muttons. Not all of them, since some are overdone, others underdone, but enough of them to let us taste the good fare of the fifth annual spread. Enough is as good as a feast, is it not?

Dana Bartlett never painted a better thing than this "Moonlight, Capistrano," simple in execution, the genuine claire de lune. Carl Borg's "Hopi Village" is a characteristic study. Conrad Buff's "Decorative Figure," pointillist in method, is an attractive scheme of wine and gold. Rose Dickinson's "Mid-year," two female figures, is original in composition and color, rose, green and dark blue. Geraldine Duncan's "Miss Mabel Glassford," the head seen in profile, has sureness of touch. Helena Dunlap's "Girl of Taos" is brilliantly effective, the presentation bold and forceful. Louis Everett's "Sea Gardens" has strength and much movement. Mary Everett's "Down by the Sea" is an attractive piece of color, but the texture of water, land and figures is identical—and somewhat woolly at that.

"A Native Daughter," by Roy Grossman, is a trifle confused; it needs pulling together and simplification. "Rain Triumphant," by Arthur Hill Gilbert, has a magnificent sky, one full of life and movement, and the expectancy of rain may be seen in trees and fields. "Portrait of Jack Wilkinson Smith," by Arthur Hazard, is direct, forceful, good in color, true in character—though the background one of Smith's own pictures apparently, should not have been left a landscape, since the lighting is that of the studio; a corner of the frame, if shown to the lower left, would have corrected this discrepancy.

From Clarence Hinkle we have "In Indiana," one of his beautiful improvisations—or experiments—some pigs and their keeper, two pigs being an ochre yellow, one as red as a damask rose, against a background of sunlit fields. When Hinkle makes up his mind really to paint, he paints. So does Joseph Kleitsch, whose "Oriental Shop" has not much coherence as a picture—it is, in fact, several pictures—though the still-life objects, vases, fabrics, carpets, bric-a-brac, innumerable things, are rendered with a virtuosity that makes us gasp. The head of the girl to the left of the canvas is a little masterpiece in itself. The reclining lady to the right is an intrusion.

Ralph Holme's "El Capitan" has a dreamlike and imaginative quality, it is like an illustration for some fantastic tale. Aaron Kilpatrick's "In the Arroyo" is on the high level of this painter's recent work in landscape painting. That Helma Heynsen Jahn has at last been able to leave Munich and come to us is a matter for congratulation all around—except for Germany—as her fine "Portrait of My Mother" proves. Here is sincere and able workmanship, great solidity of form. Shiyei Kotoku paints the streets of Los Angeles east side admirably, but in "The Shop Yard" his sunlight is too yellow and heavy. Marie B. Kendall has never done anything better than her "Eucalypti of the Lowlands," whose rhythm in forms and fine massing make the picture notable. Charming color is noted in Orrin White's picture from Mexico.

We have real sunlight in "Morning Light, Owens Valley," by Paul Lauritz, and an impressive bigness of effect in the entire scheme, distant mountains touched with gold-pink, a long stretch of foreground meadow radiating light. One of Kathryn Leighton's best portraits is "The Lure," a fisherman fingering his rods and flies—the fisherman being none other than the artist's husband. Mrs. Leighton's portraits are always atmospheric and symphonic. A very stunning portrait is Arnold Mountfort's "Lady Smith-Dorrien," painted in the true English tradition, and painted superbly well from head to gown and furs; the treatment has the elegance of the subject, a handsome English woman. Bruce Nelson's "Ancient Coast, Carmel," is vibrating and sensitive, an excellent piece of painting. The ruddy tones of John Domela Nieuwenhuis's portrait, "Wallace," are rich and attractive, but the foreshortening of the torso is not what it should be.

One of Edgar Payne's brilliantly executed subjects from his present trip abroad is "Alpine Vista." This painter's technique is a thing to marvel at. A fluent use of the brush, added to equally fluent color, yellow and black against blue, gives charm to Vera Clark Place's "Spanish Girl." The blues and greens in Peter Rackintor's "The Forest" are alive almost to crudeness, and they are laid in with a broad brush. William Ritschel's "Gathering Storm, Tahiti," gives us a sky of great beauty, a low sea-line of indigo. "Childhood in California," by Joseph Sacks, portrait of a very young girl, is a tender and lovely scheme of pink and gray, a characterization of much sympathy and subtlety, an offering of beauty.

Donna Schuster's "Boy with Parrot and Fan" is as tinglingly colorful as its title suggests. Ernest Browning Smith's "Moonlight, Arroyo Seco," is one of this artist's sincere and arresting interpretations. In Minnie Tingle's "On the Heights" the trees are admirably studied and rendered, but the "heights" of the title are not correctly expressed — the trees seem to be on a level with the valley supposedly below. Robert Vonnoh's "Stately Poplars" is an autumnal effect that is varied and subtle in color. Christian Von Schneidau's "In the Studio," an arrangement of vivid reds and blues, is technically very brilliant, very assertive. Blanche Whelan's "Gladioli" is a careful and successful study, though not so delicately intriguing as some of her landscapes. Max Wieczorek's "Portrait of Dr. William Alanson Bryan," done in the mixed medium of charcoal and colored chalks that this artist has made peculiarly his own, has both tone as a picture and charater as a portrait.

Only four miniaturists contribute to this show, and among them they have only six little pictures, but all are of the first order. The four are Mary Coleman Allen, Anni Baldaugh, M. Beatrice Smith Clark and Aurelia Wheeler Reed.

Maurice Braun,

Whose exhibition of landscapes from California and New England is held at Cannell-Chaffin's.

The sculptors are well represented, though the only really large piece is Harriet Fishmuth's magnificent bronze of a giant nude figure, "The Vine," loaned by the Architectural League of Los Angeles. Miss Fishmuth, of course, is one of the foremost women sculptors of America, and it is good to have her work on exhibit. We are beholden to the achitects for an unexpected and great pleasure.

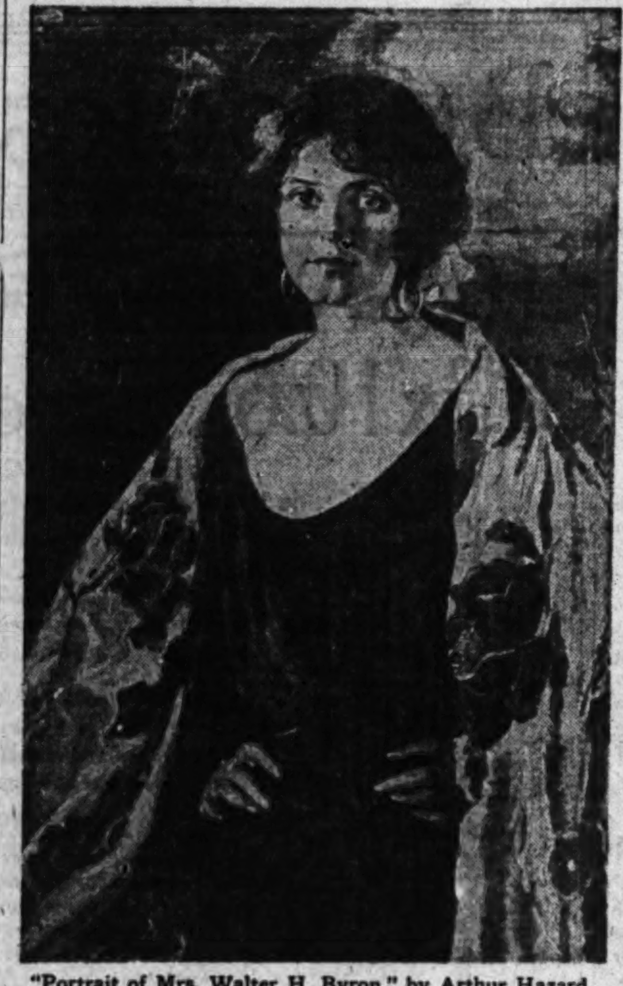
Next in size comes Maud Dagget's charming garden terminal, "Chrysalis," a childish and elfin figure whose look of startled inquiry as to who the intruder in the garden may be is delightfully intriguing. Julia Bracken Wendt has a very sympathetic and beautifully modeled portrait in relief, "Andrew Riber Week." Martin Mueller, a portrait bust, "Mr. Rothwell," a work of considerable style and distinction. Stefan de Vriendt, a charming relief plaque in silver, "Lady Mary de Y." John Roy Hilstad, an attractive small panel in hammered copper, "Oedipus and the Sphinx." Cartaino Scarpitta, an exquisite little figure of grace in lines and refinement of small details, "Na Ja." Frank Wemsley, a good "Fountain Sketch." Henry Lion, an admirable study of a quiescent cat, "Purr." Ella Buchanan, two well modeled subjects in the little "Bathing Girl" and "Young Athlete." Beulah May, a taking bit of child characterization, "Miss Nancy." Lora Woodhead Steere, two small and attractive bits, "The Awakening of Spring" and "Cecilia May Fischer as the Dragon Fly." Harry Cushman, a delicate "Carved Ivory Triptych."

Alice Craise's "Head of an Old Man" is well done, and the same is true of the small figure "Man," though the latter is hardly more than a study for something else. Humberto Pedretti allows himself a delicious play of humor in the figures of chubby children as "Poesy" and "Comedy." Andrew Bjurman's "Mrs. Maria Verdugo, 119 Years Old," is a keenly successful study in character, and his woodcarving, "Guilt," also commands attention. Beauty of line, an appreciation of sculptural demands, as well as a sense for absolute beauty, are the characteristics of the three works from that talented young sculptor, Harold Swartz, whose subtle "Portrait of Dr. Rufus Von KleinSmid," in the round, could hardly have been bettered. We are justified in looking for great things from Swartz in a very near future.

This ends our survey of the Fifth Exhibition of the Painters and Sculptors of Southern California, which is held at the Los Angeles Museum through April.

SHIPS THAT PASS LIKE WINGED BIRDS

Two painters, who began their careers as illustrators, and who have attained to fame in this field, have been holding exhibitions of ships and other sailing-craft in Los Angeles for the last few weeks, J. Duncan Gleason showing in the print-room of the Los Angeles Museum, Gordon Grant at Cannell-Chaffin's.



"Portrait of Mrs. Walter H. Byron," by Arthur Hazard,

Who is holding an exhibition of over a dozen striking portraits and half a dozen landscapes at the Ebell Club through April.

That both should have turned to the sea for full artistic expression is something of a coincidence. Both of them are Californans, and both went to New York to work at magazine and book illustration. Gordon Grant hails from San Francisco, Duncan Gleason from Los Angeles.

Gordon Grant's paintings of ships at sea are absolutely authentic, so are Duncan Gleason's paintings and etchings. They know their subject from keel to flagstaff, and they have recorded this varied and intimate knowledge with loving and painstaking care. When Balzac wrote his "Comedie Humaine," he gave us a history of life in nineteenth century France which is more than a collection of interesting and penetrating psychological studies. Its principal virtue, and one which distinguishes the Balzac cycle from such a group of novels as those of Sir Walter Scott, is that by no possible means can they be improved upon by a later writer. Immersed in his own contemporary life, Balzac gave back to the world the drama which beat upon his consciousness, gave it back enriched by his own mighty passion and superb artistry.

Walter Scott chose a different path. He took a long-lost period, studied ballads and histories, made extensive archaeological researches, and strove to recreate a true picture of a past age. He succeeded in writing romantic novels of a high order, but his characters are incongruous psychologically, for, though dressed in clanking mail and busy with battle-axes and red-hot pincers, they remain, underneath all this panoply, modern gentlemen walking about with their dogs and sticks.

The day of the sailing-ship is almost done. The loveliest sea era, the era of white wings swelling above blue waters, of tall, heaving ships, sensitive to every breath of passing air, that hey-day of man's adventure on the ocean, is closing. No man can arise and recreate it. Only some one who has studied the life and ways of sailing-craft from boyhood can save the old ship-beauty for our information and delight.

Both Gleason and Gordon have felt this early love. From their earliest years they have, in a sense, followed the sea. Your first feeling, as you enter the exhibition held by either of them, is one of cool sea breezes and the rhythms of singing waters. Pictures like these cannot be done again, for the clipper-ship, the square-rigged whaler, like their contemperary, the draft-horse, have passed away never to return, taking each something unutterably beautiful from our daily experience—leaving us only the race-horse and the pleasure yacht as reminders of their age of greatness.

INSPIRED BY THE SPRING EXHIBITION

Henri De Kruif, who paints a charming water color, can also wield a wicked pen if things in the art world don't go to suit him. But he can also guide a very gentle and appreciative one, as the two following dithyrambs prove:

YENS

Be still, my feet, from the snapping of twigs in the heart of the woodland undergrowth. The myriad interwining limbs of gnarled young trees dazzle and charm me with lacy designs of exquisite delicacy, in subtle tints of grays and tans.

Listen! There is the rustle of leaves under the bushes, and one is aware of little birds hopping and squirrels scampering in this secret place. Then there is a thrill in the boughs above, as a birdling sings his hymn of happiness in his lovely little world.

I dare to write this in the hope that you, too, may see and experience what Karl Yens saw and experienced in his picture entitled, "Oh Sacred Solitude, Divine Retreat." Yens here gives us the intimacy of nature.

Karl Yens has the soul of a poet. If you have the patience to absorb his picture and still more patience with yourself to understand him, you will understand how Karl was inspired by his "Divine Retreat." This picture is not dramatic, nor does it insist upon attention, and yet it is for me the most sensitive painting in the spring exhibition. To him that hath eyes to see, let him see.

VYSEKAL

Salome! Yes, it is she, indeed, with all her sensual insinuations. Is there beauty? Aye, voluptuous beauty that flaunts itself upon the gaze of the beholder. It is real flesh from the fish pots.

Why does that lady pass by this picture so quickly? Is it not skillfully drawn and painted? Aye. Are not the forms well organized (awful word)? Aye, again, it is truly rhythmical in the rhythm of the dance. It is a delight to the critic of sheer performance.

This artist, Edouard Vysekal, will be in the front rank for mural commissions from the city of Los Angeles when our beloved city fathers awake to the need of embellishing our public buildings. Vysekal is growing rapidly, and he will say things well when the time arrives and the place is provided for a greater message.

Emil Jacques at Stendahl's

One of the most interesting and attractive of coming exhibitions is that of Emil Jacques, a Flemish painter, who arrived in Los Angeles recently, and who will show next week at Stendahl's Ambassador gallery. Jacques will exhibit figures, landscapes and marines in oil.

The artist studied his craft at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts in Antwerp under the direction of Albrecht De Vriendt, head of the Royal Academy and father to our own sculptor, Stefan De Vriendt. He has won the grand prize of the city of Antwerp, and later he obtained the second prize in the Grand Concours of Rome. He was also professor at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts at Mechlin, Belgium. He has painted for the city of Antwerp ten mural decorations representing "Flax, its Culture and Industry"

All these things bespeak an artist of great experience and accomplishment, and the fact that he intends to become one of ours is certainly thrilling news. Some of the titles of the pictures to be shown at Stendahl's are intriguing—"A Flower Lover," "Sonata," "Dutch Fisherman's Wife," "Beach Life in Holland, "A Flemish Inn," "Flirtation on the Beach," "Ocean at Twilight," "Springtime in Flanders," "Brook in Flanders," "Tapestry Weaver," and so on.

Free Lance Art League

The Free Lance Art League holds monthly meetings at the Cashman studio 501 Douglas Building, Third and Spring streets, on the last Thursday of the month. The public is invited. Its next meeting will be held April 24, at 7:30 p.m.

At a recent meeting the following officers were elected for the year: President, Martin J. Jackson; vice-president, Carl Zimmermann; publicity director, E. M. Goldsworthy Clark; treasurer, Cora Alice Spaulding; recording secretary, Edward Butler Hobson; corresponding secretary, Mary Hall Atwood.

Members are invited to bring in at each meeting sketches for club criticism, and papers on various art topics are read by members. E. M. Goldsworthy Clark has invited the club members and their friends—all who are interested in the Free Lance Art movement—to meet at her studio, 1114 West Fortysecond street, for a social gathering on the last Sunday afternoon of this month, the 27th. The affair will be held from 3 to 6.

New School of Allied Arts

E. M. Goldsworthy Clark announces the opening of her Art Studio and School of Allied Arts at 1114 West Forty-second street. The faculty consists of ten artists and artisans. Mrs. Clark is a graduate of Pratt Institute.

Miniature Painters

The California Society of Miniature Painters opened a permanent exhibition at the new Friday Morning Club's home on Charter Day, April 16. The seventh annual exhibition of the society, held recently at the Biltmore Salon, has since then gone to Mission Inn, Riverside, and to Banning, Cal.

Biltmore Salon Activities

Aaron Kilpatrick's exhibition of landscapes closes at the Biltmore salon on Tuesday, and will be followed, on April 23, by pictures of the desert by Clyde Forsythe. From May 7 to May 23, Hanson Puthuff will show landscapes of California. The Puthuff exhibit will be followed by that of Painters of the West, to close June 16. An attractive list of shows, to be sure!

At Laguna Beach

The late spring show of the Laguna Beach Art Association, the her studio, 1114 West Forty-second summer, opens today in the beach gallery with a very good selection of pictures in oil and water color.

BITS OF VERSE

The Hurt

Little hurt in the heart of me,
 There's nobody else who knows!
You are a constant part of me,
 As perfume's part of the rose.
Try as I may I can't recall
 A time you have absent been—
Days there were when you seemed all
 That my heart concealed within!

Little hurt in the heart of me—
 Resentment I used to feel
Ere you'd become a part of me;
 When first I felt you steal
Into my heart and ask for room.
 Now I have work for you;
You help me lighten the others' gloom—
 Put love into all I do.
[Farm Life.

Priscilla's Powder Puff

Sweet with the fragrance faint and fine
 Of April's violet,
Soft as a zephyr from a fan
 Waved by a gay coquette.
Charged with a dust like powdered pearls,
 A clinging scented stuff
To whiten dainty noses with—
 Priscilla's powder puff.

Light as the airy thistledown
 And white as drifted snows,
Topped with a little ivory knob
 And bright pink satin rose,
A trifle frivolous and frail,
 A bit of fairy fluff.
The cartouche of the modern maid
 Priscilla's powder puff.

Father's Love and Mother's

Oh, father loves the baby,
 With love that's fine and high,
That is to say, provided,
 That baby doesn't cry;
With tender and deep devotion
 He's willing, all the while,
To be the pleased receiver
 Of baby's sweetest smile.

But mother loves the baby
 When he is good or bad;
When, angel like, he's smiling,
 Or when he howls like mad.
And baby has a feeling,
 Which time will not erase,
That, while dad has his good points
 He can't take mother's place.

The Little Dog

A little dog barked at the big, round moon
 That smiled in the evening sky,
And the neighbors smote him with stocks and shoon—
But still he continued his ragful tune
 And he barked till his throat was dry.

But soon 'neath a hill that obstructed the west
 The moon sank out of sight;
And it smiled as it slowly dropped
 under the crest,
But the little dog said, as he lay down to rest,
 "Well! I scared it away, all right!"

EDUCATIONAL

Backward pupils in New York City high schools will henceforth be required to take a simpler course than the other pupils. When the new term opened in February the boys and girls in the lowest fifth of the school group took modified courses in which science and manual work were substituted for the usual mathematics and modern languages. Programs were arranged so that backward pupils have either extra recitations or more time for supervised study and individual instruction. Elimination of mathematics and modern language leaves time for this extra work. Typewriting, shop work, biology, and general science are on the programs for the various modified courses, the administration of which are at the discretion of the principals.

That the rise in the cost of attending college is caused by the increase in the fixed charges, such as tuition, board, room, and fees, rather than by increase in the amount spent by students for books and supplies, dues, contributions, recreation and incidentals is the conclusion reached by the St. Louis branch of the American Association of University Women, which made an investigation of the expenses of women college students at more than 100 representative colleges. This investigation was undertaken as an aid to prospective college students, to parents, to education and vocational counselors, to administrators of scholarships and loan funds, and to others who need to budget as closely as possible the expense of college for women.

To prepare boys and girls for positions in department stores, with opportunities for advancement, the London County Council, in co-operation with an association of merchants, has established a school of training in retail distribution. The main work of the school is to give the students a thorough understanding of some type of merchandise, such as furnishings or textiles, and to train them to acquire knowledge for themselves by the use of such sources as textbooks, magazines, trade exhibitions, museums and art galleries. Salesmanship, history and geography of commerce and color and design are included in the course.—[School Life.

Lip reading is taught to all deaf children of normal intelligence in London. The County Council maintains nine schools for the deaf, in which 675 children are taught by seventy-one teachers. Attendance is not compulsory until the children are 7 years old, but it is considered desirable to admit them as soon after the age of 3 as possible. Up to the age of 13 the deaf children attend special day schools where the elementary subjects are taught. Special guides are hired by the County Council to assist the children in going to and from school. Residential schools are provided for children from 13 to 16, one for subnormal boys and girls who must be taught by other methods than lip reading, one for normal boys and one for normal girls. Vocational instruction occupies half the time in these schools. Cabinet-making, tailoring, bootmaking and baking are taught to boys, and dressmaking and fine laundry work to girls. Most of these boys and girls have little trouble in finding employment after leaving the schools.—[School Life.

COLORFUL PRODUCTION

One of the most colorful productions of the year has been filmed by Thomas H. Ince from the Frank R. Adams story, "The Marriage Cheat," which is a flaming emotional drama of the South Seas. Mr. Adams has again proved his versatility by weaving a tremendous love story as powerful as it is appealing. The island of Tahiti has been used for picturesque background.

USEFUL INVENTIONS

Whistles operated by wireless in locomotive cabs to signal engineers are being tested on French railways.

Machinery has taken the place of hand workmen in the making of silver.

A liquid which is applied to a "run" in silk hose prevents farther raveling until the fabric can be mended, has been discovered.

Among the famous inventions of the Chinese are the following: The compass, printing, lithography, suspension bridges and gunpowder.

Two years after China invented bank notes, the currency of the country became so inflated that a $100 note would only buy a pound of rice.

Frederick Sauvage, who is credited with the invention of the screw propeller, was imprisoned and died bankrupt and insane.

American engine pumps are rapidly replacing the picturesque windmills of Holland.

Automatic apparatus which switches on an electric light, turns on oxygen and sounds an alarm if a person be accidenally locked in a bank vault has been invented by a New York architect.

An electric voting machine is used in the State Legislature of Iowa. It has proved to be a time-saving device, enabling more legislation to be passed in a given time than formerly under the old system of voting.

There is in use an ingenious sort of band saw for coarse work, such as felling trees and sawing stove wood. The saw, instead of being a continuous ribbon-like blade, is made up of links, like those of the driving chain of a bicycle. On their outer side they have teeth of extremely hard steel. The endless chain is supported on four ball-bearing sprocket wheels mounted in a light metal frame. A five-horsepower benzine motor drives it.

A French inventor, M. Dalery, proposes to use paper piping for water under pressure, and to produce it upon a commercial scale. The paper or light pasteboard is wound upon the shaft of a machine embodying a tank containing an adhesive substance. The last layers are impregnated with tar; and, finally, the pipe is given a covering of bitumen. An enlarged diameter is provided at one end, into which is fitted the smaller end of the succeeding section, and the joint is wound with a strip of tarred fabric.—[Compressed Air Magazine.

Loss of the expensive helium gas, which is used in the inflation of the Navy dirigible Shenandoah, and for similar purposes, has been caused not only by its leakage out, but by the leakage of air in. This makes the gas heavier and less buoyant. A remedy has been found by the United States Bureau of Mines, which is now constructing a repurification laboratory at Lakehurst, N. J., the Shenandoah's home port.

Charles Hutchison gave a private showing at his residence last week of his first completed West Coast production, "Surging Seas." Among guests present were George Hackathorne, Edith Thornton, David Torrence and Earl Metcalfe, in the cast, Louis Weadock, who titled it, and Ivon and Adela Rogers St. Johns.

HIS CHILDREN'S FATHER

Pat O'Malley plays the part of Roy Beardsley in "Bread" which Victor Schertzinger is directing and in this role he is the father of four children. Pat, in real life, is the proud parent of three girls and Mr. Schertzinger is seriously considering having the three real children appear in the picture.

MONK TRIO AGAIN

"He's My Pal" is the title of the latest Imperial Comedy in which the monkey actors, Max, Moritz and Pep, are featured. Lew Seiler directed the picture for William Fox.

A large party of Foresters went to the sanatorium in Lopez Canyon Saturday to put on an entertainment for the patients there.

Companion Court E. S., No. 34, entertained several guests last Tuesday afternoon with a card party.

Companion Court Emily, No. 66, held open house Tuesday evening and entertained a full house with views and talks on the aqueduct system and of the proposed new one to Boulder Dam.

The Independent Order of Foresters Soccer football team will give a dance next Wednesday.

LOYAL ORDER OF MOOSE

Golden State Lodge conducted a meeting last Wednesday and transacted a large amount of business. The matter of the memorial service to be conducted on the 27th inst. was given a prominent part of the meeting, as it is planned to make this memorial the best ever.

The committee members in charge of raising the lodge quota for the California Building at Mooseheart reported that their plans were nearly complete and that they felt assured that they would have the quota before the convention. Secretary Hurley received a letter from Charles W. Kinsley since his arrival at Moosehaven and from the tone of the letter he is well pleased with conditions there.

The installation of officers will take place on the 30th inst. In the future there will be but one initiation each month. The next one will be May 14.

Saturday, May 3, will be the masquerade ball. This will wind up a series of dances given by the drum corps. Within a few days Unity Legion, No. 6, will announce the time and place for the next frolic.

FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD

Le Grande Lodge, No. 9, of T. F. B., which has the distinction of being the "stag" lodge of the organization, celebrated its twenty-seventh anniversary last Friday evening. There was a record-breaking attendance of the members, among whom were ten past presidents, who voiced their appreciation of the meeting and the good things prepared for them. One of the honor guests was George K. Keefer, who has had the distinction of holding the office of president of the lodge for seven terms and is serving as chaplain at the present time.

J. W. Andrews, the organizer working with the lodge, was introduced and assured the members that he was always ready to serve them in securing new members.

Victory Lodge, No. 1068, will entertain the members and their friends on the evening of the 24th inst. by the presentation of one-act plays given by the "Mummers Dramatic Troupe." Dancing and cards will follow the program.

The regular Friday Evening Card Club in the clubroom is being well patronized by T.F.B. members and their guests.

The city and county organizing force is to be congratulated upon the recent acquisition to the department of J. C. Pageler.

Pasadena Lodge has commenced a unique campaign, which bids fair to not only increase the membership, but also to create fun among the Lions and Lambs.

NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN WEST

The passage of the Japanese Exclusion Law by Congress has been heralded by Native Sons with much joy. For twenty years this organization has been trying to secure such action by Congress. Favorable action by President Coolidge is anxiously awaited. Native Sons declare that the State Department at Washington will make a blunder if opposition to the passage of the law is not discontinued at once.

To C. M. Hunt, managing editor of the "Grizzly Bear," official paper of the order, is given a full measure of credit for waging a successful campaign in favor of the Japanese Exclusion Act.

A meeting of past presidents of Ramona Parlor will be conducted at 340 Wilcox Building tomorrow evening.

Native Sons are mourning the death of Margaret S. Dockweiler, mother of past President I. B. Dockweiler. She was one of the early pioneers to California.

Santa Cruz will ask the Grand Parlor to conduct the next admission day celebration in that city

INTERNATIONAL ORDI GRAND TEMPLARS

All Good Templars in Southern California will unite in a public meeting in Pershing Hall of the Flower Auditorium at Eighteenth and Flower streets next Saturday evening. The meeting will be a reception to our Grand Chief Templar, Eric Rozelle of Oakland. Dept. Int. Ch. Tem., J. R. Bowdish, and Gr. V. Tem., Mrs. Laura Olsen of Oakland, will accompany the Grand Chief on his trip to Southern California. Past Int. Templar, T. D. Kanouse, nearly all the Grand Lodge officers and other prominent Good Templars will be present. Hon. Chas. A. Randall, prominent contender for the prohibition nomination for President, and other speakers will address the meeting. There will be a musical and literary program. Every one interested in the temperance cause is invited. A special invitation is extended to all former members of the order and visiting members from other jurisdictions.

"SPRINGTIME" PARTY

A "springtime" card and mah jongg party will be given by the benefits and entertainments committee of the Los Angeles Ebell Club on Friday afternoon, May 8. The Denishawn dancers will entertain during the tea hour in the auditorium of the clubhouse on Figueroa street.

ARTICLE No. 22

In one of our previous articles we quoted that apt expression: "Conventions are what every player should know but not necessarily what every player must do." What the expression emphasizes is the need of knowing where to depart from the conventions. The conventional bids by the dealer, however, are so well recognized, and so depended upon by partner that they should be followed very closely. About the only exceptions to this rule occur when the dealer has a hand which justifies a pre-emptive or shut-out bid. At all other times tell your partner the truth. If you want to try out deductive bidding, experiment at any other time rather than at the original bid. In a suit bid, the dealer should hold at least two quick tricks in the suit bid or one quick trick in the suit and one outside trick, to justify an original bid of one in the suit. For example:

Hearts—A, K, 10, 7, 6
Clubs—10, 4, 2
Diamonds—J, 7
Spades—9, 5, 3

or

Hearts—A, 4, 2
Clubs—K, Q, 7, 4, 3
Diamonds—J, 10
Spades—9, 7, 4

In the first case, the dealer should bid one heart; in the second case, one club, both justifiable original bids.

In a no-trump bid, the dealer should hold at least two quick tricks distributed among three suits, to justify an original bid of one no-trump. For example:

Hearts—A, 4, 2
Clubs—K, 7, 6, 4
Diamonds—9, 8, 3
Spades—K, 10, 7

or

Hearts—K, Q, 7, 2
Clubs—J, 10, 7, 4
Diamonds—Q, J, 7
Spades—K, 4

Either of the hands is a justifiable bid of one no-trump by dealer.

To try out the foregoing principles, the following test hands are given. By comparing your bids with those given by the writer in the next article, you will determine whether or not your original bids as dealer are sound. In all of the hands, Z is the dealer and there is no score. What should be bid with the following hands?

Hand No. 1

Hearts—7
Clubs—A
Diamonds—Q, J, 10, 8, 4, 3
Spades—Q, 10, 6, 5, 4

Hand No. 2

Hearts—K, 7
Clubs—9
Diamonds—A, K, J, 8, 7, 6, 3
Spades—8, 4, 2

Hand No. 3

Hearts—A, K, Q, 7
Clubs—9
Diamonds—A, 8
Spades—K, Q, J, 7, 5, 2

Hand No. 4

Hearts—A, K, 5
Clubs—K, J, 10, 7, 6, 2
Diamonds—8, 5, 4
Spades—7

Hand No. 5

Hearts—A, Q, 10, 7, 3
Clubs—6
Diamonds—8, 3
Spades—A, K, Q, 7, 4

Hand No. 6

Hearts—6, 3
Clubs—A, K, 7, 4
Diamonds—8, 3
Spades—K, J, 8, 4, 3

Hand No. 7

Hearts—K, Q, J
Clubs—8, 6, 4, 2
Diamonds—Q, 9, 6
Spades—A, J, 10

Hand No. 8

Hearts—A, 6, 4, 2
Clubs—7
Diamonds—K, 8, 5, 4
Spades—K, J, 10, 9

Hand No. 9

Hearts—None
Clubs—Q
Diamonds—K, J, 10, 8, 4
Spades—Q, J, 10, 9, 7, 6, 5

Hand No. 10

Hearts—A, 7, 6
Clubs—K, 4, 3, 2
Diamonds—Q, 7, 6
Spades—J, 10, 4

It is not often that good players differ as to the proper lead, but every now and then a hand comes up that makes even the experts sit up and take notice. Tables of leads will not help you much on this kind of hand. You have to use good judgment and analyze the bidding very carefully before deciding upon the proper lead and even then you will probably not agree with the next player to whom you submit the hand for an opinion.

Problem No. 10

Hearts—8
Clubs—A, Q, 8
Diamonds—K, J, 10, 6
Spades—K, J, 10, 8, 7

	Y
	Z

Z, the dealer, bid one no-trump, A bid two spades and Y and B passed. Z now bid three hearts; A, three spades; Y, four hearts; B doubled and the others passed. What is A's proper opening lead, to four hearts doubled? Think this over carefully for it is a puzzler.

NEWS IN CLUBS OF SOUTHLAND

of several women's clubs in the city.

Mrs. Robert M. Clarke, chairman of education for the Wilton Place P.-T.A., Mrs. F. O. McColloch, president, announces "Paper Drive Week" will begin tomorrow. This means the collection of suitable reading material in books, magazines and newspapers for children. The Brooklyn school was equipped with a thousand books by the Wilton Place P.-T.A. and the proceeds of the paper drive will go for new books for other schools. So old papers are collected this week for new books. "As a child reads, so he thinks; as he thinks so he lives," Mrs. McCulloch quotes.

The Los Angeles Ebell Club, the first club to have its name affixed to John Steven McGroarty's Gold Scroll, has raised $200 for the project. W. S. Bartlett is chairman of the Gold Scroll committee.

The Wa-Wan Club, one of the leading musical organizations, has given many programs for the soldiers at Sawtelle. Last week the club donated a player piano for the mess hall of the Soldiers' Home. On Thursday a benefit music tea was given for the piano fund. Mrs. Alexander Hannum was in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. D. Joseph Coyne presided at the session of the Catholic Woman's Club Wednesday when Dr. Eugene Francis Storke lectured on St. Peter and the Vatican."

The Inyo county federation, member of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, raised $236 from a "White Elephant" sale for the benefit of the Committee on Co-operation with ex-Service Men. Mrs. H. T. Wright of Hollywood is chairman of the committee.

Mrs. E. M. Lazard, chairman of emblem pins for the Los Angeles District, C.F.W.C., reported the sale of $166 worth last month.

Three gorgeous costumes worn in the motion picture "Dorothy Vernon of Hadden Hall" had a prominent part in the Sierra Madre Women's Club pageant at the convention in Glendale. With their reputation for doing all things well Sierra Madre women surpassed themselves in this entertainment for the district.

Mrs. E. M. Tingle, a California artist, will entertain the art section of the Wednesday Progressive Club of Gardena Wednesday and the 30th inst. will be the regular time of semimonthly meeting.

Drama is the subject for the year of the Delphina Study Club. The program next Thursday, to be given in the Bryson ballroom, will include various aspects of modern plays and playwrights. Those who will take part include Mrs. George McCoy, Mrs. F. W. Pitcher, Miss Helen Stubbs, Mrs. I. W. Fuqua, Mrs. B. D. Strauhal and Miss Ellen Andrews. Mrs. E. L. R. Wallace, the president, will present a group of songs.

More than eighty graduates and former students of Wellesley attended the special meeting for the Southern California Wellesley Club Saturday at the home of Mrs. Howell Baker of Fremont Place. Reports of the clubs' representatives who were present at the recent alumnae council meeting at Wellesley were heard. Mrs. William B. Wright of Long Beach was a delegate not only from this club but from the Wellesley clubs of Salt Lake, Seattle and San Francisco. She reported that the drive for $9,000,000 for the college to be completed in June, 1925, is progressing satisfactorily with more than half the sum already obtained. It was decided to especially honor Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the biennial convention here in June. Mrs. Winter is one of Wellesley's distinguished women. Officers of the Southland Club include Mrs. Paul G. Hoffman, president, and Miss Jean Luther, secretary.

this vacancy. With the addition of two new members on the board, Mrs. James Armstrong and Mrs. Bert Franklin as second vice-president and corresponding secretary, the board remains much the same for the second year of this term. The following nominations were made and will be elected by ballot cast by the recording secretary: Mrs. Irving P. Gardner, Mrs. Leland A. Irish for president; Mrs. Helen Chalmers Kingston, first vice-president; Mrs. James Armstrong, second vice-president; Mrs. L. L. Vogel, third vice-president; Mrs. W. W. Sherer, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph Simons, recording secretay, and Mrs. Bert Franklin, recording secretary. Mrs. Franklin served several years ago in this capacity for the club.

Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. Alexander B. Barret, Miss Gertrude G. Brainerd, Miss Caroline R. Kellogg and Miss Florence E. Shindler are candidates for the directorship of the Women's Athletic Club.

guished guest from England." Oh, Mr. Boddy, why didn't you look more closely at the coming-and-going color of Rebecca—or Cecily Fairchild—for that is her real name. Then you wouldn't have thought she could remember anything more than twenty years ago at most. But she liked it more than any others of the laughing guests. Had she not just been making an earnest plea for women to grow older before they tried to write?

Music School Settlement's Classes Grow

At 2607 Mozart street, under the leadership of Mrs. Henry P. Hoffman, president, the Los Angeles Music School Settlement is accomplishing worthwhile results to cultivate musical talent which comes to the poor.

Just last week 255 lessons were given on the piano and violin. Pupils trace their lineage in two continents. North Americans, Mexicans, Italians, Slavs, Austrians, Germans, French, Swiss, Portuguese, Spanish, Jewish and Irish are represented in the number of young musicians. The M. E. Wallace scholarship is given to the daughter of a woman who is a housekeeper and caring for three little ones. The second scholarship is given to a little girl whose mother was the daughter of wealthy parents but now is obliged to support her two children by scrubbing offices at night.

At the school care is taken of the girls so that they need never be alone on the streets at night.

Kindly men and women of the city are taking an increasingly growing interest in this work of love and every week there is evidence of expansion and improvement.

MONDAY'S MUSICALE STARTS EBELL WEEK

A musicale will be given at the Ebell Club tomorrow afternoon by three Los Angeles artists, Leona Neblett, violinist; Ruth May Shaffner, soprano, and Raymond McFeeters, pianist. One of Mrs. Randolph Hill's compositions, "'Tis April, 'Tis Springtime," with words by Mrs. Roger Sterritt, will be sung. The Browning section will meet Monday morning. The parliamentary law class will also meet Monday. The modern American drama is the subject of the drama section Wednesday morning. Mrs. Charles Stavnow will review the novel, "Quare Women," and discuss the educational movement of the government among the people of the southern mountains. Mrs. A. H. Perdue will review Owen Davis's drama of New England and tell of the American folk plays of South Carolina and the Kentucky mountains. Mrs. Jack Vallely will give a sketch of Eugene O'Neill. For the guest luncheon Wednesday Mrs. J. J. Carter has arranged a round-table talk about community music. Gertrude Ross will lecture on ultra-modern music for the music department Thursday. Raymond Harmon, tenor; Mrs. Harmon Ryus, pianist, and Maude Stone Kraufe, violinist, will play, accompanied by Mrs. Frederick Schwankovsky. Mrs. Berne S. Barker will preside at luncheon. Saturday is to be a gala day, celebrating the three hundred and sixtieth anniversary of the birth of William Shakespeare. Frederick Warde, assisted by friends, will present an episode from the play, "Henry VIII," the fall of Wolsey. Prof. Anthony F. Blanks will give a short talk on the influence of Shakespeare, and there will be Shakespearean songs by Miss Ruth Cole McMullin, accompanied by Mrs. [illegible] W. Taylor. A reception will follow. Members are permitted escorts.

Frequently what doesn't cost you anything is costing someone else double.

PRESS STAFF IS ORGANIZED

During the biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Los Angeles, the press department chairman, Mrs. Lessie Stringfellow Read of Fayetteville, Ark., and her three vice-chairmen, Myrtle Magon of Omaha; Mrs. Frederick W. Weitz of Des Moines, and Mrs. McCord Roberts of Atlanta, Ga., assisted by Mrs. L. P. Boyce of San Francisco, State press chairman for the California Federation and Mrs. Arthur Weir of Los Angeles, publicity chairman for the local biennial board, will send forth messages from the organization representing nearly three million women.

On Thursday, June 5, press day, at a luncheon at the Biltmore, Mrs. Read will preside assisted by Mrs. Boyce and Mrs. Weir. Ida Clyde Clark will speak on "Women of 1924." Marjorie Shuler, Judith Waller, Mrs. McCord Roberts, Mrs. Frederick W. Weitz and Myrtle Mason will also speak.

Other California club women who will assist in the press work are Blanche Friend Austin of Redondo Beach; Mrs. E. M. Timmerhoff of Los Angeles, and Mrs. W. J. Wilson of Newcastle.

Talks on journalism will be given daily in the press-exhibit room by Myra Nye, Los Angeles Times; Hazel Dodd, Bulletin, San Francisco; Ruth McClintoch, Los Angeles Express; Jean Louborough, Los Angeles Examiner; Gertrude Price, Los Angeles Record; Caroline Walker, Los Angeles Herald; Ethel Whitmire, San Francisco Examiner; Zilfa Escout, San Francisco Chronicle, and others.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Fifteen thousand earnest women will convene this week in Buffalo, from the 24th to the 28th, for the annual convention of the National League of Women Voters. Among the speakers will be Maude Wood Park, Jane Addams, Carrie Chapman Catt, M. Carey Thomas, Gertrude Ely, Julia Lathrop, Louise Homer, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Edith Wharton and the national presidents of forty or more organizations. Many men prominent in public affairs will discuss national issues. The governors of several States will attend. Mrs. Arthur Heineman is president of the Southern California branch of this organization.

LOVE'S STRANGLEHOLD

Gilbert Frankau in "Gerald Cranston's Lady" Teaches the Necessity of Love in Marriage; Stephen McKenna in "Vindication" Gives His Version of That Theme

BY LILLIAN C. FORD

GERALD CRANSTON'S LADY. By Gilbert Frankau. The Century Company, New York.

It is not easy for a reader who has a discerning taste in fiction to be just to "Gerald Cranston's Lady." For the book has some good points, but in its totality it is a flivver. First, for the good points. The author throws himself into the story with gusto. He believes in it and in himself. This gives it a vitality that is lacking in its characters. The story moves with energy and decision, as though determined to break through all barriers and get somewhere. But this it fails to do in the end, which is disappointing.

It has several "big" scenes, which hold the attention though they are palpably worked up, mechanically produced. But it is wholly successful in having the best "ragging" scene extant. Any deceived wife, any disdained husband, can go to it secure in finding ammunition for the next attack.

As to the story, it is based, as any reader who is not blindfolded can discern in the first chapter, on the good old motif of "he fell in love with his wife," one discarded since the heyday of Wilkie Collins's success. But Mr. Frankau thinks he has struck a new and rich vein and he works it so assiduously that he makes it interesting.

Gerald Cranston, who has built up an immense fortune as corn chandler and coal merchant, with a little playing of the market on the side, marries the proud daughter of a decaying earldom. She is a war widow with a young son. The marriage is a bargain in which love enters not at all. Gerald supplies the money, the fine house, the retinue of servants, the Rolls-Royce and all the little Royces. The stately Hermione supplies the family prestige, the social position, the tradition. She has been grossly disillusioned by her first husband, whom she had married for love, and wants no more of that commodity.

It is Mr. Frankau's part to teach her and Gerald and his many readers that such a marriage is bound to fail, unless. . . . This he does by trick and device. First there is Hermione's aloofness, her alarmingly subnormal temperature. Then there is Gerald's immersion in business. Along with these is a would-be lover of Hermione's, whose love, alas, is turned to hate and to plotting revenge. To match him is Hermione's cousin, Angela, who is aptly described as "une grande amoreuse" and who lives up to specifications. Still another item is Hermione's little son, whom Gerald loves but who makes him constantly aware of his own sonless estate.

Finally Hermione's ignorance of the ethics of stock speculation precipitates a grand scene between her and Gerald and eventually results in sending him in a mad aerial flight to Paris with Angela, who has long been lying in wait for him.

Nothing short of a strike in which Gerald is laid low by a well-aimed lump of coal could ever make it right with Hermione, who has stubbornly refused to listen to the promptings of her faint and well-bred heart. But not until she learns that financial ruin threatens Gerald does she become quite human. Then she offers with a grand gesture to turn over to him the settlement he had made upon her shortly after his marriage. This magnanimous gesture quite undid the convalescent Gerald. Throwing to the winds all his old, outworn and mistaken notions about reserve and restraint, he took Hermione to his arms, like any other lover, where, no doubt, she remains to this day. She hardly had enough initiative to break away, and he was too much the gentleman to hurl her from him and mayhap break a rib.

The book should prove the servant girl's delight. Big scenes, big passions, sumptuous background, "Home, James;" "My bath, Felice;" "My jewels, Syrett," and other slogans of the very rich ring through the pages like sweet bells unjangled. Surely the book should put money into Mr. Frankau's purse. Later he may use his undoubted ability in writing something a little less palpably made to sell.

VINDICATION. By Stephen McKenna. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

Gloria Britton, social climber, is Mr. McKenna's newest love. She is reasonably well born, but has no money and is further handicapped by having a father who gambles and runs up debts and allows himself to be seen in shady society. So Gloria must depend upon her own powers of attraction and her ability to entertain, for those invitations to country houses and town houses which enable her to meet the eligible young men necessary to her plans.

In the very beginning of the story we find her, in her father's muggy lodgings, planning and plotting her career, social and matrimonial, and discover that she may, if she will, marry Freddie Kendalle. It is not because he is parvenu, nor yet because of his race that she disdains him. He is repugnant to her, because he is too sure of himself and of her, is fundamentally faithless and is notoriously fast. But it must be said for Freddie that he knows better than any other man in all fiction how to provide as if by magic a hamper or a tray filled

LITERARY GOSSIP

J. B. Lippincott Company announces the publication of a significant work on a subject which has come in for considerable discussion during the past year or so. This is entitled "Prisons and Common Sense," by Thomas Mott Osborne. There is probably no man better fitted to write a book of this kind than the author and he gives a clear and comprehensive exposition of the prison question in its various phases.

Louis Becke, as a writer of South Sea stories, in is a class by himself. He was one of the pioneers in this field and wrote what he himself experienced. His own life was filled with romance and adventure and he draws on this in the weaving of strange and fascinating stories. Many of them possess a grim reality reflecting a period of the South Sea Islands when life was cheap and death the climax of many a drama of brutal savagery. "By Reef and Palm and Ebbing of the Tide, Pacific Tales," and "Edmund Barry South Sea Pearler," all by Louis Becke, will be reissued by J. B. Lippincott Company this spring.

Window shoppers for books will be disappointed by the jacket of "People You Know," by Young Boswell. (Boni Liveright.) Overcome by the difficulty of seeing front, back and side at the same time in order to inspect and identify Will Rogers, Hendrick Van Loon, H. L. Mencken, Morris Gest, Joseph Conrad, Ethel Barrymore and an incredible number of other little figures crowded together, they will feel compelled to buy the book so that they can examine and enjoy the caricatures at their leisure.

The Thomas Y. Crowell Company announces "Psychology in Theory and Application," a co-ordination of the various divisions of the subject in one volume, by Horatio W. Dresser, and the third edition of "The Radio Amateur's Handbook," by A. Frederick Collins, the inventor of the wireless telephone; revised by Maurice Muhleman, technical editor of Radio News.

M. R. Werner, author of "Barnum," one of the most successful biographies of last year, has been engaged for over a year on a biography of Brigham Young.

H. T. Webster's bridge cartoons, which are famous with auction players, now appear in book form with accompanying text by William Johnston—a combination to produce enough hilarity to demoralize the average bridge party. The volume is entitled "Webster's Bridge," and is published by Stokes.

The old adage "Hard writing makes easy reading" was never better exemplified than in Henry James Forman's mystery story, "Guilt," published by Boni & Liveright in March. He conceived the idea when working with the United States Secret Service five years ago and has been planning and thinking it over ever since. That is why it is so perfectly executed and so brilliantly written that it can—in fact, must—be read through at one thrilling sitting at least, so the publishers proclaim.

Grantland Rice has gathered the material and completed his work for an almanac of sport, to be known as "Sportlights of 1923," which Putmans will publish at once. The volume will contain pictures of the principal sporting events as well as sketches and portraits of the champions. It will be a complete and authentic book of reference for sporting people.

Alexander Woollcott, author of "Enchanted Aisles," which the Putnams have just published, is the dramatic critic for the New York Herald and appeared for the first time on any stage at a recent benefit performance arranged in New York by Neysa McMein, the illustrator. Mr. Woollcott played the role of Henry the Eighth and appeared opposite Madge Kennedy. Every actor in the audience rose to this long-waited spectacle of critic in the role of actor and hissed him cordially. Mr. Woollcott's book is a collection of essays on the modern stage and its great personations.

In response to many inquiries, Charles Scribner's Sons offer the information that the correct pronunciation of the surname of Michael Pupin, author of "From Immigrant to Inventor," is Pewpeen, with the second syllable accented. The autobiography is now in its third large printing.

April, 1924, marks the centenary of Bryon's death. In anticipation of this event, D. Appleton & Co., have brought out an edition of Byron's poems, selected and arranged by the eminent Byron authority, H. J. C. Grierson. It has been the editor's aim to make the contents of this book thoroughly representative of Byron's work; not too easy a task, in view of the extent and varying quality of the poet's writing, but Prof. Grierson has included all that is necessary to an appreciation of Byron's main characteristics.

HOW RUPERT HUGHES WORKS

GEOFFREY SHURLOCK

With interest in writing as widespread as it is nowadays, people are clamorous to know how successful writers achieve their results. They crave inside information as to the "mechanics" of yarn-spinning. They might be reminded of Dumas's description of the "mechanics" of drama—two tables, some boards, and a passion.

Aside from a fat fountain pen, some blank paper — white by choice, though yellow will do—all that Rupert Hughes apparently asks is a little solitude—preferably at night between the hours of 9 after dinner and 3 to 5 before breakfast. The walls of his study are decorated with large sheets on which he has sketched the plots, counter-plots and the various installments of the novel or photoplay he is working on; pictures of its locale; sudden ideas and flashes of inspiration jotted down on odd scraps of paper and pinned into fantastic streamers; typewritten memoranda and statistics on religion and divorce; newspaper clippings concerning the increase in blue laws and runaway girls, the decrease in church attendance and the birth rate; suggestions for moving pictures and germs of plays. On the couch are half a dozen wire baskets filled with more notes, with half, quarter and practically unwritten, short stories. The shelves, the mantel, the recesses above the windows, the sills, the clotnes closet, the place where he ought to keep his hats, are filled with books, marked underscored and annotated in a way that makes reading them in his wake a double joy.

So much for visible raw material. The creative processes are a good deal more intangible. If Rupert Hughes is given to spasms of inspiration he conceals them as he would so many misdemeanors. All that the observer is conscious of is a quiet, comprehensive and apparently incessant working of his faculties of observation, absorption and creation.

Whether he is riding in his car, looking out at the birds on the lawn, granting an interview or merely reading along in some old volume to note down joyfully that the berths in sailing packets of 1794 had bombazet curtains or that bananas were first popularized in New York in 1882, his mind is literally "everlastingly at it." The theme he is mulling over may be such a memory of his childhood as his latest short story—a story he has had in mind to write for more than fourteen years. Or it may have been suggested by a paragraph in last evening's paper.

Hughes has no need to run after the exotic; all is grist that comes to his mill. The tiniest facts are pregnant with unsuspected possibilities for such a mind. Most of us have heads overstuffed with knowledge of infinitely greater literary value than the curious domestic habits of the husband-eating spider. Yet we can't write witty comedies like "The Catbird."

In addition to all his fiction, Maj. Hughes also writes, directs, edits and titles three pictures a year for the Goldwyn Studios, his latest being "True as Steel." This means that he must be on the lot nearly every day to attend to the numerous details of film production.

So it is that when aspiring writers, especially those looking for some royal road to literature, ask Hughes for advice and he tells them to keep everlastingly at it, they tend to receive this apparent bromide in hurt amazement. They think it is a stall, and feel discouraged. They would be still more discouraged if they knew what an accurate summing-up it is of his own remarkable success.

A GROUP OF RECENT BOOKS

MY CRYSTAL BALL. By Elizabeth Marbury. Boni & Liveright, New York.

The "Crystal Ball" to which Miss Marbury's title refers, is her remarkable memory upon which she has drawn for the facts of her past life. She tells us that she never kept a diary, used a notebook nor otherwise insulted her private Mnemosyne, who has therefore rewarded her trust with faultless service.

Elizabeth Marbury was born in New York in 1856. The fact that during her early years she proved herself remarkably acquisitive and both willing to and capable of driving sharp bargains convinced her that she was destined for a business career. Accordingly after graduation and a few years trial of society life, she began her business course as a rearer of prize poultry, utilizing the grounds of her parents' country home at Oyster Bay as a breeding-place for her livestock. She captured many prizes, as well as the heart and an offer of the hand, of a rival breeder, which she declined. Retiring from the poultry field she later became interested in theatrical affairs, arranging and directing a benefit performance for a popular charity, which netted about $5000 for "the cause." Her business capacity, thus displayed, attracted the attention of Daniel Frohman, and with his approval she initiated a new line of work, that of business manager for playwrights and for authors who had written successful novels with dramatic possibilities. Her office was to market the products of her clients' talents, to collect their royalties and generally protect their interests. In this field, as is well known, she eventually proved remarkably successful, her services being utilized by many English and French, as well as American authors.

Miss Marbury's war work, conducted under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus, is interestingly detailed, as are her later political activities during the last Presidential campaign, when sponsored by Tammany Hall, and accompanied by Gov. Smith, she appeared as a delegate at the San Francisco convention. Under the new ruling Miss Marbury was elected National Committeewoman of the State of New York. Her present interest is a concerted endeavor to bring about the repeal of the Prohibition Amendment, to which she is strongly opposed.

Miss Marbury is now 67, and tells her readers, who will doubtless be many, that "If your spirit keeps alive, if your brain remains, if your sympathies do not shrivel —then you will never know age; but remain young until the moment of the great passing."

ENCHANTED AISLES. By Alexander Woollcott. G. P. Putnam Sons, New York and London.

As a dramatic critic, Mr. Woollcott has a large and an enthusiastic following. He hasn't the lambent brilliancy of James Huneker, nor is he accustomed to startle and attract in the manner which we were accustomed once to attach to the name of Burns Mantle.

But as a sound and all-around critic of theatrical offerings, there are many willing to back Mr. Woollcott's judgment against the world. For instance, if we mistake not, Mr. Woollcott was among the first to see in Charles Chaplin something more than the buffoon. He also is not among the subsidized dramatic critics of New York and points west.

In this book, which he has given the felicitous title, "Enchanted Aisles," Mr. Woollcott has gathered together various newspaper and magazine contributions. These he bulks together under the subtitles of "Enthusiasms" and "Resentments." Among his "enthusiasms" are Bernhardt, Neysa McMein, Mr. Chaplin, Mrs. Fiske, Stephen Crane, Irving Berlin and John Drew. Yes, we will admit that some of these persons are not connected with the stage, but, then, Mr. Woollcott is something more than a dramatic critic.

Mr. Woollcott's "resentments" include Maeterlinck and the "cautious" and "helpful" drama. This proves both that he is a many-sided man and that he is not to be stampeded into an enthusiasm.

As an essay, we particularly like Mr. Woollcott's curtain offering, "De Senectute." In this he bids us inscribe the fact on his tombstone that: He never wrote the word "anent;" he never wrote, "so to speak," and that he wrote thousands of dramatic criticisms and never once used the word "personality."

THE STORY OF A GREAT SCHOOLMASTER. By H. G. Wells. The Macmillan Company, New York.

The schoolmaster, of whom H. G. Wells herein discourses with whole-hearted approval, is the late F. W. Sanderson, for many years headmaster of Oundle School. This school was a pre-Reformation foundation, a woman named Joan Wyatt having endowed it in 1485. In 1556 it was taken over by the London Grocers' Association, a sort of trade guild, whose master or governor, one William Laxton, left his private fortune to the association on the single condition that it should perpetually maintain a boys' school in his native town of Oundle.

To this school Sanderson was elected headmaster in 1892. Sanderson had previously presided over the department of sciences in Dulwich, and the Board of Grocers was moved to employ him for special reasons. One of these was, that they had somewhat belatedly discovered that the Germans were outdoing their own nation in the profitable application of technical science to manufactures for the reason that applied science had so prominent a place in the curriculum of their schools. Sanderson had long been a thorough-going advocate of such training. But unlike his biographer, he does not seem to have been an opponent of classical studies. Where he differed most widely from the ordinary pedagogue was in his fixed and reasoned desire to abolish individual competition, by means of training students to work in groups, and this newer, and, as he believed, more effective and more rational system, which, as Wells demonstrates, he later practiced in literature and art-study, was naturally initiated and thoroughly fostered by the method of laboratory teaching, "in which boys work to make something and to state something, not merely to gain something." His end was thus by degrees "to transform the life of the school . . . and when the boys thus trained grow into men they will transform the life of the nation and of the whole world."

The various ways in which this true teacher succeeded in replacing solitary by collective activity as applied to the fine arts as well as to the sciences, are briefly detailed. There is, or is to be, it appears, an "official life" of this educator, which will doubtless have a wide circulation among the less fossilized instructors of youth. The present book, says its author, is merely intended as a simplified—but luminous—"diagram."

THE PAGEANT OF GREECE. Edited by R. W. Livingstone. Oxford University Press, American Branch, New York.

A book of carefully made selections from the Greek writers in prose and poetry from Homer to Plutarch, made for those who know no Greek, but who realize the truth of what Mr. Livingstone offers as the reason for the book: "No education can be complete which ignores Hellenism."

In addition to the selections, there are enlightening historical, biographical and critical comments. As is stated in the preface, "Any one who reads these pages will not merely read famous or typical extracts from the great Greek writers, but will also follow in outline the most important part of that vast intellectual development which started with Homer and outlasted the Roman Empire."

A splendid introductory chapter points out the importance of the Greek contribution to letters and the arts and discusses the main characteristics of Greek literature. Anyone who spends even the briefest hour with this book will become convinced that it is no ordinary collection from the classics, but a scholarly arrangement of selections that reveal with peculiar aptness the best in each of the writers included. It is, thus, a stimulating book, well designed

THE MAGAZINES

The Bookman for April has for its opening article "Sex in Literature" by Dr. Joseph Collins, author of "The Docter Looks at Literature." But the reader who hopes to get any enlightment on the subject suggested by the title of the article is doomed to disappointment. Dr. Collins begins with a broadside against those who believe in literary censorship and then leaves this topic in midair while he laments the "publisher's cupidity" that causes him to overplay the salacious features of his books in order to attract public attention. With considerable agility he next leads us to a discussion of four recent French prize novels, now and then interjecting the statement that these are not novels that play up sex. He reminds one of a physician called to treat a case of smallpox who finds only a mild case of measles. Readable comment on current short stories, an article on Jeffery Farnol's gestes by Grant Overton, a continuation of Mary Austin's "Making the Most of Your Genius" and the editor's own very excellent literary notes and comments are other features. In the literary spotlight Burton Rascoe is revealed as a very human young man who stammers, "never quite finishes a sentence and trails off into vague non sequiturs."

The Century

Hilaire Belloc's startling discussion of a religious conflict brewing in the United States which will result in an entirely new American religion is the leading article in the April Century. It is followed by Robert Bruere's keen analysis of the giant-power idea, the electrification of the coal at the mines, which will make every man ask why he has had to dig down in his pockets to pay a heavy coal bill when the processes are already in existence which would make electricity available to all for heating except in the coldest months of the year. Glenn Frank points out, in a brilliant editorial, the large significance of the oil scandal. Esther Everett Lape gives the inside story of the Bok Peace Plan offer. H. W. Massingham describes the rise and personalities of England's overall government. "Millie" is one of the left-over stories by Katherine Mansfield. "Napolean Crosses the Rockies" is a delightful play by Percy MacKaye, rich in human interest of the Kentucky backwoods folk. Carl Van Doren amuses himself and his readers at the expense of certain overzealous Americans with "The Last Heretic," discovered in 1970.

Yale Review

In the April Yale Review Irving Fisher discusses Europe's debts, Agnes Repplier contributes an essay entitled "The American Laughs," Philo M. Buck tells what India wants, George Santayana presents what he calls a preface to a system of philosophy and Wilson Follett writes on perspective in criticism. Book reviews, letters and comment and other articles make up a rich number.

Theater Arts Monthly

The Theater Arts Monthly for April opens with an article entitled "From the Four Corners of American Art" by Kenneth Macgowan. Other articles treat of the Cleveland playhouse, an eighteenth century theater, and the nature and gifts of the actor. Scenes from "The Spook Sonata," "The Living Mask," "Paola and Francesca," "Treasure Island," "The Miracle" and from other plays give interest and variety to the number.

Our World

The story of Japanese progress in recovery since the great earthquake of last autumn and the growth of mutual interests and relations between Japan and America is told in the special Japan number of Our World for April. The magazine opens with a cable message from Keigo Kiyoura, Premier of Japan, to the American people. Prince Tokugawa, head of the Japanese Mission to the Washington Conference, contributes a short article on the aftermath of the conference and the bases of Japanese-American friendship. Mr. R. Ichinomiya, vice-president of the Yokohama Specie Bank contributes an important article entitled, "Japan's Recovery and Foreign Financial Aid." Charles A. Beard, who was called back to Japan to study the whole question of the rebuilding of Tokio, has written on progress and plans in regard to reconstruction there.

The Menorah Journal

The Menorah Journal for April, in its felicitous combination of present-day Jewish life and achivement with that of more remote times mirrors excellently the spirit of the Jew, at once "the oldest and the newest of the people of the world." The issue includes, for example, two beautiful are inserts: one is devoted to eight full-page reproductions of the Sarajevo Haggadah, that magnificently illuminated thirteenth century festal book which is perhaps the highest artistic ac-

THE FARMER'S TROUBLES

Herbert Quick Analyzes the Present Unsettled Conditions That Exist in Our Agricultural Communities and Suggests a Rather Strenuous Remedy

BY THOMAS F. FORD

THE REAL TROUBLE WITH THE FARMER. By Herbert Quick. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

That there is a large colored gentleman in our agricultural woodpile is so obvious that to say so seems trite. It is, therefore, no wild statement to suggest that if some effective measure of relief is not shortly afforded grave economic consequences will result.

This book is packed with facts that should, at least, make our statesmen or politicians, as you will, sit up and take notice. Mr. Quick is no mincer of words. He is no tyro in the assembling and marshaling of his facts. He is a trained journalist and an economic writer of considerable note. He is not merely a keen observer, he is a practical person who knows whereof he speaks, particularly in agricultural matters.

He predicates his belief in the gravity of the situation by quoting from an article in the New York Times which quotes Secretary of the Interior Wallace as having said of the owner farmers in fifteen of the corn and wheat-producing States, on an average of over 5 per cent had lost their farms through foreclosure or bankruptcy, while nearly 4 per cent had turned their farms over to their creditors without legal process, making a total of about 8.5 per cent. In addition, more than 15 per cent were in fact bankrupt, but were holding on through leniency of their creditors. This, Mr. Quick points out, make a total of over 23 per cent of the farmers in our fifteen richest States who are lost to farming except as tenants.

The laws which have been passed for the farmer's relief are reviewed, analyzed and criticised. Taxation, transportation, distribution, tenantry, valorization, diversification and co-operation are discussed. The Esch-Cummins Act is severely criticised, as are the tariff schedules of the Fordney Tariff Act. All the remedies so far suggested seem to Mr. Quick ineffective.

One factor in the farmer's troubles that is pretty generally admitted by all economists who have studied his problems is that he is under the handicap of buying the things he needs—his tools, his clothes and a good proportion of his food—in a protected market. His products, however, are sold at prices fixed in the world market where he has to compete with farmers of other countries who are producing on cheaper land, with cheaper labor and who receive for their porducts, dollars or pounds, as the case may be, that will buy the equivalent in their local markets.

It is commonly admitted that the American farmer sells his products on a prewar level of price and has to pay for what he needs on the present inflated basis. For instance, in 1913 two bushels of wheat would buy a fairly stout pair of work shoes. This same pair of shoes will cost the farmer from three to three and one-half bushels of wheat today. And so it goes all down the line.

Mr. Quick goes into the farmer's troubles deeply. He insists that the man who tills the soil is the victim of the railroad, the banker, the middleman, the politician and of every type of parasite that infests the body politic. He does not for one moment countenance the idea that the farmer may possibly be in anywise responsible for his present bankrupt state.

Mr. Quick's book is stimulating. It will stir up considerable controversy. It may help clarify the atmosphere and that is never a bad thing. Of course, only a small minority of the farmers or others, for that matter, will agree with Mr. Quick's conclusions. He believes that most of the farmer's troubles are due to the ever-increasing value of land. He thinks this value should be appropriated, not by the owners of the land, but by the community. He admits that such a course would work a hardship on many individuals. But, he argues, "so did the taking of slaves from their owners, the destroying of breweries and distilleries and saloon property without compensation." Society did this for its own protection. He thinks that the cheapening of land is a vital economic necessity and that the very life of the nation depends on this, for if we admit that agriculture is the basic industry, and that this industry is threatened with destruction, then strenuous measures are justified.

Those who read this book should also read Garet Garrett's article entitled "That Pain in Our Northwest" in the Saturday [illegible] Post of the 12th inst., [illegible] other angles of the [illegible] lemma are discussed. BOOKS FOR WRITERS

SAYONARA

by JOHN PARIS AUTHOR OF KIMONO

KIMONO was not only one of the most sensationally successful novels we have ever published, but also one of the most extensively and favorably reviewed. SAYONARA is a much better, a more dramatic and more skillfully told story, and a deeper and more significant study of Japanese life, customs and traditions. We predict for SAYONARA an enormous success. $2.00

"TIZ" FOR TIRED PUFFED-UP FE

The minute you put your feet in a "Tiz" bath you feel pain being drawn out and comfort just soaking in. How good your tired, swollen, burning feet feel. "Tiz" instantly draws out the poisonous exudations that puff up your feet and cause sore, inflamed, sweaty feet.

"Tiz," and only "Tiz," takes the pain and soreness out of corns, callouses and bunions. Get a box of "Tiz" at any drug or department store for a few cents. Your feet are never going to bother you any more. A whole year's foot comfort guaranteed.—[Advertisement.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract known the world over for its healing effect on membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Los Angeles.—"Ever since my childhood I have seen the remarkable results of Dr. Pierce's remedies when properly administered according to the directions. The Golden Medical Discovery' gave my brother a new lease on life after doctors had given him up. He had a terrible cough. We thought he had tuberculosis. That was twenty years ago and he is still living and in health. I have given Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to my own small children and it always relieves a bronchial cough and croupy condition. For my own part, I can truly say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his Anuric Tablets have done more for me for bearing pains and a catarrhal condition than any other medicines I have ever used. These are such thoroughly reliable remedies that I have no hesitancy whatever in giving them my highest endorsement." — Mrs. Emma Bornaschelly, 3904 Zamora St.

to make the alert reader ask for more.

This is a companion volume to "The Legacy of Greece," which contains essays by Gilbert Murray, W. R. Inge, J. Burnet, R. W. Livingstone, Arnold Toynbee, A. E. Zimmern and others. A similar volume from the Oxford University Press is entitled "The Legacy of Rome."

THE OUTLINE OF LITERATURE. A Plain Story Simply Told. Edited by John Drinkwater. Second Volume. J. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

The first thought that comes when one opens this book is in regard to its attractiveness in the matter of paper, type and general make-up. Then the wealth of illustrations fairly captivates one. There are over 160 of these, with such a sprinkling of full-page colored plates as to give joy to the beholder.

This second volume has fourteen chapters, beginning with one on Shakespeare by Harley Granville-Barker and ending with one on Byron, Shelley and Keats. John Drinkwater contributes an appreciative chapter on Milton. There are also chapters on Marvel and Walton, John Bunyan, the Restoration dramatists, the four stars of the reign of Queen Anne, the rise of the novel, the eighteenth-century poets, Edward Gibbon, Robert Burns and on Wordsworth and his contemporaries.

French literature of the age of Louis XIV and of the prerevolutionary age has two chapters, and there is one chapter devoted to Goethe, Schiller and Lessing.

This work is not intended for the specialist, but is a readable book for the layman who has forgotten his high school "lit" and for the young person in the house. A third volume is to follow.

THOSE WHO RETURN. By Maurice Level. Robert M. McBride & Co., New York.

If you have high blood pressure, fallen arches, or any of the other ills to which flesh is heir don't read this book. However, if you sleep well of nights and have a pretty taste for the macabre, Mr. Level's study of the psychology of madness may keep your mind off compound interest or how you are going to pay your income tax.

When the McBride concern issued Mr. Level's "Tales of Mystery and Horror," we thought that the ultimate had been reached in tales of the brutal and terrible; that, excepting one or two of the Russians, no man could keep enough of the ghastly pent up in himself to suffice for two such books.

But Mr. Level has out-Heroded Herod; he has created in "Those Who Return" a story in which all is reduced to one sombre pattern. We arise from a perusal of this book with a shudder, and look out, half expecting to see blood on the moon and evidence of the proverbial dirty work at the crossroads. Between Mr. Level and Harold Bell Wright, we prefer Mr. Wright. This is both a confession and a concession.

COME HOME. By Stella G. S. Perry. The Frederick S. Stokes Company, New York.

An odd story in which the author's aim is frankly to help people feel the romance and beauty of home. This is the heart of the book. As Flame, the heroine, lover of her home and the egrets which seek sanctuary about it, says, "That is what life is for—to keep nests safe." Mrs. Perry chose as a setting her own home, the bayou country of Southern Louisiana, the only place in America, in her opinion, where the Old South still persists. The home of the story, bravely defended by the heroines when financial misfortune threatens to take it from her, is a charming old plantation homestead, the original of which stands today on the Bayou Vermilion, not many miles from New Orleans, in the midst of water-oak, willow and cypress trees, vine-hung, with its rice fields about it and acres of beautiful, mysterious swamp-forests in which the egrets seek their nesting places. "Cureville" of the story is, in the main, Abbeville, La.

Not only is the background of the story genuine, but many of the characters are studies of living models. "Mr. Ned" is an unmistakable picture of Edward A. McIlhenny who is much in the public eye just now in connection with the club he is organizing on the Gulf Coast—the scenes of the story—for a great game preserve, for the safeguarding of wild life by vigorous hunting restrictions. It is chiefly to Mr. McIlhenny that Louisiana owns her great government sanctuaries which have kept the egrets from extinction. In the story, Mr. Ned is a champion of the egrets. His plantation, "Petite Anse" is on Avery Island and is the only old Spanish grant in the Gulf States that remains in the hands of the family to which it was granted.

"Judge Julien Le Boeuf" is really Judge Julian Mouton of the Louisiana State Court of Appeals, and is well known throughout the State for his courtesy, kindness, humor and justice. It was an ancestor of his who told Longfellow the original historic legend on which "Evangeline" was based. They say, in the district, by the way, that when Evangeline finally found Gabriel, she found him not faithful and dying, but very much alive and trailing a wife and eleven children. The native daughter of the parish who is responsible for this version of the story said, "Gabriel—and hees eleven little trompets; is it not?"

GOOD HUNTING. By Norman Davey. George H. Doran Company, New York.

"Good Hunting" is a tale of the lady head-hunters. It is dedicated by Mr. Davey, "in all humility, to 1,227,208 superfluous women." As Mr. Davey is an Englishman, we presume that the "superfluous" ones are all English. If there are any over here, we are not informed of the fact. But then, we are fat and forty, and of that rectitude in conversation that even cashiers in candy shops quail before our gaze.

Some years ago, Mr. Davey wrote a novel called "The Pilgrim of a Smile." We devoured it with eager haste, as did many others. It was a bright bit of sunshine in a naughty world. His second novel, "Guinea Girl," did not leave us exactly cold, but then, we had been excepting great things of Mr. Davey.

Now, we are just expecting great things, for "Good Hunting" is merely a rather trivial variation on the old theme that the female of the species is more deadly than the male. It is a tale of the chased and the chaste, with Julian Carr, a novelist, as the fair-haired hero.

We don't like him, though we do like some of the seven successive heroines whom Mr. Davey depicts as tracking Mr. Carr to his sachet-powder lair. In fact, we are for women, first, last and all the time, and Mr. Davey can take his immaculate hero and go chase himself.

NEW NOVEL BY FRANKAU

with food to tempt the gods. Wherever Gloria went, there was Freddie, ready and waiting, with footman, chauffeur, butler, valet or maid, as seemed most fitting to the occasion, ready to serve his carefully planned snack. But food for the soul he had none, though Gloria would not have known what to do with it, had it been offered.

Gloria at a house party given by an ancient and honorable family discovers that the heir, Norman Cartwright, impeccably well born but with estate encumbered, loves her. What is even more serious, she finds her own heart a-throb over Norman. But Mr. McKenna does not intend his Glory to make any such killing as Norman. Instead, he allows her own unstable and passionate nature to betray her, using the watchful Freddie as the means. Then he marries her instanter, though he has so settled things that there is little likelihood of Gloria's backing out of her bargain.

The disconsolate Norman thereupon makes a hasty marriage with an heiress, a lovely and sweet-natured young girl. With her money Norman's estates are disencumbered. Then we have the two young couples settling down as neighbors.

How Gloria and Freddie waged war, first upon each other, and then more subtly, upon their unsuspecting neighbors, and how in the end Freddie betrayed Norman's wife and Gloria felt herself vindicated for her own earlier fall, is told with Mr. McKenna's usual facility in a series of dramatic scenes.

That the story is a cynical but thoughtful picture of life in England today, or at least in that part of it where country houses bloom, may have become apparent from this review. There is a glitter in Stephen McKenna's world, as in his style. And his people are too tense, too hectic, too strenuously motivated, so that to read one of his novels leaves the effect of a vivid "bad" dream. But he has remarkable ability in flippant dialogue that well reveals his principal characters and he has a certain awareness as to the inner motives and spiritual turmoil that makes it not quite safe to shrug one's mental shoulders over his work. Some day he may free himself from the bright lights and the jazz and write the great novel that his admirers have so long been expecting from him.

At its worst "Vindication" is a far better novel than "Gerald Cranston's Lady" for it presents one phase of life with a hard and bitter truth and it permits the plot to evolve from the characters. And it maintains an attitude of unbiased calm on the part of the author that Mr. Frankau with his explanations, interjections and exhortations totally lacks. Even Mr. McKenna's satire is in the fabric and not added as fringe or beading.

NOCTURNE

If the deep wood is haunted, it is I
Who am the ghost; not the tall trees
Nor the white moonlight slanting down like rain
Filling the hollows with bright pools of silver.
A long train whistle serpentines round the hill
Now shrill, now far away.
Tell me, from what dark, smoky terminal,
What train sets out for yesterday;
Or, since our spirits take off and resume
Their flesh as travelers their cloaks, O, tell, tell me where,
In what age and what country you will come
That I may meet you there.
—[Robert Hillyer in The Dial.

Beauty

A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35c "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of delightful, refreshing "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair becomes.—[Advertisement.

complishment of the mediaeval Jew; the other presents the work of Anne Bremer, the California painter, probably the finest woman artist the United States has produced. "Waxen Ears," a story by the famous continental novelist, Max Brod, is a delicate rendering of a poignant phase of mediaeval life in the Prague ghetto; "The Seder," by the young Chicago writer, Meyer Levin, despicts dramatically the conflict between Jewish traditions and the everyday American environment.

The Forum

"Was Lenin a Failure?" is the question debated in the April number of the Forum, in two articles: "Lenin, the Destroyer," by Pitirim Sorokin, former professor of sociology at the University of Petrograd, and "The Greatest Man of Our Time," by Anna Louise Strong, a Quaker woman who spent two years in Russia on relief work. Constantin Stanislavsky gives vivid and amusing character studies of Rubinstein and Tolstoi in the third paper of his autobiographical series.

Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Henrik Shipstead and Governor Sweet of Colorado all contribute short articles on the farmers' problem, which is the fourth "campaign issue" discussed in The Forum's current series of political articles. The Washington disclosures are the subject of George Henry Payne's monthly essay. Margaret Munsterberg, daughter of the famous Harvard psychologist, discusses the modern religious movement from a new angle, in an article called "Twentieth Century Mediaevalism." This issue also contains further installment of Fannie Hurst's story "White Apes" Anne Douglas Sedgwick's novel, "The Little French Girl;" an analysis by Horace Green of the exact role played by Calvin Coolidge in the famous police strike in Boston; a description of the new mercury vapor process, by Mary Vanderpoel Hun; an ingenious peace plan conceived by Gustav Roos, Governor of Gotland, Sweden, described by Victor O. Freeburg in an article entitled "Insurance Against War."

A SOUTHERN NOVEL

FAY. By Edwin Baird. Edward J. Clode, New York.

Those who are seeking an exciting novel in which life, action and the alluring atmosphere of the South of today are convincingly blended will not be disappointed in this cameo of southern life from the pen of Edwin Baird.

The underlying purpose of the book is the depiction of the age-old struggle between love and ambition and the plot develops in intensity and suspense which culminates finally in a climax as dramatic as it is original and unexpected.

The heroine, Fay, is refreshingly "different." Excitement, joy and pathos chase each other across the pages in kaleidoscopic succession, and always there is the subtle touch of inimitable humor to relieve the tension of the most breathless situations. From the first line to the last the reader's interest is held fascinated by a narrative quivering with the pulse of human emotion and glowing in an atmosphere so true to southern life, that the author's skill in projecting it through the medium of the printed page compels admiration.

"Fay" is essentially a novel of youth. To those who are still treading the rosy paths of the romantic age, it will prove of absorbing interest; and to those others who gaze back regretfully to that period of life when the world wore magic illusions it may be cheerfully prescribed as a restorative as tonic in its effects as were the virtues attributed to the fabled founts of Ponce de Leon.

For those who are in search of something "different," something fragrant with romance and youth, keyed with exciting incident and vibrating with life and character, "Fay" is sincerely recommended.

MARSHAL SOUTH.

EASTER RAIN

I think the sap of every spray
Leaps to a hidden tune today,
Bursting in music green and gay;
For love is falling in the rain,
Drenching the world to life again,
Splashing through the April air,
Resurrection everywhere.

Oh, magic of the humble shower!
Cup bearer to the smallest flower!
Stooping to pour the gift divine
In living streams of dewy wine
Where honeysuckles leap and twine!
Holding the cup to thirsty leaves
Of hawthorne bush and dogwood trees,
While little birds in every lane
Sing "Love is falling in the rain!"

Oh, mystery, to bend so low,
That in a raindrop you might go!
Oh, love, so intimate and small,
The breath, the bloom, the gift of all!
The very heart of every heart,
The end, the middle and the start,
Above, below, within, without—
Oh, April blossoms, laugh and shout!
And soul, sing forth a high refrain,
Lifting a mad and happy strain,
For love is falling in the rain!
—[Margaret Prescott Montague in The North American Review.

BAGS BIG BIRD BOOK

When a man, otherwise unknown to fame, finds a pearl in his oyster soup, the accomplishment usually is looked upon by the public press of the verdant or evening variety as meriting six inches of type on the front page, with a three-column cut of the prettier of the two girls who were seated at an adjoining table when Dame Fortune deigned to smile on our modest, but happy, hero.

This being the case, how much more fitting is it that we should celebrate the finding in Glendale of that pearl beyond price, an elephant folio copy of Audubon's "Birds of America." True, 'tis the second of J. Bien & Co., American issue, but then even this issue, measured by the financial yardstick, makes anything other than a pearl of the purest ray serene appear a mere bauble in comparison.

Norman C. Holmes of the Holmes Book Company was the finder, which is merely another proof that one usually finds what one is looking for, for Mr. Holmes has a nose for rare books which has made it possible for him to indulge his fancy for choice uptown corners and government bonds.

The Glendale find includes the atlas of 106 double elephant plates of American birds, reproduced in colors on stone with slight but numerous changes from the original Edinburg copperplate issue, with the accompanying seven octavo volumes of text.

RECENT DOINGS AMONG WRITERS

Cosmo Hamilton, author of "Another Scandal," just republished by Little, Brown & Co., has the unique distinction of having been a highly successful play, motion picture and novel.

Meade Minnigerode, author of "The Fabulous Forties," which the Putnams published in March, is an American who has lived abroad a large part of his life and was educated in England and at Yale. His latest book is a study of America between 1930 and 1850 when Fanny Elssler, beloved of Napoleon's son, danced in New York, when Charles Dickens was given a gawdy reception, when P. T. Barnum, "King of Humbugs," was launching his career, and the pigs that roamed Broadway. The author came upon a wealth of material for this period while working on a novel laid in 1840.

A trio of plays by a man who is one of the youngest and most energetic of American playwrights, Lewis Beach, is brought out in three separate volumes by Little, Brown & Co.: "Ann Vroome," a play in seven scenes; "A Square Peg," which was produced in New York by the versatile and youthful manager, Guthrie McClintic; and "The Goose Hangs High," which is being played at the Bijou Theatre New York. This last play had the unique distinction of being the first to be chosen for production by the group of playwrights who have incorporated for the purpose of producing their own plays under the name of "The Dramatists' Theater, Inc.," despite the fact that Mr. Beach is not a member of this corporation.

"Town Planning and Town Development" is the title of a handsome book by S. D. Adshead which Duttons have published. The author's endeavor is to present the social, economic and administrative aspects of his subject in broad outlines, so as to make a solid foundation for further study. Such subjects as transportation, traffic requirements, road, zoning systems and principles receive ample attention and several examples are described of private initiative in town planning. Ordinances and conditions with regard to town planning in England, on the Continent and in America are reviewed and compared.

E. E. Slosson, who wrote "Creative Chemistry" and proved that a book of authentic scientific information can be made fascinating enough to get away up in the best seller class, is the author of a new book of popular science, which The Century Company publish. It is called "Chats on Science," and deals with all manner of subjects from star-dust to soda water.

Among the books published recently by Harcourt, Brace & Co. are the Wheatley edition of the "Diary of Samuel Pepys," republished in three volumes on India paper; Laurence Housman's "All Fellows and the Cloak of Friendship," illustrated with wood cuts by the author; "Oasis," by Gertrude Bone; "The Ku Klux Klan," by John M. Mecklin, professor of sociology, Dartmouth College; and an abridged edition of "Henry George's Progress and Poverty." The March publications of this firm include Giovanni Papini's autobiographical novel, "L'Uomo Finito," translated under the title of "The Failure;" Robert Herrick's new novel, "Waste Gold," by Jacob Wassermann, author of "The World's Illusion;" T. S. Stribling's "Red Sand;" Charles F. Brooks's "A Thread of English Road," and "Poems," by J. E. Springarn, author of "Creative Criticism," etc.

D. Appleton & Co. published in February no less than five volumes of verse. These include "The Home Road," by Martha Haskell Clark; "Collected Poems," by Stephen Gwynn; "Poems," by Camilla Doyle; "From the Song of France," an anthology edited by Grace Warrack, and a selection of Lord Byron's poems.

A volume which combines the arrangement of the popular "outline" books and the equally popular biographical methods is D. C. Somervell's "Critical Epochs in History," just published by Harcourt, Brace & Co. It is an outline of the development of political theory through a description of the characters and policies of Pericles, Caesar, Charlemagne, Innocent III, Richelieu, Washington, Hamilton, Napoleon, Bismarck and Gladstone.

Edna St. Vincent Millay's play in one act, "Aria Da Capo," has just been republished, this time under the Harper imprint, thus becoming uniform with her other works brought out by Harpers.

Dr. Sigmund Freud, the famous psychologist, has written from Vienna in enthusiasm over George F. Corners' book "Rejuvenation: How Steinach Makes People Young" (Seltzer.) Freud writes that he wishes some man could popularize the essentials of psychoanalysis as Corners has popularized the facts of rejuvenation. "I hope the book has such success that our friend, who has performed such high services for science, may have the means to continue his work," adds the distinguished psychoanalyst. A notable feature of Mr. Corners's book is that it reports Steinach's discoveries in Steinach's own words.

Jim Tully, who besides being one of Hollywood's motion-picture writers, is a novelist; has a new volume, "Tramp Days," published in January. Like Emmett Lawler, the author's first book, "Tramp-Days" is colored with the author's own experiences on the vagabond trail.

Under the title, "Studies in Idealism," Hugh I'Anson Fausset has written and the Duttons publish a series of essays in which he examines and discusses the different schools of English poetry, endeavoring to explain poetry in terms of reason and, as he says, "illustrate the principles which distinguish the true heirs of the imagination from the bastard offspring of sensationalism, sentimentalism and affectation and to trace in a general way the degree of creative consciousness to be found in English poetry at different periods and at different moments in the career of individual genius." Among the themes he considers are Idealism and Puritanism, the Emergence of Morality, the Religion of Poetry, Early Idealism in English Poetry, and the Modern Spirit.

TROUBLES OF THE FARMER

try, or to fix an arbitrary price for farm products. The farmer is not asking more credit to continue his operations at a loss. He is head-over-heels in debt now. More credit would simply make his load heavier. What he wants and must have is a market for his crops at a price that will give him cost of production and a fair profit.

"We need a government marketing corporation to find an outlet for our surplus farm commodities and stabilize the price of wheat and other agricultural products along sound and businesslike lines."

TRY ANYTHING ONCE!

"The radical experimenter, in literature or in life, will not tolerate fixed beliefs on the part of anyone."

In the February Century Henry Seidel Canby assails the "try anything once spirit" and the policy of experiment for experiment's sake in current literature. Speaking of this candid experimenter he says:

"He laughs at all certainty and condemns all principle. To be deductive, with him, is to be damned. The antipuritan thinks it a heinous sin to refrain from satisfying any strong desire or principle, or to subdue your ego instead of expanding it, or to refrain from leaving a wife you no longer besottedly adore. In a dozen recent books one is made to feel that you must not be too moral, must not control your passions, must not sacrifice yourself for others, must not love your neighbor, or even your family, one-quarter as much as yourself. And this is a corollary to a belief in unrestricted and all-important experiment.

"In due measure, experiment is the soul of creation, but in excess it is its mete and bound. The realists, like Zola, who trod eagerly upon the heels of nineteenth-century science, fuddled themselves with experiment. Their novels, like the books of the new school of American realists, were crowded with fact and minute description, never organized into lucid significance. We agree now that artistically they failed, even as we shall admit that the experimental pictures of Midwestern life now current will have their chief value in the future as materials for social history. Look for 'Main Street' in 1956 on the shelves devoted to the background of American history. And H. G. Wells, might not his novels be the publications of a very human laboratory for social, moral and mental research? Is he not now as much a research student (with an artist's technic) as when in his youth he practised biology in the University of London?"

UNPUBLISHED POE LETTERS

Probably the most interesting Poe letters that will come to light are those that appear in the March Century. These letters are to Judge Tucker of Virginia, and they throw considerable light on Poe's relations with White, the owner of the Southern Literary Messenger. White rescued Poe from a period of bitter poverty when he made him editor of the Messenger. In a little over a year Poe had made both the magazine and himself famous, but White, resenting Poe's lack of respect for his literary judgment discharged him. Following is an excerpt from one of Poe's first letters to Judge Tucker:

"Your opinion of 'The MS. found in a Bottle' is just. The tale was written some years ago, and was one among the first I ever wrote. I have met with no one, with the exception of yourself and P. P. Cooke of Winchester, whose judgment concerning these Tales I place any value upon. Generally, people praise extravagantly those of which I am ashamed, and pass in silence what I fancy to be praiseworthy. The last tale I wrote was 'Morella,' and it was my best. When I write again it will be something better than 'Morella.' At present, having no time upon my hands, from my editorial duties, I can write nothing worth reading. What articles I have published since 'Morella' were all written some time ago. I mention this to account for the 'mere physique' of the horrible which prevails in the 'MS. found in a Bottle.' I do not think I would be guilty of a similar absurdity now."

SLICES OF LIFE SKETCHED

LITTLE LIFE STORIES. By Sir Harry Johnston. The Macmillan Company, New York.

The twenty-one stories or sketches in this volume are as the title indicates, little stories or episodes that have the effect of being transcribed from life, with little literary embellishment. Not that they are baldy or badly told; on the contrary Sir Harry's bland and facile way with his pen has not deserted him here and he tells his tales with his usual competence. But he has taken no great pains to produce surprise, amazement or alarm in his readers, being content to write down what purports to be the facts without any rending of them in the interest of literature.

In his own quite inimitable way, then, our author tells the story of "The Pituary Gland," the cultivation of an interest in which lifted one noble lord out of straightened circumstances into the millionaire class, of the double life of Mr. Joseph Doubleday, of the love of two soldiers for a nurse, of the youth whose mother looked upon as the young messiah and of nearly a score of other interesting people. A good book to take with one on a journey or to pick up at odd moments.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

The following is a list of recent books from the Times-Mirror Press.

"Trousers and Skirts." Forty-three of Alma Whitaker's sensible but saucy essays.

"California Almanack, 1924." A boisterous book of fun. Rob Wagner turns his wit on Iowans, real estate promoters, Hollywood and even his beloved California itself.

"Fifty Years of Make-Believe." Frederick Warde's story of half a century of stage life. A record of great plays and great actors, by one who knew them well.

"The Fools of Shakespeare. An Interpretation of Their Wit, Wisdom and Personalities." By Frederick Warde, the distinguished actor.

"One Hundred Years of the Monroe Doctrine." By Dr. Robert G. Cleland. Enables the reader to understand the chief historical developments of one of the most important and far-reaching factors in all our national life.

"The Elfin Forest." Francis M. Fultz, naturalist and lecturer, tells the story of the chaparral, entertainingly and with authority.

VARIED ESSAYS

"London is statelier, more magnificent than it used to be, but what it has gained in splendor it has lost in homeliness and in picturesqueness."—A. St. John Adcock.

"Peace, labor and content—three very good words, and summing up, perhaps, the goal of all mankind."—Hilaire Belloc.

"A man's life is of many flashing moments and yet one stream; a nation's flows through all its citizens and yet is more than they."—Rupert Brooke.

"He was just that mixture of ragamuffin and of genius which is dear to the heart of woman, who, perhaps because she is wholly conventional herself, loves the unexpected, the crooked, the bewildering."—W. B. Yeats.

"To fight is a radical instinct, if men have nothing else to fight over they will fight because they dislike each other's looks, or because they have met walking in opposite directions."—George Santayana.

"Not only is a detective story a perfectly legitimate form of art, but it has certain definite and real advantages as an agent of the public weal."—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

"The function of criticism is, therefore, primarily the function of literature itself, to provide a means of self-expression for the critic."—J. Middleton Murry.

INHIBITION

I live a hidden life unguessed,
A life of quaint, fantastic schemes;
I dwell with flushed, romantic dreams
And freakish humors unconfessed.

Though I can show the world a mien
As cold as any judge's mask
(The judge, too, lives beyond his task
And traffics with a realm unseen) . . .

Behind the placid front of use
The baffled whims move to and fro;
We fear to let these genii go,
Their wings grotesque we dare not loose,

But sober-faced in church or mart,
In office, street or drawing-room,
We carry caged to the tomb,
The golden nonsense of the heart.

SINGLE POEMS THAT LIVE

FAMOUS SINGLE POEMS. By Burton E. Stevenson. Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York.

An odd collection of poems is this. Mr. Stevenson has gone to no little trouble in gathering the facts in regard to their authorship and history and has told the story of each poem with a verve that some may think worthy of a better cause. But the interest is in the telling, if not always in the subject.

Among the selections included, with rich and varied commentary, are "There Is No Death," "Kaiser & Co.," "A Visit from St. Nicholas," "There Is No Unbelief," "Casey at the Bat," "If I Should Die Tonight," "Waiting," "Ben Bolt" and "Beautiful Snow." Others are entitled "Nothing to Wear," "Solitude," "Rock Me to Sleep," "The Lesson of the Water Mill," "Derelict" and "What My Lover Said."

Alkali In Soap Bad For the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls is sufficient to cleanse your hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store; it is inexpensive and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—[Advertisement.

CANCER GERM IN SCIENCE BONDS

Isolation Made and Serum Foe Discovered

American Medical Society to Get Proofs

Patients at Public Clinics to be Treated Free

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

OMAHA, April 9.—The cancer germ has been located and isolated, and a serum which will destroy it has been found. The official announcement of the discovery is to be made this month before representatives of the American Medical Association in New York City. The announcement will be accompanied by demonstrations.

A premature announcement of the discovery was made in Omaha some days ago, with the result that the cure, which was being used in St. Joseph's hospital clinics in Omaha, has been taken from the clinic as a punishment and is not to be restored until after the official announcement is made to the American Medical Association.

A Canadian doctor, working in connection with Dr. M. J. Scott, of Butte, Mont., formerly of Omaha, made the discovery. This Canadian physician's name is being kept secret but will be announced to the medical association when the proof of the discovery is made public.

FREE TREATMENT

Already clinics have been established in several cities but all publicity is being shunned. To these clinics the cancer cure is supplied free, with the proviso that such patients as are treated, shall be treated without price. No charge for the medicine is made to the hospital and none to the public. Dr. Scott has been establishing these clinics and has given the necessary instruction for treatment to the physicians attached to these hospitals. It was in this connection that Dr. Scott was in Omaha last week and superintended the cancer clinic at St. Joseph's hospital.

The serum, Dr. Scott told the staff meeting at St. Joseph's hospital, will not cure cases where the disease has progressed to the extent that it has destroyed vital organs. He did say, however, that with a large number of patients, where the serum was used, the tumors completely disappeared and the patients are now absolutely free of cancer.

DISCOVERER TALKS

"Just as certain as we are that the typhoid germ is the germ that causes typhoid, just as certain as we are that the diphtheria germ is the germ that causes diphtheria, just so certain are we that the germ we have isolated causes cancer," Dr. Scott told the assembled physicians.

Describing methods used in research, and following the recognized and necessary methods demanded by the American Medical Association to prove the existence and actual isolation of the germ, Dr. Scott told of taking the germ, innoculating it into animals free from cancer, watching the cancer develop, removing this cancer, again isolating the germ and growing it in cultures again.

"We have been able to isolate this same bug in every case of cancer that has come under our observation" said Dr. Scott.

In most of the cases of men and women they have treated for cancer, they removed a part of the tumor and sent sections of it to recognized and high class laboratories in widely separated parts of the country for diagnosis, to establish, beyond doubt, the actual existence of the cancer.

CLINICS ESTABLISHED

In the case of a man with cancer of the lip, sections of the cancer were removed and sent to six laboratories in different parts of the country where, unknown to each other, diagnosis of the specimen was made, and was positive as cancer in each. The cancer was then cured immediately.

Secret clinics have been established in seven cities and in these observation work is being carried forward. Omaha was the eighth city but the clinic here was discontinued because of the "leak."

Dr. Scott is warning cancer victims against trying to get into these clinics for treatment until the formal announcement is made before the American Medical Association. At that time the location of these clinics will be announced. No charge will be made for the serum, neither to the clinics nor to the public.

BOOKS AND BLUNDERS IN THE LIBRARY

Librarians and clerks in bookstores have to cultivate their wits as well as a knowledge of literature if they are to serve successfully many of their forgetful or muddle-headed patrons, who ask for queer things.

Not long ago a determined lady made the round of the Boston bookstores inquiring for something that sounded like "My-less-tonees." In one place they thought she meant a disease; in another—probably with Miltiades in mind—they thought she meant some ancient Greek or Roman general. But the book was to be found neither under medicine nor under history. Finally the exasperated lady discovered it on a counter, and it was the play, "Milestones!"

At another Boston bookstore a small boy wanted Ida's dog book. No, not Ida anybody—it wasn't a lady—but Mr. Ida that wrote the book he wanted. He thought it was Mr. O. U. Ida. He was quickly supplied with Ouida's "Dog of Flanders."

That was an easy guess. It is harder when the error is one of analogy or phraseology, when by a natural mental twist the purchaser asks for something very much like what he wants. A customer was baffled for some time in his search for a novel entitled the "Next Turn," though he insisted that it was recent and popular, until a clever clerk suggested "The Kingdom Round the Corner," and that was it. "India on the March" is asked for as "Keeping Step with India" and "Marching in India." An insistent person who wanted "Noyes's Book on Astronomy" was at last very dubiously offered instead Mr. Alfred Noyes's poems and pounced triumphantly upon "Watches of the Sky." Another who wanted "Let's Talk About It," by Gibbons, was satisfied to accept "Now It Can Be Told" by Sir Philip Gibbs.

All the mistakes are not on the side of the purchaser and reader, however. It is not his fault when "Leaves of the Grass" gets tucked upon the shelves with botanical treatises, as happened the other day; nor when, as librarians whisper has happened at times, Poe's "Gold Bug" and the "Pit and the Pendulum" are classified respectively under entomology and horology; Henry James's "Portrait of a Lady" under art; Miss Temple Bailey's "The Trumpeter Swan" under ornithology, and—with a complimentary optimism that the sex should appreciate—Sir James Barrie's charming play "What Every Woman Knows" under domestic science!—[Youth's Companion.

Knocked Out by Tennis Ball

"Zeekoe," a big hippopotamus at the Cincinnati Zoo, has a skin that will turn a bullet, but the animal was recently killed by a tennis ball. The animal had acquired the habit of opening its mouth for the reception of peanuts and like dainties hurled through the bars of his cage and some time ago some thoughtless person took a shot at the cavernous opening with a tennis ball. The animal swallowed it easily, but the ball interfered with the operation of its stomach and for four days it suffered intense agonies and finally died. The attendants of the institution were at a loss to treat the animal for lack of information of the subject. The nature of the animal's complaint was not definitely known until revealed by the postmortem examination.

TOURIST GUIDES AVOID MUNICH

City Marked as Good Place to Shun on Tour

Imposition of Tax on Alien Visitor Protested

Traffic Club Asks Repeal of Old Police Rules

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

MUNICH, April 19. — Rubberneck guides, postcard dealers and hotelkeepers are in a state of upheaval because Munich, once a sightseers' paradise, is at present marked on the tourists' map as a good place to avoid. Representatives from the local Tourists' Traffic Club invaded a recent meeting at the City Council with the demand that the archaic police regulations be toned down, that the tourist taxes be pitched into the river, and that a committee be formed to woo back the vanished visitors.

Their outcry caused the Council to bring out the city's ledgers to prove that things were not as bad as they had been, for the former residence tax, amounting to 40 per cent of the visitors' lodging cost had been cut in half recently. In addition instead of paying one gold mark a day (about twenty-five cents) the charge for police permission now was only a mark for the first three days, and not more than eight marks for an eight weeks' stay.

Another mitigation in the Munich tax misery was the recent abandonment of the opera and theater tariff for foreigners, which at times had been more than tenfold the entrance fee charged natives.

WANT MORE REFORMS

The members of the association for the benefit of tourists agreed that these reforms were welcome and would be a strong drawing-card to bring the lovers of Wagner and Schiller back to their old stamping-ground, but that other reforms must come before Munich could be brought back to its old rank as the most care-free and artistic of German cities, with a yearly inflow of visitors with guide-books in hand.

"Heavy taxation and the cold shoulder may have been legitimate during the hard times when the mark tobogganed overnight, and the country was strained to feed its own population. Now, however, since we have the new, stabilized currency, we don't want to see our tourists detour to Italy, France or Switzerland," insisted the hotelkeepers.

Statisticians for the association had toiled over a report showing that last year only a brave handful had weathered the storm of night visits by the police, taxes on every side, and the general antipathy of the man on the street for anyone not Bavarian born. The complainers didn't hesitate to tell the Council that Munich has the most disagreeable police regulations of any Central European city. Also, that the cost of touring is much lower in Switzerland, France and Italy, that Bavarian trains loiter temperamentally along the way, with extraordinarily high fares and that finally it would be an eccentric tourist, anyway, who could have a good time after he got there.

SIX WORST ORDEALS

The six worst ordeals listed by the association as calculated to take the joy out of life for any foreigner who at present parks overnight in the city were:

Regulation that every visitor register at the police station the moment he arrives, to be told there perhaps that he may stay only two weeks.

The calaboose sentence that awaits anyone who hasn't permission to stay in Bavaria, or who misses his train and doesn't leave town at the end of his alloted time.

Special taxes at every turn, including a double fee for a bath in the city bathhouses.

Midnight or dawn visits by the police to the rooms of trembling travelers to see that passports and Bavarian residence permission are in order.

The custom of extracting from foreign students in the University of Munich a tuition fee exactly thirty times that required from a German. A 12 o'clock curfew and a verbot on dancing.

An Adequate Reason

"How long were you in your last place?"

"Ten years."

"Why did you leave?"

"I was discharged."

"Didn't you give satisfaction?"

"Yes, ma'am. That's why they discharged me."

"What for?"

"I asked a gentleman's pardon."

"They let you go because you asked his pardon?"

"Yes, ma'am. He was the Governor."—[Kansas City Star.

OPERATORS IN BOMBAY SPEAK SIX LAUNGUAGES

Bombay, the great seaport of the west coast of India, is perhaps the most cosmopolitan city in the whole vast Indian Empire. English, Portuguese, French, natives of India, Chinese and Japanese swarm about the great bazaars, along the docks and among the cotton mills for which Bombay is famous. Christian, Mohammedan, Hindu, Parsee and Sikh meet for trade in this great center of eastern commerce. Many languages and more dialects are spoken on Bombay's broad streets and splendid quays.

Anyone who serves the general public in this polyglot metropolis must, therefore, necessarily be something of a linguist; and this applies especially to the telephone operators who work at the switchboards of the local telephone system. All telephone operators in Bombay, it is said, must be able to speak, in addition to their native language, not only English, but French, Arabic, Chinese and Japanese as well.—[Telephone Press.

COSTS A LOT TO BE CLEAN

Tubs a Luxury in Munich, so City Finally Cuts Cost of Public Baths for Sanitary Purposes

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

MUNICH, April 19.—Startled because statistics showed that roughly speaking, everybody in Munich had only one bath and a half last year, the municipal bath managers have lowered the cost of bathing in their white tile palaces of sanitation and hygiene.

A gallon of hot water has joined the luxury rank in Germany, and a steaming tubful at home is profligacy. The Munich burghers, with the high price of coal and gas against them, long ago gave up the struggle to heat the bathrooms in their own homes, so those who would bathe must visit the city baths.

FEW BATHTUBS

Few of the older houses here ever boasted such a modern contrivance as a bathtub, and in many cases where there had been one the landlord stored it in the cellar to await better times and turned the room into sleeping quarters. Both the housing shortage and the exorbitant cost of heating materials worked to make the family bathroom obsolete.

The spacious white and red tiled municipal baths provided a pleasant alternative until the beginning of last year, when the mark began its record-making bad behavior. Whole families turned out on Saturday with bundles of soap and towels, headed either for the big central bath, which is one of the city's showplaces, or for a neighborhood branch. The inevitable family dog came in for his share in a fine private swim bath, with hot water and attendants provided.

With the coming of spring prices soared and a bath became a real luxury. Few could rake up the paper money to pay for it. Last summer the public natatoriums in the parks were a mecca for those who couldn't enter the municipal baths. To be in readiness for the coming summer rush, plans recently were set afoot by the Free Swim Verein to build a pool on the banks of the Isar in Hersogpark.

A petition was presented the City Council, but the building committee of that organization vetoed it on the ground that such a project would ruin the Munich landscape. Rather would they lower the entrance fee to the municipal houses than see the scenery marred, they said.

FEE IS SLASHED

Accordingly, they cut in two the price of the luxury for children and dogs; brought down considerably the fee on showers and swim baths for adults, and announced they would think over what to do to make tub-baths cheaper.

Since the price cutting, a swim or shower-bath costs fifty pfennigs, or approximately fifteen cents, with a double charge for foreigners. Last August, during the peak of the bathing season but when the long shining halls of the big Folks Bath echoed only to an occasional footfall, a charge equivalent to fifty cents was extracted from visiting tourists.

The Safety Zone in Mattresses

STARTLING conditions of quantities of bedding being bought and sold throughout the country are too gruesome to be related in detail, but are sufficient to justify a "clean-up" campaign in which the Better Bedding Alliance of America and the Better Business Bureaus throughout the country are co-operating.

Without reciting too many unpleasantries, it should be stated that hundreds of thousands of tons of old mattresses—discards from public and private dwellings—as well as other unwholesome material harboring generating of germs, are continually being worked over and finding their way back into unsuspecting households under the superficial disguise of attractive art ticking.

See the Inside as well as the Outside of Your Mattress

IF every purchaser would insist on seeing a true sample of the contents of any Mattress he or she intends to buy, it is certain the situation would speedily change.

One of the services offered by Barker Bros.' Scientific Sleeping Equipment Department, is to show actual contents of the Mattresses sold. This feature is important in meeting the individual requirements of customers, which are also explained by our experts.

Customers are cordially invited to visit our factory and see the process by which these Mattresses are built.

How To Determine Quality

THE terms "Felt"—"Linters" or "Cotton," applied to mattress fillings, mean nothing in themselves. Only as they truthfully describe worthy or unworthy material are they significant.

"Linters" applies to the lint cut from cotton seed. It varies in grade from 35 to 150 pounds cut to the ton of seed. All of these grades find their way into mattresses, although only the lighter cuttings (up to 75 lbs. to the ton), really have sufficient fibre to hold together.

The finer stuff is sure to lump and bunch together. Barker Bros. Mattresses are guaranteed to contain only Linters with enough staple to prevent this bunching, and to be pure and clean throughout—even in the cheapest pad we make.

"Staple Cotton" is another ambiguous term, for often it is good only for cloth. The particular kind, however, grown under the right soil and climatic conditions to give it great buoyancy and splendid wearing qualities, is ideal for mattresses. Our experts can explain "Staple Cotton" of this type at greater length.

"Floss" or Kapock, is also of many grades—only the prime quality being used in our products. A special new process of air separation which keeps the fibres intact (and is used on the Pacific Coast only by Barker Bros.) is proving wonderfully successful. Incidentally, our Floss Mattresses are no more expensive than others.

SALESMAN

BIG MONEY-MAKING

DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN.

See that YOUR feet are set in the pathway of prosperity. Get in on it this time. You remember the colored hobo who, hearing the noon-day whistle, sighed: "Dat's dinner time to some folks, but it's only twelve o'clock to me." After all, there isn't much difference between success and failure—sometimes it's only a question of taking advantage of an offered opportunity. YOUR opportunity confronts you right now. How shall I make you seize it? If we could have a man-to-man chat together for a few minutes, it would all be clear to you and you'd realize that all that was needed to start you on a career of real prosperity were a few suggestions and an opportunity to make good. No, it isn't the "same old thing;" it's an entirely new thing and done in a entirely new and dignified way. I am selling a security—a high-class industrial, but it does not require previous selling experience. All that you need is the ability to tell the truth. You will come in contact only with high-class men to whom the only thing that appeals is TRUTH. The amount of money being made by members of our staff, in commissions, right now is more than you would believe possible. But the men are here and their records, too, are here for you to see. They are not super-men; they are just "regular fellows" like you and me. And what they are doing you CAN DO. If you'd like to be your own boss, become a real specialist in your own line, conduct your business under the most dignified auspices and in the most pleasant surroundings, I think I can put you in the $20,000 a year class in a short time. Be kind to yourself and call on me

MONDAY, 2 P.M. SHARP.

W. D. CHESMAN,
10th Floor, Commercial Exchange Bldg.
8th and Olive Streets.

DO you want to become a salesman? Salesmen of ability always command highest compensation; we are a big business house that prefers training its own salesmen; our men make from $350 to $1000 a month. Why remain inactive while others are getting rich? Why remain a slave when you can become a master? Why be a failure when success is easily within your reach? Why deny yourself while others are enjoying themselves? Why take less than you rightfully deserve of life, prosperity and pleasure? These things are possible without cost to you if you are honest and determined. In your answer kindly advise what you have been doing for the past five years, that your application may be given proper consideration. Address L, box 290, TIMES OFFICE.

BRAIN POWER!—
A local banker when asked the other day if things were getting quiet; if trade was slacking up; if, in short, hard times were in sight, said: "It's not hard times coming, neighbor, 'tis soft times going." That hits the nail on the head for you, Mr. Salesman. The days of soft snap have passed. From now on you will have to dig. Surely the time has arrived for you to properly equip yourself and to better your selling ability. It will mean more business, more money, and a happier future to you. STARTING MONDAY, APRIL 21ST, AT 10 A.M. a practical course in salesmanship will be given. The course will be short; but, intensive. After you have gone through it, you will be able to sell, unless you are dumb. Under ordinary circumstances we should charge $100 for this course and it would be cheap at 10 times that amount. We are offering it entirely free. If you are the right person we shall secure you a position that will pay you well. Ladies are welcome; also, men who have never sold anything, but would like to sell. Why not attend the first class on Monday! You will be one of the crowd, and no one will bother you. You can make up your mind whether you desire to enroll your name for the entire course. Remember this course costs you nothing, and we secure you a position for which we want only your thanks. Is that thorough. All right, come to 1002 LANE MORTGAGE BLDG., 8th and Spring, Monday, April 21st, at 9:45 a.m.

Clothing, Furs, Etc

LADIES, figure it out yourself; your appearance means much. There are two important things to consider, one is the clothes you get for your money, and the other the money you pay for your clothes; you'll find the suit you want at almost the price you want to pay; dresses that sell themselves to you; they are good for the money; coats and capes; lots of hats, plenty of shoes and some sweaters, blouses, skirts and furs; if you didn't get an outfit for this Sunday let us help you dress up for next; nothing over $20 except for trimmed evening gowns.

PEERLESS USED CAR DEPT.

ADVANCED SALE OF HIGH GRADE USED CARS.

THE PEERLESS FACTORY ADVISED US BY WIRE TODAY THAT 25 CARLOADS OF THE NEW PEERLESS 8'S ARE ON THEIR WAY TO CALIFORNIA, AND THIS MEANS THAT WE WILL BE MAKING DELIVERIES ON THE NEW "8'S" WITHIN THE NEXT 10 DAYS. AT THE PRESENT WRITING WE HAVE ENOUGH UNFILLED ORDERS THAT WILL ABSORB THESE 25 CARLOADS IMMEDIATELY. CONSEQUENTLY THE USED CAR DEPT. MUST CLEAR THE DECKS FOR THE GREAT NUMBER OF USED CARS BEING TRADED IN ON THE NEW 8'S.

WE ANTICIPATED THIS SALE FOR APPROXIMATELY JUNE 1ST, BUT THE INCREASED PRODUCTION AT THE FACTORY ON THE NEW "8" HAS MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR YOU TO PARTICIPATE IN THIS GIGANTIC SALE OF HIGH GRADE USED CARS ABOUT FORTY DAYS AHEAD OF TIME.

OVER $100,000 WORTH OF USED CARS IN THIS SALE, RANGING IN PRICE FROM $95 TO $3500. ROADSTERS TO LIMOUSINES.

WITHOUT FEAR OF CONTRADICTION, THIS IS THE MOST GIGANTIC PRICE-SLASHING SALE OF USED CARS EVER OFFERED TO THE PUBLIC IN CALIFORNIA.

CAUTION

When salesmen try to make you believe that the used car they are selling you is absolutely perfect, then start running. No used car is perfect. Any sensible buyer knows that. Here is what I am trying to put across. Bozzani brothers—isn't it worth something to you to be able to get a clean, honest-to-goodness lowdown description on what you are buying? And at the same time save some money? We never sell junk—we burn it. We are now holding a spring clearance sale—don't you at least come and look them over?

WORMS HAVE BRAINS

We are not apt to give an earth worm credit for much brain power, but it has been proven that they have brains. But contrary to the general rule the brains are not in the head but scattered in the abdomen. That is why the two parts of a worm that has been severed will act in the same manner. A scientist abroad has announced this discovery as the result of experience with a collection of worms some 500 in number. They were introduced into a passage shaped like a capital T and carved from a block of wood which was covered with a glass plate so that the movements of the little creatures might be observed. When they came to the junction about half of them turned one way and half the other.

Then it was arranged so that those that took the left-hand passage received a mild but presumably disagreeable electric shock. At first the worms did not know just what to make of all this, but after they had all been through the experience about 200 times, they nearly all were converted to "safety-first" and took the right-hand turn. When the electrodes were then removed to the right-hand passage they learned to shift to the other after only sixty-five passages, evidently showing more aptitude.

BLOOMS BY THE CARTLOAD

The manufacture of scents is closely interwoven with the growing of flowers in huge quantities. The center of the French industry is in the little town of Grasse, tucked away in the Alps Maritimes, and surrounded by garden upon garden as far as the eye can see. These gardens contain every imaginable flower for the making of scents. Hundreds of women are employed as "pickers" and day by day heavy cartloads of jasmine, orange blossoms, lilac, roses or violets, according to their season, are conveyed to the busy factory.

It is of first importance that the perfume should be extracted the day the flower is cut. The next day, and it is too late: the precious fragrance, "Ah whence and whither flown again— who knows?"

Englishman Forgets Past to Live in South Seas

Shrewd Trader Wins Wealth by Shark Teeth Deal

Queer Characters Are Found in Far-Away Islands

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LATOKA (Fiji Islands) April 10.—Commercialism of curious kinds is often found in some of the remote South Sea Islands, according to Capt. Wells Hunter, master of a tramp trading schooner which put in at Latoka the other day. For fifty years Capt. Hunter has been sailing from island to island picking up, here and there, little stores of copra, mother of pearl, beche-de-mer, cocoa, vanilla and other products. He has a record for square dealing that has won for him the friendship of many native chiefs and white men, and on his return voyages to Sydney, Melbourne, Batavia or Singapore, he usually carries a full cargo of articles that are saleable, it is stated.

"Calicos and trinkets are still in demand among some of the native islanders where civilization has not yet penetrated to any great degree," Capt. Hunter said, "but the time has passed when these cheap articles may be depended upon almost exclusively for trading purposes. It is now necessary to carry serviceable hardware, canned goods and articles of practical utility, which can be used by the natives in order to do a brisk and satisfactory amount of trading. Then there is a class of keen white traders now found in nearly every inhabitable spot in the South Seas who have, to a large extent, taken over the business which was formerly exclusively in the hands of the native chiefs.

OXFORD HERMIT

"Living in a little beach village on one of the islands of the New Hebrides is an Englishman who is an Oxford graduate. When he came out of college forty-five years ago, his father sent him on a sailing ship that was making a voyage to China. It was to be sort of a finishing course in the education of the young man before he settled down to the routine of an English gentleman at home. This ship was struck by a storm off the shore of the island where the man now makes his home. He was the only one who came out alive. Natives rescued him from the boiling surf and he was taken before the chief.

"Although cannibalism was common among the people of the island they did not put the English youth in the pot. Months and years passed and no vessel from the outside world came to the remote island. The young Englishman adopted the ways of the natives in many respects, married a daughter of the chief and settled down there for a lifetime stay. My first visit to that island village was about twenty-five years ago. The Oxford man had by that time relaxed into a humdrum existence, but on the whole he seemed to be enjoying life. He had a number of children by his native wife, who at middle-age was repulsive in her ugliness. The man was glad to see me and when I left he asked me to bring him certain books and a photograph outfit when I next came that way. I did so and he was so pleased that he induced the chief to give me an exclusive trading concession for the products of the island, and I hold this valuable favor to this good day. It was not until a few years ago that this Englishman told me the story of his life. If I were to give his family name it would be readily recognized almost anywhere. During all these years he has never communicated in any way with his people at home. They mourn him as dead."

Capt. Hunter asserted that the use of native currency of unique kinds is still a common practice in some of the out-of-the-way islands. Pigs are still in demand for trading purposes between natives in many of the South Sea groups.

"An enterprising American by the name of Grogan has upset the economic life of the island of Malaita," Capt. Hunter continued. "It seems that this man Grogan had come up to Malaita from Sydney a few months ago. He stopped off intending to stay over until the next trading schooner put in there. He soon discovered that the most prized currency of the natives was the teeth of porpoises. Once a year there is a great drive for porpoises organized and there is great rivalry between the natives in this commercial venture. The young men are especially interested in the result of the drive for the reason that the more porpoise teeth they gather the more wives they may buy.

"The American sensed the commercial possibilities of the situation. He called a meeting of a few of the more active and energetic young natives and organized a company to which he gave a high sounding name. This company was granted a special concession by the chief on a percentage basis of all the porpoise teeth obtained in the drive. For every five teeth taken, one was to go to the chief. On the day appointed for the drive a dozen or so outrigged boats from the neighboring island of Ysabel arrived, loaded to the guards with natives, who had been employed by Grogan to assist the members of his company in making the drive. Notwithstanding the loud protest which was made by the scores of young men of Malaita who found themselves debarred from the annual porpoise hunt and therefore destined to remain wifeless for another year, the chief stood by his contract with Grogan and the big drive took place. It resulted in a record-breaking catch, more than eight-hundred porpoises being driven into the shallow water and slaughtered. Grogan became a porpoise-teeth magnate in a few short hours, while the other members of his corporation acquired such a wealth of the currency that they were able to pick as many girls for wives as they chose and to have the choice of selections.

ANOTHER SUCCESS

"From Malaita Grogan went to the island of Ntendi or Santa Cruz, as it is known on the chart. He found there that the native currency of the most purchasing power is the red-feathered skin that comes from the head of a beautiful bird, and that this 'money' is used chiefly for the purchase of girls for wives by the young men of the island. He found that the method used for capturing the birds was to place a glue made from excretion found in mussel shells in the haunts of the birds. When they alighted on the glue their feet were held fast and they were easily taken. Grogan exercised his ingenuity, however, and contrived a trap by which means he captured the birds by wholesale. In a short time he was in possession of more of this feather skin currency than all the natives on the island put together."

PARIS PALACE TO BE RAZED

Famous Dufayel Mansion and Grounds Sold for Site of Magnificent Theater Building

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

PARIS, April 19.—One of the largest post-war Paris real estate deals now in process of completion will serve the double purpose of destroying the famous Dufayel mansion in the Champs Elysees and constructing an arcaded street that will be a brand new edition of the famous Rue de la Paix.

The Dufayel property, which adjoins Claride's Hotel, is one of the modern landmarks of Paris. It is a veritable palace built by one of France's most conspicuous self-made millionaires, the late M. Dufayel, who gained his fortune with a chain of furniture stores. He built "not wisely, but too well." His mansion proved to be a white elephant to his estate and has been closed since the Peace Conference, when it served to house the foreign press. Its dining room, with walls and ceiling of Italian marble, easily seats 500 persons. At one end of the room there is a hydraulic stage by which the great room can be converted into a theater at a moment's notice. Behind its footlights the most famous actors in France used to give performances especially for the benefit of M. Dufayel's dinner guests.

This magnificent property has been purchased by the "Pearl King," Leonard Rosenthal, for the sum of 14,000,000 francs. M. Rosenthal intends to demolish the structure. His announced plans for the site include "one of the largest theaters in Paris to be built in the cellars of the Dufayel mansion," and an arcaded street built through from the Champ Elysees to the Rue de Ponthieu. If M. Rosenthal's efforts are realized this street will be the center of the jewel and fashion trade of Paris.

An enormous restaurant will also be built on a part of the property, and perhaps a fine hotel.

BORDER DISPUTE RENDS IRELAND

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

DUBLIN, March 29.—Though housing schemes and projects for the relief of the unemployed continue to occupy the attention of the Free State Executive, who also is wrestling with the matter of high living costs, the boundary question remains menacingly in the wings of the political stage. The North-East Ulster border furnishes the livest issue in Irish politics, and the fact that prospects of an early settlement are far from glowing renders the outlook all the more serious.

The future control of Tyrone and Fermanagh, which, even in the recent election, voted for inclusion in the Free State, furnishes the real bone of contention. Nobody here doubts that President Cosgrave and his Cabinet are leaving no stone unturned to effect an understanding, but the idea obtains that if a delimitation of the frontier is to be effected the British government will have to adopt a firmer attitude toward the Belfast authorities.

HAMPERED BY ILLNESS

In official circles there is a marked reticence concerning the vexed question. It is believed that the illness of Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, will hamper the negotiations. The fear is expressed that in his absence the six county extremists may have their way, thus making an understanding impossible.

It is quite certain that the present British government is quite well aware of the consequences of failure to come to a decision or to carry out the treaty obligations to which Britain subscribed. With a strong Republican minority in Ireland pointing to another "English betrayal" such a development might have serious results for the Irish Ministry at the hands of the electorate.

The one card left in the hands of the British Labor government is in the financial policy to be adopted toward Belfast. With the enclave's police forces heavily subsidized by the British Exchequer, the English taxpayer has more than a passing interest in the Irish dispute. A withdrawal of these grants, it is held, would make the task of balancing the six-county area's budget something of a conjurer's trick. Dublin believes that the tightening of Britain's purse strings in this respect would go far to bring a different point of view from the North.

MAY BE IGNORED

The possibility that the London government may fail to insist that a Boundary Commission be set up is considered here. This would mean a negation of one article of the Anglo-Irish Treaty and the consequent dishonoring of the document, and the question is asked if the Free State Executive would have any effective counter.

Political observers hold that the first result of such a departure would likely be the scrapping of the oath of "faithfulness to the King." As this is the one great objection of the Republicans the move, it is asserted, would mean unity within the Free State. Although sidetracking the oath would be another breach of the treaty, observers point out that if London could forget the document in its bearing on the six northern counties, Dublin likewise would be free to take a liberty. What such an open breach would lead to, however, none seems able to say.

STUDENTS SURRENDER

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

JEROME (Ariz.) April 19.—A strike in Jerome High School has ended. The offending students have surrendered and have been readmitted on condition of exclusion from any social or athletic activities of the school for the balance of the term, and loss of any athletic letters that may be in possession of any members of the striking band of forty-five. The trouble started when, for quarantine reasons, the students were directed to keep away from public dances and moving-picture theaters.

An old negro who made his living, as he said, "by takin' in whitewashin', floor cleanin' an' perticular jobs," met one of his white customers shortly after the first of the year.

"How are you this morning, Uncle Dave?" asked the white man.

"Well,sah, I'm des dat good dat I'm gwine to live fer anuder year," was the reply.

"How can you be so certain of that?"

"Hit's dis 'er way. I allus notices dat when I lives twel New Year's I allus lives anuder year," was the triumphant response.—[Unidentified.

HAWAII STRONG FOR PINEAPPLES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

HILO (Hawaii April 19.—An expansion of the pineapple industry on all of the islands of the Hawaiian group is now in progress. It has been found that a large part of the Island of Molokai is well adapted to growing this fruit and several plantations are now being developed there. The fact that Molokai has long been known as the site of the largest and most remarkable leper colony in the world has heretofore deterred the agricultural development of the rich lands, it is explained.

It is declared, however, that there is no good reason for this, inasmuch as the leper colony occupies only a very small nook of the island and is walled off from all outside communication by precipitous cliffs except by sea. Part of the arable area of Molokai is now being taken up by native Hawaiian homesteaders who will also grow pineapples as soon as the industry there is well established by larger companies.

An investigation is now being made by representatives of Libby, McNeill & Libby, fruit growers and cannery, of the possibility of growing pineapples upon lands near Hilo. It is stated that many thousands of acres of land may be converted from tree fern forests into pineapple fields within the next few years.

Ordinarily, land which is not well adapted for growing sugar cane, because of lack of water or comparative altitude of location, is ideally suited for pineapples. Because of this fact some of the sugar lands upon the lower slopes of the mountains and in the localities where the rainfall is low are being converted into pineapple plantations.

On the Island of Maui a sugar plantation of several thousand acres was purchased by the Haiku Fruit and Packing Company and the last crop of cane to be grown upon the plantation is now being harvested. The land will be planted to pineapples. The company is now constructing a pineapple canning plant at Hana which will have a capacity of 1,000,000 cans of fruit a year.

The Hawaiian Pineapple Company, Ltd., has a large force of men employed in getting its land on the Island of Lanai ready for planting pineapples. Two large tractors are kept working day and night pulling gangs of plows, breaking the raw land. The work on the new harbor and port is well advanced, and two new towns are being built. Until these industrial activities were started a few months ago the island was devoted to sheep grazing and was seldom visited by people from the other islands. Airplanes carrying passengers now make the flight from Honolulu to Lanai almost daily, and the boats carrying building materials and supplies make frequent visits to the little island port.

ISLE ROYALE A PARK

Another long step has been taken toward preserving Isle Royale as a park for the people. Secretary Work of the Department of the Interior has promised that if private owners of land on the island will donate their holdings to the government he will recommend that Isle Royale be declared a national monument by the President. After that, it will require only an act to Congress to make it a national park, and such an act ought to be easy enough to secure.

The situation as it stands is this: The Federal government and the State of Michigan own 11,361 acres of the island, and the State's share can be turned over to the nation without a hitch. There are 45,000 acres which belong to the Island Copper Company, and this property it is willing to bestow on the government for park purposes, making a total of 56,361 acres available. The area of the island is 132,000 acres. This means that something over 75,000 acres are in private hands—a little more than 100 square miles.

The transfer of so much land as a gift to the nation requires a high type of patriotism in its owners. We have enough faith in American citizenry to believe that this patriotism exists, and that no single owner will try to block this magnificent scheme by holding back in the expectation of securing in the long run, a high price for his acreage, to come from those more public-spirited citizens who will not permit this wonderful opportunity to be lost.

An American can leave no finer monument, no more grateful memory, than a magnificent work of nature which he has been instrumental in preserving for his people, for all time.—[Detroit News.

Trade With Canada

According to figures furnished by the Canadian Commissioner of Trade, more than one-half of the Dominion's trade in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, was with the United States; and the indications are that in the further development of Canadian commerce the interchange of products with the United States will continue to be bigger than that carried on with other countries. Within the twelvemonth the Dominion purchased goods from the States valued at $585,732,788 and sold to this country $394,246,215 worth of commodities. In both cases the values were greater than those for the year ending June 30, 1922.

BANS CONGRESS FOR ADVENTURE

Dead Legislator is Revealed in Two Characters

Los Angeles Man Gets Part of Kinkaid Estate

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LINCOLN (Neb.) April 19.—For a little more than a score of years Judge Moses P. Kincaid represented the Sixth Nebraska District in Congress. He was a tall, spare figure, lean of face and dignified of mien, who looked as though he had stepped out of the pages of political history in the days when Clay and Webster were the giants of Congress.

Now he appears in a romantic role.

A little while ago he died. He had never married, and his estate of $250,000 goes to three groups of heirs. One of these heirs is John Kincaid, a gold miner and ore mill operator of Sawyers' Bar and Los Angeles, his only living brother, who gets a third. Eight children of a deceased sister get a third between them and three children of a dead brother divide the remainder.

In the probating of the will a side of the life of Judge Kincaid that was never before known to the thousands of Nebraskans who held him in high esteem has become known. It was told by his brother, John. Not a syllable of the story had ever been breathed by Judge Kincaid, even to his closest friends. It was a side of life that is both thrilling and romantic.

WAS A PROSPECTOR

Kincaid located in the city of O'Neill, Neb. more than forty years ago. He practiced law with success, was made a district court judge, and then for twenty-two years was Congressman from a district that embraced more than a third of the area of the State. It now develops that every time Kincaid took a vacation he joined his brother in a prospecting trip. This took them over the entire gold country, the Rockies, Mexico, California, Alaska and the Klondike.

On one of these earlier prospecting trips Kincaid, then a young lawyer, turned from the pick and pan to the law. He opened an office in Alaska, where he had gone on a vacation trip, and was prominent in the litigation that forms the basis plot of Rex Beach's story, "The Spoilers." Kincaid represented some of the miners who were being despoiled by the political bosses before law came to that country, and his brother says that part of what he did was made use of by Beach in setting out the details of his story.

It will be remembered that in "The Spoilers," the corrupt Federal judge whose rulings made possible the robbing of the mines owned by the men whose hands he tied by injunctions is returned under arrest, with the officials of his court who conspired with him, to the United States. Kincaid returned on the same boat, having taken down his shingle. The arrest of the judge left the young lawyer no court before which to practice.

Kincaid was one of the first men in the Cripple Creek field, and one mine located by him and his brother was sold for $75,000 as a prospect. All of these adventures were a part of his dual existence. At home, in Nebraska, he was a sober and sedate citizen who gave no indication of the riotous blood than ran in his veins. He was noted for his reserve and his dignity. Off on the trail he was a boy again, says his brother, with all the lust for adventure and daring that characterizes those men who make a lifetime work of hunting gold.

The only hint of his adventurous blood lay in one early frontier experience that he found pleasure in telling. He started as a lad of 21 in the banking business at Pierre, S. D., when the six-shooter was the arbiter of property rights. Ever a man of great caution, when he erected his bank building, a sixteen-foot square structure of wood, he also built a boat. He told the people that some day there would be a flood and he would need it. He was jeered at, but his prophecy came true. He and his clerk escaped in the boat to the high land, taking with them the bank's cash. This he buried in the earth, a wise precaution as some of the bad men borrowed his boat one night and searched the bank safe for the money.

WON EVERY TIME

Kincaid was invincible in Congressional elections. The smartest and most popular men of his district of both parties sought to defeat him, but he won every time by large majorities. He died in office. His greatest legislative triumph was the enactment of an amended homestead law, that enabled a man to file on a full section of land in arid areas, which resulted in redeeming to agriculture immense tracts that the cattlemen ruled over and used as their own, as a part of the public range.

A novel method of dividing his estate was employed by his heirs. It included 2640 acres of farm land of moderate value and securities worth $100,0000. The administrators divided the property into three piles, so to speak, and then a representative of each group of heirs stepped forward and drew a number. This division by lot not only avoided the necessity of partitioning the property, but made it possible for each to get an equal share and hold it. Otherwise it would have been necessary to sell it at a time when farm lands are a drug on the market.

The Greatest Oaks

The largest oak tree in this country is at Rye Mills, Md., which is said to be almost 400 years old and measures 150 feet in diameter through the foliage.

What is believed to be the largest oak in England stands in the park adjoining Powis Castle. When measured some four years ago by Mr. H. J. Elwes, the Powis oak totaled 2036 cubic feet, and showed no signs of decay. Until recent years an oak in Bagot Park, Staffordshire, ranked as the largest in England; but this has diminished in size through stress of weather. So has the King's Oak at Tilford, near Farnham, described by Cobbett in 1822 as "fully thirty feet round at eight or ten feet from the ground." Recent measurements make its girth only twenty-four and one-half feet at five feet from the ground.—[Exchange.

RAILROADS USE ILLUSION TESTS

Applicants for Jobs Given Novel Examinations

Practical Psychology Used in Berlin System

Box of Cobblestones Latest Device of Thieves

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

BERLIN, April 19.—American psychological tests and apparatus for determining the mental and physical qualifications of applicants for aviation training during the war are rivaled in ingenuity by the apparatus of the employment agency of the German National Railways.

Under the direction of Dr. Skutsch, and Prof. Meede, several rooms at Eichkamp Station have been especially equipped to test the ability of applicants to do anything from punching tickets to running locomotives. Service conditions are duplicated as nearly as possible.

Applicants for positions as ticket-takers sit before a contrivance which drops tickets out of a slot at the will of the man conducting the examination. The applicant deals with each exactly as if it were given to him by a passenger.

If properly stamped and dated he accepts it, otherwise he rejects it, gives the supposed passenger directions for reaching the proper station, and reaches for the next ticket. A life-sized duplicate of a station ticket-office is used to test the ability of applicants to make change, use timetables with facility, issue the proper tickets and make out reports.

REALISM FOR ENGINEERS

The most ingenious apparatus, however, is that which tests the qualifications of engineers. The applicant sits in a darkened room, in a locomotive cab that has all the regulation throttles, steam gauges, petcocks and levers, and peers through a window to look at what appears to be a stretch of track lighted by a headlight. Motion-pictures and numerous signals controlled by the examiners combine to produce the illusion of motion.

The track rushes toward the would-be engineer. The cab sways from side to side, trembles, hisses and rattles like a real engine. One by one signals shine out in the darkness. The applicant whistles for a crossing, slows down for a curve, orders more coal thrown in to rectify a falling steam gauge, stops for a red signal, and pulls out of a station in response to a signal from the conductor.

After a few minutes of this he gains confidence. Then—suddenly an obstruction. A log on the track.

Unless the applicant pulls the emergency brake immediately the train theoretically is wrecked, and another applicant is rejected. So realistic is the illusion that men unaware of what was coming, after closing the throttle and frantically setting the emergency brakes, have wiped the sweat from their faces and breathed as genuine a sigh of relief as if 200 passengers had been saved from death or injury.

BOXES OF COBBLESTONES

Dr. Koch, head of the criminal police force of Berlin, now has among his large collection of trophies, weapons and tools of the criminal trade, eight boxes of heavy cobblestones. The boxes were found in various apartment houses, in second and third-story hallways, and there was considerable mystification at headquarters until detectives put two and two together and discovered that a gang of thieves had been working on a new trick.

A well-dressed young woman with a winning smile is the principal conspirator. She waits by the curb with a box until a delivery truck comes by. If she has luck the driver agrees to "give her a lift" and not only delivers the box to a nearby address, but helps her carry it up two or three flights of stairs.

The police now have several complaints from drivers who say that their trucks have disappeared while they were helping the young woman with one or the other of the eight boxes of cobblestones, which thus far have been turned over to the police. In each case the trucks have been found abandoned, but with part or all of the merchandise which they carried missing, evidently the booty of thieves cooperating with the young woman with the winning smile.

ONLY ONE GUESS

He wore a long-tailed coat, a frock tie and a stiff hat that marked him as a small town aristocrat of the old school. At the hotel he strolled around the lobby with an air of ownership that was very impressive. But in a three-days' stay not a nickel had been scattered among the help and the word had spread fast that the colonel was not all that he seemed to be.

He had just had his "boots" shined, and as the boy brushed him off, he remarked:

"George, what would you think if I gave you 50 cents for this shine?"

George answered right up:

"Ah would think you wanted fo'ty cents change, suh."—[Exchange.

THE SAD PART

"Dick proposed to me last night," Marjorie announced excitedly.

"Oh! Did he?" exclaimed Virginia.

"Yes, and I just adore Dick! He's so handsome!"

"And did you accept him?" Virginia queried. "Are you engaged?"

"Oh, Virginia, we are not!" Marjorie replied. "That's the sad part of it. Dick is just the most wonderful person on earth, but I had to tell him that I just couldn't be engaged to him right away. Why, it will take me at least a week to break off the engagement I have with Tom!"—[Exchange.

That Mattered Not

The junior partner was interviewing a very pretty girl who had applied for a position. The senior partner came in, and after inspecting the vision, called his partner aside and whispered, "I'd hire her."

"I have," replied the junior partner.

"Well, can she take dictation?" asked the elder member of the firm.

"We'll find that out later," replied the junior partner. "I didn't want any obstacles to crop up."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

FACT AND COMMENT

"Los Angeles in the Industrial Mirror" is the title of a booklet just issued by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. It is a reprint of an address given a short time ago to the Optimists' Club by a banker of Los Angeles, and is well worth the distribution which it is being given by the Chamber of Commerce, for it is crammed with pertinent facts concerning the industrial situation. The individual who is inclined to doubt the wisdom or expediency of the drive now being conducted by the Greater Los Angeles Association would do well to obtain a copy of this pamphlet, for it will clear up many points upon which he may be in doubt.

The need of an industrial inventory day, when Los Angeles can take stock of the industrial situation, is emphasized by the speaker. Los Angeles must discover the unknown factors which have a bearing upon her industrial progress, and chief among these unknown factors is the question of how "we can establish an industrial balance which will enable us to permanently supply our industries with labor, and to supply our labor with opportunities to work and earn."

"Los Angeles," says the banker, "has made the mistake of inviting too many people to the feast. Now that they are here, and more coming, it is high time we dropped everything else, and put our house in order. For the last few years prospective newcomers have been repeatedly advised not to move to Los Angeles unless they had means to support themselves for an indefinite period, or unless they had positive arrangements for employment upon arrival. But this warning had had small effect upon the on-coming multitude. It is true, therefore, that to some extent our growth has been unhealthy, and the only way to restore what we now have to the equivalent of that which we hoped to establish when we started out, is to follow through more vigorously than ever, with a concentrated community drive, the industrial campaign which has

SMOKER TO BE WEDNESDAY

A smoker with a program "full of pep and ginger," according to the announcement, will be held for Los Angeles Realty Board members Wednesday evening, the 30th inst., beginning at 7:30, when the first event on the evening's card will be announced in the assembly hall of the new Realty Board Building on South Flower street.

Four boxing bouts of George Blake's best variety will feature the athletic part of the entertainment. The committee in charge promises plenty of other attractions. Sandwiches and coffee will be served and a "good time was had by all" is promised.

Lease Is Taken on Seventh at Large Rental

W. H. Rees Company, Inc., realty brokers, announce the completion of a long-term lease between the Martz Estate and Richardson's, Inc., now located at 727 West Seventh street, in the new Class A building, nearing completion at 726-730 West Seventh street.

Mr. Richardson, the president of the corporation reports that the volume of business has increased to such an extent that larger quarters became necessary. The new quarters, which will be occupied about June 1, will be twice the size of their present quarters. It is reported that the rental involved will exceed $750,000. R. A. Rees of the W. H. Rees Company, Inc., represented all parties in the transaction.

TO HEAD REALTY COMPANY

Interests of W. A. Heitman in Local Organization Are Taken Over by A. Freeman

Announcement was made yesterday of the purchase of the business and all of the assets of the W. A. Heitman Company by A. Freeman, a local business man and investor, who has been engaged in the buying and selling of Broadway leases since he came to Los Angeles in 1920. Mr. Heitman, who has been engaged in the realty business here for many years, will, it is reported, retire from the real estate field here, and will in the future devote all of his time to his lumber interests in San Francisco.

Mr. Freeman, before coming to Los Angeles, acted for a number of years as general supervisor of two large organizations which operated retail stores throughout the country. In this capacity, he handled the leasing and building up of forty-two stores in thirty-seven cities. Mr. Freeman, who has invested extensively in residential properties and ranch lands in Southern California, has been associated with Mr. Heitman for the past two years in various enterprises.

The business will be continued under the name of W. A. Heitman & Co., Mr. Freeman said yesterday. It will be the policy of the company, under Mr. Freeman's management, to specialize, and the efforts of the organization will be devoted entirely to the sale and leasing of business and industrial properties, and the sale of investment and income-producing properties. A staff of engineers will be employed to make scientific surveys of properties of the firm's clients in order to determine the best uses to which these properties can be put. Present offices of the company will be maintained.

ONE-PRICE SHOP WILL OPEN HERE

A one-price store, which will carry a general line of merchandise, such as is found in the regular department and variety stores, but which handles a line of commodities which will sell at one dollar, is to be opened in Los Angeles by A. J. Clark, formerly associated with the firm of Foreman and Clark, clothiers. Mr. Clark has taken a lease at 422 South Broadway from A. Prelusky, and alterations are now being made for the new store, which will embrace 15,000 square feet of space.

Similar stores have been operated by Mr. Clark in Long Beach and San Pedro for the past two years. Leasing negotiations were handled by A. Dexter Gail, Jr., manager of the leasing department of W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., according to an announcement made by George R. Le Baron, vice-president of the company.

LEASE GARAGE SPACE

George R. Le Baron, vice-president of W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., reports the leasing to the City and Suburban Package Delivery Company of garage space at 1845 South Flower street, to house its new fleet of trucks which will operate throughout the residential and suburban sections. Leasing negotiations were handled by A. Dexter Gail, Jr., manager of the leasing department. The lesser was Dr. William Brill.

Plans for Tourist Hotel Are Making Progress

Several Large Deals Closed During Past Week

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

REDLANDS, April 19.—An announcement of interest to the whole city was made during the last week by the Realty Board. The committee which has been in charge of getting pledges for funds with which to keep open the Redlands office in Los Angeles announced it had been successful, and it is probable the office will be kept open all summer.

The office was opened by the Chamber of Commerce but that organization, lacking funds to carry on the work, turned it over to the Realty Board. The realty men feel that it will be much to their advantage to have the office open.

Plans for financing the tourist hotel proposition, to make a fine hotel of the $100,000 Henry J. Fisher home on West Highland avenue, are assured of success, it is believed. Mr. Fisher has offered the home at a very reasonable price, as he plans to remain in Italy with his family for several years.

The plan is to remodel the beautiful home and make of it the main hotel building, dining-room, kitchens, lounge and a few bedrooms. Then throughout the garden will be built small guest bungalows. The total cost will be about $150,000.

Allen Pederson, formerly with the Hotel Nuys and later with large hotels in Honolulu, has been interested in the proposition and will likely be the manager.

DEALS CLOSED

Several big deals were completed during the week. The largest was the sale of the B. G. Holmes grove in the Crafton district to W. E. Howard. Mr Howard thereby increases his holdings of orange groves to 130 acres, all first-class property. The grove comprises twenty acres and is known as the Wolverton place, having been owned by that family for several years. Mr. Howard plans to build a lovely home there.

Another sale of grove property was that of the five acres known as the Pruitt grove on East San Bernardino avenue to Lieut. J. M. Moss, a retired naval officer. Lieut. Moss is to build a home there and the property, which has always been an excellent producer, will be under his personal supervision.

Mrs. L. O. Hammond, who recently built a beautiful home in Cypress Court, has just sold it to Mrs. Welbanks, a newcomer here.

HOTEL OPENED

Fred Rempp, who recently purchased the old Olive Hotel on Olive avenue, has entirely remodeled the property and has opened there the Bellevue Hotel. Mr. Rempp comes to Redlands from Los Angeles. His plan is to build a large building within a year or two and make the hotel one of the largest close-in hostelries in the city.

Reuben Rex, head of the Rex Transfer Company, which operates a truck line between Redlands and Los Angeles, has completed a new brick building as a depot on West Central avenue. The walls are all completed now and interior work on offices and loading platforms is now being done.

Apartment Sold for Large Sum

PROSPECTS FOR SUMMER BRIGHT

uled to start within thirty days, according to managers of the project.

Preliminary details made public by Mr. Siskin show that the proposed structure will contain approximately 260 offices in addition to three floors of loft space and a number of stores on the ground floor. Front exterior walls will be finished in pressed brick and terra cotta, while the construction of the main structure will be of reinforced concrete.

In looking for a factory site in 1917 Mr. Siskin wished to locate in the heart of the furniture trade, which was along Main street between Sixth and Tenth streets. He was offered four lots, two facing Main street, the site of his present building, backed by two lots facing Los Angeles street, for $75,000. He was unable to complete the deal because of lack of funds. The cost of the two lots facing Main street to Mr. Siskin today was approximately $500,000.

Undiscouraged, but with the determination to be able to build on Main street, Mr. Siskin located on East Pico street and started the manufacture of furniture in the front half of a small frame building. Taking orders in his spare time, turning out the furniture and making deliveries made each day a full one. As the business grew new machinery was installed, help added, property was acquired on either side, until in 1915 Mr. Siskin had a collection of miscellaneous frame buildings covering almost a block.

Fire destroyed the entire plant and, after settlement, Mr. Siskin was $600 in debt. However with his characteristic faith in the future of Los Angeles and the record he had made in his business relations, Mr. Siskins was enabled to borrow $30,000 and make a new start.

Today the Angelus Furniture Company covers ground area equal to a city block and has six acres of floor space. The gross output for the year is $2,000,000. Employees number 400 to 450 and the daily pay roll is $1800.

APARTMENT HOTEL

Work will start at once on plans for an eight-story apartment hotel to be built on Catalina street near Wilshire Boulevard for William F. Ramm of Dubuque, Iowa, as a cost of $250,000. According to Fleming & Williams, local architects, building of the apartments will start the first of July.

In addition to ninety-nine rooms arranged on the upper floors, space has been reserved in the basement for a garage and community service station. Specifications show that the building will be equipped with the latest improvements, including a refrigeration plant, vacuum cleaning system, built-in incinerators and vapor-heating unit. Site of the proposed structure has a frontage of 146 feet.

A 128-room, five-story hotel building for the B. L. Hoffman Construction Company to be built at 616 South St. Paul street, is being designed by S. Tilden Norton and Frederick H. Wallis, local architects. The proposed structure adjoins the Harbour Apartments on the south and has a frontage of sixty-three feet and a depth of 172 feet.

The facade is to be of modified Italian type of architecture, having an orchid color scheme of polychrome terra cotta and ruffled brick set in pleasing combination of texture and color effects. On the main floor there will be a spacious lobby with ladies' parlor and writing rooms, lounging room, elevators and many othre features. Each of the 128 rooms are to be steam heated, with a private bath, spacious closet, telephone and up-to-date appointments.

Estimates by the architects show that the hotel will cost $350,000, and that four or five months will be required for the construction of the building. Mr. Hoffman, owner of the proposed hotel and head of the construction company bearing his name, is a well-known builder of the Middle West, where he built a number of large buildings. According to H. A. Elsberg representative for Mr. Hoffman the construction company is contemplating moving its offices to Los Angeles where its activities will be centered.

FOR HILL STREET

Officials of the National Automobile Insurance Company announce the erection of a two-story home on the southwest corner of Sixteenth and Hill streets at a cost of $65,000. The structure will be designed and erected under the direction of the architectural firm of Morgan, Walls and Clements.

High-class stores will be located on the ground floor while spacious office suites will be allotted on the upper floor. A majority of the offices will be leased to doctors and dentists inasmuch as every convenience known to the profession will be installed in the structure. An attractive feature is a parking court for the accommodation of patrons and occupants of the structure. One-half of the upper floor will be occupied by the insurance company.

Construction has started on a five-story store and loft building to be occupied by Forve-Pettibone Electric Company and several other building supply concerns. Albert C. Martin, designer of the structure, will have the building named in his honor, according to officials of the building syndicate. Contractor for the building, to be erected at 814 South Figueroa street, is the H. M. Baruch Company.

Parkinson & Parkinson, architects of this city, have completed preliminary sketches of a proposed medical building to be erected in Hollywood on a site yet unannounced. Announcement of the project was made by Lyle W. Rucker, attorney for the California Pacific Holding Company, Inc., and the Loughbom Construction Company, promoters of the new building. The building will be height-limit, and will have a frontage of at least 150 feet and a depth of 165 feet.

FACT AND COMMENT

been so marked a feature in the last five years."

Must Bridge Gap

This is not mere rhetoric. The influx of population since the close of the war has been little short of astounding, and despite the tremendous increase in industrial activity, Los Angeles occupies relatively the same position she held when she was known only as a tourist town. In other words, while Los Angeles ranks high among the larger cities of the country in value of manufactured products, there is still a great gap between population and the number of industries which can employ that population to be bridged, and this is the task which the Greater Los Angeles Association has undertaken with such vigor, and with such determination.

Thousands of the newcomers to Los Angeles, since the war, have been gainfully employed in the various ramifications of the building industry. Los Angeles, like most other large cities of the country, found an acute housing shortage at the close of the war, and the condition she set about to remedy, with the resultant building record; a record that has astonished communities many times larger.

But it cannot be, and it is not, expected that this building program will be continued on the present scale indefinitely, for despite the increase in population, a saturation point will be reached, at least temporarily, and many of those now engaged in the building industry will have to seek work elsewhere.

It is the purpose of the Greater Los Angeles Association, not only to supply work for newcomers, but to keep those already residing here gainfully employed. This is a large task, but the association has tackled it in a large way, with every promise of success providing it receives the support to which it is entitled, by virtue of the merit of the project.

Wilshire Widening

Property owners throughout the district which will be affected by the widening of Wilshire Boulevard are being circularized by an organization which calls itself the Wilshire Improvement Association. "Do you know," says the first letter gotten out by this body, "that a movement is on foot in the city of Los Angeles to create an assessment district, including property on, and at least three blocks each side of Wilshire Boulevard, for the purpose of charging property owners with the cost of widening that thoroughfare within the city limits? The plan under contemplation is similar to that adopted on the Tenth-street widening—if this proposition goes through as contemplated, it will amount to practically a confiscation of property within the assessment district."

There is more of it, but this is sufficient to illustrate what the so-called improvement association is attempting to do. An "anti," with a hyphen interposed before the word improvement, would apparently better express the aims and ideals of this association, which seems to have adopted a destructive rather than constructive program.

Property owners are exhorted, in the circular, to communicate immediately with the association. When, and if, they do, they will probably be called upon for a contribution, and with the funds so gathered, a fight against their best interests will be launched. Before the owners of property in the district get in touch with the association, it might be well for them to address a communication to the City Engineer and ask him what the assessment will amount to. If they do they will find that property values on Wilshire and on adjacent streets are such that the assessment will in no sense of the word be confiscatory, and that it will be to their best interests to throw their support to the group of earnest and far-sighted men who have sponsored the Wilshire widening and improvement program from the beginning, rather than to the small group of antagonists who cannot see the woods for trees.

All that is needed to defeat the program of the Wilshire Improvement Association is a little clear thinking on the part of property owners in the district. When they study the cost of the improvement in relation to the benefits they will derive from it, in increased valuation, they can reach but one conclusion, and that conclusion will unequivocally approve of the widening of Wilshire Boulevard.

BAR SIGNS ON HIGHWAYS

Sponsored by the State roads commission of Maryland, a bill to prohibit the erection of signs on State highways purporting to give information on the direction and condition of the road, but really placed for advertising purposes, was introduced in the House the other day.

Passage of the measure is being sought because of the growing practise among advertisers to place "stop" signs on the State roads with the announcement that meals may be obtained 300 yards ahead. The bill provides a flat fine of $25 for violations.—[Baltimore News.

PROVING THE FUTURE BY THE PAST

Past accomplishments offer substantial proof of the present bility of the Mayo Organization and serve as a guarantee prospective clients that future undertakings will be the equal or better than those which won for Mayo, front rank success.

And, since 1911, this success has been won through a high standard of work, liberal service and always keeping our word to Mayo client who invariably finds that in the end, Mayo-built Hotels and Apartment Houses are better, from corner-stone to gable, and cost less.

Thus, the past has made for the Mayo Organization friends and loyal boosters out of every client whom Mayo has served, while the buildings themselves bear mute testimony to the worth of "Mayo-Built."

PLANS LAID FOR SECOND MEETING

Dean of Local Realty Men to be on Program

Merchant and Banker Included Among Speakers

General Invitation Extended to Members

The second divisional luncheon meeting of the Los Angeles Realty Board will be held next Tuesday noon at the Elite, with the Business Property Committee of the organization in charge. The members of this committee are L. J. Durnerin, chairman; Richard C. Willis, R. W. Morrison George R. Le Baron and Jerome Singel.

The following program has been announced by this committee: "Stability of Business Property as an Investment," by William May Garland, for two years president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and past president of the Los Angeles Realty Board; "Business Property from Viewpoint of the Merchant," by E. W. Lewis of the management of the Broadway Department Store, director of Business Men's Association; "Outlying Business Districts—Their Justification," by G. G. Greenwood, vice-president Security Trust and Savings Bank and manager of the Hollywood branch at Cahuenga and Hollywood Boulevard.

In describing this program, W. L. Brent, president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, sent the following statement to the membership:

"Mr. Garland is the acknowledged dean of the realty brokers of Los Angeles. He has dealt and operated in Los Angeles business property for many years, and in his talk next Tuesday he will summarize his observations taken from his three decades and more of experience in the city.

"Mr. Lewis has been associated with the Letts interests for twenty-two years, and during that period of time he has had intimate contact with the business property development and has had opportunity of analyzing the factors of business property valuation from the standpoint of the merchants.

"Mr. Greenwood came to Hollywood twenty years ago, and has been constantly associated with banking institutions on Hollywood Boulevard, so that he has seen its business development from its inception, and has had the advantage of observing every step in the growth of this remarkable thoroughfare, one of the finest of its kind in any city of the United States."

Mr. Brent also repeated the original announcement that all members of the association are invited to these divisional luncheons whether they are directly or indirectly interested in the particular subject to be discussed at the meeting. The first divisional luncheon, held April 8, was the most largely attended luncheon ever held by the local real estate board.

At the meeting next Tuesday President Brent will introduce Chairman Durnerin of the committee, who will preside.

TO BUILD COTTAGES

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

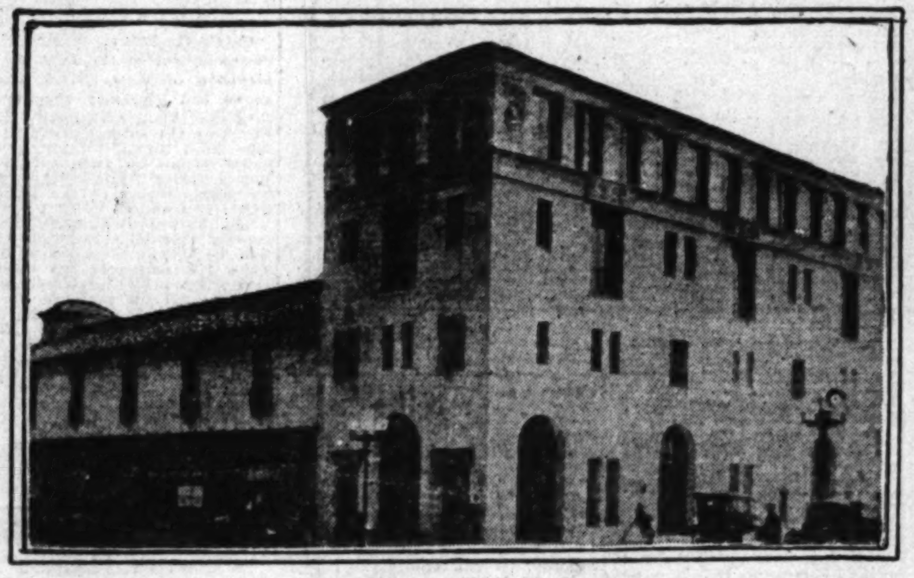
SPRINGVILLE, April 19.—George Hurt is blasting out rocks from the portion of his ranch which fronts the Porterville-Springville highway, preparatory to erecting two cottages for rental purposes. The demand for vacant houses is increasing and since erection of the new children's ward at the Tulare-Kings Tuberculosis Sanatorium here all available houses have been occupied by workmen. The population of the Gateway City has increased considerably since erection of the sanatorium here and new houses for residential purposes are in demand. There is also strong demand for cabins and tent houses during the summer by tourist trade. A. W. Patton has plans under consideration to supply a portion of this demand this summer by means of erecting tent houses in shady portions of his ranch fronting Main street.

SEVENTH STREET SALE

Sixty feet of frontage on West Seventh street, opposite Beacon street, and immediately adjoining the Foster Apartments, has been sold by Howard J. Latimer, the former owner, to Ralph A. Dalluge. The consideration was reported to be in excess of $100,000.

SHOP BUILDING AWARDED HIGH HONORS

Structure on West Seventh Declared Best Built During Year



Designed by Morgan, Walls & Clements

EACH year the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects awards certificates of honor to those of their number who have done the most distinctive work in design of local buildings. This annual feature creates considerable interest inasmuch as every architect and builder in Southern California watches the outcome of the awards.

What is believed by the judges to be the best designed building erected during the last twelve months is the Spencer Thorpe Building on the southeast corner of Seventh and Park View streets, designed by the architectural firm of Morgan, Walls and Clements of this city. The structure is of Spanish renaissance design of the early sixteenth century, following closely the architecture of a building in Seville, Spain, admired by Mr. Thorpe on his recent visit to that country.

Morgan, Walls and Clements have executed designs on several artistic shop structures built on West Seventh street in the vicinity of Westlake Park all typifying a finer class of construction typical of buildings in that neighborhood. It is the unanimous verdict of property owners in this section that these artistic structures are a business asset bringing in considerable commercial return on the investment.

The award last year was given to Morgan, Walls and Clements for their meritorious work in the design and construction of the Bank of Italy Building on the northwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets. This building is the only height-limit structure awarded an honor in the last two years.

Rapid Progress Is Now Being Made by Ramona

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

RAMONA, April 19.—Ramona, in the heart of San Diego's upland country, is pushing forward rapidly with a general development program of broad proportions. Everywhere are new dwellings and business houses, and within the past six months alone this thriving community has increased 25 per cent in population.

All up and down the Santa Maria Valley new homes are being built, while in Ramona several new store buildings have recently been completed, and the new Chamber of Commerce Building has recently been finished. Plans are under way at this time for the erection of a new home for the State Bank of Ramona, and work will soon begin on this undertaking.

Numerous new poultry ranches have been established in the outlying districts, and many of the older plants have been remodeled and improved. It is estimated that there are nearly 80,000 chickens in the Santa Maria Valley, producing an income of more than $250,000 per year, and the industry promises to increase steadily during the rest of 1924.

A large estate near Ramona, 8000 acres in extent, recently was sold for subdivision purposes, and will be divided into small ranches to stimulate the activities of the small farmer.

The gas and electric company has already started construction work on new light and power transmission lines, which will serve the community, and it is expected that this added service will play a big part in attracting newcomers.

DITCH COVERED OVER

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

PORTERVILLE, April 19.—Conduiting of a portion of the Pioneer Ditch passing through the residential section of Porterville was completed on record time by N. M. Ball, contractor for this work as well as considerable street paving for the city. The stretch of ditch covered amounted to about 1460 feet. For three blocks on the east side of Fourth street, from Thurman to Morton, and along two blocks on the south side of Morton, from Fourth to Second, the ditch was covered with a sidewalk. Ball had twenty days in which to do this work and reported it completed except for removing the forms, which will be done as soon as the cement is hardened.

SPRING STREET LEASE

H. L. Suydam reports the leasing of the store at 137 North Spring street, for Joseph Edwards, to Morris Hardware Company. This company is one of the oldest retail hardware concerns in Los Angeles, and will use this store in connection with its Main-street store.

City Attorney Candidate Hit as Ineligible

Through a petition filed yesterday, A. L. Felt, an elector living at 214 Grand avenue, Long Beach, asked the Superior Court to issue a writ of mandate compelling Harry C. Waughop, City Clerk of the beach city, to certify to the Long Beach City Council a list of names of candidates for the office of City Attorney omitting the name of Burr A. Brown, who is said to be an aspirant to the office.

According to the complaint, Brown is not eligible for the office, as the city charter is said to provide that the person serving as City Attorney must have been admitted to the practice of law in the State on a date at least five years prior to the time of taking the municipal office. The petition stated that Brown was not admitted to the bar until April 25, 1921.

Felt asked that the list be certified to include only the names of Eugene C. Campbell and W. LeRoy Thomas, who, with Brown, are said to have taken an oath of affirmation declaring themselves to be candidates for the office.

IN NEW QUARTERS

The Smither Building and Investment Company has removed its offices from 641 South Western avenue to its new building, a three-story brick structure at the northwest corner of Western and Rosewood avenues.

MANY BUILDINGS UNDER WAY BY MEMBERS OF ASSOCIATED GENERAL CONTRACTORS HERE

The Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America, announces activities of some of its members for the last week as follows:

The Richards-Neustadt Company was awarded a contract at $30,000 for the construction of a brick store building at the northwest corner of Seventh and Valencia streets for Isaacs Brothers. The structure will be of the one-story type, built to conform to Class C construction. It will cover an area of 130 by 80 feet, with a wing 30 by 55 feet. The building will have a composition roofing and a pressed-brick exterior.

Robert E. Millsap announced that he will start work immediately upon the construction of a two-story brick store building at the northwest corner of Seventh and Carondelet streets for Vernon Goodwin. The structure, planned by Morgan, Walls & Clements, local architects, will cover a ground area of 123 by 65 feet. It will have brick walls, stucco exterior and cast-stone trim. The cost of construction will be approximately $30,000.

FILM EXCHANGE

J. S. Metzger & Son were awarded a contract for the erection of a one-story film exchange building on South Olive street, south of Tenth street, for the Universal Film Exchange, Inc. The structure was designed by A. Godfrey Bailey and will cost approximately $25,000. It will be cover a ground area of 53 by 152 feet, conform to the Class C type of building and have a brick facing, composition roofing and cement floors. A reinforced concrete film vault will be constructed in the building.

The Los Angeles Building and Contracting Company has the contract to erect a three-story side addition to a packing plant building at the site of the Cudahy Packing Company's plant at 803 Macy street. The structure will be 30 by 40 feet in dimensions, built with brick walls and have cement and pine floors and a composition roofing.

The Mercereau Bridge and Construction Company has been awarded a contract by the Board of Public Works for constructing eight pile bents beneath the bridge across the Los Angeles River at North Spring street. The work will be started within a few days. The same firm has a contract to construct a similar number of pile bents beneath the bridge at Dayton avenue.

NEAR COMPLETION

The Fred R. Johnson Company reports much progress upon a two-story building at the corner of Western avenue and Fifth street, which the latter is constructing for Louis E. Gumpo. The structure is of the Class C type and will cost approximately $27,000. Construction was begun late in February and the building will be ready for occupancy within a week.

Rapid progress is also reported by the Lynch Construction Company upon a two-story Class A addition to a warehouse at Sixth and Clarence streets, which is being erected for the Union Pacific Railroad Company. The structure will cost approximately $85,000. When completed it will be occupied by the Pacific Southwest Distributing Company.

The Griffith Company, general engineering contractors, has been awarded a contract for paving Floral Drive, between Pickering and Citrus avenues. The work, which includes grading, will cost approximately $14,300.

RANKS NINTH ON PACIFIC COAST

Alhambra Takes High Place in Building Activity

Repairs on Valley Boulevard Are Authorized

Property Owners Petition for Street Improvements

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, April 19.—Figures from the April issue of the Pacific Coast section of the national monthly building survey, published by S. W. Straus Company, show that out of the seven western States the city of Alhambra, with a building total of $859,520 in March, stood ninth in total valuation. For the same month last year this city occupied twelfth place.

Last month Alhambra spent more for new buildings than any city in Idaho, Utah and Nevada, and of the three States of Arizona, Oregon and Washington, only four cities registered a greater valuation in permits.

April construction continues with no sign of falling off, single dwellings and duplexes comprising the greatest amount of the activity. A considerable number of duplex houses have been started during the past few weeks. The permits for the month so far total over $350,000, and April will without doubt be far ahead of the corresponding month of last year.

Alhambra's new sewer system is now reaching the final stages of construction. This week the contract for construction of sewers in district No. 6 was awarded by the City Commission to Culjak & Bebek, Los Angeles contractors, whose bid was the lowest of nine submitted.

CITY TO BUY PIPE

Activity in new subdivisions and in the general development of Alhambra is seen in the authorization given City Manager Lorraine this week to advertise for bids for approximately 178 tons of cast-iron pipe for the water department. At the present time there are about nine miles of cast iron pipe distributed over local streets ready for installation.

Needed repairs on the Valley Boulevard are to be made at once, according to city officials, who report that the county Board of Supervisors has granted Alhambra the sum of $2500 for that purpose. The part of Valley Boulevard running through this city is an important connecting link in the county highway system and the county has appropriated the sum for the repairs until the new paving is done.

Maps covering three new tracts which are to be placed on the market for residential purposes have been accepted by the City Commission. The largest of these is acreage at Hellman and Fremont, which formerly belonged to Gregario Arostagui, an old-time sheep herder. Tracts at the corner of Alhambra Road and Vega street, and at De Barth and Shorb were also accepted.

IMPROVEMENT ASKED

Property owners on Hellman avenue, between Fremont and Alhambra avenue, have petitioned the City Commission for street improvements, the signatures representing 53 per cent of the frontage. The city engineering department has been instructed to prepare plans for putting in sidewalks, curbs, gutters and concrete pavement. Hellman avenue is the boundary line between Monterey Park and Alhambra, consequently the improvement proceedings will be somewhat complicated.

A petition signed by 100 per cent of the property owners effected, asking for the extension of Bushnell avenue south from Alhambra Road is now under consideration by the city. The matter will be reported on at the next meeting of the commission. The engineering department is faced with the problem of providing a new site for a city reservoir which now lays in the path of the proposed extension.

BUYS INTEREST

One of the changes in the local real estate world reported this week is the purchase of the interests of George A. Samter of the firm of McIntosh & Samter, by Frederick J. McIntosh, who will conduct the business under his own name hereafter. Mr. McIntosh was formerly secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Figures made public by the banks of Alhambra this week show a splendid increase in deposits during the past year and point to the steady growth and prosperity of the city. The Alhambra branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank reports an increase of 68 per cent in deposits from March 30, 1923, to March 31, 1924, during which period the number of depositors increased 69 per cent. Other banking institutions also show a big increase in deposits.

Several new retail business concerns have recently opened in Alhambra, among them being McIntyre & Sellers, who today opened a large furniture store in the new building at Wilson and Main. O. L. Sellers is an Alhambra man and G. P. McIntyre has recently came here from the Middle West, where he has had many years of experience in the furniture line.

RESERVOIR CONTRACT

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19.—The contract for the new reservoir for the city of Vernon has recently been let to Kinney & Waterhouse, and work has been started, the reservoir to have a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons. It is being constructed for the new high-pressure fire system for that city. The contract price was $20,500.

Special Rates to Washington to be Granted

The California Real Estate Association has been advised by the railroad companies that they have agreed to advance the date of opening their summer tourist rates from June 1 to May 22, thus making possible a fare and half for the realty delegates from this part of the United States who expected to attend the seventeenth annual conclave June 3 to 6 in Washington, D. C.

Under the plan adopted this year for reaching the maximum of general comfort in regard to accommodations, hotel reservations for the convention must be handled through the California Real Estate Association. Reservations and subsequent changes must be made through the secretary of the State association. Washington Real Estate Board has alloted quarters for ninety Californians at the Washington Hotel. Each State will be allocated to its own hotel headquarters. In order to utilize fully first-class hotels within a very short radius from convention headquarters it is suggested that delegates should arrange to double up two in a room as far as possible.

GUILTY OF MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE

JURY RETURNS VERDICT AGAINST B. T. VERNON IN WILLS SLAYING

A jury trying B. T. Vernon, a negro, for the murder of Hugh Wills, also a negro, on January 22 last, after deliberating for an hour and a half, returned a verdict to Judge Hardy last night, of guilty of second degree murder. The penalty calls for not less than ten years' imprisonment.

Vernon shot Wills, it was asserted, after a quarrel over letters Wills wrote to Vernon's landlord, describing Vernon as a very poor tenant. Vernon declared he shot in self-defense. He was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Van Cott. Sentence will be pronounced Monday morning.

HEADQUARTERS AT HUNTINGTON

The Huntington Hotel at Pasadena, one of the finest and largest hotels in the West, has been secured by the Pasadena Realty Board for the twentieth annual convention of the California Real Estate Association, October 8-11, 1924, according to announcement by Clifton J. Platt, chairman of the Pasadena convention committee.

All sessions of the convention will be held at the hotel. Accommodations have been secured for 1000 delegates. Advance reservations for rooms are being made through the housing committee of Pasadena, consisting of H. L. Gianetti and R. A. Swink.

WILL PAVE STREETS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, April 19.—The biggest street improvement program ever attempted by the city was entered upon last week by the City Trustees when a resolution was adopted providing for the permanent paving of all streets in the Benmar Hills district. The contemplated work will cost approximately $466,068. The main highways are to be paved with concrete six inches in thickness. Sidewalks and curbing are included in the plans. At the same time a resolution was adopted providing for the widening and paving of San Fernando Boulevard from Palm avenue to Benmar. This adds another link in the chain that ultimately spells a widened San Fernando road through Glendale and Burbank from Los Angeles to San Fernando.

RANCH EXCHANGED FOR ORCHARD AT ONTARIO

Through the Frank Meline Company's exchange department a fifty-two acre ranch at San Bernardino, the property of J. B. Fay, was exchanged for a peach orchard at Ontario.

George J. Lawson, manager of the Meline Company's exchange department, represented all parties in the transaction. Williams Brothers of Upland, Cal., were the owners of the Ontario orchard property. The valuation of the respective properties in question was $45,000 each.

Local Broker Gives Talk to Oakland Board

C. C. C. Tatum, Pacific Coast vice-president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, spoke last Thursday evening before the Oakland Real Estate Board on the subject of "Real Estate Advertising," showing the slides which he gave before the homebuilders' and subdividers' business meeting at the last national convention.

Mr. Tatum also spoke of the coming national convention which is to be held in Washington, D. C., June 3-6, and told the Oakland real estate men of extensive plans which are being made in the national capital to receive the delegations from the United States and Canada.

Mr. Tatum brought back a special message for the Pacific Coast real estate men from the meeting recently held in Chicago of the officers and directors of the national association. He also brought assurance that the Pacific Coast would be well represented on the program of the national convention this year.

SILVER LAKE TERRACE

Achievement!

The developers of Silver Lake Terrace, closest-in subdivision of scenic homesites, take pride in announcing to lot owners and the public in general that Unit No. 1 is now ready for building.

Sewers, water, gas, cement sidewalks and curbs and six-inch concrete are installed on Silver Lake Boulevard and Moreno Drive. The same applies to Van Pelt Place, Helms Place and Redcliff Drive, save that the concrete in the streets is five inches thick.

All improvements are in on Elza Avenue and Fawn Avenue; paving will begin immediately. Effie Street and Rendall Place are being prepared.

Sewers, water and gas are being installed throughout the second unit of Silver Lake Terrace. The paving program will begin as soon as the pipes are laid.

Concrete Streets Throughout
Sewers, Water, Gas and Electricity Included in Purchase Price

Construction of several houses is already under way. One is nearly completed. Discounts for immediate building will be allowed.

Silver Lake Terrace, within 15 minutes of Sixth and Broadway, just north of Sunset Boulevard at Silver Lake Boulevard, a few blocks west of Alvarado, is a golden opportunity for those who wish to build immediately in a new, FULLY DEVELOPED district.

The tract office at 3525 Sunset Boulevard is just east of Hollywood Junction (formerly Sanborn Junction).

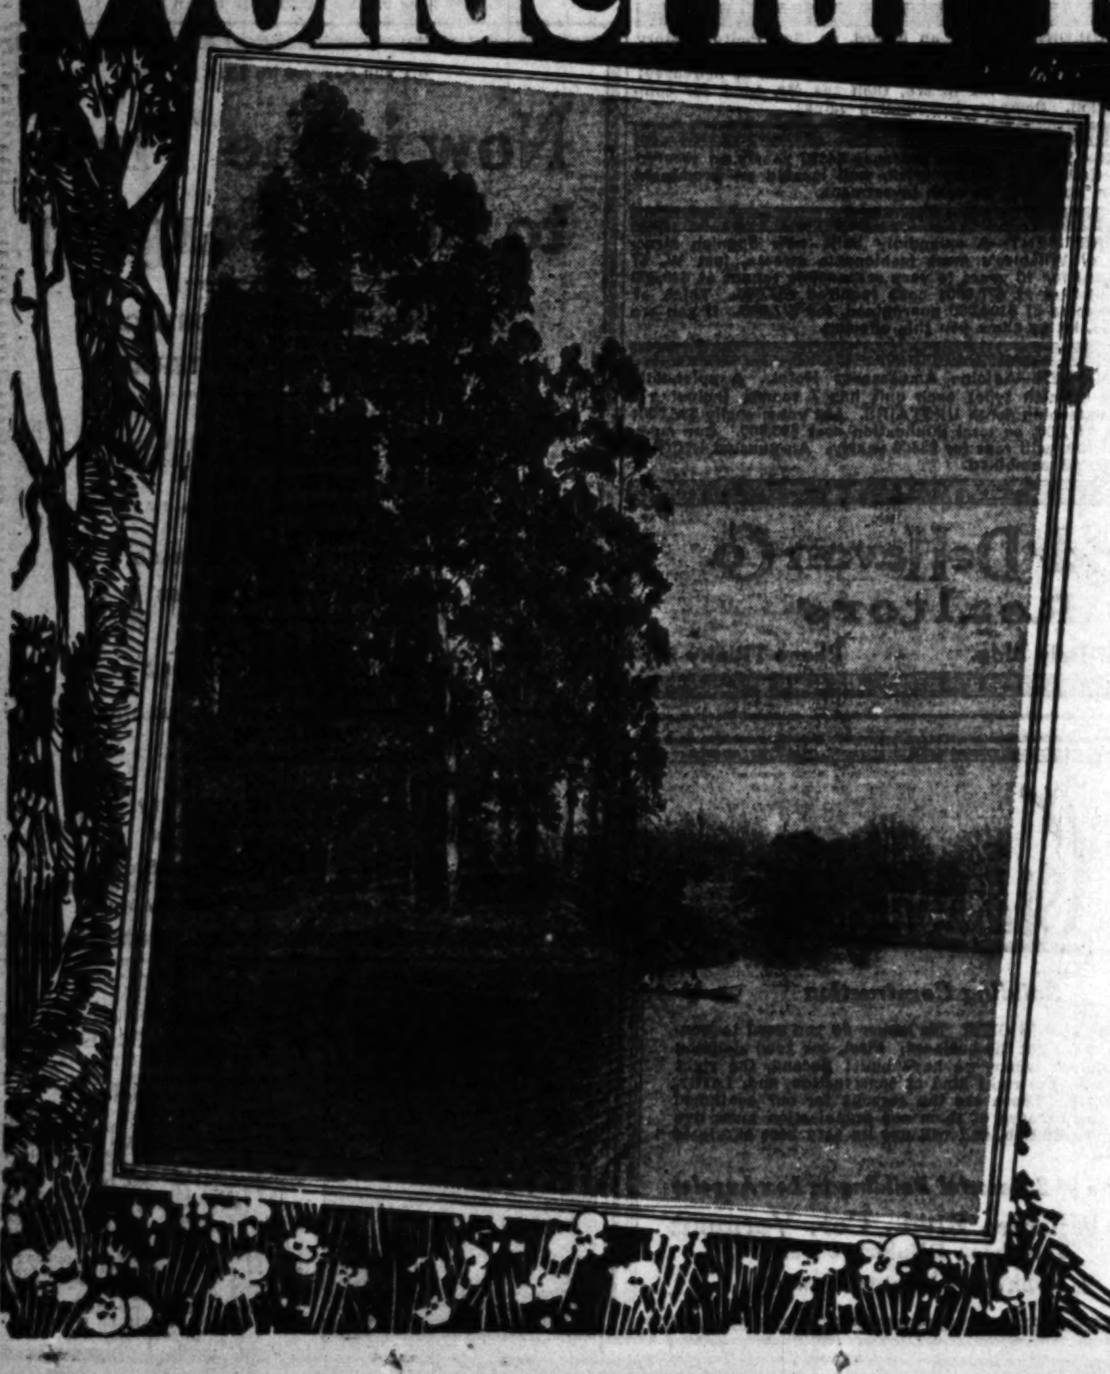
Wonderful Toluca Lake Park



is a lavish, heart-satisfying setting for a home. It is an ideal environment for outdoor-loving people. Great oak trees line the banks of a large silvery lake. Fruit and walnut trees are on almost every lot. A Community Park graces the lake's banks. One hundred and twenty-five acres of this tract was recently purchased by the Lake Side Golf Club to be immediately developed into one of the sportiest courses in the Southwest. A large Club Building will be constructed at the lake's edge.

Toluca Lake Park Has Everything to Make Life Worth Living

It is surrounded by stately mountains. It lies between two main highways leading to Hollywood and Los Angeles. It is near schools, churches, social activities, amusements and business. It is quiet, restful, aristocratic, beautiful.

Toluca Lake Park is just ten minutes from the center of Hollywood, within the city limits of Los Angeles.

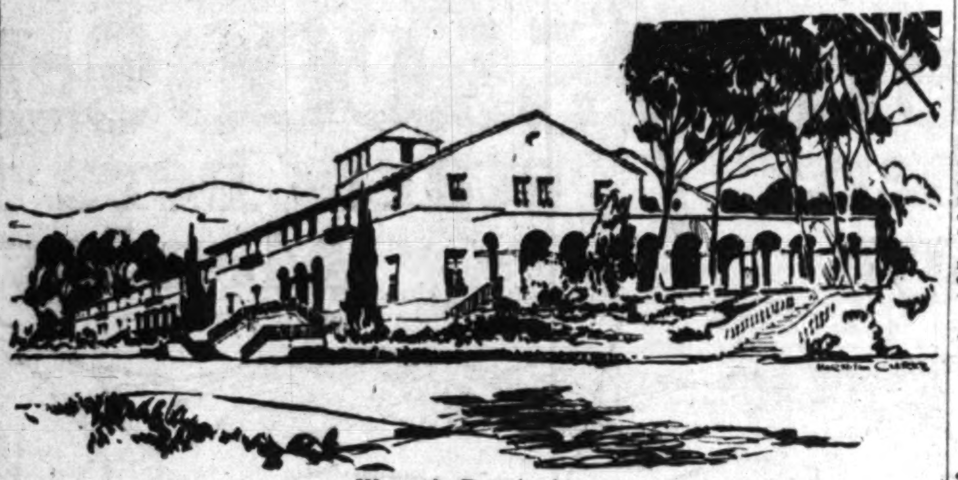
The part of the second mortgage in such financing will be discussed. Building a mortgage business will be the general topic of the June 4 program. The function of land banks will be discussed in relation to regional development.

EAST SIDE PROPERTIES ARE SOLD DURING WEEK

The J. W. Lewis Company reports the sale of the property at 770 Crocker street, through F. H. Greer of its San Pedro-street branch office, to Louis Soldoff, owner of the Atlas Electrical Company now located at 783 South San Pedro street. The sellers were A. J. Reyes and Tony Dibetti. The Atlas Electrical Company deals in wholesale electrical supplies and fixtures. The J. W. Lewis Company also report the sale of the property at 1295 East Sixth street, through C. A. Kurlander for Sylvester L. Weaver to H. W. Broughton, who intends to improve it with a modern building in the near future.

First of Three New Units for Occidental College



Women's Dormitories

DORMITORY FOR STUDENTS

The first of a series of three buildings to be erected on Occidental College campus will start within the next thirty days, it was announced yesterday by Myron Hunt, architect. Plans for the initial structure provide for a women's dormitory making quarters for fifty or sixty women students. Cost is estimated at $150,000.

The first unit is being built in memory of the wife of William M. Orr of Pittsburg, and when completed the structure will be known as the Bertha Harton Orr Hall. According to specifications more than seventy rooms will be contained in the dormitory including rooms of various types with a majority of single rooms.

Construction will be class C with brick and concrete as exterior finishes and tile for roofing. The unit will form a quadrangle which will be linked with the two proposed buildings by a colonade. Frontage of the structure is 233 feet while the depth is thirty-seven feet.

Will Improve Sierra Madre Business Site

SIERRA MADRE, April 19.—The corner of Central avenue and Auburn street will be improved with several store and office buildings, it was disclosed this week following the announcement of the sale of the property by Thomas Yerxa to Thomas H. Ray of Bozeman, Mont. According to the new owner either several small two-story buildings or one large building will be erected on the property. It has been planned, he said, to have store rooms on the ground floor and offices on the upper story. The corner is the largest piece of unimproved business property in the city.

Mr. Ray is now residing in Sierra Madre and may occupy one of the store rooms himself, he said. For many years he was a prominent grocer in Montana.

Property of every description, but especially home sites, is selling at a rapid rate, leading real estate men of this city announce. George A. Oswald, Andrews and Hawks, and other firms declare the present season is the most active of any experienced in Sierra Madre for some years. Just recently the Mount Tara Springs estate, which was at one time owned by Lyman Gage, former Secretary of the Interior, and later by Prince John de Windsor, claimant of the throne of the King of England, was sold for a sum said to be near $100,000 to the order of Passionate Fathers for the purpose of erecting a huge monastary on the premises.

HEARINGS NOW ON

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, April 19.—Public hearings are now being held weekly in Inglewood on the proposed zoning of this city on plans prepared by G. Gordon Whitnall of the Los Angeles Planning Commission. The first hearing was held last Thursday evening at the City Hall. Three meetings will be held in all, and at the conclusion of the same final arrangements will be made for submitting to the voters at a special election the proposed ordinance providing for the zoning.

BABY CHAMBER HOSTS

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HOME GARDENS, April 19.—Arrangements are being made by the "baby" Chamber of Commerce of this community, which has been given that name for the reason that it is the youngest chamber in the harbor district to entertain the members of the Harbor chambers on Thursday evening, May 8. Samuel Dudlext, who is one of the leading members of the Home Gardens Chamber, having been instrumental in it's organization, states that preparations will be made to entertain more than 300 people at this meeting and the session will be held in the Dudlext Auditorium of which he is the owner.

Realty Man to Give Lecture on Subdivisions

Lon J. Haddock, chairman of the educational committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board will speak Monday evening on "Subdivisions" before the class in general real estate of the University of Southern California. Wednesday evening he will speak before a class of 250 Glendale citizens on "Personal Efficiency" in a course of eight lectures on real estate salesmanship and efficiency which he is giving in that city.

O. A. Vickery, chairman of the appraisal committee of the Los Angeles Reauty Board spoke Thursday evening before the second section of this class on "Valuations—What Makes Them?" in which he gave a comprehensive analysis of the factors which economically prove—according to the real estate men—that Los Angeles is on a solid foundation and the comparisons with eastern cities of like size bore out the assertions of the speaker.

F. J. Buckley, a member of the harbor committee of the Los Angeles Realty Board, will speak befor the students next Thursday evening on "The Harbor and Industry in Relation to Real Estate." The speaker before the Monday evening class, the 28th inst. will be G. Gordon Whitnall, City Planning Director, and on May 12, Senator L. H. Roreberry, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, will talk on "Notes, Trust Deeds and Mortgages."

REACH LARGE TOTAD

SOUTHGATE, April 19.—This city has had one of the biggest weeks in valuation of building $66,725. The amount was greatly boosted when the Huntington Park City School district took out two permits for new school buildings to be erected in this city, which is part of the Huntington Park City School district. One of the permits calls for a building to cost $28,000 and the other for a structure to cost $19,000. Work has now started on the structures which are to be completed some time during the latter part of the summer months, and before the beginning of the new school year which is in September.

Proposed School for District

For Bandini Subdivision

Subdivisions and Subdividers

Project Big Task

Tremendous proportions of the task of developing a scenic subdivision are rarely, if ever, fully realized by the average purchaser of a hillside lot, according to George W. Dickinson of Strong & Dickinson, indentified with real estate subdivision activity in Los Angeles. Dickinson, with his associates, is at present engaged in developing Silver Lake Terrace, Silver Lake Knoll and Moreno Highlands, scenic tracts adjoining Silver Lake.

As an example, improvements in the Silver Lake Terrace tract are now almost completed and for this reason accurate figures are available. Since the opening of the subdivision a force of twenty skilled engineers, under the direction of Capt. Edward Z. Collings, have been planning the tract, surveying, making maps and attending to technical duties that arise in a development program.

Improvements consist of concrete streets, curbs, sewers, water, gas and electricity, with sidewalks bordering the streets on the level portions of the tract. More than 534,000 square feet of concrete varying in thickness from five to six inches is being used in the street work. There will be 59,000 square feet of sidewalks, 860 lineal feet of stairways with gutter and eight miles of curbing.

Rain Aids Nature

The abundant showers of the last few days have nearly brought the rainfall in the Garvey Hills section up to normal. These gently rolling hills are now green-clad and show the appearance of the annual spring conditions. The mountains to the north have had an abundance of snowfall so that there is no possibility of any water shortage for this section, which obtains its water supply from the drainage of the mountains ranging from Old Baldy to Mount Wilson.

All vacant property surrounding Garvey Hills and on the way to Garvey Hills is being cultivated and some of the finest gardens in Southern California can be seen there at present. All through Coyote Pass there is a fine growth of potatoes while the hill slopes adjoining are all covered with barley. Fertility of this soil is shown by the fact that a great portion of this property was formerly farmed by Japanese farmers who paid high rents for the property.

Attracts Attention

Announcement of a 125-acre golf course at Toluca Lake Park, new subdivision adjacent to Universal City, has lent impetus to sales volume at this tract. Thousands of visitors were in evidence last Saturday and Sunday, according to tract officials. Site for the proposed golf course was purchased by the Lake Side Golf Club, organized by a group of prominent Hollywood business men. Improvements are being installed rapidly and workmen are busy grading for roads and other improvements, according to the Heffron-McCray-St. John Syndicate, subdividers of the property.

School For Bandini

Construction of an eight-grade school building will start tomorrow in the Bandini subdivision, according to O. Nicholas Gabriel, head of the syndicate. It will be erected by Jeffrey & Schaefer, architects for the Montebello school district. Work will be rushed on the structure so that it may be ready for opening for the fall term in September. Site for this school was presented to the school district by the Bandini Syndicate when a member of the Board of School Trustees visited the tract with the intention of buying a site.

Homes Being Built

Sixty per cent of the residential sites in Albright on Sawtelle Boulevard have been sold while on 30 per cent of these sites homes have been completed or are under construction at this time, according to Harry H. Culver, who marketed the property.

Sale is Success

It is reported by F. H. Dolan that the opening sale conducted last Sunday on the land he purchased from L. E. Shepard at One Hundred and twenty-second street and Vermont, Hoover and Figueroa, was a great success. This shows that the people of Los Angeles are still interested in buying well-located property that has good streetcar service, boulevards and full improvements.

Prizes are Awarded

An exciting salesman's contest brought to a close by the DeWitt-Blair Corporation with the awarding of trophies and sizable cash prizes resulted in the smashing of several records that it is predicted will go unchallenged in real estate history in Los Angeles.

The contest was arranged by C. E. Rachal, president, and was open to all sales persons connected with the development of Hollywood Manor located in the hills bordering Cahuenga Pass and adjoining the estate of F. W. Blanchard.

C. T. Malcouronne received a silver loving cup testifying to his salesmanship in his capacity of district sales manager, while P. W. Hall was awarded a gold watch, which gave him the highest rank among assistant district sales managers.

Rapid Change Seen

Those who have been residents of Los Angeles for a number of years have witnessed some remarkable transformations coincident with local growth and development, says J. P. Schenck, sales manager of Flintridge. Persons have seen the vacant lots turn into improved homesites, truck gardens into a subdivision and the dismal dumping ground into an industrial section. At Flintridge a vast expanse of land has been developed into a high-class residential district, and only within a few years.

COSTS DOUBLE IN TEN YEARS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, April 19.—Building costs in the United States, in the midst of what economists have decreed is the country's greatest construction boom, have doubled in the last ten years, according to a statement issued by the National Industrial Conference Board of 10 East Thirty-ninth street. In its announcement the board summarized the results of a study it has been making into the national building situation. A noteworthy development by the study is that costs of labor and of materials stand at exactly the same increased levels, for the first time since 1920.

While in New York City the building crafts receive high wages, the study shows that last month they were the highest in the country in only ten out of twenty-five trades. Graphic charts accompanying the board's statement reveal the nation-wide character of rising costs, not only in wages, but also in all materials entering into building. Other cities reporting uniformly high wages are Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg, St. Louis and Houston, Tex.

The conference board's investigation covered the leading American cities, and took in all the crafts and the leading elements in building material. Wage figures were based on government and other reports annually in May from 1914 to 1920, and monthly since August of that year.

CURRENT WAGES

Among the separate trades, plasterers and bricklayers receive the bulkiest pay envelopes in practically all cities. Bricklayers get $1.25 an hour in fifty cities, and plasterers in forty-four cities, while in St. Louis the rate is $1.75 an hour. Lathers and masons get $1.50 an hour in Houston, Tex., the same rate being received by roofers and hoisting engineers in New York. Masons get $1.25 an hour or more in twenty-eight cities, lathers in twelve cities, hoisting engineers in seven cities and roofers in four.

Gasfitters and steamfitters in Houston, plumbers in Houston and Pittsburg, ornamental iron workers in Cleveland, marble setters in Philadelphia and tile setters in Shreveport, La., all get $1.37¼ an hour. In New York the trades best paid next to those above cited are carpenters, cement finishers, painters, pipe coverers, sheet-metal workers and structural iron workers. These get $1.31 1-4 an hour. Although their wages are less, steamfitters' helpers and laborers get the highest wages in the country in New York.

The hodcarrier, once figuring prominently as the butt of cartoon and caricature, now counts himself among the aristocracy of labor, according to the board's survey, for he earns up to $1.25 an hour, and the average earned by all hodcarriers is more than 90 cents an hour, in the cities surveyed.

The same sustained high levels as shown by the trades mentioned are also being experienced by and sheet-metal workers.

Prices of building materials until recently more than kept pace with the rise in wages, the announcement reveals. It shows that from 1915 to 1920 the prices of materials increased more than twice as much as wages. In 1921, however, they fell to approximately the same levels as wages, and during the past year the present 100 per cent increase over 1914 in both was established.

Cast-iron pipe is the most expensive commodity in construction, as compared with 1914 wholesale costs, showing an increase of 306 per cent. Other materials which have more than doubled in the last ten years are Douglas fir, lime, white pine, white lead and turpentine.

Sheet copper and copper wire show the least advances over 1914 of only 4 and 5 per cent. Pine flooring and structural steel show great reductions over the peak period.

The general trend of building costs, taken as a whole, as shown by the National Industrial Conference Board's survey, is a tendency downward for materials, and a rising tendency in wages. There was nothing adduced in the survey to indicate appreciable reductions in building costs in the near future, conditions in the United States as a whole being considered.

Results of the survey will be made known to the thirty-odd industrial associations for which the conference board acts as the research agency.

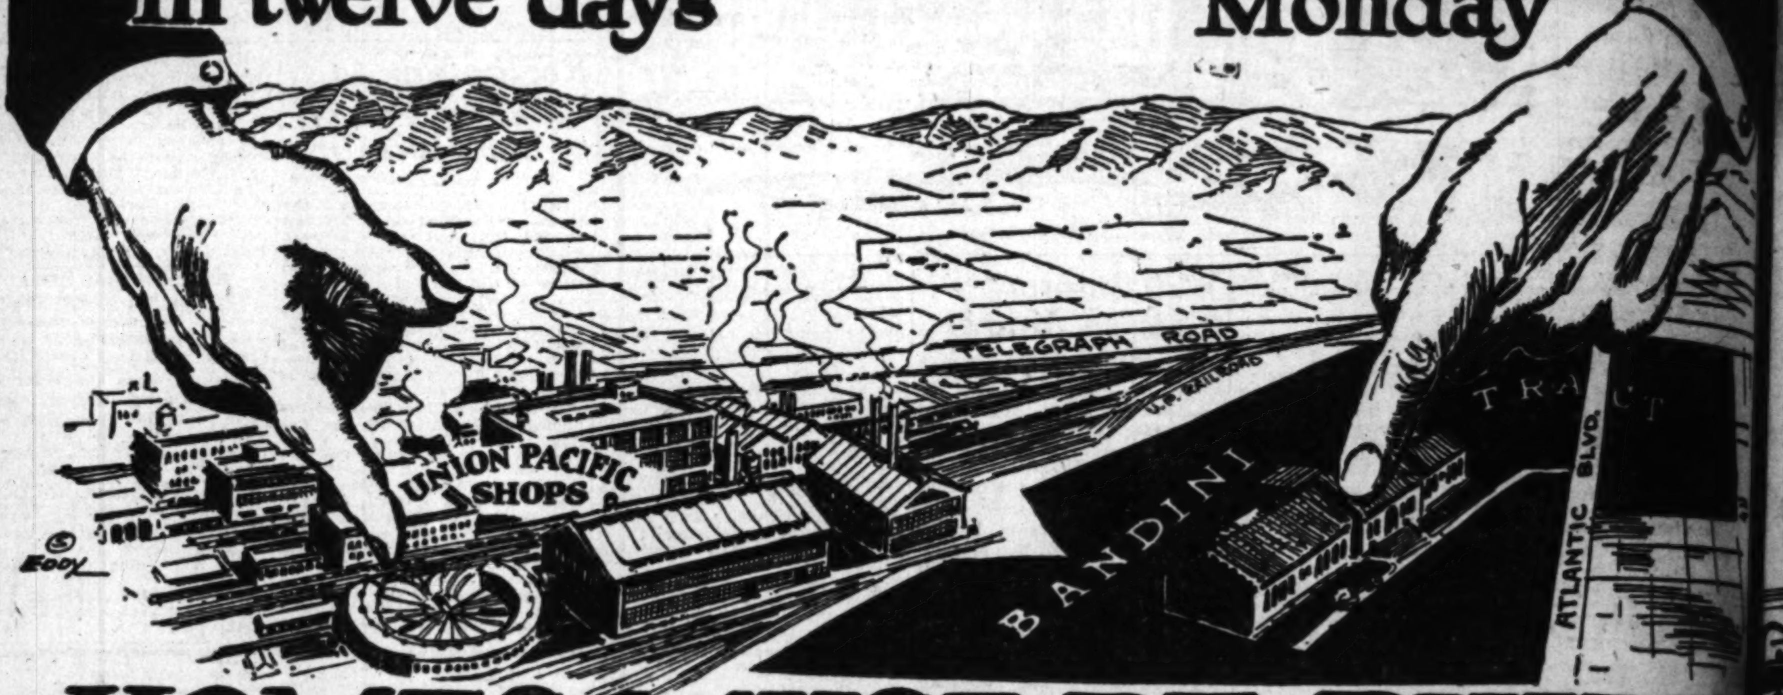
OPENS GROCERY STORE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SPRINGVILLE, April 19.—A valuable addition to the business section of Springville is the grocery store established on Main street by S. M. Bevan. Mr. Bevan states that he and Mrs. Bevan first became interested in Springville by motor trips to the Soda Springs, and decided to make their next addition to their chain of stores at this scenic location. It is probable that a building site for a home will also be purchased and the family established here.

600 Men go to work here in twelve days

$55,000 School starts here next Monday



HOMES MUST BE BUILT FOR THESE PEOPLE!!

HERE ARE THE FACTS
About the $2,000,000 U.P. Shops

These shops are built. They cost over $2,000,000. From the very start they will employ 600 men. More will come as required, officials state.

But where will the families of this first 600 live?

There is scarcely a convenient dwelling available. Temporarily these men will live far from their work—not because they want to, but because they must. Bandini Syndicate subdivision, literally surrounded by industrial districts, adjoins these shops. But it has been open only a few weeks. It is the logical place for these men to live and trade, but homes and stores must be built first. Railroad men make good money, live in nice homes. They are willing to pay well for accommodations, dwellings, bungalow courts, apartments, etc. The demand for the houses you build here is already present.

HERE ARE THE FACTS
About the $55,000 School

Construction starts next Monday. It is to be completed in time for opening of the Fall term. AND TODAY THERE ISN'T A PUPIL WITHIN A MILE OF THE SITE! THINK! THINK!

This Montebello school board calmly calculated what the SEPTEMBER SCHOOL REQUIREMENTS OF THIS CABBAGE PATCH would be—and ordered a $55,000 school constructed! These men knew that by September there would be enough children to fill the 6-room school they authorized. AND THEY ORDERED IT BUILT IN THE HEART OF BANDINI SUBDIVISION. They know that the cabbage patch of May will be a densely settled residential district in September! Never was the future of a piece of land more certain!

This Is but the Start of "The Other Half of Los Angeles"

The Union Pacific Shops are part of the 1000-acre Union Pacific Industrial district, which adjoins Bandini Syndicate subdivision. Here, it is stated, $100,000,000 worth of industries will locate! This mighty railroad is conducting a nation-wide "drive" to bring industries to this district.

Sites for $8,000,000 worth of industries (6 concerns) have already been sold in Bandini Industrial district adjoining our tract on the south. Work has started on two of them. These six are sufficient to bring at least 6000 new population. Think of their requirements—at least $250,000 worth of merchandise monthly, 1300 dwellings, 700 hotel rooms!

Homes and still more homes are needed in this tract. We are not interested in selling to speculators—but we are ready to help finance home construction.

BOY SCOUTS ERECT OWN CLUB BUILDING

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19.—This city now has a clubhouse for Troop No. 3 of the Boy Scouts organizations of the city, the structure having been erected by the members of that troop to be used for their especial benefit.

There are twenty members of the troop, and recently D. L. Burgeson, who is scout master of the troop, made a proposition to the boys that if they would erect the building after securing the material, they could have part of a vacant lot which he owned. They took him at his word, secured the lumber at wholesale cost, and the electrical wiring and the paint were donated to the lads. They completed the building during the week. The structure is 16x20 feet, contains twenty-three lockers, and has a five-foot front porch. In front of the building is a lawn, and in front of the lawn athletic grounds will be arranged.

They were assisted in erecting the structure by Mr. Burgeson and Assistant Scout Master A. B. Collins.

Looking Out Over the World at HIGHLAND HILLS

YOU look out over all that portion of the world in which you are living.

At HIGHLAND HILLS you have an uninterrupted view, subscribing a semi-circle from the snow-capped mountains on the east circling south and west until at last your vision rests upon the western sea. On a clear day your view includes Catalina Island. Before you in the foreground lies the City and the valley.

At HIGHLAND HILLS you get acres and fractions of acres at less than prices of fifty-foot lots in the flat lands in the Valley before you. You get all modern improvements—gas, electricity, water, paved streets, parkways, etc. These homesites are within the reach of people of moderate means and are comparable in beauty to the highest-priced villa sites anywhere along the foothills.

The average man does not buy a price when he is seeking a home. Price is the second consideration. So it is here, but, at the same time, the price is attractive and not prohibitive.

Thoughtful buyers will invariably investigate every offering before deciding on buying a home, and we ask you to seriously investigate Highland Hills. We know that, if you will do yourself the justice to visit Highland Hills, look over the property and get the view, you will be both charmed and pleased. There is not a great deal of Highland Hills and it will not last long. QUARTER SHOWS EIGHT PER CENT BUILDING GAIN

California Shows Steady Increase in Operations Over Last Year; Washington Heads List

The first quarter of 1924 has witnessed an increase of more than 8 per cent in the building activity of Pacific Coast cities over the same period of last year, and a gain of 57 per cent over the building program of 1922, as shown by an analysis of the Pacific Coast section in the monthly building survey of S. W. Straus & Co. From seventy-one cities, for which comparable figures are available, this survey reports a total of $129,426,312 in building permits issued during the first three months of this year. During the same period of 1923 these same cities issued a total of $119,083,019 in building permits, while the total for the previous year was $82,096,046.

The greatest relative gain was made in the nine cities of Washington included in this survey, which show an increase of 48 per cent over 1923 and an increase of 100 per cent over 1922.

In Oregon, three cities show a 36 per cent increase over the first quarter of last year and an increase of 43 per cent over the 1922 figures.

CALIFORNIA'S GAIN

California's fifty-two cities comprise the survey show an increase of 3 per cent over last year and a 55 per cent increase over the quarterly total of 1922.

Seattle, with a total of $7,710,625 for the first quarter of this year shows an increase of 71 per cent over last year and 82 per cent over the year before.

Salt Lake, reporting $1,187,192 for the quarter, shows a gain of 56 per cent over the first quarter of last year and 217 per cent over the same period of 1922.

Portland's total of $7,633,530 for the quarter, shows a gain of 27 per cent over the 1923 figures and a 30 per cent gain over 1922.

Tacoma, reporting $3,523,345 for the first quarter, shows a gain of 43 per cent over 1923 and a 294 per cent gain over the previous year.

The greatest relative quarterly increase in California was that of Long Beach where a total of $7,641,420 show a 19 per cent increase over 1923 and 147 per cent over 1922.

San Francisco, reporting $11,743,512 for the quarter, shows a gain of 30 per cent over the first quarter of last year and a slight increase over the previous year.

Oakland's $7,166,152 for the quarter shows a 10 per cent gain over 1923 and a 53 per cent gain over the first quarter of 1922.

Los Angeles reports $46,611,696 for the first three months, more than 35 per cent of the grand total of the seventy-one cities comprised in the survey. It shows a 4 per cent gain over 1923 and a 75 per cent gain over 1922.

Women Soon to Have Part in Association

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, April 19.—A woman's auxiliary to the California Real Estate Association will no doubt be formed at the next convention of the organization, as there are now more than 10,000 women realty dealers in the State, it was declared here by J. W. Jennings, field secretary of the State association. Mr. Jennings addressed the Inglewood realty dealers, telling of the great success of the multiple-listing system in Eastern States, where it has been tried out for a dozen years.

The board was the guest at today's luncheon of Carl P. Sheddan, local realty broker, who has realized a snug fortune in recent weeks in deals that are the result of the $500,000 lease taken on Los Angeles Investment Company property north of Inglewood, and which has greatly accelerated activity in this section. This was Mr. Sheddan's forty-seventh birthday he told the board, which passed a vote of thanks for his generosity.

EXCHANGE RANCH FOR SAN JACINTO PROPERTY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SAN JACINTO, April 19.—A realty deal of considerable size, now under escrow, involves the trading of the Stewart & Smith business property on South San Jacinto avenue to Oscar Kurtz for the Kurtz ranch of twenty acres at Seventh street and Kirby avenue. The amount involved is reported at $30,000.

The Stewart & Smith property consists of 125 feet on San Jacinto, extending back 290 feet to Sheriff. It embraces the Black & Jones feed yard and the Parker Garage. The Kurtz property is fully improved with alfalfa, buildings, and a sixty-five-inch well. The purchase gives Stewart & Smith a total of 220 acres. Guy Stewart, the manager, announced that the ranch would be further improved, including another twelve-inch well to be sunk by John Potter. Mr. Kurtz will live on the ranch for the time being.

CHALLENGE LOCAL MEN TO BATTLE

Basketball Game Will be Among Chief Features of Coming Jinks

A written challenge, signed by the officials of the San Francisco Real Estate Board, has been received by Frank Ryan, general chairman of the Los Angeles Realty Hi-Jinks Committee, defying the local board to develop a basketball team to defeat the Bay City quintette of realty brokers and salesmen which has been organized by the Northerners to take part in the program of the coming inter-city friendship celebration, to take place at Del Monte, May 23, 24 and 25.

H. F. Ramacciotti, general chairman of the San Francisco Hi-Jinks Committee, was the author of the document which was written in legal verbiage, and which possessed the official gold seal of the San Francisco Real Estate Board.

The local program committee is arranging to specially feature this basketball clash between the real estate men of the two cities so that the maximum attendance will be present to witness the struggle. The appointment of the umpire and referee for this game will be announced on the eve of the contest.

The importance of this challenge to local real estate men has resulted in a special meeting of the Hi-Jinks Committee being called by Chairman Ryan for tomorrow afternoon in the realty board building on Flower street.

Announcement has also been made by the committee that Monte Blue has been added to the list of motion-picture stars who will join the local real estate men in their migration to Del Monte a month hence.

ERECT NEW BUILDING

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

SOUTHGATE, April 19.—Another new business block is being erected on Seville street just north of Santa Ana for Joseph Nichols. The building when completed will have two modern store rooms. The structure is of brick and will cost about $5000.

Mr. Ulrich of Winnipeg, Can., is also having a two-story stucco erected in the same territory. J. W. Saunderson is erecting two courts on Santa Ana street, near Seville, which will, when completed, show an expenditure of about $7000. C. A. Shaw, the contractor, is doing the work.

Properties on Larchmont to be Improved

The deals on Larchmont Boulevard which aggregate a total investment of more than $200,000 and which involve the construction of two store buildings, were anounced yesterday by A. R. Thompson, manager of the lot department of Burton & Co., realty and investment brokers, located at Tenth and Western.

Negotiations have been completed for a fifteen-year lease on property near First street, with 50 feet frontage on Larchmont for Sam Selig. A. L. Wilson, owner of the property, will construct a one-story brick store building. The total investment in lease and construction is approximately $140,000.

Through Burton & Co., the northwest corner of First and Larchmont, 50x135, has been sold by a syndicate of local investors, headed by F. A. Butterworth. A one-story brick store building will be erected on this property. A. B. Kirk is the buyer and the purchase price was about $60,000.

Two other one-story store buildings will be constructed on property sold during the past week by Burton Co., according to Thompson. The property adjoining the corner of Tenth and Norton, 56x100, was sold for $40,000. A building will be erected on this site at once. The northeast corner of Melrose and Van Ness was also sold during the week. This deal amounted to $60,000 and the property was purchased from the Westlake Park Investment Company by a local syndicate.

Leases for practically all of the stores have been signed in advance of construction. The leases were handled by Edward Schmidt, manager of the leasing department of Burton & Co.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR HUNTINGTON PARK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19. Another new industry is to be located in Huntington Park, to be known as the Los Angeles Lithograph Company. The company has obtained a five-year lease on the American Legion Building, which was purchased a few months ago by J. F. McSwain and T. H. Endicott. It is the intention of the owners of the building to make a few alterations and the company will then move in. The plant, which will be opened some time in May, will employ forty persons.

LISTING PLAN IS SUCCESSFUL

Representative of State Body Talks at Inglewood

Plea Made for Full Support of Educational Program

Classification of Farm Lands Now Contemplated

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, April 19.—That multiple-listing systems have been uniformly successful in the East, where they have been in operation for a dozen years, and that when given a fair trial, with the honest co-operation of all members, they have been successful in the three years they have been tried out in California, was the message to the Inglewood Realty Board of J. W. Jennings, field secretary of the California Real Estate Association, at its last meeting. Mr. Jenning's address was well received by the local brokers, who had postponed action on making the board a 100 per cent multiple-listing organization until after hearing Mr. Jennings, and it is anticipated that when the matter comes to a vote at the next meeting action on the plan will be favorable.

Mr. Jennings emphasized two points, first, that membership in the multiple-listing system did not obligate the member to place his listings in the system unless the owner, after hearing the plan fairly explained, wished it, and, secondly, that when property owners really understood the plan they would insist upon their property being so listed, and that, wherever given a fair trial, the multiple-listing system resulted in the volume of business being accelerate from 25 to 50 per cent.

Praise of Edwin T. Kaiser, State Real Estate Commissioner, for his work for the profession; a warning that thousands of dollars are being spent to defeat the present laws as well as to prevent them from being strengthened, and an appeal to back up the commissioner and the State real-estate organization in efforts to combat these dangers were made by the speaker.

Certain elements among the unethical realty brokers, who wish to continue to defraud the public unhindered, are behind the efforts to nullify and to prevent the strengthening of the present laws governing real-estate operations, declared Mr. Jennings, who told of their lobbying activities.

Mr. Jennings made a strong plea for the participation of all brokers in the education program now on foot, whereby real-estate courses can be taken by the board members at Southern Branch or by an extension course under the direct supervision of the board. Before the present realty laws can be altered, he pointed out, it must be known that the present personnel of the boards can meet the proposed requirements.

Those who pass the two semesters' work with a satisfactory grade, he declared, will be given a degree from the university, which means no further examinations will be required. Suitable graduation exercises will be held by the board to which the member belongs. Eventually, a personal examination will be required of all those who have not taken the required course, according to Mr. Kaiser's plans.

A new form of multiple listing, to include all the approved farm land on the market in the State, with recommendations as to just what form of agricultural activity it is best fitted for, these listings to be available to all members of the State association, is now in contemplation, it was stated by Mr. Jennings, as part of the "back-to-the-land" movement fostered by that organization.

Mr Jennings told of the success of the various land conferences held recently, including those at Riverside, Fresno, Chino and El Centro, out of which has grown plans for interesting the general public in farm lands.

He also told of his own work, including the forming of a dozen new boards in the last three months, the next one on the program being the South Pasadena board, which he was scheduled to address the next day.

The Inglewood board's high standing among the other boards was mentioned by the speaker, who also took occasion to praise the qualities of leadership which have made the board such a success under the direction of President Frank D. Parent.

The board, on the recommendation of Mr. Parent and on motion of George E. Longan, seconded by R. W. Thornton, moved that the State director of the organization be elected by the local board.

Mr. Parent, after calling for the report of Mrs. Jeanne Dunham, chairman of the ladies' night committee, pointed out that there would be no luncheon next Monday noon, but that the ladies' night would be held at the Inglewood Country Club that evening.

BUILDING SHOWS SLIGHT DECLINE

While building activity for the first seventeen days of April shows a substantial gain over the corresponding number of days in April of last year, a slight decline, as compared with the first half of last month, is reported by the building department.

The total for the current month, up to and including the 17th inst., was $8,923,260, with a total of 2840 permits issued. During the first seventeen days of April, 1923, there were 2958 permits, carrying a valuation of $8,699,280 issued. The first seventeen days of March, of this year, had a total of 3136 permits, with a valuation of $10,248,601.

PRESENT WIDENING PETITION

Plans for Improvement of Florence Avenue Are Making Good Progress

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19. When the present plans of the Los Angeles County Regional Commission are carried out in regard to this city, Florence avenue, which extends from the western boundary of Huntington Park to the eastern city limits, will be a 100-foot boulevard.

A petition has been in circulation recently among the property owners on the north side of this boulevard, which is the only side of this street in Huntington Park, the south side being in Los Angeles territory. This petition is now before the City Board of Trustees with instructions to City Clerk Hunter to check up the frontage of property. If it is found sufficient signatures have been obtained proceedings will be started for the widening of the boulevard on the north side.

Florence avenue is to be widened from Pacific Boulevard west, twenty feet on each side, according to plans. The widening also is to be made from Pacific Boulevard east to Seville street, twenty feet on each side. The street jogs fifteen feet south on the county side, and this will call for an additional five feet widening in order to straighten the street lines. Continuing from Seville street east, twenty feet is to come off on both sides.

A district is now being formed east of the city limits of Huntington Park to continue the widening as far as the Rio Hondo River, where a bridge will be installed connecting with the Downey Road and the San Diego highway.

West of the city limits of Huntington Park proceedings are already under way for a 100-foot highway as far as Central avenue, at which point it is already widened to the full width. The city of Los Angeles is taking care of the widening through that city's limits and west.

Subdividers are putting it through so that in a very short time the thoroughfare will be completed as far as Inglewood, connecting there with Centinela avenue through to Playa del Rey and Venice.

The thoroughfare in this city at present is about sixty feet in width. When widened it will be seventy-two feet from curb to curb, with fourteen feet on each side for sidewalks.

LOS ANGELES STREET LEASES ARE REPORTED

Through Charles A. Lux of the sales and lease department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, business property brokers, two leases on South Los Angeles street were consummated this week, according to the announcement made this week by Clem S. Glass, vice-president of the company.

The first lease negotiated by Mr. Lux was the ground floor of the three-story Class C building located at 538 South Los Angeles street to the Shoe Emporium, Inc., a Los Angeles institution doing a wholesale and retail business in men and women's footwear. The lessees, who are located at present at 263 South Los Angeles street, will occupy the new premises on May 15.

The second lease consummated by Mr. Lux was the leasing to H. P. Greer a space in the Gravco Building at 754 South Los Angeles street which will be used as a display and salesroom.

POULTRY BUSINESS IN VALLEY GROWING FAST

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ZELZAH, April 19.—Work is starting on five new bungalows and complete poultry units in the new subdivisions adjoining the townsite. Realty brokers report innumerable inquiries and numerous sales. The purchases in nearly all cases are made by persons who plan permanent improvement of their holdings and contemplate making this their home. Several thousand baby chicks have already arrived and are duly registered residents of the upper end of the valley's newer Petaluma. Other shipments are ordered and will be shipped just as soon as the proper accommodations can be provided for them.

The expansion of this industry in this section of the valley is reported as being even more rapid than had been anticipated, and the phenomenal success of those already engaged in the business is looked upon as certain to result in continued steady development that will call for still other subdivisions to meet the demands of the intensified farmers and the little landers.

LAUNDRY WILL BUILD

Extensive Additions to Plant at Pomona Planned; Permits Issued for Week Set Record

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

POMONA, April 19.—Coincident with the announcement that Frank Northcott of Ontario will be manager of the Pomona branch of the Southern Service Corporation Laundry, it was announced that a new building to be erected at Palomares and Commercial streets is included in the 1924 development program.

Although plans have not yet been definitely formulated for the construction of the building, it is planned that it will be a structure worthy of the organization, which has spread a combined laundry service throughout the southern part of the State. Nearly seventy-five persons are employed at the present time, but the new plant will provide for an increased payroll, besides doubling its present capacity. It was announced that the steady and continued growth of Pomona and the surrounding valley was responsible for this decision.

A bungalow court to cost $40,000 on East Alvarado street, is now being planned by Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Barnard of this city. Tom Preston of Los Angeles has been assigned as architect to design the buildings, and the plans are being prepared. Ten bungalows will comprise the court which will be built in units of five rooms each.

While permits for the first two weeks in April a year ago totaled $54,000, the corresponding time this year brought forth $72,900 in building permits, according to announcement made by Building Inspector L. W. Cowles. For the past seven days alone $30,300 was added to the present month. Seventeen permits were issued, eight of these being for new residences.

A royal balcony in a magnificently beautiful natural theater.

From the high east bank of Santa Monica Canyon you view a 210-acre stage on the floor of the canyon--golf, polo,--all the activities of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Beyond are the mountains. To the left, the ocean.

The center of society, sport and outdoor club life. Brentwood Country Club, Los Angeles Athletic Club and the Uplifters Club more than half surround Canyon Vista Park.

Cool in summer, warm in winter--the only place where mountains and sea meet and combine to make beauty, comfort and pleasure.

Nature's rarest offering, in the front yard of a great city.

Restricted for residences only until 1970. All wires under ground. Water, gas, walks, curbs, telephone wires, electric wires and sewers now in. Street surfacing to start within two weeks. Ornamental street lights now being erected.

Five houses under way--three more to start soon. The first six houses are shown on this page.

There are only a few of these choice lots. No more like them when these are gone. They are easy to acquire now. In a short time they will be almost priceless.

BUSY SUMMER IS ANTICIPATED

Monrovia to Spend Million for Improvements

Work Rushed on Construction of New School

Large Sum Subscribed Toward Hotel Project

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

MONROVIA, April 17.—A period of great and continuing prosperity which was ushered in by the new year promises to extend right through the summer and fall, and, according to even the most conservative estimates development records of this city will increase. Spending of bond moneys, public and private improvements now either under way or absolutely assured, will reach a total of $1,077,000 before the end of the year. It is probable that the figure will run closer to a million and a quarter. Here are some of the major items:

New grade school, to be ready for occupancy by October 1	$ 126,000
Recreation Park improvement, swimming pool, gymnasium, etc.	40,000
Water supply development	150,000
First unit of new City Hall annex	30,000
City's share of new bridge	18,000
New community hotel	300,000
New theater	150,000
R. R. Colby manufacturing plant	75,000
New hospital	100,000
	$1,077,000

These projects, as before noted, are either assured or already under way. The above summary, however, does not take into consideration the normal building operations which based upon the first quarter of 1924 will certainly go above $1,000,000. This means that in public and private improvements, together with the erection of new homes, factories and business blocks, Monrovia will invest at least $2,250,000.

RUSH NEW SCHOOL

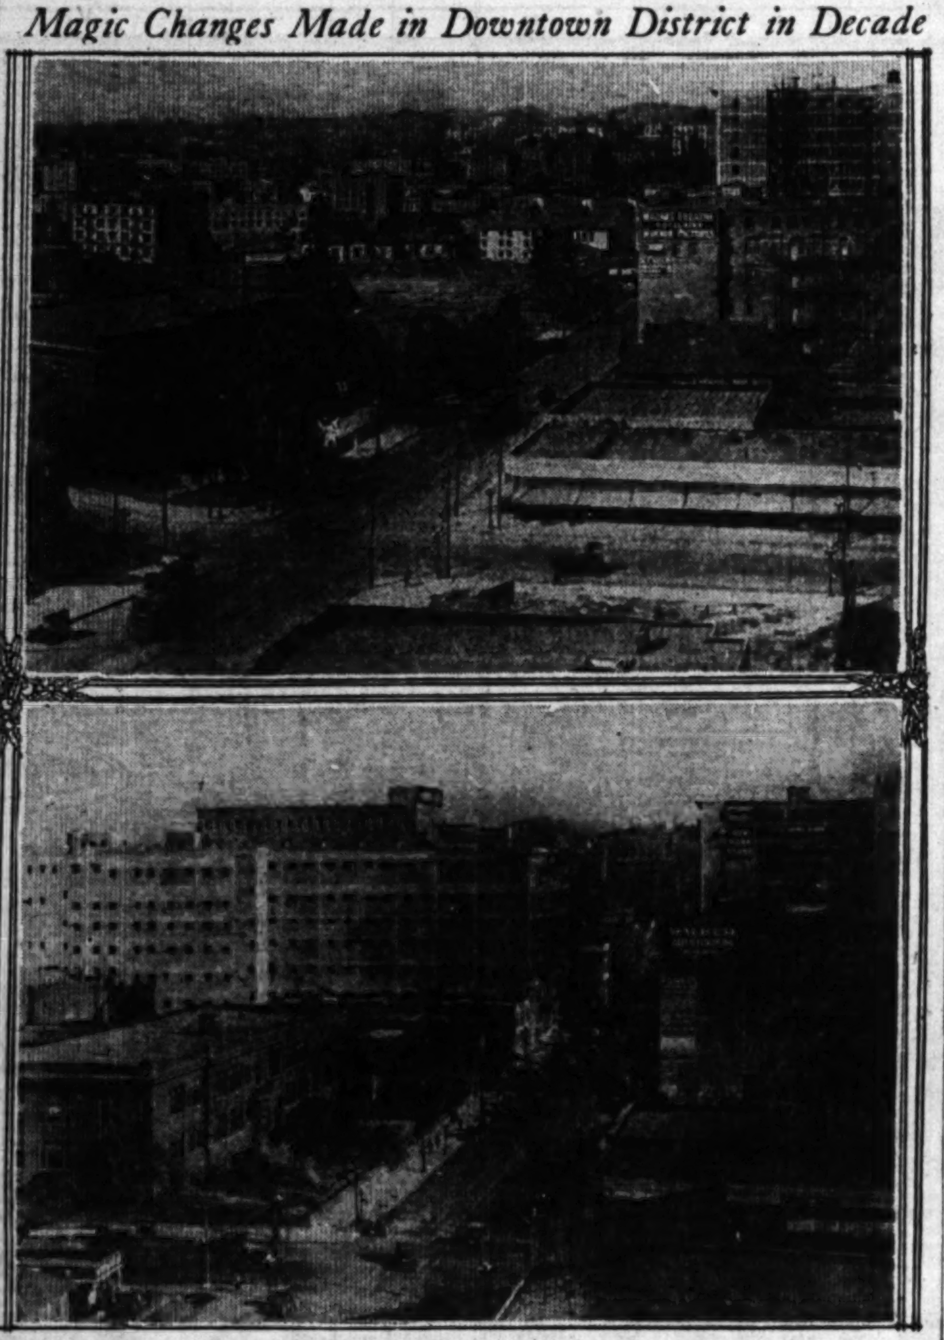
Considerable interest centers about the building of the city's Mayflower avenue Grammar School, bonds for $126,000 having been voted a few weeks ago. The Board of Education is in almost daily conference with prominent school architects, and will, it is believed, have one of the finest educational plants in Southern California. The school will be built upon the unit plan, and is scheduled to be ready by October 1. The architect has not as yet been selected, but announcement of the board's choice is expected to be made within a week. Work will be rushed upon plans and construction in order to have the building ready by the first of October. The erection of this new grammar school will mean the entire reorganization of the local system.

FOR COMMUNITY HOTEL

Bonds to the sum of $128,000 have just been subscribed as the initial unit in financing Monrovia's new community hotel, which will occupy a block on White Oak avenue, the Foothill Boulevard, between Magnolia and Melrose avenues. This hotel will be of Aztec design, with patio, roof garden, thirty guest rooms and twenty-five apartments, and according to the plans of the architects, will be quite the most unique tourist caravansary in Southern California. It will cost $300,000. It is hoped to have the place open by January, 1925.

Monrovia's newest theater building, to be erected on West White Oak, between Myrtle and Primrose will be started as soon as the owner, Frank R. Alexander, can have the 75-foot frontage cleared and plans completed. The block will have two or three storerooms and a completely equipped and full-sized stage for legitimate productions as well as for screen features. It will seat 1500.

Magic Changes Made in Downtown District in Decade



Interesting Comparison Made

What ten years means to Los Angeles development is seen in the above pictures taken at an interval of ten years. In the above picture, taken from the Stillwell Hotel, shows the corner of Eighth and Grand as it looked in 1914. The lower shows the same corner as it is today. The pictures need no further explanation.

REALTY MEN SHOULD AID

Work of All-Year Club Deserves Support of Local Brokers Says Founder of Girard

The value of the organized effort of Southern California business men in popularizing this section throughout the nation, carried on under the organization name All-Year Club is incalculable. The community advertising which is carried on through this organization is perhaps one, if not the greatest factor contributing toward the continued prosperity of this section.

The success of the All-Year Club's efforts is beyond dispute. The year just past has established a new high record for tourist traffic to Southern California. The railroads and various other organizations interested in the upbuilding of this section are emphatic in giving the All-Year Club credit for being the prime factor in making this new record.

A short time ago the writer had the opportunity of learning first-hand from eastern representatives of a railroad serving Los Angeles just what attitude toward Southern California the efforts of the All-Year Club were creating. Each one of these eastern representatives stated that the work of the club was very prominent throughout their respective territories, that the advertisements were bringing numerous inquiries about Southern California and creating a desire among the easterners to come here and live.

Southern California is capable of caring for millions more people than are already here without being crowded. Every new resident is a consumer and a factor in increasing the wealth of the community. The excellent work which has been started by the All-Year Club should be continued and merits the support of every business here from a selfish standpoint. It merits their support with dollars.

The real estate business can be said to be the one which receives the first direct benefit of these community development organizations. Every newcomer to this section means a new home, another property owner or an additional renter. Yet apparently the real estate operators have failed to recognize the All-Year Club as a business—getting organization worthy of their support. It should be to them an investment that will bring a definite return.

In other cities the realty men are the first to recognize the value of any effort toward the upbuilding of the community. They come forward with their money in support of any good cause which will bring returns.

It would seem that the realty men of Los Angeles have been short-sighted and have not given their support to this proven medium, being satisfied to reap the rewards of our prosperity without contributing toward it.

We have here all the things which makes this the place where life is better. To make this one of the world's greatest cities, the work of placing these facts before the people throughout the country must continue. To continue the work will take money and the realty men should recognize their responsibility by giving up one mill of every dollar of their gross earnings to be used in this work. The Girard organization will gladly take the lead to start this movement in the right direction.

Roger W. Babson, the country's greatest statistical expert, has told us that if it were not for the new people, and the new money being brought to California through advertising, conditions would be very difficult here.

LATVIAN WOOL INDUSTRY

Wool production in Latvia, according to official estimates, is placed between 700 and 1000 tons per year, which amount is not nearly sufficient to satisfy the needs of the country. In 1922 the countries of origin for Latvian wool imports, mentioned in the order of their relative importance, were Germany, Belgium, England, France, Russia and Denmark. Since there is no wool nor any appreciable quantity of wool textiles exported from Latvia, it naturally follows that practically all of the imported wool is consumed by the domestic industry. Very little attention has been paid thus far to the improvements of breeds of wool-producing sheep, but at the present time plans are being discussed by the Latvian government to increase the production of wool in the country. In the past decade there has been a considerable increase in the number of sheep in Latvia. It seems, however, that the country will have to depend upon imported wool, at least for some years to come, Trade Commissioner C. J. Mayer, Riga, reports to the Department of Commerce.

FIXES MINIMUM PRICES

At a recent meeting of the Association of Saxon and Thuringia Emroidery Machine Owners a minimum price list, effective January 21, 1924, was decided upon. The association controls 4185 embroidery machines through its members, who do a large part of their work for the account of cotton goods manufacturers and act as finishers rather than producers. Many contracts to finish goods during 1923 were accepted by the embroiderers at rates much below the minimum quoted by the association and transactions became largely speculative. The new price represents the first effort to establish a minimum rate since the fixing of the mark upon a permanent basis.

NEW SUBDIVISIONS APPROVED

Maps of Fifty-two Tracts Placed Before Subdivision Committee in Past Week; One Rejected Because of Narrow Streets Provided by Owner

The subdivision committee of the City Planning Commission, at its regular meeting last Monday, passed upon the maps of fifty-two new subdivisions, all of which were sanctioned, with the exception of one, which was rejected on account of the narrow streets provided by the subdivider. The unusually large number of maps submitted was due to the fact that no meeting was held during the week preceding, owing to the convention of city planners in session here at that time. The following is, in part, the report of the committee:

5491—A new subdivision lying south of Live Oak Drive at St. Andrews Place, submitted for formal reconsideration and map accepted as originally submitted, which terminates Tyrone Place at the boundary of lot No. 16.

5320—A new subdivision lying east of Highland avenue and north of Third street, tentatively approved on condition that Beverly Boulevard be widened by the owner's share of a 100-foot street; that no lots be less than 4500 square feet in area and the necessary storm drain easements be granted.

5915—A new subdivision lying north of Terrace No. 50 and east of Avenue 63, tentatively approved.

7907—(Lots "A" and "B") a new subdivision lying west of Caledonia Way at McCarthy Drive, tentatively approved.

Tract north of Kent street and west of Glendale Boulevard, tentatively approved.

6117—(Exhibit "B") a new subdivision lying north of Franklin Place at Helen avenue, tentatively approved.

6519—A new subdivision lying north of Melrose avenue at Irving Boulevard, tentatively approved.

6561—A new subdivision lying west of Annandale Boulevard and south of El Modena avenue, tentatively approved.

6465—A new subdivision lying east of Reseda avenue and north of Saticoy street, tentatively approved.

4413—A new subdivision lying northeast of Cahuenga avenue and southeast of Lankershim Boulevard, tentatively approved.

7849—(Unit 3) a new subdivision lying northeast of Kester avenue, tentatively approved.

7849—(Unit 1) a new subdivision, south of Beverly Boulevard and west of Norman Way, formally approved.

7743—A new subdivision at Highland avenue, north of Odin street, referred to Mr. Blanchard or to Mrs. J. J. Carter for investigation and consideration at this [illegible] with the streets in connection with the Hollywood Bowl.

6535—A new subdivision lying west of Childs avenue and south of Los Feliz Boulevard, tentatively approved.

6484—A new subdivision lying southwest of Arletta Boulevard and southeast of Filmore avenue, tentatively approved.

4737—A new subdivision lying south of Mississippi avenue and east of 113th avenue, formally approved.

"Wattles Park" a new subdivision lying at the northerly end of Curson avenue, tentatively approved.

6180—A new subdivision lying north of Sunland avenue and 1300 feet east of Wildwood avenue, tentatively approved.

6652—A new subdivision lying north of Sunset Boulevard and east of Kings Drive, formally approved.

6614—A new subdivision lying southeast of Willow Glen Road at Thames street, formally approved.

8181—A new subdivision lying north of Ventura Boulevard and west of Woodley avenue, formally approved.

6510—A new subdivision lying west of Avon street and south of Avalon street, formally approved.

8191—A new subdivision lying south of Saticoy street and west of Clybourne avenue, tentatively approved.

4134—Exhibit "B"—A new subdivision lying southwest of Childs avenue and northwest of St. George street, tentatively approved.

7439—Exhibit "C"—A new subdivision lying north of Saticoy street and east of Saugus avenue, formally approved.

7460—A new subdivision lying east of Saugus avenue and south of Valley Heart Drive, formally approved.

6457—A new subdivision lying southwest of Kanel Canyon avenue and northeast of Telfair street, tentatively approved.

5347—A new subdivision lying west of Figueroa street and east of Moneta avenue at Sixty-third street, formally approved.

7878—A new subdivision lying west of Canyon Drive at Lockeley Place, formally approved.

8408—A new subdivision lying south of Chiquita street and west of Lankershim Boulevard, tentatively approved.

8101—A new subdivision lying south of Oxnard street and east of Eucalyptus avenue, formally approved.

8425—A new subdivision lying west of Ellenwood Place and south of Hill Drive, formally approved.

8221—A new subdivision lying northwest of Willow Glen Road at Drury Lane, formally approved.

6182—A new subdivision lying east of Cahuenga avenue and south of Fourth street in Lankershim, formally approved.

5759—A new subdivision lying east of Avon street and south of Cerro Gordo street, formally approved.

7902—A new subdivision lying west of Laurel Canyon Road and north of San Bernardino Base Line, tentatively approved.

7390—A new subdivision lying south of Ventura Boulevard and east of Aura avenue, formally approved.

Subdivision lying north of Lynelle Place and east of Avenue Forty-two, tentatively approved.

6363—A new subdivision lying southwest of Remsen street and northwest of Paxton avenue, tentatively approved.

5976—A new subdivision lying east of Santa Susanna avenue and south of Devonshire street, formally approved.

5661—A new subdivision lying south of Devonshire street and east of Canoga avenue, formally approved.

6184—A new subdivision lying northeast of Hill Drive and northwest of Colorado Boulevard, formally approved.

5462—A new subdivision lying northwest of Childs avenue and northeast of Fountain avenue, formally approved.

7623—A new subdivision lying east of Lankershim Boulevard and north of Frank street, formally approved.

8229—A new subdivision lying south of Sherman Way and west of Shoup avenue, formally approved.

6307—A new subdivision lying north of Devonshire street and east of Santa Susanna avenue, formally approved.

3299—A new subdivision lying west of Lindsay Road and north of Seventh street. Referred to Mr. Woodward of Santa Monica for investigation and upon his favorable recommendation, will be tentatively approved.

8236—A new subdivision lying north of Ivanhoe avenue, formally approved.

7961—A new subdivision lying east of Figueroa street and north of Eighty-eighth street, formally approved.

Subdivision south of York Boulevard and west of Avenue 46, disapproved because it is against the policy of the city to accept streets of such narrow widths.

8500—A new subdivision north of Hollywood Boulevard at Kings Road, formally approved.

6479—A new subdivision lying east of Dias avenue and south of Moorpark street, tentatively approved.

New Building Will Replace Old Landmark

SAN BERNARDINO, April 19.—Another historic landmark was swept aside during the week by San Bernardino's business district expansion.

On Fourth street, recognized as the potential center of the new business district, an old residence erected early in the seventies by the late Dr. H. M. Haslett, was torn down on the property owned by the San Bernardino Lodge of Elks, making way for the construction of a modern business block.

Definite plans for the proposed block have not been announced, although the officers of the lodge are contemplating the erection of a three-story building, with four storerooms and nearly 100 office rooms on the second and third floors. The building will adjoin the Elks' clubhouse on the east and have a frontage of approximately 125 feet.

The building will be a Class A fire-proof structure, it is assured. No date for the beginning of construction has been announced.

FOR EDISON COMPANY

Start Work on New Compton Structure; Bonds Bring Premiums

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

COMPTON, April 19.—The Southern California Edison Company this week started construction of its new building here; although this district was formed only the first of this year, business has grown so rapidly that the present headquarters were found to be inadequate. The new structure will be 40 by 140 feet, one story, and built to conform to the company's regular standards. On account of the high prices demanded for Main-street property inside the two blocks of "old Compton," the new building will be built east of the Southern Pacific right of way, and thus will start an extension of the business district that way. The contractor guarantees to have the building ready for occupancy by June 1.

Announcement was made of the sale of both the grammar and high school bonds lately voted by this city. The $119,000 grammar school bonds were sold at par and $460 premium and accrued interest; the high school bonds of $650,000 were sold at par, $2600 premium and accrued interest. Inas much as Long Beach has not annexed any of the territory included in these districts since the election, it is expected the attorneys for the bond buyers will approve the proposition. Architects have been at work for some time on the various buildings contemplated, and as soon as the bonds are approved, bids will be advertised for and construction rushed so as to be ready for the fall term.

The new building for the Universal Toy Manufacturing Company of Los Angeles, being built on Alameda and Orange streets, is about ready for occupancy, and manufacturing will be commenced at once with a large force.

Conservation

Two youngsters of the 3000 block, Macpherson avenue, were together. One had an orange.

"Gimme half of it," coaxed the one.

"Naw," replied the other, "look at the juice we'd lose splittin' it.—[Indianapolis News.

Is Your Wife Protected?

WHEN Pascal said that "All animals die, but man is the only animal that knows it will die," the only animal that looks far forward to that strange event, he touched upon the great truth that is a part of the Divine plan that man alone is given time to prepare for that mysterious adventure.

Then why should so many of us be loathe to arrange our affairs that our going from this world will not leave a burden for our loved ones to bear in their hour of blinding grief?

Why not bravely and philosophically make use of this intelligence that has been given alone to man, by preparing to meet death with that same fine wisdom with which we prepare to meet the problems of life?

It is certain that none of us hopes to escape death.

The Author of life and death so laid His plans that youth itself is always kept under the shadow of that impending night. As though the mind would be wisest when it were most sober, and would be most kind when most humble, God ordered that no thoughtful person would ever dare say: "I shall live another year; older persons shall die, but I shall live."

Of one million who look out of the windows in infancy, and point to the moon and stars as so many toys within easy reach, in thirty years 400,000 have passed from the doors and the windows. Five hundred thousand have gone before the fiftieth year has come.

Thus the Author of humanity has made all minds which are capable of thought move along in the midst of their one thrilling uncertainty.

We cannot go back in history far enough to find a spot where the grave is not playing its part in soliloquy and in literature. Cicero said "Death may come today. It is always hanging over us like the stone over Tantalus."

Today in all the churches of Los Angeles is being retold the beautiful story of the Resurrection.

And today it is fitting that you should pause long enough to consider: "Have I so made my plans for death that should my end come suddenly upon me my wife and my children would not be burdened by the awful cost of proper burial?"

It is fitting that you should make a study of The Graceland Plan and of Graceland's offer to your church.

There are six reasons why your church should have its own "God's Acre."

One of them was voiced by Byron when he said: "I would rather sleep in the southern corner of a little churchyard than in the tomb of the Capulets."

You cannot afford to overlook the other five reasons. They concern the protection and happiness of your wife and your children. They concern the safety—the security—of the graves of your loved dead.

Let us give you these six reasons.

HOME PLANNED FOR OUTDOORS

Designed to Suit Climate of Southern California

Charming Adaption of Indian Architecture Made

This House Can be Built at Reasonable Cost

BY H. O. SEXSMITH

One day an easterner requested plans for a California house. He was able to define what he meant by a "California house." This is what he said: "The exterior, of course, must be of stucco and the roof of tile. The roof must be very simple in outline with few breaks, if any. Facades must be simple with wide unbroken wall spaces, and where enrichment occurs it should be concentrated at the openings.

"There should be stuccoed walls to tie the house into its setting and help it grow from the ground. Of course, I can't provide your wonderful California foliage, but I'll do the best I can with eastern shrubs and flowers to complete the picture."

He certainly had a remarkably good idea of what a true California house should be for one who admitted, as he did, that he had not been here before. Evidently, better types of home and garden magazines are winning their way slowly into the consciousness of the American public, and are beginning to affect our tastes in architecture for the better.

It would be amusing to bring our eastern friend here with his single idea of a California house and let him see in one breath-taking afternoon the pot-pourri that lines our streets. The word "jazz" would have a new meaning to him after that.

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT

There is another side to this man's inquiry that should be dwelt upon. California architects are frequently called upon to furnish plans for California houses to be built in the East. In general, this desire on the part of easterners to fit California architecture into their eastern climate is a mistake of rather serious proportions. It makes one shudder to think of what it would be like to be living in a California house in a winter blizzard on the plains of Northern Illinois.

The patio with its fountain frozen solid and the tiled eaves hanging thick with yard-long icicles would be a rather forlorn sight, to say the least. There is a type of house which is suited to every climate. That is why the Eskimo has his igloo. Of course, it is true that this idea of the California house being out of place in the East can be reversed.

It is equally true that most types of eastern houses do not fit here. We have them, nevertheless, but fortunately are beginning to wake up to the fact that we are missing a lot of real enjoyment of this wonderful "outdoor land" because our houses are not planned properly to include it. We have brought eastern traditions and attempted to impose them here but they do not fit.

ADOPT FOREIGN IDEAS

How much wiser we would have been if we could have benefitted by the experience of the early settlers who ingeniously adapted the plan and construction methods of the Spanish and Indian inhabitants when Los Angeles was known as Puebla de Nuestra Senora.

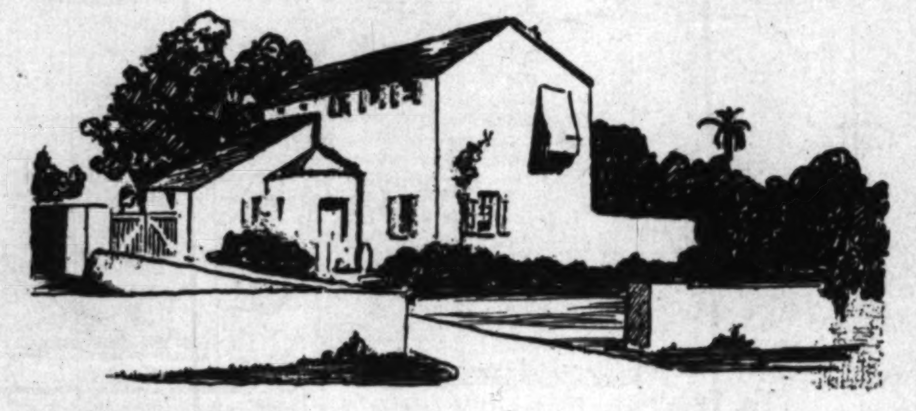
A charmingly and successful attempt at this adaptation is found in the design for a small house published today. The house is a two-story scheme and covers in a most satisfactory manner, all the requirements that were set down by our eastern friend for an ideal California house.

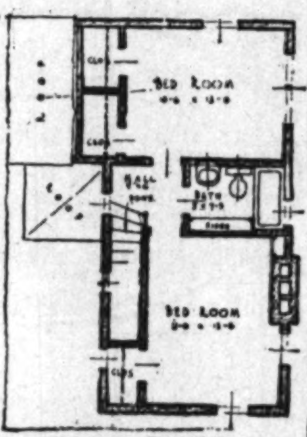
The plan is so simple and straightforward that at a cursory glance one would perhaps pass it as of no particular interest. However, closer inspection discloses the fact that this seeming simplicity of arrangement is not accidental. It is a very carefully studied plan. The arrangement of the rooms is very compact with easy accessibility to all parts.

A stairway leads directly from the living-room, avoiding added expense of a stair hall and can at the same time be made a very decorative feature in harmony with Spanish tradition. One interesting feature of the plan is that every important room in the house has cross ventilation. Rough lumber should be used throughout in keeping with the Spanish exterior. The interior plaster should be of a rough texture and the lighting fixtures of wrought iron in very simple design.

Materials in the fireplace should be of plaster with a heavy hewn shelf and perhaps a niche above for the grouping of bright copper and colorful pottery. The house is a true Spanish type entirely suitable for Southern California, and because of its simplicity of design can be built for about $6500.

Out-of-Doors Given Thought in Small House Plan





Features Simplicity

Plans for this house were prepared for the Small House Service Bureau under the auspices of the Architectural Club of Los Angeles. This bureau is located in the Metropolitan Exhibit of Building Materials in the Metropolitan Building, where sketches are on exhibit. William H. Graveley is the designer.

[With the view of rendering assistance to prospective builders and for the purpose of giving sound advice on problems arising in connection with building projects, The Times has instituted this department, which will be conducted as a weekly feature. All questions should be sent to the Real Estate and Building Department, Los Angeles Times.]

Question: Are fire insurance rates higher for a residence which has a garage attached to it or in which the garage occupies the first story and the sleeping and living quarters are above?

Answer: No, there is no increase in the regular rates for residence insurance where a garage is built in the dwelling proper or where the garage quarters are below and sleeping rooms above.

Q.: Will you be so kind as to tell us why banks of this city are advising people not to invest in real estate and are refusing to make loans for this purpose? I have heard that regular depositors secure loans and it appears to me that if it is risky for one person to invest it should be for another. What is behind this movement? Is this city not going to grow in population and advance other ways? Or do the bankers want our money at 4 per cent to make more for themselves with? I like it out here in California and would like to make my investments here, but I feel timid on account of the above situation.

A.: Banks are making loans for home building purposes, but not for speculative purposes. Banks at all times want to assist in a constructive, consistent program for the community, but do not want as a reward top-heavy, inflated, never-to-be-reached values.

Q.: I own a lot on a hillside and wish to know if I can be compelled legally by the owner of the lot next to mine to install a retaining wall when the latter's lot is excavated. When excavation is completed my lot will be several feet higher than the one adjacent.

A.: No, the owner of the lot below yours has no right legally to make you build a retaining wall. On the other hand, the owner of the lot next to yours can be made to install a retaining wall in the event of your property being endangered by reason of the excavation.

Q.: Will you tell me whether or not a mortgagee can foreclose a mortgage when the interest is paid up promptly at all times? It was a building loan mortgage and is now six months past due and mortgagee wants it paid up by a certain date.

A.: If the mortgage was allowed to fall due without being renewed, the mortgagee has the right to foreclose at any time notwithstanding the fact that interest has been paid to date. When you obtain a mortgage it is for a specified length of time and unless renewed when due it is subject to foreclosure.

Q.: Please tell me if it is possible to get a financier or building and loan association to take up the unpaid balance of $1250 on our three-room house and loan money enough to build a small house in front.

A.: This would depend entirely upon the present appraised value of your lot. We suggest that you consult with the loan department of your bank or any banking institution in the city. They will gladly give you the information you desire without cost.

Q.: Please tell me what would be the approximate cost of an apartment house and a bungalow court that would fit a lot with a frontage of sixty-three feet, a depth of 137 feet and a rear width of thirty-two feet. I wish to build whichever would prove the best investment considering the cost of each. Also please tell me if there are building restrictions for lot. It is located at——

A.: Where the lot upon which you intend to build is of irregular size, the cost of construction is often greater than it would be if the lot were of regular size. We suggest that you consult an architect or a reliable contractor. Either would be glad to tell you the approximate cost of an apartment or court built upon your lot. If there are any building restrictions for the lot you own they will appear in the deed.

Q.: I intend to construct a platform porch on the rear of my bungalow and wish to know what I can use in the way of paint to protect the pine boards and make them waterproof.

A.: Give the porch at least three coats of a good grade step and porch paint, or so-called deck-paint.

Q.: Is a notice of completion, signed by the contractor without written authority of the owner, valid? May a notice of completion be signed by anyone except the owner without the regular power of attorney?

A.: No. The contract usually provides that the architect or owner shall file the notice of completion. If the contractor were permitted to state the time of completion, he might be seriously tempted to accept the job as finished before it would meet the approval of the owner and architect. The architect might be considered, as the owner's agent, to have authority to declare the work completed without a formal power of attorney, but certainly not so with the contractor.

Palos Verdes to Get Large Country Home

Plans have been drawn by Kirtland Cutter of Long Beach for a ten-room house of the country type of Spanish architecture for Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cameron of Redondo. Construction of the house, which is to be located on the Via Del Monte on the Palos Verdes Estates, is to be commenced in the near future.

Especial approval was given by the Palos Verdes art jury. The pure Spanish architecture of the country type has been followed closely, the house being built around a patio of generous size. The principal rooms have been planned to take full advantage of a commanding view of the Redondo and Santa Monica coast. Location of the house is 800 feet above sea level on one of the highest terraces in the clubhouse section above Malaga Cove.

Estimated cost of the house is approximately $25,000. Plans for half a dozen more homes for the Lunada Bay and Malaga Cove districts of Palos Verdes are being prepared by Mr. Cutter, who is also in charge of the design of the plaza section of the Lunada Bay district.

CONFERENCE POSTPONED

The fifth district farm lands conference of the California Real Estate Association set for Monday, April 21, at Sacramento has been postponed indefinitely account the livestock epidemic, according to an announcement by the California Real Estate Association news department. Former Secretary of Agriculture Edwin T. Meredith of Iowa, who was to have addressed the conference will arrive in California the latter part of the week for a conference with real estate interests. He will visit the Sutter Basin project as the guest of H. B. Klingensmith, manager of the project, and he will also be a guest of Herman Janss, managing director of the James ranch project in the San Joaquin Valley.

Fine Homes in West End Are Reported Sold

Realty transfers involving more than $2,000,000 since the first of January are reported by Kells & Grant, Wilshire district realty brokers. Among these deals is the sale to Constance Talmadge and her mother, of the southeast corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Burck Place for a consideration of $78,500. This is one of a number of investments in Los Angeles real estate to be made by the Talmadges.

A. M. Young, promoter of the Beverly Speedway, has just acquired the palatial stone and plaster home at the northwest corner of Harvard Boulevard and Twenty-second street, formerly owned by ex-Lieut.-Gov. Wallace. Mr. Young intends to make extensive improvements, and will occupy the property as a home. The price involved is $50,000.

Dr. L. E. Ford, dean of the college of dentistry of the University of Southern California, has bought a beautiful home on Oxford Boulevard between Wilshire and Sixth street, where he plans to reside. The price which Dr. Ford paid was $50,000.

NEW AGENCY OPENED

Ready-Cut House Office Established at Hyde Park; Model Ready

Hyde Park has been selected as a location for another home building office. A sales office has been opened for the promotion of ready-cut homes at 1660 Mesa Drive, under the management of W. P. Billingsley. This office is to serve the districts including Hyde Park, Inglewood, Hawthorne and Lennox. This makes a total of fifty-two offices that are devoted exclusively to the distribution of Pacific Ready-Cut Homes.

The Santa Ana office of Pacific Ready-Cut Homes is to be under the sole management of C. O. Neese. This office was formerly operated under the name of Neese and McCoid.

Construction is progressing on a new model home at the exhibition grounds of the firm at 1330 South Hill street and it is to be completed within two weeks. This house, it is stated, will embody many new ideas in architecture. It is a Colonial structure, containing five rooms, with many built-in features. Special furniture is to be exhibited in the home during Better Homes Week.

Construction of four additional homes is under way at the tract that is being subdivided and developed by Pacific Ready-Cut Homes, Inc., at the corner of Wilshire Boulevard and Carson Road. At the present time a total of seven model homes have been opened at the tract for public inspection. A total of twenty-eight houses have been erected in the tract and twenty-three additional structures are to be built during the spring months, it is reported.

Two units, comprising twenty-six garages, are being completed for Los Robles Inn at San Pedro by the local building firm. F. W. Winseman, the San Pedro distributor of ready-cut homes, also reports the sale of three five-room bungalows to San Pedro investors.

On account of the hoof-and-mouth disease, shipments of ready-cut materials into Orange county are being made by railroad, each freight car being sealed and fumigated before leaving the local factory.

RESIDENTS WANT SCHOOL

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, April 19.—For the purpose of making a united pull for the construction of a school building on the grounds owned by this district and acquired as a school-house site, residents of West Burbank have called a mass meeting for tomorrow night. At this time the organization of a local improvement association will be effected. Residents in the district declare they number 1000 and are rapidly increasing. Many new homes are being built by new settlers whose children are now compelled to travel long distances to school. The association will also co-operate with city officials, according to the present program, in securing street improvements. It will also endeavor to secure auto stage transportation with Lankershim and Burbank.

FLEXIBILITY IN BUILDING ASSET

Construction Executive Says Flexure Important

Discloses Interesting Finding in Quake Survey

Structure Can be Designed to Withstand Shock

Safety of a building of considerable height and relatively small base during an earthquake is dependent more on the joint between columns and beams than on the walls of the structure.

That is the opinion of E. M. Scofield of the Scofield Engineering Construction Company, one of the largest construction firms in the city, and affiliated with the Southern California Chapter, Associated General Contractors of America.

"An examination of a few buildings subjected to mild earthquake shock," said Mr. Scofield, "has convinced me that, particularly in structures of considerable height, the building does not move with the earth in case of horizontal earth vibrations. On the contrary, the inertia of the upper portion of the structure holds it fixed in position while the lower portion of the building is vibrated laterally by the vibration of the earth.

"Of all buildings examined," Mr. Scofield declared, "practically every narrow building of twelve stories in height showed cracks in the upper part of the first story or in the mezzanine or second story. No signs of hair cracks could be found above these points, and where walls were damaged the damage always occurred in this same place.

"It would seem that an ordinary reinforced concrete building, consisting of columns and beams and girders, filled in between with either slab construction or joist construction, would stand mild earthquakes readily if the joints between the columns and the girders were such as to compel both columns and girders to deflect simultaneously, thus permitting the foundation to vibrate with the earth, while the upper portion of the structure, due to its inertia and the relatively short time of each vibration, would stay practically stationary.

"Without doubt, low buildings, or possibly tall buildings of relatively broad base, can be designed with walls sufficiently strong to make the entire building travel with the earth in mild earthquakes. A twelve-story building of narrow base can hardly be made to travel with the earth throughout its entire volume. It will either gravity to remain approximately stationary, or it will deflect in the rock and so allow its center of neighborhood of the second-story and thereby allow the upper portion of the structure to remain in a fixed position, usually the latter.

"The logical deductions to be made from an analysis of the effect of light earth shocks upon tall structures with narrow bases is that the walls should be relatively weak, so as to shear, while the columns and girders should be flexible with extra strong connections to develop this flexure and so permit the foundation to vibrate while the top remains stationary, without excessive damage to the building."

INDUSTRIAL MAN WILL GIVE TALK

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

Willis Owens, industrial analyst, will speak before the salesmen division of the Los Angeles Realty Board at its regular semimonthly meeting next Tuesday evening in the assembly hall of the Realty Board Building on South Flower street. His subject will be "How Industrial Development Affects Real Estate Sales."

A special entertainment feature of this meeting will be the initial appearance of the Salesmen Division Band, which has been organized for the purpose of furnishing music at social meetings of the real estate men, and also at the coming intercity friendship Hi-Jinks to be held at Del Monte, May 23, 24 and 25.

OPENS HAT STORE

Ethel B. Smith, formerly manager of the millinery department of Swelldom, has resigned from that position to open a hat shop in the Metropolitan Theater Building, at the corner of Sixth and Hill streets. Mrs. Smith has taken over half of the space occupied by the American Dye Works at 321 West Sixth street on a ten-year lease. New fixtures and larger windows have been installed. Mrs. Smith operates under the name of the Metropolitan Hat Shop. Leasing negotiations were handled by A. Dexter Gail, Jr., manager of the leasing department of W. I. Hollingsworth & Co. The lessor was the American Dye Works.

PERMIT IS TAKEN OUT FOR FULLER BUILDING

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

GLENDALE, April 19.—A building permit for a two-story concrete building to be erected at 217 North Brand Boulevard, was issued Tuesday. The permit was for $45,000. W. P. Fuller & Co. are the owners, and will use the entire building as a salesroom and for storage. The building will have a frontage of 50 feet on Brand and a depth of 125 feet. Twenty-five feet at the rear of the lot which opens on an alley is reserved for the accommodation of delivery cars. Contract for the building was let to A. A. Laisy of Los Angeles.

WITH SENGEL COMPANY

Gordon Badger, who has handled a number of high-class subdivisions in various parts of the country during the past fifteen years, has become affiliated with Sengel & Co., Hollywood realty brokers. Mr. Badger was formerly in charge of subdivision activity for Robert Marsh & Co, and was more recently engaged in subdivision activity in Cleveland O. He will take charge of the subdivision department of the Sengel Company.

SURVEY SHOWS BEACH GROWTH

Manhattan Establishes New Pace in Expansion

El Segundo Shows Increase in Oil Business

Playa Del Rey Contemplates Many Improvements

BY HELEN STARR

Beach towns have a miracle history, for the bleak sand dunes of a few years ago have been leveled and bisected with fine paved highways. Ramshackle wooden walks and bleak wastes have given way to fine modern structures, cement walks and drives.

It was not so very long ago that the sloping hills of Manhattan Beach were once neglected and forsaken. It was the beauty of the shimmering strand however, and the unsurpassed view of the Pacific, Catalina and Santa Monica Bay that attracted a few wise persons who saw a great future ahead for this town.

Clarence E. Jenkins, known as the "Father of Manhattan" was one of the early pioneers in this beach town. The Santa Fe Railroad operates a line a mile distant from the ocean and on account of this Mr. Jenkins and other early settlers had to carry lumber for their houses from this railroad line across the sands. That was some nineteen years ago.

FIRST STREET LAID

Los Angeles county, after much persuasion, put the first street in at Manhattan Beach. This avenue is now known as Center street. A year or so later, the State planned a highway from Alaska to Mexico and the Manhattan settlers urged the State to extend this road from Venice to Redondo by the way of Manhattan. However, the State did not approve of this request. It was only after several years that a few city families, realizing the beauty of the beach and its eventual possibilities, banded together under Mr. Jenkin's leadership and incorporated the town.

There are only 1400 ocean-front lots between Santa Monica and Redondo, with but a few of these for sale. Some parts of the coast line adjacent to Los Angeles are high and rocky and impossible for bathing or for sites for cottages near the water. As the population of Los Angeles continues to increase these existing ocean-front lots and others near the beaches will eventually be held at high premium.

Building permits for Manhattan Beach last year reached $786,718. These permits include three large Standard Oil storage tanks located within the city limits back of Manhattan Beach proper. One of these tanks, the largest in the world with a capacity of 3,000,000 barrels, cost $268,550. The second tank, holding 1,000,000 barrels cost $215,530 while the third cost $127,952.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL

A unit was added to the Manhattan Beach grammar school at Center and Pacific streets, doubling the capacity of the school. An additional $28,000 has been voted to increase the school's capacity accordingly. Manhattan Beach population was estimated last year at 2000 and is now estimated to be 3000.

Most of the street work finished this year was at the north end of the beach, thus opening property for 300 additional homes. The greatest development of Manhattan in the last three years has been at the north end where a half million dollars has been spent for paving, gas, electricity and other public utilities.

Rosecrans avenue promises to be an important thoroughfare as a contract has been let to extend it through to Redondo Boulevard.

The County Planning Commission will later continue Rosecrans avenue through to Orange county, paralleling Manchester avenue and Riverside Boulevard. El Camino Real will soon be paved to the Hermosa line and the Manhattan Development Company are starting street work in their new tract.

FINE TRANSPORTATION

Manhattan Beach is now served by the Pacific Electric and bus lines which extend through from Long Beach to Venice. The Santa Fe Railroad operates one train a day to hold its franchise and there is every possibility that this line will be electricized some day, affording a quicker route into the city. Manhattan has a bank, stores and market, spacious furniture store and a new $15,000 building at the corner of Manhattan and Center streets.

Residents of Manhattan have not encouraged beach shows or concessions as it is the desire of the citizens to keep it an exclusive residence town. Many persons live at Manhattan Beach the entire year, either motoring seventeen miles to Los Angeles or taking advantage of frequent car service. The beach, rising as it does gradually from the ocean bed, is considered the safest of all Southern California waterfronts for bathing purposes. Manhattan Beach is one of the last desirable ocean-front towns with close-to-ocean lots still available.

EL SEGUNDO

El Segundo came into existence in 1911 when the Standard Oil Company decided to place its refinery there. The words El Segundo mean "the second," the first refinery of the Standard being located at Richmond. Some 1500 men are employed by this company alone and the labor is 100 per cent American, conforming to the general policy of this company. The refinery occupying 1200 acres of land, serves all territories south of Tehachapi, Imperial Valley, Arizona and New Mexico. There is some shipping of oil from the pier at El Segundo but only in calm weather because the shore line faces open sea.

Last year, in the city limits of El Segundo, the Standard Oil constructed four concrete reservoirs, these being Nos. 6, 7, 8 and 9. These range from one to two million capacity and cost from $250,000 to $300,000 each. Reservoirs 10, 11 and 12 were also constructed by the Standard last year, but the latter three were in the confines of Manhattan Beach. There are now altogether twelve reservoirs in the El Segundo-Manhattan district.

OVERPRODUCTION

Construction of these reservoirs was made necessary by the overproduction of crude oil in California due to the intensive development of new California oil fields during the last three years. Production and oil storage figures leave no room for doubt as to the situation. In October, 1920, the State's average daily production of crude oil was 305,000 barrels; in 1923 it rose to more than 870,000 barrels a day. In October, 1920, California had in storage approximately 20,000,000 barrels of oil; now there are more than 80,000,000 barrels in storge.

To cope with this unprecedented situation new pipe lines were built and old systems expanded, refinery capacity was increased and additional storage facilities were provided. At an estimated cost of $35,000,000 steel tanks and reservoirs have been constructed in which to store the flood of petroleum that California's fields have yielded. The Standard's dozen reservoirs at El Segundo with a total capacity of 15,087,458 barrels, represent part of the Standard Oil Company's efforts toward meeting the industry's needs for emergency storage facilities. No. 12 is the largest reservoir of its kind in the world, having a capacity of 3,000,000 barrels of oil.

BUILDING ACTIVE

The town of El Segundo erected seventy-six dwellings last year. Building permits reached $199,220 while previous year they were $179,220. These building permits would have been higher if the new Standard storage tanks had been included, but the city of El Segundo does not require building permits from the Standard as Manhattan Beach and other towns require. A new group of store buildings was erected at the corner of Richmond and Grand streets at a cost of $25,000.

Another new building is being erected at a cost of $7500 to house a market and hardware store. A new two-story building will soon be built on another corner at Richmond and Grand streets. A new annex was built at the City Hall last year and $41,500 was spent for new fire equipment. El Segundo recently purchased the waterworks and recently voted in a $150,000 bond issue to improve the water system.

OCCUPIES BLOCK

El Segundo has a large grammar school, while high school pupils go to Inglewood. The grammar school occupies an entire block where new units are added each year. There is a playground, pool, auditorium and school units. The city has three churches and two banks.

A branch of the Los Angeles Public Library has been established there. The city is served by the Pacific Electric and a bus line to Inglewood.

The town has a population of about 3000, although due to the shortage of houses, many persons working in El Segundo are required to live outside the city. The town has some hopes of oil development as the Pan-American well, north of El Segundo, and the Fortuna, outside the city limits, have shown.

PLAYA DEL REY

Today Playa Del Rey is planning to fill in the waste lands and the construction of a harbor which they hope to create at this point on the Coast. Between Venice, Culver City and Playa Del Rey there is a huge triangular section of land containing thousands of acres of barren salt marsh lands. Reclamation of one unit of 116 acres is now well advanced. A lake of twenty acres is being dredged for a park center. Another 100-acre tract will be similarly reclaimed.

Washington Boulevard, one of the important thoroughfares to the beach, is being widened to 100 feet through this tract and is to extend to a connection with Leona avenue in the south beach section of Venice. Los Angeles owns a thirty-foot right of way for the extension to Exposition Highway to the ocean and it is said that the city will condemn land on each side of this right of way to make a wide thoroughfare and to complete it through to Playa Del Rey next fall.

The harbor at Playa Del Rey is now being dredged to accommodate small pleasure craft. Private capital has recently engaged A. P. Gillis of the Los Angeles Terminal Association, who also engineered the building of the Great Northern Railway into Seattle for James J. Hill, to look into the harbor possibilities. Mr. Gillis has been engaged by the Los Angeles Terminal Association to engineer the building of the terminal and, in addition, to build a canal 600 feet wide with concrete walls running from the west coast below Venice through the gun club section to Culver City, around Baldwin Hills to the east end, turning south to a point known as Nigger Slough and at this point connecting with a horseshoe-shaped canal which will extend from Long Beach to Los Angeles Harbor.

The canal will be sufficiently wide to permit the tying of the largest freighters at either side and still have ample room for boats to pass up and down. Unlike Seattle or New York, this project will be self-sustaining, due to the fact that no railroad will have a monopoly. Railroad companies will come into the harbor district over a belt line, paying their end of the expense from a wheelage charge, and all seagoing transportation companies will lease docks at the harbor. A number of the largest shipping companies have already expressed their desire to arrange for rental space. When this canal is completed it will be not only possible for freighters to pass through from Venice to Long Beach but passengers can also make the trips on boats at reasonable fare.

The building of Venice residences is reaching more and more toward Playa Del Rey. A number of fine residences, some of them costing $5000 have been constructed at Playa Del Rey in the last year as well as about $3000 in stores.

WEALTHY CONVICT

Alphonse J. Stephani, a life convict at Sing Sing, has an estate of $159,598, according to an accounting filed in the County Clerk's office by the Equitable Trust Company, committee of person. The accounting shows that Stephani paid an income tax of $45.49 to the government and $25.80 to the State. Although numerous expenditures are listed in the accounting, including $1500 to Charles L. Hoffman, as referee, and the same amount to Theodore Gibbons, as guardian, there is nothing to show that Stephani spent any money for his own comfort. He was sentenced to Sing Sing in 1903 for the murder of ex-Judge G. F. Reynolds, an attorney.

VEDDAS NEVER LAUGH

For more than 2000 years, it is said, laughter has been unknown to the Veddas, a tribe of aboriginal inhabitants of Ceylon, who have maintained a secluded existence in caves and jungles of the region.

Cut off from other peoples and subsisting on bats, owls and crows that they shoot with arrows, these strange people are said to have lost entirely the sensation of laughter. They are thin and flabby, and a fat man is unknown to them. Efforts of a scientist who recently visited them to produce smiles by tickling them on the soles of their bare feet or in the ribs met with no success. Their stony countenances did not even wiggle.—[Detroit News.

INDUSTRY IN CANADA

Current Information Supplied by Natural Resources Service of Canadian Government

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TORONTO, April 19.—There has been a remarkable increase of interest on the part of the British investing public in Ontario's gold fields, according to Sir Archibald Mitcheison, who is in Toronto representing British shareholders of the Porcupine Davidson Company. Sir Archibald states that since his previous visit some eighteen months ago he had noted in London and elsewhere a decided intensification of interest in the gold wealth of Northern Ontario. This interest was born of a growing realization of the fact that the vast potential wealth of the north country had not yet been scratched. He looked forward confidently to an ever-increasing investment of British capital in Northern Ontario as a result of this growing interest.

PAPER MILL PLANNED

FORT WILLIAM. — President J. H. Black of the Great Lakes Paper Company states that plans are almost completed for the $2,000,000 paper mill that his company will build here, and that work would be begun this summer.

The pulp mill is almost ready for operation and will be running as soon as power can be delivered from Cameron Falls by the Hydro Commission, probably by May 1.

PLANT READY SOON

SARNIA (Ont.)—The Hackmeister-Lind Chemical Company of Pittsburg, Pa., it is announced, expect to have a plant in operation here very shortly for the manufacture of magnesite building material. A site in the south end of the city has been secured. A number of new industries are making this city the headquarters for Canadian manufacture of their goods, the Canadian market and tariff preference within the British Empire proving a very substantial attraction.

TRADE IMPROVES

MONTREAL.—Better prospects for business in Canada during the year 1924, is forecast by Henry Detchon of Winnipeg, general manager of the Canadian Credit Men's Association. Mr. Detchon recently completed a trip to the Maritime Provinces and believes that a bigger era of prosperity will be exhibited in 1924 than has been the case in the last two or three years.

"I do believe that the future of 1924 holds more hope for improvements," declared Mr. Detchon. "I have been a close student of the future and base my optimism on the fact that the list of failures in Canada this year is far less than in the corresponding period of 1923."

Other reasons why Canadians should be hopeful, include the fact that Western Canada last year experienced the largest crop in its history.

MINING FIELDS

QUEBEC.—Reports received at the Provincial Mining Bureau from the northwestern gold fields of the Province indicate that the prospectors will soon start their move north from Ontario to the favorite townships. In the course of the winter there has been a great quantity of machinery brought north. So intense has become the interest that staking over the snow has been going on during the winter months. It is estimated that at present there are over 4000 claims staked, as compared with 1200 last year at this time. Arrangements are being completed between the Mines Department and the Lands and Forests Department to obtain co-operation and prevent forest fires starting.

EXPECT BUMPER CROP

CALGARY — The amount of moisture which Alberta has received during the winter and spring has caused stockmen in the district to look forward to another bumper crop for Alberta this year. Precipitation has been uniformly good especially in the southern portion of the Province, and with ample forage on the ranches, a good livestock year is anticipated.

NEW COAL COMPANY

HALIFAX—The taking over of the operation of the Inverness Railway, which serves the western portion of Cape Breton Island, by the Canadian National Railways is expected to very greatly assist in the development of the coal fields on the western coast. A new company has been organized, with a capital of $7,000,000 to open up on an extensive scale the coal properties of Inverness, Mabou, Port Hood and St. Rose. Sir Henry Drayton, late Canadian Minister of Finance, is president of the new company. Mr. Alfred Tonge, former superintendent of the Dominion Coal Company, was largely instrumental in forming the new company, British capital being quite heavily interested.

GRAIN ELEVATORS FILLED

FORT WILLIAMS — The grain-holding capacity of the elevators at the head of the lakes is now strained to the utmost. With a nominal storage of 64,500,000 bushels, there are now 60,000,000 bushels actually in the elevators and with over 3,000,000 afloat in the harbor, the grain in store totals 63,284,145 bushels. The increase in stocks of the past two weeks has been due mainly to the two wooden elevators of the C.P.A., being again used, adding 2,250,000 bushels to the space available, but these are now filled with oats and barley, and the other houses are making a little space by interchange of grain when a bin can be released in this way. The yards are also filled with cars, and there is a large quantity en route on wheels.

INCREASE BUTTER OUTPUT

REGINA (Sask.)—There was an increase of over 250,000 pounds in the output of creamery butter in Saskatchewan for the first two months of this year as compared with the same period in 1923, according to Provincial reports. It is fully expected that the record of last year, 10,000,000 pounds of creamery butter, will be largely exceeded this year. For January and February the production was 1,024,626 pounds.

NOVA SCOTIA LOAN SOLD

HALIFAX (N. S.)—The credit of Nova Scotia in the financial markets of America was evidenced in the recent sale of an issue of $2,500,000 5 per cent bonds of twenty years dating. The bonds were sold to the Canadian Bank of Commerce at the price of 98.83, principal and interest payable in Canada. This is said to be the highest price secured for any Dominion or provincial bonds sold in Canada since the war. There were fifteen separate tenders for the bonds, Montreal, Toronto and New York financial houses competing.

ELEVATOR IMPROVEMENTS

PORT ARTHUR (Ont.)—Two complete conveyor systems, with bridges and structural steel galleries, are to be constructed at Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company's terminal No. 1 at Current River. The additional equipment is necessary to take care of the extremely heavy cleaning operations this elevator is called upon to do and will give, when completed, the most extensive and rapid cleaning facilities of any plant at the head of the lakes.

KELLOGG COMPANY EXPANDS

LONDON (Ont.) — The Battle Creek Toasted Corn Flakes Company of London, established in 1906, has been sold to the W. K. Kellogg Company, operating a similar plant at Battle Creek, Mich., for a price that will total approximately a million dollars. Business will be continued in London on a larger scale than ever. Double the capacity of the present concern is the aim of the new owners. Some sixty more men will be employed.

NOT WOUND UP

The dear old lady went up to the taxicab driver and told him to drive her to the British Museum.

"Right-ho, mum," replied the man. "Jump in!"

But the old lady stood her ground.

"Not until you've started the engine," she said.

The driver got down from his seat and started the engine with half a turn of the crank.

Proceeding up a steep hill, the engine suddenly slacked off and then stopped dead.

The old lady put her head out of the window and, with a knowing smile, said to the driver:

"Ah, driver, I thought you didn't wind it up enough!"—[Exchange.

WORKS BOTH WAYS

The squire was walking through the English village one day wearing a very shabby coat, when he met a friend.

"Surely you are ashamed to be seen in such a dreadful coat?" said the friend.

"Certainly not," replied the squire. "Everybody knows me here."

A week later the squire was in Birmingham, still wearing the old coat, when he chanced to meet his friend, who again commented upon his untidy appearance.

"What does it matter?" was the reply. "Nobody knows me here."—[London Mail.

COLORED FUN

A darky was asked what name he had given his youngest son.

"Erasmus Pro Tem Johnson, suh."

"But why the 'Pro Tem'?"

Wanderings of the Kickapoos

The Kickapoo Indians, during the early days of this country, were an exceedingly troublesome tribe occupying a part of the Ohio Valley. They were very powerful and were constantly warring against the whites until 1819, when they sold their lands in the Ohio section and moved to Osage River Reservation in Kansas. They were not altogether satisfied there and in 1852 a great number of them moved into Texas and later into Mexico. After some years, however, a large party returned to what was then Indian Territory.

Earliest birds known were those in the geological time of the Jurassic Period of the Age of Reptiles, and they had many reptilian features.

BEGGAR FOR YEARS, NOW REFUSES TO QUIT

His shabby figure cringing before the bench in the Seventh District Night Court, while Magistrate Goodman labeled him a "parasite on society' who has fawned and preyed' on others since the day he first reached the country's shores, Sam Shapiro, 43 years of age, a beggar, who has made his profession more lucrative than some others of a more dignified nature, presented a problem as old as society itself.

"I'm not going to send you to the island if I can help it," said the magistrate, "to have the city support you a few days more. I'm going to fine you $50."

Shapiro said he did not have the money, and refused to send for any; he won his point and the privilege of staying ten days in jail—at public expense.

Seventeen years ago he stepped from the steerage compartment of a ship from Russia, hungry and penniless. Five minutes later, near the wharves, he begged his first nickel on American soil. He didn't stop to get something to eat with the first coin, though he was hungry, but kept on his way toward City Hall and the center of things, supplicating passers-by at every step.—[Exchange.

She's hung four Cupid pictures on the wall, moved the sofa over in the dark corner, got ma and pa to go calling next door, shut the dog in the cellar, an's been practicin' 'Because I Love You' on the planner all the afternoon."—[Exchange.

OHIO MEN BUILDING NEW FAUCET FACTORY HERE

Buildings for New Industry Under Construction; Open Shop Is Credited With Plant

Incorporated for $100,000 under the laws of Califorina, which sum is but little in excess of the investment in land and buildings, and with a total investment between $150,000 and $200,000, the Pacific Faucet Manufacturing Company, an entirely new industry for Los Angeles will begin operation here by the middle of June, or as soon as the foundry building now under construction by the Austin Company of California is ready for occupancy.

It represents new capital brought from the outside into Los Angeles industrial development, the Pacific Faucet Manufacturing Company being a close corporation made up of interests that have long been national and international factors in the development of modern bathroom and plumbing supplies and which now propose to supply in the Southwest the products of more than a quarter century in factories at Cleveland.

It is another new factory for the Southwest Industrial Terminal, the modern industrial center south of Slauson avenue between Central and South avenues. The site comprises 500 feet frontage on the south side of the street, with direct rail connection with all lines. The main office and building is already under way and work on the foundry was begun during the week under contract for completion in forty-five days.

BUILDING PLANT

The office plant was designed and is being erected by the Austin Company in conformity with their other factory buildings in the industrial tract.

With the foundry under way the completed main building will be of the Austin steel construction with fronts of face brick and with multiple sash lighting, sawtooth roof on the main building admitting of a mezzanine floor for draughting and designing rooms and other modern conveniences. The foundry building will contain besides the molding floors, core room, metal storage room, cupola room and furnaces. The main building, 90 by 180 feet, besides the offices, will provide for assembling, polishing, testing, inspecting, storage and shipping.

Reversing the frequent process of eastern manufacturers starting a branch factory to find something better, the Pacific Faucet Manufacturing Company is composed of men who have decided that the manufacturing future of the United States is in the Pacific Southwest and have deliberately chosen Los Angeles because they have determined there is an opening here for the establishment of what the general manager terms a "brass center" for the production of brass commodities in all lines, as well as a plumbing supplies.

CLEVELAND MEN

The officials of the new company are Myron J. Glauber, president and general manager; E. F. Glauber Black, vice-president and treasurer; W. J. Black, secretary, with Ted Lederer as assistant, and John L. Dunn, superintendent and production manager. All of these officers are former residents of Cleveland and with a single exception will make Los Angeles their home and devote their energies as well as their capital to the development here of a nationally and internationally used line of bathroom and plumbing supplies.

The Glauber and Black families are the second generation of that Joseph H. Glauber of Cleveland who built up one of the most widely known lines under the name of the Glauber Brass Manufacturing Company. Myron Glauber is his son and since the death of his father some years ago has been planning to build his own future on the Pacific Coast. He has been active in the Cleveland plant and states that in associating Jack Dunn with the Los Angeles enterprise as production manager, he is bringing to Los Angeles the best brass manufacturer in the United States.

A residence has been taken in the Wilshire district pending the completion of the foundry building and the work of organization is being pushed from that point. Offices will be established in the new plant within a few weeks.

FAVORS OPEN SHOP

"The firmly established open shop," said Mr. Glauber, "was the principal reason for my selection of Los Angeles; but after closely studying the situation I concluded that the average of intelligence of labor here is higher than in closed-shop cities; that this means a higher-grade product as well as greater efficiency and that I am convinced we will be able to make higher grades here at as low prices as obtain elsewhere, which will enable us to ship Los Angeles goods east in competition with eastern production. And besides, as far as I have gone, I confess I would rather live and work in Los Angeles than in any big city I have known—and I have been in them all."

RAILWAY TO MINE CAMPS

TORONTO.—The Ontario Legislature in its estimates for the coming year has provided $500,000 for the construction of a branch railway line between Cobalt and South Lorrain. The South Lorrain camp has been handicapped for adequate transportation facilities and the new line, which will be twenty miles in length, will have a considerable amount of freight traffic awaiting its completion.

PAPER FIRM WILL BUILD NEW OFFICE

Work on Administration Building to Commence Within Ten Days

Work upon the new administration building of the Pioneer Paper Company's local plant will be started within the next ten days, it was announced at the company offices yesterday.

The building is expected to add greatly to the appearance of the Pioneer Paper Company's manufacturing unit as it is to be constructed in the Spanish Renaissance style with stucco exterior. Stone ornamental panels and wrought-iron door fixtures will heighten the period effect. Morgan, Walls and Clement are the achitects. It is expected that the construction contract will be awarded the forepart of his week.

The administration building will be 90x150 feet. Sales and display rooms will occupy the front portion of the building, immediately back of which will be the general offices, with private quarters for the president, vice-president, general manager and other executive officers. The private rooms, like the general office, will be finished in oak.

A specially designed slate-surfaced shingle, manufactured by the Pioneer Paper Company, and hailed by them as the most perfect water-proof and dust-proof shingle, will be used to roof the structure, the design being one of shadow lines done in color to heighten the artistic appearance. The total of the new structure is estimated by officials to be in the neighborhood of $100,000, although definite figures were not revealed because of the fact that the contract has not yet been awarded.

New Quarters Are Obtained by Neilan Company

The Neilan Valve and Supply Company has leased from the Revolving Fund Corporation the store-room at 439 South San Pedro street, in the new Class "A" Calo Building. The leasing negotiations were conducted by J. W. Kinsella of the San Pedro street branch office of the J. W. Lewis Company.

The Neilan Valve and Supply Company has been in business less than a year, yet its growth during this short period has necessitated a change to larger quarters. In addition to its service department a complete stock of supplies will be carried in the new location including valves of all kinds, steam traps, reducing valves, balanced float valves, force feed lubricators, air cocks, grease cups, oil cups, pipe wrenches, pressure guages, water gauges, gauge glass, oil cup blades, etc.

The officers of the company are: Thomas J. Neilan, president, Alfred B. Abbey, vice-president; and B. Towlen, secretary and treasurer.

WINDOW SLIDE PLANT OPENS IN INGLEWOOD

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

INGLEWOOD, April 19.—Inglewood's latest addition to the industrial district is the plant of the Union Investment Company for the manufacture of the Simplex window slide. Production began this week with an output of 5000 slides a day. The device eliminates the necessity for cords, pulleys and weights. Only one is needed for each sash, according to R. C. Nutt, president of the company.

TWO DEALS REPORTED

Hemp & Ball, auctioneers, reports the sale of the property at 1219 South Van Ness avenue for Charles Shane, the owner, for $58,000. The same firm also sold a bungalow court, formerly owned by Mary Carr, at the corner of Fernwood avenue and Ridgewood Place for a consideration of $33,100. A. M. Moore was the buyer.

BUILDING MODERN PLANT

Construction on Factory Buildings Here for Western Cooperage Company Home

The Austin Company of California started this week on the erection of a group of five buildings in the Huntington Park district, involving with the land an investment of over $100,000 and providing a home for a local industry which has been somewhat retarded until recently by adverse freight rates, but now proposes to make a strong bid for a more widespread distribution of the Los Angeles product. To effect this end the company will increase its present Los Angeles investment to between $300,000 and $400,000 in buildings and working capital, according to the statements of the local manager.

Through the offices of W. H. Daum & Staff, industrial realtors and underwriters, the Western Cooperage Company, a $5,000,000 corporation operating the largest cooperage industry in the West, with factories at Portland, Seattle and San Francisco as well as Los Angeles, has purchased a site of two and one-half acres in the Huntington Park Industrial tract, and immediately contracted with the Austin Company for the construction of a series of modern factory, warehouse and administrative buildings which will put the Los Angeles plant on a par with the best of their plants in the north for efficiency and quantity of production.

IN VERNON TRACT

The site of this new plant is on the west side of Bicket street, just north of Slauson avenue, and is one of the few remaining industrial sites in what is variously known as the Maywood, the Huntington Park and the Vernon tract, in which more than a score of important industries have been developed within the past three years in the metal and building material trades.

All five of the buildings in this new plant are to be of steel and brick in the Austin modern types, one story in height. The factory building is 90 by 140 feet; stave warehouse 109 by 140 feet, barrel warehouse 109 by 140 feet, boiler house 25 by 40, and office building 24 by 34 feet. The total cost, exclusive of land will be about $75,000 and when in full operation the plant will give employment to between fifty and a hundred men.

HAS HUGE BUSINESS

The Western Cooperage Company is owned by the Eastman and Woerner families, the latter having bought out the Sullivan interest in 1906. It operates its own lumber mills and has built up a huge business throughout the West. Los Angeles has been the least of its manufacturing and distributing points, due to adverse freight rates and distance from raw lumber; but Charles J. Woerner, manager of the Los Angeles plant, states that the tremendous growth in importance of the Southwest since the war, together with the increase of production, both agricultural and manufacturing, requiring either tight or slack coopered containers, makes it advisable for the company to do more manufacturing at this point and to concentrate efforts on freight equalization.

"This will mean," said Mr. Woerner, "that Ios Angeles will get more and more of the millions of annual business of the Western Cooperage business as fast as freight rate adjustments make it practical to ship the finished cooperage product from this city by rail or from this port by water, and we are building here a plant that will be ample for all the cooperage the Southwest will use. We anticipate continued growth of the city and of Los Angeles manufactures, and are ready to invest as much capital here as the trade can absorb or require.

"Having operated in leased quarters at 1919 Bay street up to the present, the fact that we are investing hundreds of thousands of dollars in land and buildings speaks for itself as evidence of our conviction that Los Angeles is the coming world city that the Greater Los Angeles Association is sponsoring."

Realty Board of Lankershim Aids Industrial Drive

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

LANKERSHIM, April 19.—The Realty Board has voted to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce in the campaign to have this community give 100 per cent representation to the Greater Los Angeles Association in its endeavor to foster industrial expansion in Southern California. This action followed a talk made before the board at the weekly dinner last night by Robert Handley of Van Nuys, assistant to the Los Angeles city attorney.

Mr. Handley explained the purposes and plans of the proposed financing corporation and urged the co-operation of all valley residents. The gathering was in the Community Church and was addressed by Will S. Chapin and Mrs. Lou Chapin, who discussed community propositions of general interest to the realty men.

GLASS PLANT FIELD HERE

The phenomenal growth of Southern California, the favorable manufacturing conditions and the ease with which all necessary raw materials can be obtained here together provide a wonderful opportunity for the development of the glass-manufacturing industry on a substantial scale, according to Frank O'Neill of Toledo, O., manufacturer of glass-making machinery, who purchased an apartment in the Shoreham Apartment-Hotel to be built on the Palisades at Santa Monica as the future home for himself and family.

"Taking the one article of glass globes as an example," said O'Neill, "there is probably no section of the country offering a bigger prospective market for this article than Southern California. Your system of boulevards is far famed and I find that excellent as it is, you have only begun to carry out your most comprehensive plans for several parallel and transverse boulevards throughout this entire section of the country, all to be well paved and lighted and some of them, like that of Santa Monica Boulevard, for example, to extend from the sea upward of 100 miles inland to the mountains under the one name and with different counties and municipalities, combining to carry the plan through.

"It is probable that no one development of the Southland is advertised more widely than your splendid boulevards and with such improvements as you are now carrying out the strength of this advertisement will naturally be multiplied. Every light on this vast system of bouevards will require a glass globe. Here alone should be a big industry and since you have the raw material, the favorable manufacturing conditions and the market I feel that you should produce your own globes and not be dependent upon other parts of the country to supply your need in this direction.

"I mention the glass globes merely as one instance which has struck me during my stay out here. Your steadily increasing population and the development of your foreign trade with the Orient and South America, however, should very naturally make Los Angeles a particularly favorable manufacturing center for many glass articles and since the glass-manufacturing industry is one which can be regarded as among the staples, employing a large number of people, it should prove a most valuable acquisition to your industrial community."

According to the National Glass budget of Pittsburg, the name of O'Neill is known in all countries where glass bottles are made to any extent, having been brought into prominence by several glass-blowing machines designed, built and supplied to leading glass firms of the country by the O'Neill Machine Company of Toledo under the direction of Frank O'Neill, the president, who started his glass business at Fostoria, Or., in 1893 and who established his factory at Toledo fourteen years ago.

Chanslor - Canfield Supply Camp Finished

Most Extensive Crane System in West Installed

With the completion of a $250,000 building program on its Torrance property by the Union Iron Works of Los Angeles, the Chanslor-Canfield-Midway Oil Company has built up what is claimed to be the most complete and largest plant in the Southwest for the maintenance of oil well drilling apparatus. A total physical property investment of $750,000 is represented at the camp site, according to officials.

The Chanslor-Canfield camp site is a fifty-acre tract adjoining the city limits of Torrance on the west.

With the completion by the Union Iron Works of the latest construction unit, the plant now consists of a machine shop, boiler and forge shops, repair, pipe, plumbing, paint, carpenter and electrical shops, an acetylene shop, warehouse, testing laboratory, garages, wood mill, fire truck house, loading and unloading platforms, pipe and lumber racks, complete monorail and overhead traveling crane system, residential section for employees, a home for the superintendent, dormitory, office building and bunk house.

RAPID WORK

All of this has been accomplished in about six months time. The contract for the first grading work was awarded September 27, 1923, and 65,000 cubic yards of earth were removed to make way for industrial plant building. In addition to the buildings and other essential features, spur trackage of the Santa Fe Railroad enters the property.

With the exception of the fact that the camp site has no postoffice branch, Torrance being too close to make it feasible, and the absence of a general store, which also is supplied by Torrance, the camp site is a modern little city.

Seventeen cottages have been built to house workers in the plant. Each of these is on a lot 50 by 150 feet and has a garage, built in duplex style and set upon the dividing line between lots so that two cars may be placed in each. More of these cottages are to be built in the near future, it is said.

OFFICIAL HOME

The superintendent's residence is a model dwelling and has its garden, lawn and shrubbery, as well as a private garage. The home has been fitted with all modern conveniences.

On the property is another, but much larger garage, to house company automobiles and trucks.

The company provides its own fire protection.

The plant was designed and built exclusively to care for the oil well properties of the organization. Designing of the buildings was done by the Industrial Department of the Union Iron Works of Los Angeles and the steel fabricated in its own plant in Vernon. The Chanslor-Canfield buildings are of steel frame construction of Wes-type style, originated by the Union Iron Works especially for Southern California manufacturing conditions, and most of them are of corrugated iron sides.

IMMENSE CRANES

Maintenance of the company's properties is the sole function of the elaborately equipped camp site.

Included in the equipment are a traveling crane and monorail system declared to be the largest and most complete in the entire West.

There are two traveling cranes, each with a capacity of five tons and a span of fifty-seven and one-half feet. One of these operates along the east side of the warehouse, extending out 200 feet over the loading platform. The other is 360 feet in length and extends out over the Santa Fe spur track. Each of the cranes is supported by an elaborate system of steel girders and is connected with a unique monorail, overhead system provided with two switches and two spurs.

The monorail system carries a five-ton hoist and is operated by one man who sits in a cabin much like that of an engine cab, only smaller. The monorail has 500 feet of trackage and runs from the forge shop into and through the machine shop, across the intervening space between the machine and repair shops, into and through that building and out across the yard.

An illustration of its workings is best given by an example.

EFFICIENT SYSTEM

For instance, a load of lumber or pipe is to be transferred from the forge shop to the loading platform. The monorail hoist picks up the load at the edge of the forge shop and moves it in one direction through the intervening shops to the traveling crane which extends over the concrete loading platform. There the hoist attaches itself to the crane and moves at right angles to its former course, with the crane, out over the loading platform to the point desired. In the same manner, material is placed directly into railroad cars for shipment out or picked up from cars when coming in and transferred to the spot where it is desired.

Construction of the camp site in such thorough-going completeness is declared by officials of the Chanslor-Canfield Company to be a tribute to the ever-growing importance of the Los Angeles district oil production. During the year of 1923, the State of California produced 35 per cent of all the oil produced in the United States, and the Los Angeles field had an output equal to 65 per cent of the entire State.

NEW FACTORY HOME UNDER CONSTRUCTION

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

HUNTINGTON PARK, April 19. The American system of reinforcing, which located one of its plants in the industrial section on Slauson avenue, just northwest of this city, about a year ago, has outgrown the present plant, and work on the construction of a new building has been started on Laura street. The new structure is to be 140x60 feet in dimensions, and will be constructed of corrugated iron. The present building already has been leased to the Continental Building Specialties Company, which will use it as a warehouse.

INDUSTRIAL EXPANSION IS VITAL TO SOUTHLAND

Greater Los Angeles Association Is Deserving of United Support of District

BY L. J. BURRUD

Build and keep building!

That is the very essence of the slogan that has been adopted by the Greater Los Angeles Association—Keep the White Spot White. The whole world is aware of the hundreds of millions of dollars that have been spent in building in Los Angeles during the past five years. The industrial captains of the United States are aware, too, that the pace set by the metropolis of the Pacific can be maintained—can be exceeded—during the next decade if the people of Los Angeles stir themselves to take advantage of the marvelous opportunity that exists—the greatest opportunity that ever lay within the grasp of a city in the history of the world.

In order to insure the rapid, sure expansion of Los Angeles to its certain place among the great world cities there is but one important problem that must be solved. That problem is to make sure that industrial development on a great scale shall have its place in the general plans for the city's growth hereafter. The foundation upon which all great cities are built is manufacturing, which furnishes employment that is necessary to support a population of millions. Los Angeles has built a magnificent superstructure, but before further rapid growth can be attained with safety, a substantial foundation, constructed of local industrial works of many kinds, is necessary. That is not only the unanimous belief of the men who have borne the greatest part in the past splendid growth and development here. It is also the firm conviction of the biggest business men everywhere in the United States, who have been watching with the keenest interest our phenomenal—almost magic—job of city building.

MANY ADVANTAGES

Now the task of starting a movement of greater and smaller factories from other sections of the United States to Los Angeles is not the formidable one that a similar movement would be to almost any other city in the country. It is made peculiarly easy, in fact, because of the numberless advantages for manufacturing that exist here that combine to make thousands of eastern factory operators fairly ache to remove their plants to Los Angeles or its environs. There is but one prime difficulty that keeps a host of them from doing so. That is the lack of necessary financing. Eastern manufacturers at this time can usually get accommodation through the great eastern financial institutions to take care of their requirements for plant construction or expansion. But when a manufacturer wishes to remove his factory to California or to build a branch factory here, he finds himself unable to arrange for the needed money in the eastern cities.

Such a manufacturer, on inquiring into the financing situation in Los Angeles, learns that the local banks, while they have enjoyed the most remarkable growth and are in a most prosperous condition, have not yet reached the point where they are able to underwrite bond issues for manufacturing industries, and are so checked in their sincere desire to aid in this manner in developing new industries here. In many instances, therefore, the eastern manufacturer continues in his present location, but with his thoughts ever on Los Angeles and the overwhelming advantages to be found here for factory operation. Especially during the winter, when he has for a quarter of the year to meet the cost of seasonal resistance in production—and often the added expense of weeks of bitter weather and violent storms is enormous—he casts a longing eye westward.

With this situation existing it has become increasingly obvious to observing and keen-minded business men in many lines in Los Angeles that the problem of financing industrial enterprises here on a big scale must be solved. The organization of the Greater Los Angeles Association, with its purposes as they have been outlined in the daily press is the solution put forth by a group of men who have been leaders in city building among us in the past. Probably no one plan ever put forth for the welfare of this city has been given such unanimous and hearty indorsement. Certainly no public movement has been initiated with more certainty of success.

The first function of the Greater Los Angeles Association is to complete its own organization with a minimum membership of 25,000 from the territory included in Greater Los Angeles; the second to awaken the people contained in that territory to the necessity for taking this action immediately and to acquaint them with the benefits that will come from it to every section of Greater Los Angeles; the last and most important to organize an industrial finance corporation with $50,000,000 revolving fund for financing new manufacturing industries. The whole expense of organization of the finance corporation and of securing the funds will be borne by the Grater Los Angeles Association.

In view of the fact that each month residents of Greater Los Angeles are investing, on an average, $40,000,000 in the securities of eastern industrial enterprises, it is not felt that much difficulty will be encountered in deflecting a sufficient portion of that amount into local industrial channels to meet the requirements of the finance corporation when the public understands the safeguards that will be thrown around the investments made with their funds here.

POLICY IS SOUND

Each industry making application for help will be investigated by the corporation's experts, both as to its history and its present condition, as well as to ascertain whether it is practicable to manufacture in Los Angeles and to distribute from here the products which this concern proposes to manufacture. The finance corporation will not enter into promotion of any kind, but will invest only in first-grade bonds, mortgages and other securities on industrial plants. Not more than a certain percentage of its paid-in capital will be loaned out at any time to any one industry.

The Greater Los Angeles Association, upon completing its work of organizing the Industrial Finance Corporation, will disband according to present plans. The association does not in any way duplicate the work of, or otherwise usurp the functions of any other commercial or civic organizations, while the Industrial Finance Corporation, at the proper time, will be absorbed by commercial bodies such as now fulfill its functions in eastern cities.

The directors of the corporation are being chosen from among bankers and business men of Greater Los Angeles, and they will elect officers of unquestioned ability, experience and integrity.

The membership drive for the Greater Los Angeles Association is now under way. It is of the greatest importance that it be completed as speedily as possible and every ecort is being bent toward this end.

PULLMAN COUCH BUYS SITE HERE

Chicago Furniture Firm Will Build in Los Angeles

Three-Story Factory to be Erected at Once

Central District is Chosen for Location

Another large Eastern manufacturer, after a visit to Los Angeles, is convinced of the future of Los Angeles as an industrial center to such an extent he has decided to erect a plant in the central manufacturing district of this city.

Julius Kramer, president of the Pullman Couch Company of Chicago, recently spent a number of weeks in Los Angeles and while here went into the advantages and opportunities offered by Southern California as a possible site for a new plant. As a result of his investigations, he has entered into a contract with the Central Manufacturing District Company for the immediate construction of a three-story building on Loma Vista avenue and district Boulevard.

This new structure will be directly across from the building now being erected for the Adams Material and Supply Company of Chicago and will be somewhat similar in design. It will be a Class A building, fully in harmony with the attractive structures being erected in the district, and will have a total floor area of approximately 50,000 square feet.

MODERN EQUIPMENT

Mr. Kramer has approved the construction of a reinforced concrete building with face brick and art stone trim on all four exterior elevations; to be fully equipped with fire-fighting apparatus, automatic sprinkler system, electric freight elevators and all modern facilities necessary for manufacturing.

The first floor will be raised to car floor level and will have unlimited floor load, while the upper floors will have a live load capacity of 250 pounds to the square foot.

A loading platform, six feet wide, will run along the entire length of the building which will be on spur tracks of the Los Angeles Junction Railway as in the case with all industries locating in the Central Manufacturing District.

The Pullman Couch Company owns and operates a large plant in the central manufacturing district of Chicago and believes that the Los Angeles district will prove equally successful and satisfactory as a location for industries.

The Pullman Couch Company manufactures the Pullman Revolving-seat bed davenport and also living room furniture. Their trademark is "Pullman" and their slogan. "A handsome davenport by day; a perfect bed by night." They advertise extensively and are heavy contributors to the National-Davenport-Bed advertising campaign fund.

NATIONAL DISTRIBUTION

The Pullman Couch Company has national distribution, selling to first-class furniture stores all over the country. Last year their business ran close to $4,000,000 and in their Chicago factory they employ a large force.

This structure is another Frank D. Chase, Inc., planned building and the construction work will be handled by William Neil of the Central Manufacturing District organization.

The building will be completed within sixty days and such space as will not be required by the Pullman Couch Company for its own operations will be immediately occupied by several other important concerns for warehousing and manufacturing.

Negotiations for the building were handled by Julius Kramer, president of the Pullman Couch Company and H. E. Poronto and F. L. S. Harman of the Central Manufacturing district.

Alhambra Phone Exchange to be Given New Home

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ALHAMBRA, April 19. — A three-story building to cost $76,000 and to contain the commercial and mechanical departments of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is to be erected soon at 21 South First street on a site which the telephone company owns. In line with the expansion of the local service, switchboard and other equipment to the value of $140,000 will be installed in the new plant, according to C. H. Reed, district manager.

Work of construction is to be started as soon as the grounds are in readiness. At present a six-room house occupies the property. This dwelling is being offered for sale to the highest bidder, the bids to close the 21st inst. and the building to be removed as soon thereafter as possible.

Unique Map of Travel Route Is Shown by Board

One of the finest maps of the United States ever shown in the city is on display at the Southwest Realty Board Headquarters, 4143 South Figueroa street. This map is 10x24 in colors and shows the route and itinerary of the caravan planned by the members of the Southwest Realty Board to Washington in June.

On this map is shown the birthplace of members booked for this trip. More than forty members have made reservations.

A resolution was made to increase the membership fee from $50 to $100 and it is expected that this will be voted upon favorably by May 1, next.

The educational class is starting off with an enrollment of seventy-five, which is said to be the largest class of any board in the State. This class is conducted on Thursday evenings and is open to bankers, brokers, salesmen and anyone interested in the real estate business. It is conducted by the University of Southern California Extension Division.

LONG STRIDES TAKEN IN DEVELOPMENT OF POWER

Huge Projects Under Way or Planned to Insure Continual Progress in Southland

BY A. T. ANDERSON,

Department of Research and Service, Security Trust and Savings Bank

The development of power resources will be unquestionably one of the principal factors in the future agricultural, industrial and commercial progress of Southern California. It will assist in the development of all lines of activity since it means more homes; a larger cultivated acreage, hence more crops; and, more factories.

The power used in California, especially in Southern California, is derived primarily from electric energy generated by water, and secondarily, from steam generated by oil and coal. At present coal is not available in Southern California in a dependable or economical supply. Oil, while readily available, is being subjected more and more to other uses as new industries develop. Electric energy developed by waterfall is therefore the principal source of power. At the present time the total amount of developed water power in the southern portion of California is approximately 750,000 horsepower, whereas, according to estimates made by competent authorities, its potential development is 2,500,000 horsepower from primary sources.

Much progress already has been achieved in the direction of developing the potential supplies of dydroelectric power. At the present time there are several huge power projects under construction or being planned for in Southern California. One of the largest of these projects is that of the Southern California Edison Company, which is increasing its system to the extent of developing 1,407,000 horsepower.

TO COST LARGE SUM

This undertaking in its entirety will cost $275,000,000 or $15,000,000 more than the construction of the Panama Canal, and is said to be the largest electrical construction project ever undertaken in the world. The last year's proportion of cost of this construction amounted to $29,517,000. The budget for 1924 calls for an expenditure of $26,288,000 in this development work.

Another important potential supply of hydroelectric power is that of the Boulder Canyon project on the Colorado River. This project contemplates the erection by the Federal government of a gigantic dam and power plant on the Colorado River near Los Vegas, Nev. According to the preliminary plans of the United States Reclamation Service, the proposed dam and power plant will cost approximately $100,000,000. The project will make possible the (1) reclamation of 2,000,000 acres below the dam and 4,000,000 acres above the dam, (2) protection of life and property in the Imperial Valley through the control of floods of the Colorado River, (3) the development of a continuous flow of 800,000 to 1,000,000 kilowatts of electricity, and (4) the storage of 34,000,000 acre feet of water for irrigation purposes. This great project is subject to a compact between the United States and the seven western States tributary to the Colorado River. At the present time all of the States save Arizona have ratified this compact, which provides for the equitable division and apportionment of the use of the waters of the Colorado River system.

NEED IRRIGATION

Irrigation is necessary for the successful cultivation of agricultural land in Southern California, particularly citrus groves, for which this State is famous. In many parts of the State irrigation has been made possible by the organization of irrigation companies, which by the construction of dams and ditches, have brought the water from the higher levels to the farm lands. In other districts this has been impossible and it is here that the hydroelectric corporations by furnishing power for pumping well water have assisted in adding millions of dollars to the value of the products of Southern California.

On January 1, 1923, the three great hydroelectric companies operating in the southern and central portion of California were furnishing power to irrigate 1,280,610 acres. Since that time additional acreage has been placed under irrigation through hydroelectric development.

CHEAP POWER SERVICE

Electric energy is furnished consumers in Los Angeles by the largest municipal electric system in the world. Records show that during the past seven years the use of electricity in Los Angeles has shown an increase of more than 20 per cent each year over the previous year. The total consumption of electric energy for commercial and industrial purposes, exclusive of the power used by the electric railways, totaled 53,933,014 k.w.h. in 1916, 175,824,239 k.w.h. in 1922, and approximately 211,000,000 k.w.h. in 1923. Figures showing the consumption of industrial and commercial power in the city of Los Angeles proper since 1916 follow:

	K.w.h. consumption.
1916	52,933,014
1917	53,160,947
1918	77,968,078
1919	96,346,383
1920	125,376,462
1921	146,073,893
1922	175,824,239
1923	*211,000,000

*—Estimated.

During the year 1923 the two electric systems of Los Angeles installed more than 47,000 new electric meters in homes, stores and factories in this city.

At the present time the city of Los Angeles is being served with electric energy through approximately 260,000 home, store and factory meters.

Los Angeles is conceded to have one of the lowest schedules of power rates of any city in the country. This fact alone has done much to bring in and will continue to bring in new industries.

RATES ARE LOW

The average rates charged for electric energy in Los Angeles are approximately 20 per cent lower than the rates charged by other electric power companies in California. The following figures show the comparative cost of power in seven of the largest cities of the country, with a showing in favor of Los Angeles that should mean much toward bringing additional industries here:

	500 h.p. net bill per mo.	75 h.p. net bill per mo.
Los Angeles	$1728.75	$106.20
Cincinnati	2905.90	155.90
Detroit	2768.29	187.30
St. Louis	2134.50	187.10
Boston	3074.30	157.00
Chicago	2452.14	194.96
New York	2701.73	222.50

There are two principal sources of fuel in Southern California, namely (1) petroleum from the Southern California oil fields, and (2) natural gas from the same sources. Although records of the State Mining Bureau show that coal exists in forty-three of fifty-six counties of California, only a small commercial importance has ever been attached to a majority of these deposits, because the coal is usually of a low grade, and because petroleum and natural gas have been readily available. Petroleum has been so cheap and abundant that the habit of thinking that all fuel needs would be permanently taken care of has become general. It is believed, however, that eventually more and more importance will be attached to deposits of coal in the near-by States of the Southwest.

CONSUMPTION OF GAS

It is said that Los Angeles and the immediate surrounding area use more gas for domestic and industrial purposes than does the entire remaining section of California. This territory is served by the Southern Counties Gas Company, Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation and the Southern California Gas Company. The number of consumers in this area on January 1, 1923, was 390,000 compared with approximately 437,000 at the present time or an increase of 12 per cent during the period of one year.

The gas consumed in Southern California is usually a mixture of natural gas and manufactured gas. Prices of this gas are lower than prices of gas in other large Pacific Coast cities, as is shown by the accompanying figures reported as of September 15, 1923. These prices represent the net price for the first 1000 cubic feet of gas used for household purposes:

		British Thermal Units
Los Angeles	$ .66	650
San Francisco	.92	550
Portland	1.42	500—550
Seattle	1.55	500—550

California's, and especially Southern California's, principal water-producing area is the mountains. Of all the water in use for the various purposes, that employed in agriculture is predominant. At the present time with approximately 4,000,000 people in the State as a whole and one-quarter of its arable lands under irrigation, about one-fourth of all waters that can ultimately be made available through storage within the borders of the State are in use for domestic and industrial supply, irrigation, power generation and mining. The domestic and industrial use is about 4 per cent of the total, while much of the water used for generating power and in mining, being on elevated lands, is used a second time for irrigation purposes.

CITY WATER SYSTEM

Los Angeles receives its water from a municipally-owned system which originates in the Owens River and is fed by the melting of snows of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. The water is brought to the city through the Los Angeles Aqueduct which has a capacity of 272,000,000 gallons of water per day or 400 cubic feet per second. The Los Angeles Aqueduct system dates from 1908 when the first preliminary work was started by the voting of the necessary bonds. After five years, or in 1913, the Aqueduct was completed at a total cost of $24,500,000. The Aqueduct is 233 miles long; and is made up of twenty-four miles of unlined canal; thirty-nine miles of concrete-lined canal, ninety-eight miles of concrete-covered conduit, fifty-three miles of concrete tunnel, twelve miles of steel and concrete siphon pipe lines, one-sixth of a mile of concrete flumes and eight miles of reservoir.

Water is distributed to domestic, commercial and industrial consumers of Los Angeles through approximately 175,000 meters. The average daily domestic consumption of water in Los Angeles is now in excess of 100,000,000 gallons compared with a daily average of 89,000,000 during the year 1922-23. During the twelve months ending October 31, 1923, more than 21,000 new water services were installed in houses, stores and factories of the city, and approximately 230 miles of water mains and laterals were added to the distributing system. These facts alone indicate the rapid strides in the commercial and industrial development of Los Angeles.

ROPE OFFERED IMPORTERS

A merchant in Spain desires to be put in touch with American firms that are interested in the importation of old rope and nets, says Consul H. T. Wilcox, Vigo. This merchant buys old rope and twine, sorts it into three grades composed, respectively, of nets, manila hemp, and other hemp, and packs it into bales. He reports that he is able to ship a total of at least sixteen short tons each month. Further information will be furnished upon application to the textile division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce at Washington. Refer to File No. 126200.

INVITES CANVAS BIDS

A tender for 100,000 lineal yards of 36-inch, 16-ounce canvas in bolts of not less than fifty-two yards each for the use of the government railways of the State of Victoria, Australia, has been received from Consul Norman L. Anderson, Melbourne. Bids will be received until May 7, 1924. Copies of this tender have been forwarded to the New York district office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, where they will be made available to interested parties.

FACTORIES HERE SELLING IN EAST

Los Angeles Goods Readily Bought, Expert Asserts

City Rapidly Gaining as an Industrial Center

Strategic Location of City Has Been Factor

That Los Angeles industries are finding their commodities to be favorably received by eastern markets formed the keynote of a statement made this week by E. R. Knerr, manager of the Industrial department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, prominent business property brokers.

"With 5100 industries located in Los Angeles at the present time," said Mr. Knerr, "it is interesting to note that those industries which are marketing their commodities in the national field are successfully competing with eastern-made products in their own territory. From this we can take it that Los Angeles has assumed the proportions where she, as a city, must be reckoned among the first industrial cities in the land.

"It is not without reason that Los Angeles has made this progress. Many factors have contributed their aid to this march of progress. The strategic location of the city is only one of the factors that have entered into making it one of the nation's foremost industrial sections. The termination of three great transcontinental railroads in this city, with a fourth one under contemplation have provided the necessary shipping facilities for the outlet Los Angeles-made products.

"And then our man-made harbor. What Los Angeles Harbor has meant to industrial Los Angeles cannot be accurately measured; its value is so great that words cannot measure it. It has made Los Angeles the gateway to the East from Western waters. Its shipping facilities enable Los Angeles-made products to be shipped, economically, from our port to New York so that they may be sold in that city at a price that competes with eastern manufacturers. Its transoceanic possibilities have given Los Angeles an international reputation.

"With the completion of the Boulder Canyon Dam Los Angeles will have more cheap power for her industries. Southern California electrified will be the result of this great engineering project. Steel and iron will be made here without the resultant smoke and carbonic dust that cover a city engaged in the manufacture of these two great commodities.

"Nature, herself, has conspired to make Los Angeles great. The climate of this section is such as to make for better living conditions and that makes for better working conditions for our workmen. The contented labor condition of Los Angeles has had much to do with the high quality of her products."

FACTORY TO HAVE LARGE SUIT OUTPUT

Manager of Bond Great West Clothing Company Outlines Plans

W. S. Workman, former general manager of the Bond Clothing Company of Cleveland, who left that organization to become general manager of the Bond Great West Clothing Company of Los Angeles, told members of the Chamber of Commerce at their regular weekly meeting last week that preliminary arrangements for the erection of the factory here have been completed.

The Bond Great West Clothing Company will erect a modern plant in Los Angeles with an ultimate capacity of about 600,000 men's and boys' suits and overcoats annually, according to Mr. Workman. "This full capacity cannot be reached short of two or three year," Mr. Workman told the chamber members. A great retail store will be opened at the factory here first and from this, distributing stores will be opened rapidly until all the important towns west of the Continental Divide and reaching into Texas will be covered.

"We will open with a capacity of about 10,000 suits a month and increase the output as the distribution is arranged until we reach about 50,000 suits a month. When running at full capacity we will consume approximately 2,000,000 yards of fabrics annually."

Mr. Workman said that arrangements would probably be made to obtain all or a large part of the fabrics used in manufacturing the garments from Los Angeles woolen mills.

CUBAN MARKET DULL

Expectations of actual business in textile goods with the opening of the sugar-grinding season have not materialized, and various dealers report less favorable business than for the same period a year ago, says Commercial Attache C. H. Cunningham. Some houses have experienced difficulty in making collections from the interior and there has been a resultant tendency to restrict the acceptance of orders. A number of textile salesmen from European houses, notably German and Italian, have visited Cuba in recent months, and competition from Germany, Switzerland and France, in the sale of artificial silk and ribbons has been reported.

AUSTRALIA WOOL AUCTIONS

The fifth wool auction sales of the present season took place in Adelaide on February 1, when 23,862 bales were sold. The bidding was keen and the prices generally ranged about 10 to 12 1-2 per cent higher than those obtained at the December sales. The highest price paid was 38 1-2 pence per pound for thirty-two bales of greasy wethers. The next highest price was 37 3-4 pence per pound for ten bales of another lot of wethers, and 37 1-2 pence for five bales of quality super combings. American and Yorkshire buyers were especially prominent at this sale, though French, German, Japanese and Australian buyers were also active, says Consul Henry H. Balch.

SEWER CREDIT TO ANAHEIM

ANAHEIM, April 19.—With the successful completion last week of one of the greatest community projects of its kind ever undertaken in the United States, Anaheim is receiving its major share of the credit for the great outfall sewer which connects the principal Orange county cities and their sewer systems with the sea.

Although credit for this great forward movement for Orange county is given by the participating cities to Anaheim, it is in turn given by this city to the administration of the past two years. It is generally conceded by the civic bodies of the county that had it not been for the optimism and unfailing courage of the Anaheim Trustees, the outfall sewer would still be in embryo instead of a completed project.

A resume of the history of the project reveals that in 1919 the proposition was first taken up by the cities of Anaheim, Santa Ana, Fullerton and Orange, but after several meetings negotiations were dropped because of the lack of the spirit of co-operation. In 1920 the City Council of Anaheim again took up the negotiations with Fullerton and went so far as to make a survey of the proposed lines, estimates, and the tentative outline of agreements for construction and control.

ENLARGE COCA COLA PLAN

Installation of New Machinery Doubles Capacity Beverage Works Over Last Year

The installation of a fourth unit of bottling machinery now in progress will bring the daily capacity of the Coca-Cola Company of Los Angeles plant to 125,000 bottles per day. unit is the second to be installed since January 1, last, and the plant double the capacity of last season. This plant is largest bottler of soft drinks in California.

The two new units are of the modern type and combine the highest degree of cleanliness with unusual speed and efficiency. From the time the empty bottles reach the plant to the outgoing shipment of filled cases, practically every operation is carried on mechanically.

AUTOMATIC MACHINES

Immediately upon arriving at the plant, empty bottles are placed on a roller conveyor on which they are carried into a huge sterilizer where they are washed thoroughly, inside and out, rinsed, and deposited on another conveyor. In this same operation they are carried to the low pressure bottling machines where the syrup is accurately measured into each bottle and seventy-two automatically filled at a time; then to a capping machine where the same number are capped simultaneously and placed on a conveyor which delivers them to the final inspection table. Another interesting machine picks them up here and pastes on the labels with finger-like dexterity.

Bottles are then ready for packing in cases for delivery. The total time required for the average bottle from its arrival and dirty—to its the plant, filled, is teen minutes.

HEAVY DEMAND

"Southern California territory in the world of soft drinks," said Barbee, president of the "Our warm climate round demand without slack season customary cities. The expansion cilities has been necessary by the growing for beverages and it keep close pace with the of the flourishing we serve."

A Complete 3pc Bath Room Set $66

(everything to the rough plumbing)

Here's a money saving feature for the home builder. A three piece bath room set including your choice of a 4½ or 5 foot roll rim bath tub, a No. 65 wide apron lavatory completely equipped for hot or cold water and a low style toilet with cast iron porcelain enameled tank and "Never Split" bar hinge Birch Mahogany seat.

While these fixtures are guaranteed for service by us they are not "A" Grade, but classed as slightly imperfect, but it would take an expert to find the imperfections. The three-piece set as pictured, everything complete to the rough plumbing for $66.

LUMBER

Good lumber is the first requisite in building a good house. Depending very largely on the quality of your lumber is the final appearance of your finished home.

You cannot expect a good paint or finish job on poorly milled lumber. Your interior finish will be permanently marred if your selection is not made with care and the mill work done correctly.

Our splendid buying facilities, our large yard stocks and highly efficient mill assures you of the best in lumber and millwork at prices that fully meet competition. Lumber bills can be estimated at either office.

Wrought Iron Fixtures

Typical of the policy of Whiting-Mead are these offerings of wrought iron lighting fixtures. Artistic and beautifully decorated they add beauty and charm to any home, and note how moderately they are priced.

Fixture, $12.50

One of the most handsome wrought iron candelabra fixtures we have on display. Beautifully finished, artistically decorated and priced $12.50 for the fixture. The lamps are extra.

Fixture, $6.00

The general style of this fixture is shown above, though it differs in some small details. The 3-light at $6.00 and 4-light at $7.00.

Fixture $10.80

A ceiling cluster in the wrought iron fixtures. Hand wrought and polychrome decorated, it should be sold for much more than the price of $10.80. The lamps are extra.

Electrical Supplies at Low Prices

The materials every electrician needs, or the home builder who is doing his own wiring:

Split Knobs, $2.00 per hundred.
Brass Key Sockets, 25c each.
Single 040 Brass Switch Plates, 13c each.
Changeable Loom Boxes, 12c each.
No. 14 R. C. Wire, inside or outside kind, 85c per hundred feet.
Flush Switches, 25c each.

Low Toilets $24

Low toilets like the picture, with cast iron porcelain enameled tanks, "Never Split" bar hinge birch mahogany seats, all complete with the necessary screws, washers and angle valve. Everything to the rough plumbing for $24.

Again A Feature for This Week Only $1

Quick Compression Faucets, $1.00

Genuine brass, heavily nickel-plated, quick compression faucets with china index handles, some marked hot and some marked cold. Just the thing to replace your old sink faucets with.

Bungalow Paint, $1.25 Gal.

A very good quality paint to sell at this price. It may be had in white, gray or pearl.

Combination Lead, 12c lb.

An unusually low price and you may buy this in any size can you wish at this figure per pound. It is used by painters in mixing their own paints.

U. S. Stock White, $2.50 Gal. Makes 3 Gallons of Paint

One gallon of U. S. stock white when mixed with linseed oil will make three gallons of priming paint, or approximately 2 gallons of a good outside paint. This price applies on 1 or 5-gallon cans only.

Shingle Stain, 85c Gal.

Your choice of red or brown shingle stain at 85c per gallon in 5 gallon cans; or the green stain at $1.00 per gallon in 5 gallon cans. And remember this stain is heavy enough to be almost classed as a roof paint.

Roof Coater, 75c Gal. It's Asbestic

This asbestos roof coater has the advantage of being composed largely of asbestos, which is fire resisting, and every one appreciates the advantage of having a roof coated with a fire resisting substance. Priced in 50-gallon lots at 75c per gallon; 10 gallon cans at 95c per gallon; 5 gallon cans at $1.00 per gallon and single gallons at $1.10 per gallon. And remember it is guaranteed for 5 years' service.

Roof Coater, 50c Gal.

Here's a popular priced roof coater in 5-gallon cans at 50c per gallon. Single gallons at 60c per gallon.

Lawn Mowers, $8.50

You will like one of these mowers. They are easy running and thoroughly efficient. Have 3 blades, with 8-inch wheels and 14-inch cutting bar, priced at $8.50. Then we have other mowers, 4 blades, full ball bearing, with 10-inch wheels and 14-inch cutting blade at $14, or the 16-inch at $15.

FLOOD CONTROL BOND FAVORED

East Side Organization for Passage of Issue

Declare Measure Vital to Industrial Progress

Will Assure Needed Supply of Factory Water

Indorsement of the proposed $35,000,000 flood control bond issue, which will be on the May 6 ballot, was given yesterday by the East Side Organization, Inc., through its flood control committee, composed of F. Osthoff, engineer of the Arcadia-Bandini-Baker Estate Company; H. A. Lafler, industrial sales agent of the Walter H. Leimert Company and E. P. Reed, president of the Pico Chamber of Commerce.

Flood control and water conservation will both yield tremendous benefits to all Southern California and the money expended for this purpose will rapidly be repaid by the increase in values of all property affected, according to the committee report.

"It is the unanimous opinion of the Flood Control Committee of the East Side Organization, Inc., that the most important measure now before the people of the Southwest is the flood control program outlined by J. W. Reagan, chief engineer of Los Angeles County Flood Control District," said Mr. Osthoff.

CONSERVATION FIRST

"The committee believes that the factor of conservation of water really is of more importance than the control of flood danger because of the necessity of raising the water table in the large East Side area, which normally will be devoted very largely to industrial purposes.

"At the present time, according to our committee report, many of the artesian wells in this area have ceased to flow and new wells that are constantly being bored are forced to go deeper and deeper for water each year. With the establishment of the dams to hold back the flood waters in the mountains it is felt certain that the underground flow will be re-charged and as a consequence many of the artesian wells will flow again and all local water supply will be greatly increased."

INCREASES VALUES

Speaking of the water situation, Mr. Lafler stated:

"Industrial plants located in the West often consume large quantities of water, and with the assurance of an abundant supply of underground water such industries are able to bore their own wells and thus control the source of their supply, which is always considered a great advantage."

"Taxable values of all property affected by the proposed flood control measure will be greatly increased, thus adding materially to the income of the district," Mr. Reed stated. "Many acres of land adjoining the Rio Hondo and San Gabriel rivers are now considered practically worthless because of the danger of sudden floods. With this risk removed these sections will become just as valuable as the adjoining industrial sections, and will permit 100 per cent utilization of the East Side Industrial district in the location of new factories for Los Angeles."

WATER BOND IS VOTED BY GATE CITY

Passage of Issue Hailed as Harbinger of Era of Industrial Activity

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN BERNARDINO, April 19.—With a $275,000 water bond issue voted by an overwhelming majority San Bernardino is facing its greatest year of development.

The bonds will finance the developing of the city's water shed in the Devil Canyon district, where wells will be drilled and the stream's natural flow piped to the city, seven miles on the south. The issue also provides that $160,000 will be expended in the laying of an extensive distributing system in the hundreds of acres annexed during the past six months. The annexed areas, lying north of the city and virtually within the shadows of the mountains, are being subdivided, streets and sidewalks constructed, and will provide thousands of sites for homes.

The canyon's water source will adequately supply the city's domestic needs for many years, it is predicted by engineers directing the development of the project. Home building slackened during the past three months, owners of property in the annexed districts waiting only the passage of the bonds before beginning scores of buildings.

The water bond issue was the largest ever submitted to voters of San Bernardino and was adopted by a 9 to 1 ballot.

Curfew Bell in West Virginia

A recently passed ordinance of Glenville, W. Va., prohibits any boy or girl under 18 from being on the street after eight o'clock in the evening unless accompanied by parents or going to or returning from church. Children under 18 may attend public gatherings provided they have written permission from their parents. Violations of the ordinance are to be punished by fines. A curfew bell will sound every evening at eight.

SANTA ANA GETS GLASS FACTORY

Largest Plant of Kind in West is Planned

Will Erect Buildings to Cost $250,000

Pay Roll Expected to Reach 800 Employees

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SANTA ANA, April 19.—Santa Ana is to have the largest window-glass factory west of the Mississippi River.

Ultimately 800 men will be employed, though the Dixon Glass Company, whose officials will form the directorate, will employ but 200 to 300 men to start.

Buildings costing $250,000 will be started at once in the Central Industrial District, a mile south of the city.

These announcements were made here today by E. J. Williams of Long Beach, who will manage the plant. Credit for bringing the enterprise here was being given Robert Brown and his partner, George W. Moore of Los Angeles, as well as the Chamber of Commerce industrial committee.

The company, fully financed, it was assured, and capitalized at $500,000, will be known as the Standard American Glass Company. It plans production within four months, it was added.

The first plant will cover ten acres of a tract of twenty-five acres the company has purchased, chamber officials stated, and its output will be three carloads a day.

This is by far the largest industrial enterprise to embark in Orange county, chamber executives emphasized, adding that the comparative low price of industrial land, favorable transportation and material prices and exceptional labor and living conditions played no small part in the decision of the company to locate here.

INDUSTRIES GET LARGER QUARTERS

Increased Business Makes More Room Necessary for Three Firms

The Advance Saw Works has moved to larger quarters, taking a lease on a two-story building located at 239-41 E. Second street. The lessees are W. H. Thurston and Wm. Sorenson of the Advance Saw Works. The Advance Saw Works was formerly located at 231 East Second street but found that the space there was inadequate to care for their volume of business. The storeroom, located at 1547 West Pico street, has been leased to George W. Krick. Mr. Krick who designs and manufactures hand-carved woodwork, was formerly located at 704 East Washington street, but now has decided to enter the retail field.

Mr. Thomas B. Drum has leased storeroom located at 513 West Pico. He was formerly located at Tenth and Broadway, but due to the plans for widening West Tenth street, it was necessary for him to seek a new location. Mr. Drum has installed new equipment of the latest design in his new store, as he anticipates a good business on "Greater Pico Boulevard."

The Converse Tire Company, W. J. Stowe, manager, a corporation of Malden, Mass., has just leased one-half of the ground floor of the Geo. P. Ide Building at 1125-27 South Wall street. The Converse Tire Company was formerly located at 420 West Eleventh street, but due to the increase in their business it was necessary for them to take over approximately three times the amount of space they previously occupied.

The above leases were handled by Mr. W. H. Brooks of the leasing department of W. I. Hollingsworth and Company.

RUSSIAN HEMP PRODUCTION

Hemp production in Russia during 1924 will not exceed 6,000,000 poods (pood—36.11 pounds) and about 1,000,000 poods will be required for industrial purposes in that country, according to estimates made by representatives of the textile division of the Council of National Economy. During 1922-23 Russian industry used only 840,000 poods of hemp. In 1913 the area sown to hemp in Russia amounted to 30 per cent of that sown by all other countries, but in 1920 this production had decreased to 59 per cent. The production was subject to considerable fluctuations prior to the war and ranged from 18 to 30,000,000 poods a year.

AMERICAN CANVAS SALES

Sales of American canvas in the Straits Settlements at present amount to 5000 to 10,000 yards a month, according to a large Chinese firm of ship chandlers in Singapore, representing an American house. This firm claims to sell practically all of the American canvas imported into this district. Previously it had reported selling 20,000 to 30,000 yards a month, but presumably this was only temporary, and was accomplished under unusually favorable conditions. Most of the competition comes from the Japanese article which is about 50 per cent cheaper, Vice-Consul Hugh S. Miler, Singapore, reports.

Oven-birds build their nests on the ground, then cover them with dead leaves, making it almost impossible to find them.

SEEK WELL WATER SUPPLY

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

OWENSMOUTH, April 19.—Much interest throughout the western end of the valley is being taken by ranchers and orchardists in the experiment being made on the Koepfle Ranch of eighty acres in the attempt to develop a water well. Pumping this week developed a flow of seventy-five inches. This is deemed satisfactory, so satisfactory in fact that other wells are to be drilled in the same vicinity, ranchers being of the opinion that since thousands of acres of open farming land and orchards have been irrigated by water from the Owens River aqueduct there has been a gradual elevation of the underlying water level. The success of the first well, known as the Hadley test, seeming assured, plans are under way for drilling a second one for Morris Beckstead on the other eighty acres of the Koepfle holdings.

The bringing in of this well is looked upon as a highly valuable acquisition, inasmuch as a flow of that size in a year of scant rain would practically make the ranch free from dependence upon the aqueduct for irrigation water.

Book of 125 Designs . . 50c

WE are clearing our mills of surplus lumber stocks, making room for new buildings and new production equipment. As an incentive for home builders to place their orders immediately and thereby aid us in reducing stocks prior to our expansion period, we are offering a special discount on the list price of every Pacific Home. This discount will be withdrawn May 1 and you are therefore urged to place your order immediately.

Our home-building service is unquestionably the most complete ever offered. Prices are based on quantity production. In order to save labor costs and eliminate lumber waste we prepare the individual pieces at the mill, ready for actual nailing in place. We furnish the lumber at lowest cost—actually wholesale,—and assume entire responsibility when you place your order for an erected home. We are able to give immediate service including the furnishing of all materials, prompt shipment to your lot, carpenter labor, cement work, plastering, painting, plumbing, wiring, interior decorating, etc. We agree to furnish the finest quality materials and every foot of lumber is subject to your most critical inspection.

By placing the responsibility of your home-building with the Pacific Organization you obtain your home at lowest cost consistent with quality and avoid payment of middle profits. We buy lumber in shipload quantities, handle it by the most efficient methods and save you the many middle profits on individual items.

Our twelve exhibition homes at 1360 South Hill Street are open for public inspection daily and Sunday. These homes are exact duplicates of regular stock styles shown in our Book of Designs. We can show you hundreds of other homes that we have built in different parts of Los Angeles. In our Wilshire tract located at Wilshire Boulevard and Carson Road we have erected twenty-five quality homes that are excellent demonstrations of the value we give.

No matter where your lot is located we can quote an estimate on the cost of erecting any size or style of home. If you have cash and are looking for the best bargain in homebuilding we know positively that we can give you greater value than you can find elsewhere. However, if you require financing we have a special department that will assist you and handle all the details. We can arrange liberal loans for lot owners, financing as high as 100 per cent. We positively cannot allow our special discount after May 1, so we suggest that you call at our office immediately and look over our plans and place the order for your home without further delay. If you cannot conveniently call at our office we will be glad to send a salesman to your home any day or evening.

Style 386, illustrated above, is open for inspection at our Exhibition Grounds. The price of the ready-cut materials is only $1574 F.O.B. Mill, subject to Mill Clearance discount until May 1. Erected price upon request.

Style 30, illustrated above, is a remarkable value. The ready-cut materials cost only $868 F.O.B. Mill. Cost of erection on your lot, quoted upon request.

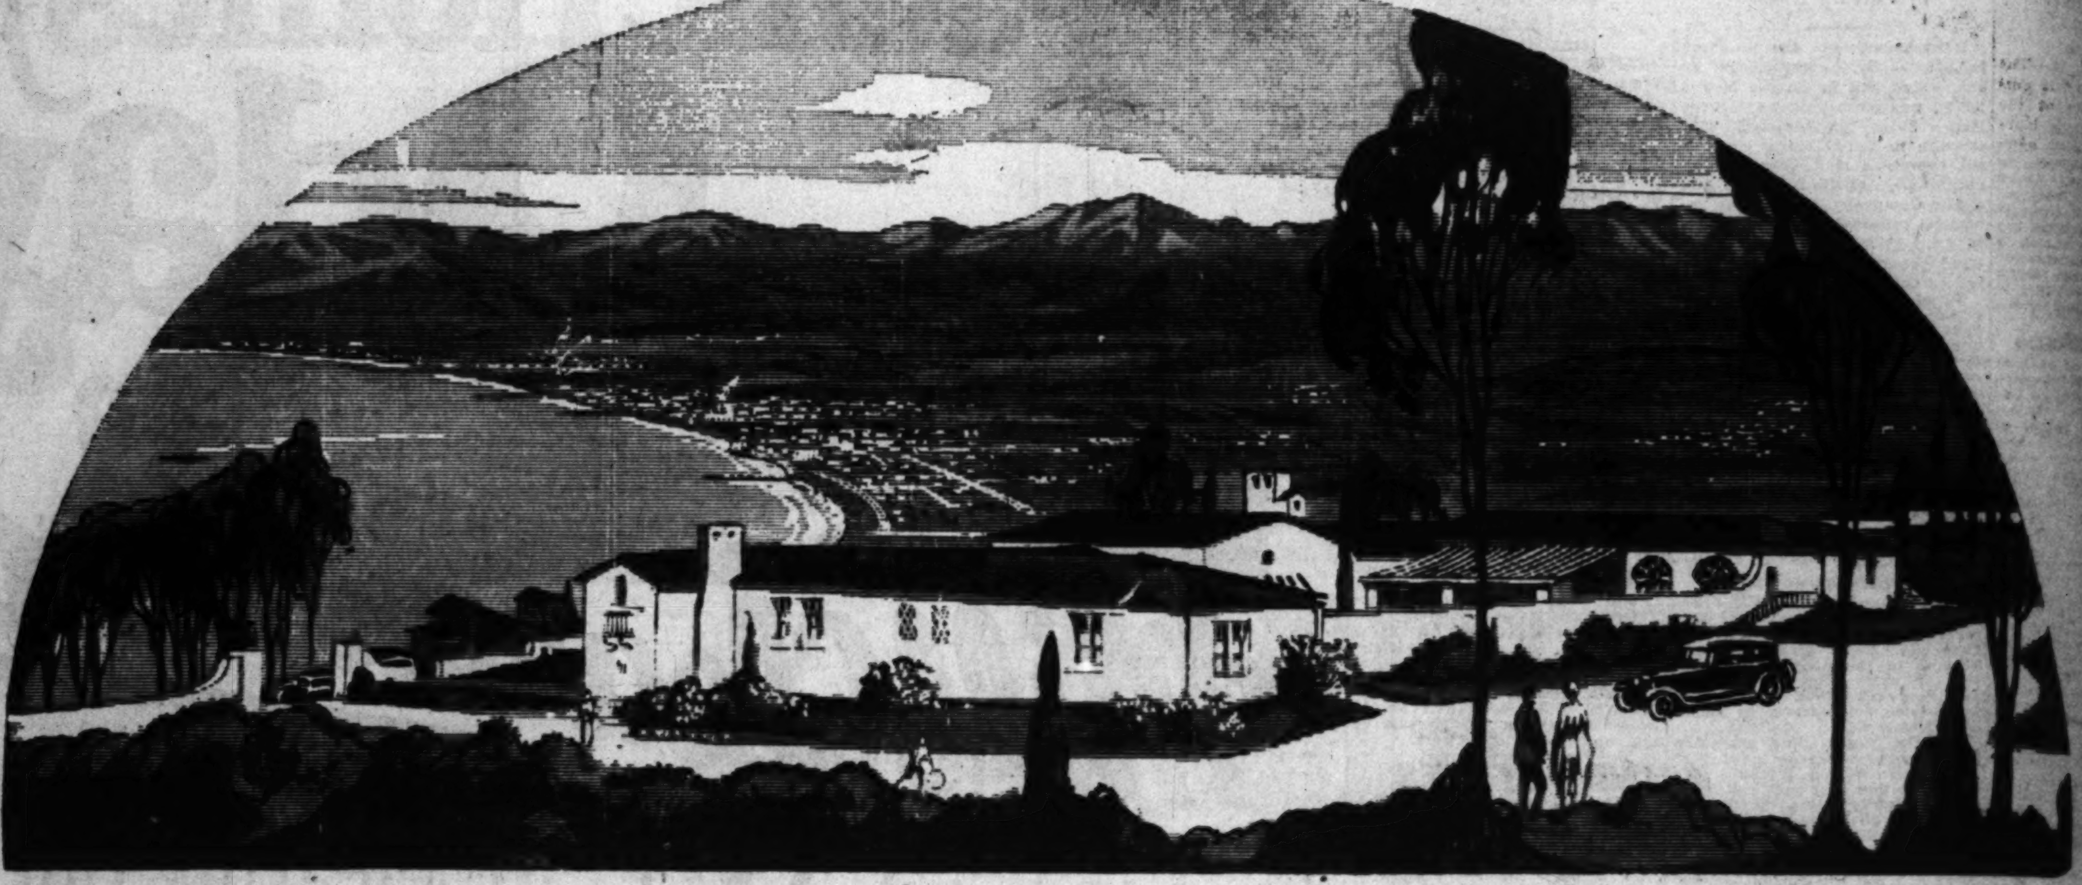
Quality Built



Spanish Residence, now building on Malaga Terrace—elevation 600 feet—overlooking ocean and beach cities. Designed by Kirtland Cutter, Architect, Long Beach.

inspiration

Why Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Cameron chose a Palos Verdes hillside for their permanent home.

HAVE you ever—perhaps on a vacation—got up to see a sunrise over the ocean, and felt a stir within you to go and do something worth while? That's inspiration.

Maybe it came to you, 'way back somewhere, on a never-to-be-forgotten day on a mountain top, with the world as your footstool. It spoke so clearly that it put new life into your work—enriched it—made it nearer what it should be. That was the voice of inspiration, too.

Nature has given us Palos Verdes as a natural inspiration to homebuilders in Southern California. The location is ideal—on gently rising ground, terrace on terrace from the water's edge to the highest point 1400 feet above. Over 80% of all homesites command a permanent unobstructed ocean view. The developments and improvements already in, together with those now under construction, will total over $2,250,000 (exclusive of cost of land) by the close of this year, and will ensure for Palos Verdes an environment second to no other residential city in the United States.

Imagine the outlook from the Cameron residence. The emerald-blue carpet of the Pacific, merging into the purple distance of a western sky—the soft-shaded crest of the mountains gently sloping to the sea. The busy little beach cities at the water's edge below, and around your feet—as flowers in a garden—the lovely homes on Palos Verdes.

Inspiration is the greatest material gift to mankind, without which life is incomplete. Palos Verdes offers this to an unusual degree—and because of it Mr. and Mrs. Cameron have chosen, out of all other residential districts, the New City as their permanent home.

There are in all over 3000 men and women who have felt the inspiration of Palos Verdes, and have selected homesites there. Many other desirable locations are still available at original prices, conveniently ranging from $2000 to $6000 and up.

A SPANISH MASTERPIECE PALATIAL ROSSMORE HOME

Owner unexpectedly leaving for Europe authorizes us to sell this week his sumptuously furnished residence, including of a profusion of Oriental rugs such as Kermans, Saruks, Sarapis, Indian Laristans, etc., and a fine collection of paintings by noted artists.

Every piece of furniture has been made to the order of the owner and cannot be duplicated. As an example the chifforobe is made entirely of mahogany, including sides and bottom of the drawers.

Rarest specimens of shrubs have been assembled to make a proper setting for the pergola, sunken garden and pool, so that the side of the house away from Rossmore is fully as attractive as the front, which has the wonderful view of Hollywood, Beverly Hills and the ocean.

The entrance hall is full two stories high and in fine proportion, the wrought iron on the stairway giving the pure Spanish note that is maintained throughout in all its appointments, the arches above bringing it out more forcefully.

The living room 20x30, splendidly furnished with rich hangings, has South, West and Eastern exposures and opens on to a delightful terrace or lounge tastefully arranged in Wicker. From this terrace access may also be had to the luxurious library. The ample dining room and its $3500 suite form a picture of perfection.

Pass pantry, breakfast nook, kitchen and maid's room and bath complete the lower floor.

There are three beautifully furnished master bedrooms and two large sleeping porches. One bedroom is 20x20 and has three exposures. There are two tiled baths and separate tiled shower.

Double garage contains also laundry with tubs, washer, mangle, etc., as well as extra room.

Altogether an establishment which if priced at $125,000 would be fair value, at the price offered, almost a gift. Phone for an appointment.

VERY ANXIOUS TO SELL
Will consider any reasonable offer. Owner must leave the city.
MOST BEAUTIFUL BUNGALOW HOME
Moorish villa, seven rooms, two baths. There is nothing to compare with this wonderful home. The architecture is very extraordinary, the construction of the best, and the location ideal. The living room is of rare beauty, having travertine mantel. A solarium incomparable, glass-inclosed having colored floor of oak stone and fountain of unusual attractiveness. There are three lovely bedrooms and two baths. Wonderful rear patio. The color scheme of decoration and the decorations themselves are unequaled anywhere, comprising beautiful relief work, excellent design and workmanship.
Should you be in the market for a small home of the better class, we will be glad to show you this. The price is much less than reproduction cost. It was carefully built for a home, and not built to sell. Elegant drapes and rugs included in price. A sure enough sacrifice.

AN EXTREMELY BEAUTIFUL HOUSE and without any relation to the property
A VERY
FINANCIAL SITUATION.
957 ARAPAHOE ST.

This is not an old house. It was built during the war by one of the most prodigal spenders this city has ever had, and everything she wanted went into it without any relation to what it cost.

A fancy price was paid for the woods and no one knows how to make them any better, or richer in finish.

The hall and living-room are in quarter-sawed oak, and this is one finish that is never out of date and never loses its charm. The rooms are massive and in good taste.

The dining-room is in mahogany and no one will dispute the distinction of the woods or effect. The great windows across the front of the room are curved instead of being flat.

There are few finer master bedrooms in town than this which extends with its bath and porch across the entire south end of the second floor. The finish is in exquisite birdseye maple.

There are five bedrooms, five open porches, and one inclosed sleeping porch. Three lavatories, two large tile baths, one shower bath. House water filter. Ruud heater. Furnace and gas radiators for heat.

A ballroom in hardwoods occupies the entire third floor.

Lot is 60x142½.

Very fine lawn, shrubbery and flowers.

Asphalt lined street bordered on both sides by palms 40 feet high.

This location is sure to run "into the money" in the very near future with the opening of 10th Street into the main East-West crosstown road, and with the creation of the new Westmoreland Park. Over a considerable period this increase will be great.

Some money will be appreciated.

Some trade will be taken in.

Even an equity with some cash around or over $20,000 will receive every immediate attention.

Drive around look it over, and make me a proposition.

A WONDERFUL CITY ESTATE

THIS IS A REAL OPPORTUNITY FOR SOME ONE TO STEP INTO ONE OF THE CITY'S BEST HOMES WHERE ELEGANCE AND CULTURE PREDOMINATE.

SURROUNDED BY BEAUTIFUL TERRACED LAWNS. Bordered by wonderful ornamental trees enhanced by beautiful gardens, tennis court and putting green well located in the rear. This WINDSOR SQUARE MANSION is constructed of brick on a reinforced concrete foundation and was built to baffle time and weather. Over a year was taken to construct this architectural masterpiece and it is as substantial now as when first built.

THE INSPIRATION OF THE GROUNDS IS INDICATIVE OF THE GRANDEUR OF ITS INTERIOR, WHICH is composed of an impressive entrance hall, drawing room, reception room, living-room, a large library, dining room, breakfast room and large culinary department, composed of kitchen, storeroom and pass pantry.

AT THE HEAD OF THE MAIN STAIRWAY ARE THE MASTER SUITES. Altogether there are fourteen rooms, five master bedrooms and four baths. The grounds comprise a corner of nearly an acre. There is a three-car garage with quarters overhead. This property shown by appointment only.

Some excellent buildings are tied with old leases, the rentals now seem ridiculous, therefore owners who desire to raise quick money are forced to sell at very low prices. Excellent future investments can thus be made by those willing to accept around 5% net for a time. Here is such an opportunity in Pasadena. No exchanges.

BUYS THAT ARE BUYS

(AND WE DON'T MEAN MAYBE)

One of the best located apartment houses in the Wilshire District. Just completed 33 apartments, leased for 10 years at $14,000 per year. Beautiful building; a snap for the man or woman who appreciates real value. Will take $50,000 in trade, $20,000 cash and mortgage. Ranch land accepted. If you're interested act quickly.

A SPLENDID BUY—On West 51st st. House divided into apartments, one 4-room and two 2-room. Income $150 per month. Total price $12,000; $5000 will handle. Will take T. D. for $6000, payable $100 per month, including interest at 7%.

Desirable apartment houses near the Southern Branch are mighty scarce. Listen to this: 24 single apartments just one block from the University. Rent $17.50 per room, 10-year lease; corner lot. Will sacrifice $1680 lease for $1500, or will take partner for half interest. Need enough money for payment on furniture. Must be disposed of before May 5.

A corner on Florence avenue, suitable for gas station. Have had offers to lease for station but owner wants to sell. Lot has 52¼ feet on Florence, 123½ feet on good side street; 2-room house and bath on rear of lot. Priced below market value at $4500; $1500 will handle.

Will lease or trade for chicken ranch, 10-unit bungalow court; close in. Gross income $670 per month, rent $450. This can't last long.

An orange grove, 7.15 acres. Located on San Gabriel Blvd. 700 feet facing the So. Pacific Ry. tracks. Good paying proposition or very suitable for subdivision purposes. Owner wants to sell because other business matters require attention. Crop this year is 7000 boxes. Price $28,000, $8000 cash and terms.

For sale—3 houses, 6 rooms each, on 2 lots on West 78th st. Income $170 per month. Lots 45x140 to alley. Located between Moneta and Figueroa. Big cellar and porch. Owner wants to sell because he is getting old and doesn't wish to take care of same. Price $14,000; $5000 cash and terms.

One 8-room furnished house, a 4-room and a 3-room house on lot 50x150 on La Salle Avenue near 27th st.; 4 and 3-room house partly furnished. Present income $200 per month; two garages. Price $21,500; $10,000 cash and terms. This is a wonderful neighborhood and well worth investigating.

Will trade $1000 equity in 1923 Oakland touring car as down payment on 4 or 5-room bungalow, valued between $4000 and $5000. Will pay $50 per month.

On Victoria ave., a beautiful new 7-room English style house. Located near 10th st. and is only 6 months old. Large living room, 16x25, 2 bedrooms, bathroom upstairs and shower and lavatory downstairs. Double garage. This is in the Wilshire district just 3 blocks from Wilshire. Price $22,000; $10,000 will handle.

For Sale—Duplex on De Longpre, just off Vermont, 5 rooms, bath and kitchen. Two garages. Price $12,500. $4000 will handle.

PLANTED
FIG GARDENS
NO PAYMENTS DOWN

J. C. Forkner, president of the J. C. Forkner Fig Gardens, Inc., hereby offers to 100 families a most remarkable proposition.

I have planted and sold 10,000 acres of fig gardens; I have spent $8,000,000 during the last ten years in development, there are 100 happy families living on these home acres now. I want 100 more families.

I have decided to sell 1000 acres of planted fig gardens, just coming into bearing, on the following conditions:

You may move upon 5 or 10 acres, adjoining the city of Fresno, and build a home and farm the land; will give you ten years in which to pay.

THE CROPS WILL PAY FOR THE LAND

Roads, ditches, highways, electric lines are built; townsites on and being developed; best water right in State; canning factory already built, church, schools and $3,000,000 lumber mill, employing 1000 men, on tract; only 15 minutes from center of Fresno.

I live on the land and have developed these fig gardens myself; any man who joins me cannot fail, for I will help him to success.

For details, see my personal representative, or, if you cannot personally call, write to address below, telling frankly what your circumstances are and what you plan to do.

A 5-minute interview with my personal representative will relieve you of any doubt as to the sincerity of this proposition.

7% SAFE BETTER THAN 12% RISK.

We have assigned to the Union Bank & Trust Co. of Los Angeles first mortgages and trust deeds as security for the payment of notes we issue.

The mortgages and trust deeds assigned as security are first liens, not exceeding 50% of a conservative valuation, on homes occupied by owners or city income property. It is an absolute fact that safety for the note holder is the first consideration.

If your money is drawing 4% and you lose the interest by drawing before an interest period, is it not better to have it drawing 7% and in case it is wanted at any time get full amount of interest?

If you have money out on mortgage and desire cash, it is necessary to discount it. Our note will be cashed in any month of three years, with interest in full. The notes are issued in amounts of $100 or more.

MINES AND MINING—

DON'T let paid agents of competitors fool you. Come up and learn the truth about what our VICTORY BALL MILLS have been and are doing at dozens of mines all over this coast in past nine years. Some mine managers make failures with any equipment, but we compete with most expensive ore grinders on market and beat them, and so we have enemies. 20-ton mill, 6 h.p., $850; 50-ton, 12 h.p., $1500. Why pay more? Also amalgamators that are the old reliable. INTERNATIONAL MNG. & ENG. CO., 525 Stock Exchange Bldg., L. A.

THINK of milling ore for 75c a ton and saving from $1 to $5 more free gold per ton than with any other equipment. Denver Quartz Mills and Gibson Impact Amalgamators do this. Three large units of Denver Mills recently installed in this district, also many Gibson Amalgamators. Gibson Gyratory Mills for smaller plants are most economical, two installed last week by us. Dry concentrators, all mining equipment, 70 h.p. semi-diesel engine, 1-4 cost. HARRIS ENGINEERING CO., 501 Haas Bldg., Los Angeles.

WANTED—DISTRICT MANAGERS

An unusual opportunity is now available to district managers (who have had actual personal experience in building up and directing a sales force of direct-to-consumer salesmen, selling an advertised product in cities and towns) for San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Kansas City and St. Louis.

This is not real estate, stock or get-rich-quick scheme, but a sound and highly profitable commercial proposition, offered by an established Pacific Coast company with a background of twenty years' earnings.

The product is moderately priced, has an appeal to all classes, is of outstanding merit and now has a national sale. The district manager's office is a branch and integral part of a large, successful organization. His territory is his, and there is no switching around from one part of the country to another.

The man sought is one possessing the capacity to shoulder the responsibilities of quickly developing a large sales force of producers. An investment of at least $5000 is required, and the character qualifications of applicants will be subject to careful investigation.

If you cannot fulfill all of the above qualifications please save your time and ours. Principals only. Give full details of your experience in confidence, and an interview will be arranged at our Los Angeles office. Address X, box 405, TIMES BRANCH.

WANTED.

$15,000.

A highly rated going business requires $15,000 for expansion.

Your investment will be surrounded by every safety factor, including the rigid requirements of the Federal Reserve banking system.

The profit is unusually attractive. The investment may be optionally temporary or permanent.

NOTICE OF SALE OF FULLY EQUIPPED PLANT FOR MANUFACTURE OF BARIUM AND CHEMICAL PRODUCTS.

G. W. BRAINARD, Trustee of Metals and Chemical Extraction Corporation, a bankrupt, will sell at public auction on Monday, April 28th, at 10 o'clock a.m., at the office of Hon. Wm. J. Hayes, Referee in Bankruptcy, 705 Easton Building, Oakland, California, the plant formerly conducted by said bankrupt at the intersection of Bay avenue (continuation of 50th avenue) and the Central Pacific Railroad right of way, Oakland, California, and about six and one-half (6½) acres of land on which said plant is located, together with improvements thereon, and all machinery used in connection with said plant. Said improvements and machinery are described in Schedule "B" of the "Partial Inventory" dated March 31st, 1924, now on file the office of said Referee, and said land is described as Parcels "A" and "B" in the "Inventory of Real Property" now on file in the office of said Referee.

Said plant is equipped for the manufacture of lithophone, Blanc-Fixe, sodium sulphide, salt-cake, hydrochloric acid, zinc chloride, barium sulphide and other barium products.

Said Trustee will also at said time and place offer for sale at public auction about thirty-three (33) acres of unimproved real property adjoining said plant, with water and railroad frontage, which property is particularly described in said "Inventory of Real Property," as Parcel "C;" also certain manufactured products and chemicals, miscellaneous machinery and equipment, scrap metals, office furniture and fixtures, and other property as designated in Schedule "A" of the "Partial Inventory" now on file in the office of said Referee.

Any of said personal property can, prior to said public auction sale, be purchased at private sale, if satisfactory bids are received therefor.

Copies of said inventory can be seen at the office of the undersigned and on the premises.

Sale subject to confirmation by court. Terms, cash.

Dated: April 15th, 1924.

Loaned to The Dead

Many strange Indian tribes live around Hudson Bay. The Creek and Nascoppie Indian are among these tribes who have a peculiar custom in regard to their dead. As soon as one of their number is dead, the surviving relatives place the dead one in a box which they beg from the Hudson Bay Company. The size is of no account. In this box are places for a loaded gun, a powder horn, a tobacco pouch, a flint stone for striking fire, the snowshoes for travel and an ax. This box is then carried to the top of the nearest hill, and set there with stones upon the top of it. For ten days it is left undisturbed, and then the relatives remove the gun and other valuables, believing that by that time the dead one had reached the happy hunting grounds and has no further use for them.

MOTOR SCHOOL IS AID TO ARMY

Training Experts Important Feature in Hawaii

Regular Course Conducted on Vehicle Repair

Each Service Branch Gains Valuable Helpers

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SCHOFIELD BARRACKS (Hawaiian Islands) April 19.—Training motor mechanics is an important feature of the Army vocational school at Schofield Barracks, which is the headquarters of the military department of Hawaii.

The automobile department of the post schools is organized into five sections. This organization is necessary to accommodate the large number of students in these courses, the total enrollment in this department being 500. There is one section of the school in each field artillery regiment, one under the supervision of division trains, while the fifth comes under the supervision of the tank company.

The basic course in each of these sections is the same. In all of them the student is taught the general principles of gas engine construction, ignition, carburetion, transmission and other allied subjects. In addition to the basic instruction each section specializes on one or more types of motor vehicles. The artillery regiments lay special stress on the caterpillar tractor and the four-wheel-drive trucks; the division train has for its aim the production of experts on passenger cars, motorcycles and light and medium trucks; while the tank company centers its instruction on the tank and heavy truck.

SEVEN MONTHS

The curriculum covers a period of seven months; the course starts November 1, and ends the last of May. The students are assigned to sections of ten men, each section being under an experienced instructor. These small sections insure each student receiving a maximum of individual instruction.

During the early stages of the course, motion-picture films play an important part in instruction. These films show sectionalized views of each part of a motor vehicle and depict the actual operation of these parts; they also present to the student a life-like representation of the operation of assembling the different parts and of the working of the various unit assemblies. The student is not allowed to work with any tool until the purpose for which the tool is used, the proper manner for using it, and the care which must be given it, are thoroughly explained to him and he has grasped the instruction. After these preliminaries have been covered, the embryo mechanic is given a task to enable him to put into practice the instruction he has received. The instruction is progressive and finally the student actually engages in repair jobs on one of the vehicles of the division which requires shop work. At all time the instructor is near at hand to lend assistance and to insure that all repair work is done in a workmanlike manner.

VALUE IN TRAINING

The school is in session for five afternoons each week. At the end of the course any one who has completed it successfully is well equipped to handle ordinary repair jobs and from a civilian standpoint he has increased his earning capacity to a very material extent.

It is stated that the Hawaiian division at Schofield Barracks, more than any similar unit in the Army, is dependent on trained motor mechanics and chauffeurs to enable it to function in an efficient manner. The normal Army division has two field artillery regiments, both of which are horse drawn; the Hawaiian division has three artillery regiments all of which are motorized, the horse being supplanted by caterpillar tractor. In addition to the artillery units the division has its tank company, its division train, its medical regiment, and its motorcycle company of which all are equipped with motor vehicles.

The infantry and engineer regiments still depend on the Army mule as their mainstay for transportation purposes, but even these regiments have a few motor-propelled vehicles in their normal equipment. The operation, maintenance and care of the large number of motor vehicles at Schofield Barracks makes it imperative that the personnel of the motorized units be thoroughly familiar with basic principles of automobile mechanics in order that the equipment may be in condition at all times.

DOUBLE PURPOSE

The required number of mechanics and chauffeurs would not be available unless instructional courses were instituted to train the men for this class of work after their enlistment. In order that the necessary personnel may be trained and available, the automobile course was established in the post schools. The course in this school serves a dual purpose—it trains the individual for the performance of his normal military duties and at the same time teaches him a trade which is sure to enable him to find remunerative employment in civil life. Let one make inquiry in the garages and motor repair shops in any town and he will be surprised to find a good proportion of the better paid employees received their training in the Army.

COMMUNITY PROPERTY CAN BE DEEDED AWAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, April 19.—The Arizona Supreme Court has decided that a wife has a right to convey by deed to her husband her interest in community real property. This sustains a verdict in the lower court, and also affirms decisions of the Arizona court that a husband may convey by deed or gift his community interest in real property. The case in point was one in which the son of Mrs. Martin Gold, one George Schofield, had sought cancellation of a deed given by her to her husband some time before her death.

WATCHES HER EARRINGS

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—The Rue de la Paix is occustomed to freak novelties, but it got a shock today when a woman, an American, appeared wearing a watch on each ear. The timepieces, larger than postage stamps, were made of platinum rimmed with diamonds and suspended by diamond chains.

PHOENIX AIDS IN MOVE FOR ROAD

Backs Southwestern Fight for Right of Way

Interest Keen in News of Terminal Here

Contest Centers in Entry of Arizona Capital

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, April 19.—News from Los Angeles through The Times that the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad system had purchased forty acres of land in that city for terminal uses is of keen interest in this city, as the first actual confirmation that the Southwestern is behind the Tucson, Phoenix and Tidewater Railroad enterprise. While the Tidewater has bought more than $500,000 worth of property in the southern part of Phoenix and while the slogan of its advocates has been the gaining of a "main line" for Phoenix, no actual declaration has been made of connection with any main-line operation.

The fight has been pushed throughout by James S. Douglas, who is understood to have no part in the ownership of the Southwestern system, which his brother, Walter Douglas of New York, formerly of Bisbee, controls through Phelps-Dodge interests.

James Douglas is the head of the Bank of Douglas at Douglas, Ariz., and also is president of the United Verde Mining Company, which has mines at Jerome and a smelting plant at Clemenceau, a few miles south of Clarkdale. He has had several surveys run southward from Clemenceau, seeking a route down the Verde River to a Southern Pacific connection at Mesa or Phoenix, but of this little has been heard lately. For years he has been an active complainant before the Arizona Corporation Commission concerning freight rates into and from Clarkdale. Especially has he sought a lower rate on bullion to Los Angeles Harbor, desiring to ship his copper from that port to Asiatic and European points.

CITY FOR RAILROAD

The Tidewater, by popular vote, has been given a very favorable franchise across the city, on one of the principal business streets, only two blocks south of Washington street, and the same distance north of the Southern Pacific tracks and the Union station, which now is operated by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe local lines. It is understood that an independent passenger station is to be provided in the southwestern part of the city, though this undoubtedly will be modified if Southwestern passenger trains here are to be delivered to the Santa Fe system, to be routed to Los Angeles via the Wickenburg-Parker-Cadiz cut-off.

Now pending before the Interstate Commerce Commission is the Tidewater application for a certificate of convenience and necessity for construction of the 140-mile connection between Tucson, the present terminus of the Southwestern, and Phoenix. The route, the Southern Pacific to a point near Red Rock Station, where it crosses as laid out, parallels the older road and, leaving Casa Grande to the left and Florence to the right, crosses the Gila River at a point near the Pima Indian Reservation agency at Sacaton. Thence the route would be to the northwest, entering Mesa via Chandler.

ENTRY PROBLEM

The principal trouble now concerns an entry into Phoenix. Douglas has demanded condemnation to himself or privilege to lease an old Southern Pacific right of way, that of the Phoenix, Maricopa and Salt River Valley Railway, over which Southern Pacific traffic formerly reached Mesa from Phoenix, via Tempe. There is allegation that this right of way virtually has been abandoned and the Board of Supervisors of Maricopa county even has ordered vacation of a part of it, with desire to turn over this section to the Tidewater.

At Tempe there is a section of an old Santa Fe bridge over the Salt River, of which two spans were washed away by flood, and between Tempe and Phoenix it is proposed to use portions of old trackage that belonged to the Southern Pacific and which are declared not essential to the operation of that system. Strong support has been given Douglas in all these plans by the municipalities and civic societies of the county and petitions in his favor, addressed to the Interstate Commerce Commission, thus far have been signed in the county by a greater number of individuals than the number of votes cast at the last election.

ESPEE OPPOSED

A new element has been brought into the discussion during the last couple of weeks in an intimation that the Southern Pacific, as a part of its program for fighting the proposed new line, at once will build about twenty miles of railroad from a point near San Carlos, on the Bowie-Globe branch, down the Gila to Christmas, to which point it already has a well-built line from Phoenix, about 110 miles distant. There is a report that the Southern Pacific has been waiting for final determination on construction of the San Carlos dam, for which an appropriation of $5,500,000 lately was made by the Senate. This bill now is in the House and is expected to pass at any early date.

If the dam is built, necessity at once will arise for reconstruction of about twenty miles of the Bowie-Globe branch and the route down the Gila will have to be placed at an elevation of at least the height of the dam. It is understood that surveys already have been completed in anticipation of such a change.

The Southern Pacific, during the presidency of E. H. Harriman, was said to have contemplated the shifting of its main line through Arizona to this new route, one on which no grade will be found above one-half of 1 per cent. West of Phoenix this new route has rails as far as Hassayampa, about fifty miles, and surveys have been made to a westward connection with the main line, crossing the Gila about thirty miles east of Yuma.

SOLDIER FIRES AT PLANE

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—Suddenly becoming insane, a soldier stationed at the Le Bourget airdome fired three shots at a plane filled with passengers as it was about to leave for London. No one was injured and the plane departed as soon as the damage done to the fuselage had been repaired.

JAPANESE TAKE SLAP AT RUSSIA

Leaders Plan to Call Bluff of Kremlin Chiefs

Prince Regent Starts Rage With Mustache

Historic Battleship May be Hall for Peace

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, April 19.—That Japan shall not turn the other cheek to Russia, whose policy seems to be one of studied insult to this country, a group of Japanese headed by Mitsuru Toyama, more than 70 years of age, whom the highest in the land are known to fear, met recently to discuss what steps shall be taken to "call the bluff of the pretenders in the Kremlin." Among others present were R. Uchida, one-time head of the now defunct Black Dragon League, a political institution, and Prof. Yuesugi of the Tokio Imperial University, one of the seven bellicose professors who drew up a document two decades ago in the name of the nation demanding war with Russia.

In bitter speeches Russia was taxed with trying the temper of the Japanese people too much. "If we assume a meek and humble mien, we will be risking the honor and prestige of this country," declared Dr. Yuesugi. "Russia must demonstrate a spirit of sincerity before she can hope to resume diplomatic and friendly intercourse with Japan, and her recent actions are sadly lacking even in the elements that go to make up the noble virtue of sincerity."

The Foreign Office continues to maintain a conciliatory attitude toward the Russians, even when Japanese were expelled from Vladivostok, an incident that gave rise to bitter resentment here. It is understood, however, that the Japanese government hasn't the slightest intention of treating with Russia in the immediate future, despite the statements of some Japanese papers to the effect that negotiations, with a view to straightening out the tangles between the two nations, will be started soon.

PRINCE SETS STYLE

The young men of Japan are preparing to throw away their razors—at least to refrain from using the knife on their upper lips—the reason being that the Prince Regent has set the fashion of wearing a mustache. His Imperial Highness sat for a photograph with the Crown Princess. This is not the first photograph to which the Prince has posed since his marriage recently, but it is the first in which he is seen wearing hair on the upper lip. Both the Prince Regent and the Crown Princess were dressed in occidental garments.

The Mikasa, the flagship of Admiral Togo when he defeated the Russian Baltic fleet under Admiral Rodjestvensky two decades ago, soon may play an important part in the cause of peace and understanding between nations, a movement having just been started to fit up the obsolete greyhound of the deep as a place where meetings of the American-Japan Society may be held.

The Mikasa is regarded by the Japanese as the British, long ago, regarded the Victory. The fight made for her retention at the Washington conference was due largely to the fact that considerable sentiment attaches to the vessel in the hearts of the Japanese and when it was finally decided that it too must go to the scrap heap, various patriotic societies and associations tried very much to prevent it from being totally destroyed.

It was suggested that the vessel be converted into an aquatic museum and then, when officials of the Navy Department gravely nodded negatives as any deviation from the stipulations of the Washington conference might be misconstrued in other lands, it was suggested that a relic of the vessel be preserved in every school throughout the Empire.

The new suggestion, however, it is thought, will receive the approval of the authorities here and of the nations signing at the Washington conference. Among those identified with the movement to make Admiral Togo's flagship a place where American-Japanese relations may be furthered is Baron Yasushi Togo, son of the hero of the Battle of the Japan Sea.

NEW CHURCH SITE

Trinity Cathedral, the Methodist Episcopal Church in Tokio, has acquired a site for the edifice which Methodists are to erect in Japan's capital to replace that which was destroyed in the earthquake and conflagrations of September, 1923. The deal was concluded by Rev. Norman Binstead. Marquis Nakayama, who owns the property, made a sacrifice in price owing to the friendly spirit, as he said, that has always been shown toward Japan by the American church mission.

It first was intended to put up a six-story apartment-house on the site, which is one of the highest in the rather aristocratic district of Aoyama, but owing to the proximity of the Akaska Detached Palace, where the Prince Regent and the Crown Princess are now living, and of the Aoyama Detached Palace to the site and the fact that the upper stories of the proposed apartment-house would overlook the royal residence, a situation that is not countenanced in Japan, the authorities forbade the construction of such a building.

In addition to the new cathedral, a parish house and a rectory also will be erected. The money is to come from the general fund of 5,000,000 yen for which the Episcopal Church in America is at present conducting a drive.

LAKE ICE WRECKS SHORE STRUCTURES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MILWAUKEE, April 19.—Driven by a high east wind, ice breaking up in Lake Winnebago has begun piling high along the western shores and cottages near the lake are in danger of destruction if the drive continues, according to word from Neenah. In places the ice piles attained a height of thirty to forty feet, trees were uprooted, huge boulders and tons of dirt scooped from the lake bottom and carried onto the land and boat houses, piers and docks bordering the shore crumpled like so much paper.

PRESIDENCY NO LURE TO YOUTH

Only One Nebraska Student Admits Ambition

Questionnaire Shows Few Lean to Trades

Fifth of Replies Indicate Farm Calls

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

LINCOLN (Neb.) April 19.—Only one potential candidate for the Presidency of the United States has been found in a survey just completed by the State Vocational Bureau, which had for its object the discovering of the choices of occupations by pupils in Nebraska high schools.

On the other hand four youths boldly declared for the life of a bootlegger, one proposed following the life of an adventurer, one would be a Congressman. One boy wished to be a day laborer and one girl to be a dancing teacher. Two expressed the desire to follow the life of a millionaire, one boy wants to be a street car conductor. Five boys and four girls list their ambitions as that of being politicians, while one girl wants to be a trap-drummer.

Nearly 26,000 high school students in the State answered the questionnaire, which was sent out by Clark D. Fulmer, State vocational education director. Fulmer believes that the occupational life of tomorrow is forecast in the thoughts of the youth today, and that what young people are going to be they are now becoming. Many will, of course, change their minds, some will never realize their ambitions, but what appeals to them during high school will as a rule influence their choice. Nearly 50 per cent of the total enrollment in the high schools of the State is represented in the replies.

FEW SEEK TRADES

So much has been printed and said about the turning away from the white-collar jobs because they do not pay as well that the result of this survey furnishes a complete surprise, in that only 8.77 per cent of the boys declared for the trades, while 20.37 per cent prefer farming, 22.34 per cent the professions, 21.99 engineering and 12.73 per cent business careers. In other words, of the 25,914 who responded, all but 4320 voted for farming, business, stenography, engineering and the professions. Some curious situations were developed. Nearly all of the girls in one small high school set down that they desired to be nurses. In one rural high school not a single boy expressed a wish to follow farming, and in one school miles away from a railroad most of the girls reported their desire to be stenographers.

The Army and Navy called to but twenty-three boys, and one of these had no loftier ambition than to start in as captain of a submarine. Nineteen boys expressed a wish to be auctioneers. The various forms of art appealed to 379, and most of these desire to be cartoonists. Twenty-four girls long for the splendors of work in a beauty shop, while 2089 desire to be stenographers and 7970 of the total of 15,065 girls want to be teachers.

The educators say that under the present curriculum teaching and stenography are about the only professions suggested for girls. Those who dread teaching turn to stenography, and one reply said that there was nothing else for the girls to do "while they wait." Only 245 girls expressed a wish to be home-makers. Economic conditions, it was reported, force girls early to labor to earn a living. More than 1200 want to be nurses.

MANY LIKE LAW

Most of the boys who dipped into the professions chose law, medicine and teaching. Only ninety-three wish to be ministers. Only one desired to follow the occupation of poet. Five girls aspire to be opera singers and one to be a chorus girl. Only 340 altogether chose stage or platform work.

"The big surprise," says Fulmer, "comes from the fact that only 1065 desire to follow some trade, and of this number 688 want to be auto mechanics. The building trades, in which fabulous wages have been reported as luring office workers in the big cities, are represented by 110 carpenters, seven plumbers, four masons and four bricklayers."

PREACHER RESENTS ELDER'S CRITICISM

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DETROIT, April 19.—Charged by the Rev. W. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Sault Ste. Marie, with defamation of character in a $10,000 damage suit, Anderson McLelland, Soo businessman and until recently an elder of the Presbyterian Church, declared he will contest the suit which is the result of a dispute last winter, at which the minister resigned. The resignation was not accepted by the congregation. The suit is based largely upon a letter written to the officials of the Presbytery, in which church matters are discussed and wherein McLelland is alleged to have said that he could not understand "why a church was allowed to go to hell because of the inefficiency and temper of the minister."

FIND RUBENS IN ATTIC

$50,000 Canvas Bought by an Art Dealer for Song

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—A small picture, ascribed to Rubens by experts, has been found at Roubaix among a lot of old canvases in an attic. The subject represents Venus and a faun. The canvas was on the point of being sold for less than one dollar when a dealer noticed the signature "P. P. Rubens" in a circle. Experts say the painting is worth $50,000. The pictures among which it was found were bought for a small price by a provincial dealer from the nephew of a Paris auctioneer who died forty years ago.

REARING OF NEW TOKIO DELAYED

Definite Step Lacking After Seven Months

Domestic Politics and Clan Feuds Blamed

No Action Expected Before Next Election

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TOKIO, April 19.—Several months have elapsed since the earthquake that razed Yokohama to the ground and destroyed almost two-thirds of Tokio, and yet no definite steps have been taken in regard to reconstruction. There has been much talking and the drawing up of elaborate schemes on paper, but, except for the clearing of the debris—and even this has not been completely carried out—no practical step toward the rebuilding of the devastated regions has been undertaken.

The cause for this neglect is that personal ambitions and wrangling in domestic politics have been allowed to take precedence over the national needs and both the authorities and the nation's representatives have misspent their energies in exchanging recriminations, in futile bickering and in blocking each other's pathway rather than taking united and disinterested action when the need for such was most acute.

Hardly a day goes by but some business man upbraids the authorities and the political parties for the neglect in hastening reconstruction, a neglect that springs from partisan politics and clan jealousies. Business men are naturally hardest hit at the lack of adequate measures to speed up reconstruction; the politicians least of all, and the country's commercial element, from the great industrial and commercial organizations which play such an important role in Japan's international life down to the humblest owner of a little store round the corner, has threatened to petition the Throne unless matters are handled in a better fashion.

LAND IS PROBLEM

One of the bitterest complaints of the business community is in connection with the program of land readjustment. The government has yet to announce which of the plans for city streets will be selected, for it is proposed to do away, in the new Tokio and Yokohama that are to be, with the fire-trap side-streets and alleys that were responsible for so many deaths. This again depends on whether the Diet can be induced to indorse the scheme chosen by the authorities, and in its present frame of mind, the Diet is rather inclined to oppose anything suggested by the government, however constructive and beneficial, simply to embarrass the Kiyoura Cabinet which is dubbed a cabinet formed by the privileged classes in defiance of the nation. In the meantime, office, storage and manufacturing space is inadequate and business interests suffer. The latter are ready to rebuild permanent structures, but until this matter has been definitely settled cannot do so.

Viscount Goto, who was Minister of Home Affairs at the time of the catastrophe—he took office on that terrible Sunday, September 2—formulated a plan for the rebuilding of a Tokio that would be far more magnificent and safer than the destroyed city. In doing so he sought the advice of experts, especially that of Dr. Charles Beard, the well-known American city "beauty doctor," whom he cabled to return to Tokio and lend a hand in devising what the reconstructed capital should be like. Dr. Beard returned post-haste and a scheme was drawn up for a new capital worthy of the empire. The earthquake afforded an opportunity for rebuilding the conglomeration of overgrown villages, that was previously known as Tokio, according to a scientifically-conceived plan, and Viscount Goto snatched at the opportunity.

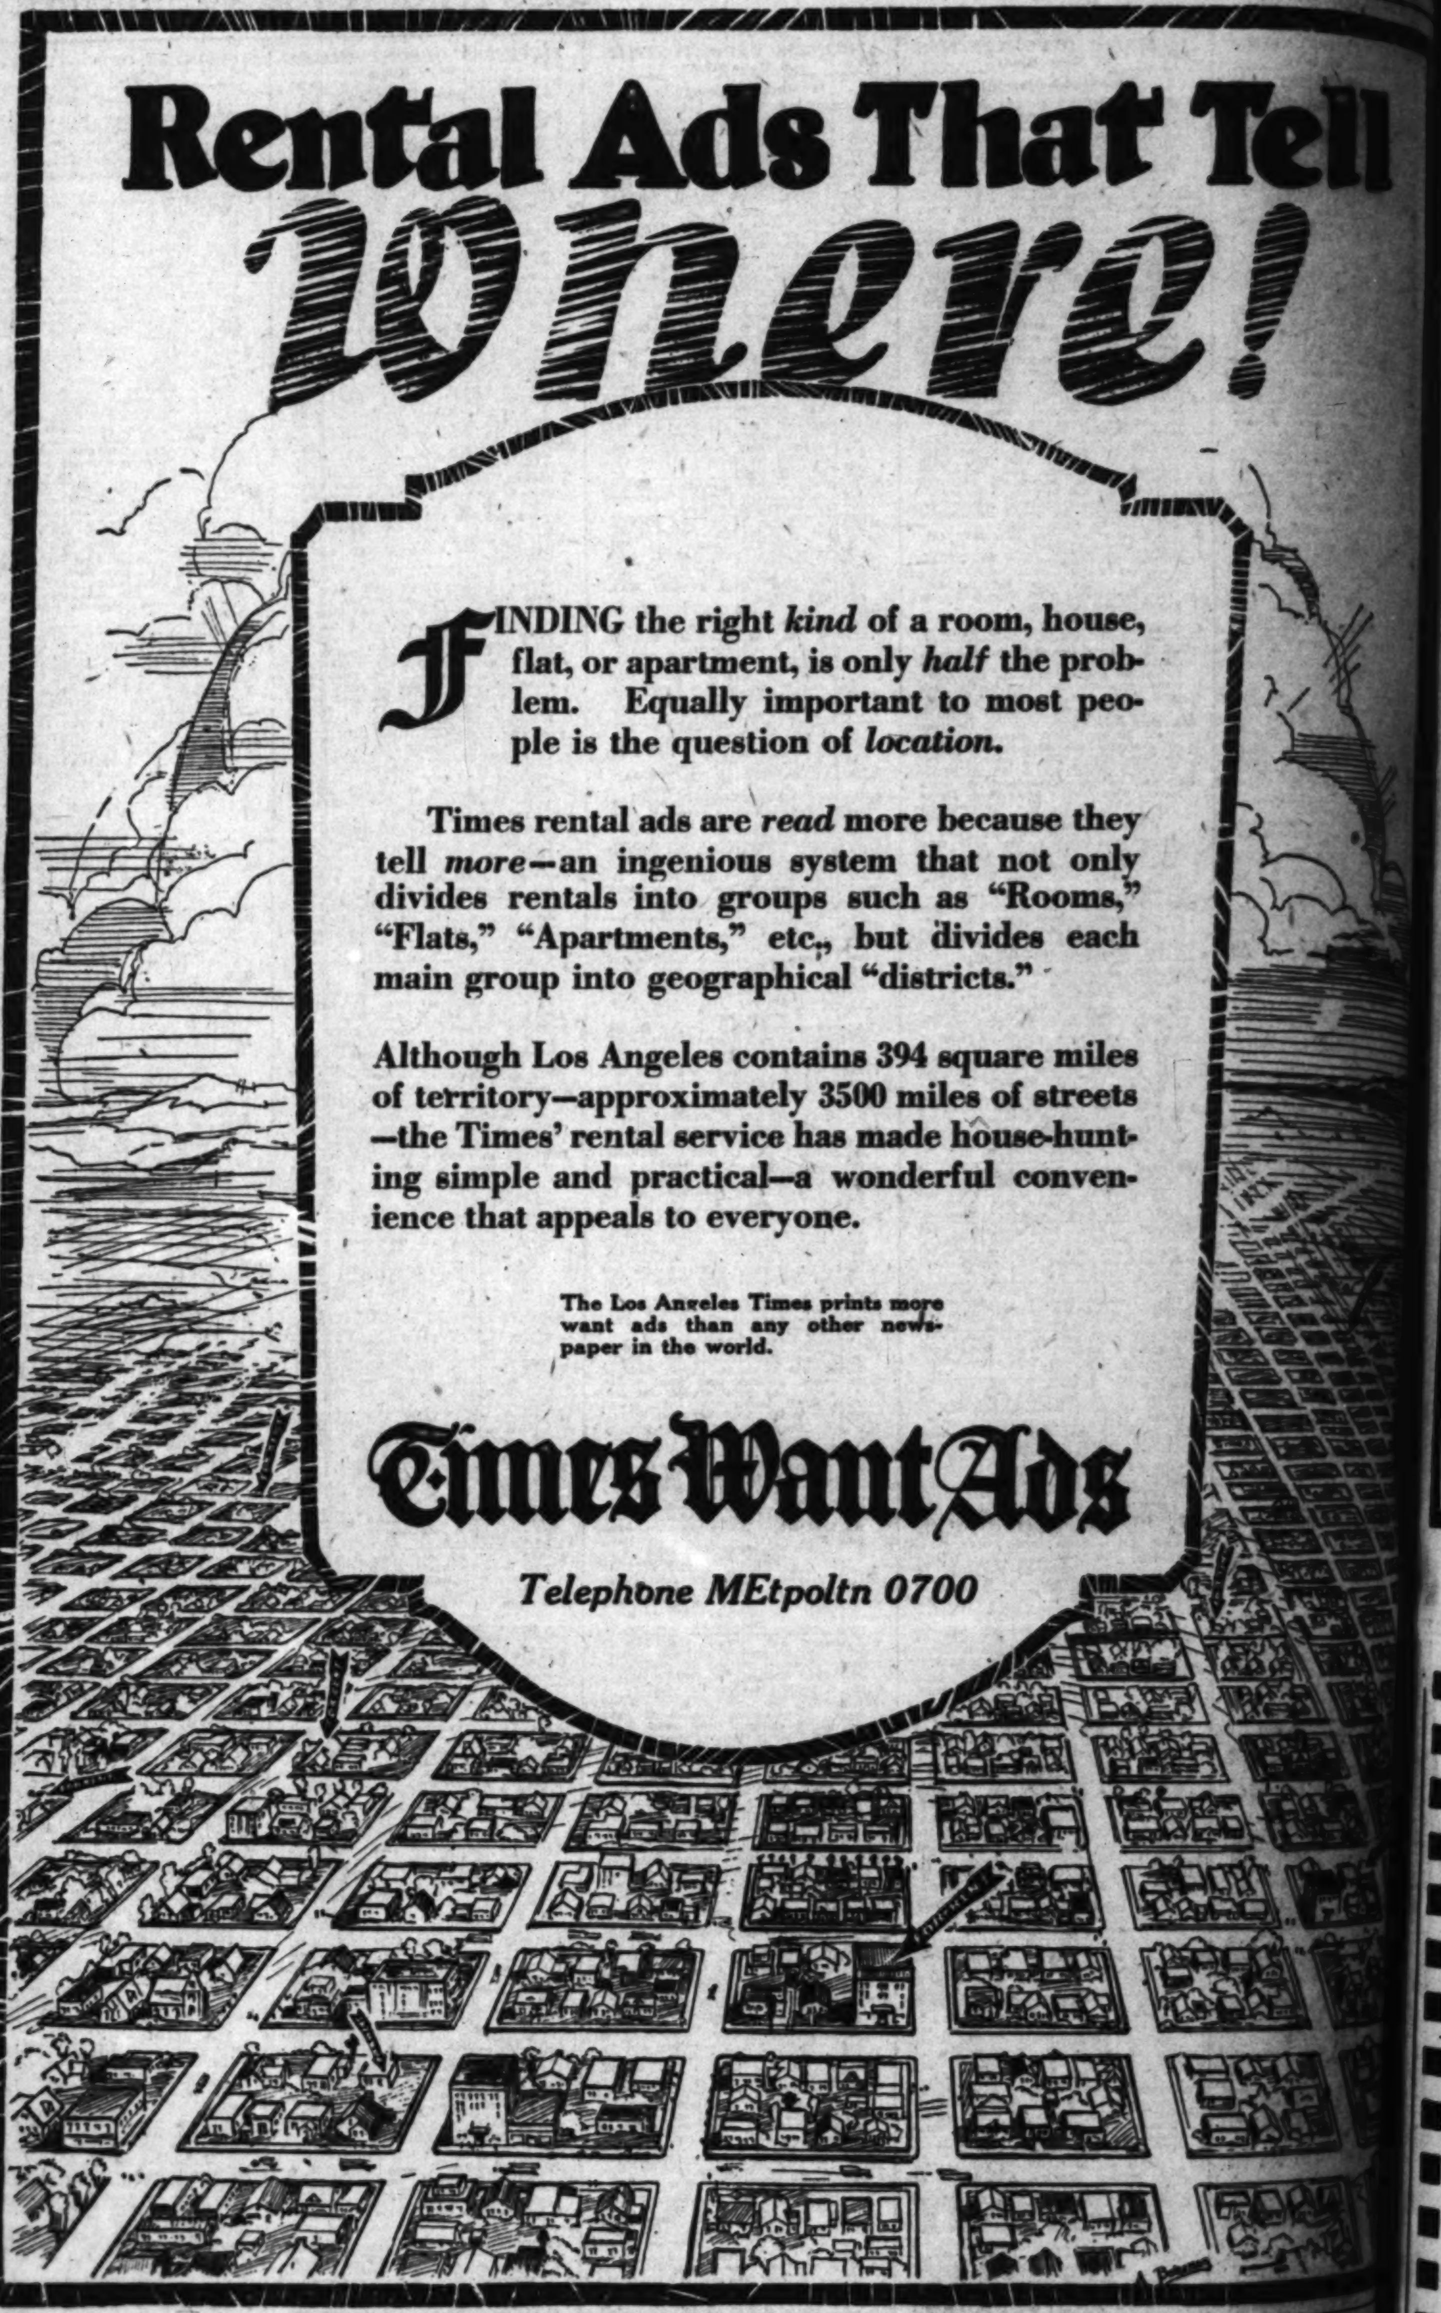
DREAM SHATTERED

The program drawn up earmarked 3,225,000,000 yen for the reconstruction of the capital and its stricken seaport, Yokohama, the expenditure to be spread over a period of from seven to ten years. Then came a special session of the Diet and the dream of a beautiful capital was shattered. The members of the Diet characterized the scheme as fanciful and extravagant and refused to pass the appropriations. It was really partisan politics and clan jealousy at work. The rural districts were opposed to the reconstruction of the capital and its port city on an elaborate scale if the rest of the empire was also to be called upon to shoulder a portion of the burden. As a matter of fact, it is now known that personal animosities and clan jealousies were really responsible for the ditching of the plan. If the scheme had been carried out Viscount Goto, who was even then being boosted as the "strong man" of the country who should be the next Premier, would have become immortalized, while the Satsuma clan—to which Viscount Yamamoto, then Premier and in whose official family Viscount Goto held the portfolio for the Ministry of Home Affairs—would have achieved considerable kudos. This was too much for the Choshu clan, especially as already the position of the Satsuma clan had been considerably strengthened by the bride of the Prince Regent having been chosen from among Satsuma princesses, for the mother of the Crown Princess is the daughter of Prince Shimazu, head of the Satsuma clan, and bitter rivals of the Choshus. The attempt made on the life of the Prince Regent on December 27, and the subsequent and consequent resignation of the Yamamoto Ministry helped to reveal the tussle behind the scenes that really led to the throwing overboard of the scheme which had been drawn up for the reconstruction of a worthier Tokio and Yokohama.

FIGURES AVOIDED

As the reconstruction situation stands at present members of the government and other officials carefully refrain from mentioning any figures, for fear of frightening the electorate unnecessarily, especially in view of the impending general elections. When hard pressed a sum of 1,000,000,000 yen is mentioned casually, although it is not believed that the sum that will ultimately be needed can be reduced below the amount fixed by Viscount Goto after consultation with experts, if Tokio is to be a capital city creditable to the Japanese Empire and Yokohama, as its port, is to be proportionately good.

Until the elections are over, however, it is not believed that any definite steps will be taken toward permanent reconstruction and the question of rehabilitating Tokio and Yokohama will be, among other things, one of the issues that will be sumbitted to the electorate.



Rental Ads That Tell Where!

FINDING the right kind of a room, house, flat, or apartment, is only half the problem. Equally important to most people is the question of location.

Times rental ads are read more because they tell more—an ingenious system that not only divides rentals into groups such as "Rooms," "Flats," "Apartments," etc., but divides each main group into geographical "districts."

Although Los Angeles contains 394 square miles of territory—approximately 3500 miles of streets—the Times' rental service has made house-hunting simple and practical—a wonderful convenience that appeals to everyone.

GOATS SENT TO CHINA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) April 19. Goats have gone out as missionaries to China from British Columbia. Four purebred young Saanens and Toggenburgs from the El Bar ranch will provide milk for the white babies in the foreign field. According to E. J. Blanchard a veteran missionary at Shanghai, these babies die for lack of it in a country where cows and milk are practically unknown. Six more goats will be sent over in October. The milk goat industry now is an important branch of the live-stock industry of the Province.

District of Columbia has more automobiles than twenty-two of the foreign countries combined.

EMPRESS'S DAUGHTER MAD

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK

VIENNA, April 11.—The unhappy countess, Stephanie Lonyay, has suddently become insane after a lifetime of trouble. Her first husband was Crown Prince Rudolf, who was killed by his mistress in a champagne orgy at Meyerling hunting lodge thirty years ago, and by special dispensation of Emperor Franz Joseph she was later permitted to marry Count Lonyay, a rich Hungarian.

She raves all day of Rudolf, and imagines his death was only a bad dream and that they are living happily together again. The only thing Countess Lonyay has ever known in her whole life has been trouble, because she is a niece of the insane empress, Charlotte, widow of Emperor Maxmillian of Austria, who was shot in Mexico, and a a sister of the unhappy Princess Louise of Coburg, who died at Wiesbaden a few weeks ago. She spent all her personal fortune paying the debts of Princess Louise.

She and Rudolf had only one child, Princess Windisch-Gretz, who has made a spectacular reputation by horse-whipping deputy sheriffs who have been sent by the courts to deliver her children to her husband. She was finally divorced yesterday.

The best alienists in Vienna have been summoned to treat Countess Lonyay, but they have given up her case as hopeless. She has been taken to her husband's estates in Hungary.

BANKS ARE AIR-BOMB PROOF

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PARIS, April 19.—In order to defy attacks from the airplane of hostile armies or aerial cracksmen, the Bank of France has started the construction of special air-bomb proof vaults evolved after lengthy secret studies. The first of the new vaults completed has been installed in one of the largest branches of the Bank of France, as a forerunner for a complete set of such safeguards in bank branches throughout France.

A majority of these bank buildings are not more than four stories high with security gold bullion vaults in the center of the building, thus proving easy prey for bombs from low swooping airplanes. The situation has worried French bankers and politicians because it is realized that the next war probably will be largely fought in the air and the financial resources of France could be destroyed easily by an invading air fleet.

Bankers also seek protection against the possibility of master minds leading bank robbing bands resorting to the clouds in the near future by blowing up isolated branch banks, then landing and obtaining their plunder and taking the air again.

The new vault in the bank of France, organized in Napoleon's time and still including some of the little corporal's descendants among stockholders, has a roof more than four feet thick with reinforced concrete protected like war-time bomb-proof shelters designed to withstand the heaviest air bombs.

POLICE TEST PLAYS GOING TO MUNICH

Theater Manager Sends Officer to View Show at Vienna

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1924, Public Ledger.]

MUNICH, April 19.—Hoping to save trouble by letting police pick his plays, the manager of a local vaudeville house sent a police officer to Vienna to look over a musical comedy and see if it were too spicy for Munich.

The Bavarian burghers believe in keeping their stage pure. The longer the skirts and higher the collars the better they are pleased. Since Vienna is famous for its racy revues, the Munich manager decided it would be safer to have the representative from the local police see the show before it was booked. He thus saved the expense of bringing the production here and opening to a packed house, only to find a "verbot" tacked on the door next day.

The rival theater managers believe that if the police take on themselves much more of the ordering of life in the Bavarian capital eventually the city will be completely cut off from the outside world; and that it will hold interest in the future only for archeologists.

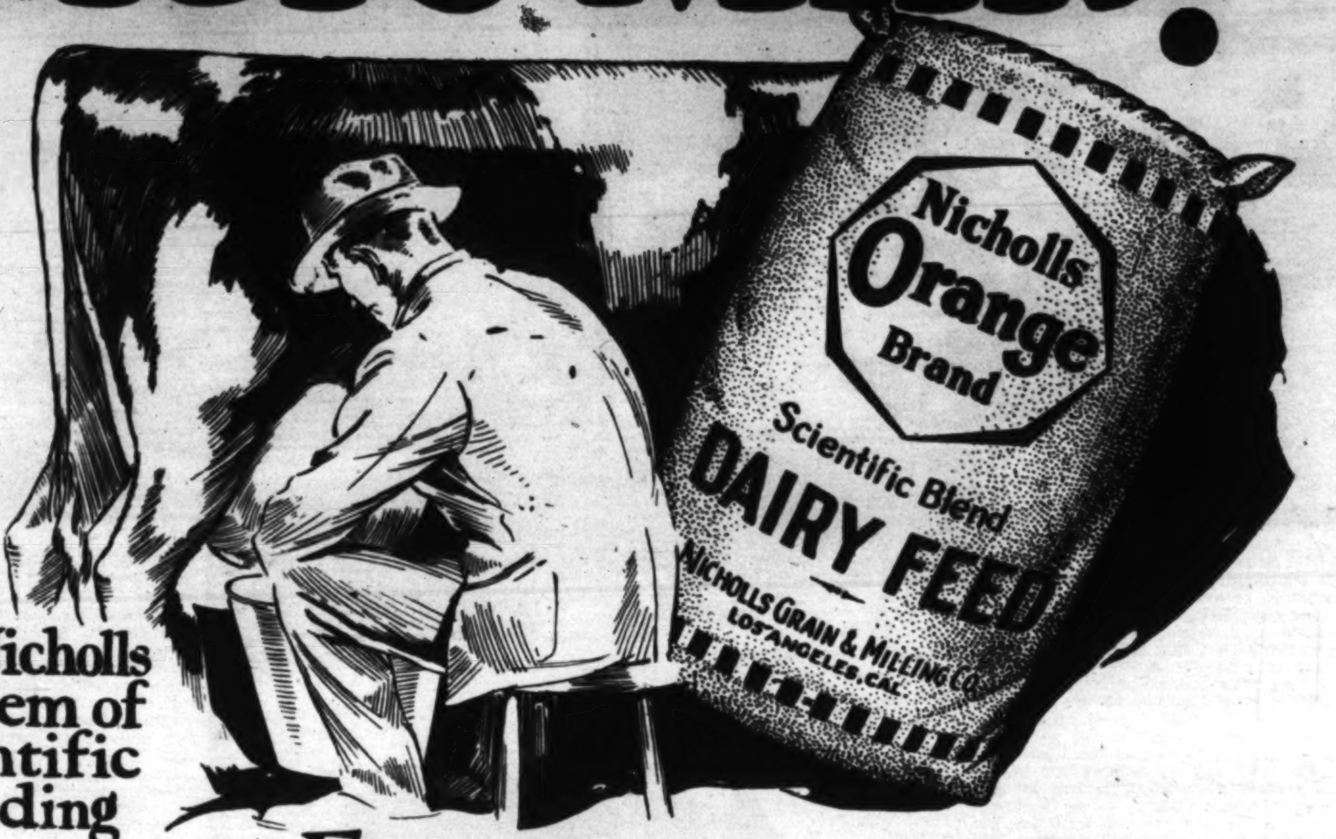
More Milk!



The Nicholls System of Scientific Feeding

There is nothing new—nothing revolutionary—about the Nicholls System. It is the same famous line of Orange Brand Stock and Poultry Feeds that have been on the market since 1897.

But now the experimental stage is past. Orange Brand feeds are a proven success. And feeders who use the Nicholls System feed properly balanced foods.

To give the calf all the nourishment it needs, feed Orange Brand Calf Meal. And as the calf grows older, it graduates to Growing Calf Meal. When milk production starts, feed Orange Brand Dairy Feed.

These scientifically proportioned foods contain all the nutrition the animal requires.

There is a Nicholls Orange Brand Food for every stage of development of practically all kinds of livestock and poultry.

From 2 to 6 quarts increase
by SCIENTIFIC FEEDING

IT'S no secret. Every dairyman knows that milk production can be increased temporarily. But the problem is to get more milk—and richer milk—day after day.

Ask the thousands of successful dairymen who use the Nicholls System of Scientific Feeding. They will tell you how cows thrive on Orange Brand Dairy Food—how quickly milk production increases.

But why not? For 27 years the scientists in the Nicholls laboratories have been studying the food needs of dairy cows. For 27 years various food combinations have been tested on thousands of dairy farms. And now the—line of dairy feeds is perfected! They contain every food element the cow requires for growing—for keeping healthy—for greater milk production.

NICHOLLS
Orange
BRAND

Scientific Feeding by the Nicholls System—using the properly balanced Orange Brand Stock Feeds—is cheaper, safer and surer than mixing your own feeds. There's no guess work about Orange Brand feeds. They are scientifically correct!

This year especially, dairymen must make greater profits to recover from the temporary set-back of the hoof-and-mouth disease. And by stopping wasteful feeding, the Nicholls System will save thousands of dollars for dairymen this year.

Start now to use the Nicholls System—the sure way to success in dairying. Your nearest feed dealer probably has Orange Brand Dairy Feed, Growing Calf Meal and Calf Meal. If he hasn't, send the coupon for full information.

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON

A ranch home on the edge of San Fernando Valley.

WE HAVE come to regard the earth as gross material to be ground under foot and debased. The majority of people use the word dirt when they mean soil. Dirt, properly, is defined by Webster as "matter in the wrong place." even as he says of a weed: "a plant in the wrong place." The earth has yielded so bountifully that we have come to regard crops as an inherent right and complain bitterly if the soil yield is not up to our expectations.

We do not know how to be good to the earth, for we have not yet come, as a people, to properly appreciate it. We drain it of its fertility and then "move west" until at last we are now at its western confines and the "pioneer" is no more. Now that we are turned back by the broad Pacific we shall come to a better appreciation of the soil and foster, defend and amend its fertility. We shall finally come to regard it religiously and as one is about to enter our garden command him, as Moses was commanded: "Put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground."

Throughout this broad land we have so prostituted the earth's fertility that the average yield of wheat is but twelve bushels per acre, while in England, after centuries of cropping, it is thirty-six bushels or three times as much. And the yield there is increasing. In China, after forty centuries of cropping, the earth is now yielding more than ever before. When we shall make a practice of annual restoration of that which we take from the soil then will it again yield abundantly, as in the days of beginning.

We must also learn of the resourcefulness of the earth. If we have each year turned over the top six inches, let us next year turn over eight inches and we shall witness an increased yield. Let this be increased each year by two inches until the thirty-sixth inch of soil has been placed on top, and we shall each year see an increase in yield over the preceding year. For each year, we turn up soil whose plant food supply has not been drawn upon. Such practice is all but impossible in field culture, but every bit of the writer's garden has been dug three or more feet deep, ranging up to seventeen, the latter depth a hole four feet by six, to provide drainage down to the underlying gravel.

Perched high on the cliffs of a bit of California coast, this modern castle has a particularly harmonious setting.

A mission garden.

After natural fertility is somewhat exhausted, or before, let us begin to feed the soil, not the crops, with the life-producing elements, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash. All are necessary and one is as necessary as the other, for if anyone be wholly lacking, no good crops may be grown. In no soil is any one of these three elements present in sufficient quantity in available or soluble form. It is in vain that so-called experts proclaim that California soils are sufficient in residual potash, for if sufficient in quantity, it is insufficient in available amount. There is no crop that the writer has experimented with but has been benefited by the application of potash. It is true that we waste much money in fertilizers and other soil amendments. One can afford to put almost anything in the average-sized garden, but the farmer is faced by a problem. If lime, for example, benefits a garden soil ever so little, apply it. But if a farmer would apply $10 worth of lime to the acre he should first determine, if possible, that he is going to receive, as a result, $10 more an acre for his crop. That is the only true test. It is simply a business investment and before investing, he should inquire: "Will it pay?"

Nitrogen is the most precious element, the most costly, the one mose deficient in soils in general, yet it is not one whit more necessary than phosphoric acid or potash. If there be ever so little potash and phosphoric acid in the soil and a heavy supply of nitrogen, some wonderful crops may be grown, but without that little of the two minor elements no crops may be grown. In neither field nor garden practice is enough fertilizer used. The writer never saw but one piece of soil that was over-nitrified and that piece was but a few feet square, in total shade. Had it been fully exposed to the sun, it is doubtful, if with all the organic matter supplied, it could have reached that condition. While nitrogen is usually most necessary in large amount, some crops are spoiled by an excess; for all the nitrogen will be used, if in available form. This is not true of the two other elements noted. If present in excess, no more will be used by the present crop than is needed. In the garden we need not care, but to the farmer the excess means waste of money. It is good garden practice to feed the soil, not the crops. If soil is in good physical condition and plenty of a complete fertilizer is present, all flower crops will be bountiful.

Passion Fruit Culture

The passion-fruit industry has become so firmly established in Australia that some of the States are issuing bulletins on the subject. We have just received one from Victoria, consisting of sixty-two pages, well illustrated. This industry will some day become firmly implanted here, until every child will be eating the fresh fruits and every pantry will contain passion fruit jellies and jams.

The Folly of It

All interested in poultry know John D. Mercer, he of the Cornish fowls. From Christ Church, New Zealand, he sends us a vaporous article on the talipot palm, clipped from the Star-Bulletin of Honolulu Even a poultryman knew it was largely "hot air." The article states that the talipot palm has "palm-shaped leaves," certainly a remarkable possession for a palm. Further, "it flowers but once in fifty years." It might almost as truthfully have been said that it blooms but once in a million years, for the first bloom is its last, the palm dying as soon as the seeds have matured. The reason for the article's publication is that the territorial officials, plant sharps, etc., fear to attempt moving a talipot palm "twenty-five feet high." In Los Angeles we have moved palms as "delicate in constitution" that are twice as high and four times as old. If this "delicacy of constitution" does not extend to the movers, we predict the safe transplanting of this "palm-like" palm.

Plant Improvement

Everyone propagating even the most common plants should strive to improve them by saving seeds or taking cuttings only from the best. Scientific plant breeding does not alone accomplish best results. The common apple has been an inmate of gardens for thousands of years and has been grown and improved by selection alone until it was a fine fruit centuries before any plant breeding was done. It may be that improved wild species were planted near each other, accidentally hybridized by insects, and that the resultant seedlings bore improved apples, but still the greatest advance has come through selection. All plants may be improved to the same degree, and many show an uplift in one or two generations, even when propagated vegetatively.

Sulphur for Mildew

The principle for treating rose bushes or other plants is exactly the same as with grape vines. The first application should be made when the new shoots are starting and other subsequent treatments should be made at regular intervals of two or three weeks until the danger of infestation has passed. Thoroughness and the use of finely pulverized sulphur are most important. By all means do not wait for mildew to appear before applying sulphur. Mildew is a typical parasitic fungus that needs a humid atmosphere to facilitate its growth. Warm weather and rains or fogs offer ideal climatic conditions.

Choice of trees for yard planting enhances the beauty of this adobe dwelling at Palm Springs.

Eccentric Avocados

In a recent letter Dr. A. B. Stout says: "Harmon trees at Pomona, with other varieties about them, set a good crop of fruit. At Claremont, a fine tree freely visited by bees feeding on other trees, set only three fruits. Two Fuertes but a short distance from each other acted thus: One, closely interplanted with others, fruited heavily. The other, quite alone, bore no fruit. We do not know it all yet."

Poor Quality and Waste in Table Fowl

SOME FAULTS TO BE CORRECTED. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

Some Interesting Little Poultry Farms.

Top, left—Chickens, Guinea fowls and pigeons on a La Canada place. Right—Ducks on a Lankershim district farm. Below—"Reds" on a La Crescenta place.

IT WOULD be interesting to know the per capita consumption of poultry meat in this country, or even in California. Obviously, one sees chicken on the bill of fare at restaurants and hotels quite frequently, but among the homes how often is a fowl the feature of a meal? Really we are a nation of beef, pork and mutton eaters; of poultry, fish and wild meats we are light consumers. Here is something to prompt a publicity campaign exploiting the nutritive value of poultry products in the human dietary. But what are the inducements to cause the average housekeeper to long for chicken meat on this Coast? Surely it is not the average quality that attracts, for the table breeds are a negligible quantity, while the egg breeds dominate—and surely a carcass of these do not suggest a plethoric meal for the average family. Neither is quality always in evidence. Hen fruit being the first consideration, the surplus males and light-producing females are shunted to market with as little preparation in the way of fattening as the demands of the situation will permit. The result is that many housekeepers do not realise the economy of a good specimen carcass of table fowl; indeed, there are many that have yet to be introduced to that kind of article. As touching on this point of preparing table fowl for market, Prof. F. C. Elford of Canada pointedly says that it is astonishing how much dressed poultry there is in the country that is more or less wasted. The producer gets very little out of it. A well-fleshed bird is worth a great deal more to the producer, and to the consumer, pound for pound, as both get a great deal more out of the well-fleshed bird than the poor. As far as the producer is concerned, he cannot afford to send to market a bird which is not well fleshed. It is the finishing that is the cheapest part of the carcass to put on. That is good as far as it goes, and where fowl are marketed on the hoof, the growers' responsibility ceases when the sale is made to the dealer. In case, however, that dressed fowl are delivered either to public or private trade, the birds should be properly killed, dressed and cooled. Under co-operative systems of marketing and distribution, we can see no reason why poultry meat should not become a much larger factor in the channels of trade than it is. Good table fowl at a reasonable price, with a reliable source of supply, ought to be a regular thing on the average American dining table.

Co-Operation in New Zealand

J. B. Merrett, editor of the New Zealand Poultry Journal, writes instructively and entertainingly on the subject of co-operative marketing at the Antipodes. Thus, though not applicable to California conditions, is nevertheless interesting and suggestive to poultry farmers on the Pacific Coast. We quote:

The trend of the world's business is toward co-operation; especially is this desirable among producers. The great feature of having control of their own goods is commendable. In New Zealand the majority of the producers are practically linked up by co-operation. Each of the four companies in the main ports is allotted so many cases of eggs. Cases and fillers are purchased in one line and expense saved. The returns from London are pooled, so the profits or losses are shared suitably. Right through the Dominion the producers place their eggs on the market under one brand. Each society has its director's name and a number placed on the egg, so that each egg in New Zealand can be traced to its producer. Affiliated producers receive much more for graded eggs than the usual store or country eggs; in addition to regulating the market, securing best prices for eggs, co-operators are able to purchase foods in larger quantities and at reduced rates. Instead of supplies having to be handled through several agents, a quantity is purchased and delivered direct to the members. All societies in New Zealand (commercial, educative, fanciers) are united in one association totalling 15,000 members. On questions of policy of Dominion importance the executive is able to make its request as representing all of the producers.

And Now the Election

In the nominations for candidates to represent this district of the American Poultry Association, J. Will Blackman of Los Angeles received nearly double the number of votes given any of the other aspirants. This is gratifying to his friends, but it does not necessarily mean his election; that is a matter for the members of District No. 8 to decide by their votes. By reason of experience in national poultry affairs, his intimate knowledge of the needs of the poultry industry from the utility point of view as well as that of the fancier, and the work he has initiated and carried forward for a maintenance of the present tariff on poultry products as well as the adoption of national rules in the conduct and management of egg-laying contests, Mr. Blackman is the logical man for the place. We hope to see him re-elected by an almost unanimous vote.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the West printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

New Opportunities

THE Greater Los Angeles Association, recently organized for the purpose of forwarding the industrial development of the Los Angeles metropolitan district, can, and doubtless will, be an effective agency for the upbuilding of important agricultural industries in the Southwest. Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico, Southern Nevada and that part of Lower California included within the trade territory of Los Angeles are all contributing or can contribute raw material produced on their farms and ranches for the use of manufacturers in the Pacific Coast metropolis. All are now sending such raw materials to the East or to foreign lands.

Here is a situation to fire the enthusiasm of the far-seeing men who are back of the new industrial movement. Los Angeles, not Boston, should be the market for the wool produced in the Southwest; Los Angeles, and not the cities of the East should be the place where that wool is made into cloth and garments. It is the same with cotton. Here, and not in Japan and Germany, should the cotton of the Southwest be fabricated into goods for American consumption. A promising start has been made along these lines, and, the Greater Los Angeles Association will help the good work along.

The possibilities of co-operation between industry and agriculture in Los Angeles are almost limitless. There is a national or international demand for California's canned fruits and vegetables and the various by-products of orchard and field, while the crops that can be produced in the wide territory that Los Angeles now claims as her own include about every product of the soil that enters into manufactured foods and other commodities.

Cotton Again Popular

INTEREST in cotton is strong this year in the desert valleys of Southern California and in parts of Central California, all reports indicating that there will be a heavy planting of the staple in the Golden State this spring. This, in the light of past experience, might be viewed as a bit alarming were it not for the fact that the new enthusiasm over cotton seems to be following more conservative lines than did the "craze" of some years ago.

The growers of cotton have learned some very valuable lessons, and these will greatly influence all future ventures in this field. Instead of going in for this and that variety on a haphazard basis, the cotton growers of today are featuring the one-variety-to-a-district idea, to the end that there may be no more failures due to the mixing of staples. The mills of America will pay a premium for even-running staples, whereas the market for mixed runs has been largely limited to foreign countries, where the cheaper grades of goods are made.

In the past California's cotton unfortunately has been in disrepute in this country, not because of the Golden State's inability to produce the best, but due to the fact that there has been no uniformity of production. This fault is being generally corrected this year and assurance is felt that the American demand for the California product will henceforth be good enough to insure good market conditions. Upon the experience of the growers in this respect in 1924 will doubtless depend, in large measure, the future of cotton planting in this State.

SHALL THE SOUTHWEST CARRY ON WITH DIXIE'S RUINED INDUSTRY?

BY GEORGE LAW

THERE are those considered as competent to pass an opinion who hold that the old South has permanently ceased to be the world's chief dependable source of cotton. But cotton has an exceedingly wide adaptation. It is indigenous to every continent, between the latitudes 45 degrees north and 30 degrees south. The question, therefore, is, not whether there is to be a continued supply, but where that supply is to come from.

America has been practically furnishing the world with cotton. The crop that is produced in other countries is mostly consumed there, the American crop being that required over and above the present foreign crops. Before the war, before the boll-weevil, and before the Southwest, west of Texas, figured in cotton production at all, America placed close to 15,000,000 bales of cotton a year in the channels of world commerce. Production has steadily declined to less than 11,000,000 bales in 1923, and unless new acreage outside the zone of the boll-weevil is planted, production is apparently certain to decline further.

According to John A. Todd, the cotton authority of the Liverpool School of Commerce, the world during the past two years has been wanting American cotton to the extent of 12,750,000 bales, notwithstanding the unsettled conditions in Europe. He places the minimum requirement at 12,000,000 bales per annum, adding that the amount the world will take in normal times is practically limited only by price availability.

In default of a sufficient American supply, the world must look to other countries for its cotton, and already, in fact for many years, Great Britain has been striving to create great productive centers among its possessions, while Brazil has attracted much attention as a potential cotton empire.

But there are a number of economic factors that must be present to permit of successful cotton production on a large scale, factors that come with a highly-organized scheme of industrial and commercial civilization. In time, of course, these factors will be present in Africa, Asia Minor, India, China, South America and Mexico; they already exist in Australia and other English possessions; but they are found in most efficient adjustment to the cotton industry in the United States. The United States, therefore, is in position to re-create its cotton industry quicker than great cotton industries can be built up elsewhere. One means of contributing to this end lies in the shifting of plantings from parts of the South to the Southwest.

It is of course a moot question whether a greater cotton industry is desirable for the Southwest. As a permanent thing it might not prove so, although it might be a means, in combination with certain feasible reclamation projects, of bringing a considerable new area of now unused lands under development. Utilized along with alfalfa in a program of rotation, cotton could probably be made to pay quicker and larger returns than any other crop on a far larger acreage than has yet been planted to the staple in the Southwest, assuming, of course, that market conditions were to remain favorable until the greater industry could be well established.

It must be recognized that 1920 was a post-war ebb tide of readjustment such as is not likely to occur again. The tide is still ebbing, it would seem, as regards other agricultural products; but cotton went through the sweat and is now getting back to normal on a basis that has at least the appearance of permanency. The price for cotton, say those with the optimistic view, is not likely to fluctuate more than five cents on either side of thirty, and with efficient cultural methods of good varieties making for maximum per-acre yields, cotton growing should offer increased security as time goes on.

The arid climate of the Southwest makes it in some ways, in producing cotton seed, especially, a better cotton land than the South. But the absence to date of the boll-weevil has given the Southwest the greatest productive advantage. Knowing the malignancy of this cotton destroyer, and being on guard against it, too, the Southwest appears to be in a fair way to keep it out. If the South had begun the fight soon after the boll-weevil came in from Mexico in 1892, the pest could perhaps have been satisfactorily controlled. As it is, the weevil is now getting a ruinously large percentage of the crop.

Coming to a consideration of the economic factors, previously mentioned, which are indispensable to a great cotton industry, the Southwest possesses labor (Mexican and Indian) of the requisite intelligence and in sufficient volume to meet the requirements. Then, there is the possibility of cotton picking being done by machine, several types of machines tested in the section having proved fairly satisfactory. Next, the Southwest has excellent ginning facilities, and the cotton is grown in great blocks of land handy to ginning centers. Cotton, unlike most other crops, has to be mechanically prepared for the market. The grower is dependent upon facilities for separating the lint from the seed at a cost that is not excessive; and "not excessive" means that growing and ginning must be co-ordinated in the most convenient and efficient manner possible. This is a great handicap to the industry in imperfectly civilized countries. Then, the Southwest has or can readily create the marketing organization essential to seeing the cotton through its devious courses from the grower to the ultimate consumer, without too great a disproportion between first and last prices, and without, indeed, the grower receiving too small a share.

There is a further rising economic advantage in the Southwest, and that is in the development of textile industries on the Coast. Already there are cotton mills and auto-tire factories in Los Angeles. The consumption of raw cotton is as yet small, merely 30,000 bales or so, but it is on the increase. There are, moreover, adequate facilities for crushing the seed for oil and meal.

The Southwest can produce cotton of the finest quality. Long-staple cotton, which is grown mainly in Egypt, failed to bring the usual premiums when the world supply of medium-staple, mainly American, cotton, began to run short. At present the peculiar situation obtains of the demand for common and medium-length staples being greater than that for long, with the result that the finest grades do not bring the premiums that might be expected. The effect of this situation in the Southwest is noticable in the decreased plantings of Pima long-staple, which is a direct descendent of the Egyptian. With the supply of Egypt failing because of pink boll worm and and inadequate drainage of the land, and with the fancy Sea Island grade exceedingly scarce, there is the immediate prospect of a world shortage of fine-grade cotton. That can mean but one thing, namely, that premiums will come back; and Arizona planters, who have been abandoning Pima for common grades, will do well to give this situation careful attention.

In California, Acala cotton, a medium-

MORE EGGS A YEAR FROM HENS GOAL OF COMMUNITY CONTEST

By CHARLES J. BOOTH, Dean, Chaffey Junior College

ONTARIO.—The Chaffey Trapnesting Station in this city was established in response to requests from the poultrymen of the Chaffey community, comprising the Chaffey Union High School and Junior College district. The poultrymen felt that it would be to their advantage to have trapnesting done for them at some central point and they therefore requested the Agricultural Department of Chaffey to carry on this work.

The trapnesting was begun September 20, 1923, with twenty-nine entries of twelve birds each, or 348 hens. Naturally, these were mostly of the White Leghorn variety. There were twenty-four White Leghorn entries, four Rhode Island Red entries, and one Ancona entry.

The rules of the trapnesting provide that the hens shall remain for a period of one year, in furnishing information to the public regarding the station, the records of the highest ten hens of each entry are taken as the records for that entry.

With the completion of the March records there are available data covering 194 days of the 365 which will make up the trapnesting year. During these 194 days the highest hen entered produced 156 eggs, the second highest hen, 155 eggs, and the third highest, 154. Thirty-six hens out of a total entry list of 348 have produced during this time between 100 and 109 eggs; 35 hens have produced between 110 and 119 eggs; 37 hens, between 120 and 129 eggs, 23 hens between 130 and 139; 10 hens between 140 and 149; and 7 hens have produced 150 or better. This means that of the 348 entries, 138 hens, or approximately 40 per cent, have produced more than 100 eggs.

F. P. Williams's pen of Rhode Island Reds started with strong production immediately after the opening of the station and for several months was the leading pen. It still is high in total production, with an average of 125,675 eggs for the period of 194 days. More recently, some of the White Leghorn pens have been giving it a close race, and at the present time B. S. Smallwood's entry is a close second, with an average production of 125.6 eggs, while the pen of W. D. Westover is not far behind, with an average of 125.26 eggs per hen.

THE PLAN ITSELF

Most of the communities of the Chaffey district are represented in the list of entries. Fontana has one, Alta Loma one, Cucamonga one, and there are several from the different sections of both Ontario and Upland.

The details of management are handled by the agricultural department of the school in co-operation with an advisory committee of poultrymen selected by those who have entries at the station. This committee is composed of S. H. Yahres, B. S. Smallwood, J. A. Withrow and A. N. Jung The committee has worked out feeding rations and has made suggestions regarding details of feeding and general care. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the fine work

MARCH EGG TOTALS SHOW AN INCREASE

The reports of the Southern California Farm Bureau Egg Laying Contest at Pomona for the month of March, show the total egg production of the contest birds as about 12 per cent more than that for February, and a little higher than that for March, 1923. Setting a hot pace, a pen of S. C. Rhode Island Reds, owned by F. Heying, Anaheim, took first place for the month in pen production, with an average of 251 eggs per bird, while two of the birds in this pen placed first and second, respectively, for individual production, with 31 and 30 eggs. Two Rhode Island Reds and three White Leghorns tied for third place with twenty-nine eggs each, the honor for third place for the month, however, going to a White Leghorn owned by J. A. Hanson, Corvallis, Or., because of its previous production of twenty-nine eggs during February.

A pen of S. C. White Leghorns owned by George C. England, Inglewood, took second place for pen production for the month of March and Blackman and Mumford, Los Angeles, with a pen of White Leghorns took third place. None of the eggs laid by Mr. England's birds during the month and only six of those laid by the Blackman and Mumford pen were below the "Extra" grade. All of the birds of the contest are holding up well on their feed consumption, with good indications that production will go a little higher yet this season. The Leghorns made the highest average production for all birds for March with the heavy birds only a little behind them, broodiness not yet having affected the production of the latter to any measurable extent. The Leghorns consumed on an average 3.59 pounds of grain, 3.62 pounds of mash and 2.35 pounds of green feed, and gave a production of 71.48 per cent. The anconas consumed. 2.97 pounds of grain, 3.16 pounds of mash, and 2.39 pounds of green feed, with an egg production of 60.58. The heavy birds consumed 4.27 pounds of grain, 3.78 pounds of mash and 2.37 pounds of green feed, and had a production of 69.06 per cent. No artificial lighting was used.

The highest pens for the month of March, together with their production follows: Ferd Heying (R.I.R.), 25.10; George C. England, 24.50; Blackman and Mumford, 24.40; Fontana Farms Company, 24.30; R. P. Stephen, 23.89; M. A. Schofield, 23.78; S. H. Park, 23.78; John F. Stone, 23.67. Disqualified high pens: Mrs. E. I. Anderson, 24.30; S. S. Foote, (B.P.R.) 24.00. The highest birds for the month were reported for the following: Ferd Heying, (R.I.R.) two birds, 31 and 30, respectively; J. A. Hanson, 29; George C. England, 29; Rusch Poultry Farm, 29; Ferd Heying, (R.I.R.) 29 and 29, respectively. Disqualified high bird: Mrs. E. I. Anderson, 30.

MARCH REPORTS FOR SANTA CRUZ CONTEST

SANTA CRUZ.—The report of the California Farm Bureau Egg-Laying Contest at this place for the month of March shows W. J. Kenna, Santa Cruz, in first place for the month with a production of 249 eggs from his pen of White Leghorns. William Marshall, Santa Cruz, is second with 243 eggs and M. C. Wire and Son, Newberg, Or., third with 242 eggs, followed by James Gage, Novato, with 237 eggs; Levi Mellon, Santa Cruz, 232; L. A. Thornewill, Santa Cruz, 230; Edward Phipps, Glendale, 229; W. J. Neef, Santa Cruz, 228; Thomas Hawley, Lodi, 227; Sea Breeze Poultry Farm, Capitola, 223; Edward Phipps, Glendale, 223. The highest hens for the month were the entry of W. J. Kenna, Santa Cruz, 29 eggs; Hollywood Poultry Farm, Hollywood, Wash., 29; W. J. Neef, Santa Cruz, 28; Alex Stewart, Santa Cruz, 28.

Highest pens to date in the contest stand as follows: L. A. Thornewill, Santa Cruz, 1273 eggs; Alberta Ranch, Santa Cruz, 1266; F. L. Collin, Santa Cruz, 1259; James Gage, Novato, 1230; W. J. Kenna, Santa Cruz, 1225; Sunrise Poultry Farm, Santa Cruz, 1173; John L. Davidson, San Francisco, 1141; W. J. Neef, Santa Cruz, 1048; W. S. Freeman, Hayward, 1019; Levi Mellon, Santa Cruz, 1013.

In the heavy division, A. C. Anderson stands at the head of the list with a record of 885 eggs for a pen of Rhode Island Reds. In the Boys and Girls Club Division, the Napa County Elementary Pullet Raising Club, Napa, leads with 1008 eggs to date; while in the two-year contest, St. Johns Poultry Farm, Oronogo, Mo., leads with a production of 1870 eggs to date.

Rules and regulations for next year's contest, conforming to those made by the directors of all California contests and which have been adopted by all contests, are now being printed for distribution. This standardization of the major rules governing all contests, and placing all contests on an equal footing without destroying the individuality of any contest is expected to be of benefit to all.

Radishes, bunch onions, table beets, lettuce, and many other vegetables are easily grown and help to supply the table with delicious delicacies.

Farm News of the Great Southwest

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS

ONTARIO.—As a precautionary measure against any possible outbreak of the hoof-and-mouth disease in this community, directors of the Junior Farm Center Fair have voted to postpone the fair from May 23 and 24 to October 3 and 4. Numerous herds throughout San Bernardino county would be endangered if such a show were held in May, the directors believe. The dairy district south of this city is doing all in its power to keep the cattle disease out of the community. Indications are that the fourth annual Chaffey Junior Farm Center Fair is to be the banner one of the school's history, and now with the additional time for preparation, the undertaking is expected to be greatly improved.

PLANNING FOR SHOW

VICTORVILLE.—Preliminary organization of a fair committee for the annual Victorville Exposition and Carnival was made at a recent luncheon meeting of the Victorville Business Men's Club. Tentative arrangements placed the date of the 1924 show at October 17, 18 and 19. Efforts to have the American Legion co-operate with a rodeo at the same time are under way. The financial committee for the event comprises the following: C. M. Moon, C. S. Grain, Hugh Sharon, G. A. Marsh, G. H. Godshall, C. J. Goodrich and Robert P. Turner. A committee which will report on a location for the fair includes J. M. Holloway, Hesperia; E. E. Kiggins, Oro Grande; Dr. Hewitt, Summit; John Christenson, Victorville; T. E. Lee, Adelanto; W. T. Trickey, Helendale; James Goulding, Lucerne Valley; Frank L. Thomas, Baldy Mesa, and Walker Jones, Phelan. Each committeeman is instructed to report on the support that can be gained from his respective territory. It was recommended that there be two tents, one for the horticultural display and one for the industrial exhibits. The local committee will elect its own chairman and compete the plans for the actual show.

DEPARTMENT REORGANIZED

SAN BERNARDINO.—Reorganization of the public utilities department of the San Bernardino County Farm Bureau was completed at a recent meeting of the utilities committee, which is representative of every district in the county. J. S. Edwards of Redlands and East Highlands was elected chairman. R. B. Peters, Devore, was chosen secretary. E. H. Richardson, Adelanto, and A. L. Laforge, Chino, are directors. Additional directors will be named by each farm center in the county. The immediate work of the department will be to co-operate in meeting a possible summer shortage of power and to represent the rancher power users in matters of rates and power distribution. A letter outlining the work of the department is being sent all agricultural power users.

MAY BUILD BIG PLANT

LOMPOC.—Lompoc Valley mustard growers are anticipating the building of a mustard plant here to prepare their product for the market. They now ship the crop East. It is stated by growers that factory interests have been looking over the ground with the idea in view, and that the expectation is that before many months a plant to grind the mustard will be in course of construction. It is said that the same company also packs other commodities, such as beans, tomatoes, asparagus and corn, and that when the representatives were here they made a survey of the valley and discussed with growers the crop possibilities, with a view of ascertaining whether they would be assured of sufficient supply to meet the demands of the large plant they said they would erect.

NO FROST DAMAGE

BRYN MAWR.—No damage has been done to the deciduous fruit crops in this district by frost this year, local growers say. There may have been some fruit nipped but most of the trees have such heavy crops that it will be necessary to thin them heavily anyway. The peach and apricot trees are especially well loaded this year. Cherries and pears are expected to produce an average crop.

NEED FOR CANNERY

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—While fruit is canned at Glendale and Chandler, it is said that the Salt River Valley especially needs a large vegetable cannery, for which crops can be grown under contract. Tomatoes, asparagus and spinach are well suited to the valley. The labor supply is considered ample and is to be secured at even lower cost than in California.

PRICES SATISFACTORY

REDLANDS. — Orange growers are pleased over the upward trend of the market for California oranges in the East. The bulk of the navel crop has been handled, but there are still several hundred cars of this sort to be shipped from the Redlands district. All packing-houses are running at capacity now and despite the large shipments, the distribution is being well taken care of.

RULES FOR SPRAYERS

VISALIA.—The registration and examination by the county horticultural commissioner's office of commercial sprayers of Tulare county is expected to prove of material benefit to fruit growers. This precaution will guarantee the work of the commercial outfits, it is said and standardize the annual performance of this service. Rules requiring this went into effect April 1. According to estimates Tulare county citrus growers alone spent $385,000 for spraying and fumigation of the citrus orchards last year, in addition to money spent by deciduous growers. It is believed that work of the sprayers will be even more extensive this season. There were seventy-three commercial sprayers at work in Tulare county last year, 140 spraying outfits being operated. Tulare County Horticultural Commissioner Brann says that standards will be materially raised by the methors now to be enforced. Every outfit will be inspected each thirty days and a complete record kept. A. F. Kirkpatrick, county horticultural inspector, will have direct charge of this department. Failure to comply with the last will constitute grounds for revocation of the permits.

HAS BEST PRODUCER

HOLTVILLE.—A. H. Smithson of this district is owner of the best butter-fat producer in Imperial county as shown by the records of the Imperial County Farm Bureau Cow-Testing Association for March. This cow, a registered Holstein, produced 92.7 pounds of butterfat. His next best cow produced seventy-one pounds and his best five cows produced a total of 302 pounds of fat, an average of more than sixty pounds for each cow. Out of 3471 cows tested by the association last month 450 produced better than forty pounds of butterfat each.

BERRIES PROFITABLE

BRAWLEY.—Local strawberry growers this season have earned a net profit of nearly $1000 an acre, according to A. Takahashi, in charge of berry shipping here. Five solid carloads of strawberries have been shipped, one of them to Butte, Mont., where the berries brought high prices. The berry-shipping season is expected to continue for the next two weeks.

CITRUS MEN TO MEET

PORTERVILLE.—Problems of the citrus growers will form the subject for discussion at a meeting of citrus men to be held here on April 25, under the auspices of the Tulare County Farm Bureau. These problems will be divided into six heads; field, packing-house and standardization work; transportation, distribution and selling. Each of these subjects will be handled by experienced men.

The only advantage of a scrub cow is that it doesn't take so long to milk her.

NEW COTTON GIN TO BE STARTED SOON

McFARLAND.—After many months of effort on the part of enterprising farmers in this district, McFarland will soon have a cotton gin.

The deal was settled at a recent meeting of the Commercial Club, when the necessary money was raised among the business men to finance the work of the new project. The gin will be installed as soon as possible and should be completed in time for the crops this year.

With the definite announcement that the gin will be installed here, McFarland cotton growers are again turning to their crops with the hope of making a success of the cotton growing industry here. Although the industry is still in its infancy in this vicinity, many prominent cotton growers are convinced that this community produces some of the finest cotton grown in the United States.

Quality and quantity should be the aim of the fruit grower. Thin out the fruit.

SCOPE OF NEW CLUB GREATLY ENLARGED

The California Breeders of Rare and Fancy Fowl, a new specialty club recently organized in Los Angeles for poultry fanciers, already has a substantial membership. The club is receiving the endorsement of many of the best-known fanciers of the State, who express the opinion that the organization represents a decided forward movement toward a new day for the real "fancier" breeders of the rare varieties of fowl. While the club was organized primarily for co-operation and encouragement in breeding, selling, advertising and exhibiting of the rarer varieties of new and standard-bred poultry, water fowl and aviary birds, many breeders of the so-called popular breeds, such as Rhode Island Reds, Jersey Black Giants and Dark Cornish have expressed a desire to unite with the club. In order to have the name of the club harmonize with this addition to its membership, it was recently changed from "California Breeders of Rare Fowl" to California Breeders of Rare and Fancy Fowl

While the club bears the name of the Golden State, it is not the purpose of the promoters to exclude members from outside States. Charles H. Yaple, Richford N. Y., nationally-known breeder and exhibitor of Colored, White and Silver Dorkings, is the first breeder from outside California to become a member of the club. All lovers of bird life are eligible to join the club, regardless of whether they are engaged in breeding operations. Plans are being made for the forming of an advertising pool which is expected to enable members to dispose of surplus breeding stock and hatching eggs in a national way at a small cost per capita. The initial exhibition or meet of the club is scheduled to be held in connection with the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona in October.

More Eggs a Year

of the committee has been one of the big factors in promoting the work of the station.

It is not the intention to let the plan drop at the close of the trapnesting year. In fact, this first work will represent but the beginning. The object of the work is to increase the production of poultry in the Chaffey community, and with that end in view, a large number of those who have entries in the station plan to continue their high-producing fowls at the station another year in special breeding pens. This will make it possible for those poultrymen who have only one or two high-producing individuals to have the privilege of matings from the best males available and, at the same time, have trapnesting records kept on these individuals.

The station is financed through the sale of eggs. It represents no cost to the Chaffey district aside from such equipment as was already on the ground at the time the work was begun. This entry fee for each fowl, together with the income from eggs, takes care of all expenses connected with the station, including the purchase of feed and the hire of labor.

There is no question as to the value of this type of work. If it were possible, for example, to increase the annual production per hen in the Chaffey community as much as one dozen eggs, the added income to the Chaffey district would amount at the close of a year to many thousands of dollars. When one contemplates, too, that the high-producing flocks, in this or any other community have been built up slowly by constant work in culling and breeding, one realizes that it is within the realm of possibility to bring about this very thing.

That is why the Chaffey Trapnesting Station was established. It does not in any sense compete with the work which is being carried on so well by the egg-laying contests of the Farm Bureau. In fact, there is no doubt that as time goes on the local trapnesting station will supplement the work of the egg-laying contest to the profit of both. An ever-increasing number of poultrymen will become acquainted with trapnesting records and will desire to enter their fowls in these contests.

The time of individual farming has long since passed, and every type of agriculture must now be developed on a community basis. If the Chaffey district or any other section of Southern California has aspirations to develop its poultry business, there are some things that must be undertaken as community enterprises and one of the first is this idea of increasing average production for each fowl.

The seven high hens in the Chaffey station, with a production of 150 eggs per hen, during 194 days probably exceeded the average yearly production of all the hens in Southern California. This example of an extreme case simply illustrates in concrete form the possibilities of this kind of work. It is needless to say that any improvement which will come to the flocks of the community must be brought about slowly by years of constant effort, but it is only those projects which are planned to cover a period of years which in the long run are most worth while.

One of the interesting items given in the appended list is that of the Junior Farm Center. The average production to date, while satisfactory, is not high, but the average for March for this entry is well toward the top of the list. This is of special note for this entry represents some half-dozen students of Chaffey Union High School who through their poultry are earning money to help finance themselves while in school. A considerable number of the young people in Chaffey Union High School are doing this very thing.

All praise to them for their enterprise and fine spirit of initiative! It is from young people of this sort, who early learn what it means to rely on themselves and they hely their parents at the same time that they help themselves in getting an education, that we may expect the leaders of the future to come. In passing, it may be said that the poultrymen of the Chaffey district have been more than generous in giving boosts wherever possible to these young people. That spirit of "work together" is the sort of spirit that is bound to make any community forge ahead.

HEAVY PLANTING OF DATES IN ARIZONA

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—Date palms are being planted by thousands on the farms of the Salt River Valley, usually along the ditches on ground that otherwise would be wasted. As a large proportion of the palms have been grown from commercial seed, there is a surplus of male trees, but the fruit output is gaining annually. Several hundred acres of groves have been set out with shoots from known varieties. Fruit outside of these usually is of indeterminate character, though usually good and salable.

Offshoots have provided a large part of the income from the main groves and have been saved to a much larger extent since adoption of the new system of boxing in earth beside the trunk before cutting from the parent stem.

The largest date farm of the valley, that of the University of Arizona, south of Tempe, is on excessively alkaline land, where water is only a few feet deep. While the latter point is considered valuable, growers are now more inclined to pin their faith to good soil.

DIVERSIFIED FARMS IDEA TAKES ROOT

McFARLAND.—The movement fostered and spread by farm center officials here and by members in behalf of diversified farming has apparently taken root. Recently the establishment of several poultry farms, mixed orchards and extensive family gardens, in addition to the many acres of such staples as alfalfa, corn, cotton and vineyards, has given proof that the ranchers are awakening to the possibilities of this method of farming.

Now comes the verified report that McFarland is to be well represented in the melon and vegetable market for the coming season. The planting of melons and vegetables for the market is considered by the best produce authorities as a splendid move and almost guarantees the farmers against a complete loss for the year because of any unforeseen failures of other crops.

L. M. Knapp, vice-president of the Leahy-Hanna Produce Company of Los Angeles, which has been lately reorganized and incorporated, was in McFarland recently and secured some interesting contracts in this line. Mr. Knapp has personally leased the J. C. Clift ranch, the former Christy place, south of town, and has already planted thirty-five acres to cantaloupes, thirty acres to lettuce, five acres to tomatoes, five acres to cabbage and fifteen acres to watermelons.

In addition, Mr. Knapp has planted thirty acres to potatoes, forty acres to cantaloupes, thirty acres to watermelons and fourteen acres to onions on other acreage. This makes a total of 204 acres under his personal control, exclusively devoted to melon and vegetable raising.

H. A. Brown, district manager for the Leahy-Hanna company, has also taken a personal hand in melon and vegetable-raising by planting ten acres to watermelons and forty acres to potatoes on the old J. C. Porter ranch, east of town. The products from this acreage will all be marketed through the Leahy-Hanna company, who also have contracts for 100 acres of melons and forty acres of potatoes from various ranches.

IMPERIAL LETTUCE BRINGS HIGH PRICES

EL CENTRO.—Imperial Valley lettuce prices reached the high mark of the season early in April, when good quality and pack of the favorite salad crop sold in New York for $7.00 per crate. The dark outlook prevailing during the season had vanished and those who still had lettuce were enthusiastic over the possibilities for the remainder of the season.

Upsetting middle-season "dope" as to the size of the crop this year, the local office of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported on April 3 that 8500 cars of lettuce had already moved from the valley, and that total shipments would probably exceed 9000 cars, bettering the 1923 lettuce shipment record. Earliest estimates placed the crop at 9000 cars, but subsequent damage from pests and disease was estimated to have brought the total down to around 7500 cars. Weather conditions during the early days of April favored the crop and the quality of the lettuce then remaining was said to be exceptionally good, with heads firmer than usual at this time of the year.

At the recent meeting of Imperial Valley lettuce shippers in this city to discuss the contemplated reopening of the lettuce rate hearing on "top icing" by the railroads, growers and shippers in attendance pledged their continued support in the fight against the increased rates and subscribed $1200 as a "starter" to add to the small fund raised last year in co-operation with the Imperial County Farm Bureau to present the valley's side of the case, at the last hearing, held in Los Angeles last December. It seems that the lettuce industry of the valley does not intend to pay the $70 per car extra icing charges which the railroads are attempting to saddle on them and another controversy is expected to open before the next shipping season begins.

CITRUS GROWERS EXPAND

PHOENIX, Ariz.,—The Arizona Citrus Growers' Association is making large preparations for the future. Now under construction in this city is a new warehouse for packing and storing oranges, grapefruit and lemons. Fifty curing rooms will occupy the basement. The company output has doubled within four years. Last seasons shipments, now about finished, aggregated 150 carloads of grapefruit, 75 carloads of oranges, mostly navels, and 3 carloads of lemons. The grapefruit mainly went to Pacific Coast points, though 3 carloads were shipped through Los Angeles harbor to London, and there sold at fancy prices. The oranges usually go to the early eastern market. Each grapefruit hereafter will be stamped "Arizona Desert Sweet," the trade name.

NOVEL ANT-CONTROL METHODS DEVISED

SANTA BARBARA.—Some Santa Barbara residents are using an entirely new method in a war against the Argentine ant. They have discovered that the ant makes its nest where the soil is dry, and that a board laid down will soon become a cover for ant hills. After the board has been down a week or more it will be found to cover a large number of colonies and these can quickly be exterminated with scalding water.

Some amateur gardeners have mixed straw with the earth, to keep it loosened, and the straw, they say, has been found literally white with ant eggs. Some who have been trying out this process of extermination for a few weeks state that they have practically freed their gardens of ants and that with the passing of the ant the mealy bug has ceased to be a pest.

BY ROBERT T. EVANS.

The enormous losses to the State of California from the foot-and-mouth disease, which is decimating herds at a frightful rate, are bringing the public to a realization of the gravity of the situation now existing within our borders. With our exports checked, and all trade channels clogged and impeded by the embargoes which have been placed on California products by sister States, we are now face to face with the necessity of practically working out our own salvation.

Approximately 40,000 head of cattle, hogs and sheep have already been condemned, at a cost of nearly $1,500,000, since the disease first broke out in the bay counties. The indirect loss to our commerce is many times greater and cannot even be estimated. Unless the crisis is passed at an early date, the possibilities for a further tie-up of business and industry will be certain, and losses will be staggering. Rigid adherence to the quarantine regulations are absolutely imperative at the present time if we expect to avoid a repetition of the expenses in the 1914 outbreak in the Middle West. It required eighteen months and a direct outlay of $10,000,000 to eradicate that outbreak, while the estimated indirect loss to the Central States from the scourge was $90,000,000.

Officials in charge of eradication work in all parts of California are doing their best to stamp out the disease and only ask in return the complete co-operation of everyone. There are some people who perhaps feel that the quarantine rgulations are too severe, but the fact remains that had more drastic action been taken at first the present widespread outbreak migh not have occurred. It is no wstrictly up to every person to take a personal interest in the fight and see that the rules and regulations are obeyed to the letter.

A recapitulation of the losses of live stock in California up to April 14 shows that in the bay district 6605 head of cattle, 8040 hogs, and 186 sheep and goats have been condemned, while in the Merced-Mariposa district, where the disease is still rampant, more than 10,000 head of cattle, 238 head of hogs and 7000 sheep have been condemned. In Los Angeles county the situation is indeed very serious at this writing with over 4500 head of cattle and more than 1000 head of hogs already sacrificed by stockmen and with danger of even more serious infection due to the density of population in this section, with its hundreds of dairies in close proximity to infected territory.

The eradication plan necessarily calls for the destruction of every herd where infection is found. While there are many excellent stockmen of foreign birth in Southern California who cannot fully understand why the foreign countries' method of "control" instead of herd slaughtering is not put in operation, they should bear in mind that "control" methods in continental Europe and other countries have never completely been able to rid these countries of the plague. Take Switzerland, for example, where the strictest sanitary measures are carried out in combatting the disease. In spite of such precautions, results show that the sanitation barriers are never solid enough to oppose the extension of the disease or to stay its penetration into disease-free zones. Because of this fact, and because of the embargoes placed against live stock from disease-infected areas, such a plan is not practicable here. In the case of California with embargoes becoming more strict each day, it is absolutely vital that the State be rid of the plague before we can expect to be reinstated in interstate trade, not only of live stock but of practically every crop grown. With our big cantaloupe crop coming on and the fruit season to begin soon, we are bound to be handicapped in all shipments until the scourge is banished from our borders. We must bend every effort to stop the malady from spreading, and clean house before trade relations can again be resumed.

The report of the Kern County Cow-Testing Association for the month of March shows that there were 858 cows tested during the month, with average production of 819 pounds of milk and 29 pounds of butter fat per cow. Cows to the number of 123 produced 40 pounds or more fat each for the month. J. L. Sebastian, Wasco, had the highest producing pure-bred, a cow with a production of 2091 pounds milk and 89.9 pounds butter fat, while the highest grade cow was owned by Peacock Stock farm, Bakersfield, and produced 1527 pounds of milk and 77.9 pounds of butter fat. Chris Cayori, Bakersfield, had the highest herd average for a herd of over 30 cows, his 32 head of Jerseys producing an average of 1406 pounds of milk and 32.4 pounds of fat. In herds of 15 to to 30 cows, A. V. Bennett, Wasco, had the highest grade herd, his 24 Jerseys producing an average of 809 pounds of milk and 37.7 pounds of fat; the highest producing pure-bred herd of Holsteins owned by J. L. Sebastian, Wasco, and numbering 16 head, produced an average of 2169 pounds of milk and 70.4 pounds of butter fat. Edwin Booth, Wasco, with a herd of six Holsteins (grades) had the highest herd of five to fifteen cows, with an average production of 1292 pounds of milk and 44 pounds of butter fat.

The April meeting of the Southern California Purebred Livestock Association, which was scheduled to be held at the California Junior Republic at Chino, has been postponed until the foot-and-mouth epidemic is over. The April meeting of the board of directors of the California Dairy Council has also been called off, as well as agricultural meetings of all kinds, among which are the Annual Farm Bureau Traveling conference, Kings County Day, Tulare County Dairy Day, and the University Farm picnic.

The broader demand for all dairy products, which is being greatly increased by educational work on the part of everyone interested in public health, tends to stabilize the dairy industry. Dairy products are, generally speaking, among the few which are wholly consumed. Prices, therefore, depend in the last analysis entirely upon the relation of the supply to the demand.

GIRL MEMBER TELLS OF CLUB ACTIVITIES

The following information relative to the activities of the Downey Calf Club, one of the successful Los Angeles county agricultural clubs, was written by Elizabeth Brown, the only girl member of the club and winner of many prizes for junior work: "As a member of the Downey Calf Club, I will endeavor to give other boys and girls an idea of what our club has done, and is now doing.

"Through the efforts of F. H. Ernst, former Los Angeles county club leader, and E. H. Agee, the former owner of the Paragon herd, Rivera, our club held its first meeting March 9, 1923, at the Los Angeles County Farm, Downey. Ten members enrolled at this time and a pure-bred Holstein Friesian heifer was bought by each member. Each member takes care of his own calf and a feed record is kept from week to week.

"Our club now has a little over $217 in the treasury with which we hope to secure A. R. O. records on our heifers. This money was secured by selling to one of the club members a heifer donated by Mrs. Anita Baldwin.

"We have not been holding regular meetings up to the present, but it was decided at our last meeting that we meet regularly every six weeks. Our club officers are as follows: President, Sydney Edmonson; vice president, Allen Grant; secretary and treasurer, Elizabeth Brown.

"At the end of every six months our calves are judged and our record books are inspected by a committee of three dairymen. A medal is given to the one winning first and second. For the first phase I received first prize and as a reward went to the University Farm at Davis. We have only completed one phase so far.

"All of our members showed their calves at the Downey Community Fair last year. Three members showed their calves at the Southern California Fair at Riverside and at the Los Angeles County Fair held at Pomona. Members of our club have won ten silver cups and about fifteen ribbons and several cash prizes at these fairs. So you see we have made a fairly good showing, as all of this was accomplished in the first six months of our club work."

SELLERS OF SATISFACTION

Two young bulls sold this week to old customers who first bought herd sires from us in 1917 and have used bulls from our herd ever since, three in one herd and four in the other.

We aim to make every customer as well satisfied with the stock we sell, and to that end offer only the offspring of our top cows, that we can be sure will please.

Results: Satisfaction, repeat orders, and boosters who tell of the "Best Heifers I ever saw" and "Six gallons average production at 22 months age, for grade heifers under dairy conditions."

Cotton in Southwest

short staple developed by the government, is gaining acreage as one of the best all-round cotton varieties known; and this variety is being pushed with the advantages of greater uniformity of production—something needed to establish Southwest cotton more firmly in the esteem of the American mill men. Acala is credited with making exceptionally heavy yields, one and one-fourth to two bales per acre having been reported from Coachella Valley. Imperial Valley on both sides of the international line is pretty well committed to Acala at this time. Better returns from cotton must be sought in higher yields per acre rather than in lucky markets, and the development of the industry in the Southwest calls for special attention to cultural methods making for higher yields.

The acreage given over to cotton in the South has been estimated at around 30,000,000. Of course, there is no such acreage available in the Southwest for cotton growing. Something over a million and a half acres now under irrigation might be so used, and several million acres more could be added to the cotton area upon the carrying out of contemplated reclamation projects and through the gradual addition of acreage long established in other crops. These several millions of acres, producing far more cotton per acre than is possible in the South in its present unfortunate plight, could contribute a substantial percentage toward making up for America's failing cotton yield. Immediate increases in cotton plantings in the Southwest could be expected only in such established irrigated regions as the San Joaquin Valley, Coachella, Imperial, Palo Verde and Perris valleys in California; the Yuma Valley, Salt River Valley, and along the Gila River in Arizona; under the Elephant Butte Dam and along the Pecos River in New Mexico, and upon a few thousand irrigated acres in Southern Nevada.

The production of cotton in the Southwest, west of Texas, was about as follows last year: Arizona, 80,000 bales; California, 55,000 bales; and Imperial Valley in Mexico, 90,000 bales: less than 250,000 bales altogether. (The Mexican Imperial yield is included, as its growing is largely financed by American capital.)

But cotton was the most profitable field crop in the Southwest last year. Plantings are being materially increased wherever cotton is grown, and a number of new cotton regions are coming in. It is not profitable, however, to raise cotton in a small way, as one would corn or potatoes, unless within a cotton-growing region served by a gin. Nor is it profitable to establish a gin unless there is assurance of several thousand bales.

An interesting experiment in growing cotton in small intensive gardens without colored labor is being tried out in Australia. The cotton is grown by white families, each limiting the planting to what the family can take care of and pick without outside aid. Faith in the success of the experiment rests upon continued good prices, high enough to make the crop a white man's crop profitable in a small way. The experiment should be watched by Californians, as it may suggest a manner of introducing the cotton crop under a high standard in Southland small-ranch communities, where an annual field crop from an acre or two might be an excellent companion-crop to fruit growing.

Australia at present is producing only a few thousand bales. The British Cotton Growing Association, after twenty years of experimenting in all parts of the British Empire has revived the cultivation of Sea Island in the British West Indies, has prospects of a 100,000-bale crop from its work in the Sudan, has introduced improved varieties to take the place of native inferior types in Nigeria, and has created an 80,000 bale crop, entirely new, in Uganda. These activities are also bearing fruit in Nyasaland and Rhodesia. Italy and France have likewise promoted cotton-growing in their colonies. The total production of crops of this sort in various parts of the world is now nearing 2,000,000 bales (400 pounds in weight as compared to 500 pounds for American bales,) and is gradually increasing.

Before the war, Russia produced big crops of cotton in Russian Transcaucasia and Turkestan, and these areas are pretty certain to come back. Korea produces over 100,000 bales, Mesopotamia a like amount, and India and China great amounts of short-staple, which is too inferior to take the place of American cotton except under the duress of too-high prices for the better grades.

The greatest prospective cotton belts of new production lie in Latin-America. Mexico already produces about 250,000 bales; Brazil, 700,000; Peru, 175,000; and the other countries together about 70,000. Some authorities believe Brazil alone could produce many millions of bales, were the industry there to be developed as it has been in the United States, although others contend that the prevalence of insect life there would make this doubtful. Whatever the real situation, it would be a long time before Brazil could acquire the economic mastery to realize her cotton potentialities.

In the meantime there is our own great Southwest, and never was so fair a challenge flung to a region as this of the world's greatest crop.

Fifteen boys of the Madera district have secured 27 pure-bred Poland-China and Duroc Jersey gilts which they are raising to demonstrate the value of better breeding and management. Each pig will be raised according to the directions of C. P. Moffit, of the Madera High School.

RAINS IMPROVE THE OUTLOOK FOR CITRUS

GLENDORA.—The Glendora district is closing the navel orange season with about 470 cars shipped. This is about a 70 per cent normal crop, the discrepancy being due chiefly to the small size of the fruit this season. The long dry season is largely responsible for the small sizes, which makes the recent rains doubly welcome. With a rainfall to the 8th inst. of 10.46 inches, the outlook for the summer is much brighter than some weeks ago, when the precipitation was less than four inches.

By the same token, the outlook for lemons is better than it was a month ago. While there is still a large percentage of tree-ripe fruit, the stored fruit is holding up well and that on the trees is showing improvement in grade. There is a fine setting of young fruit and a heavy blossom. This, coupled with the fact that the amount of fruit in storage is less than normal, makes the outlook for the season very bright. As a prominent lemon grower expressed it: "The rains have improved the condition and keeping quality of the fruit; cultivation has conserved practically all the late rainfall, and altogether we are going into the summer in better condition than for many a year." Shipments for the season will run about 350 cars.

As estimated by C. E. Groninger, manager of the Glendora Fruit Exchange, the Valencia crop will run about 500 cars for the season. The rains are bringing the Valencias up in size and grade, and there is every prospect for a good crop with a satisfactory market.

LETTUCE POPULAR IN SALT RIVER VALLEY

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—Though the eastern market is far from dependable and the crop sometimes has been plowed in before the season had ended, lettuce is now one of the staple crops of the Salt River Valley. The spring lettuce season is at its peak, with expectation that 700 carloads will be shipped. More than that number were loaded in the early winter. In quality the Arizona lettuce rates high. Some growers have realized up to $450 an acre profit, but $150 is said to have been about the average. The business is an expensive one, involving much care and labor, but the season is relatively short and the land later is available for such crops as cantaloupes, watermelons or corn, while cotton sometimes follows.

Poultry growers like to be near a lettuce field, for the gleanings from the crop give winter greens that are relished by the chickens. Cows do not seem particularly fond of lettuce, though they will eat it after a while, when deprived of other green food. Spinach has also been raised during the winter season in the valley, but the demand for it is less than for lettuce and a section of Texas is a strong competitor, with much lower freight rates to eastern cities.

Do not gamble on the weather. Be sure of moisture by using irrigation water.

VACUUM FUMIGATION OF RAISINS TESTED

DINUBA.—As a result of a conference held by a committee of the Sun Maid Raisin Growers Association, which met recently with G. H. Hecke, director, State Department of Agriculture, D. B. Mackie and S. I. Gleason of the department were detailed to assist the raisin growers in testing out the possibility of applying the latest methods of vacuum fumigation to raisins.

In this test, new and hitherto untried methods of fumigation were utilized. In this connection, carbon disulfide and carbon dioxide gases were combined, the object being to try to produce a fumigating compound that would not explode with the facility that characterizes the mixture of carbon disulfide and air. In order that the test could be made on an industrial scale, the California Peach and Fig Growers Association made available their vacuum fumigating plant here. Sixty tons of raisins were utilized in the test.

Another new departure in the process was the development of a means of passing of gas from one cylinder to another, and salvaging the same mechanically. In this test, in an entire single day's run, about forty tons were treated with the initial fumigation charge, the same being passed back and forth four times.

In order to obtain necessary data on the progressive decline of the gas concentration, samples of the gas were analyzed at periodic intervals. It is interesting to note that practically each feature of the entire test involved a new departure in fumigation practice; even to the analyses employed, which were also developed specially for this purpose.

Directors of the new Truck Crop Growers' Department of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau meeting in Los Angeles. ful organization meeting in Los Angeles. This group of representative truck crop growers carefully prepared plans for this year's work, these including the holding of spring and fall field days, a potato show at the County Fair. and a membership campaign. According to plans discussed at the meeting, special attention will be given to devising a method of desemінating a crop and market information to growers of truck crops. Nematode and wire worm control tests will also be carried on. A resolution asking for a special appropriation for wire worm investigation by the Department of Agriculture was unanimously carried. This action was taken in support of a movement started by growers of Yakima Valley, Washington, Officers for the year were elected as follows: Chairman, E. D. McSweeny, El Monte; vice chairman, T. H. Lambert, El Monte.

Laying Efficient Cement Pipe Irrigation Systems

Irrigation has been chiefly responsible for Southern California's diversified agricultural development and in irrigation, cement pipe installation has always been identified with permanent plantings of any sort. Many large ranch operators of the section make their own pipe.

The extensive utilization of rolling and fill land in Southern California for citrus and other fruit requiring irrigation has been made possible largely through installation of efficient cement pipe irrigation systems. Here expert workmen are laying pipe to serve a young citrus planting.

Gardening Instruction For Future Home Makers

BY ROSS H. GAST

General view, headquarters, Elementary Agriculture Department, Los Angeles city schools, McKinley avenue, near Vernon, recently made ready for occupancy.

Planting trees in nursery rows, Budlong Center.

WITH a new headquarters building recently completed on McKinley avenue near Vernon, the elementary agricultural department of the Los Angeles city schools is now equipped to advance its meritorious work to a greater degree than has hitherto been possible. This center comprises an acre and a half of land, on which, aside from the headquarters building, has been moved the glass house, lathhouse and equipment sheds formerly located on the abandoned agricultural center near Jefferson High School. The headquarters building contains a large class room, a supply room, offices for the supervisorial staff and a lecture room for teachers' meetings. The land has been carefully planned and planted to all sorts of useful and ornamental plants, arranged in educational plots.

Few persons realize the scope of the work undertaken by this department of the public schools and its value not only to children under instruction, but to the city as a whole. At the present time, with a personnel of sixty-one teachers, a supervisor and four assistants, the department gives instruction to over 25,000 children in 116 schools where agriculture is taught. And in addition to the headquarters, there are three other centers in representative sections of the city where educational plots are maintained and ornamental plants are propagated for distribution to schools and homes.

Aside from instruction to pupils, the elementary agricultural department, through its supervisorial staff, has drawn up plans, furnished a large part of the stock and landscaped many of the new school buildings erected in Los Angeles during the past few years. This has resulted in a saving of many thousands of dollars to the Board of Education. Last year, the department turned out and used for permanent planting on school grounds, under expert supervision, nearly $3000 worth of shrubs and trees.

The bulk of this stock was grown at the department's agricultural centers of which there are four, the Agricultural Center on McKinley avenue, mentioned before, the Budlong Center, at the John Muir Junior High School near Vermont and Slauson avenue; the Hammel Center, back of the College Street School in the Belvedere district, and the Laurel Center in Hollywood. Each center comprises about two acres of land, and is equipped with lathhouses and facilities for propagating shrubs and trees. In fact, each center is a model and efficient nursery plant on a small scale, where the stock on hand is always available for use in the beautification of new school buildings.

At these centers, larger operations in nursery work, such as budding, grafting, pruning and the like, are also taught. Small plots of all sorts of vegetables are grown for demonstration purposes, while in some cases larger areas are utilized to grow certain staple vegetables such as sweet corn and potatoes. At the headquarters on McKinley avenue, the glasshouse is utilized to propagate many ferns and houseplants for schoolroom decoration. Here, exhibits of pests and pest-injured specimens, along with a wide variety of other educational material, are kept for reference by the teachers of the department, who meet there once each month to discuss new and timely topics pertaining to their work.

Contrary to the usual belief, it is not the aim of this department to make farmers out of those under instruction. According to Clayton F. Palmer, who has been in active supervision of this work for several years, the purpose of such teaching is to instill in pupils the love of nature and the "out-of-doors" rather than to emphasize the desirability of taking up agriculture as a vocation. He says that a large majority of the children under instruction will some day own homes in the city and that instruction such as is being given is designed to help them in making these homes attractive, as well as to train them in making a small area of ground productive. Home gardening and home ornamentation have been and always will be the practical objective of the department's work, he says, the nature study phase of agriculture being stressed in classroom study.

All phases of nursery work are taught by the Elementary Agriculture Department. Here a class is transferring plants from one-gallon to five-gallon cans.

Irrigation a Vital Factor in Avocado Production

By KNOWLES RYERSON, Agricultural Extension Service, Los Angeles County.

Water distributing device used on terraced hillside by North Whittier Heights avocado orchardist. It is lifted out of the way for cultivation.

OF THE several cultural practices of importance in the growing of avocados no single one has more direct effect on successful production than irrigation. Failure to meet satisfactorily the moisture requirements of the avocado tree is the contributing cause to several general troubles encountered by growers. While close attention to irrigation is necessary in any year, it is particularly so this year, since in spite of the recent rains, the total amount of precipitation is far below normal and shortage may be felt during the summer and fall.

In understanding the moisture requirements of the avocado a knowledge of the climatic conditions in its native home is needed. While the types grown in California come from the cooler highland regions of the tropics and do not thrive in the hot humid lowlands near the coast, nevertheless rainfall is typical of the tropical regions generally, the precipitation there varying from forty to a hundred and twenty inches a year and being distributed throughout the growing season. In Southern California, natural rainfall seldom supplies more than twenty inches in the avocado districts, usually less, and this comes during the season of least growth. The balance must be made up through irrigation and this additional amount needed is the equivalent of from twenty to twenty-four inches of rain, or twenty to twenty-four acre inches. In terms of the miner's inches, an acre inch is equivalent to a miner's inch for fifty hours, or fifty inches for one hour.

Irrigation practice is directly related to the nature and spread of the root system. The avocado tree resembles the citrus tree quite generally in its rooting habits. It is primarily a shallow rooted tree, the fibrous system being confined to the upper four feet of soil. The lateral spread is considerable, the roots extending well beyond the drip on outer lines of the foliage, contrary to popular opinion. In order that the tree may function most efficiently, this root zone must be uniformly supplied with moisture throughout the entire growing season and at such frequent intervals that it is never allowed to dry out. As has been mentioned, the avocado comes from a region of high rainfall, where the ground is ordinarily always moist. Best results in this country can be expected where the conditions are made as nearly like those in its native home as is possible.

Adequate drainage is essential to the avocado. Although it requires an abundance of moisture, the tree is intolerant of standing water and dies very quickly if the soil remains saturated for too long a period. Even on hillslopes, trees have been known to drown in Southern California, where basins have been used in heavy soils and the water collected during a long, rainy spell has stood for a week to ten days.

In order to irrigate intelligently, a knowledge of soil conditions under the surface is needed by the grower. The condition and type of the first foot do not indicate what may exist at a depth of two feet or more. The presence or absence of sandy and gravelly layers, hard or tight subsoils or hardpans have a direct bearing on irrigation practice. Only through an examination of the soil beneath the surface can these conditions be determined. The use of the soil auger for this purpose is highly advisable.

The different methods of water application by different avocado growers depend to some extent upon the slope of the land and the type of the soil. The most common practice, where the slope is not too steep and the soil not too porous, is the use of furrows in the same manner as applies in citrus groves, four to six furrows being evenly spaced between the tree rows. The length of these furrows varies from three to four hundred feet, depending upon the type of soil. Longer furrows result in a leaching of plant food from the area near the head of the run through excess water, while the lower ends of the furrows frequently do not get enough. Cross furrowing gives a more even distribution of moisture throughout the entire root zone. On terraced plantings, furrows longer than 300 feet have not given satisfaction.

In connection with terraced plantings, too, special devices have been worked out to facilitate the application of water. One of these, illustrated on this page, was carried out in the North Whittier Heights district where the pipe line leads down along a ridge and the furrows lead away in both directions. A joint was made at the base in order that it might be lifted out of the way for cultivation.

The mulched basin system has been tried by a number of growers with varying success; it has been discontinued by some and is still adhered to by others. The installation of basins in orchards is an expensive operation, particularly on sloping ground, and they are quite costly to maintain. Unless the basins are large, they do not provide moisture for the great expanse of root area in a mature tree. They do reduce the amount of cultivation necessary and are more conducive to an even soil temperature and moisture conditions. They help to maintain a supply of organic matter where this is added regularly to the basin. For individual trees on home grounds, the basin system is satisfactory.

One of the most common causes of failure in growing avocado and other trees on the home grounds is that of faulty irrigation. The use of the garden sprinkler, with its relatively light applications, furnishes all too little an amount of water and encourages what few roots there are to grow near the surface, where they are subject to great fluctuations in temperature as well as alternate wetting and drying, conditions most detrimental to the setting and holding of fruit. The use of furrows in small areas is usually difficult, particularly where there are many small vegetable and flower plantings that cut up the yard. The use of either temporary or permanent basins to irrigate trees under these conditions give the best results.

Furrow irrigation on a terraced hillside planting.

At the present time the development of overhead irrigation systems in avocado and citrus orchards is going on rapidly. There are now several types in operation. The method has many things to commend it. The water is applied uniformly throughout the root zone, simulating rain. Fertilizers applied are carried down to the roots better than where furrow irrigation is used. The expense of furrowing out is eliminated. Once the water is turned on, it requires little attention. The system has proved of particular advantage on the light gravelly soils along the foothills, where the slope is too steep to permit furrowing on account of washing. During very hot spells, tests conducted last summer showed that the temperature within a grove could be reduced several degrees through the turning on of sprinklers in an effort to prevent fruit drop.

Overhead irrigation is proving successful in a number of orchards.

The principal drawback to the overhead system so far has been the expense of installation. A few types have been devised for as low as $80 an acre, these being the ones in which movable stands are used. Fixed sprinkler systems vary greatly in price, the maximum exceeding $350 per acre.

One kind of sprinkler tried in avocado orchards is a low type set under the trees. In order that it may reach the entire surface thoroughly, the lower limbs have to be cut high; this has resulted in serious frost injury to the trunk in cold weather. This type of sprinkler irrigation is being given up in favor of the overhead, or high design.

Several attempts at devising drip systems have been made. These however, are open to the general criticism that they do not give a uniform distribution of moisture throughout the root zone, but concentrate it all in one rather small area under the tree.

The irrigation of orchards of all kinds in Southern California has been developed around a rather fixed schedule calling for an irrigation every thirty days. Exceptions have been made in some districts. Early development of irrigation schemes made such an arrangement necessary, and in the districts first settled this period proved very satisfactory. With the expansion of settlement into the areas not so favorable as those first chosen, the practice of water delivery was continued on the same basis. Experimental data and successful orchard practice have long demonstrated the advisability and the necessity of adapting the irrigation practice to the soil type rather than to any fixed schedule.

On light sandy soils a medium irrigation every ten to fifteen days is much to be preferred to a heavy irrigation every twenty-five to thirty days; between applications under this latter period, the soil dries out and the tree suffers. No more common cause of fruit drop has been determined than this alternating of wetting and drying. On the other hand, on the heavy types of soil, it has been found desirable to extend the irrigation period from six weeks to every three months in citrus groves, on the heaviest black adobes, and the same condition may be accepted for avocados. These soils take water slowly, hold large amounts and give them up slowly over a long period. Frequent irrigations result in a water-logged condition detrimental to root growth. For average medium, loamy soils, irrigation every three weeks for avocados will generally prove sufficient. No fixed rule of thumb can be given that will apply to all conditions.

An examination of each particular area of soil is necessary to determine the moisture conditions beneath the soil. Here again, recourse should be made to the soil auger. Regular and consistent use of this necessary adjunct to irrigation practice should be made. In gravelly soil where boring is difficult or impossible a shovel should be used. By this means the distribution of the root system and the manner in which the water is penetrating in the different areas around the trees are indicated. A study of the subsoil conditions is particularly desirable where the trees are grown in the home garden. There is no time when a grower is so apt to be misled as to the amount of water he is applying as when a garden sprinkler is used or when small streams are run around trees.

Summing up the water requirements of the avocado, it may be stated that the tree requires as much as citrus trees, and that the water should be applied at fairly short intervals of from two to three weeks, except on the heaviest soils, and in amounts to thoroughly wet the active root zone. At no time during the year should the soil be permitted to become dry, and frequent examinations should be made. The applications of the irrigation water should be so regulated, too, that the moisture conditions in the soil may remain as uniformly even and unfluctuating as possible

Hillside plantings set out on "squares" rather than contours present real problems in irrigation. The large basins here shown are costly to make and maintain and, because of the slope, do not provide an even distribution of water.

The use of sprinklers underneath the trees has not proved a commonly successful practice.

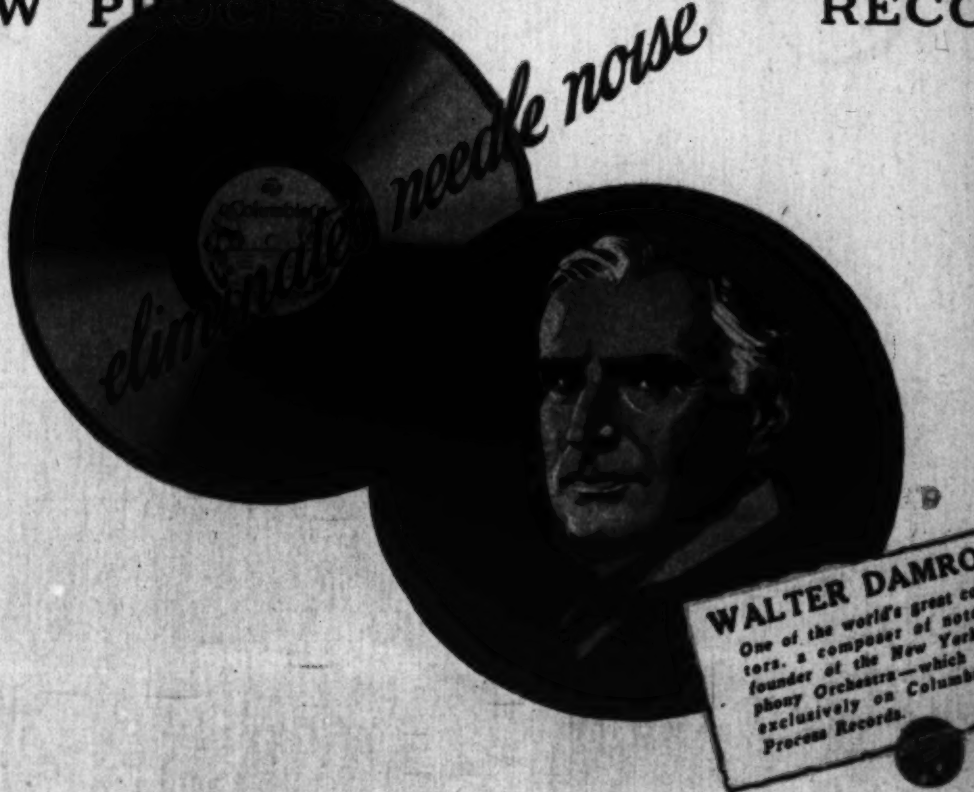
Columbia
NEW PR RECORDS



WALTER DAMROSCH
One of the world's great conductors, a composer of note, and founder of the New York Symphony Orchestra—which records exclusively on Columbia New Process Records.

"A faithful and vivid reproduction of my orchestra," says Walter Damrosch

WALTER DAMROSCH and the New York Symphony Orchestra never made a phonograph record of any kind until the invention of the Columbia New Process Record.

Then, for the first time, Mr. Damrosch found a reproducing medium which he considered adequate to transmit the music of a truly fine orchestra. "We are happy to play for Columbia," says Mr. Damrosch, "because these New Process Records represent our music faithfully."

Mr. Damrosch is not alone in commending the accuracy of Columbia New Process Records. Other artists find that this marvelous new record is singularly free from the faults that have been common to all phonograph records in the past.

Due to a method of laminated construction which makes it possible to use a more delicate and sensitive surfacing material than has ever been used before, the Columbia New Process Record is practically noiseless. There is no scratching or scraping of the needle. No filing, grating sounds to blur or veil the music.

When you listen to a Columbia New Process Record, you hear the music exactly as it was originally rendered by artists famed among musicians for their skill and musicianship.

The New York Symphony Orchestra numbers many of these among its members. Hear them under the inspired leadership of Mr. Damrosch on the New Process Record out to-day—"The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Der Freischütz." It is a record you will want as a permanent addition to your library.

You will want also the new record by Ignas Friedman, representing this fine concert pianist in a charming mood and playing Chopin's "Mazurka," "Minute Waltz"—and "Hark, Hark, the Lark."

Charles Hackett, fresh from sensational triumphs, has made a new record, "I Hear a Thrush at Eve" and "Thank God for a Garden." Ask any Columbia Dealer to play it for you, and also the new release by Toscha Seidel, "Symphonie Espagnole."

Columbia New Process Records cover every type of music from modern dance music and popular songs to the great classics. Prices range from 75c up.

COLUMBIA PHONOGRAPH COMPANY, INC.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

The New Columbia Phonograph is unquestionably the finest of all music-reproducing instruments. It has a purity of tone never before achieved in a phonograph—this, because of its remarkable new reproducer. It starts and stops itself. It has a new precision motor. Its tone-leaves are built on the pipe-organ tone-control principle. And the cabinets in which it is encased are made of rich woods and are exceptionally handsome in design. Prices $50 to $600.

SEVEN AGES IN CORSETRY

"The Bachelor Girl"

Young women of lithe form, trim in figure without being prim, will be particularly interested in this portrait and in the corset masterpiece which it portrays.

This Bachelor Girl is wearing SMART SET CORSET, No. 160, revealing natural lines of beauty and forming an ideal shapeliness for this season's tailored suit and dress—at the same time conserving her health and youthful lines. This is accomplished through the use of Vario-Lastic, which "varies its elasticity," and is exclusive to Nemo products.

They Have Found a New Way to Clean Teeth

Careful people the world over now employ it

DENTAL science has discovered a new method of teeth cleaning. In millions of homes it has displaced the methods which were wrong.

The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show one of the results. This ten-day test will show you what they mean to you and yours. Send for it now, in justice to yourself.

Combat the film

Film is the great tooth-enemy—that viscous film you feel. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it. So old methods failed.

This clinging film becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. That is how teeth lose their beauty.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. The most careful people rarely escape these troubles caused by film.

New methods found

Dental science, years ago, started research to fight film. Eventually two ways were found. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Many careful tests have proved that these methods mean a new era in teeth cleaning. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply these factors daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Dentists the world over began to advise it. Now millions of careful people, of every race, employ these methods daily.

Errors corrected

It was found that old-time tooth pastes also brought unfortunate effects. They reduced the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids. They reduced the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

Pepsodent brings the opposite effects. It multiplies the alkalinity, multiplies the starch digestant. Thus it gives multiplied power to these great tooth-protecting agents.

You will be amazed when you see what better results the new method brings than the old. Let this test show them to you.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Before retiring always protect your teeth against Acid Decay at THE DANGER LINE

WHILE you sleep, most of your body is building up, regaining health and strength. But in the mouth, during the long hours of night, the relentless enemies of your teeth do their most serious damage.

These enemies are acids, formed by the decomposition of tiny food particles left after eating. By day, the freer flow of saliva helps to wash acids away. But at night, unless the teeth are carefully brushed and these acids counteracted, they destroy the surface of the enamel, causing Acid Decay.

Especially at The Danger Line

The Danger Line is just at the edge of the gums. Food particles accumulate here and irritate the gums, causing them to recede and to expose the soft, bony underpart of the teeth.

Acids eat into this soft tooth structure readily. Decay begins and extends under the gum margins. The gums become infected, and abscesses and pyorrhea frequently develop. Poisons from these conditions find their way into your body, often causing rheumatism, heart-disease and lowered physical vitality.

You should prevent this relentless progress of Acid Decay on your teeth by using Squibb's Dental Cream, made with Squibb's Milk of Magnesia.

Milk of magnesia, for generations, has been prescribed by dentists and physicians as the best agent for counteracting mouth acidity. It leaves a protective deposit of magnesia at The Danger Line and other inaccessible places, which neutralizes acids as they are formed.

Brings out beauty

In addition to protecting the teeth from acids, Squibb's Dental Cream also removes "tooth tarnish" or stains and cleans and polishes the teeth beautifully. It relieves the sensitiveness of acid-eroded teeth and is soothing to the gums.

Squibb's Dental Cream is the only dentifrice which combines all these advantages. Begin to use it to-day. If your druggist cannot supply you, mail us the coupon with ten cents for a generous trial size tube.

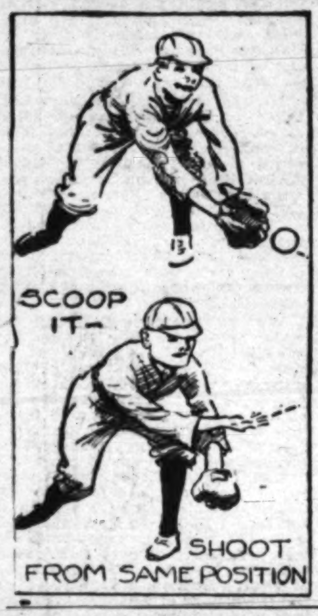
HOW TO PLAY SHORTSTOP



Getting a ball on a good hop is the secret of successful fielding as far as handling grounders is concerned. A good hop is one where the ball is just rising from the ground. It should be caught on the rise, as is shown in the picture, and not on the downward curve.

To manage to get the ball in this position, a player may have to take a step forward or backward. He shouldn't rush madly upon the ball or he will not be in a good position to throw it.

The shortstop doesn't have time to straighten up to throw his ball which he has caught. He has to throw from the position he is in when he catches. This means that he must practice underhand throws and throwing in off-balance positions. The second or more that the shortstop might spend in getting into a good throwing position might be the second that would give the runner time to get to his base.

A shortstop co-operates with second baseman all the time, especially in handling steals and double plays. Things for the second baseman to practice are:

Handling ground balls.
Throwing from any position.
Catching fly balls knocked over his head.

EDDIE COLLINS

Answers Boys' Baseball Questions

Who is the Best Pitcher You Ever Faced?

BY EDDIE COLLINS (Written Exclusively for This Page).

There are skillful pitchers, there are crafty pitchers, there are wise pitchers, and there are pitchers who rely chiefly upon control. There are others with whom speed is the chief asset, and still others with unlimited endurance, courage and nerve. So, you see, to select the best pitcher all these attributes have to be considered.

To my mind the one who best fills all these qualifications is Walter Johnson. For skill alone there are too many for me to mention here. Chief Bender, with the natural Indian instinct, is about the craftiest. Joe Wood in his prime, also Joe Bush when with the Athletics, closely pressed Walter for the speed honors. Ed Walsh and Christy Mathewson possessed remarkable control, and Eddie Plank for his observation and knowledge of batters probably wasn't surpassed, but for the best pitcher in baseball I'll string along with Walter Johnson.

Who Do You Think is the Best Ball Player?

Unhesitatingly I would say Ty Cobb. I won't attempt to describe him. You all know him. The most conspicuous figure in the game for the past twenty years, whose wonderful natural ability, indomitable spirit, courage and aggressiveness all have assisted to raise him to heights never reached by any other ball player. The offensive side of the game has always been his forte. As in football, a good offense is a good defense, so it seems Ty has applied himself to baseball. Keep the other fellow guessing what you are going to do. Worry him, don't let him worry you, are mottoes typified by his work.

As a base runner, no one has ever come close to him. Defensively there are superiors to Cobb. Tris Speaker is second to no one when it comes to playing the outfield, but I will always believe, everything considered, Ty Cobb the greatest and best individual that ever wore a baseball uniform.

[On top of Eddie Collins's high tribute to Ty Cobb, you boys may be interested to know that in some people's opinions, Eddie is a better all-around baseball player than Ty himself. Next week Eddie Collins will answer some questions on base stealing. Collins, too, is a famous base thief.]

Eddie Collins, the greatest of all second basemen, who answers here questions boys have asked him about baseball, is now starting his nineteenth season of big league baseball. The average major leaguer usually reaches his highest point and vanishes in less than ten years. Collins has been in the big show almost twice that long and is still going strong.

one was in trouble or despair it would surely cheer them up. We have taken other papers and books that have clubs attached to them, but I've never found any like yours. It's the best of all.

Please do write to me soon.

Yours lovingly,
[Signed]
ELOISE JEFFCOAT,
Santa Paula, Cal.

Thank you dear, for the praise of my club. After all, there is one thing manifest in it, which, perhaps the others lack, though it is not right to draw critical comparison; perhaps my boys and girls reflect a little more love, a little more compassion than the average organization, and that, after all, is the hub upon which all good things turn. Please write again; I enjoyed your letter so much.

Dearest Aunt Dolly:

Will you please send us three more badges and enroll the names of Miss Georgia Thomas, Master Billy Boyd and Master Mitchell Boyd?

Now for a formal introduction: We represent The Acorn Club, and Eleanor S. Boyd is our president. She is already a member, but we need badges, so please send us some. We are a wide-awake branch of your big jolly club, so watch out for our activities. We mean to try for nearly everyone of your contests, so beware!

Lots of Love, from

THE ACORN CLUB.

Welcome to our new branch club! I like your name and am sure you will have just heaps of fun forming your circle and taking part in all the big doings. Do keep in touch with me, telling me what your plans are.

Lovingly yours,
AUNT DOLLY.

Dearest Aunt Dolly:

Here comes another branch known as the Us Girls' Club, a branch of the jolliest organization in existence. I thought it would be interesting to write in and tell you all we are doing.

The girls who wish badges are as follows: Florine Burgess, Willa Burk, Mildred Campbell, Beverly Downey, Elizabeth Durnham, Gertrude Johnston, Louise Len, Leona Miffin, Lula Taylor, Adella Russell and myself.

A few of the girls have drawn pictures and taken some snaps, such as the ones inclosed, and I wish you would print them if possible. Will you please send our club eleven badges to this address:

"Us girls' Club," Whittier, Cal., Box No. 315, R.F.D. No. 2.

I must hurry and close now, with lots of love, I am,

[Signed]
ALICE WARE.
Age 12 years.

How our club is growing! We now have over 250 branches scattered over the United States, and I guess we'll run that into thousands before we're through. Here's a warm welcome for the Us Girls' Club and best wishes for future happiness. Don't forget to write in and tell me what you are planning to do during the summer months.

Lovingly yours,
AUNT DOLLY.

CHRISTMAS
By Fayne Roberts
334 West Eighteenth Street, Los Angels.

Ah! Christmas is coming soon,
And Santa Claus will ride over the moon.
When everyone is sound asleep,
Into every window he will peep.
He will have so many nice things,
Perhaps you might hear something ring.
Well, I'll tell you it's just Santa
Claus coming.
For those are the buttons on his coat humming.

Into your room he will creep,
When everyone is sound asleep,
He will put a nice Christmas tree
down,
Without making a single sound.
Then out to his sled he will go,
For he wouldn't forget those toys
you know.
He has dolls for Molly and Polly,
And something for everyone that's jolly.

Then Christmas morning mother is busy as can be,
Cooking a turkey the finest you ever did see.
Plum pudding and cranberries will soon be done,
Then the Christmas dinner is begun.
Everyone eats until they're full,
Then out of their stockings their presents they pull.
Filled with everything good to eat,
Such as candy, nuts and sweets.

They play and play all day long,
Singing a Christmas song.
Until at last night comes on,
Then Christmas day has gone.
That joyous day of the year has passed away,
Next comes New Year's Day.

Dear Aunt Dolly:

Here's an impatient letter from a 20-year-old nephew. It may sound silly to a lot of people, our wanting a division for ourselves, but between you and me and the famous gatepost, I think we need it more than the little tots.

You've got such a red-blooded spirit in this club of yours it sends us flying into success before we know it, and I'll tell you right now we're mighty grateful. Funny isn't it, how we all want inspiration, something to keep us going?

If I feel myself lagging in spirit during the week, bang, I wake up on Sunday morning and the good old Junior Times puts the pep in me for another seven days. I don't know how you do it, but I'm speaking for seven other nephews all past the 19-mark. We're sure for your club first and last.

(Signed.) Affly. yours,
RALPH STROWBRIDGE,
1628 Tenth Street, Los Angeles.

Bless your heart, big nephew of mine, I'm ever so glad to welcome you into my club, and hope it fulfills all your expectations. It's a pretty big job, satisfying 100,000 boys and girls, but its one of the nicest on earth, I can tell you that.

Please thank the other enthusiastic members you spoke of, and ask them to write to me as I must place their names on our books. You forgot to tell me what you are doing. Please send me a line as I am tremendously interested in the progress my members are making.

WONDERFUL STORIES OF OZ

doors and the visitors entered the Throne Room!

First walked a gingerbread man, neatly formed and baked to a lovely tint. He wore a silk hat and carried a candy cane prettily striped with red and yellow. His shirt front and cuffs were white frosting and the buttons on the coat were licorice drops.

Behind the gingerbread man came a child with flaxen hair and merry blue eyes, dressed in white pajamas, with sandals on the soles of its pretty bare feet. The child looked around smiling and thrust its hands into the pockets of the pajamas. Close after it came a big rubber bear, walking erect on its hind feet. The bear had twinkling black eyes and its body looked as if it had been pumped full of air.

Following these curious visitors were two tall, thin men and two short, fat men, all four dressed in gorgeous uniforms.

Ozma's High Chamberlain now hurried forward to announce the names of the new arrivals, calling out in a loud voice:

"His Gracious and Most Edible Majesty, King Dough the First, ruler of the two kingdoms of Hiland and Loland. Also the Head Booleywag of his majesty, known as Chick the Cherub, and their faithful friend Para Bruin, the rubber bear.'

[Next week you shall hear who these strange guests really are, and of other "Important Arrivals" for the Princess Ozma's birthday party.—The Editor.]

GIRL RESERVES WIN HONORS

Girl Reserves of the Sentous Junior High School have been very active lately. The Seventh grade triangle recently had a swimming party at the Y.W.C.A. pool. Two girls won swimming honors, one for the first attempt to dive, and one for swimming thirty yards. The C.C.G. Triangle of the same club made candy at the regular meeting and sold it.

Plays and candy and sandwich sales are popular with the Junior Girl Reserves now for they are all working hard to earn money for the Rumanian Girl Reserves. All Los Angeles girl reserves have made a pledge to help support a girl reserve secretary in Rumania. There are several hundred Girl Reserves in Rumania who go to camp, play and sing, wear the blue triangle on their sleeves, and try to keep the code just as their sisters do in America.

It was the Rumanian Girl Reserves who met Miss Gertrude Gogin, who is Girl Reserve national executive at the train in Bucharest, last summer and sang "America, the Beautiful" for her in English, because they said they thought it was the favorite hymn of American girls.

(When girls do so much to be friendly it is not hard to believe that they, as Girl Reserves here say:

As a Girl Reserve I will be Gracious in manner.
Impartial in judgment.
Ready for service.
Loyal to friends.
Reaching toward the best.
Earnest in purpose.
Seeing the beautiful.
Eager for knowledge.
Reverent to God.
Ever dependable.
Sincere at all times.
I will try to face life squarely and to find and give the best.

The Wonderful Stories of OZ

By L. Frank Baum

DOROTHY RECEIVES THE GUESTS

WHEN Ozma asked the Wizard to give them an exhibition of his magic, he gladly assented. He took eight tiny white piglets from an inside pocket and set them on the table. One was dressed like a clown, and performed funny antics, and the others leaped over the spoons and dishes and ran around the table like race horses, and turned handsprings and were so sprightly and amusing that they kept the company in one roar of merry laughter. The Wizard had trained these pets to do many curious things, and they were so little and so cunning and soft that Polychrome loved to pick them up as they passed near her place and fondle them as if they were kittens.

It was late when the entertainment ended, and they separated to go to their rooms.

"Tomorrow," said Ozma, "my invited guests will arrive, and you will find among them some interesting and curious people. I promise you. The next day will be my birthday, and the festivities will be held on the broad green just outside the gates of the city, where all my people can assemble without being crowded."

"I hope the Scarecrow won't be late," said Dorothy, anxiously.

"Oh, he is sure to return tomorrow," answered Ozma. "He wanted new straw to stuff himself with, so he went to the Munchkin Country, where straw is plentiful."

With this the Princess bade her guests good-night and went to her own room.

Next morning Dorothy's breakfast was served in her own pretty sitting-room, and she sent to invite Polly and the Shaggy Man to join her and Button-Bright at the meal. They came gladly, and Toto also had breakfast with them, so that the little party that had traveled together to Oz, was once more reunited.

No sooner had they finished eating than they heard the distant blast of many trumpets, and the sound of a brass band playing martial music, so they all went out upon the balcony. This was at the front of the palace and overlooked the streets of the city, being higher than the wall that shut in the palace grounds. They saw approaching down the street a band of musicians, playing as hard and loud as they could, while the people of the Emerald City crowded the sidewalks and cheered so lustily that they almost drowned the noise of the drums and horns.

Dorothy looked to see what they were cheering at, and discovered that behind the band was the famous Scarecrow, riding proudly upon the back of a wooden Saw-Horse which pranced along the street almost as gracefully as if it had been made of flesh. Its hoofs, or rather the ends of its wooden legs, were shod with plates of solid gold, and the saddle strapped to the wooden body was richly embroidered and glittered with jewels.

As he reached the palace the Scarecrow looked up and saw Dorothy, and at once waved his peaked hat at her in greeting. He rode up to the front door and dismounted, and the band stopped playing and went away and the crowds of people returned to their dwellings.

By the time Dorothy and her friends had re-entered her room the Scarecrow was there, and he gave the girl a hearty embrace and shook the hands of the others with his own squashy hands, which were white gloves filled with straw.

The Shaggy Man, Button-Bright and Polychrome stared hard at this celebrated person, who was acknowledged to be the most popular and most beloved man in all the Land of Oz.

"Why, your face has bleen newly painted!" exclaimed Dorothy, when the first greetings were over.

"I had it touched up a bit by the Munchkin farmer who first made me," answered the Scarecrow, pleasantly. "My complexion had become a bit gray and faded, you know, and the paint peeled off one end of my mouth, so I couldn't talk quite straight. Now I feel like myself again, and I may say without immodesty that my body is stuffed with the loveliest oat-straw in all Oz." He pushed against his chest. "Hear me crunkle?" he asked.

"Yes," said Dorothy; "you sound fine."

Button-Bright was wonderfully attracted by the straw man, and so was Polly. The Shaggy Man treated him with great respect, because he was so queerly made.

Jellia Lamb now came to say that Ozma wanted Princess Dorothy to receive the invited guests in the Throne Room, as they arrived. The Ruler was herself busy ordering the preparations for the morrow's festivities, so she wished her friend to act in her place.

Dorothy willingly agreed, being the only other Princess in the Emerald City; so she went to the great Throne Room and sat in Ozma's seat, placing Polly on one side of her and Button-Bright on the other. The Scarecrow stood at the left of the throne and the Tin Woodman at the right, while the Wonderful Wizard and the Shaggy Man stood behind.

The Cowardly Lion and the Hungry Tiger came in, with bright new bows of ribbon on their collars and tails. After greeting Dorothy affectionately the huge beasts lay down at the foot of the throne.

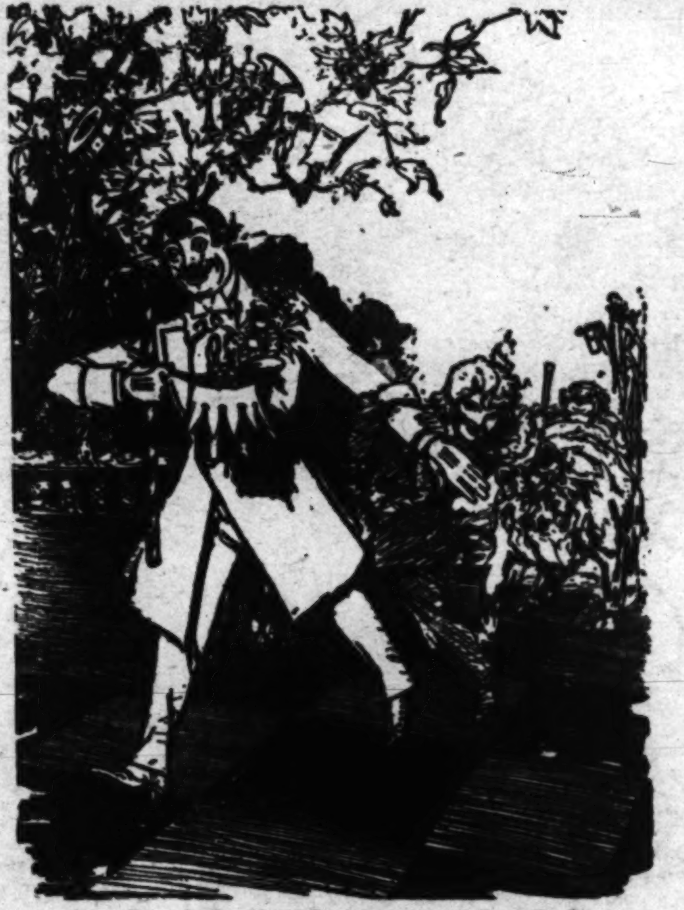
While they waited, the Scarecrow, who was near the little boy, asked:

"Why are you called Button-Bright?"

"Don't know," was the answer.

"Oh yes, you do, dear," said Dorothy. "Tell the Scarecrow how you got your name."

"Papa always said I was bright as a button, so mamma always called me Button-Bright," announced the boy.



King Dough, the Head Booleywag, and Para Bruin

"Where is your mamma?" asked the Scarecrow.

"Don't know," said Button-Bright.

"Where is you home?" asked the Scarecrow.

"Don't know," said Button-Bright.

"Don't you want to find your mamma again?" asked the Scarecrow.

"Don't know," said Button-Bright, calmly.

The Scarecrow looked thoughtful.

"Your papa may have been right," he observed, "but there are many kinds of buttons, you see, There are silver and gold buttons, which are highly polished and glitter brightly. There are pearl and rubber buttons, and other kinds, with surfaces more or less bright. But there is still another sort of button which is covered with dull cloth, and that must be the sort your papa meant when he said you were bright as a button. Don't you think so?"

"Don't know," said Button-Bright.

Jack Pumpkinhead arrived, wearing a pair of new white kid gloves; and he brought a birthday present for Ozma consisting of a necklace of pumpkin-seeds. In each seed was set a sparkling carolite, which is considered the rarest and most beautiful gem that exists. The necklace was in a plush case and Jellia Jamb put it on a table with the Princess Ozma's other presents.

Next came a tall, beautiful woman clothed in a splendid trailing gown, trimmed with exquisite lace as fine as cobweb. This was the important Sorceress known as Glinda the Good, who had been of great assistance to both Ozma and Dorothy. There was no humbug about her magic, you may be sure, and Glinda was as kind as she was powerful. She greeted Dorothy most lovingly, and kissed Button-Bright and Polly, and smiled upon the Shaggy Man, after which Jellia Lamb led the Sorceress to one of the most magnificent rooms of the royal palace and appointed fifty servants to wait upon her.

The next arrival was Mr. H. M. Woggle-Bug, T. E.; the "H. M." meanin Highly Magnified and the "T. E." meaning Thoroughly Educated. The Woggle-Bug was head professor at the Royal College of Oz, and he had composed a fine ode in honor of Ozma's birthday. This he wanted to read to them; but the Scarecrow wouldn't let him.

Soon they heard a clucking sound and a chorus of "cheep! cheep!" and a servant threw open the door to allow Billina and her ten fluffy chicks to enter the Throne Room. As the Yellow Hen marched proudly at the head of her family, Dorothy cried, "Oh, you lovely little things!" and ran down from her seat to pet the little yellow downy balls. Billina wore a pearl necklace, and around the neck of each chicken was a tiny gold chain holding a locket with the letter "D" engraved upon the outside.

"Open the lockets, Dorothy," said Billina. The girl obeyed and found a picture of herself in each locket. "They were named after you, my dear," continued the Yellow Hen, "so I wanted all my chickens to wear your picture. Cluck—cluck! come here, Dorothy—this minute!" she cried, for the chickens were scattered and wandering all around the big room.

They obeyed the call at once, and came running as fast as they could, fluttering their fluffy wings in a laughable way.

It was lucky that Billina gathered the little ones under her soft breast just then, for Tik-tok came in and tramped up to the throne on his flat copper feet.

"I am all wound up and working finely," said the clockwork man to Dorothy.

"I can hear him tick," declared Button-Bright.

"You are quite the polished gentleman," said the Tin Woodman. "Stand up here beside the Shaggy Man, Tiktok, and help receive the company.

Dorothy placed soft cushions in a corner for Billina and her chicks, and had just returned to the throne and seated herself when the playing of the royal band outside the palace announced the approach of distinguished guests.

And my, how they did stare when the High Chamberlain threw open the shaped affair, with sightless windows staring into the gloom. On the right of the front door was a spacious bay window, cracked and gaping like the rest. The remains of what was once a spacious porch, had rotted, while upstairs four empty rooms remained sealed to the world, with its walls mouldy and damp, topped by an attic, hung with many dim objects; strings of herbs, cobweb-covered trunks and odd chests. Thus it was, that the haunted house stood third from the end of the block, while at the other end, two snug structures gazed with seeming indifference upon their shabby neighbor. Their occupants, two small boys, known as Chuck Newton and Gopher Richards, were gazing out upon the haunted house with furrowed brows.

"An' here it is Halloween . . . an' no fun," Chuck complained. "There's one thing sure, I'm through with ticktacking windows, settin' wagons on top o' sheds an' th' like. I wanta pull somethin' new!"

"You don't say?" Gopher questioned sarcastically. "That sure is news, what we gonna do?"

Chuck dug a plump hand into his pocket. "There's T. N. T., and Bud, they've some ideas, maybe."

"Yeah, that's about all they have got." Gopher rumbled unhappily. "Spose we might as well find out."

The two boys rose in unision, ambling toward the lower end of the block, nearer the house of Thomas North Tillbury, whose father had lately joined the police force.

T. N. T. answered their whistle and stood solemnly debating the proposed plan. His eyes shone with anticipation, but soon dulled.

"Nope," he cautioned, "Dad's a policeman now—can't."

"Aw, be a sport," Chuck urged. "It ain't gonna hurt nobody."

"Nope," the loyal T. N. T. decided and strode into the house before temptation might overcome him.

His two friends sat in solitary discomfirture, faces darkened, lips pursed in sullen defiance.

"I got it," Gopher blurted suddenly.

"Got what?"

"Lissen, you know th' haunted house? We could hide in it and scare the policeman good."

"What policeman?"

"The one that stays there Halloween to keep us kids off. You dress up and look like a ghost, and me, I'd slip into sumpthin' dark and we could give that old policeman a fine scare."

"You're on," Chuck cried with a wide smile. "Better go look for that dark suit."

The two adventurers parted, hearts beating high, in anticipation of the mischief which would soon materialize.

The following afternoon, Chuck and Gopher met beneath the apple tree in his mother's garden.

"Got a black cat suit I wore to the party last year," Gopher announced happily.

"An' I'm going down to the cellar and get my sheet right now. Wanna come?"

"Where's your Ma?"

"Washing. Come on." Stealthily the two marauders slipped down the back stairway, switching on the light with fumbling fingers.

"Gosh, it was dark!" Chuck mumbled. "Here's my trunk;" give me a hoist."

"Won't your Ma hear us?"

"I tole you she was washin'; nobody can't hear above that music box."

The top of the trunk fell back with a groaning of rusty hinges. Gopher jumped aside, knocking down a pile of books.

"Gee! can't you make no more noise?" Chuck inquired wrathfully. "Here's a find," and he held up a mask, white and grinning, a death's head, used by some masquerader in past days.

"Couldn't be better," Gopher chuckled. "Here, lemme put it on. Now the sheet. So, how do I look?"

Chuck fought bravely in his corner, cold chills sprinkling his spine as the weird apparition danced through the cellar.

"You're fine," he acknowledged, wishing they hadn't planned this latest escapade.

"Say, I figger there's mystery in the air," Gopher declared solemnly. "You know what I saw today?"

"No," Chuck breathed with open mouth.

"Well, as I was turnin' the corner comin' back from Mrs. Riglests gettin' eggs for Ma. . ."

SHE'S BABY OF OUR HUMANE CLUB

Ruth Greenberg

1307 La Brea avenue, Hollywood, who has promised a life of faithful devotion to the kitty clasped closely in her arms.

"Yes," the unhappy Chuck questioned scarcely above a whisper.

"It seemed to me that two honorable gents, T.N.T., and Bud was tryin' to hide a roasterful of wet sawdust."

"That all?" his friend laughed shrilly. "That ain't nothin'?"

"It ain't?" Gopher shouted. "They're into mischief; there wuz a whole cartload full, and when they saw me they ducked."

"Here's a bean shotter and some beans," Chuck broke in with impatient reproof, ignoring Gopher's beliefs of disaster. "An' a thirty-foot rope; the shooter's my idea."

"Well?"

"The plan's this; you and me will go out as usual, tie doors and mark windows, then we'll go to our rooms and at eleven-thiry sharp make for the haunted house. Get me?"

"Yeah," Gopher agreed. But that sawdust..."

"Awe, you got sawdust on the brain," Chuck cried impatiently. "Ain't you got no more sense than that?" and the two adventurers with guilty smiles stalked into the sunlit garden, propounding additional pranks as they went.

At 9 o'clock that night, after their mothers had called them more than once, Gopher and Chuck apparently retired to their rooms. Shoes were taken off and dropped noisily upon the floor as a sign of weariness. Beds creaked, then silently the two boys crept out to their windows, slipping a piece of rope, tied to the door over the sill. Silmultaneously they reached the ground, damp with fog, staring in a woe-begone manner at the haunted house across the way.

"What time is it?" Chuck asked in a husky voice.

"Search me."

"S-spooky sort of—huh?"

"Sort of—yeh," Gopher admitted grudgingly. "Your Ma and Pa in bed?"

"Yeah; is yours?"

"Yeh."

No further conversation could possibly be kindled, so silence reigned long and heavily. The night was black, with whisps of heavy fog circling the ground. It was still too, with a breathless sort of quiet that enable one to count their heartbeats. Reluctantly they move toward the coffin-shaped house.

"We goin' upstairs?" Chuck asked, as they crept up the dark stairs.

"Naw; what's th' use," Gopher answered with a gulp.

"Say, what's that?" Chuck asked, in high voice, as a wailing shriek cut through the night.

"That?" his friend asked, fighting for breath. "Why, that ain't nothin' but a—hoot owl."

Chuck smiled weakly. "Sure," he agreed, "so it is."

"Might as well sit here," he suggested, "ole chairs all fallin' to pieces."

"Yeh," Gopher whispered. "Did you see a light?"

"Naw, that was Ma's porch. Say, don't put that black suit on yet, it ain't time."

The boys fell silent, conversation becoming a burden. Hours, it seemed, dragged by in painful suspense, broken only by the rattling of a shingle as it fell to earth. They rose mutely, clutching each others hands.

"Say——you?" Gopher asked in nervous anger. "Are you awake?"

"Whatta take me for?" the wrathful Chuck asked. "Come on let's dress up. They bumped elbows in the dark and jumped alertly aside.

"What's that?" Gopher breathed.

"What?"

"Sumpthin' touched me."

"Me too—golly!"

"Musta been you."

"Was'nt."

"Musta."

"Hush . . . . There's someone comin'."

The boys shrank close together, hearts beating like trip hammers, waiting for the fatal specter to appear.

"Ain't nothin'," Chuck ventured. "Pshaw! gimme th' sheet."

Moments passed while, they draped themselves in their hoods and masks. Gopher backed away from the trailing figure. Then slowly, persistently, a small sound came to their ears. With a frightened cry of alarm, Chuck threw his arms wildly around the shaking Gopher, while a gray form scurried across the floor.

"Rats," they breathed in quick relief. "Gee! but I wish that policeman was here."

"Say, do you believe in ghosts?" Chuck asked anxiously, not relinquishing his hold.

"Naw, ain't no such thing... Pst...there's the policeman."

A remnant of their old nerve returned at the actual prospect of tormenting the law, so Gopher let a low giggle escape him.

"That'll bring him," Chuck whispered mischieviously, and smiled as he heard heavy footsteps come up the porch steps.

The policeman halted angrily. Every year some prank was played in the haunted house, but he'd show them. New blood was on the beat; he pushed open the creaking door and paused, hand clutching the knob. Something white and effervescent floated through the archways. Its gowns trailed into nothingness, its skeleton face grinned at him in a terrifying manner.

"Hey you," he gurgled, but backed into the pathway, unable to muster his courage.

The white-clothed specter leaped with joy, while Gopher followed him to the window. Their faces were aglow with triumph—two boys had outwitted a man—then suddenly they beheld the policeman dashing down the street, his cap rolling through the weedy garden.

ENTERED IN OUR CURLS' CONTEST

Wanda Mae Frazier

Her home is in Bisbee, Ariz., and she is just over 2 years of age.

Gopher mysteriously disappeared with a warning cry, and Chuck, numbed with fear, turned, perceiving a white mass, which moved as the clouds, varying its shape, the size of its head and teeth, its body, swollen one moment, then diminished to the size of a thread.

"Mommer!" Chuck sobbed and leaped out the window, jumping fences and hedges at an alarming rate. Not until he was safely installed in his own bed, with sundry covers piled upon his head, did he draw a breath of relief.

Down in the cellar of the haunted house, Bud and T.N.T. rocked in silent mirth.

"That was some plan of yours, T.N.T., to build a smoke fire out of wet sawdust and let it go up through that hole. Guess we fixed 'em plenty—huh?"

"You said it," Bud chuckled. "Golly! how Chuck did run."

here shortly to take the horse away, and I doubt whether or not I can unload the wagon alone in time."

They all pitched in and took the baskets off, then Agnes piled them up, the pears first. When she had finished, she stepped back to let the children see her handiwork.

"Why, it is a big bear!" they all exclaimed, "how wonderful."

The Italian girl next took the apples, and with these built a tower, much to the delight of the small audience.

"It must be great to be a fruit lady, a coachman and an artist all in one," Augusta finally got out, her eyes as big as saucers. "I'd like to be as smart as that."

Agnes smiled and took out of a basket a different kind of fruit. "This is round, firm and with soft down on its cheek—it's—it's—a peach!"

"Right," shrieked the small audience, dancing around delightedly.

"— And this," coming to the last one of the lot, having named grapes, oranges, pears, apples, bananas, etc., "is—let me think—"it it has two knobs on it—the skin is round and long in shape, and is rough—I'll bet it's a lemon, is that right?"

"A 100 per cent Agnes, every one correct," they all chorused.

Somebody said that in every seeming calamity, there is always a good advantage, and so it was in this little Italian girl's case.

Now Agnes changed money just by the sense of touch, and could tell the difference in an instant. Many people traded at her stand, most of whom she knew, but one day there came a stranger who purchased a dozen pears and gave the blind girl a half-dollar. She felt it and knew immediately that it was a 50-cent piece, but what a queer feeling one!

The next day the same man came to the little stand, only in a large machine, and bought the customary pears, giving Agnes another half-dollar. Three times he came and Agnes grew suspicious, for the money didn't feel like the genuine to her sensitive fingers.

The fourth time, the Italian girl had big Tom Burke, the Irish policeman, stand just inside the door, out of sight, so he might get a peek at this man, and, sure enough, when the fellow was in the act of buying, Tom stepped quietly out of the store, put his hand on the man's shoulder and said in a slow voice, "Well, Weio it's a dangerous game trying to palm counterfeit on a poor little lady who is battling the world honestly, and it's a poor excuse of a man you are for it." Then to Agnes, "Agnes, colleen, call the station."

The little Italian girl now has a larger store on the same corner, a gift of gratitude by the State for detecting the lawbreaker, Daniel Weid, who for four years had been a thorn in the side of the government by circulating both large and small spurious money.

Her small bambino has his mother close by him all the time, for some one else now tends the store, although Agnes goes there every day to smile and talk to the little friends.

Dearest Aunt Dolly:

I would just love to join your club. We get The Times every day and I can't hardly wait to get the book open to read your adorable page. I believe if any-

MORE ABOUT OUR MAY FESTIVAL

the celebration. Due to traffic conditions we do not deem it wise to make long trips covering outlying districts, so have requested the two smaller institutions to bring their children to the larger institutions' grounds.

May 3, 11 a.m., we will present a new program for the benefit of the kiddies in the Orthopedic Hospital-School, repeating a like revue at the Children's Hospital at 3 p.m.

Once again we extend our invitation to all Junior Times members whom we earnestly hope will do their part by being present, acting as host and hostess to the little shut-ins.

No end of precautions have been taken to safeguard our guests at street crossings, an extra squad of policemen having been called out to assist in handling the traffic. All children will be helped to and from cars, while a large committee of Times men will be on hand to see that things run smoothly within the grounds, so remember our invitation is a sweeping one, welcoming every child who is a Junior Times member into our merry midst upon this two-day fun-feast.

We are planning a parade in which both the Boy Scouts and Western Rangers will take part, as well as a long procession of banner-covered automobiles. Remember, your machine must bear the sign "Junior Times" upon it, or we will not allow you within our lines. Jazz music, dancing and laughter, gallons of punch and iced drinks, barrels of cookies and plenty of time for everyone to get acquainted, that's what's scheduled for May 2 and 3, so if you haven't a badge, which represents $5 worth of refreshments and entertainment, you had best secure one at once. Buttons may be had on the third floor of The Times Building, editorial department any day from 2:30 to 6 p.m., so drop in, ask for one, then be sure to come to the big party, for this is the first time the real Aunt Dolly stars will be presented to the public at large.

Also remember our contests, both art and literary, are going ahead with undiminished ardour. Fascinating new prizes are awaiting those who open the gates of fame, so do not be a laggard. Perhaps you, too, may win a cash prize, gold fountain pen, stick pin or lovely vanity case, lined in cream yellow. The uncertainty of a contest is what makes the fun, so reach for your pen and pencil; what others have done, you can.

Stories should not exceed 700 words in length, must be written in ink, on one side of paper only, and if possible typewritten. Serials are not acceptable. Pictures must be done in black and white only, on bristol board and never folded or creased. Remember articles on interesting subjects, jokes, rhymes, cooking recipes, household hints, all have a place in our page and are as eagerly accepted as manuscripts, so hurry up you older juniors, give up something worth while next week. With summer approaching, why not send in garden hints, what to do in vacation, and thrift arguments. What plan is safest to follow if you would put a dollar aside?

Here are some suggestions that should give you a wide field to work in, and yet be of interest to your many cousins. It may also surprise you to know that we are way past the 100,000 mark in club memberships. So let's set a new pace; let's add 5000 more and break the world's record. Write today, joining the happiest, most active most useful, joyous club in existence. You'll find your Aunt Dolly a pal, a friend that's true blue, one who'll help solve any problem brought her.

A smile buys your badge—another wins your membership—opening the door to sunshine and happiness!

Also, don't forget that we will have an important announcement soon regarding our curls contest. See next Sunday's issue of The Junior Times.

VERY SIMPLE

"With all due deference, my boy, I think our English custom at the telephone is better than saying 'Hello!' as you Americans do."

"What do you say in England?"

"We say: 'Are you there?' Then, of course, if you are not there, there is no use in going on with the conversation."

CLUB'S NOW AFTER WORLD'S RECORD

JUNIOR ORGANIZATION PASSES HUNDRED THOUSAND MARK; SURPRISES COMING

Thought for This Week
BY JACK BEAUCHONT,
Goldfield, Nev.

A man may build himself a city of gold, and gather the riches of Croesus, but it will avail him nothing in the end if he has not built on a fair, square foundation. Thieves may steal your hoardings away, but nobody can deprive you of peace and happiness if earned the right way.

Club Motto
Love, Truth, Courage.

Those who are interested in our big Maytime festival, scheduled as the two-day fun-feast, will be glad to hear that our cast of Times players includes such juvenile stars as Master Newton Hall, clever 10-year-old character actor, of both screen and stage fame. His golden-haired partner, Thelma Dell Daniels will also take part, while True Boardman, our own George Cohen, who attracted the attention of Julius Bernheim of Universal City, will present a novel sketch.

So full is our program with jingling music and tripping measures it is hard to choose the headliners, for each and everyone seems to have won an equal share of glory.

The adorable Loomis Twins, curly headed, 6-year-old youngsters, will be a never-ending delight with their clever version of Mr. Gallagher, Mr. Shean and many other topical hits, to say nothing of Luis Arnold, beautiful Spanish dancer and Emmalou Gregory, one of the Aunt Dolly stars, who does "Down East" stuff with finished art. Her every gesture is a laugh-getter, as will be the twenty numbers booked for each performance, so you, who would join in our merriment must not fail to be present at the following institutions on the dates given in tabloid form below:

May 2, at 11 a.m. we will play the Maude B. Booth Home for Boys and Girls, inviting as our guests, the youngsters from the Strickland Home, and as many Junior Times members as can be accommodated upon the grounds. Fruit punch, cookies, cakes, orangeade and candy will be served to all wearing our red and white club button. This also will admit them inside the lines, so that they may witness the big vaudeville show.

May 2, 3 p.m., our joy-makers will visit the Los Angeles Orphan Asylum, extending a similar invitation to the Children's Home Society, and our club members who are more than welcome to attend

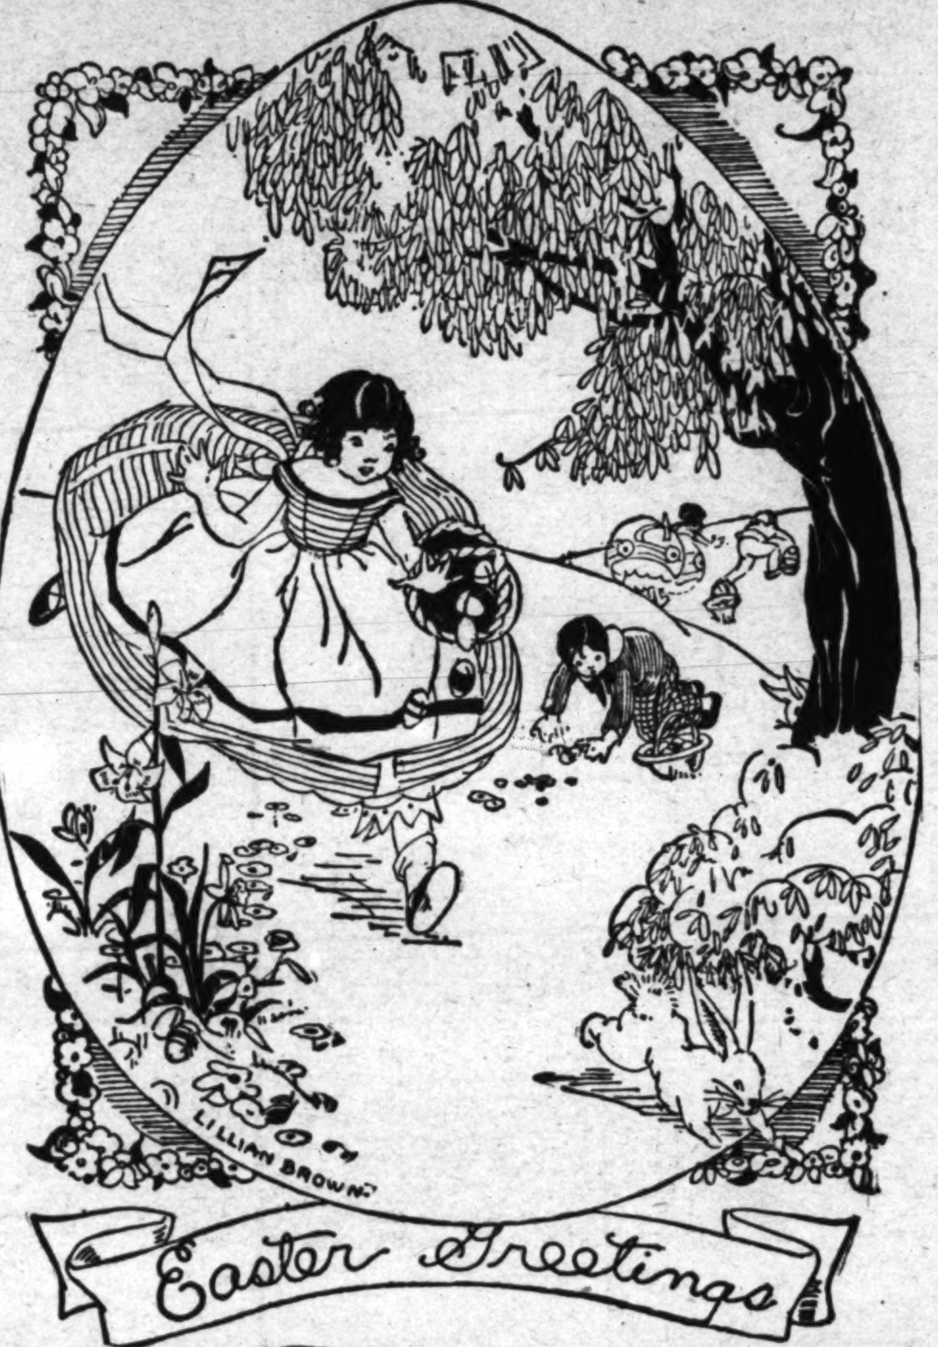
An Easter Greeting Card for You to Color



The Easter Greeting card above which shows the old favorite custom of having a colored egg hunt on Easter morning, will be a very nice remembrance for one of your family or a little friend in the neighborhood today if you mount and color it. Cut it out, then paste it on cardboard the same size.

When you color press lightly on your crayons so the colors will be dainty. Make the small flowers in the corners pale pink and blue with green stems. Make the ground in the picture green and the sky light blue. The little girl in the foreground has a lavender dress. The flowers in her hair should be lavender and yellow. Then color the dress of the little girl in the distance pink. The boy with her should be given a yellow suit. Make the baskets brown and the eggs all sorts of gay colors.

CANDY TOWN

From Virginia Ruth Howland, 11 years of age, 354 Cudahy, Huntington Park, Cal

When you enter the gates of Candy Town,
You buy a ticket from a nougat-bar clown;
You go over a bridge of peanut brittle—
It's just the size—not too big nor too little.
A butter scotch guide will come to you
To show their town and their candy zoo.
You go over a taffy avenue,
But you'll be lucky if you ever get through.
The streets are crowded with automobiles
With divinity tops and divinity wheels.
When you enter the little candy zoo,
You first see a fig bar kangaroo.
Next you find, to your surprise,
A monkey who has caramel eyes.
Then you'll find a gangling giraffe
So full of suckers he'll make you laugh.
The flags are all of peppermint,

MYSTERY STORY WINS CASH PRIZE

E. HARRIET WEAVER'S WORK IS PRAISED BY AUNT DOLLY IN MAKING AWARD

This week an unusually entertaining mystery story, dealing with a haunted house and cobweb-covered attics, has claimed our club prize. The author, Miss E. Harriet Weaver of Lomita, Cal., neglected to state her age, but Aunt Dolly wishes to extend her congratulations and urge her to further effort in the literary field. Anyone who can write a yarn like this should have no difficulty in gathering new laurels.

T. N. T.

By E. Harriet Weaver, Lomita, Cal.

On a quiet avenue in a certain western town, a two-story frame house stood, battered and haunted. Strangely enough, it exhibited no floating forms that crept down the front stairs, no bells rang at midnight, no bats flapped their wings noisily against the weatherboarding. Nevertheless the haunted house was viewed with doubt and forebodings, and those who were able, took a more lengthy route homeward so as to avoid viewing its dismal structure.

Those who knew it best, described it as a yawning coffin-

AUNT DOLLY'S COOKING CORNER

NUT KISSES

For nut kisses use one egg white, one cupful sifted brown sugar, one cupful chopped walnut meats, one-fourth teaspoonful vanilla.

Beat the egg white very stiff, stir in the sugar, nuts and vanilla and drop on a buttered pan, making the kisses two inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

SEA FOAM FUDGE

Three cups of sugar, one-half cup corn syrup, one-quarter cup of boiling water, whites of two eggs, one-half cup chopped nuts, one teaspoonful vanilla. Boil sugar, syrup and water until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Beat egg whites until stiff. Pour the cooked mixture gradually over the beaten egg whites, beating the mixture constantly. When the mixture is thick and creamy, add the vanilla and nuts. Pour into buttered pan.

PECAN SURPRISE

Make a filling of two cups of granulated sugar and one-fourth cup of water. Flavor with a drop of rose flavoring. Boil until it thickens, or will form a ball in water; then remove from the fire, and beat until creamy. When it can be handled, turn it into a greased baking board, and knead like bread. Then take maraschino cherries and shape a tiny ball of the filling around each. Press four pecan nut meats about each ball until the filling is completely hidden.

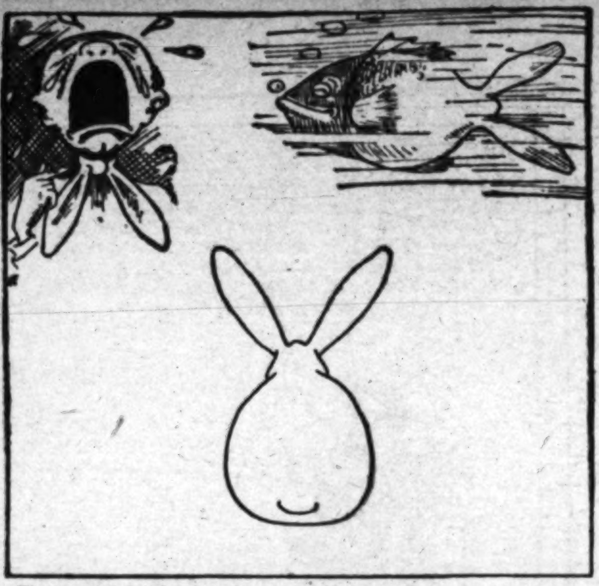
NOUGET BARS

Grease a clean, bright tin pan lightly with olive oil, cover the bottom with a mixture of almonds, English walnuts, pecans, hazel nuts and Brazil nuts. Melt one pound of sugar by stirring it in an iron saucepan over the fire. When liquid is straw-colored, pour it over the nuts in the pan. When cool mark into bars.

MAPLE SUGAR CARAMELS

Break into small pieces one pound of maple sugar and mix one pint of cream. Put into a kettle and cook until it sugars around the edge of the kettle, and hardens on ice. Stir constantly and add prepared nuts. Pour into flat tins and cut into square.

FUN FOR CARTOON MAGICIANS



The magician who can draw a rabbit out of an empty hat is very smart. But who ever saw a magician draw a hat out of a rabbit? Notice above the back view portrait of an Easter bunny. Now it's a simple matter to add a few lines to it and thereby change it to a hat. Try it and prove that the conjurer isn't the only one who can perform tricks.

There are lots of other things you can make using the rabbit outline. Turn it so you see it from every angle, then draw what it suggests to you. The rabbit shape was a starter for the two pictures at the top. Study them, draw your own. Now you're a magician yourself with a lead pencil for your wand!

not old enough, so will you please give me your opinion.

Lovingly,

[Signed] "UNCERTAIN."

Dearest niece of mine, I cannot help but agree with your mother; you are certainly not old enough to go about with the boys, and while it may seem hard, and out of reason, will net you a big gain in the end. Man has, ever since the world began, sought that which eluded him; he has always looked up to woman, and always must. This training begins in the nursery, and is of utmost importance to your happiness; do not be too free with your company, and the boys will think twice as much of you.

Experience will soon teach you that shows and dances are not the proper place to go alone, so rest assured that whatever advice has been given by your mother and myself was proffered in a spirit of love and understanding.

Devotedly yours,

AUNT DOLLY.

Aunt Dolly Dear:

Of all the interesting features you have in your page, I love the Question Box best of all. In it I seem to find a solution for every trouble that arises, so am coming myself with a seeming problem.

Do you think it would be all right for me to quit school at the age of 14 and go to work? My mother and father are in distressing circumstances; there are eight of us, and as I am the oldest feel I should take the step and help them along. Perhaps I could do clerical work, or be a nurse girl, or something like that. Our life is being robbed of even the barest necessities, so would appreciate an early answer.

[Signed] "DISTRESSED."

Bless your heart, what a brave little soldier you are to want to step out into the world and shoulder your part of the burden, but keep this point in mind: Education is the greatest asset you possess, so try if possible to finish your schooling. Why not speak to your parents about this problem, as their wishes should be the ones to guide you in real activity, but my advice is to hold out until you have completed your full course, then seek work in some reputable business firm.

Why not study shorthand at night, and typing? You could find work after school, I am sure, that would be of benefit to you. If there is anything further I can do to help solve your problem please do not hesitate to call upon me. Lovingly yours,

AUNT DOLLY.

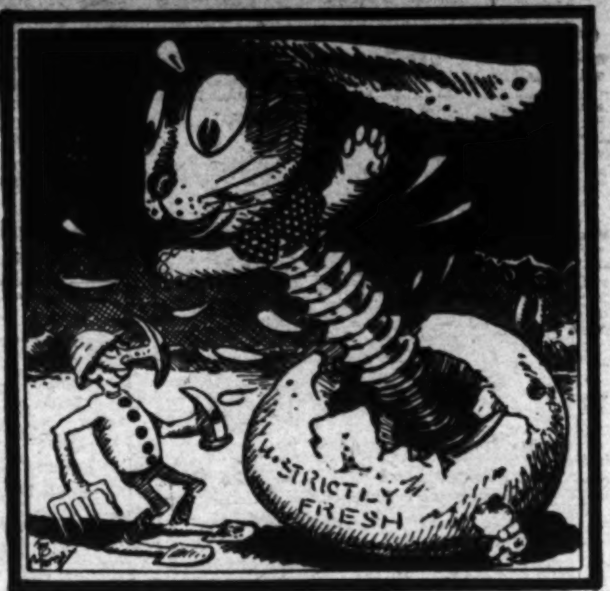
IN SNOPPYQUOP LAND



THE MONGOLIAN EASTER EGG

This is what happens when you get fresh with an elderly egg. Prof. Sherman Shovelfoot, the well-known explorer, discovered what he thought was a dinosaur's egg in the Mongolian desert. Eggs were his favorite dessert so he proceeded to tap at it trying to open it. "A hard-boiled prehistoric hen must have laid this egg," thought Sherman, and just then he found the combination and the whole thing cracked open with a bang. Whoo-ish! up shot a strange creature—a sort of Jack in the box, on a spring. In fact, it was a Spring Jack Rabbit, feeling full of pep, and grateful to Sherman Shovelfoot for letting him out.

"Happy Easter!" said Jack, "It's been awful lonesome in there all these millions of years. Thanks for hatching me out."

"But I haven't any hatchet," said Sherman, "I've got—"

"Oh, what a bum joke!" interrupted Jack, and he started chasing Sherman to the eastern coast of China, thus originating "Sherman's March to the Sea."

SAFETY FIRST

By Ailene Anderson,
R. R. box No. 20, Huntington Park, Cal.

Are you taught when going to school
To always obey the "Safety Rule?"
One morning when it was frightful late,
To school I thought I'd quickly skate.
When going across a crowded street
Some fast-going cars I chanced to meet.
I thought I'd hurry,
But got in a flurry . . .
All I could see were cars . . . and cars . . .
And millions of flashing brilliant stars. . . .
You see, I didn't obey the "Rule,"
So now I must stay home from school!

"AGNES AND HER FRUIT-STAND"

By Edith Anderson, Age 13 Years,
6529 Hargis Street, Los Angeles

Everybody knew Agnes, who kept the fruitstand at the corner, and knew that she was blind, too. It was a hard fight for this little Italian girl with the black-eyed, sweet little baby, whose daddy had died not so long ago, a hard fight which was softened by the cheery "Hellos" of every passer-by. Even the Irish milkman who left the pint of milk at her step would always sing out, "The top o' the marnin' t' ye, Agnes; how's that black-eyed rogue of yer's?" Then she would point out the baby, who seemed to know them all, and smile at its gurgling and crowing.

The baker's wife next door would exclaim as she caught sight of the hot, fresh loaves that the blind girl piled up in the case, "Ach, it does mine heart goot to see idt so neat!"

The poet across the street would call down from his five flights up, "What a thing of beauty!"

The hungry and shabby artist would thrust his hands into his pockets and sigh, "How she can mix the colors!"

No one but the children said anything about Agnes's blind eyes, yet they referred to them in an innocent way that caused no regretful feelings.

One morning very early there were three small girls grouped around Agnes's stand waiting for the proprietress to appear. Soon they heard the clack clack of the horses' hoofs upon the street, and sure enough, along came the blind girl, the bambino, and her cart just full to running over with different kinds of fruit.

"Good morning, my early birds, you won't catch any worms in my fruit today, for I have the best in the market," she laughed, showing her beautiful white teeth, then proceeded to spring lightly to the ground.

"My, but you handle your horse well," said Lucy.

"It isn't me," replied Agnes, "it is the horse."

"May we help you to unload?" asked Katherine.

"Why, yes, if you wish," smiled Agnes, "the stable boy will be

ARKANSAS TOWNS

Each of the four pictures represents in a rebus way the name of a place to be found on the map of Arkansas.

A CHARADE

Though small I am, yet, when entire,
I've force to set the world on fire;
Take off a letter, and 'tis clear,
My space will hold a herd of deer.
Dismiss a second and you'll find,
I once contained all human-kind.
What is the word?

RIDDLES TO GUESS

When is a sailor like a corpse?

When is charity like a top?

What is the most difficult European river to cross?

When does a chair become cross?

CONCEALED GEOGRAPHY

Find in each of the following sentences the name of a place in the State of Minnesota:

Why is Big Ben so named?

While the farm-hands chat, fields burn up.

Ready-made liabilities were inherited with the business.

In the rush for dinner John broke his leg.

A GREAT ROMAN ORATOR

Take a large continent, add a prohibition, add an antelope with a horse-tail, subtract a fringe of hair, add a mollusk with a spiral shell, subtract a finger-end and the resulting letters will spell AFRICANUS.

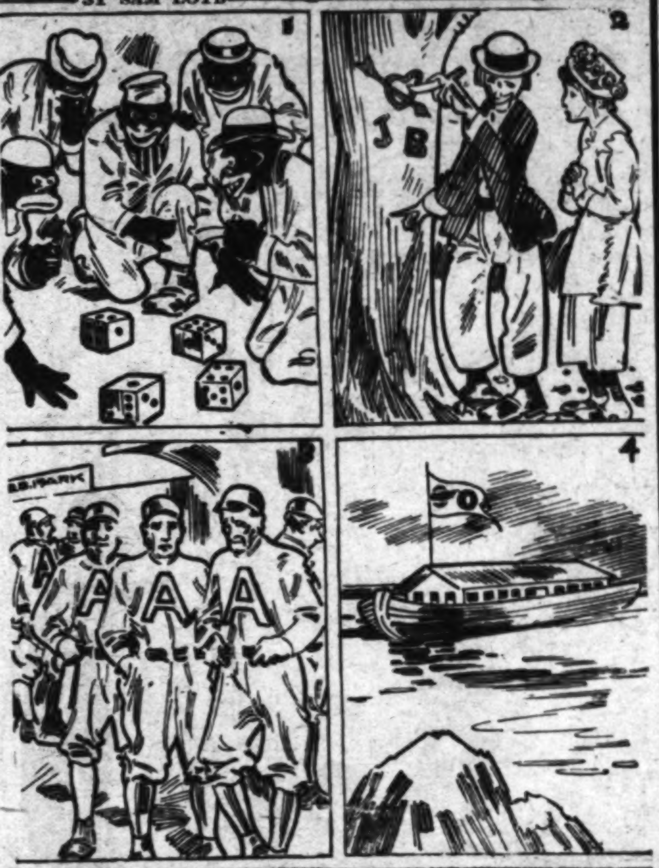
SELLING A CAYUSE

Texas Pete tried to sell Montana Ike a cayuse. Ike was willing to do business on a basis of $8 less than asking price, and Pete would knock off only 20 per cent, so there remained a difference of $7 between them, and the steed failed to change hands.

Can you tell how much Pete asked for his animal?

Berlin Center of Air Service

Berlin is the center of all German flying services. Three German routes are now operating regularly an international service from that city. One leads to Munich and Geneva; a second goes to Budapest and Constantinople, and a third to Moscow. Scandinavian airplanes on their way to Italy and France also make stops at Berlin, and there is a regular line between Berlin and London.



ANSWERS TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLES

'REBUSES FROM THE GARDEN'

(1.) Peony (P on knee.) (2.) Tulip (tool IP.) (3.) Sweet Peas. (4.) Dog Rose.

"A CHARADE"

The word STRATAGEM.

"RIDDLES TO GUESS"

(1.) The piano-forte. (2.) In cider (inside her.) (3.) Because he is on the lookout for suits to press. (4.) Nine cents.

"CONCEALED GEOGRAPHY"

(1.) Alpena. (2.) Fenton. (3.) Ford. (4.) Ironwood. (5.) Niles.

"HIGH ALTITUDE"

POT plus A plus TOAD minus POTATO plus IRON plus DRIVE plus TACKS minus RIVET leaves ADIRONDACKS.

"A FISH STORY"

The puzzle turns on the catch statement that the scales "weigh nine pounds," meaning they will weigh anything up to nine pounds. The weight of the fish without scales must have been two and a half pounds. Plus the scales, one-half pound, plus nine and one-half pounds, the weight of the weighing scales, gives a total of twelve and one-half pounds, equal to one-tenth the weight of the 125-pound boy.

Daily Picture Puzzle

Complete the drawing by tracing from figure one to two and so on to the end. Then use your crayons or water-colors and see how nicely you can color it.

EASTER SYMBOLS

The Greeks, Persians and Egyptians looked upon the eggs as a symbol of hope and resurrection, and thus we see how it came to be associated with the Christian festival of joy, Easter, when nature once more awakens from her sleep and everything seems reborn.

The fish was always regarded by early races as a symbol of the coming Saviour of mankind, and so, naturally, the first Christians adopted it as a sign of their faith.

The hare had a place in the very earliest mythology, and the Goddess of Dawn, Ostera, is said to have possessed a sacred hare. This animal is said to have laid colored eggs, thus explaining the origin of the custom, which still survives, of painting eggs at Eastertide.

Cheery Rainy Days in Japan

With the true Japanese instinct for artistic effect they do not allow even a rainy day to be drab and dull. They carry paper umbrellas instead of cloth ones; but the paper is a very tough kind and is heavily oiled to shed water. They are made of all colors; and a rainy day street scene in a Japanese city is a very cheering thing to view, by reason of these bright-colored umbrellas.

"THE CASE OF THE REMARKABLE HUSBAND"

A GREAT HUMAN STORY BY CLARENCE BUDINGTON KELLAND

New Giant Pentstemons

A SPLENDID NOVELTY FROM THE OTHER SIDE

A few seasons ago we imported from Europe a magnificent strain of new giant flowered pentstemons which far surpass in size and color series any varieties heretofore known and which we are now able to offer for the first time. The individual flowers are of enormous size, similar to gloxinias in shape, borne on spikes which attain a height of three feet and over. The plants bloom without intermission throughout the greater portion of the year.

Planted in either separate colors or mixed they produce a wonderful mass of color. The plants are perennial in nature and although a wonderful show may be obtained the first season of planting, they are even better the second year.

We have only a limited stock to offer this year.

ROSE DAWN: A very showy variety—in color quite distinct, rosy scarlet with penciled white throat.

AMETHYST: Delicate lavender with lighter shadings.

VENUS—Pure white with lovely pink margin.

FLAMINGO: Beautiful rich pink, merging to white.

KING ARTHUR: Deep rosy scarlet. A splendid variety.

APPLE BLOSSOM: The name well describes the flower. White ground merging to pink at the outer edge of the petals.

SIR GALAHAD: Deep carmine.. A beautiful variety.

DIANA: One of the most showy and beautiful of this new race of pentstemons; bright carmine.

PURPLE ISLE: Delicate mauve merging to rich purple.

PRICE—25c each. $2.00 per dozen.

(When ordering by mail ten cents extra per dozen is required for postage)

HE CARRIES ART TO A CITY'S MASSES; OPPORTUNITY FOR TENEMENT CHILDREN

"A GREAT triumph for art in community life," was the manner in which Samuel S. Fleisher, wealthy Philadelphia manufacturer, characterized the decision of the Philadelphia award committe to make him the 1923 recipient of the annual prize of $10,000 given by Edward W. Bok for the most meritorious service performed by a Philadelphian within the year. The meritorious service which won for Mr. Fleisher was the work he has done in developing the artistic instincts of boys and girls through the Graphic Sketch Club, an institution which has received wide reputation through the work of artists who received their preliminary training there.

The club was founded twenty-five years ago by Mr. Fleisher for the purpose of placing artistic opportunity within the grasp of boys and girls who displayed appreciation of art and artistic ability. Night classes in art were started in the tenement district. There were no tuition charges for art studies; anyone who wished to study was welcomed. Five years later he was compelled to seek larger quarters. Recently Mr. Fleisher purchased an abandoned church parish house and adjacent college buildings to care for the ever-increasing number of those he benefited.

"Poor Need Opportunity"

MR. FLEISHER, who is described by the Philadelphia Bulletin as a "tall, good-looking man who appears more the typical business man than the dreamer of arts who has seen his dream come true," is a native Philadelphian and a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania. He is almost 50, but appears much younger.

The idea of such an organisation as the Graphic Arts Club came to him about the time he was starting upon his business career. As a young man, he observed that many people in the congested districts were shut off from opportunities to enjoy the beautiful things of life. One day as he was walking through the Italian and Jewish quarters he observed little knots of workers gather before colored prints in windows.

"I know," Mr. Fleisher said, "that these people instinctively loved beautiful things. They merely lacked opportunity to see them. I felt that given the opportunity, they would respond. So I thought, why not give them the opportunity to see these things of culture of beauty and of inspiration, in their own neighborhood, and in the congenial atmosphere of a place of recreation, rather than in some cold, formal mausoleum of art?"

More Than Art School

OUT of the idea came the founding of the club. It is not a charity, nor solely a school of art. It is a club, a community center, a place of recreation where those who love beautiful things may meet in a congenial atmosphere, where they may read, listen to the best of music, or ramble through rooms filled with art objects, which they are privileged to examine at will. If they desire they may attend classes in painting, sculpture, music, dancing, etching and designing. Those who are able to pay for instruction may do so; those who are not are equally welcome.

"All I wanted to do," Mr. Fleisher said, "was to give everyone a chance to express that inborn love of the beautiful which I know everyone possesses."

This same spirit of teaching everyone to love beauty also led Mr. Fleisher to found classes in comparative esthetics in the public schools. Another of his ideas is a plan whereby owners of private gardens are encouraged to send flowers into Philadelphia daily for distribution among the hospitals.

Artistic Training

"IT IS important to train children along artistic lines," Mr. Fleisher said. "And to train their hands is to train their ideas. If the hand can exert energy in one way it can exert it in another. It takes energy for a boy to throw a stone, and he throws it because his mind is trained in that direction. But if his mind is cultured, his hand executes something more artistic than throwing a stone."

Following receipt of the $10,000 prize, Mr. Fleisher announced that he would invest the money and use the income in awarding the prizes and helping students perfect themselves for greater service in their chosen field of endeavor.

ALMANACH DE GOTHA CEASES TO EXIST AFTER BEING PUBLISHED FOR 160 YEARS

FOLLOWING the fall of dynasties and the crash of thrones, the Almanach de Gotha, one of the longest-lived publications in the world, has gone out of existence.

This record of those born in the purple and of those others who have inherited or achieved nobility, so-called, has been printed annually for 160 years.

It appeared first when the ancestors of the parvenus of today were toilers; now it has joined the great army of ci-devants whose names it has recorded.

Contains Varied Information

The Almanach de Gotha for 1922, like predecessors, is a valuable little volume crowded with minutest information. In it one learns that Mouey Youssef, sultan of Morocco, has four sons—Mouley Idris, Mouley-el-Hassan, Mouley Mohammed and Mouley Abdesselam—not to speak of fifteen brothers, all of whom are named. On the other hand, it informs you that in 1921 Zanzibar exported £58.708 worth of elephants' teeth. The Almanach of 1923 contains the calendars of all the churches, even of the Chinese; the dates of the national fetes of all peoples, and admirable portraits of Pope Pius XI, the late President Harding; Charlotte, Grand Duchess of Luxemburg, and Frederick Ebert, president of the German reich.

It contains, too, the genealogies of the sovereign houses of Europe as well as those sovereigns who were dethroned in the nineteenth century and thus far in the twentieth; the 'genealogies of the mediatised houses of Germany'—such as Hohenlohe and Salm—who enjoy the right of equal birth with sovereign houses; and in the third part of the book the genealogies of other noble houses of Europe, such as Tallyrand-et-Segan, into which an American woman married. The names of many American women appear in the book; women who have been won in marriage by Frenchmen or Italians or Germans. Alas, after some of these American names appear the melancholy words "marriage dissous par divorce."

Enumerates World's High Officials

BESIDES the invaluable Almanach enumerates the high officials of all the states of the world; and of all the diplomatic and consular corps, and contains accurate statistics concerning each state even the smallest and least powerful. One can inform oneself that the Spanish Minister to The Hague is Senor Mendez de Vigo or learn all about the finances of Venezuela.

So for more than a century and a half the Almanach de Gotha has pursued its authoritative and instructive course; only in one year of its long life did it vary, 1808. On October 20, 1807, Napoleon wrote to Champagny, his Foreign Minister:

"The latest edition of the Almanach de Gotha is full of errors, no account having been taken of the changes wrought by me in Germany. Tell the minister for Gotha to call on you and instruct him that all this must be set right in the forthcoming edition."

Napoleon Ordered Edition Destroyed

CHAMPAGNY acted too late, so the French authorities seized and destroyed the first edition of the Almanach for 1808; each of the few copies that escaped is worth more than its weight in gold now. The second edition, rewritten in Paris, has for its frontispiece a portrait of Napoleon. Not possessing a pedigree, Napoleon was unwilling to advertise other people's pedigrees, so no genealogical tables appear in this edition.

The Almanach, it seems, got in financial difficulties in its old age. Before the announcement that it would be published no more, in 1921, the editors wrote of the many difficulties they had to contend with.

means of covering your tracks. My dear sir, believe an old hand at the game!"

Little by little Bernac's tone had changed, become sterner, rougher.

And Lucien d'Artois grew paler and paler.

"And I will tell you more," added the detective. "Suppose for an instant—it is only a supposition—that you are a culprit!"

"Very well, let us suppose that," said Lucien, a slight spasm contracting his mouth.

"Now, when an intelligent young man like you is guilty and recognizes Octave Bernac under the disguise of Monsieur Maubray, just at the moment when he has begun to make his explanations of 'mathematical crimes,' that young fellow would say to himself: 'I have made a mistake, I spoke of a flaw, and behold the flaw. That was a very foolish thing to say, and now the crime is discovered Bernac will, of course, think of me. I will be lost!' and as a matter of fact, he is lost and for him it is no surprise. But he says to himself, 'I will go step by step, I will go on purpose to provoke their suspicions, I will go out of my house ostentatiously with a small strong box badly wrapped, I will carry it to the house of my mistress. Of course they will come to see what is in it and then when they will find only trivial things, and as there will be nothing to confirm me at my home, they will leave me in peace.'

"That is, well played, only that Bernac played well also. He seemed to have fallen into the trap, to follow awkwardly, to have an air of doubt, and to make much of the box and its contents. It is then, however, that you have made your second error, the very greatest of all, the irreparable one. You have underestimated your rival."

Still Lucien tried to brazen it out.

"It seems to me, Monsieur——"

Bernac calmed him again:

"Do not excite yourself. Did I not tell you we would finish where we are? I observed that you knew of the vacant apartments in the house where the murder was committed. But I am of a very inquiring nature. Why, said I to myself, did not my man while waiting the turn of events, and so as not to leave any of the gold, hide part of the gold in the very house of his victim where it would be least expected to be found? If not in her very apartment at least somewhere in the building? Imagine, then, my dear sir, I was correct in my surmise. In the apartment directly below the one occupied by Madame Plan, part of the lock of the outer door was missing and under a mantel shelf I discovered 60,000 francs."

"And then?" cried a hoarse voice, and Lucien, who had risen, stood like an animal at bay.

"Then?" said Bernac, more and more calm and dictatorial, "the murderer, who, for some reason of his own, for several days has believed himself perfectly free and safe from suspicion, had the effrontery to return to No. 197 Rue Michel-Ange and visit the apartments, here, after sending the concierge on an errand. He procured the rest of the gold, which, my dear Monsieur d'Artois, you now have here!"

With a quick movement Lucien threw himself into the adjoining room and shut the door after him. Bernac, who knew the house was guarded, was not disturbed.

"A little advice, my dear sir," he called, "do not use a pistol."

But the other opened the door, and reappeared, livid, shaking but without firearms.

He stammered:

"You can arrest me. I have just taken poison. I have only ten minutes to live, one favor——"

"Ask it," said Bernac, his throat suddenly dry.

"Tell Huguette that it was my heart that gave out. The doctor told her I should live only six months longer."

"I will tell her," gravely answered Bernac.

Lucien fell as struck by lightning. Bernac bent over him. He opened his eyes in the throes of death, but, still conscious, he whispered, one question.

"May I ask, Monsieur Bernac, if I had not gone back there, you would certainly have had no cause to arrest me, would you?"

Octave Bernac, hiding his compassion, wished to give him one last consolation.

"My poor friend, you would have returned sooner or later. You would have found an irresistible attraction. Do not regret anything."

Then Lucien d'Artois, with a great convulsion, gave up his soul.

Retrospection

I didn't know just what 'twould be
To have to live apart from Thee;
I didn't know, I couldn't see—
That Thou art my Eternity.

I didn't know, I couldn't say
What gems were held in—"yesterday;"
How did I know I'd have to "pay"—
Why I thought it was only play—
Just like a silly holiday.

I didn't know, I couldn't see
That Life is just a symphony—
To be with Thee all harmony—
That Thou art my Eternity.

CLOCK IN OMAHA TICKED OFF TIME FOR WASHINGTON

A clock which was 21 years old when George Washington first saw the light of day, and from which the father of his country on several occasions later took the time, it is said, still is ticking away, in Omaha, and recording the seconds, minutes and hours, the days of the month, the phases of the moon and the rise and fall of the tides.

It is the property of Mrs. Carrie M. Peters. At her death it will descend to her oldest surviving male descendant, or in case none survives, to her daughter, Miss Hester H. Peters.

The clock, which was built by Felix Owen in York, Eng., in 1711, was purchased by Newton Peters, who seven years later came to America and settled in Jamestown, Va. A few years later, he with William Byrd, founded the town of Petersburg, Va. At his death in 1725, the clock descended to his son, Absalom, and on his death in 1760 to Zachariah Peters, later an officer in the American navy.

The clock was on exhibition at the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876 as the oldest of the grandfather type, of authentic record, with none to dispute its precedence for age. It was keeping time when Lexington and Concord were fought and within sound of the cannons' roar when the Revolution closed at Yorktown, October 19, 1781. It still keeps perfect time.

HELEN AND WARREN

"How many've you rung in on this thing?"

"No, no, it's a man! I couldn't catch his name—something like Ruthers."

"'Ruthers'? I don't know any 'Ruthers.'"

Stalking irately across the room, he snatched the receiver.

"Yes? . . . Oh, Carruthers! How are you? . . . Why, I'm not sure. A party has an option on it. I'll know tomorrow . . . Ten thousand . . . Oh, you know the house? . . . Didn't know you owned any lots out there . . . Sorry you didn't call me up sooner . . . Yes, I'll know by noon."

"Now! Now!" Helen caught his arm as he turned from the telephone. "That makes it all right, doesn't it? If Barton doesn't take it, he will."

"Yes, that's a bona fide offer. Said he owned some lots right near there."

"And if it hadn't been for me—and Pussy Purr-Mew, you'd have let Mr. Barton have it for ninety-five hundred! Wouldn't you?" fluttering about him. "Now be honest and admit you would."

"Guess I would," with a reluctant grin.

"Then I've saved you $500!" glowingly jubilant. "And all I got was a scolding. You make me feel too small for words."

"Now don't start rubbing it in! It worked this time, Kitten," grudgingly, "but don't try it again! You stick to your knittin'. Don't pull any more high finance stuff like that. Guess I can close a deal without any flim-flam frame-ups from you!"

JESVS OF THE EMERALD

Out of the past comes a whisper, faint as the echo of cathedral bells, but of such exquisite beauty that it shall be heard around the world!

A Rare Old Tale Retold by Gene Stratton-Porter

QUITE by accident, Mrs. Porter stumbled across a beautiful old tale of Jesus—a tale long buried in the mists of antiquity and forgotten by the world. Yet a tale so pregnant with beauty and meaning that it has endured through all the ages.

One of the greatest treasures of the Vatican is a priceless emerald upon which is etched, by one who knew Him, the perfect profile of Jesus. Behind this emerald there lurks a tale of startling beauty and significance—a tale which has for generations been hidden from the world.

It was while collecting material for a book on the Bible, that Gene Stratton-Porter discovered the story of the emerald. America's great novelist, who has written for millions of men and women of life and life's emotions, frankly admits that this simple old tale inspired her as she had never been inspired before.

"I was moved to the depths of my soul," she says. There came, one morning at two o'clock, a great, overwhelming inspiration—and Gene Stratton-Porter gave to the world a beautiful interpretation of what is unquestionably one of the world's rarest and most moving tales.

Here is a narrative of rich and compelling beauty, moulded into rhythmic verse to do justice to the tale itself. You will glimpse beneath the lines a flash of genius. You will see a prophecy pass through the pages like some swift and fleeting shadow. You will treasure "Jesus of the Emerald" as you have never treasured a book before.

And we have produced a book that does justice to this rare old tale. We offer you as a first edition, a book so beautiful that we take pride in it. The illustrations, by Edward Everrett Winchell, are in full color. The page decorations carry a message of their own.

You will cherish this book. It will grow more valuable as time goes on. This will probably be the only de luxe edition, published at great expense to do full justice to the inspiration that has given this tale to the world. Future editions will probably be in less expensive bindings.

For introductory purposes, however, we are charging no more for this de luxe edition than we do for ordinary book editions. We offer you one of the most beautiful tales ever told, from the pen of America's great woman writer, in a book that is itself rich in beauty, for only $2.00 plus the delivery charges.

We know you want to own a de luxe copy of "Jesus of the Emerald." May we send it to you today? Do not put it off, as this de luxe edition will go quickly, and in a short time $2.00 will purchase only the ordinary edition. Act now and secure your copy of "Jesus of the Emerald" in the beautiful binding.

No money is necessary. Just clip and mail the coupon. Doubleday, Page & Co., Dept. J-2234, Garden City, New York.

I want to own "Jesus of the Emerald"—the rare old tale of Jesus as retold by the magic pen of Gene Stratton-Porter. You may send me my copy at once, in the beautiful de luxe edition. I will give the postman only $2.00, plus few cents delivery charges on arrival. It is thoroughly understood that my money is to be refunded any time within 5 days, on request, if I am not inspired by the beauty of this tale and delighted with the richness of the book.

Rules of the Ring and Rules of War

THE way the talk came about was that our neighbor, the man who reads the papers, happened to mention that he had been reading a piece in a paper, lately concerning the late Marquis of Queensberry. And, first thing anybody knew, a heated discussion on war and fighting was in full fling.

And it was all the more strange that there should be talk of this nature on this particular occasion because it was a peaceful, starry night, and the man who has the phonograph had just finished playing one of Charles Wesley's hymns.

But, in the green Verdugo Hills, the same as in other places in the world, one never can tell what an innocent remark may lead to. You may say good morning to a man with the best of intentions, and before you know it you may have a fight on your hands. Once there was a drunken king who called another drunken king a liar, which was the truth, and yet the utterance of this one little commonplace word which has been in everyday use since time began, resulted in one of the bloodiest wars in history.

Well, to get back to our story, and not to keep too long waiting those who sit in the synagogue this blessed Sabbath morning, we have to report that the man who plays the flute contended that the Marquis of Queensberry was a great man; that he had made rules which took the brutality out of pugilism. Under these rules it was no longer permitted to hit an opponent below the belt, to jump on him when he was down, to gouge his eyes out, to kick him in the face, or anything like that. And that, under these rules, one prize fighter is strictly limited to smashing another in the jaw, breaking his nose, caving in his ribs, cauliflowering his ear or rendering him unconscious with a blow in the pit of his stomach.

The man who used to be a statistician then called attention to the fact that in the international councils of nations similar humane rules had been agreed upon for the conduct of war. In war it is no longer permissible to use poisoned arrows or dum dum bullets, to poison springs or to carry the babies of the conquered stuck on bayonets through the streets as Oliver Cromwell's soldiers did. All you can do now in war is to gas the other fellow, blow up his own town and all the old people and children, and to do little harmless things like that.

Well, sir, you would never believe how many differences of opinion there were expressed by the neighbors on these subjects when they were gathered together in the green Verdugo Hills on the night referred to.

And we are relating the incident in the synagogue this blessed Sabbath morning in order to throw some light on a dark subject, and to help the world the better to wrestle with a vexed problem.

Calling a Beautiful Mountain Out of Its Name

ONE day a couple of weeks ago, or maybe three, where did we find ourself but among a throng of school children in a place from which we could see Mt. San Antonio in the San Gabriel range of the Sierra Madres.

And Mt. San Antonio never looked more beautiful than upon that sunny morning. The air was as clear as crystal after the rain that had fallen in welcome showers the night before upon the parched valleys. In a mantle of pure, white, gleaming snow was San Antonio arrayed that lovely morning.

We asked the children if they knew the name of the mountain. And they all answered in one great piping chorus that certainly they knew its name. And that the name of it is "Old Baldy," they said.

Well, sir, we got up on a swing that was there where the children were. And, hanging on to the ropes, we then and there gave them a thundering lecture.

Shame on you, children of California, we said—shame on you to call so beautiful a mountain out of its name. And such a beautiful name, too, we said—San Antonio, the name of the great Saint of Padua who hunts for things when they are lost and finds them for you.

And we called a boy to us and we said now supposing your name were Antonio and some one called you "Old Baldy," what would you do?

And the boy answered promptly and said, I would throw a rock at him, he said. And he looked very angry.

Well, we said then, isn't it just as bad, and as vulgar and as ill-mannered to call our beautiful mountain San Antonio out of its name?

Well, sir, you wouldn't believe how our little lecture to the children struck home. And they gathered around us, and each one gave us a solemn promise that he would never call Mt. San Antonio by the name of "Old Baldy" again.

A Page Conducted By John Steven McGroarty

A Long Time to Be Away from Home

WE WANT to tell the members of the Congregation of the Faithful, and all others who sit in the synagogue this blessed Sabbath morning, about a man who was a long time away from home.

The way we came to know about him was that we were driving along a high road in our faithful little Henry. And it was toward the dusk of the evening. So, just then, walking briskly alongside the road, we caught up with this man that we are talking about.

Now, just as we caught up with the man we said "whoa" to Henry and Henry stopped and stood still as he always does when we say "whoa" to him. And we asked the man would he get in and ride with us. Which he did with many profuse expressions of thanks. It is very kind of you, he said to us, and I appreciate the lift not because I am tired but because I am eager to get home, he said.

So, for want of something better to say, we made the remark that maybe he had been a long time away from home. And he answered and said yes, it was true.

So then we said that maybe he was a sailor and that he had been away upon a voyage at sea. But, he said no. Well, maybe he was a soldier and had been to the wars, or that he had been down in the roaring town for maybe a month or so serving on the jury, or something like that. But the man smiled—and his smile was very wonderful—and again he said no.

It was then that he told us that he had been away from home only since morning. Just a day, he said, but that a day is a long time when you count how few there are in a lifetime, even though life be long as the world reckons it. I am able to spend only my evenings and nights and Sundays at home, he said, and so a day seems a long time to me to be away. Because, he said again, count them all and they are not many when the story is told.

Well, sir, we thought it was a most beautiful way for a man to think. And we were not surprised when we left him at his door to see his wife and his children running eagerly out from the lighted house to greet him with joyous cries of welcome.

We receive only that which we give, and here was a man who, giving love, received love in return.

Sabbath Benediction

God bless you all on pleasure bent,
This Day of days by Heaven sent,
And grant you all a sweet content
When the twilight shadows fall.

God bless you all who toil this day
That the world's wide work may be done alway,
And grant you His love in a special way
When the twilight shadows fall.

God bless you all, of every race,
From every clime, in every place,
And grant you all may see His face
When the twilight shadows fall.

MARY CARRUTH CUNNINGHAM.

What a Man Said One Rainy Day

IT MAY be that many who sit in the synagogue this blessed Sabbath morning will be interested to hear what a man said to us one rainy day as we journeyed together in a railway caravan through the vast green Salinas Valley.

We were looking out of the windows of the coach at the ever-changing panorama of wide-flung plains upon which countless herds were grazing. Sleek Holsteins that furnish roaring towns with milk and butter; and herds of red beef cattle, with now and then a flock of sheep or a drove of fat, black pigs. And it was often miles between houses in which folks had their dwelling places.

And it was just as we had passed one of these infrequent homes that we remarked to our companion how lonely life must be in that vast land for those who had their dwelling places in it.

No, replied our companion, there is no such thing as loneliness any more in the world, anywhere, unless it be the strange loneliness that will seize upon a man sometimes in the very turmoil and clamor of a thronged and crowded city. But there is no longer what we used to think of as the loneliness and isolation of the country. You cannot isolate anybody in these times.

In that seemingly lonely ranch house which we have just passed—made to look the more forlorn in this mist of rain—there is doubtless a radio set that puts the people of the house in touch with at least a continent, or perhaps the whole world. All they have to do is to turn a button and they listen to concerts, brass bands, sermons and the day's news.

Moreover, he said, they have an automobile to speed them wherever they care to go by night or day. They have a phonograph and a piano that plays itself; light, heat and power from a waterfall in the mountains, turkey and pumpkin pie for dinner, cash in the bank, and their boys and girls away at college.

These are the people, said our companion in the caravan, who are called "hicks" and "rubes" by little two-by-four cigarette smoking dudes who hang around movie shows in towns.

Well, sir, we thought that the last remark made by our fellow-traveler was rather severe, and maybe uncharitable, but we were glad to have heard the other things he said.

And we almost envied the dwellers in that vast green vale of the Salinas as we journeyed through it in a caravan on a rainy day.

Life Is Like a Big Roaring Machine

ONE day not long ago we were sitting in a room where there were business men assembled. They discussed stocks and bonds and everything like that. And how easy it is to make a million dollars if you feel like it.

It was very interesting, and even fascinating. But, in the midst of the discussion something suddenly happened that proved to be far more interesting than the talk that was going on.

Now, what happened was that there was a big street repairing machine at work just outside the office where the business men were assembled. It had been keeping up a terrific roar all the time. And, yet, nobody seemed to notice it.

Then, suddenly, the machine stopped. The roar ceased. And with that every man in the room flew back in his chair. What was that thing making so much noise? they asked in a chorus. And they got up and looked out of the windows to see what it was.

It was a strange thing. A strange thing that they never noticed the noise until it stopped.

Well, after this, they ceased for awhile to talk about stocks and bonds to talk about other things.

And one man said to the others, life is like the noise of that machine, he said. We go along with life not noticing until it stops for one of us. Then we are startled. Life is so noisy and death is so still and quiet, he said.

We thought it a very wise remark, especially so since it came from a business man. We would not have wondered had it come from a hill man used to quiet and used to think of mysteries and of things that are not so much mysteries as they are philosophies. But, business takes little time to contemplate anything that has not to do with dollars.

Which is a great pity, because business men, as a rule, are such fine fellows. They have big, warm hearts. And we always feel sorry when we see the undertaker on his way to take one of them to a waiting grave.

We feel sorry because the average business man sees too much of stone walls and adding machines, and too little of stars and flower-spangled meadows and the green lanes of the country.

perienced through the law of suggestion; and when the doctor loses his control over his patient's mind, the patient seeks another doctor.

"All doctors are very sensitive to being told that there is no cure; that the curing system which they so enthusiastically advocate and practice may palliate, but will not cure.

"What more proof is needed to convince an open mind that a cure is not a cure than the fact that its advocates are constantly seeking other cures?"

Saving a Leg

EVERY year thousands of limbs are amputated that might have been saved by natural treatment—by water and abstemious, eliminative diet or fasting. I do not hesitate in saying that at least 60 per cent of these amputations are unnecessary.

Following is from an autobiography of George Starr White, M.D., in his book "The Natural Way":

"During my work with Dr. Snow I went on cases alone way up in the mountains, and thus gained a good deal of experience for one of my age. Often the doctor was too tired at night to go out and I would go out when people would come in to take the doctor out in the mountains. Such an experience as this could not be gained in college nor in any hospital clinic. It was a training that makes one think for himself.

"One of my duties while with Dr. Snow was to stop at the Town Farm each day to dress wounds or sores and do little favors for the indigent ones there. Among other patients I attended to was a young foreigner who had a running sore on one leg, which would not heal. I had often noticed the trays of food brought to this sick man who could not get out of bed. It was of the 'solid' type—corned beef and cabbage, sausage, baked beans and pork, boiled potatoes, boiled turnips, pickles, etc. The patient often told me he felt too sick to eat such heavy food, and I often took him delicacies which pleased him very much.

"He could not speak English, so I acted as interpreter for the doctors whenever they went to see him.

"After several weeks the sore was larger and deeper, so a consultation of doctors was held, and they decided that the leg must be amputated, and a day was set for the amputation. In the meantime I saw the unfortunate man and made him promise that he would never tell what I was about to say to him. I told him it was not considered 'ethical' for a student in a doctor's office to in any manner interfere with the plans of the doctors he was studying with. I told him I did not want him to allow the doctors to amputate his leg as I had seen sores like that before and they got well, and I thought his would if I could get him out of that place where he could have something suitable to eat and where I could dress the wound according to my own notion rather than using the dressings I had used under the driections of the doctors.

"He promised that he would keep the secret and would refuse to have his leg amputated. When the time came, I went with the doctors to act as interpreter. When they entered the room, the patient said he did not want his leg amputated and he would rather die with it on than to live with it removed. The doctors became very angry and told him that they would have nothing more to do with his case if he acted in that stubborn manner. Nevertheless he persisted in his 'stubbornness' and they went away disgusted to think they could not have an opportunity to use a new set of knives that one of them had just gotten from New York City. As they left, I heard one of the doctors say to the others that he just wanted an opportunity to show a certain surgeon that he could do as fine a job at amputating as anyone in the cities. They predicted all sorts of bad endings for the patient.

"The next day, unbeknown to any of the doctors, I went to the foreigner's room and told him I had found a little empty shanty that I could fix up for him to stay in. By the aid of some of the inmates of the place, I managed to get him into the shanty and made him as comfortable as I could. I got different kinds of food from home to take to him and gave him the plainest kind of food, as outlined by the herb doctor with whom I had been intimate for years. The food consisted of teas made of various herbs, fruit, raw vegetables, etc. I made some ointment from plantain leaves and lard, and used that on the sore, arranging the leg so it would be elevated higher than his body all the time. I also bandaged it a little differently.

"The patient slept practically out of doors, being sheltered from the rain.

"Within a few weeks the patient was able to move and go to his home in Bridgeport. Before he went away I gave him instructions as to what to eat and how to take care of the sore, and he promised to let me hear from him. However, several years went by and I did not hear from him. About five years later I was at a railroad station when my attention was attracted to a very dapper-appearing man who had the air of a traveling salesman. I spoke to him and asked him if he were not the one I had taken care of in Danbury. He said that he was and told me in English how he had learned to speak our language. He said his leg was perfectly sound and the tears rolled down his cheeks as he thanked me for what I had done for him.

"I later saw one of the doctors who was to assist at this operation, and I told him how it had come about that this young man did not have his leg taken off and how well he was when I last saw him. From that time that surgeon was really an enemy of mine. Instead of complimenting me, he said that I had no right to interfere with any other doctor's plan. Such were 'medical ethics' in those days, and such they are at the present time.

"This experience was only one of many similar ones, which proved to me that the natural way is to aid nature in overcoming obstacles rather than to destroy tissue just because it is not normal.

"It also set me to thinking regarding what is known as 'medical ethics,' and my opinion was then and is now that so-called 'medical ethics' is like an eating ulcer that will sooner or later destroy the confidence of the public in those who pretend to adhere to such an outrageous custom.

"A true physician will not hesitate to employ any agency known to relieve the suffering, regardless of 'ethical measures.'"

Business

WILLIAM McFEE writes:

"Have you noticed how business dehumanizes men? I count over in my mind dozens of men whom I know, men of age, experience, and wealth, who almost demand that I should envy them by the very way they walk the city streets. They are prosperous they imagine. I, strolling idly through those same city streets, looking at the show, studying their faces, defied them, and said to myself, 'You gentlemen are not human beings—you are business men.'

"Not that I would tell them this; they would not understand, though they are guilty of occasional lucid intervals. They will admit, in a superior tone, that business cuts them off from a great deal. But it is evident they intend sticking to the irrefutable logic of the bank-balance. For them there is no friendship like ours. They could not afford it, bless you. How are they to know that you won't 'do' them or borrow of them? No, no. The world, for them, is a place where they have a chance of besting you and me, of getting more money than you or I, of 'prospering,' as they call it, at another's expense."

Holding a Man

I SHOULD think intelligent spirited women would feel disgusted, if not insulted, at the suggestions continually thrown at them by the sloppy sisters who write slush in the "Women's Column" of newspapers and magazines, telling the necessity of holding a husband's love by feminine wiles and blandishments—"sweet feminine tactics" and all that sort of thing. It is, of course, well that a woman should be clean, and as cheerful as the kids and the cooking will let her, but if she can only retain her man's affection by means of a smirk and a ribbon, I would let him go, and look for a more docile animal, that will stand without a marriage halter.

By the way, how about holding a wife's love? Do the Lords of Creation always take that for granted? I think they must, because whenever, as often happens, they are disillusionized, it seems to give them quite a jolt.

Silica

SILICA is among the mineral elements found in the body. Following is from "Rational Diet:"

"In the organic world silica is most effective as a protective agent against chemical disintegration and putrefaction. The element has, therefore, a strong antiseptic action, being a safeguard against epidemic diseases. The mineral matter from healthy muscular tissues contains at least 2 per cent silica, which is also found to a considerable extent in hair, feathers, nails and claws. In vegetable foods the silica is combined with cellulose, and forms the skin of fruits and vegetables and the outer coats of cereals. In white flour, also cornmeal, polished rice, etc., this coat has been removed in the form of bran. This deficiency of silica gives rise to many diseased conditions and makes the system easily susceptible to injurious influences. Silica, being a good insulator, warms the blood by insulating and keeping together the electricity imparted through its salty constituents. Silica is found particularly in the connective tissue. As nerve substance contains nearly the same amount of silica as the albumen in the blood, this element forms, as it were, a connecting link between blood and nerves, preserving their proper relations. Many diseases of the blood and nervous system may be traced to a lack of silica in the food.

"The pancreas is especially rich in this element, its mineral constituents showing about 12 per cent of silica. It is found combined with fluorine in the enamel of the teeth. Human hair shows from 0.10 to 0.22 per cent of silica. Hair needs for its growth both silica and sulphur. If they are not given in sufficient quantities to the blood, the hair cannot be nourished properly and falls out. The skin, and likewise the walls of all cells, contain a considerable amount of silica, which has been placed there by nature to prevent a too rapid radiation of the body's heat and electricity.

"We, therefore, see that silica, like the other elements, has certain physiological functions to perform, which makes its presence in our food and, consequently, in the different parts and organs, indispensable. The amount of silica in the body may be small, compared with other elements, but its importance as an essential building element of the body should never be over looked. The origin of so-called infectious diseases must be largely attributed to a deficiency of this element in the system, as the average diet of man usually lacks silica. The ash, for instance, of the outer coats of the rice kernel contains about 80 per cent of silica, which is to a large extent lost by the peeling, and, further, by the polishing process. In the same manner silica is lost in the artificial preparation of all cereal foods. In peeling fruit we also lose an appreciable amount of organic salts. Wherever it is possible, fruits should be eaten with the skin which must, of course, be properly masticated."

AVOID GAS AFTER EATING

Gastritis No. 10

Bloating and distention of the abdomen, drowsiness after eating, pressure and pain around the heart, hands and feet cold and numb, nervousness, are the more common symptoms of this torment—gas.

All is due to the fermenting of food in the stomach.

Physicians state that the best absorbent they have found for this foul gas is Hylands No. 10 Gastritis. These little tablets also quickly relieve the pain and distress that come after eating.

If people would only give some attention to their diet and carry these wonderful tablets for emergency use, they would quickly find that many of these ailments and symptoms would permanently disappear.

HEARING RESTORED OFTEN IN 24 HOURS

Amazing Results Secured in One Day by Use of Virex, Formerly Known as Rattle Snake Oil

Deafness and Head Noises need not be dreaded any longer since the discovery of a widely known physician. Now it is possible for some of the most obstinate cases of deafness to be relieved in a day's time by the application of a prescription formerly known as Rattle Snake Oil. This treatment is meeting with wide success all over the country.

Mr. D. Dey, a Nebraska resident, 67 years old, says, "I have used the treatment for only two weeks and my hearing is restored perfectly. The relief was almost instantaneous and now the head noises have disappeared. My catarrh, a case of many years standing, is improving wonderfully."

Mr. Ben Jackson, who lives in Indiana, says, "Before I used Virex I could hear nothing. After ten days I could hear my watch tick."

Angeline Johnson, a Mississippi resident, had been stone deaf for eighteen years. She says, "Virex has stopped my head noises and I can hear the train whistle 3½ miles away."

Roy Fisher, Iowa man, says, "I hadn't heard a watch tick for eleven years—now I can lay my watch on the table and hear it plainly."

Mr. W. A. Lumpkin of Oklahoma, says, "After being deaf 38 years, I used your treatment only a few days and hear fairly well."

Mr. Anthony Chapman of Michigan, says, "The terrible head noises have stopped entirely and my hearing is practically back to normal."

Deaf Baby Now Hears

Mrs. Ola Valentine of Arkansas says, "My little boy, now 5 years old, had been deaf since about 4 months of age. Now he hears very well and is learning to talk."

Mr. Mather Pelleys says, "My young son, deaf for years, has used Virex for only three days and he hears almost as well as ever before."

Such amazing reports come from all over this country and Canada. The prescription which is known as Virex, is easily used at home and seems to work like magic in its rapidity on people of all ages.

So confident are we that Virex will restore your hearing quickly, and to introduce this remarkable treatment to a million more sufferers, we will send a large $2.00 treatment for only $1.00 on ten days' free trial. If the results are not satisfactory the treatment costs nothing.

Send no money—just your name and address to the Dale Laboratories, 135 Gateway Station, Kansas City, Mo., and the treatment will be mailed at once. Use it according to the simple directions. If at the end of 10 days your hearing is not relieved, your head noises gone entirely, just send it back and your money will be refunded without question. This offer is fully guaranteed, so write today and give this wonderful compound a trial.

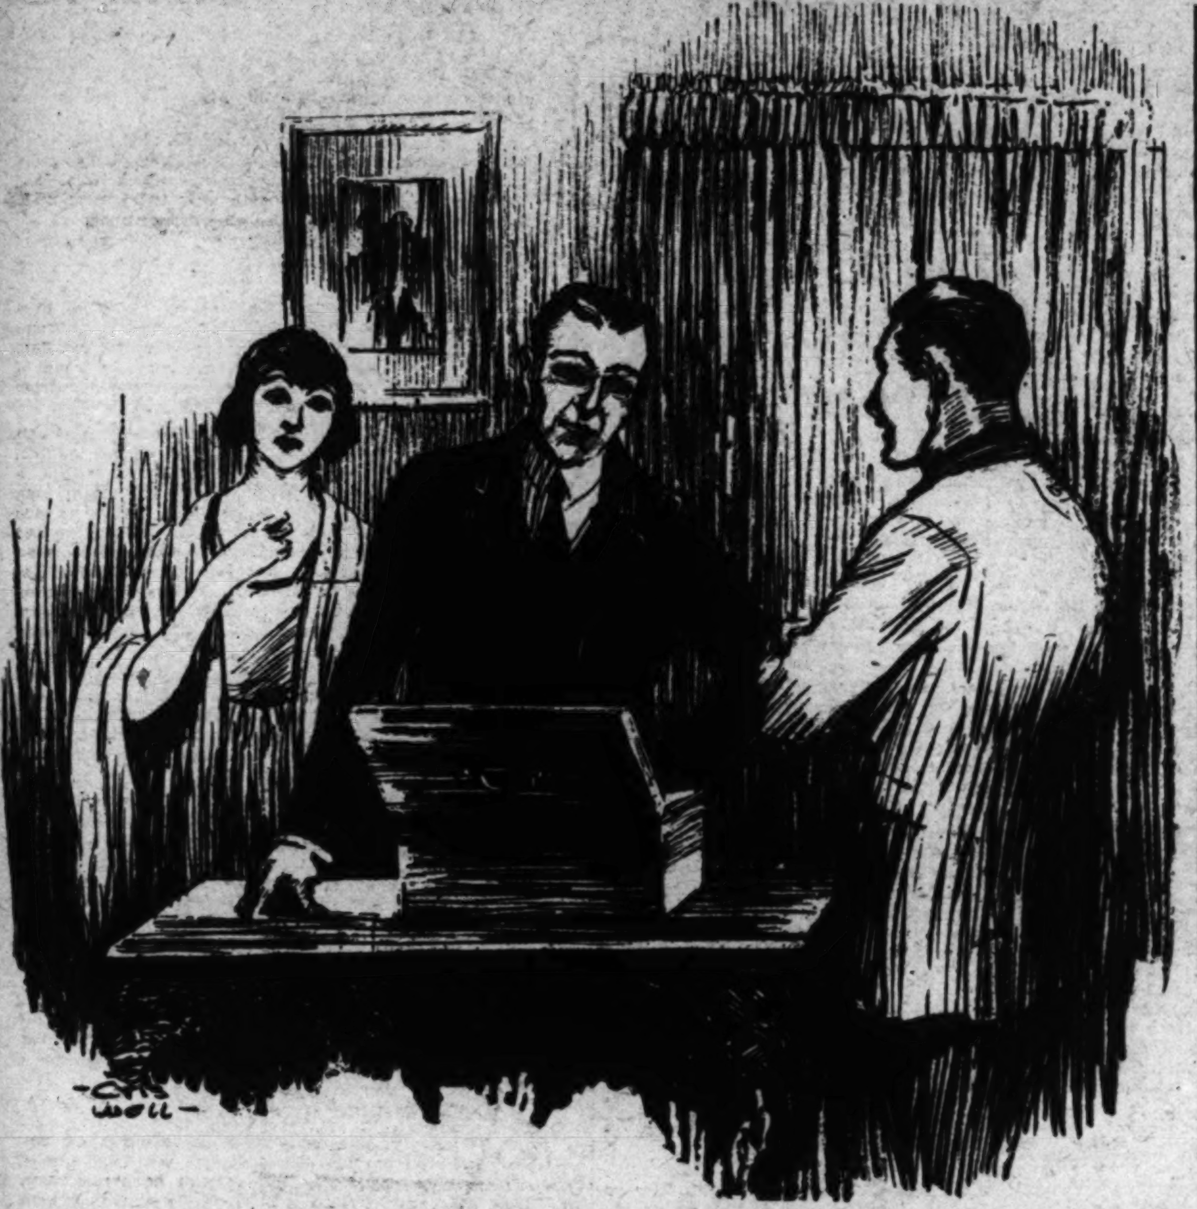
The FLAW

By Valentin Mandelstamm

(Famous French Author)

Illustrated by Ralph C. Criswell



D'Artois, his arms crossed, seemed to laugh silently his triumph.

I

IT WAS a beautiful July afternoon before the war, in the Rue Michel-Ange at Passy. In most of the apartments the blinds were drawn, the tenants being in the country, at the shore or the baths. A great calm reigned, scarcely broken by the jarring of the trams and autos, the sounds of which seemed accentuated in the heavy atmosphere.

On the balcony of an apartment on the second story of a new building, sat a couple basking in the sunshine. The woman was young, dark, with hazel eyes and a lovely spirituelle face. She was dressed in a sheer blouse of linen and a large beige-colored skirt the very simplicity of which proclaimed the master hand that had made them. Her companion was also young, black-haired, olive-skinned, with a smooth, clean-shaven face whose features of almost perfect regularity bore a subtle, almost feline expression, across which every now and then a spasm of pain drifted like a film.

He was smoking a long Corona and blowing the smoke in nonchalant rings. The girl studied his features with careful tenderness and at each contraction she sighed bitterly, although she pressed her lips tightly together, as though to restrain the reproaches which she knew in advance would prove useless.

At last, however, the man having finished his cigar and immediately lighted another, she could refrain no longer.

"Did you see the doctor, yesterday, as you promised, Lucien?"

He answered cajolingly.

"Surely, I was there, but I would have to wait so long that I should have missed the meeting at the Maison la Fete! And so I came away without seeing him."

She made an impatient gesture.

"For the races you would give up everything!"

"Because I always win!" he answered. "I won again yesterday!"

"All players are alike, they always win—except when they lose! But that does not keep those heart contractions from becoming more and more frequent! You have not been looking well for some time. Did you not tell me yourself that your father was carried away by heart failure at 85? You ought not to smoke so much!"

Lucien d'Artois laughed, a low, muffled laughter.

"I knew you would take me to task for this! But what if it pleases me to smoke? And, after all, one can only die once!"

As she kissed him, Huguette Davrelles only murmured:

"You are incorrigible!" and then was silent. She deeply loved this man whom she had known almost since her debut as a comedienne and for whom she had renounced, without regret, the most glittering prospect of existence.

Lucien d'Artois, scion of good Martinique family, had only just enough money to live on, which, however, he eked out by frequenting assiduously the turf and gambling clubs. He also acted as agent for certain pictures of races and other sports which he was able to dispose of to advantage.

These two were quite independent of one another. She occupied this apartment on the edge of the Bois and he had a set of furnished rooms in the Rue de Lubeck.

Presently 4 o'clock sounded from the Church d'Auteuil.

"Do you know," began Huguette, "Madame Plan has not been out today. Her curtains have been drawn for two days."

"Which Madame Plan?" asked Lucien tranquilly.

"What, do you not remember? But of course you are rarely here at this hour!"

"Ah, yes, now I recall the little old lady who lives across the way whom I used to see knitting every afternoon last year when I was ill and you so kindly took care of me here!"

"Yes, you two became acquainted finally, and she used to make you funny little bows with her poor old head that looked like a plucked bird's."

Huguette, suddenly silent, leaned against his shoulder. After a moment she resumed.

"You do not know what all I have imagined at times. This old woman, believed in the neighborhood to be rich and miserly, lives all alone. Some day I am afraid she will be assassinated."

Lucien d'Artois looked at Huguette with an odd expression.

"That is curious," he said. "That must be telepathy, for I have been thinking that very thing." His tone changed to a teasing one. "It needs some one like you, oh, ardent reader of the newspaper headlines, to imagine some sort of story here!"

"Yes, is it not true? Generally an old servant who has been discharged, or an Apache nephew, is always arrested and accused of the crime. Is there any means of knowing otherwise?"

He drew a long whiff of his fresh cigar.

"That is another question. You know my theory. A crime that is committed in a scientific manner has an enormous chance of remaining unpunished."

"But there is always a flaw!"

He assented thoughtfully.

"Without doubt! Women, drink, gambling, the desire to shine! But I say—if it were not for the flaw——!"

At this moment a vague feeling passed over Huguette that one sometimes has when an unsuspected personality is near. She raised her eyes and at the window of the floor above, she saw a man leaning his elbows on the sill. He was a strong looking man with grayish hair and a large mustache, and as their eyes met he smiled and nodded in a very friendly way.

"Oh, Monsieur Maubray!" called the girl, "What a surprise! The months you have been away!"

Lucien d'Artois turned and looked at the stranger. He could not restrain a gesture of annoyance. But Huguette, noticing this attributed it to jealousy, and hastened to introduce the two men.

"Monsieur Maubray, the most amiable of my cotenants. My friend, Monsieur d'Artois."

The two men bowed, then the stranger tactfully retired and Huguette hastened to explain.

"I have already spoken to you of him. He travels most of the year. Once or twice I have passed him on the stairs and I have noticed that he looked at me with an emotion or sadness that I could not explain. One day he stopped me and told me that I reminded him of a child he had lost. Since then from time to time he has sent me flowers. Now you see there is nothing to feel vexed about."

At this the young man, who had been frowning, seemed to toss off the momentary shadow, and a smile curved his well-formed lips.

II

That evening (she only appeared in the first and second acts of "La Saltave,") Huguette returned directly to her little apartment from the theater, and being fatigued, retired immediately.

Although she did not again think of the afternoon's conversation she had a nightmare of masked men following her armed with revolvers. In the morning her maid Emilie, a Romaine whose cheeks ordinarily flamed like scarlet, brought in her chocolate with a face gray with terror and announced in a shaking voice:

"Mademoiselle does not know that a terrible misfortune has happened! The poor woman across the way was found dead last night, undoubtedly assassinated. She must have lain there all night. There must have been a terrible struggle there!"

Huguette was horrified. She unfolded the morning paper. Already the news was there:

"Last night the concierge of the apartment house at number 197, Rue Michel-Ange, not having seen one of the tenants for two days, decided to ring the bell. Upon receiving no answer, he feared an accident, as the old woman lived entirely alone. He went for the help and, the door being broken open, Madame Plan was discovered in the middle of the floor. She had been strangled by means of a thin cord.

"The motive of the crime was evident. All the bureau drawers were turned out and the closets ransacked. It was known that Madame Plan had considerable money and valuables but none of these was found. Monsieur Felix Combeaux, the head of the detective force, commenced investigations immediately but so far there is no clew. At this last moment, we learn, however, that someone we do not wish to name, but whose numberless successes all Paris has fol-an autotoxemia, except in the very few cases where these organs are weak through abnormal innervation from the spine.

"The following treatment will make a favorable change in ninety-nine out of one hundred cases; the hundredth may fail to secure good results because specific spinal treatment is necessary—by naprapathy, osteopathy, or chiropractic—or because the treatment is not continued conscientiously. On rising, the mother should give the child a vigorous friction with the cold wet hands, and follow this with good towel rubbing. Breakfast: fresh fruit alone for the first few days; then fresh fruit and warm milk for the next week; after which fresh fruit, warm milk and a whole grain cereal with honey or raisins in place of sugar; unmoistened by milk or cream. Lunch: fresh and dried fruit and milk for the first few days; then this with whole grain cereal for the next week; following which the fruits, milk and cereal may be continued and a few nuts added, or the cereal and nuts may be altered. Dinner: vegetable soup, cooked vegetables (preferably green), raw salad, nuts or whole wheat bread. Between meals plenty of water and perhaps fresh fruit or fruit juice or melons. Cut out completely all sugars, candies, white bread, pastry, condiments, spices and vinegar and such starches as corn starch, macaroni and spaghetti. Use more laxative vegetables and fruits and more water if constipation bothers. In an acute case the absolute fast should be instituted at once, to be continued so long as any fever exists; and this will be a good procedure in any case. A warm bath may be taken once or twice a week before retiring. Sleep should be in a thoroughly ventilated room, in clean sleeping garments—not the underwear worn during the day.

"Hot spinal packs with massage, especially to the upper spine, will be good. Massage downward alongside of the neck will help drain the glands of the neck, which will many times help the tonsils to relieve themselves of their congestion. The throat pack applied at night and removed in the morning, with cold friction to the upper chest and throat region, is a very good treatment, but reaction must be complete from all cold baths. Breathing and calisthenic exercises, as much as possible out of doors, should be taken regularly once a day.

"The forefinger may be wrapped with cotton and gentle pressure given in a circular manner to the tonsils themselves, providing they are not acutely and extremely inflamed. On this cotton, or by a cotton-wrapped applicator, a saturated salt solution may be used to swab the tonsils and tonsilar area, or dilute lemon juice may be used as a swab or gargle. The nose may be douched with salt solution. The general catarrhal and toxic condition will begin to respond as soon as the skin and bowel activity are improved and the blood freed from poisons. Every organ of the body will then be more free to function normally, and the innocent tonsils, which have been disturbed from the outside, will calmly subside and will cause (?) no further trouble."

Diet and Climate

W. K. ROBERTS writes:

"Beside the question of temperament, the matter of diet is the greatest determining factor in the competitive struggle for existence, and in this I maintain that racial characteristics are not conclusive. If we examine the prevailing diet among any northern people, it is found to consist, largely of protein and fat obtained principally from animal products, while among the natives of southern and tropical latitudes it is principally starch and carbon from cereals, vegetables and fruit. If a northern white man or an Eskimo, for that matter, emigrates to a warmer region and does not change his diet to accord with the demands of climate, he will become unhealthy. The reason why he becomes unhealthy is not the effect of sunlight upon his skin, but the effects of the overheating foods or stimulants he partakes of. He should eat of the more cooling vegetarian foods when going south, just as one who goes north should eat more of the heat-producing fats and proteins.

"All immigrants from the British Islands and Northern Europe are heavy eaters of the fats and proteins, and their children born in this country inherit the same tendency. Unless they are specially instructed to adapt their diet to the climate they will be physically defective and die prematurely. Not only will such children inherit the [illegible] will have more of the craving for stimulants than children of the South Europeans, who are better adapted to our climate solely by reason of their dietary being more suitable to a temperate climate. The Briton craves whisky and heavy beer, but the Southern European is content with very light wine."

Commercialized Medicine

DR. J. H. TILDEN writes:

"Medicine as a profession has the commercial insanity developed to such a degree that the dollar is of more importance than the welfare of the patient. This is even more spectacular in surgery than in medicine; for everyone knows that a given amount of surgery is necessary. Just how much, laymen do not know; and this ignorance permits the zealous and unscrupulous to operate one hundred times when ten operations should be the limit. The physician (doctor, I should say) takes advantage of ignorance to sell all kinds of cures, and keeps as many kinds for sale as are demanded. There is a wild scramble by the junk-cure-mongers for every new cure as fast as it is brought out. These cures are added to the list of cures, and are sold to the sick mob while the selling is good.

"There are many schools of cure; but as fast as experience overtakes the enthusiasm, zeal and ignorance of the new doctor, new cures will be added, until, by the time the 'doc's' hair has whitened his temples, his office will remind one of a junk shop, being cluttered with cure-alls, most of which have gone out of style and can be used only on the tenderfoot from the backwoods. The average doctor's mind is a burying-ground for obsolete cures carefully packed in the excelsior or bigotry. Bigotry grows, unless true knowledge is found.

"The young doctor cures with his enthusiasm those who are susceptible to the heat of his suggestion. Of course, he and his patient think the cure is from the remedy used—be it spinal manipulation, drugs or whatever remedy is used; and the cure will last as long as the heat of their enthusiasm can be kept sizzling. But in time refrigeration sets in; the patient becomes discouraged, and goes looking for another cure, heated by the enthusiasm of mental limitation, I say 'limitation' advisedly; for all cures are limited to palliation, and all forms of pallation comes to an end. Then the doctor must find a new cure, or see his patient leave him for another doctor who uses another cure. It is not uncommon to receive patients in the health school who have been 'cured' by a dozen different 'cures'—all the varieties that are for the present in the public eye.

Black Danger

By Mary Shannon

PETE OGDEN drew in his pinto cayuse on the peak of a hill. Shading his eyes from the setting sun, he looked intently down where the gray log buildings of a ranch clustered on either side this road.

"Yeh, there's a crowd down there, Pinto," he remarked, nodding his head convincedly. "Gettin' in fer the races. They'll start tomorrow. That Injun was right. It's the fourteenth. Must've fergot to mark a day off!"

He passed his hand in a troubled way across his forehead where a broad scar stretched back into his unkempt sandy hair.

"It don't matter back at the cabin—about fergettin', but we mighta missed the races, Pinto, an' us countin' on 'em so! Come all the way from River Meadow."

He was a small man with a droop to one shoulder that caused his ragged coat to sag queerly in the back. He took off his battered cowboy hat, and dreamily studied the ranch buildings. His troubled expression gave place to one of contentment.

"Good ol' place!" he murmured fondly, "good ol' Ogden ranch!"

For the moment the years slipped away, and he had forgotten that the place no longer belonged to an Ogden. There was an edge of chill in the September air. Winter comes early and lingers late in Northern Idaho.

Riding down the circuitous slopes, Pete halted beside a white-fenced graveyard. Through the pickets his eyes searched the inscription on the largest of the weather-beaten headstones.

"Peter Ogden, died 18—, aged 70 years. Gold Valley, Idaho."

"It's gettin' harder to read it," he mused. "Twenty years since we buried gran'dad. If he was livin' we'd be down there with the best of 'em, Pinto. Times has changed, eh, boy?"

Again his dreamy gaze wandered to the valley below, the place where the drama of his simple life had been staged. He was born on that ranch, and had never been outside Gold Valley. He had never had the least desire to leave it. Only echoes of the great world reached that isolated region; yet once the interest of financial centers had focused there.

Some sixty years before the road was a trail beaten by thousands of eager feet in the mad rush for gold. But the boom days had long since passed, and with them had gone the horde of adventurous miners. The trail had widened to a road, and here and there beside it, log houses were built. The once famous gold region was now a scattered grazing country, with little to recall the glamorous boom.

Chief event that kept fresh the memory of those days was the racing meet held annually at Ogden ranch, ever since old Pete Ogden had built the house and given the purse for the big race—the Gold Valley Derby. It seemed an incongruity that the man with the scarred forehead should bear the same name. Some such thought shared itself in his mind:

"He counted on me—did gran'dad. 'I'm trustin' to you, Pete,' he used to say. 'You keep the ranch. I don't want it should ever go outside the family. Ike—he's different. He don't care about it like you an' me. You an' him's all the Ogdens that's left.'"

A haggard wistfulness settled on the thin features, but he went on defiantly:

"I'd a done it, too, if I hadn't got throwed, breakin' that horse. They wouldn't let me ride any more—me that used to be the crack rider in the valley, Pinto."

He leaned forward and patted the cayuse's neck.

"They don't know how I ride now, Pinto. They don't know about Black Danger an me. He could jump them bars down there easy. They don't know I got him, an' we won't ever tell 'em."

The cayuse pricked his ears inquiringly.

"You're a knowin' horse, Pinto, but you ain't as knowin's Black Danger. Not but what I think a pile o' you, too," he added quickly.

There was a mute longing in the childish mind as he rose over the fields and along the creek where he had played as a boy. He felt no anger against the brother who, the whole country declared, had cheated him. He had not seen Ike for a year, and he was looking forward to a talk about old times. It seemed to bring back the days when their grandfather lived, and they were all happy together. He puzzled over the change that had come since that time. His head had never been right since the accident, and somehow he had drifted into drinking and gambling.

Then had come that terrible day when Ike had forced his consent to selling the ranch. He didn't resent the fact that after his reckless foolish spending he could expect nothing from the sale, but the thought of the old place in the hands of a stranger was more than he could bear. Ike had offered a home with him in that town to which he was moving, but Pete clung to Gold Valley. The weeks following were a blur, for, unable to witness the breaking up of the old home, he had ridden off into the hills. During those heart-sickening days he had strayed lonesomely into far back valleys, riding aimlessly into solitary places, thinking of the bewildering change that had come into his life.

There he had found Black Danger. A dead mare beside the half-starved colt roused Pete's pity, and he finally succeeded in luring the wabbly-legged creature to a deserted cabin at River Meadow. There was no brand on the dead horse, and Pete concluded she had belonged to a band of wild horses that sometimes strayed in from a distant region to graze.

Four years had passed, and the sickly colt had grown into a beautiful spirited stallion. He brought happiness into Pete's life, a loving interest to fill his days. Many long rides he took, training Black Danger to race strays, lavishing on him all the skill he had acquired in years of riding and working with horses. He was careful to ride him only in back valleys and over unfrequented hills, jealously guarding his one possession. When he visited old friends, it was always Pinto he rode.

As he neared the stables he watched the crowd absently. In fancy he saw the figure of a tall man whose spirit yet seemed to dominate the place. As far back as Pete could remember, the passing of the years had been marked by the races, the chief figure in his simple life, this man, his grandfather, old Pete Ogden. Even as a small boy he had thrilled with pride when the men called him "Little Pete," and how clearly he recalled the day when somebody first spoke of him as "Young Pete."

Suddenly he jerked the reins, and the surprised cayuse stiffened his legs to a standstill on the steep incline. The contrast between those days and now gripped him cruelly, and he shrank from meeting old friends. Too well he knew what they called him now—"Poor Pete!"

In his bitterest moment he had one ray of comfort. His grandfather had died before it happened. He wheeled Pinto about. He would go back to the cabin where it was quiet, where no one called him Poor Pete, and where Black Danger would greet him with a joyous whinny.

A group of cowboys, riding hilariously over the hills, spurred their horses toward him.

"Hulloa, Pete! What's up? Slept any this morning?"

"Bet you dollars to doughnuts Pete's gonna put that Pinto in the big race!"

"Get a move on you, Pete. You'll be late!"

He turned and rode back with them, dismounting in the corrals. Joe Harrington, white bearded and stooped, got up from a pile of rails and man should be the most intelligent race on the globe.

"In all cases where due attention is paid to a well-balanced supply of organic salts in food, the vegetarian diet is successful and increases one's powers of endurance both physically and mentally. Abstinence from flesh foods alone, however, by no means insures health. In fact, unless accompanied by an otherwise rational diet, vegetarianism is often a retrogressive step. This is especially true if white flour products, concentrated sweets and badly prepared vegetables are used."

"Stamping Out" Tuberculosis

ALL this talk about "stamping out" tuberculosis is foolish and futile. If you could today "stamp out" every case of tuberculosis in the world, there would within six months have developed hundreds of thousands of other cases, for tuberculosis is due to wrong living, mainly to wrong eating. In fact, tuberculosis always begins in the stomach.

The only way to "stamp out" tuberculosis is to teach the people to live right—to breathe fresh air day and night, to eat natural food in a rational way, and to be clean, inwardly and outwardly.

In this way, and in no other way, may you hope to "stamp out" tuberculosis—or any other disease.

Following is an extract from a book entitled "The Tuberculosis Nurse," by Ellen N. LeMotte, formerly nurse in chief of the tuberculosis division, Health Department of Baltimore:

"In the past few years medical opinion has undergone a great change as to the value of milk and eggs. This rich and highly concentrated food is considered far less advantageous than was at first supposed. By reason of their fat content (especially eggs) they tend to cause indigestion, always a serious complication in pulmonary tuberculosis. For this reason the old idea of living on enormous quantities of milk and eggs has been largely abandoned."

I am glad that the medical fraternity is beginning to learn a little about diet. Meantime, as I have previously said, many thousands of unfortunate victims have been driven into premature graves by the outrageous, unnatural, and harmful stuffing into them of food which they are utterly unable to digest and assimilate.

Cutting Off Fat

HERE is a press dispatch:

"A trail through the operating room to girlish suppleness and that 'you just knew she wears them' figure, has been blazed here by Mrs. Thomas F. Byrne.

"For years, according to Mrs. Byrne, she has been alarmed at the rapid increase of 'too solid flesh.' Every new reducing scheme found her a ready customer—she sweated in sweat baths; she wore rubber girdles; she hoisted dumb-bells; she swung Indian clubs—all to no avail.

"And then came the announcement of Dr. Leslie F. MacDiarmid, of the University Hospital, that unwanted avoirdupois could be carved away, and Mrs. Byrne just romped to the hospital.

"It's really too simple," she said after the operation, as she smilingly looked down at her toes, strangers for years. "The surgeons just cut off the unnecessary flesh and sew you up again.'"

A new era has dawned.

Yet they expect us to take "medical science" seriously.

A Sensible Osteopath

MRS. WINIFRED GRAY STEWART of Monrovia writes:

"I never miss a chance to defend your good work, and the teachings that have meant so much to me and my family.

"My aunt, Mrs. Benson, who took your advice several months ago, is now doing housework for a family of four. She is still following your diet instructions, and the improvement in her health still continues. Her brother, an osteopath and dietitian, is very much pleased with her condition. He approves highly of most of your teachings.

"By the way, I wish, some time, you would say a few good words about competent osteopaths, and I believe there are a good many of them. There is one in this town who is doing wonders to reveal the fallacies of medicine and surgery, and teach people the way to keep their bodies in a healthy condition. He understands thoroughly the diet question, and makes it the foundation of his treatment. I know of many cases where he has saved the lives of patients by simply prohibiting food, when M.D.'s had prescribed 'taking nourishment' when said patients were in critical, sometimes almost dying, condition.

"I truly believe that the Gospel of Right Eating is gaining followers at a rapid rate. If every one of your readers could induce five others to become converts, and those five secure twenty-five more—what an endless chain of good work would be going on. And who knows but what it really is? As for myself, I know that I have steered at least five derelict ships into a safe port in the past year. One woman of 60 I induced to take a five weeks' fast for chronic dysentery. At the end of the fast she weighed less than eighty pounds. Now she weighs 125, and is a new woman, in many ways."

The Tonsils

THE wholesale extermination of tonsils, necessary organs of the body, is a medical crime. A California woman recently wrote as follows to Edmund C. Gray, M.D.:

"A few weeks ago my little girl of 8 had a slightly swollen neck and on examination by the doctor the condition was pronounced infected tonsils. The doctor said these must be removed at once. Please tell me if it is necessary or what else I can do."

To this Dr. Gray replied as follows:

"Three months ago I saw a child of 6, with tonsils the size of walnuts and interfering slightly with swallowing and breathing and producing pain in the ears. Within six weeks all symptoms were removed and the tonsils approached normal size.

"Two weeks ago I saw a young man with tonsils approximately normal in size, showing no crypts and only slight redness to indicate a possible beginning of congestion. He said that he could not feel better regardless of what might be done—that he could not see or feel how his tonsils were undermining his health; and yet doctors who, a short time before I saw him, made examinations to determine his fitness for a particular work urged him to have these little glads removed at once, for his health preservation. Upon being informed later that they were normal or very nearly so, he is of the opinion that it will take strong argument in the future to again get him convinced that an operation is necessary for the removal of any part of the body.

"Without doubt the innocent tonsils are slaughtered by the thousands because they are misunderstood. Like a human who has been given a bad name, even wrongly, they are viewed with distrust—and even when apparently normal are apt to be considered in about the same light as the old mule, who is good only that she may get in a more vicious kick when least expected. It is impossible for these organs, in themselves, to produce such widespread disturbance throughout the body as they are (dis)credited with doing, and yet they are constantly prisoners at the bar, on trial for their life as first-degree murderers. They are apparently looked upon as parasites whose sole business is to sap the energies and pollute the blood of the one who nourishes them. It is impossible to conceive of the heart or any other organs being more injurious than beneficial to the body, and yet it is just as impossible for the tonsils to endanger the life as it is for the heart and other organs. It seems to be the general belief in life insurance companies, also with the average medical physician and trained nurse, that the fewer the parts there are in the human body the fewer diseases the body can have. Consequently the removal of the tonsils is supposed to lessen just that much the susceptibility to disease.

"Bear this in mind: regardless of the abnormal condition of the tonsils, they are abnormal merely because they are neutralizing, detoxicating and filtering the poisons that are passed into and generated in the body; and if they are enlarged it is merely that they might increase their fighting force, and not because they themselvs are on the warpath. Nature has made a wonderful provision throughout the body for one organ to do the work another has failed to do. The tonsils will not take on the appearance of congestion and inflammation except when they are doing the work left undone by other detoxicating organs. It is as foolish to remove the tonsil because it aches as to remove the head because it aches; in either case there is an underlying cause for the trouble and the poor head or the poor tonsil is not primarily at fault. The basic cause of tonsilitis is invariably

The Tragedy of the Stutterer

By John Mand

Drawings by Ralph C. Criswell

NOTE: John Mand, author of this article, has a national reputation as a scientific hypnotist. He also is an authority on functional nervous diseases, such as insomnia, hysteria, fears, neurasthenia, bad habits such as excessive smoking, drinking, stuttering, stammering and others. Mr. Mand treats functional nervous cases by hypnotic suggestion; at times he advocates other forms of suggestive treatment.—Editor.]

John Mand

STARKLY tragic is the story of the stutterer. Most persons approaching this article will probably say, "My, this is going to be funny!" And then add, "I know a good story about a stutterer. A stutterer was asked by his wife to go to a hardware store to buy her a wash boiler. The stutterer entered the hardware store and when approached by the salesman started to make his wish known. By the time he finished saying b-b-b-boiler the salesman said, "sorry sir, but we have just sold the last one during the hour in which you have been making your request.'"

Tragic, indeed, is the life of a stutterer. There is an old saying that he who hesitates is lost. The stutterer is lost to many things worth while in life. His mental make-up is so often sensitive to hurts and most naturally to his disability. Many a stutterer is handcapped socally, economically and in his domestic life.

Socially he is apt to shrink from crowds. He enjoys being with the person or persons in whose presence he finds ease and sympathy.

In his early childhood he is too often the butt of the witticisms and natural cruelty of his playmates. He becomes shy and retiring. He plays alone or with his brothers and sisters only.

In school he is considered dull because he is too much embarrassed by his speech defect to answer the questions put to him. The overworked teacher often finds him a nuisance.

At home he is scolded and often severely punished for his habit. He is told that he could get over his trouble if he were only more willing and determined.

Hard to Get a Job

WHEN grown up his choice of occupation is limited more by his handicap than if he were a dull-witted fool. Only great courage and cleverness can help him find an occupation that is suited to his temperament.

Immigration officers, bearing in mind the fact that a stutterer is laboring under a disability at times, bar him.

We all stutter at times, or mumble or clutter our words through excitement or embarrassment. To the stutterer his habit is a constant source of embarrassment.

The shy child exasperates his fond parents who are trying to show up the attainments of their remarkable infant when said progeny, though not prodigy, stutters and stammers, and gulps over the beginning lines of his "piece."

One excuses the bashful youth who proposes for the first time to his first love when he hesitates and chokes in his efforts There is an old story about a freshly-made groom who in his excitement over the marriage ceremony asks the parson, "Is it k-k-kisstomary to cuss the bride?"

No disability that inflicts the human being needs more understanding and patience than stuttering.

When I quote the figures that there are about nine times as many men who stutter as there are women you can draw your own conclusions. I feel this fact is a compliment to the fair sex. We may deduce from these figures that women have greater poise; or perhaps the fact that they have the gift of a more easy flow of language.

Begins in Childhood

THIS particular derangement begins usually in early childhood. It follows at times on a long or a severe illness. Whooping-cough is one that is followed by stuttering. In the days before vaccine treatment aided in shortening the course of the disease, whooping cough sometimes lasted many weeks. The child became undernourished and weak from weariness and lack of food. The prolonged shock at times resulted in this form of speech defect. Other infections like infantile paralysis can cause this habit to develop. A mental shock following upon an injury or fright over an unpleasant experience is a potent factor. Fears instilled into a child's mind are perhaps the greatest cause in bringing on this affliction.

If a child grows up in a household which harbors another stutterer he is apt to contract the habit.

Deliberate imitation of a stutterer can develop this habit. This usually occurs only in a child. Recently, however, I treated a case of stuttering in an adult that was developed by imitation. A patient from Hollywood came to my office. His occupation was one most favored in that city. He was a moving-picture actor. This man was of a humorous cast of mind. He was often called upon to entertain his fellow-actors and one of his particular stunts, as he called it, was to give an imitation of a stutterer. This act was so thoroughly appreciated that he was often called upon to repeat it. He gradually acquired the habit and it became so embarrassing that he came to me for help. It took several weeks of hypnotic treatment before his habit was broken up. Naturally I cautioned him against his repeating this particular "stunt" before any audience.

The best preventive against stuttering is to get at the basis of the child's trouble.

Should be Strengthened

THE child should be built up physically after an illness. His anaemia should be corrected. He should be fed properly. Any defect in his nose, throat or mouth should receive intant care; such as enlarged tonsils and adenoids which should be removed; plastic surgery aids a hare-lip or cleft palate; weak facial muscles should be treated by farradic current and exercises; a tongue that is tied should be cut free.

At this point I want to emphasize the fact that if there is a minor speech defect caused by an anatomical one, do not lay too much emphasis on this trouble until the proper surgical aid has been given and afterward use real discretion toward the child. Do not make him too much aware of his trouble. Imitation of correct speech which he hears in his elders will cause him to outgrow the faulty speech.

So far I have emphasized largely the best means physically to aid the child. The greatest of preventives in keeping the child from becoming an unhappy stutterer is preventing fears from clouding and deranging the mental life of the child. Eliminate all fears in a child's mind as they arise. Give him sympathy and encouragement if he has a bad habit of any sort. Overlook it where possible. He will get over it so much sooner. Scolding and punishment never yet helped a stuttering child to speak normally. Be gentle and helpful. The more the child is scolded the more embarrassed he gets and the less chance he has for overcoming his speech defect because primarily, disregarding a possible physical defect, the habit of stuttering is mental, pure and simple. This fact adults realise least of all.

Very often the only cure for the child is to take him away from the home atmosphere.

The mental make-up of a stutterer, as I said before, is usually sensitive. He is apt to be melancholy. His depression may become so deep as to lead to suicidal thoughts. Rarely do you find a stutterer who is of a cheerful disposition. Scarcely any of them are as optimistic as Mr. Brown.

Mr. Brown was a stutterer. He met a fellow-sufferer by the name of Mr. Smith He said, "How do you do, Mr. Smith. How are you? Still having trouble with your speech? W-w-w-w-hy don't you go see Dr. B-b-b-b-b-arker? He c-c-c-c-cured me."

Two Types of Stutterers

GENERALLY speaking, there are two types of stutterers. One type rushes headlong in his speech when he once has made the start. He is overanxious. He is afraid his speech will go back on him. Nervous control is usually lacking. He is highly excitable. This type of stutterer is usually a young person. As he gets older his habit of speech changes. Often his speech becomes slower. Years of brooding over his defect make him depressed and saddened. This is the second type. There is the exception to this depressed type of person. That is the man who has tried and largely succeeded in taking a humorous point of view about his difficulty; or an indifferent attitude sometimes develops. This type of man is the fortunate being among his fellow-sufferers.

The treatment of the stutterer is directed along two main lines. Chief of the two is the mental treatment of a mental derangement. To find the cause of the patient's nervousness is practically to find his cure. This other form of treatment which goes hand in hand with the treatment of the mental condition is the mechanical. The mental difficulty may be ty years to discover the value of a simple remedy like fasting, how long will it take them to accept the great simple natural truths that we have been teaching.

"For twenty-five years we have been presenting the great principles of health-building. Our health authorities — all medical men—are supposed to take advantage of every opportunity to advance the public health, but they have continuously ignored great natural truths.

"When will we as a nation wake up and insist upon securing dependable and efficient health-building service?

"The recent revelations of the 'diploma mills' with allopathic credentials in the various parts of this country aroused the entire nation.

"Let us hope that this is only the beginning of exposures that will make honest doctors everywhere realize that the present ethics of the medical profession need radical revision.

Some day doctors everywhere will understand and use, in addition to fasting, scientific dieting and vitality-building through exercise, hydrotherapy and mental treatments. Then we will have physicians with knowledge founded on unassailable principles and death previous to old age will be a rare exception."

Schools

A TEMPORARY injunction has been issued against the Oregon law forbidding private schools. This should be made permanent. When the public schools begin to give a reasonable course of training, paying some attention to the individual, and when they cease to be happy hunting grounds for the Medical Trust and the Milk Trust, then will be time enough to talk about forbidding private schools, which now fill a long-felt want.

Mind and Body

IF you are inclined to doubt the great power of the mind over the body, seek out a man who is poor and sick. Hand him—as a loan, if he will not accept a gift—a hundred-dollar bill, and observe the remarkable effectiveness of this green plaster on his mind and body.

Again, see that man about to sit down to a big dinner, with an appetite to match, when a telegram is handed to him, telling that his bank has failed and he is ruined. Where is his big appetite? A mouthful of food would choke him. Yet, nothing has happened to his body.

It is true there are men so philosophical as not to be affected by the smiles and frowns of fate, but they are white blackbirds. This is why the baseless fear of microbes and infection, taught by the doctors, is so cruelly harmful.

On the other hand, do not fall into the foolish error of believing that "all is mind." That is nonsense. Man is a compound of mind and body. They act and react on each other. If one is sick the other must suffer. When a man is wise, the mind controls the body, walks the quarter-deck, and gives orders.

Flesh Food

FOLLOWING is from Current Opinion:

"Vegetarians should rise up in arms and whet their indignation, if not their appetites, on Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, who deals a blow to the popular fallacy that man cannot live on meat alone. In the London Spectator, recounting his Arctic experiences in accustoming a score of average Americans and Europeans to a 100 per cent meat diet, he states that his men ate square meals at first, but gradually lost their appetites, until at the end of two or three weeks they were nauseated by the very thought of meat. And they usually went without meals, sometimes for one day and sometimes for longer. It was at this point that the medical-school experiment was stopped, for the experimenters were prepossessed by the belief that the men were about to die. 'My view, however, was that the revulsion against meat was psychological and would in due time be overcome by hunger. This invariably turned out to be the case. After a more or less prolonged fast the men commenced nibbling; presently they nibbled some more, and at the end of a few days they were eating square meals again. Within a few weeks they had regained normal weight, and at the end of six months they [illegible]

"Stefansson estimates that out of eleven and a half years in the polar regions he has spent about 5000 days on a 100 per cent meat diet. For the first two or three years he used to 'hanker' frequently for vegetables and fruits, but by the fourth or fifth year he ceased to do so except as one may after twenty years think occasionally of mother's cooking or in a foreign country recall the staple dishes of one's native land.

"After stubbornly contesting the evidence as to whether life on a meat diet is possible at all, the second line of defense is usually to say that while it may serve for an Arctic climate, it would never do in the so-called temperate zones or in the tropics. On this point it is not easy to get much evidence, for, by the nature of tropical and temperate civilization, vegetable foods are more abundant than animal and are eaten for that reason. However, Dr. Carl Lumholtz, who spent considerable time among the aborigiees of Northern or tropical Australia, records that the people he lived with ate vegetables only when they had to. According to his account they were forced to this by a scarcity of meat much more frequently than occurs with the Eskimos, but they have always looked upon it as a hardship.

"The common supposition is that a meat diet would lead to rheumatism, gout and premature old age. Stefansson says he has yet to feel his first twinge of rheumatism, his blood pressure is normal for his age, and 'several of the leading specialists in New York have just examined me and have found no trace of any of the consequences that are supposed to follow from a meat diet.'"

On this subject Otto Carque writes:

"An exhaustive investigation of the subject of flesh foods leads every unprejudiced thinker to the inevitable conclusion that from a purely scientific viewpoint their use cannot be justfied. Of course, there are those who are influenced by habit, fashion, or commercialism, or who are forced to live mostly on meat in the absence of other foods, such as the natives of the North. Attention, however, should be called to the fact that the Eskimo does not subsist entirely on meat. Many green herbs and weeds, also salmon berries, are eaten during the short summer season. A seaweed common in the north is eaten quite largely. We must also remember that the Eskimo eats his meat raw without the addition of salt or condiments, that he preserves the blood and partakes frequently of the animal's organs, which contain some vitamins and mineral elements lacking in the muscular tissues. If the arguments of those who declare meat essential for the development of a superior mentality were true, the Eski-

KILLS CATARRH GERMS IN THREE MINUTES

Wonderful French Discovery Succeeds After Everything Else Has Failed

Thousands who have suffered from catarrh, head noises, difficult breathing, hawking, etc., and who have tried everything without success, say that the famous new scientific discovery, Lavex, rid them of their troubles in a few days. Many say they had no further trouble after the first three minutes of treatment.

Lavex is a French discovery, easily used by simply inhaling a pleasant, harmless powder, which tends to kill the catarrh germs almost instantly. Lavex reaches every part of the breathing passages, which cannot be done with ordinary salves, ointments, sprays, etc. The results are astonishing in their rapidity. For instance, Rev. J. F. Stephens, a widely known preacher, says, "I have suffered from catarrh for years and my doctor said there was no cure. Had to quit preaching as a Methodist Minister. After using Lavex I can sleep and eat well, voice is clear, can walk or run or work as well as I could twenty years ago and I am now sixty-nine."

So confident is W. R. Smith, 1003 Lavex Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., American distributor of Lavex, that it will rid you of all your catarrh troubles, in no time at all, that he generously offers to send a treatment on free trial. No obligation, no cost, comes to you in plain wrapper, postpaid. If it cures you, you can repay the favor by telling your friends, if not, the loss is Mr. Smith's, therefore you should accept this liberal offer today by simply sending your name and address to Mr. Smith and prove you can be rid of catarrh.—[Advertisement.

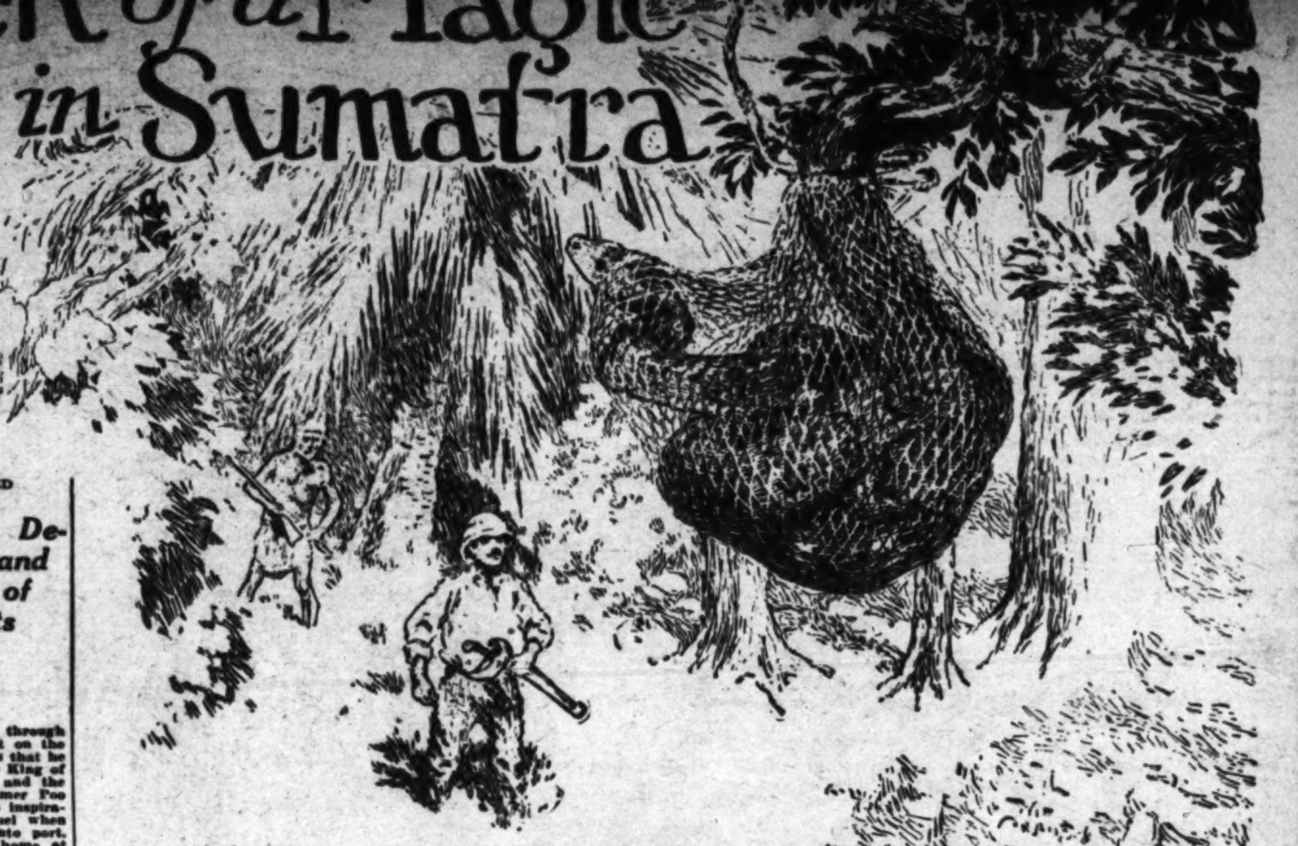
Catch of a Magic Net in Sumatra

By Charles Mayer

Illustrated by WILL CRAWFORD



An enormous python was half in the bag, half out.

Contrivance Carefully Designed for Leopards and Tigers — The Fame of the Invention and its Effect Upon the Natives

NOTE: After having been compelled, through the misfortune of a heavy storm, to cast on the China Sea the entire consignment of beasts that he was transporting as a royal gift from the King of Siam to the King of Spain, Mr. Mayer and the passengers and crew of the tramp steamer Poo Ann, escaped with their lives only by his inspiration to have the vessel use copra as fuel when the coal was gone. Thus they limped into port, whereupon Mr. Mayer returned to his home at Trengganu, where we now find him.

This is the fourth of a new series of articles upon adventures in the wilds of Sumatra and Borneo by Mr. Mayer, who is one of the most noted of animal trappers and trainers of the Orient or the West. The fifth article, "A Death Duel in the Jungle," will appear in an early issue.—Editor.]

IT WAS when I was idling at the kuala in Trengganu, making daily visits to the Sultan just for the pleasure it gave me to be with him—that an idea struck me. It struck me so hard that it knocked me out of the mood for soft cushions, tobacco and slow talk. I decided to go at once to Palembang, in Sumatra, and get into action.

"Pack up," I said to Hai Chu I, my Chinese "boy," and to the Sultan, "Now I must go away."

"You are like a man," he said, "to whom some hand is beckoning. What is this sign you see? Is it a good sign?"

"I cannot tell you in words," I answered, "because it came to me in a picture. I will make a picture of it for you."

With a pencil and paper I drew a diagram. It was my new idea set down in black and white—an idea for catching the wild beasts that climb in trees. It was very simple.

The Sultan looked me full in the eyes. "You are very clever," he said. At the moment I was so pleased with my invention that I was almost inclined to agree with him.

From Trengganu to Palembang is a long journey. But I knew Sumatra—knew that it was a trappers' paradise—and I was eager to try out my new scheme. I went first to Singapore, where I took a small steamer that deposited me in Palembang in two days. I realized then that it was not only the business of animal-trapping that had brought me, but a longing to be again with an old hadji, my first real friend in the Malay States. I had not seen him since my visit to him after the tragic death of Ali, his nephew, and my faithful servant, gored to death before my eyes by a tapir.

A New Way With Beasts

IMPATIENT as I was to be off to the Malay quarter, I must first present myself at the Government House. I there received a sort of verbal freedom of the settlement.

As I walked toward the house of the hadji, he came to meet me. He touched his brow and his breast, and his deeply-lined and kindly face shone with pleasure. "You have come here to see me—to honor an old man with your visit—but there is some other thing that has really brought you. What is it?"

"A picture came into my mind," I told him, "as if it had walked on legs, and I saw myself capturing wild beasts in trees in a new and strange way."

"You were ever a worker of magic, tuan," he answered.

I said: "When I wish to trap a rhinoceros, I got him to step on a spot that he thinks is good solid earth, and it gives away under him."

"Betul" (True.)

"It will be the same with a leopard He will trust his weight to the branch of a tree that seems solid in every part, but, since it is half sawed in two, it will break beneath him."

"And he will fall to the ground on four good legs, according to his habit, and take himself off?"

"No, no. Before he falls, lured by the smell of live chickens, he will have sprung into a net that lies mouth open along the branch over the gash in the limb."

"Then net and beast will fall to the ground together?"

"No, once more. In and out, round the mouth of the net, is laced a rope. The end of this is tied to a strong branch above. When the lower limb breaks and falls, the mouth of the net is drawn together by the rope, pulling against the weight of the beast. He will hang from the upper branch until I come with my men and cut him down."

The Demonstration

AFTER the morning meal next day, the making of the trial net began. The hadji selected two rapid rattan workers. An audience gathered to watch them, and their fingers flew. The net, when finished, was long enough to hold a large leopard and had a round opening three feet in diameter. A twisted rattan rope with a long, free end was laced around it.

By the time everything was ready for the "try-out" my fame had spread to the farthest corner of the Malay quarter, and we had an audience of a hundred or more trailing after us when we went out to select a tree.

A suitable tree was found just outside the kampong. It had two strong branches, one above the other. A man was sent up to saw half through the lower branch, and the net was so placed along it that this gash came at about the middle of its length. The body and mouth of the net were held open by slender strips of rattan tied to twigs. The end of the draw-rope was attached to the upper branch.

The man now sat straddling the limb just before the open mouth of the net, and a stone weighing about twenty pounds was hoisted up to him. He held it poised in his hands for a moment, then heaved it into the rattan bag. There was a crash. Down went the end of the limb, the net and stone with it. The men below sprang away, but the net did not touch the earth. With the mouth drawn closely together, it swung free, suspended from the upper branch.

So far, my invention worked. The hadji explained to the bewildered audience that this was a dress rehearsal and the stone would later be a leopard trying to get a chicken. It was interesing to watch their faces as they caught the idea. "Betul" they said. Over and over: "Betul! Betul!"—slowly nodding heir heads.

A Fascinated Observer

IT WAS a lucky thing for me that among the onlookers there was a traveler from the Southwest, Abdul Rahman, who had come down the River Musi from a place six days' journey away. He had come down on a raft of bamboo poles and had brought crude rubber to sell and the very best quality of rattan. The raft itself was to be broken up and the poles sold for building purposes. He and his men would go back in the boat they had brought down as a trailer. That was his original plan, but, being a man of resource, he decided to change it and take me back with him. He had fallen in love with my swinging bag. Abdul Rahman was a man of importance in the district from which he came. He was the Peng-hulu (headman) over three kampongs.

No monarch could have invited me to his kingdom with greater dignity than Abdul Rahman, as he asked me to come to his kampong. "There are beasts in the jungle there," he said, "many, many, like grains of sand, and their skins shine like level water in the sun."

I talked the matter over with the hadji, whose advice I greatly valued. He assured me that the man "spoke truth."

It was Abdul's bamboo raft and the evident ease with which he had come down the river that finally decided me. The finest animal in the world is no good to a collector if there is no easy means of transportation at hand.

The hadji picked out the boats I was to take. The one in which I was to travel was fully forty feet long and the one that was to carry my supplies was thirty-five feet. The supply boat was capable of carrying a ton and a half. They had been made by the hollowing out of huge logs and they had been very carefully thinned down and were shaped not unlike great canoes.

"A Worker of Magic"

WHEN the time came for the selection of the men, an embarrassing situation arose. Almost the entire male population of the kampong offered itself. I had not only a reputation as a worker of magic, but as a man who bestowed money freely. The expedition promised plenty of food and plenty of sport. The hadji took over the delicate matter of selection. He picked out ten men for me, fine specimens, five for each boat. The men traveled light. They carried merely an extra sarong, twisted round their heads as a turban. They all wore at their sides their parangs, heavy, eighteen-inch knives. A Malay without a knife is no Malay at all.

We got off at sundown. Abdul Rahman's boat led the way.

It was in the afternoon of the sixth day that we neared his kampong. A crowd had collected on the river-bank. The kampong was naturally expecting the return of its headman, but instead of one boat, here were three! The kajang-roof on my boat meant to them a European, because the natives never use this protection from the sun.

Abdul Rahman waited until we had all landed and he was surrounded by a wide-eyed circle. Then he announced: "The tuan is a pawang (witch-doctor.) No beast can take his life. He has come to kill all the animals in the jungle. He is a worker of magic. I have seen."

The crowd parted silently to let me and my men pass. They were deeply awed.

An Unexpected Encounter

ABDUL put me up at his own house. While I waited on his veranda, his women gave it a furious house-cleaning: The supplies were brought up by many hands. "Chu I" allowed them to carry everything but the sacred guns; these he looked after himself. Every man and boy wanted the honor of carrying one of the tuan's possessions. "He is not a Dutchman," I overheard them saying. And: "He can work wonders. The peng-hulu has seen and heard."

I told Abdul that I must have quantities of rattan in lengths of at least thirty feet and that his men must cut for me straight young trees two inches thick and at least death. The physical tolerance and craving, growing with addiction, demand an ever-increasing quantity. The average addict takes ten grains of morphine daily, eighty times a normal dose, and is paying $1 a grain and up.

CARE OF THE BODY

"It is estimated that more than nine-tenths of all murders, hold-ups and daring robberies are now committed by addicts. It is especially the addict of heroin who is capable of cruel and daring crimes. The name 'heroin' is derived from the psychology of the addict. Under the drug's influence he feels he is a hero. He will dare anything. He will do anything.

"America, richest country in the world, and the country with no apparent enemy, is the special objective of organzed exploitation. The latest reliable figures show that Italy consumes one grain of narcotic drugs per capita per annum; Germany, two; England, three; France, four, and the United States, thirty-six!

"Already the amount consumed in the United States is enough to drug every man, woman and child in the entire nation for thirty days out of every year. The amount consumed is increasing at the rate of more than one-half grain per capita per year. Our country is rapidly becoming a drugged nation. We need not wonder at the persistent wave of crime and other alarming symptoms in our social structure."

Remember that almost all these deadly drugs have been introduced by "medical science." Then, when they find they are dangerous they denounce them, when it is too late.

Also remember that the only way to give up a drug is to purify the body by fasting and abstemious diet. There is absolutely no other way.

Rational Exercise

Do not think that I underestimate the value of rational exercise. By no means. A certain amount of exercise is necessary, especially for those who lead sedentary lives. There must be elimination as well as alimentation. However, most of the exercise that people force themselves to take is for the purpose of working off the waste products of surplus food. The jousts and tournaments, and other strenuous "stunts" of the Middle Ages, and the fox-hunting of English squires today, are efforts to work off the consequences of gross feeding. Were it not for these safety valves, gormandizers would die of apoplexy, earlier than they often do. As it is, they live on and develop gout.

If you eat only enough to furnish heat and energy, and repair waste, you need but little exercise to keep yourself in good condition. It should be taken regularly. Remember that ten minutes of exercise daily is better than two hours once a week. The main object of exercise should be, not to strengthen the arms, but to keep the spine limber, by bending and twisting. Expansion of the lungs is also important. One of those elastic exercisers that can be affixed to a door jamb is a good thing for sedentary people. If you are engaged in writing, exercise your left arm more than the right. Tennis, golf and gardening are all good forms of exercise. Also, do not forget the almost forgotten art of walking, which is simple, convenient and inexpensive.

To overeat, with the result of having to overexercise, is a double waste of time and energy. Besides this, you cannot escape the evil effects of overeating by freely exercising, although you may modify and postpone them.

Fasting

BERNARR McFADDEN writes:

"Fasting as a means of curing disease is an old remedy. It is frequently referred to in the Bible.

"Christ fasted forty days.

"Moses fasted for a longer period.

"All through the Great Book you will find frequent reference to this means of bodily purification.

"More than twenty years have elapsed since fasting was first referred to in this publication as an important means of curing bodily ills. But our medical authorities have persistently refused to officially recognize its universal value. Only a few short years ago the public was impressed with the idea that to go without food for a week or more meant certain death. Numerous people have died when compelled to endure compulsory fasting for this short period, largely because they thought they had to die.

It is perhaps desirable to be conservative. We are not expected to jump at new things, but we should not wait until the proof of their value is overwhelming.

"With our medical authorities, at least, there should be a different attitude. They have been entrusted with the health of the public. The life and death of millions of people depend upon them.

"If they really deserved the confidence of the public, whom they are serving they would investigate every means of cure that is given prominent public attention.

"But in all the years that we have been advocating fasting as a means of curing disease, there has been no official investigation by the medical profession as to its value. No medical college, no great university, as far as the general public knows, has endeavored to investigate fasting, with one great outstanding exception.

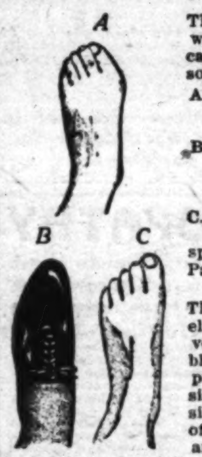
"And it is to this exception, doubtless, that we will be able to credit the 'breaking of the ice.' The whole public may now be given an opportunity through medical channels to understand the extraordinary curative powers of this simple means of health building.

"In a previous issue we called attention to the experiments made at the Chicago University in which Dr. A. J. Carlson found that a fast of fifteen days brought renewed vigor that lasted for months.

"If it takes the medical profession twen-

PROPER CARE OF THE FEET

The human foot is so delicately constructed that proper attention must be given in order to keep it normal and strong. Abuse of the foot causes displacement of the bones, muscles and ligaments, and the entire body suffers as a result. Pain or fatigue are often the first warnings that some part of the foot needs to be supported or strengthened by proper footwear.



These drawings show what Princess Pats can do for a foot if resorted to in time:

A. Showing position of foot with weakened arch and pronation.
B. Showing Princess Pat preventive model designed to aid in correcting.
C. Showing position of foot that has responded to Princess Pat correction.

The Princess Pat model is developed for prevention of arch trouble. It is built with a perfectly straight inside line and a full outside tread. The heel is of special construction and the arch is protected by a specially built steel arch that will not break down. This model is designed in sports patterns as well as in plain oxfords and straps. It retails from $8.50 to $12.50.

Prince Pat:

The Prince Pat, for men, is built on the same tried principles incorporated in the Princess Pat. The same perfect support through the reinforced arch, the same straight inner sole line and sweeping outer curve gently forcing the foot back into normal contour and position, the same clinging, close-fitting heel. The Prince Pat is like the Princess Pat, too, in good locks, having smart style features that appeal to men who demand high perfection in the appearance and wear as in the comfort of their shoes. They retail at $10.00, $11.00 and $12.00 in either high or low models.

Children's Shoes:

Let Nature have its way with children's feet. Our lasts for boys and girls are built with the same idea of support and correct alignment that is incorporated in the famous corrective and preventive shoes described above. Every pair is scientifically fitted by experts in the juvenile sections. $4.50 to $7.50, according to size.

Rupture Kills 8,000 Annually

Eight thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and all truss sufferers in the land are invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own homes. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—comparatively inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., 298 Stuart Bldg., St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and instructive information. (c) P.L.

twelve feet high. While this was being done, I decided to make an excursion into the wilds to look the ground over. I took with me my ten men and Abdul Rahman with three of his men. We had gone a very short distance when the men in front stopped dead.

"There is a tiger!" they cried.

The tiger came unawares, and probably was surprised as we were, for rarely is this beast encountered in the daytime. The men jumped back, leaving me at the head of the procession. I never carry anything in the jungle but a parang in my hand. My gun was with Abdul, who was close behind me. He thrust it forward, and I grabbed it.

Here was the first test I was to be put to in the eyes of these natives. It was a vital moment. The tiger was about a hundred feet away—a beauty. Up went his tail. I knew what that meant. A tiger always twitches up his tail before he springs.

The Marksman's Spot

IN A MOMENT he would let out his coughing roar and leave the ground in a spring. I have heard that roar dozens of times. It is paralyzing. No man or beast can hear it calmly. But the roar never came. On the striped creature's breast was the snowy white spot a tiger wears, as if for the benefit of the marksman. I took a quick but careful aim and sent a 50-110 explosive bullet straight through it. The tiger rolled over in the grass. I ran forward and the natives followed me. The bullet had made a killing wound.

The men began to heap insults on the dead creature. They spat on him and called him names. "Why didn't you stay at home?" they cried. "You wanted to see who was coming, didn't you? Well, you saw! You wanted chicken, didn't you? You got some lead!"

They hung the body up so that it would not be eaten by animals while we finished our reconnoitering. When we came back in an hour or two all hands helped at skinning it. Our little party went back to the kampong in a state of jubilation—not so much because a tiger had been killed as because I had stood the test.

When a number of the swinging bags had been made under my direction, I called together the men of the kampong to explain how these nets were expected to work.

When I went to look for trees in which to place them, I found a dozen or more with fresh marks of leopard' claws on the bark. The leopard, after all, has much of the domestic cat in him and where he goes once he goes again. Fortunately, before I set out, the possibility of having trouble with monkeys had occurred to me. The place was full of them.

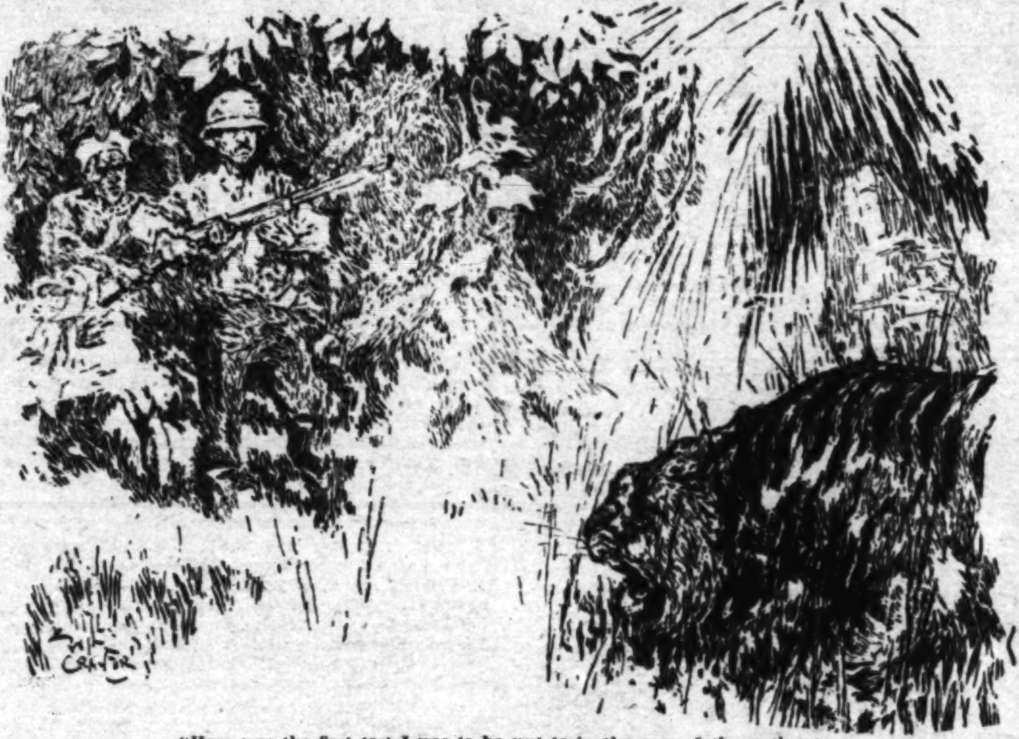
A monkey has no legitimate interest in live, fluttering chickens, but his curiosity is enormous. If he discovered one of my ropes tied to the upper branch of a tree, he was capable of worrying the knot or even sliding down the rope itself to investigate. In order to guard against this, our final operation, after the net was placed, was to smear the upper branch and the net itself with bird-lime. I took the greatest care in arranging the nets.

About 8 o'clock the following morning we started out to see what luck we had. There were twenty men with me. The first net to which we came was empty, but there was a stupid monkey chattering above it. He had his paw stuck up with bird-lime and had also managed to damage some of the pieces of rattan which held the net open. We repaired the mouth, which was sagging, and then went on to the next net—empty, too!

As we neared the third one, Abdul Rahman was well in the lead. He caught sight of it in the distance, stopped dead and threw out his hands, palms back, as if to warn us. He continued to stand there without a word, without moving. I ran to him. He turned and stared at me with a queer, dazed look.

"Ghost—Ghost!"

THIS man bred on the edge of the jungle had seen a strange sight. For a moment I did not understand. I could make out the bag clearly. It hung down limp from the upper branch and was distended. Obviously an animal was in it.



"Here was the first test I was to be put to in the eyes of the natives."

Then something happened that was stranger than anything I had ever seen in my life. The bag swung slowly to the right, then to the left, and lifted itself straight into the air. When it had stopped there for a moment, needing no support from above or below, it waved about with a sickening motion, then slowly lowered itself and hung limp again.

The men crowded up to see. I could hear their heavy breathing. "Ghost! Yes, ghost!" I heard them say. The air was thick with superstitious awe. There is a contagion about that sort of thing. I was by no means ready to take an oath that I had not caught the devil. I had never seen gravity defied before.

It was Abdul Rahman's "Let us go back, tuan," that sent me running forward. The spotted sunlight confused me and it was not until I was almost under the net that I saw what had actually happened. There my relief broke from me in English, which I had hardly spoken for months. I heard myself shout. "That's no sight for a drinking man!"

A Matter of Life and Death

AN ENORMOUS python was half in the bag, half out. He had shot into it for the chickens, had swallowed one, in fact. The branch had broken with him; the draw-rope at the mouth of the bag had tightened about his middle, and it was further tightened by his weight.

The end of his tail was wrapped about the branch. He proceeded to give me another demonstration of how he could haul himself up with it. I began to laugh. I roared. There is nothing so reassuring as laughter. The natives ran up to me. When they saw what it was, their half-naked bodies swayed and doubled with mirth.

My own laughter stopped suddenly. The thought had come to me that, though we had a fine prize, more than three yards of snake were still free. This was sobering. The managing of a python's tail is a matter of life and death.

Fortunately we had plenty of good rope with us. I sent a fine, active fellow up the tree with explicit directions. He was to tie a rope in a slip-knot on the snake's tail and—very near the end of the tail—to give the rope what is called a "half-hitch." He carried out the directions and then, passing the long rope under the branch, he threw the free end to the men below. They gave it a strong pull, which loosened the hold of the snake one coil, drawing the tip of his tail downward.

Holding quite taut the rope attached to the tail, they threw the free end of the rope to the man in the tree. He passed it over the branch and dropped it again. A strong jerk and another coil was loosened. In short, they unwound the snake, loop after loop, by means of the rope, which served, in a way, as an elongation of his tail.

Ticklish Work

ANOTHER rope, fastened with a slip-noose around him where his body extended beyond the bag, was pulled also to loosen his hold on the branch. A second man was holding the rope by which the net was tied to the upper branch—ready to lower it when the time came. It was delicate and most dangerous work. A python's constricting power reaches to the last inch of him, and, though half of him was confined, he could still strike a terrific blow. When the last coil was unwound, the men held the tail and body ropes taut, and the bag was lowered.

While the net was still off the ground, we dealt with the snake's head. He had managed to force it through the mesh of the net and was hissing his threats. A python is not poisonous, but he can give a nasty bite. One of the men took off his sarong. This was folded flat and used to press the snake's head back into the bag. Then, pulling and hauling, all hands set to work to wrap the free end of the snake round and round the bag as if it had been a spool.

When he had been wound to the point where the rope was tied round his body, that was wrapped with him—being passed over him, back and forth, to hold him more firmly. The rope on the tip of the tail was also put round him and the bag for good measure.

The whole thing was then attached to a pole. Since the great bundle was fully eight feet long, it was looped up to the carrying-pole at both ends. The python weighed all of 200 pounds. He was twenty feet long. The men had been at the work of securing him for two hours without a break. To keep Malays at work for two hours is an art in itself. They were pouring sweat. I decided that they had all better have a rest before we undertook the home stretch.

We sat on the ground, I smoking and the men chewing betel-nut. Each man began telling the others just what he had thought when he saw the bag waving in the air.

Abdul Rahman leaned toward me. He touched his brow in some embarrassment. "Would the tuan do me the honor," he said, "of telling me the charm he pronounced when he saw the net lifted high? Was it words of strong magic?"

"Abdul Rahman," I answered solemnly, "it is a charm that has to do with the devil of devils!"

ANCIENT BUDDHIST ART IS SAVED FROM CAVE IN INDIAN WILDERNESS

OF AN unusual character is an exhibition in London of pictures representing the native art of India. It consists of Mukul Dey's collection of copies of old Buddhist frescoes on the walls of the caves of Ajanta and Bagh. Not only do the pictures show an indigenous art, rivaling that of ancient Egypt and contemporaneous with that of Augustan Rome, but their painting is the result of an artist's ambition achieved after years of self-sacrifice and months of danger in the jungle.

The fresco copy called "Buddha's Return to His Wife and Son After His Enlightment," probably dates from the sixth century A. D.

The caves in which these frescoes are to be found, now ruined and hidden by jungle, were once famous Buddhist monasteries and universities, which flourished from 300 B. C. to 700 A. D. Out of living rock, overlooking a wooded gorge, monks carved a series of caves, chapels, refectories, dormitories—ornamenting the exterior with beautiful colonnades and entrance portals seventy feet high, and decorating the walls of the interior with frescoes. The caves, completed in varying centuries, portray a thousand years of art, from its beginning until it was arrested by the ravages of the Mongol invader and fell into oblivion.

Mukul Dey was still a young art student when, fifteen years ago, he formed a resolution to copy the crumbling frescoes, that the beauty of this almost forgotten art period might be preserved for the future generations of India. Having no private means he painted portraits for 2 and 3 rupees apiece until he had saved 2000 rupees and was able in 1919 to make the journey of 1000 miles from his home in Calcutta to the caves.

"I lived in the Ajanta caves for eight months," Mukul Dey said recently. "I was five miles from a village, fifteen miles from a bazaar and fifty miles from a railroad station. The only food I could get was a little rice and lentils. I found the caves were used by tigers, and that every night between 12 and 1 o'clock they left their lairs, returning in the early morning.

"As the tigers passed by the cave where I and my old coolie servant slept on the stone beds and stone pillows carved by the monks they would look with suspicion at us, but on only one occasion did they attempt to interfere with us. On that night I woke up and found that the fire, which we had lighted to keep them off, had burned low and that three huge beasts had gathered around the embers staring at us. I hurriedly threw some dried wood on the fire, and they disappeared as it flared up. I do not think they were very dangerous. They moved about so quietly and peacefully they seemed to have become like Buddhist monks from their long residence in the caves."

On his return to Bombay, Mukul Dey sold some of the copies of the frescoes he had made and these were afterward presented by their purchasers to the Bombay government and art school. He then went to England and studied art at the Slad school and Royal College of Art and exhibited at the New English Art Club.

Night Song

Down by the river agleam in the moonlight,
  Frail little wind flowers whisper and sway.
Tall silver birches, their leaves all aquiver,
  Sigh as they speed the fast dying day.
Little birds call to their mates that 'tis bed time!
  Fainter and fainter the night noises grow:
Only the moon and the stars watch in silence,
  Only the wind calls in voice soft and low.
Day was too short for the joys that have vanished!
  Day was too long for its grief and its pain!
Night brings new strength to the heart that is famished,
  Strength to go onward and upward again.
Wrap in your mantle of moonlight our sorrows,
  Rock them to sleep on the winds perfumed breast!
Bring us the promise of brighter tomorrows—
  Hold us, O gently—and lull us to rest!

able to do this highly emotional part because he keeps himself in perfect physical condition all the time.

"I think the American desire for athletic supremacy is perhaps the greatest thing you have To my mind it offsets the rush and hurry of the average American life and it is the reason that Americans do not die young. I understand that hundreds of thousands of your people play golf at least once a week and that millions attend the various athletic contests such as the football and baseball games. Nothing could be better than that these people should get out into the open air and enjoy pleasurable and keen excitement. The fact that as many as possible of your schoolchildren indulge in athletic sports and that they are encouraged to take exercise lays the firm foundation for health in afterlife.

"America has another great advantage and that is prohibition. I understand that the passing generation is finding it hard to accept but it will be a wonderful thing for the generations to come. They will never have known the lack of prohibition and will have no desire for alcohol and that means that America will have a finer breed of men and women than ever before.

"We all, Americans and Oberammergauers, strive for the same result in our own ways. We all try to be as healthy as possible and the demands of our lives are met by the conditions under which we work and live. In Oberammergau we live the simple life—early to bed and early to rise with much hard work—and we are healthy. Here you do much the same thing in your own way and you reach the same result."

Habit-Forming Drugs

FOLLOWING is an article from the Western Osteopath:

"A search of the pupils' lockers was recently made by the school authorities of a high school in a small city of Southern California. In fifty of the boys' lockers and in fourteen of the girls' lockers narcotics were found.

"In Texas a Federal grand jury found that boys between the ages of 12 and 15 years are being taught the use of narcotic drugs. One boy stated to officers of the law that twenty of his companions are drug users. Peddlers of drugs give the children their first supplies of these drugs, so as to increase their illicit sales.

"The addict to other kinds of drugs in many cases prefers that children or even adults should not accompany him along his path of pain and terror, but heroin and cocaine addicts want company. They have an insane desire to enlist others. Formerly most addicts were the result of medical treatment. Addicts of this sort now represent but a small fraction of the total. They are recruited in a systematic and organized way.

"Sheriff Traeger of Los Angeles county declares that 90 per cent of the crime committed in the county is traceable to users of narcotics. The warden of San Quentin prison, California, reports that 90 per cent of the inmates of that institution have been users of narcotics.

"Humanity has entered suddenly a new environment of peril—the peril of narcotic addiction. Already, so quickly that we scarcely can realize what has happened, habit-forming drugs mean a life-in-death of terror and suffering for millions, with America leading the world in consumption of opium, morphine, cocaine and heroin. For other perils—venomous reptiles, poisonous plants, wild beasts, storm and flood—the race, in the slow process of evolutionary experience, has found its defenses, based on acquired knowledge of the thing to be feared. For this new peril there is no precedent in racial experience. Its suddenness has found mankind unprepared to meet or combat it.

"Modern chemistry, largely responsible, as yet offers no sure defense against the Frankenstein monster of its own creation. In its effort to alleviate human suffering, science has increased the sum total of human misery and has lent itself to the merciless exploitation of the race. Habit-forming drugs, especially opium, have been used to exploit society for many centuries. Such drugs became a menace in Asia, under the exploitation of powerful trading companies, in the days when crude opium was virtually the only form of commercial narcotic.

"About 100 years ago a chemist discovered how to produce morphine from opium. Then the menace extended to Europe, whose traders had extended opium in Asia to the great degradation and misery of the Asiatics. About fifty years ago another chemist, experimenting with the leaves of the coca plant, produced cocaine. This increased the menace and extended the scope of exploitation for addiction purposes.

"In 1898 a chemist discovered heroin, another child of opium, and four times as powerful as morphine. Then the present stage of the menace, now a pressing peril, began. In 1909 heroin appeared in America in the practice of medicine. At first it was not believed to be habit-forming. The medical profession after a time outlawed its use. It is no longer recognized as a legitimate drug in medical practice. Soon, however, heroin was recognized as more capable of commercial exploitation than any other narcotic. The great expansion of narcotic addiction in America, given impetus by heroin, dates from about 1910. This expansion continues almost unchecked, in spite of legal restraint and efforts at salvage of victims.

"European chemists have discovered how to manufacture narcotics from coal tar. New drugs are anticipated more powerful than those now used with such deadly results.

"In America alone narcotic addicts number in the millions. They burden the dockets of the criminal courts, Federal, State and municipal. Members of grand juries, with the close view they have of criminality and its causes, are appealed to discover the amount of crime originating in narcotic addiction.

"The psychology of addiction shows the addict to be inherently and potentially a criminal, a recruiting agent for addiction, and a peddler of narcotics. Medical men now consider addiction, regarding possibility of cure, in a class with leprosy and cancer.

"Religious conversion, effecting profound physiological and psychological changes, now is considered the advanced addict's only hope of freedom. The grace of God provided the impulse that sends the blood-current back into the upper brain to restore destroyed tissue, and without it apparently very few addicts, once firmly in the clutch of narcotics, remain 'cured.'

"Addicts come to consider their drug supply as paramount — a matter of life and

My dear Mrs. Wilke:

Thank you very kindly for sample package of V P O sent me a short time ago; I do not take medicine, but this simple taking of herbs appealed to me, as did your pamphlet, "What it is," etc. It agrees so entirely with my own philosophy—if you please—of health, that I read it with interest and tried the V P O sample; you will know I was pleased with results when I tell you an Owl Drug Company sold me a package the very next day. I will speak a good word for it whenever possible and be glad to do so.

Stomach Tablets

These Tablets Are an Absolute Specific in the Relief of Stomach Trouble

NOW CALL HER DOCTOR

One lady writes that O-M Tablets helped her instantly. I recommended them to so many friends, she said, and they got so much help from them that they are all calling me "Doctor."

People with the most severe form of stomach trouble, kidney and bladder inflammation, long-standing bowel disorders, say that O-M Tablets have overcome their trouble when nothing else would. O-M Tablets help the blood, stomach, nerves and the entire organism.

Try a few tablets and see how quickly you will gain in strength and feel better. They relieve tired and weak spells.

O-M Tablets are thorough in their action, they will give relief and clear away a disordered condition quicker than any remedy we have ever seen.

They do not wear out or lose their effect. This is where they differ from other medicines and why they are beneficial in the more chronic troubles.

We have seen so much good come from the use of O-M Tablets in weakened, run-down conditions, chronic stomach trouble, cases of nervous exhaustion, blood depletion, that we offer samples sufficient to prove their value to you.

We know that the reputation of these tablets depends upon the result of these week-trial treatments. A personal trial is a real proof of what a medicine will do. We know from experience that this medicine does the work. That is why we offer it for trial.

GOOD FOR OTHER TROUBLES

Letters are coming from everywhere, testimonials by the thousands, telling of what this remedy is doing in stomach, liver, kidney and bladder troubles that had been considered almost incurable. Many write that the week's trial alone has entirely overcome their troubles.

HERE ARE THE RESULTS YOU SHOULD SEE FROM THEIR USE: Stomach relieved of inflammation and soreness, kidney and bladder trouble relieved, relief from indigestion, dyspepsia, a noticeable increase in strength, relief from gas and gastric conditions.

O-M Tablets come in two sizes, 65c and $1, at druggists' and by mail. SEND THIS NOTICE WITH 10c FOR WEEK'S TRIAL TREATMENT. Address Old Mission Laboratories, Pasadena, Calif.

Poor Circulation at Fifty Is the Underlying Cause of Many Ills

The wonderful curative powers of Radium have been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth. Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment, which offers so much relief from suffering and disease. Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of the blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases. To prove to you what this remarkable treatment can do for you, test one on our liberal trial plan. You are to be the judge, as you have thirty days to convince yourself of the merits of this appliance. No trouble, as all you have to do is to wear this pad, and the first thing you know you are getting well. This offer is open to any person who has any pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney, or liver complaint, bladder trouble, rheumatism in all forms, neuralgia, or diseases of the lungs or heart, asthma, etc. Do not be discouraged, for no matter how bad your ailment, or of how long standing, we will be pleased to have you try one on our guaranteed plan. CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY
HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

Simple Life and Health

FOLLOWING is an article contributed to "Physical Culture" by Anton Lang the Christus of the Passion Play:

"Perhaps no one has ever come into closer communion with the Saviour than have I.

"As I have portrayed Him, as thoughtfully, faithfully and reverently as it is possible for mortal to do, there have been times when it seemed as though He were actually within me, and, inspired by His holy presence, I could read His thoughts and see through His eyes.

"Once when I was thus inspired the realization came to me more clearly than ever before of the emphasis He always laid, by precept and practice, upon bodily health. He was a shining example of the physical culture life, an example rigidly followed by those devoted to Him, and I wished then that I might stand before the world and tell all peoples what God wants them to do with their bodies. The body comes next to the soul, next to salvation comes health.

" 'Know ye not that ye are the temple of God?' says St. Paul in his sixth epistle to the Corinthians. 'If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy, for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are. Therefore,' he says a little later on, 'glorify God in your body.'

"Could anything be plainer than that?

"There can be no doubt in our minds that Jesus was the founder of the best kind of physical culture, for he stood for sanity, for the utilization of all our powers, for democracy, for the equality of the sexes, resisting the temptations of the flesh, for simple living and high thinking, for sturdy endeavor and daily effort without wearing care and worry. He was a manly man who lived near to the beating heart of nature, not only in the wilderness, but in the striving souls of the poor and the oppressed.

"The Christ Child worked with His father at the carpenter's bench. He continued at this healthy vocation into manhood for His neighbors objected to His fearless sermons because he was only a carpenter. He walked all over the mountains and hills of Palestine preaching the gospel, and this practice insured bodybuilding exercise. He did it so diligently that when he reached the boat he fell asleep and slept so soundly that he did not awake when his worried disciples toiling at the oars feared that the angry waves would swallow them all. He wore the strength and sturdiness of real manhood. He carried the heavy cross for a long distance without a moan. That required physical strength.

"It is a practical deduction to make that the 'life' which Jesus came to reveal includes health—not by a miracle but by the observance of both physical and spiritual laws.

"No one can be a good Christian without practicing physical culture—that is one of the greatest lessons of the Bible. We learn from His life that He walked wherever He went, with but one exception that I remember and that was when He rode an ass. And from what I know of donkeys, this trip was a form of physical culture, for riding one of these animals is not a gentle pastime.

"All through the Bible, we find references to the body and these invariably point out the necessity for keeping it in good condition. There is another line in St. Paul where he specifically mentions the importance of exercise for the body and it is known that he traveled great distances afoot. Biblical days were perforce physical culture days, because without exercise it was impossible to move about.

"A close student of the Holy Writ will often notice that health and illness are contrasted and that illness is looked upon as something to be ashamed of. The tale of the Prodigal Son is typical. He wasted his wealth and health on riotous living and then, when broken in both mind and body, he came home to his father. The lesson of this is that if he had fared forth and lived decently, had worked hard, he would not have been held up for all time as a young man who had lived too well and not at all wisely.

"Back in the Old Testament there is another story which carries a strong physical culture lesson. Samson, the strong man of his time, who could defeat whole armies with but the jawbone of an animal as his weapon, was triumphant until he came under the evil influence of Delilah. The Testament does not state that he lapsed from physical culture standards, but it is more than reasonable to suppose that his weakness was not entirely the result of Divine displeasure. Again, if he had not forsaken the clean standards of physical culture, Samson might never have had to kill himself by dragging down the pillars on his shorn head. I might quote the Bible indefinitely in support of proper care of the body and physical culture of all sane kinds, but it is not necessary. 'Mens sana in corpore sano'—the 'Sound mind in a sound body'—has always been acknowledged as the best of God's gifts to man.

"However, man cannot expect the Creator to do it all—man must take exercise, indulge in physical culture, and be always mindful of his body if he is to have the sound and active mind so necessary to success in these days.

"In Oberammergau, health and physical culture are simple things. There, we do not seek health; we have it. We do not have to search for exercise and physical culture; it is at hand always.

"But the chief reason for the good health of the little village is that we value it highly and regard illness as almost a disgrace. This is taught to the children from the very beginning. They are never too young to learn to care properly for their health and the necessity for exercise is brought home to them as soon as they can understand.

"Life in Oberammergau is healthy life, chiefly because it is busy and active. There are no idle persons there. To begin with everyone has their trade, the great majority being carvers of wood and some few workers in the pottery of which I am the head. From the earliest years, the children begin to follow the arts and crafts of their parents and by the time they are old enough they join the Heimat Kunst and become full-fledged workmen. This all makes for health and the handling of the wood and clay is good exercise along physical culture lines. But the difference between life in Oberammergau, set as it is in the mountains, and that of the average city-dweller, makes it easy for us to keep our health and live to active old ages. We have the clean, crisp air of the mountains and there is always time enough for all we have to do. There is no rush, no crowding and no nervous tension in Oberammergau such as I have seen in the cities. Living at the speed people do in some of your cities it seems wonderful to me that they are ever healthy.

"Physical culture in Oberammergau might be said to start with water. We have the purest mountain water and everyone uses it without stint. When the children are little they are taught the necessity for a liberal use of it and nowhere in Europe are there cleaner or healthier young ones than in Oberammergau. Even before they are of school age, they are taught to get out in the open and it is not unusual for children of four or five years to begin mountain climbing. We know that this exercise will make them sturdy and strong and they are encouraged in it. In their schools they have regular periods of exercise and then there are all sorts of competitive games in which even the girls take part.

"As the young men grow up, they take to more strenuous games and skiing is one of the favorite sports in winter. Many of our young men are noted for their proficiency on the skis and there are tournaments in which they make a good showing. Andreas Lang, Sr., now in his sixty-fourth years, is a sterling example of what the outdoor life of Oberammergau can accomplish. He is probably the world's most famous wood carver and was a ski champion in his time. Even now he spends hours on his skis and has never been known to have ill-health. During the long summer days, he will take trips when he climbs the mountains and even sleeps on the ground at night. But he is not the only example we have. There are a number of the older men, some of them great-grandfathers, who are as hale and strong as he.

"An interesting feature of these old men is that they, too, have their sports just like the younger men. There is never a time in the life of a true Omerammergauer when he feels that he is too old for outdoor sport. It is not extraordinary for a company of the "greybeards" of the village to spend several days at a time in the mountains revisiting the scenes of their youth and generally having a fine time camping out. Then it must be remembered that some of our greatest hunters are the old men. They are versed in the wiles of the chamois and other game and will often bring down their quarry when the younger men return empty-handed.

"During the fall there is keen competition in the village in hunting. There is many a time when a hunter will be missing for days. He wil refuse to return without game and keeps on and on until he is able to make a kill. This sort of life hardens the body and clears the mind. It prevents any possible overindulgence in either food or drink and the hunter returning after several days spent along the snow line of the Alps is about the healthiest person imaginable. His appetite proves this.

"An important reason for the good health of Oberammergau is the fact that everything is done in moderation. There is no drunkenness nor gluttony there. Of course, at this time owing to the terrible conditions all over Bavaria, there is all too little food. It would be hard to imagine anyone eating too much in Oberammergau today—if they did, all the rest of the family would have to go without. The worst part of this food shortage is, that the little children do not have enough good and nourishing food. They are thin and delicate and many thousands of them are having a hard fight to survive.

"Strange as it may seem the Passion Play is a great incentive to physical culture. Practically every one in Oberammergau who can be used is selected for the play and last year more than half the village had parts. This means that more than a thousand persons live a carefully systematized existence for more than a year. For eleven months they rehearsed without break and then during the whole summer, they acted in the play itself. No one can afford to miss a rehearsal and death only keeps an actor out of the play when it is being presented—hence, all these people, and they included all the leaders of the village, led lives of perfect routine. Andreas Lang, Sr., played the role of Peter, one of the hardest and most trying of the play. He had to rehearse ceaselessly since his is one of the parts about which the action revolves and his long days in the mountains and his skiing served him in good stead.

"Guido Mayr, who played Judas, is a man of middle age and is an athlete. His characterization of the arch-traitor is considered one of the most wonderful pieces of acting in the world today and he is only

Grounding a Sleeping Person

Another of Dr. White's Discoveries

Do you know that Dr. George Starr White's discovery of grounding a sleeping person has cured thousands of nervousness and sleeplessness?

Do you know that his discovery of the magnetic meridian on the human body has done more to upset all "medical science" than any other factor in centuries?

Do you know that he was the first to demonstrate and prove that the effects of the magnetic meridian could be felt by anyone?

Do you know that he built and used the first electric-light treating lamp and bath-cabinet in existence?

"THE NATURAL WAY," an amazing book by this famous Nature Therapist, reveals many hundreds of astounding facts and its author shows you how to prove them.

"THE NATURAL WAY" is at once the most fascinating, most logical and common sense work ever written. It tells so many startling things which are not generally known and many which have been very little known if at all.

952 pages—full-leather bound, gold stamped, India Eggshell paper—320 illustrations. All carefully indexed. Therapeutic guide for both professional and home treatments.

His book leaves no room for doubt as to "THE NATURAL WAY" to live.

It explains how to treat all manner of diseases in "THE NATURAL WAY."

It will hold your interest and will fascinate because it reveals the Living Truth. It will prove to be as convincing to you as sunshine.

Every library should contain—within easy reach—this product of a marvelous brain. It is a masterful development of the NEW THERAPY and a complete system in diagnosis and treatment. This work was written for physicians and the public in general. No home can afford to be without its valuable aid to health and happiness, covering as it does most every subject that is so vital to the well-being of the human race. You cannot possibly get in any other way the combined information, based on facts gleaned from over 40 years of the most intensive study and experimentation, that these works contain.

IMPROVING A GOLF LIE

BY BARRIE PAYNE

MR. LAYON McDUFFER went home one night—golfers sometimes do, in spite of the humorists—bubbling over with enthusiasm. He had shot an eighty that afternoon, the best score of his life. The maid was the first person he encountered, so he told her all about it He unburdened his soul at great length and in minute detail. "I shot a seventy-nine," he said. (That putt on Number Nine really should have dropped, so why not call it a seventy-nine?) It was all Sanskrit to the maid, but she had heard somewhere that it was best to humor people in that condition, so she listened patiently. Mrs. McDuffer presently appeared, and he told the story all over again. "I shot a seventy-eight this afternoon—I, me, myself!" (That drive that kicked out of bounds on Number Thirteen should really have counted. The ball was lopsided. The score should have been a seventy-eight.) The next victim was grandma. "Granny, I went around in seventy-seven today." (It really should have been a seventy-seven, he reflected. That topped brassie shot was an accident. His foot slipped, and he wasn't responsible for that.) The other members of the family were sought out and made to listen, one by one. The cook, Aunt Mary, Sonny and Little Elsie. After the family roster had been exhausted—in a double sense—Mr. McDuffer tried the story on the house cat. But the cat wouldn't listen. He treated Mr. McDuffer with extreme rudeness. He yawned and walked away. Mr. McDuffer's mouth golf improved steadily with practice. His oldest son, Bob, came home presently, and the phenomenal game was played all over again. (The score was now a par seventy-one.)

"The maid was the first he encountered."

"Mother has already told me about your score," Bob said. (Bob was something of a golfer himself.) "Now listen, dad. Don't you know it's against the rules to improve a lie?"

Hey—You!—Gentle Breeze!
Keep still, Babblin' Brook!
Pipe down, Swayin' Trees!
And you—Leaves that Dance!
Keep quiet—Old Grouch
Is takin' his stance!

America is still being ruled by Great Britain, so far as golf rules are concerned. Perhaps a Boston Tea Party, to seize the next shipload of golf legislation and throw it overboard, will be needed to establish our independence.

"Call this a nice, friendly little game if you want to," said The Gambling Duffer, as he indorsed his monthly paycheck and handed it to the winner of the match. "The correct title for this picture is 'When a Feller Bleeds a Friend.'"

Yesterday we heard a par player say, "I'm thankful for one thing. I never lose more than one ball on a round." There's one thing we're thankful for. We never lose more than one ball at a time.

A "silent partner" is not necessarily a great asset in business. But in golf he is a priceless jewel. Especially when you're off your game.

Rules of Golf

1. Hazard. A "hazard" is any regular bunker, water, ditch, bush, sand, path, road, wife, opponent in a red sweater, or partner with the hiccoughs.

2. Ball Accidentally Moved. Any ball struck by a player during his first six months of golfing shall be deemed to have moved accidentally.

3. Addressing the Ball. The ball should be plainly marked with the player's address and telephone number. Then, when it hooks or slices to hellangone, the finder in an adjoining county or state can return it. The ball may be "addressed" verbally, in another sense, as "Dear" or "Dearest," if the player chooses—but we never knew it to happen. The more common form of address is "You blankety-blank—— ——!!"

4. System of Reckoning Strokes. See "Subtraction" in any good arithmetic.

5. Priority on the Course. Matches constituted of singles, threesomes, or foursomes shall have precedence of and be entitled to pass any other kind of match. (Try and do it!)

6. Asking Advice. Not necessary. Plenty of it will be volunteered by the other members of the foursome. The average golfer can't do it himself, but is always ready to tell others how.

7. Playing Opponent's Ball. Always advisable, if it has a better lie than yours.

8. Playing from Bunkers. Not to be attempted in the presence of ladies, unless the ladies are deaf.

9. Ball Unfit for Play. Play it just the same. If you get a bad shot the unfitness of the ball will make a splendid alibi.

10. Removal of Flag-Stick. The caddy should remove the flag from the hole with a sudden jerk just as a forty-foot putt is about to drop, pulling the cup with it, so that the ball will strike the cup and be deflected to the edge of the green. Heaven is a happy place and this is a fine way for the caddy to go there.

11. Replacing Balls. When the ball is found in a cuppy lie you should declare it unfit for play and replace it with another ball. This gives you a fine opportunity to improve the lie without being caught.

12. Bumpire and Rougheree. The bumpire shall settle all disputes arising in the fairway. The rougheree shall be appealed to on all controversies in the rough. Arguments on the green shall be settled with pistols, at forty paces.

13. Alibis. Any player who uses the same alibi for more than fifteen consecutive games shall be penalized one stroke on each hole. An experienced golfer offers a new alibi each day.

14. Ball Lost. A ball is "lost" if it be not found within five minutes after the search for it has begun. (Carry a slow watch with you. It may save you a stroke now and then.)

15. Information as to Strokes Played. If the opponent gives wrong information as to the number of strokes he has played, he shall lose the hole. (Provided the information you give is wronger than his. The hole goes to the lowest bidder.)

"You blankety—blank—!"

16. Ball Out of Bounds. A ball in a prohibited area may be brought within bounds by the simple process of shifting the boundary stakes, provided your opponent isn't looking.

17. Removal of Obstructions and Loose Impediments. See "Slow Foursomes." (To be explained in a later chapter, along with other important rules.)

ANTIOCH CHALICE BELIEVED TO BEAR TRUE PORTRAIT OF CHRIST FROM LIFE

A FIRM of dealers in Oriental art, Messrs. Kouchakij of Paris and New York, are publishing a sumptuous monograph in two folio volumes on a silver chalice, which, if all that is held to be true of it can be substantiated, is one of the earliest and most precious relics of Christian art in existence. It is reputed to contain contemporary portraits of Christ (one as a youth and the other as older in years,) of St. James the Less and St. Judge, the two nearest relatives of Christ on earth, and other apostles and evangelists.

There can be no doubt about the antiquity of the chalice (which is now in New York,) and experts who have examined it appear to agree that it dates from the latter part of the first century, A. D. Photographs, both of natural size and of various stages of enlargements, of the chalice itself and of its many details have been carefully examined by A. B. Cook, reader in classical archaeology to the University of Cambridge, and some of his conclusions will be included in a second volume of his work, "Zeus: A Study in Ancient Religion." Mr. Cook is convinced of the genuineness of the chalice, and this being so, it is obviously a treasure of the highest importance. As, Mr. Cook states, it "must take rank with F. Courby's momentous discovery of the real omphalos at Delphi, which passed almost unnoticed during the early years of the war."

The Discovery By Arabs

THE chalice was discovered in 1910 with three bookcovers and a large ceremonial cross, also silver, by some Arabs digging in a well in Antioch, on the Orontes River in Syria, and these were sold direct by the excavators to Messrs. Kouchaky, who removed them first to Paris. The treasure was discovered in an underground chamber at a depth of many meters, along with enough crumbled fragments of silver to fill a sack. While the chalice belongs to the period already stated, the book-covers date from the fifth century, A. D.

The articles found are believed to form part of a church treasure buried during troublous times in the reign of Julian the Apostate, or in the time of the Chosroes. Julian closed the Basilica of Constantine in Antioch, depriving it of its wealth and causing its treasurer, Theodoretus, to be tortured and beheaded for concealing some object of great importance.

It is related that some of the vessels recovered from their hiding places were defaced by being thrown on the ground and in this way injured by the governor of the city before being sent to the treasurer in Constantine, whence they were later returned to the Basilica by Julian's successor. It is assumed that the chalice was one of these things, and that it was once more hidden in the time of the Chosroes, either in 544, during the invasion of Chosroes I. or during that of Chosroes II, who captured Jerusalem and the rest of Syria in 614.

Elaborate in Its Ornamentation

ON THE removal of the chalice to Paris oxidation was removed by M. Andre, without injury, but the compression caused by the blow could not be rectified without probable injury. It consists of two distinct parts, both hammered out of two sheets of silver. One, the inner cup, was crudely made and left unfinished; the other, the holder or reliquary, added for protecting the cup, was finely carved and the spaces between the carvings were cut away, thus exposing the surface of the inner cup as a background.

The chalice is supported by a low and narrow footstand, a type in use only during the first two centuries of the Roman empire. There are in existence in museums many vessels of the chalice form and proportions, but none later than the first century. A. D. The chalice is about seven inches high.

It has taken Dr. Gustavus A. Eisen, archaeologist and at one time curator of the California university academy of sciences, the author of the monograph on the chalice, several years to identify the various figures and emblems. First and foremost is the figure of Christ's full face. dressed in a toga with the same folds as that of Augustus on the Augustus cup of the Boscoreale treasure; the Star, the Dove, the Lamb sustaining the identification. His right hand points to a plate with seven loaves, two fishes and a head of wheat, and below Him the eagle of the Roman empire partakes of the blessings of the Christian religion.

Other Figures Identified

PETER and Paul are seen on either side—the former on the right, according to the Greek custom. These two figures have been identified with those in the Viale Manzoni in Rome. Other figures on the chalice have been identified as St. Jude, St. James the Less (whose dress was always of linen, never of wool,) St. Andrew, who had become a martyr before the chalice holder was designed, St. Luke, St. Mark, Christ as a youth (the face type is one of those found in the Roman catacombs,) St. Matthew, and the brothers James and John. These representations, it is contended, must be considered as authentic and accurate, as they were made when most of the personages represented were yet alive.

Much space is devoted by Dr. Eisen to symbols found on the chalice. They are only such as are found in the Bible, not those invented by the Christians after the time of Constantine. Symbols were frequently used in the Scriptures, but emblems were mostly the inventions of a later date as substitutes for names of saints and apostles. This is Dr. Eisen's summary of what he calls "the religious nature and importance of the chalice."

"The chalice proves by its form and decorations to be the earliest artistic Christian object known. It contains admirable portraits of the founders of the Christian religion. It proves that the earliest Christians accepted two distinct miracles of feeding the multitudes. It proves that the author of the Fourth Gospel was St. John the Evangelist and Apostle, and not the 'disciple' of the critics."

The Open Road

Winding along through the hills and the valleys,
Telling the soul of a larger life,
Leading away from the smoke of the cities,
Putting behind it their stress and strife.

Stretched out beneath the blue sky and the sunshine,
Placid and still near the restless sea.
Filling the heart with delight and thanksgiving,
Guiding the wayfarer silently.

Going where rivers are peacefully flowing,
Where fallen foliage carpets the ground,
Going beside the cool depths of the canyon,
Going where gladness and courage are found.

lowed, has been appointed by Monsieur Combeaux to assist him in his task."

While Huguette was reading, Lucien d'Artois entered the room.

"My poor dear, what an awful presentiment you have had!"

"Oh, Lucien, I am almost afraid our conversation yesterday brought about this awful catastrophe!"

"Nonsense, how can you be so superstitious! Besides, as Madame Plan had not appeared at her usual time, the crime must have been already committed."

Huguette showed him the paragraph in the paper relative to the future aide cf Monsieur Cambeaux.

"Octave Bernac?" she asked. "Do you not think so?"

Lucien d'Artois frowned.

"Of course it means Octave Bernac," he said. "That is fatal!"

Huguette looked at him in astonishment and the young man explained vaguely.

"He is the man of the day, is it not so? In police matters there exists the same snobbery as in other matters!"

He referred to the celebrated novelist-detective, who was to put his powers into effect once more after having cleared up the mysterious murder of Archibald Grave, the diamond king.

"By the way," he continued a little sarcastically but without any apparent emotion, "your Monsieur Maubray, have you seen him lately?"

Huguette shrugged her shoulders without answering, shocked at his untimely levity. She was obsessed by the image of the dead woman and in spite of his efforts to change the conversation, she could not resist coming back to it.

"Do you remember, Lucien, the cheerful smile she always gave you, the poor old creature?"

A shiver almost of pity seemed to make him tremble, but he recovered himself.

"Oh, it is frightfully sad," he said in a firm voice, "but let us hope she did not suffer and that the murderer will be found. But I beg you let us leave this subject. It only unnerves one and is entirely useless. Listen, I want to tell you my plan!"

He told her that he had decided to go to England for a few days for the races, for he felt sure the French horse, Predicateur had a wonderful chance. He expected to leave in about a week.

"Will you accompany me?"

"But how can I? The play is a success, and I have no understudy. My manager would never consent!"

"That is too bad! I should have been so happy to have you with me. But never mind, I shall bring you an English dinner service."

The days that followed brought nothing new in the "affairs of the Rue Michel-Ange," not a trace of anything.

Came the morning of the expected departure. Lucien d'Artois had breakfasted with Huguette.

Side by side on the sofa of the boudoir, which was hung in Japanese silk, they drank their coffee. Suddenly the young man rose, and going into the little hallway came back with a large package. He unwrapped it revealing a steel box which he held out to Huguette.

"Take care of it for me," he said, "as my apartment is only a furnished one, I would rather not leave it there. It contains family souvenirs, old letters of my parents, my diploma, my military papers and so forth. The little things I care for. Will you take care of them during my absence?"

But she showed no great enthusiasm as he laughed gaily.

"Oh, I see! But you need have no fear—it contains no love tokens. I would not be so indelicate. I have lost the key, but you know if you have doubts, I authorize you to have a key made for the lock and open it. I have no secrets from you!"

Huguette shrugged her shoulders slightly. But in spite of herself the box caused her much uneasiness.

Suddenly Emilie entered announcing that Monsieur Maubray, her neighbor, desired to speak to Monsieur and Madame.

"How strange," cried Huguette, but Lucien murmured under his breath ambiguously.

"Already."

Huguette, however, questioned Lucien with her eyes and he added aloud:

"Ask him to enter, Emilie."

Each busy with his own thoughts, they said no more, and Monsieur Maubray found them standing when he appeared at the threshold and waited with polite assurance for the maid to go. Seeing a taboret, he asked permission to be seated after his hosts, and smiled, but not without a certain gravity which was perceptible through his politeness.

"I must apologize for disturbing your domestic tranquility, especially as it is under an assumed name and disguise. Allow me to make reparation!" and as he spoke he removed the white mustaches which had made him look ten years older.

"Octave Bernac!" cried Huguette, recognizing the dramatist detective whose rugged, sympathetic features were so often pictured in the magazines and newspapers.

Lucien d'Artois showed no surprise and only said scornfully, "I am very happy to meet a writer whose works and exploits—I appreciate!"

Octave Bernac bowed slightly and continued, although he did not address himself particularly to one or the other of his listeners:

"The task which I have set myself is rather a heavy one, but it relieves somewhat the ennui of my profession. You see, for the good of the cause, I have several dwelling places in Paris, which often prove useful, as it proved in this case. This murder, of which you have no doubt heard, happened in the apartment directly opposite yours, and while I am seeking the perpetrator I suspect everyone in general and the neighbors in particular. Therefore—the other day I overheard your conversation on your balcony. I heard Monsieur make a very clearly put statement on the subject, which I call 'the mathematical theory of crime.' It is upon that theory we detectives work, for by it crime is discovered, even if under apparent simplicity, he has worked scientifically."

Huguette, breathless, sick at heart, tried not to think where this might be leading. Lucien, without the least emotion, seemed only to have an intense curiosity.

"I therefore had you watched, Monsieur I learned that you have suffered great losses at races, and that you have no fixed resources, except a very small income. Yesterday you deposited, to your greatly reduced account at the Credit Lyonnais, 10,000 francs. All this, of course, is not enough to accuse you of being the murderer of Madame Plan, but I made a search of your apartment (oh, but be assured with the aid of your concierge!) But nothing was discovered there, therefore we will avoid having you arrested, and also to give the least possible trouble to Mademoiselle, who has my deepest sympathy and for whose sake I would avoid having an annoying official scene, I wish to clear you of all suspicion without further delay. That is why," said Octave Bernac, coming suddenly to the point and designating the steel box whfch stood on a small stand, "I beg to open that which you must have brought."

At this Huguette was conscious of a distinct shock, a presentiment of the truth. Lucien guilty? Lucien a murderer, and choosing her as the unconscious guardian of his booty?

In her horror she recoiled from him and leaned against a chair, her arms behind her to keep her from falling. D'Artois watched her fixedly for a moment with an expression of scorn and pity, then he took the box and placed it in the hands of Octave Bernac, with a haughty smile.

"Take it, Monsieur, but I am sorry the key is lost!"

"That makes no difference," was the calm answer. "I have with me something that will prove effective." And having taken some instrument from his pocket, with a turn of his hand, the lid flew open.

Huguette advanced like one in a trance.

The box contained only yellow letters and photographs, a coral pendant, some military papers and diplomas.

D'Artois, his arms crossed, seemed to laugh silently at his triumph.

Confused and hating herself for her doubts, the young woman trembled. She dared not approach Lucien, but he came to her and took her hands.

Octave Bernac, seeming to have a weight lifted from him, turned to leave.

"Monsieur d'Artois," he said to Lucien "it is only necessary to see you to know that you are a superior man. I have done right to finish this affair, and am sure that neither you nor Mademoiselle will bear me any ill will."

Lucien d'Artois seemed sincerity itself as he replied:

"Monsieur Bernac, far from wishing you [illegible] have given me. If you will permit me, I will help clear this matter further. The sum I put in my bank was part of a lucky wager which I laid on the last race at Maison la Fete. I put 500 francs on Gorbenador, who won eighteen to one. I have not yet touched tomorrow's ticket."

Octave Bernac, once more transformed by his false mustache, left.

III

A little later Huguette was in Lucien d'Artois's arms, imploring his pardon, which he granted tenderly.

"Anyone would have been convinced," he told her, "especially with a man like Bernac to acuse one. He rarely makes a mistake. It seems curious he should have made one now."

"I cannot understand that he should have made so terrible a one."

But d'Artois seemed to be making excuses for Bernac,

"This is rather clever. The ordinary detective would have arrested a suspect; he merely wished to convince himself that I am innocent, and you know the police. With them it is like with an automobile; one knows when one leaves, but one does not know when one returns. This box served as a touchstone. He seemed glad that it freed us. You could see his affection for you shining in his eyes."

Having, after this incident, renounced his trip, Lucien returned that afternoon to his own apartment, a large cigar between his clean-shaven lips, forcing himself to chase away every shade of care from his face.

From time to time he turned, to satisfy himself that he was not followed by the police. Those who had dogged his footsteps before were no longer visible.

"Well," he said to himself, "it is good to be innocent! But I wonder does that damned Bernac suspect that I recognized him from the balcony?"

About a week later, as Lucien d'Artois was dressing preparatory to dining in the city, the doorbell rang. The concierge arranged his rooms for him, as he kept no servant, and so upon answering the bell himself, he found himself in the presence of a man of gigantic build. It was Octave Bernac. There was a slight flicker of the eyelids, but, with a deep breath, Lucien recovered and smiled.

"I almost expected you, my dear sir!"

"That does not surprise me," answered the other, turning and closing the door.

Lucien d'Artois ushered his visitor into a little study, offered him a chair and a cigar, and, seating himself, said:

"I am listening!"

"Very well, my dear Monsieur d'Artois. I have assumed, because this death occurred in the apartment across from mine, to keep you posted as to my deductions Today they are rife, and so I come to tell you some of the details and also to consult you."

"To consult me?"

"Yes; you will see, as I have already said to you, that under an air of apparent simplicity, the crime in the Rue Michel-Ange was conceived and executed with a clever method, a veritable science (I insist upon the word.) I have rarely had occasion to run across work done so well. The cord which served to strangle the victim is of coarse thread. No imprint of hand or shoe has been discovered. The murderer must have worn rubber gloves and soles of the same, and that has given me the only clew possible. It must have been some one familiar with the house, someone who was known to Madame Plan. It must have been a man who knew the place from cellar to attic. He must have passed the concierge unperceived. I questioned her, I am sure I have followed every seam. This concierge is known to be very watchful and physicians employed by the law agree that the crime was committed some time in the morning before the lunch hour. I suppose the murderer chose that time knowing that between 11 and 12 the lodge would be empty, as the concierge would then be at market. He must have been familiar with this detail.

"Moreover, the old lady, being very suspicious, had a safety chain on her door, which she never lifted when anyone rang the bell unless it was someone she knew. Now this chain was intact, without any sign of being forced, and therefore it must have been some one known to Madame Plan and to whom she opened her door willingly. Besides, her face showed none of those signs of fright and horror which are apparent on the faces of those who look upon their murderers. Having received her visitor, therefore, she probably preceded him into her little salon when she was attacked from behind. The way that [illegible] All this shows, I should say, that the [illegible] was some one who knew. Do you follow me?"

"Absolutely, my dear sir," answered the young man, his face a shade paler than usual.

"Good! After all the statements of the neighbors and the concierge to the effect that Madame Plan did her own work, received no one, and never left her house excepting four times a year when she went to her lawyer's, also that she had no family or relations, it stands to reason that her visitor was a neighbor. The positive way in which you expressed your views on the balcony the other afternoon somehow remained in my memory. You know that chance is often the greatest factor in the hands of the police. If you will follow me closely, we will examine all our evidence closely. You were one of Madame Plan's neighbors. It seems that you bowed to one another."

"Oh, yes, Huguette did say that on the balcony."

"Eh! But listen! In the building occupied by Madame Plan there are three empty apartments; you understand, empty. Does that tell you something, my dear Monsieur d'Artois?"

Lucien forced himself to answer sarcastically:

"Nothing at all, really. I am not a magician such as you are."

"You compliment me. It is a very simple matter. In the first place, from that I conclude that the murderer could hide in one of these apartments, before or after the crime in order to await his opportunity. Secondly, you cannot ignore the fact that a considerable sum of money has disappeared. Her lawyer estimates it at 50,000 francs, the sum of a rather large income which, being a miser, she had not deposited for twenty years. Does all this still tell you nothing? No? Well, to me it does! Do you know how much 50,000 francs in gold weigh? It, being dense metal, is naturally very heavy. A man, unless he were a giant, could not carry all this weight at one time. But all this gold has disappeared entirely, you understand. That is to say, the murderer was not content with part of it; he wanted it all. He must have been, therefore, a damn courageous fellow, to say the least."

"To say the least?"

"I will explain that later. Now I want to return to you," said Bernac looking fixedly into the face of d'Artois.

"To me? I do not understand!" sneered the latter.

"Yes, I come back to my first suspicion. The following day your deposit at the Credit Lyonnaise, which you admitted—oh, I know very well," continued the dramatist, "you pretended to have won it at the races."

Lucien interrupted him angrily.

"How pretended? I can prove it!"

"Do not excite yourself," said Bernac in a paternal tone. "Yes, if you wish, it is an established fact that you put 500 francs on Gorbenador, who won eighteen to one. But an intelligent man like you, in order to give the origin of such a sum, would play the races. That is, he would put money on all the horses, and quit a loser when the favorite wins. This is something that does not happen often at the Maison la Fete and even your care in not touching the winning ticket until the day after, in order to identify your deposit, would also be a CONSTANTINOPLE The Russians are now out of the great international struggle for possession of the Bosporus, and for the time the English and all other foreign powers as well have lost their control over the affairs of the Ottoman Empire. Constantinople is no longer the capital of Turkey, and for the first time in centuries it is without a Sultan or Caliph, but it is still one of the most interesting cities on the face of the globe.

I have been in Constantinople three times in my life and at each in a momentous era of the great city's history. My first visit was in 1889, thirty-five years ago, when the notorious Sultan Abdul-Hamid was at the height of his power. He was ruling Turkey with an iron hand, giving secret orders for massacres and putting out of the way any of his subjects who opposed him. At the same time, he was in constant fear of assassination. Garjulio, the dragoman of our legation, who knew all the ins and outs of the court, told me that Abdul sat up in his palace night after night, trembling with terror, and his fear of assassination continued until he was taken from the throne by the Young Turks in 1909.

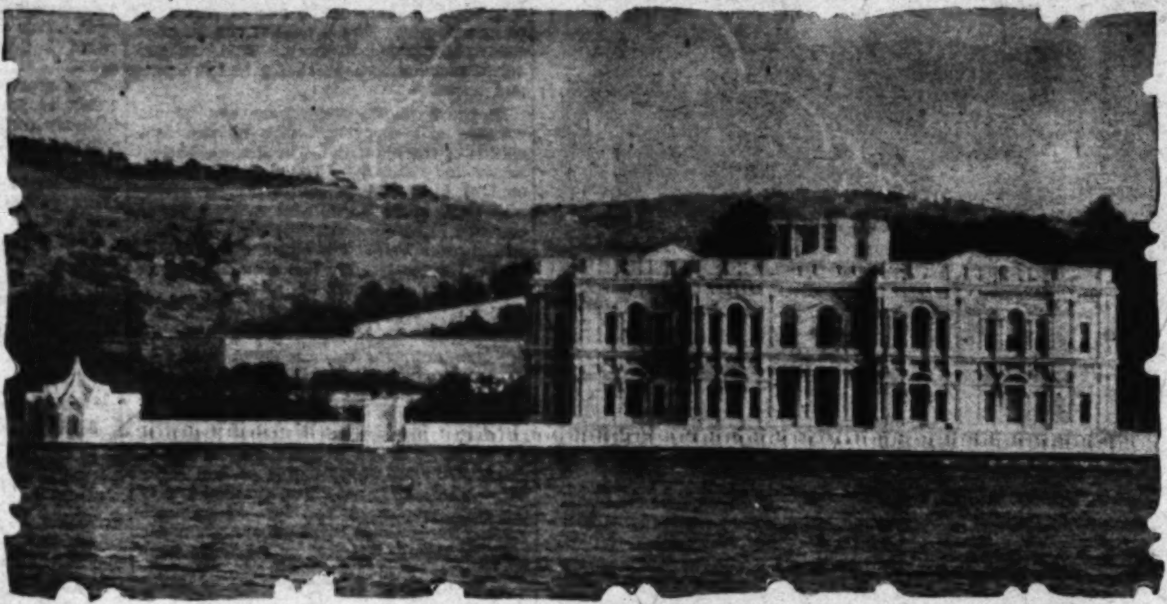
When I first saw Abdul-Hamid he was going across Stamboul to kiss the mantle of Mohammed, and it seemed to me then that I could see the fright in his black-bearded, sallow, anemic face. He was, you know, practically the successor of Abdul-Aziz, whose son, Abdul-Medjid Effendi, was deposed and sent into exile the other day. Murad V came in between ,but he reigned only three months.

The Father of the Caliph

ABDUL-AZIZ, the uncle of Abdul-Hamid and the father of Abdul-Medjid Effendi, was a most remarkable character, and it was his extravagance and misgovernment which finally forced him from the throne and prepared the way for the national spirit which permeates the Turkey of today. Before he was deposed he had promised to give Turkey a new constitution, and when Abdul-Hamid came in he renewed that promise and actually signed a constitution on December 23, 1896. But it was not long before Abdul-Hamid was following in the footsteps of Abdul-Aziz. He went back on his promise, and the result was his deposition in 1909. My second visit to Turkey was at the time he was torn from his throne. I then saw the fighting, watched the Sultan taken from his palace, and photographed the long procession of cabs, hundreds in number, which carried his harem across Constantinople. The ladies wore black gowns and thin white veils, and each of their carriages was guarded by a eunuch whose jet-black face shone out under his high red fez cap.

Abdul-Aziz was one of the greatest spendthrifts who ever sat on the Turkish throne. His reign was a long series of splendid extravagances founded on money borrowed from England and France. He built palace after palace, for it had been prophesied that he would live as long as he kept up his building. He imported lions and tigers from Africa, filled his palaces with parrots and had pianos strapped on men's backs and played there.

He liked women so well that his harem is said to have had as many women as that of King Solomon, who, as I remember it, had 1000—namely 300 wives and 700 concubines. Among others, Abdul fell in love with the Empress Eugenie, and when she visited him at Constantinople he put up a palace for her entertainment on the Asiatic side of the Bosporus, where she lived during the few days she was here. At one time Abdul-Aziz went to Europe and upon his return commented upon the ugliness of the European ladies, saying that all he saw were hideous with the exception of Eugenie and the Empress of Austria. He said a King's wife should be the most beautiful woman in the country, but as a rule the European monarchs selected the ugliest. He said he would try to find a woman as beautiful as Eugenie, and he thought he had done so when he took into his harem a Circassian slave girl named Mihri, who remained his favorite wife until the day of his death.



Sailing over the blue waters of the Bosporus one sees great white palaces on the shores where sultans lived in the heydey of slaves and harems.

How Abdul-Aziz Got His Wives

ACCORDING to the old custom, the Sultan was given a new wife, a beautiful slave girl, at the close of Ramadan, or the Mohammedan Lent. He received her on Easter Day, or Bairam. The girl was selected by the Velideh Sultana, and was kept in training for her new position for several months. When the available girls were looked over, the fifteen most beautiful were picked out and taken into the palace. Here they were fed, groomed and put through their paces, to see who should win in the race. Shortly before Bairam, the lucky girl, was picked out, and she became the bride of the Sultan for that year, although he had a right to take such other girls from the lot as struck his fancy. He did not see his Bairam bride until the night after the feast and then only when he had retired to rest. If she happened to please him, she was then given separate apartments, and if she had children they were legitimately ranked with the other princes and princesses. On the other hand, if the Sultan did not like her, she was put with the other slave girls and she might never see him again.

Abdul-Aziz spent so much money on his wives and palaces that the people dethroned him and confined him in the palace he had built for Eugenie, where he died five days later. According to one story he committed suicide in the Selamlik adjoining the harem. He had sent away his ladies, asking Mihri for a hand-glass and a pair of Persian scissors, saying he wanted to trim his whiskers. She brought them and he locked the door. It was opened by Ismail Bey, who said the Sultan had cut open the veins and arteries of his arms, wrists and feet and that he died in his presence. Another story is that Abdul was really assassinated by his political enemies In the meantime, Murad V, who had succeeded Abdul, became terrified, and after three months he went crazy. He was kept in seclusion until the day of his death and Abdul-Hamid took his place on the throne.

The Passing of Abdul-Hamid

THE story of Abdul-Hamid covers thirty-five years. He was the younger brother of Murad V and a nephew of Abdul-Aziz. This makes him a cousin of the present Caliph. He was the son of Abdul-Medjid, the predecessor of Abdul-Aziz, by an Armenian slave girl. When he first came to the throne he was twenty-four years of age. He then occupied the Dolmebagtche Palace and afterward moved to the Yildiz Kiosk, where he was living during my first visit to Constantinople and from where I saw him taken away by the Young Turks, during my second visit in 1909.

Abdul-Hamid's whole life was one of conspiracy and treachery and of playing with the great powers of Europe in order to save his skin and his throne. He found the Turkish Empire bankrupt and added to its debt. To get to the throne he promised to grant the constitution, and then went back on his word. During the latter part of his reign, the sentiment against him grew stronger and stronger. The Young Turks formed secret societies in all parts of the Empire. They established headquarters in Paris and sent out propaganda. They smuggled into Turkey tons of literature published in Arabic and as a result raised a revolutionary army to support their demand that Abdul-Hamid give them a constitution at once. The Sultan was ready to accede to their demands, but before he did so the Young Turks had marched upon Constantinople, and it was while I was here that they seized the city.

How the Young Turks Ousted the Sultan

THE occupation was well managed, with but little bloodshed. The Young Turks had about 40,000 troops and their armies surrounded Constantinople. While out riding the day before to the sweet waters of Europe, I found soldiers at all the crossroads, and at several places I was turned back. The Young Turks had bribed some of the common soldiers of the Sultan, many of whom came from Bulgaria, to kill their officers, and 300 were murdered that night. The rebels then came in and took possession of the barracks and disarmed the soldiers, most of whom were asleep. At the same time they stationed their men in every part of the city to keep order. The whole was done so quietly that the day after the occupation this city of a million showed as little disorder as a New England village on Sunday. The only shooting that occurred was in the early morning. I was stopping at the Pera Palace Hotel and was awakened at 4 o'clock by a noise that sounded as if the whole city was engaged in corn-popping. It was the Gatling guns firing away within a half-mile of my hotel, and during that firing one ball went through the transom above the front door of the hostelry. The fighting was all over before the sun rose, and when I went out on the streets the city was under martial law, but the soldiers were polite and one could walk anywhere without trouble. The revolution was practically bloodless, and that afternoon I was able to drive past the Yildiz Palace, where the Sultan was still imprisoned.

I have never published a story of those days and there are some incidents which even now will bear telling. One happened on Friday, the day before the dethronement, when Abdul-Hamid went to worship at the Mosque. I had gone with our Minister to watch the celebration and was in the Kiosk, or pavilion, given over to the diplomats for this purpose. It is just opposite the Yildiz Mosque and so situated that the Sultan must ride under its windows to the place where he gets down from his carriage and walks in to pray.

The event was a spectacular one. The roadway had been covered with six inches of sand, so that the royal bones might not be shaken; and when I arrived at the Palace, it was lined on both sides by regiments of soldiers. There were at least 10,000 troops and from the pavilion I could see acres of red fez caps with the dark brown and white faces below. They formed a human flower garden along both sides of the road and reaching far back into the field. About the Mosque was a great bed of red caps amid shining bayonets of steel, and in the court in front of us were companies of lancers dashing about on Arabian horses. At the gates of the Palace were many tall eunuchs, with faces as black as the crows that fill the trees about Constantinople. They wore fezzes and gorgeous uniforms.

In a short time the chief officials of the Sultan appeared. His young son, with a face like chalk and an effeminate look, rode by. Then came the Sultan's bodyguard of finely-dressed soldiers on magnificent horses. Opposite the gate of the palace they raised themselves and stood with uplifted swords while a dozen Arabian saddle horses, the Sultan's favorites, were led down by grooms, with the idea that His Majesty might take a notion to ride back from his prayers. After that there was a long line of carriages containing the veiled ladies of the harem, with eunuchs sitting mist, sparkling on the rippling river, touching the rim-frosted grass to pearls. The brightness hurt Pete's tired eyes, thrust before him a bitter thought. He felt a moist nose against his cheek.

"It's today, Black Danger, today for the big race. The Ogden purse——"

The whisper died away, and he hid his face against the smooth head.

The Ogden race was scheduled for 4 o'clock that afternoon. The horses were gathering for the start when Pete rode over the hill and took the zigzag trail down to the field. Black Danger, sleek and shining in the sunlight, every line quivering with life and power, tossed his head nervously at sight of the crowd.

In a glance Pete saw the same scene that had been enacted year after year ever since he could remember. Men rode importantly along the outer edge of the long stretch reserved for a track. Close to the snake fence Joe sat in his buckboard, surrounded by the pioneers of Gold Valley. They were smoking, and no doubt speculating on the outcome of the Ogden race. Groups of men watched the horses sidling toward the line.

Apprehensively Pete noted his opponents in the race. Stella May pranced under the skillful hand of Ike's jockey, gay in pink and green trappings; Queen Mab cantered evenly under the guidance of a slim young Englishman in chaps and spurs. There were other horses too, entered on the wildest conjecture as a possible winner of the purse. Pete caught his breath with a sick shiver of despair. What chance had he with his range-bred horse against trained racers?

"Black Danger, we gotta do our —est!" he breathed.

There was a momentary hush on the field, an incredulous murmur that rose to a shout, and Pete felt all eyes upon him. He heard Joe exclaim:

"It's poor Pete!—bless my soul! The boy's gone clean off his head!"

"Pete, you — fool!" yelled Ike. "Go back with that horse. He's wild's as a spring rabbit. He'll fight, he'll kill some o' these horses. Want to break your neck?"

Pete, speaking gently to Black Danger, who was rearing and plunging excitedly, guided him toward the line. Even in his anxiety his heart beat with pride at the exclamations of admiration that broke from the crowd. Streaked with foam, keyed to the highest nervous pitch, Black Danger had never shown to better advantage. Ike snatched up a whip and started toward him, but Joe's voice rose above the clamor.

"Keep back there, Ike. Pete, boy, where'd you get that horse?"

"He's mine, Joe. I got him on the hills when he was a colt. I jest want to run him in this race."

"He's a humdinger, Pete. Pretty skittish, though. Better not, boy. 'Tain't safe."

"Joe, I jest gotta run him in this race. He won't hurt nobody. I've trained him good."

"I dunno, Pete. You sure he's all right? Looks like he might get so scared he'd throw you!"

"Joe, honest, if he acts up too much I'll ride him off the field. I ain't afraid. I jest want a run him this once, Joe, jest this once," pleaded Pete.

Joe turned to the excited men.

"Looka here, boys, I guess Pete knows his horse, an' you recollect there ain't a better rider in this country. Take him to the outside, Pete, then you kin swing off if he gets beyond you. Ike, you leave him be. Likely he won't ride far. Now, I'll be gettin' on to the finish. Mike McCarthy'll start 'em."

In his old buckboard Joe drove down the field, most of the crowd following and scattering at various points along the fence to watch the race. The other riders eyed Black Danger in curious admiration. Even in that oddly assorted line of horses he was distinctively different. He was heavier built than either Stella May or Queen Mab, but every ounce of weight seemed charged with resilient endurance.

Pete rode to the end place along the white mark that had been drawn across the field, the others sidling into position for the start. Black Danger tossed his head excitedly, making short quick runs back and forth, tugging with restive teeth at the bit. Glancing along the mile-and-a-half stretch of gently upsloping field, Pete rejoiced in the tireless strength the horse had shown on their long night rides. Above the finish, a hill curved. It was toward that goal he determined to ride.

At the crack of the pistol a cheer went up. Black Danger snorted, sprang quivering to one side, and turned toward the hill. Pete leaned low and spoke to him, unheeding the horses speeding down the track. The crowd jeered as they followed.

"Look out, Pete, you're liable to win!"

"My money's on the black!"

"Hi, Pete, goin' 'round by Klondike?"

Desperately Pete tugged at the bridle. His horse trembled and plunged. Wild cheering marked the progress of the racers ahead. At last Black Danger turned and tore down the field.

"Black Danger, come on! Show 'em, boy! Come on, Black Danger. You gotta win!"

Perhaps the spirit of some racing ancestor awoke within the horse; perhaps he understood the entreaty in his loved master's voice. With strong swift strides he gained, and one by one the slower horses were left behind. There were two still ahead, the two on which Gold Valley was betting big money, the two whose names were on every lip. Slowly, so slowly to Pete's frenzied anxiety Black Danger gained on Queen Mab till he was racing abreast with her.

Confusedly Pete could hear his own name in the cheers that swept the field. Now hope was surging madly, for they had passed Queen Mab, and like waves rose and fell the noise of the crowd. But still ahead that flashing pink and green! Those dark specks, that moving shouting blur—it was the mass of people at the finish! Leaning low on Black Danger's neck, he pleaded hoarsely:

"Come on, boy. Come on! You just gotta win! It's Ike's horse'll get the purse if you don't!"

The lean strong body responded, sprang forward till he was racing nose to neck with Stella May. Quick, under the spur of the whip, the mare shot ahead, leading by a half-length. But the joy of battle seemed to grip the black horse. He lunged forward, his stride lengthening, until he ran nose to nose with the panting mare.

Pete could see the flick of the merciless whip driving Stella May over the rough ground, could hear the heaving breath of his own horse like a loud rushing wind. The end was close, close! Above, the hill curved, seemed to waver before Pete's burning eyes. And now, as in the old days, his name was ringing down the track as Gold Valley cheered Pete Ogden! His whole being seemed to lift with a new assurance. In a flash he remembered the signal of his night rides, how Black Danger loved and responded to the steep finish. He dropped the reins, waved his hat and yelled:

"The hill, boy! Now, come on, Black Danger!"

Did the horse realize that the cheers were for the rider he carried so gallantly? Did some instinct interpret the desperate message through the reins? Pete felt the lithe muscles tighten, saw the foam-flecked shoulders straighten. With a mighty spring Black Danger swept ahead of Stella May, up the slight incline, past the roaring crowd at the line, and on toward the hill. From afar off Pete heard the frenzied spectators shouting his name. There was a surging in his ears, a swaying before his eyes.

Straight for the familiar goal raced the black horse. With a magnificent leap he took a straggling fence. Cheers redoubled, women shrieked, but over the hill went Black Danger, and true to habit, slackened his pace on a level stretch.

"Black Danger, you done it, you done it! You saved the Ogden purse. Nobody'll ever know—about Ike. Oh, boy, if you'd gone back on me! But you wouldn't, you wouldn't!" he sobbed, clasping convulsively the wet limbs.

Presently he took a dingy bandana from his pocket, and with loving care wiped the suds that streaked the black coat. There was a tinge of red in the foam dripping from the mouth that pierced Pete like a knife.

"I hated to make you do it, boy, but it was the only way. A tough race, but you won it, my beauty, you beat 'em all down there—them fancy horses!"

A shout recalled him, and several men rode over the hill. He motioned them back, remembering that he must go down and claim the purse. When Black Danger lifted his head, and the labored breathing was easier, Pete swung into the saddle, whispering exultantly.

"We'll go get it, an' give it to Joe. There'll be the Ogden race next year like always, an' you done it, boy, you done it!"

Talking soothingly to the horse, dancing again with fiery power, he guided him to where Joe waited. The noisy, incredulous crowd scattered, standing back to watch the presentation of the historic prize. Brief as this ceremony was, this time it consisted merely in Joe's leaning out with the purse, and in Pete's snatching it as Black Danger careered past.

Clutching the worn trophy awkwardly, followed by tumultuous applause, Pete rode toward the corrals. Lord Penny hurried to the stables, and throwing open a door, pointed to a box-stall. Putting his old saddle-blanket over the horse, Pete started back, thinking only of leaving the purse safe in Joe's hands.

But as he left the corral, a group of cowboys met him, swung him to their shoulders, and carried him up and down the road yelling and singing. Finally, they deposited him beside Joe, demanding a speech.

The old man got to his feet, his face beaming under the old hat:

"Boys, I ain't never made a speech in my life, an' I ain't gonna impose on you now. But, by cripes, I gotta get this outa my system. I'm so doggoned proud to think a Gold Valley man, an' a Ogden to boot, won this race—not fergettin' to say 'twas a Gold Valley growed horse at that. Now, three cheers fer Pete Ogden!"

Again and again did Gold Valley ring with the hilarity of good will.

"Well, Ike," remarked Lord Penny jovially as they gathered round Joe's buckboard, "we didn't count on a new horse. Your brother beat us fair and square."

"Played the dark horse all right," returned Ike lightly, but he threw Pete a meaning glance.

A sinking sense of fear swept over Pete, and he scarcely responded to the vehement handshaking of the crowd swarming around him.

Again above the murmur of voices, he heard French Louie say to Ike:

"He—good horse—Pete's black. Win all-a money now. Next year I bet fer him."

"Don't be too fly about betting so far ahead," retorted Ike. "There's lots of good horses in the country. I've got a two-year-old comin' on that sure will be a winner!"

Pete's heart beat with sickening apprehension. Suppose Ike came back next year with a horse that would win the purse! Then Black Danger's desperate race of today had only staved off the disgrace for a time. Something told him that Ike was but waiting a chance to demand the purse still in Pete's trembling hands.

What would he do? A wild desire came to ride off into the hills with it, but then Gold Valley would accuse him of trying to steal it. Through the groping confusion of his mind a big idea stood out distinctly.

"Joe," he whispered, "you take the purse, an' can't it be fixed up so nobody kin ever keep it?"

"Keep it! You're havin' a pipe dream, Pete. Nobody'll ever try to keep it. I'd like to see the son of a gun that'd try. We'd tar an' feather 'im."

How was the old man to know that his every word but added to Pete's helpless dread and fear.

"Joe," he whispered uncertainly, "I got to talk to you somewhere's about the purse."

The shrewd old eyes turned sharply upon the white face besire him.

"What's wrong, Pete? Got some kind of a card up your sleeve? You kin always bank on me in any trouble. Guess you know that. Let's go on around an' have a look at that horse o' yourn. We gotta get cleaned up fer the dinner pretty soon. It's gonna be a big night, Pete."

The long tables in the dining-room, glittering under the light of many candles, stretched through the halls into the living-room to accommodate the guests that sat down to the dinner that always followed the Ogden race. Pete, still tightly holding the purse, looked dazedly at the chair to which Joe guided him. It was at the head of the table—his grandfather's old place!

But he felt somewhat assured when Joe took the chair on his left, after insisting that Ike take the one on the right. Pete stole a glance at his brother's face, but he was laughing and talking with the Englishman next him.

To Pete the dinner would always remain a blur of wild cheers and good will, but one or two incidents were stamped forever on his consciousness. That the crowd had toasted and applauded him again and again was as nothing as he waited in burning impatience for what was to follow.

Lord Penny, standing at the opposite end of the table, made a graceful speech in which he paid a glowing tribute to the Ogden name, and finished by proposing a silent toast to the memory of the founder of the Gold Valley races—Peter Ogden. Every man was on his feet, Pete setting his jaws stiffly in the hush that fell over the room.

Joe's speech, delivered in characteristic language, was a series of forcible expressions, punctuated by vehement applause. He began by saying that Pete Ogden was formally handing over the purse to the Gold Valley races. Here he was obliged to pause, for the men sprang to their feet with ringing cheers. Much more Joe had said, ending with words that Pete would never forget:

"I'll say this fer my friend here, Pete Ogden. He's as square a man as his grandfathr was, an' more praise I couldn't give no man."

When order had been restored, the newly arrived Englishman stood up. He had been most interested in the history of the purse. If it would not be considered presumptuous, he wished to add another $500 to the amount voted for the race, making the purse for next year $1000.

This brought Lord Penny to his feet to say that he would sign the deed giving the track forever to the Gold Valley races. The natives were slower to respond to these proposals seeming to watch Joe's lead. After an impressive silence, the old man stood up, and holding the Ogden purse high in the air he added:

"Reckon you've all heard what we intend to do. Any man here objects, or got any thing to say?"

He waited, his square-jawed glance on the crowd. Pete stole a glance at his brother's face. It was white with a tense strained expression of baffled greed. He stirred uneasily, his glittering eyes on Joe's determined face. Pete's trembling hand touched Ike's, gripping the side of the chair.

Joe went on—

"The Gold Valley races bein', I might say an institootion, it's up to every doggoned one o' you to make 'em next year the biggest we've ever had."

The Englishman was on his feet again:

"By Jove, seems to me there's another we ought to toast. Here's to Black Danger, winner of the purse, and may he win it again next year!"

When the cheers had died down Pete stood up, clinging to the edge of the table, a shrinking shabby figure:

"Here's to my brother, Ike Ogden—he's givin' the purse, too!"

Perhaps it was Pete's face, white and pleading, as he stood with his glass in his hand, that brought the men to their feet with a mighty response. The newer arrivals especially were enthusiastic, though the old-timers were slower to follow. A wonderful night for Pete! He was Pete Ogden again, not Poor Pete, as he had been since the beginning of his hard luck.

As soon as the dinner was over Ike, with much handshaking and rather forced jollity, announced that he was leaving to attend races in another town. Pete pressed through the crowd, and offered a timid hand to his brother. After a scarcely perceptible hesitation their hands clasped, Ike's face softening till he looked more like the boy Pete had played with long ago.

"Guess you were right, Pete. You've made me feel different somehow about things. Anyhow, it's a purse worth trying for now," he added, with a return to his old swagger, as he hurried out.

But when the evening's fun began, and the jingle of money in the cardroom mingled with the laughter and music of the dance, Pete looked bewildered at the men crowding round him with offers to buy Black Danger.

Joe, his shrewd eyes dancing, urged him:

"Lord Penny's clean dippy about him, an' so's that greenhorn of an Englishman. Got money to burn—both of 'em. You'd get enough to buy a nice little place in the valley. Jest wait till the coin warms up on the poker, an' by cripes, I'll work it so's you'll get the biggest price was ever paid for a horse in these diggin's!"

Pete's eyes were roving the room, the faces of strangers that had warmed so genially, the hands of lifelong neighbors reached toward him. It was like old times when he was Young Pete!

"I gotta think, Joe," he returned. "I'll go out an' see to Black Danger now."

He stepped out into the cool crisp night. From the shed came a well-loved eager neigh. As he opened the stable door Black Danger rushed to him, quivering in the joy of his welcome, Pete stroked the smooth face.

"They all want you now! Sell you? I'd rather starve! We got all we want out at the cabin, eh, boy?"

As though in answer the horse lifted his head toward the hills and whinnied softly, eagerly.

"You're right, boy, we belong out there!"

beside the drivers, and then the Sultan appeared. His carriage passed within twenty feet of where I was standing, and I made a snapshot through the open window. Abdul-Hamid wore a red fez, a black suit, and the famous gray overcoat, which was his usual costume on the way to prayers. He sat bent over in the carriage. His face was an apoplectic red and his hair and beard were so dead-black that anyone could see they were dyed.

The Bird of Despair

AS THE Sultan passed by we all lifted our hats, which we held in our hands until he stepped out of the carriage and went into the Mosque. We bowed and Abdul lifted his hand to his fez, and at the same time the soldiers saluted him, raising their muskets, while the officers drew their swords and the lancers stood with spears upright. The carriage stopped and he stepped out and started to walk up the steps of the Mosque.

Admiral Mark Bristol, the American High Commissioner in Constantinople, tells Mr. Carpenter how he protected American interests during the stormy Allied days. He believes that the Turks will make great progress if they are given a chance.

At that moment I glanced up at the minaret, where but an instant before the muezzin had been calling the hour of prayer, and there, away up 200 feet in the air on top of the golden crescent, I saw a black raven, the bird of evil omen, alight. It stood right on the coat-of-arms of His Majesty and the Turks who saw it whispered: "It is the bird of despair."

A little later the band began to play and the raven flew. When the Sultan came out, there were more stage cheers from the soldiers, but there was no enthusiasm whatever. Within twenty-four hours from that time Abdul-Hamid was in the hands of the revolutionists. He was taken by them to Salonika and there he died. This incident of the raven was commented upon by the ministers in the pavilion, but the story has never been published.

Abdul-Hamid attributed the loss of his throne to the new education which had been spread abroad through Turkey by the American schools. In talking of this, sometime before his deposition, he said:

"It was Robert College that lost me Bulgaria and it will, I believe, eventually cost me my throne."

After Abdul-Hamid came the Young Turks, who chose Mohammed V as Sultan. They adopted some reforms, but graft and intrigue prevailed, and much the same conditions obtained that existed throughout the war. In 1918 a new Sultan was chosen under the title of Mohammed VI, and on November 1, 1922, the Grand National Assembly voted a resolution that the office of the Sultan as a supreme power had ceased to exist and that in the future his place should be taken by the Caliph or spiritual ruler only.

Three days later the administration was taken over by the Grand National Assembly and the Constantinople Cabinet of the Sultan resigned. Mohammed VI, fearing that his fate might be the same as that of Abdul-Hamid, took refuge on a British warship and left Constantinople, and the Grand National Assembly then elected as Caliph his cousin, Prince Abdul-Medjid, the eldest prince in the male descent of the House of Osman.

But in little more than a year, he followed his predecessors into exile, when the National Assembly passed a bill abolishing the Caliphate and ordered Abdul-Medjid out of the country. He is now living in Switzerland with his several wives.

All this was done by the Assembly meeting at Angora, which is several hundred miles from Constantinople and is now the seat of government of the New Republic of Turkey. The Republic claims to be a bona fide government in which all the sovereignty belongs to the people. The old name, Ottoman Empire, has been discarded. The ruling power is the Grand National Assembly, the President of which is Marshal Mustafa Kemal Pasha, who is also Commander in Chief of the army. The new government has taken charge of Constantinople, and the government of the Allies has been ousted.

Turks Now Ruling Own Country

THE Turks are now ruling their own country. They are fixing their own taxes. They claim that all foreigners shall be subject to the same laws as the natives and shall be tried in the same courts. This has not been so in the past. In many cases there has been one law for the foreigner and another for the Turk. The great powers have dictated largely as to all matters of policy, foreign and domestic. They have limited the tariff, and have regulated many things which would not be permitted in any other republic. Now the Turks, for the time, have the privilege of assessing what duties they please. They have the same rights as the other republics of the world. How they will use them and how long they will continue to hold them, are among the live questions of the future.

By voting the Caliphate out of existence the Turks have abandoned their spiritual leadership of the Moslem world. The Caliph was the Pope of the Mohammedans of Europe, Asia and Africa, who number more than 250,000,000, or one-third as many people as all the Christians in the world. The word Caliph means successor, and each of the Turks who held the office was regarded by Moslems everywhere as the successor of the Prophet Mohammed.

The political leaders who put through the law abolishing the Caliphate declare that the Moslem religion is strong enough to stand on its principles alone, and needs no man to stand at its head. Other Mohammedan peoples seem not so sure about this, and already Hussein, King of Hedjaz, a lineal descendant of the Prophet, has been proclaimed Caliph by the Mohammedans of the Arabian Peninsula. His territory includes the holy city of Mecca, to which every good Moslem is supposed to make a pilgrimage at least once in his life. He will be largely supported outside of Turkey but it is also considered quite likely that Mohammedans elsewhere will set up some other claimant to the title, and thus perhaps bring on wars between political and religious factions.

hard to trace to its source. The patient has probably forgotten the incident or accident that first caused his nervous habit.

The physician's duty is to try to bring back to the patient's memory the first cause of his trouble through questioning the various phases of his life experiences. Often the conscious memory does not go back far enough to bring this cause to light. The hypnotist has the advantage over the physician who cannot make use of this form of questioning. The hypnotist can question the subconscious memory. This subconscious memory is nonresisting and is longer and surer.

In the hypnotic state fears can be discovered and dispensed with by the commands of the hypnotist, who has the patient under his control. He helps the patient control his habit of stuttering by giving him back mental ease and relaxation and courage. Change of environment and occupation often help. The courage for making these changes is often lacking and must be instilled into the nervous patient.

Voice Often is Hard

THE stutterer's voice is often hard and monotonous. This is due to the fact that he cramps his vocal cords in his efforts at speech. His face flushes or blanches. His abdominal muscles are at times drawn in so tightly that he experiences cramp-like pains. His breathing is forced and jerky due to the rigidity of the diaphragm and of the other respiratory muscles. When much excited he at times moves about his whole body or stamps his foot or jerks his head about.

An interesting fact about the stutterer is that when he sings or whispers he does not stutter. This is due to the fact that his vocal cords relax. In methods of teaching correct speech rhythmic chanting or singing is employed for this reason.

Side by side with the mental treatment of the patient must come of course the mechanical training of speech. All the mechanical methods of treatment, if they are of any value, must take in mind the fact of the nervous overtension of the patient. The patient must be taught to relax. The vocal cords must be trained to relax, the respiratory muscles, those of the abdomen, the diaphragm, the entire musculature of the body. This ability to relax is best learned when the patient and physician work alone. After a time an encouraging and sympathetic person can be brought into the office to be an audience; later classroom work helps the patient to speak easily and confidently when facing others.

The length of time necessary for the cure of a stutterer varies with the age and temperament of the patient; also with the type of stuttering.

A child can more easily be broken of the habit by building him up physically and helping him regain his nervous control. I emphasize here again the fact that children so afflicted are best away from the home environment if there is not the understanding in parents of the fact that the child's defect should be overlooked where encouraging words cannot be given.

Cure of Adults

IN AN adult the time for cure depends more on the ability of the physician to allay the nervousness of the patient than it does on the actual re-education of speech. In this field of bringing about mental relaxation to the stutterer the hypnotist has the advantage over the other physicians because the degree of relaxation he can bring about may be any from a quiet, conscious state to a state of deep unconsciousness.

The young person who lacks nervous control, who talks with great rapidity, is harder to deal with than the older person who has gained more ease of mind. The young person must be taught mental repose. He must be made to feel that his words won't run away from him.

The person who is depressed or melancholy must be cheered. He must be brought out of his mental torpor and be made to feel that his habit of stuttering can be overcome if he will overcome his mental inertia. This type of person is more readily cured because he generally has better poise.

The prevalence of this form of speech defect is hard to explain. In connection with my own work I receive more letters asking advice or asking whether I can help this form of nervousness than practically any other form of nervous disturbance. At every public lecture I am questioned concerning this habit.

More cures would be effected if there were more understanding of the mental trouble of the patient. With encouragement and more encouragement more and lasting results could be obtained. Sympathy, understanding and encouragement are the keynotes to the cure of the affliction of stuttering.

CHINESE HAVE TO KNOW 7000 LETTERS TO READ

When it is said that illiteracy is higher in China than in most countries, one means that fewer Chinese can read newspapers, magazines and philosophic and scientific works than is usual in other countries. The difficulty arises from the fact that it takes about 7000 characters to keep a newspaper in print; not 7000 characters altogether, but 7000 individual characters, as different from each other as "a" is from "z." A Chinese typesetter has to dance all over a large room looking for each character, and a typesetting machine is impossible because no machine could ever hold all the characters which might be necessary.

Every time something new comes along, like Einstein's theory or the League of Nations or Mendelism or helium, it is necessary to invent a name, either by approximating the sound in Chinese or by combining characters according to the meaning. The forming method is almost useless, since the characters are nowhere pronounced the same on account of dialectic differences, such a simple word as Hu, for instance, being pronounced variously as Hu, Khu, Fu and W.

Furthermore, the word in itself may not convey any meaning to the reader who may see it for the first time. It would then be necessary every time the characters are used to have an explanatory note indicating what they mean. Writers then try to find combinations which convey the meaning of the words. Whenever they can, they coin a new word by combining parts of characters, all of which is very intricate and makes it difficult for any but scholars to be literate.—[George E. Sokolesky in a Shanghai letter to the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Mist"

The sun is hidden and the air is full
Of fine soft mist that gently damps my face.
The glistening twigs are motionless, and leaves
Are still, and seem as dainty as fine lace.
The birds are nestling in their cozy nooks
Where tiny baby birds sleep in dry nests.
And flow'rs drink softly of the falling mist
While butterfly, and bee, and baby rests.

THE CASE OF THE REMARKABLE HUSBAND

was upon our most elite thoroughfare, and was of no mean pretensions."

"Poetry," said I, "must be profitable merchandise in India."

"I believe," said Alpin, "that the Beggar has a patron who foots the bills, thus acquiring merit."

We traversed the long walk and presented our cards to a bearded, sandaled Hindu who performed the offices of butler. The house, I noted at once, was redolent with some pleasing, if exotic, odor, as of priceless incense burning. There was a profound quiet. The Hindu did not speak. He bowed low and motioned us with courtly gesture to follow. After crossing several rooms we entered a spacious apartment given over to the preservation of books. Cases filled with thousands of volumes erected themselves to the ceiling, and there were no windows. The light of day was admitted through the glassed apex of the ceiling, but it was now evening, and the sole illumination came from tall candles rearing themselves from oriental candelabra. There was a faint haze of smoke—the smoke which disseminated the odor noticeable upon entering the house.

"Welcome. Friend of the Written Word," said a voice, rich, melodious, beautiful, "and welcome to your companion."

It was then that my eyes first rested upon the face of the Beggar of Benares, and whatever apprehensions of evil I entertained vanished as if before some magic of exquisite purity. It was the face of an old man who has lived beautifully; a face which spoke at once of childlike simplicity and of profound wisdom.

The Beggar sat, oriental fashion, upon a low divan. His robe was white, but not so white as his beard. At his feet crouched a second Asiatic, given to stoutness, with head bowed upon knees and face hidden as if in perpetual reverence.

"We have come," said Alpin Stone, "to drink at the fountain of your wisdom."

"The wisdom," said the Beggar gently, "of a child lost in the wilderness."

I felt a great shame, a shame for the presence of a firearm in my possession. It seemed a sacrilege.

"Be seated," said the Beggar. "It is well to comfort the body." He spoke a word to the servitor at his feet, who arose and placed chairs for our convenience.

Never from the lips of man have I heard such gracious eloquence! The talk was of virtue and beauty, and of the triumph of spirit over flesh. One listened as to a revelation. I was at peace; I was made to feel that the world was good and to perceive the feebleness of evil.

"And now," said Alpin, "let us speak of men. We of the West rest under a cloud of ignorance and misconception as to you of the East. Names come to us on the wind of rumor, but they remain names. To some we must be grateful—to the Patron who sent you to us, the Maharaja of Sawnpore Tell us of him."

The servitor at the feet of the Beggar lifted his head for an instant, and I felt the sharpness of his piercing glance.

"A youth, bound to the flesh, but striving toward the heights of purity," said the Beggar. "But I thirst. Let such refreshments as are fitting be brought."

The servior clapped his hands; portieres opened, and a slender girl, swathed to the face in white, entered bearing a tray. She moved slowly, and, if the phrase be permissible, with mechanical grace, and stood waiting. The eyes of the servitor did not lower themselves, but remained fixed on Alpin Stone.

"Enlighten us, Master," said Alpin, and some subtle change in his voice caused me to sit tense and apprehensive, "is not evil worked under the shelter of virtue of blacker face than evil which stands fearless in the open?"

I looked to the Beggar. His head rested upon his breast; his eyes were closed and his face was one of perfect peace.

"The Master sleeps," said the servitor.

"It is well," said Alpin. "He will neither see nor hear."

"It is well," replied the servitor.

"Rutton Lal," said Alpin.

"I am Rutton Lal."

"At first I was deceived. His goodness deceived me."

"It was well conceived," said the fat servitor, rising. He laughed with an amusement which was inexplicably repulsive to me. "See," he said. "You came to gain knowledge. Look."

With sudden gesture he threw back the folds which concealed the face of the girl bearing refreshments. It was a white face, a western face. "Marylin Graine," said I, for her features had been made familiar in the public prints since her disappearance.

Rutton Lal spared me a glance. "You know what you know," said he, and laughed again. "Now the work of your lives is accomplished."

Suddenly Alpin clutched my arm. "The table," said he, and, remembering, I began to recite those labors of my school days. "One times one is one, one times two is two, one times three is three . . ." But even as I counted I saw things which were not. The Beggar of Benares vanished from his seat, and in his place sat a woman of gracious beauty at whose face coiled a snake, and as I watched, reciting mechanically, fighting to perceive the real from the unreal, the snake uncoiled and moved toward me. Alpin stood beside me, staring, wide of eye, wavering upon his feet. I tried to cry out, but no sound came. I knew, but I do not know how I knew, that the approach of that serpent meant the approach of death, but I was powerless to move. "Six times six is thirty-six; six times seven is forty-two; six times eight—" I could not recall it. I struggled to remember the answer.

Rutton Lal came very close to Alpin Stone and laughed in his face.

"We who do the bidding of the Maharaja of Sawnpore do it well," he jeered, and suddenly stopped jeering for Alpin no longer wavered on his feet with drowsy face and half-shut eyes; Alpin's left hand clutched the fat olive throat, and there was the sound of a blow as the butt of Alpin's automatic fell upon the lank hair of Rutton Lal's rounded skull. The man sank to the ground.

"Jenkins," said Alpin.

I clenched my hands, rubbed my eyes. The beautiful woman gave place to the sleeping Beggar; the crawling snake vanished. I felt weak, nauseated.

"He almost had me," said Alpin. He bent quickly and handcuffed the wrists of Rutton Lal. "Tie his feet," said he; "here is rope. We're not out of the house yet—nor Marylin Graine."

The girl stood still, motionless, apparently sightless, unmoved by what had passed.

"Rutton," said Alpin, "at the first appearance of something that doesn't exist, I shall shoot."

The Hindu shrugged his shoulders.

"You escaped from prison in Australia."

"Evidently."

"Why did you send the snake to Mrs. Sandys."

Rutton Lal maintained a stubborn silence.

"Do you want him to know?" Alpin pointed to the still sleeping Beggar.

"No. No. He must not know."

"I thought so. Sublime goodness can impress even such as you. Talk, and I promise he shall not know. How is Mrs. Sandys concerned in this?"

"She was one of us."

"In Australia?"

"Yes."

"Where your business was abducting girls for your master, the Maharaja of Sawnpore?"

"Yes," very sullenly.

"She was the Mary Noyes who gave you up to the police? Why?"

"Love," said Rutton Lal with a sneer. "She loved a man."

"A good man?"

"A good man."

"Who knew her story, and her wickedness—her abandoned childhood, and the [illegible] your hands?"

"Yes."

"And he persuaded her to cleanse her soul? He took his life in his hands that she might be redeemed?"

"He was a brave man," said Rutton Lal.

"Sandys?"

"Yes."

"You have hunted them down."

"For two years I have searched."

"You chose a strange means."

"A warning. The story would go far. Many would read it. Those who read would fear to do as this woman did."

Alpin nodded. "So I reasoned," said he. "And now, under shelter of the virtue of the Beggar of Benares, you have entered again the business of abduction?"

"But he does not know. He does not know."

"Is there an honest man in this household?"

"All save four. It was necessary."

"Rutton Lal," said Alpin, "you will disappear. Now, while I wait, you will send your message to the intelligence of the Beggar that you have been called away, and who will take the trust of his affairs. He must not suffer."

Rutton shrugged fatalistically. He shut his eyes and remained silent a moment. "It is done," he said. "When he awakens he will know."

"I do not wish to frighten the girl. Tell her to awaken tomorrow in her own home—without memories."

"It is done," said Rutton presently.

"Come," said Alpin. He bent over and freed Rutton's feet. "There is a very modern telephone, Jenkins. Will you be so good as to notify the police, and call a taxicab to take Miss Graine to her home?" He turned to Rutton Lal. "Perhaps," he said, "you need refreshment. Will you choose a glass from the tray?"

"For the first time since birth," said Rutton, "I acknowledge intelligence in an ocidental. You play well to the last move." He lifted a glass to his lips, and then sat down, composing his limbs comfortably, and buried his face in his arms as he had sat when first we entered the room

We waited. Half an hour passed in silence. Rutton Lal sat motionless; the girl stood as if carved from stone. The turbaned butler entered, paused uncertainly.

Alpin arose. "Cover Rutton Lal," he said. "There may be trickery. I doubt it, but he may hope this is not checkmate but only mate."

He motioned the butler to follow him, and they disappeared. Almost instantly he returned with our old friends Detectives Samuels and Roush at his heels.

"Gentlemen," said he, with a note of complacence in his voice. "Miss Marylin Graine. Yonder is Rutton Lal, abductor extraordinary to His Highness the Maharaja of Sawnpore. The story will wait. Let us make haste."

Ed Roush stepped heavily to Rutton Lal's side and placed a professional hand on his shoulder. The man did not move. Roush lifted the oriental head; the eyes were closed; it was the face of one who has gone peacefully to sleep—but it was the sleep from which there is no awakening.

Late that night we rapped at the Sandys door.

"It is I," said Alpin, and we were admitted.

"There is no need to move on," he said. "Rutton Lal is dead."

"You know—" For the first time Sandys exhibited strong emotion.

"The story in all its details. But you need have no fear. Malicious tongues will never touch Mrs. Sandys. Now you may begin to live."

"But how?" I said. "How did you arrive at all this?"

"The index," he said. "The cobra was a favorite means of Rutton Lal. He used it twice in Australia, once in Shanghai, and nobody knows how many times in other places. It, taken with the disappearance of a number of young society women, pointed to a recurrence of the infamous Sydney exposures of two years ago. The cable told me Rutton was at large. But I admit I was shaken when I faced the Beggar of Benares. It seemed impossible evil could shelter itself under such simple virtue. Then I saw Rutton's eyes."

He turned to Mrs. Sandys. "Madam," said he, "may I congratulate you upon a husband such as few women possess?"

"I am trying," she said, with grateful tears, "to be worthy of him."

Winning the Championship in Woe

THE Greek Drama, as everybody knows, possesses a majesty that we do not find elsewhere. It has a loftiness, a sublimity, to which no later theater has obtained. Anybody who has seen the play of Alcestis put on by the senior class of the Podunk High School will admit this at once.

But though the Greek Drama is not presented in our commercial theaters, it still flourishes in our institutions of learning.

The open season for the Greek Drama in the college is the month of February. This gives the students four months to learn the Greek lines, and is based on a piece work rate of five words a day.

Let us therefore transport ourselves in fancy to the winter evening in a college town when the Greek play is to be put on by the senior class in classics.

Entrance to the auditorium is effected in two ways, either by ticket, for those who have tickets, or without a ticket for those who haven't got a ticket. When we are well inside the place, we find a large placard, visible only to those who have got in, announcing the attraction:

A GREAT TRAGEDY

The Greek Play
"OROASTUS"

Put on in the original by the Senior Class

A MASTERPIECE OF SORROW

DON'T MISS IT

A tall figure walks in, a player in a long-draped sheet of white, a bearded player, with a chaplet of leaves about his head . . . This must be Oroastus, let me look—yes, it's Oroastus, King of Thebes. What's he saying? A sort of long-drawn howling "Aie! Aie! Aie! Aie!" My! My! Oroastus must be in a terrible way—

Oroastus walks out pretty well into the middle of the stage and stands there groaning. Aie, Aie, Aie . . .

So to get a clue to what is now going to happen we look at our book of the play to see that the next thing marked in the English text is:

Entry of the Chorus

AH, now! Cheer up! That's something like, the chorus! Bring them right along in: No doubt they will be of that beautiful type of classic Greek girls. If there is one thing that we specialize on in the modern drama it is the chorus. Fetch the girls in by all means.

In they come. Help! What is this? Three old men—very aged, with cotton wool beards and long white robes like the one Oroastus wears.

They all lift their arms up straight above their heads and they all begin to moan.

Aie, Aie, Aie-e.

In face just like King Oroastus. They evidently have got the same internal trouble that he has.

Now they seem to be breaking into a kind of sustained talk in a sort of chant. We have the English translation with explanations in the book of the play; at a Greek college play the audience don't look at the stage, they look at the little book.

This is what the three saucy old men are saying:

O how unhappy is this (now standing before us) King!

O Fate! with what dark clouds art thou about to overwhelm (or perhaps to soak him.)

O what grief is his: and how on the one hand shall he for his part escape it. Oh, woe, O anxiety, O grief, Oh, woe!

So the chorus groan and the King keeps howling, Aie, aie, aie, and after they've done it long enough, and the three chorus men walk out one behind the other like the figures on an Athenian frieze, and the King is left alone.

He speaks (and a footnote in the book says that this speech is one of the finest things in Greek tragedy:)

What awful fate hangs over (or perhaps overhangs) me this unhappy king.

Oroastus, a Greek Tragedy—As Presented in Our Colleges

BY STEPHEN LEACOCK

What sorrow now does the swift-moving hand (or perhaps the revolving finger) of doom make for me.

Where shall I turn? Whither shall I go? What is going to hit me next?

What would I not give, even if it were my palace itself, to be let loose from this overwhelming anxiety (or perhaps this rather unusual situation.)

Beside it my palace and my crown are nothing.

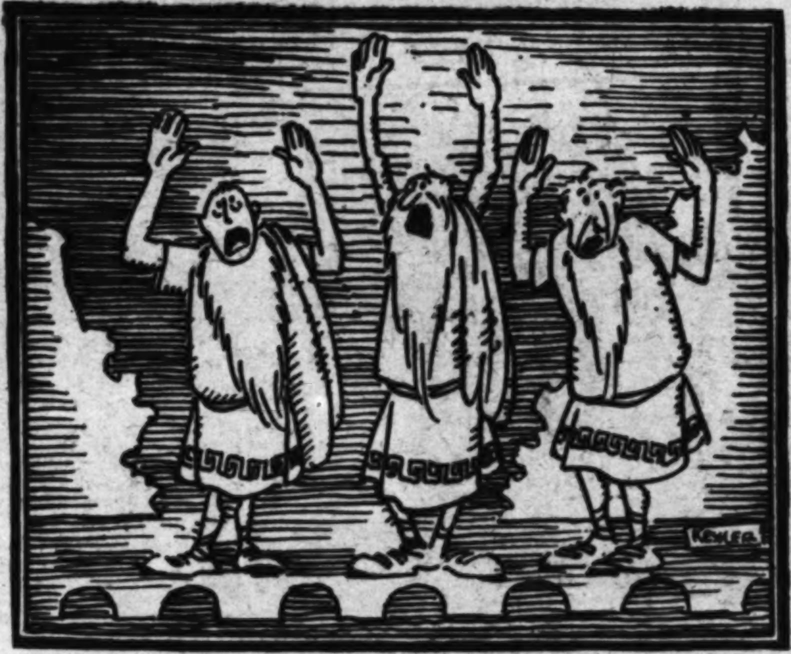
The King pauses and lifts his two hands straight up in the air and cries:

Oh, Zeus, what next?

And at this juncture the little book says:

Enter a Herald

AND the audience look up from their books a minute to see this herald come in. In runs the herald. He is young and has no beard. He has a tunic and bare legs and on his feet are sandals with wings and on his head also are wings and he carries a wand.



"They all lift their arms straight above their heads and they all begin to moan."

He confronts Oroastus and they hold a dialogue like this:

O King.

O Herald.

Aie.

Me, too.

Woe, woe! King.

I believe you.

Things are bad.

They are, indeed. What misfortune brings you in this direction?

A grave one.

• • • • • • •

The slowness of the Herald in giving the bad news to the King is one of the striking things in the Greek drama.

He speaks again.

Things are not what they seem.

Oroastus groans, O: The Herald realizes that he can't get another rise out of him. So he gets down to facts.

Your palace, O King, has on the one hand been destroyed by fire and your crown which in and of itself for the most part signified your kingship, has on the other hand been stolen.

Oroastus: Aie, Aie, Aie, my palace is destroyed and my crown is lost. Oh, woe, this is grief.

The Herald: It is. Good-bye. I have other tasks (or perhaps avocations.)

The Herald says this and withdraws and as he goes out in come the three old chorus men again.

They line up and chant out—

"Oh! look at this—now standing before us King (or sometimes rendered this ordinary man.) Sorrow has struck him.

His palace and his crown are destroyed. But all-compelling fate is getting ready another arrow (or, perhaps, is going to take another crack at him.)

There is more coming.

The three miserable old brutes troop out again. Then the King says:

Oh, me, alas. My palace is gone and yet a further fate overhangs me. What is this hang-over?

For so much, indeed, have I borne that to me now it seems that nothing further could overwhelm me even if it were the loss of my tender consort herself.

And just as he says this the sign goes up again in the book.

The Herald Enters

THE King speaks:

What now?

Terrible are the tidings.

Tell me what they are.

How can I?

Go at it (or perhaps go to it.)

Dark indeed is the news and terrible is the certainty.

What is it?

How can I say it? It is dark.

What is the dark stuff you are giving me? Does it perhaps concern my consort, the fair-fingered Apologee?

It does.

Tell me, then, the whole extent of the matter, concealing nothing.

I will.

Do.

The King groans. The Herald knows that the time has come to let loose his information. He says, Listen, then, oh King. Your queenly consort, the fair-fingered Apologee, has gone to Hades.

The King: Too bad.

The Herald: Gloomy Pluto has carried her off.

The King: This is deplorable (or perhaps reprehensible.)

The Herald: Good-bye. I have other avocations.

King Oroastus, being now left alone, starts, "Aie, aie, aie," and:

Oh, what an absolutely complete sorrow this is, this last one.

O Apologee!

O Hades!

For me, what now is left? My palace is destroyed and the fair-fingered Apologee has gone to Hades. What now is left to me but my old dog.

Enter the Herald

IN he comes just as before (the Greeks didn't believe in variety.)

For what purpose, Oh Herald, he inquires, do your feet bring you this way again?

The Herald: A gloomy one.

Let me have it.

I will.

Do. For, however dark it is, I have no further consolation in life than my old dog.

Old dog, indeed! Did your lips lead you to say old dog?

They did, indeed.

Are you perhaps under the impression, Oh, King, that you still have an old dog?

Such is my impression.

In that case, you never made a bigger mistake in your life.

Let me know it and if indeed I have made a mistake, let me hear it.

Hear it, then. Your dog is gone to Hades. Good-bye. I have other avocations.

The King lifts his hands up in sorrow, and a note in the book says: "King Oroastus has now had nearly enough." To this we quite agree. One might say, in fact, he had had plenty.

But the chorus are not done with him yet. On they come with the remorselessness of the Greek drama.

They line up.

Look, then, at this standing before us King. What a load he has. But worse is yet coming. Keep your seats and watch him.

They go out in their usual undisturbed way, and Oroastus says:

Oh, what a last final instalment (or hang-over) of bitter grief is now mine. What now is left? Now that everything has gone to Hades, of what use is life itself? Oh, day! Oh, sunshine! Oh, light! Let me withdraw myself, I before my time, to my tomb, to my mausoleum which I have had made by the skilled hands of artificers, and there let me join hands with Death.

The Herald comes back. Oroastus says:

Is it dark stuff again?

And the Herald says:

The darkest.

Then let me not hear it. It is now in my mind hearing nothing further to repair to my mausoleum—

The Herald: You can't.

The King: Why not? What is which? For your words convey nothing.

The Herald: Get ready for something pretty tough. Are you all set?

The King: I am.

The Herald: Know then that your mausoleum no longer is. It was broken into by burglars and is unfit to use. Good-bye. I have other avocations.

Oroastus: Aie, aie, aie . . .

Then they line up for a last crack at Oroastus.

Look at him.

Isn't he the unlucky bean (or perhaps turnip.)

But such is life, Oroastus, and it is a necessity of the Gods that even Death is withheld from the sorrowful. Aie, aie, aie.

His Guide

A star has left its high place in the sky,
But still the heavens are beautiful and bright,
And not a passing zephyr breathes a sigh
As it comes hurtling downward through the night.

Perhaps some pilgrim's eyes beheld the star—
Some wanderer whose path was dark and dim—
Who'd traveled falt'ringly and come from far.
Perhaps the star's clear brilliance guided him.

And maybe when he'd reached his journey's end
And was from fear and doubt forever free,
The star, that had been lighted just to send
Its rays to help and cheer him, ceased to be.

Bottles Test Ocean Currents

Knowledge of the direction and speed of ocean currents is obtained by the United States Hydrographic Office by means of what are known as "bottle papers," says Popular Science Monthly. These are small paper slips with directions for their return to the proper authorities printed in several languages. Sealed in bottles, they are given to ships, captains and thrown overboard. On them are written the time and place they are launched. After months or years they return to Washington. One drifted nearly across the Atlantic and back.

BLACK DANGER

shambled over to shake hands.

"Pete, where th' — you been? I looked fer you all day!"

"Guess I forgot to mark a day off," stammered Pete. "It's the fourteenth, ain't it?"

"Fourteenth! It's the fifteenth, boy. You missed the first day entirely. By cripes, I knowed somethin' was wrong."

Pete's jaw dropped in chagrin, and he looked helplessly 'round at the grinning faces. A youth, obviously conscious of new chaps and spurs, remarked:

"Got a patent on that calender of yours, Pete?"

Joe gave him a withering look.

"Say, kid, them new duds gone to your head, ain't they? Think I heard yer ma yellin' fer you. Come on in, Pete. We'll have some supper. He'll be back fer supper, though. Let's eat, boy."

Pete walked through the corrals to the house with Joe. He always felt more at ease in the company of this old man, who had been a lifelong friend of his grandfather. An odd-looking figure Joe was, dressed in the same baggy gray clothes he had worn since the younger generation could remember. He was the oldest resident in Gold Valley, so old that he had become a sort of tribunal. When newcomers asked him his age, he chuckled, and said he had forgotten it.

In the crowded dining-room the two found seats at a noisy table.

"A couple o' steaks, Wing, thick an' juicy," called Joe to the white-aproned Chinaman at the kitchen door.

At the head of the table sat Bruce Pennington, the present owner of the ranch, a clear-skinned Englishman, dubbed Lord Penny for so long that his real name was forgotten. Though a "remittance man," the reputation of being a good sport had enabled him to live down that misfortune.

Pete, with the rush of old memories crowding upon him, kept his eyes on his plate, but Joe was enthusiastically discussing the races.

"Well, Pete, you missed a big day. Some crackin' good horses here. It's between Ike's Stella May an' Lord Penny's Queen Mab fer the Ogden purse. Money's strong on Ike's horse."

"Meself, I'd like to see Queen Mab win," put in a cowboy. "She's a Gold Valley horse. Can't get away from that."

"Stella May's a down-country horse," agreed Mike McCarthy, an old-timer. "'Tain't often any outside horses comes."

Joe glanced up quickly.

"Well, Ike's an Ogden," he retorted shortly.

"'Twas an Ogden won the first race, I believe," remarked the Englishman.

"You're right, son, it was,' 'answered Joe emphatically. "Gosh, that was a race! 'Twas in the early sixties. Everybody was flush. Dollar a pound fer flour, an' a dollar a piece fer spuds. Mines pannin' out to beat— You kin guess how the gold dust piled up on a horse race. 'Twas between Old Pete Ogden's cayuse an' a spindly-legged high-stepper some fresh guy brought in a purpose to skin the camp. It was rainin', an' the road was sticky. By cripes, the danged little cayuse hid hills on the high-stepper! There ain't never been such a night in Gold Valley since. I wasn't much more'n a kid, but I remember it like yesterday. 'Twas in Al Smith's saloon—the Angel's Rest he called it—on toward daylight, when Pete gets up on the bar an' stuffs his big leather purse with the real stuff, gold dust, the richest ever found in the country. He lifts it up to the crowd an,' says he, 'This to the son-of-a-gun that'll beat my cayuse this day one year.' An' that was the starter o' the Gold Valley Races."

"How very interesting!" put in an Englishman, a resident in the country one month.

"Pete made a haul that year," continued Joe, "an' not bein' one o' these that's fer hoggin' all he could get an' skinnin' off back East—" here Joe looked meaningly at a newly arrived easterner—"why, he takes up this ranch an' builds this very house we're settin' in—first ranch in the valley. Some more o' us done the same thing, an' next year Pete was as good as his word an' we had the races in that field where we've had 'em ever since. I got hold of a horse that beat Pete's so I got the purse."

"I remember that night," chuckled Mike McCarthy. "He was all pretty well loaded, Joe, an' you got up on the bar that used to be in the card room there an' give the purse back to Pete to be kept fer the next year. The boom was dead, an' the town was flatter'n a pancake, but Pete 'lowed we could raise $500 between us. An' that's what's happened every year since. The fellah that wins the purse just slips it back in a day or two an' gets the $500."

Pete's fascinated eyes had turned from one speaker to the other during the oft-repeated story of the historic purse. He dropped his gaze as Joe turned to him and added:

"Yeh, we ain't ever touched the purse since the big night when yer grandad filled it, Pete."

"How very extraordinary!" exclaimed the uninitiated Englishman. "But, I say, you know, suppose the purse should be won by somebody who didn't want to give it back?"

Joe looked at him narrowly.

"Say, mister, sharks don't grow in Gold Valley. If they happen in here, by cripes, they don't stay long. Climate ain't healthy See?"

The laugh that followed did not appear to disconcert the stranger, and he continued:

"A great responsibility, I should say, keeping the purse. You have it in charge, have you not?"

"I have. Bein' the next old-timer they thought I was in line fer it. But I ain't never lost no sleep over it," returned Joe dryly.

"It strikes me as quite unusual, the way your races are conducted. The informality, you know," persisted the Englishman.

"Don't believe I get you," returned the old man with deliberate emphasis.

"Why, as I understand it, you charge no entry fees. Anybody who has a horse can run him in one or all of the races. You have no board to announce the winners. Very odd, it strikes me."

Joe fixed disgusted eyes on his inquisitive neighbor.

"Say, if a man's got a good horse an' wants to run him he's got a right to, ain't he?"

"But I should think it would quite upset the betting to have a winner come in, say at the last minute. Now, in England——"

Joe brought his fist down on the table.

"Any darn cheap-skate that's afraid o' his money better stay home an' watch it! That's all I got to say."

While the room rang with laughter, Ike Ogden, accompanied by a short, slight man, came in. Sighting Pete, he came around the table to shake hands.

"I want to have a talk with you after supper," he whispered, then went to a seat next Lord Penny.

Pete's eyes followed him wistfully. He was proud of this brother, a handsome, florid man, rather showily dressed. But Ike's first words as he joined in the conversation carried a hurt.

"One thing you need up here is a decent track. That field's rough, and it slopes too much. A horse that's used to a track doesn't have a fair show."

Joe's voice, belligerently defensive, broke a surprised silence.

"We've run the races on that field since the sixties, Ike. Sorry it don't suit you. 'Twas good enough fer yer gran'dad."

The talk became general, and Joe confided to Pete—

"It's that little crook of a jockey that's with Ike that's been shootin' off about the track."

From the big living-room across the hall crashed the opening bars of "I'll Bet My Money on the Bob-tailed Nag," a lively dance tune that had strayed in during the boom and was still popular.

"Grand march, an' everybody dance!" yelled the "caller."

There was a rush for partners, a crowding to the doors to watch the opening of the hall. In Gold Valley there was no waiting until a fashionably late hour before beginning to dance. From supper to breakfast was the shortest period considered, and often it took several days to consume the dormant energies of the young people. As Joe and Pete stood in the doorway, a laughing girl tripped across the room and drew the old man into the march amid great applause. Pete slipped out and was walking toward the stables when Ike and the jockey overtook him.

"Want you to see my horse, Stella May," remarked Ike affably, handing his brother a cigar. "She's a beauty. There's never been anything in this country to touch her. There's some money on her, I can tell you!"

She was a beauty, a chestnut, clean-limbed, trim and shining from thorough care. Pete checked an impulse to tell Ike about his horse.

"Let's take a walk down the road. I've got to have a talk with you," said Ike as they sauntered out into the moonlit yard, leaving the jockey busy around the mare.

When they were out of sight of the house he began:

"Pete, it's all—foolishness about the purse. Grandfather never really gave it to the races. It belongs to us—to you and me."

Pete was silent, looking at his brother with wide startled eyes.

"—it all, can't you speak?" blustered Ike.

"You don't mean—you want to take it back!" Pete's incredulous voice was a dry whisper.

"I tell you it's ours," returned Ike stubbornly. "I need the money—get some more horses. There's a few thousand in gold dust I could use. I'll share with you, of course, Pete," he finished cajolingly.

Instinctively Pete's eyes turned toward the hillside, where he seemed to see an old headstone. He straightened his sagging shoulders:

"I—you hadn't ought to do it, Ike. You can't do it. 'Tain't right. Gran'dad give that gold all himself, an' everybody knows about it." We got no claim on it. The races owns it. You leave it be."

"Like — I will!" retorted Ike. "Stella May'll win tomorrow, and I keep the purse. I'd like to see the man that'll take it away from me."

"Ike," pleaded Pete, putting his hand on his brother's arm, "don't try to do it. Why, gran'dad was awful proud o' that purse—o' the races. Remember how he wanted us to always keep the ranch? Well, the ranch—it's gone, but the purse—it's the Ogden purse, Ike, an' you—oh, you can't take it back!"

Angrily Ike pushed the light form from him.

"You poor brainless fool! See to it that you keep your mouth shut. I'll do as I like about it. Don't let on to Joe or any of them, and if they raise a row you're to back me up, see?"

But Pete shook his head, and watched dazedly the nonchalant figure sauntering along the road. Bewildered, he tried to understand what it all meant. He couldn't think fast; so many new ideas confused him. But this much was clear: Ike, his brother, an Ogden, was going to take back the purse their grandfather had given long ago for the big race! The thought appalled him, turned him sick. Oh, he must stop it somehow! He started after Ike. He would plead with him, beg him not to do this thing—disgrace the name of Ogden.

Ike was in the stable, laughing and talking among a group of men. Pete stood back in the shadows and watched for a chance to catch his eye. From the house floated sounds of merriment. The fiddlers played their gayest, and the shuffling of feet mingled with the sounds of laughter.

How long ago it was since Ike and he were hosts at that dance! Gran'dad had made them promise to stand by each other. Again he seemed to hear the kindly voice, "You're all the Ogdens that's left." Oh, it couldn't be that Ike cared more for the gold than for the memory of the man who had been father and mother to the two boys! Finally, his brother, catching sight of the troubled face at the window, turned and came out into the yard.

"Look here, Pete. You do as I say. If any question comes up about this you're to back me. That's all you got to do, and see that you mind me."

But with the courage of desperation Pete pleaded:

"Ike, think o' the disgrace. Everybody'd talk."

"You're a nice one to talk of disgracing the name! What else have you ever done? How many times have I paid your card debts and you drunk as an owl, days at a time? A credit you've been to the name! Better get back to the hills where you belong!"

Shrinking before the scorn and rage in Ike's face, Pete crossed the yard to where his cayuse stood, mounted, and rode away. Beside the old graveyard he halted, his eyes on the fading inscription he could not read in the dim moonlight. He looked down at his old home, saw the lights, and heard the echo of merry voices. With bowed head he rode on. Ike was right. What had he been but a disgrace to the name?

Pinto, unguided, quickened his gait. Pete was trying to think in his fragmentary way. Several times he checked the horse; once he turned him back; then, driven by some helpless instinct, he cantered over the hills, and at dawn rode into River Meadow. The solitary valley was still in a thin half-mist, but the coming day was flinging fiery bands along the eastern horizon. A river murmured placidly through the meadow; the sweetness of pines and earthy odors was the vivid breath of wild places. Down on the river bank stood a cabin and a tumble-down barn, Pete's home.

Searching the hills he whistled sharply, piercingly. The sound of flying hoofs broke the solitude. From the meadow, with the swift grace of the trained racer, and the sure-foot of the range horse, whinnying his challenge to the world, bounded a magnificent black stallion. His satin coat gleamed through the dawn, his long mane and tail tossed in the breeze, as with feet scarcely touching the earth he come like the fiery spirit of some long dead chariot leader.

Pete's eyes were shining as he slipped from Pinto's back and waited. Whose hand but his, during four years of loving care, had nursed the sickly colt to this perfection? With an eager whinny Black Danger stopped beside the man, his pink nostrils quivering, nosing eagerly around the pocket of the faded coat. With a laugh Pete held the coveted lump of sugar toward the horse.

"You beauty! You sure are a beauty! No, Black Danger, only one lump. Other's fer Pinto. Got to be square, you know. Ain't I always told you that?"

The reproof in the voice was all indulgent pride as he watched the horse beside him. With lifted head sniffing the wind, with restless eye searching the far hills, the young stallion's finely poised body was charged with power and virility. Clean-limbed, strongly built, he was a horse such as an indifferent herd may produce once in a century, as if nature in one master stroke sought to atone for past errors and neglect. In the eyes of the man with the scarred forehead was the proud tenderness of mother love.

"You look like the old stock we used to have—that racer we got from Kentucky. They don't know out in the valley how you kin travel or they'd all be after you. But we're not givin' them a chance to know. We'd best be careful, boy. There'd be no more long night rides on the hills when we couldn't sleep. There's racin' blood in you. I know it. You could beat 'em all down there, I bet."

The fond admiration faded from his face, and the misery settled like lead around his heart. For the moment he had forgotten the purse, and the disgrace that was soon to come on the Ogden name. He moved closer to Black Danger and leaned his head against the firm neck. There was comfort in the warmth and strength, in the moist touches of the eager nose.

"Yes, I know, boy. You'd help me if you could. Guess we'll never see Gold Valley again. It's away back in the hills fer us, where we'll not meet any o' the old folks."

Suddenly he lifted his head, a breathless thought gripping him. He clasped the arched neck, laughing joyously.

"I got it! I got it, Black Danger. You're gonna win the Ogden purse. You'll do it, you gotta do it, boy! You'll leave Ike's horse in the shade. There's none of 'em kin beat you. Boy, boy, we'll do it, we'll win the big race an' save the purse. Nobody'll ever know about Ike——"

His hands clung to the mane, an icy thought clutching at his heart. With blanched face he whispered:

"No, I won't do it! I can't do it, not fer anything. Ike, he says I owe him money yet. He'll say you're his. He'll want you, an' he can't have you! I can't do it. I won't do it! I'm gonna keep you, boy. You're mine!"

He sank heavily down on the cold earth, and watched the east with heavy eyes. Pictures of the past rose before him, stray bits of conversation recurred. The cayuse browsed peacefully, but Black Danger, as though he sensed the struggle in his master's mind, pawed the earth uneasily. The shrill cry of wandering coyotes rang out, reverberated, and all was still again. Pete seemed to see a white headstone with the fading inscription, could hear his grandfather's words, "You're all the Ogden's that's left."

Long shafts of sunlight scattered the

The Married Life of Helen and Warren

Helen's Naive Collusion Proves an Unethical Factor in a Real Estate Deal

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER

Creator of "Helen and Warren" Characters

EVEN his favorite rib roast failed to banish the preoccupied scowl that always followed a trying day.

"Dear, did anything go wrong at the office?" ventured Helen.

"No," belligerently spearing a potato. "Tired, that's all."

"Did Miss Davis stay home again?"

"No. What makes you ask that?"

"I was just wondering. Isn't that a good cut? That's the new butcher."

"Uh-uh," Warren grunted, his worried frown still unrelaxed.

"Dear, did that Fairfax case come up today?" with elaborate carelessness.

"No, it didn't. Still pumping, eh? Well, if you must know—Barton's getting cold feet on that Jamaica house."

"And you thought you'd sold it!"

"Well, I thought wrong. He went out to see it again. Says it needs a new roof. Won't give ten thousand. I'll have to shave the price."

"And you're offering it at cost? Dear, I wouldn't take a cent less!"

"What am I to do with a house out there? Elephant on my hands."

"Can't you rent it?" passing him the cranberry jelly.

"I'm not in the real estate business. Can't be bothered with repairs. Take two thousand to put it in shape. These carrots nothin' but salt!"

"Yes, they are too salty—I'll tell her again. Does he know you had to take it on that loan? That you're not making a thing?"

"He'll put the screws on just the same. That's why he's coming tonight."

"Oh, he's coming here this evening?"

"Yes, at 8. S'pose I'll have to lose five hundred. Might as well take my loss now as later on," again carving savagely into the roast.

"Why, dear, it's a nice little three-story house. And that cunning sleeping porch. It's worth more than ten thousand."

"Helluva lot you know about it. Barton's not taking your appraisal. Shove over those pickled beets."

Through the rest of the dinner Helen thought only of the five hundred Warren would lose on the Jamaica house. If he only held out she felt sure Mr. Barton would pay the ten thousand.

"What's the matter? Gone to sleep? I asked for some cream."

"Oh, I—I was thinking of something else," touching the bell. "Susie, Mr. Curtis would like some cream for his baked apple."

When they rose from the table, instead of joining Warren in the library, Helen turned into her own room.

Settled with the evening papers, he did not trouble to look up when she came to the door.

"Dear, I'm going around to the druggist for some shampoo. I won't be long."

"Uh-uh," still without glancing up.

It was just ten minutes of eight when Helen returned, letting herself in with her latch key. The hall rack held only Warren's hat and coat.

But she had barely time to take off her things when Mr. Barton arrived.

He had dined with them several months before, and now, as she went out to receive him, he greeted her most cordially.

Usually when Warren had business callers, Helen left them alone. But this evening she settled herself on the library window-seat.

"Mr. Barton, you remember Pussy Purr-Mew?" taking her into her lap.

"I certainly do. You've a mighty fine cat there."

"Yes, I think the Shaded Silvers have the best coats of all the Persians. Don't you?"

Ignoring Warren's impatient scowl, she held Mr. Barton's attention with a glowing account of the many blue ribbons Pussy Purr-Mew had won.

"Well, you got out to Jamaica today?" Warren broke in abruptly.

"Yes, drove out this morning. That house is in worse shape than I thought. All the plumbing's got to be overhauled. Some of the ceilings have to come down—not safe. They let the whole place go to pieces."

"Yes, it needs repairs," admitted Warren, "but the lot alone's assessed at $8000. And the neighborhood's improving right along."

"Not so much, Curtis. That garage across the street doesn't help it any."

"Mr. Barton, do look! Isn't she too cunning when she does that?" tickling Pussy Purr-Mew's hind legs as she lay on her back, evoking indignant kicks.

"Yes, that's a touchy spot. You ought to see our Tiger kick when you do that."

"And they've so much strength. Look how she pushes against me."

"Now Mr. Barton didn't come here to be entertained by that cat," glowered Warren. "S'pose you take her into the other room."

"No, sir," waving Pussy Purr-Mew's paw at him. "We don't often have such an admiring audience. You can talk about your old house afterward. I want to show Mr. Barton how she stands up. Just look! Can your Tiger do that?"

"Answer that phone," growled Warren.

Pussy Purr-Mew, always adverse to being "shown off," scampered away as Helen released her to go to the shrilling phone.

"Hello! . . . Yes, Mr. Curtis is here, just hold the wire."

With a muttered invective Warren strode to the instrument.

"Hello! . . . What's that? . . . No, I didn't get any such inquiry . . . Yes, thirty-foot lot. Nine rooms, hardwood floors, and hot water heat . . . Ten thousand. A party's considering it, but we haven't closed yet . . . Yes, you can see it tomorrow. Key next door.

A moment later he turned from the phone with a puzzled,

"That's funny. That woman said she wrote me about the house last week."

"Lot of people rush to see every house that's for sale," shrugged Mr. Barton. "Most of 'em with no intention to buy. You know that cellar has to be cemented?"

"It'll take all of three thousand to put it in shape to rent. Now, Curtis, I'll make it ninety-five hundred cash. That's a good offer."

"No, I don't feel like losing on it. I'm offering it at cost, Barton, and I'm not going to cut on that. It's worth ten thousand and you know it."

A protesting mew from Pussy Purr-Mew as Helen's tense hold tightened.

"Well, we'll split the difference and make it ninety-seven fifty."

"No, Barton, I ought to get my money out. I'm not trying to hold you up."

A persistent bargainer, Mr. Barton again rehearsed every defect of the house and all the repairs that were needed, but Warren held firm to his price.

"Well, you win, I'll not haggle over a few dollars," was Mr. Barton's magnanimous conclusion. "Draw up the papers and send them around tomorrow. After nine," glancing at his watch. "Told Haynes I'd be at the club at nine-thirty."

Warren followed him out to the door, and Helen heard his final,

"Get those papers around by noon. I'm going to Boston on the four-ten."

As the door closed after him, Helen picking up her skirt pirouetted around Warren with bubbling exultancy.

"Now! Now say I don't know anything about business! I made you $500 in the last hour."

"You did what?"

"You were going to take ninety-five hundred, weren't you?" gloatingly. "That's why I kept him talking about Pussy Purr-Mew until the phone rang."

"The phone? What in blazes—"

"That was Mrs. Stevens," gleefully. "She disguised her voice. That's what I went out for—to call her up!"

Her effervescence ebbed before the steely glint in Warren's eyes.

"One of your smart tricks, eh?" stepping toward her almost menacingly. "Well I don't do business that way. I'll tell Barton the deal's off. I can't tell him why, but I'll not take advantage of a cheap bluff like that!"

"Why, Warren, it's done every day! Think of the stories and plays where—"

"It's done, all right. That dodge has whiskers. Don't think you put over anything new, d'you?"

"Oh, dear, don't look at me like that," tremulously. "You said the house was worth ten thousand, and I was only trying—"

An imperative summons from the telephone broke into her agitated defense.

As Warren, still fuming about, made no move toward the instrument, Helen was forced to answer it.

"Hello! . . . Yes, who wishes to speak to him?"

"Don't want to talk to anybody," snarled Warren. "Take the message."

"Mr. Curtis is engaged just now. Can you give me the message? . . . Why, no, I don't think he's sold it . . . Just a moment."

Her hand over the mouthpiece, she whispered an excited,

"Dear, someone about the house!"

"More of your phoney work?" he snorted

"Well, you win; I'll not haggle over a few dollars," was Mr. Barton's conclusion.

Model Art Sheraton

A Schumann Grand Piano

The Art-of-Tone

The Grand Piano of your choice, because it is a true reflection of the Schumann ideal—the spirit of the entire Schumann organization, from President to Finisher: "This one thing we do—and well," the ultimate of which is to produce a piano of which it may be said, "It is the very Art of Tone."

All who know the Schumann, and especially those who own one, say they have succeeded.

As a Piano, it is The Art of Tone, because of its distinctive, "Built Like a Violin" construction.

As an object of furniture, it is a Masterpiece, because it is of the classic design of the master English cabinet maker, Sheraton.

It is therefore, the Grand Piano of your preferred choice, and will grow in favor as the days go by—for it is

The Piano of Today, Tomorrow—and for the Years to Come.

—and, as an object of Furniture a Masterpiece.

THE GOOD AND BAD MANNERS OF AMERICAN MEN

THE demands placed upon the man in connection with social duties are not as stringent as they used to be. He is still required to pay a "thank you" call on the hostess who is to him but an acquaintance. At least he is expected to leave cards after she has entertained him. It is not required of him to pay formal calls on the woman that he knows well. Needless to say he goes to see her if he wishes.

When he has had to refuse a formal invitation or has happened to receive a number of dinner invitations from one person, and been unable to attend, it is polite to call. If a man has accepted an invitation and for some reason has had to drop out he should leave cards or call very soon after, having written a personal note of explanation at the time. I am not now speaking of large balls, but entertainments of a limited number of people.

The young people of today have so many amusements which they are able to do together, such as going out to tea and dancing and going out into the country, which has been made very easy by automobiles, that the men are not very apt to call on the girls of their acquaintance. It is unquestionably required of the man to show courtesy to the older woman who entertains him. In other words, at a dance or a large dinner he is expected to make a point of going and speaking to her and, if she is in the habit of dancing, of inviting her to dance.

I am told that there are many young men today who go to large balls and do not even trouble to say "Good evening" to their hostess. This seems to me unbelievable, and, if I had not been told of it by a number of hostesses, I would not dare to mention it; but I have come to the conclusion that it must be true. This is, of course, inexcusable on their part. But I also hold the hostess responsible, for to repeat what I said in a previous article, if the hostess reprimanded such manners by refusing to again invite the men who behave in such a way to her house these same men would very quickly develop a new set of manners.

The question of introductions in America is almost entirely a question of what girls or women the man wants to meet. In Europe at a dinner party a man is supposed to ask his hostess or some lady whom he knows well to present him to every woman in the room. If he has met a young girl the evening before and the next day sees her with her mother he must always ask to be presented to the mother. I well remember the difficult time I had in Rome. When sitting having coffee with my mother in the Grand Hotel, the day after some dinner or dance at which I had met many men with extraordinary names, to my horror I would see all these men walking across the room asking me to present them to my mother!

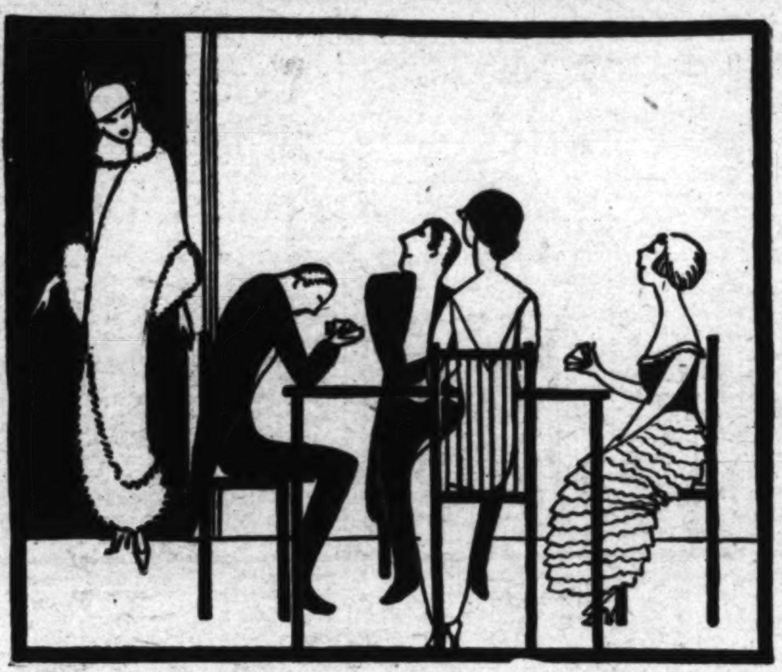
Different in America

IN AMERICA it is quite different. Not only would it never enter a man's head to ask to be presented to the other ladies at the dinner, but frequently the hostess does not even think it necessary to present him to the lady whom he is to take in or sit next to at dinner. This is careless on the part of the hostess and should not occur, but if it does the two people should tell each other their names and not be made uncomfortable by the occurrence.

There are two questions that seem to bother a good many people. One is, should the man precede or follow the lady in entering a restaurant; and the other, should a man stand if a lady whom he does not know comes to the table to speak to some one in his party. The first is really not particularly important, but I have always believed that the man should naturally speak to the head waiter with regard to the table, which means that he must be in advance of the woman. Of course, when the waiter shows them to their table, he should stand back and allow the woman to walk in first. For some reason it always looks better to see a lady walking in front of the man.

The answer to the second question is that he must, of course, stand if a lady comes to his table, irrespective of whether he knows her or not. If she is going to talk for some minutes she should have tact enough, also irrespective of whether she has been introduced to the man or not, to ask him to sit down, and it is then perfectly permissible for him to do so. I can understand his thinking a number of thoughts about her if she does not ask him to sit down, but, nevertheless, he should not do it without her permission. Naturally this applies only if there are but a few people at a table or if in a restaurant.

In a private house, if the dinner is very large and a lady arrives late, the only men that are required to stand are the host and the men on either side of her chair. If she leaves the table only the men on either side of her chair need get up. If the dinner or lunch is small all the men must rise.



"Men are not supposed to sit while women are standing."

Sould Social Informality be Encouraged?

OLDER women should be shown more formal courtesy than the younger, and the young man should make a point of paying his respects to any older woman of his acquaintance in a roomful of people. In other words he should not merely bow to her, but cross the room and speak to her for a minute or so. Generally a man is not supposed to sit in a room while ladies are standing, but at a very large dinner or reception this rule does not have to be followed.

A certain formality of manner is always charming, provided it is not exaggerated and it seems to me that, no matter how well a young man and a young woman may know each other, when in public or in the company of a number of people their tendency should be more toward formality than the great informality which holds sway today. The question of men's use of the first name, in speaking of women of their acquaintance, is one that should never be abused.

Naturally I do not include in this women of profession, whose first names become as important in their identification as their last. In these cases the use of their first name is no more informal than the use of their last. A man should never speak of a woman as "Jane Smith" unless he has permission to call her "Jane" to her face. There is nothing in the world which betrays not only a lack of knowledge, but a lack of sensitiveness as this habit. The person who wants to show an intimacy, which he has not, with some one whom he considers important, gives one an insight into other sides of his character of which this is merely one example.

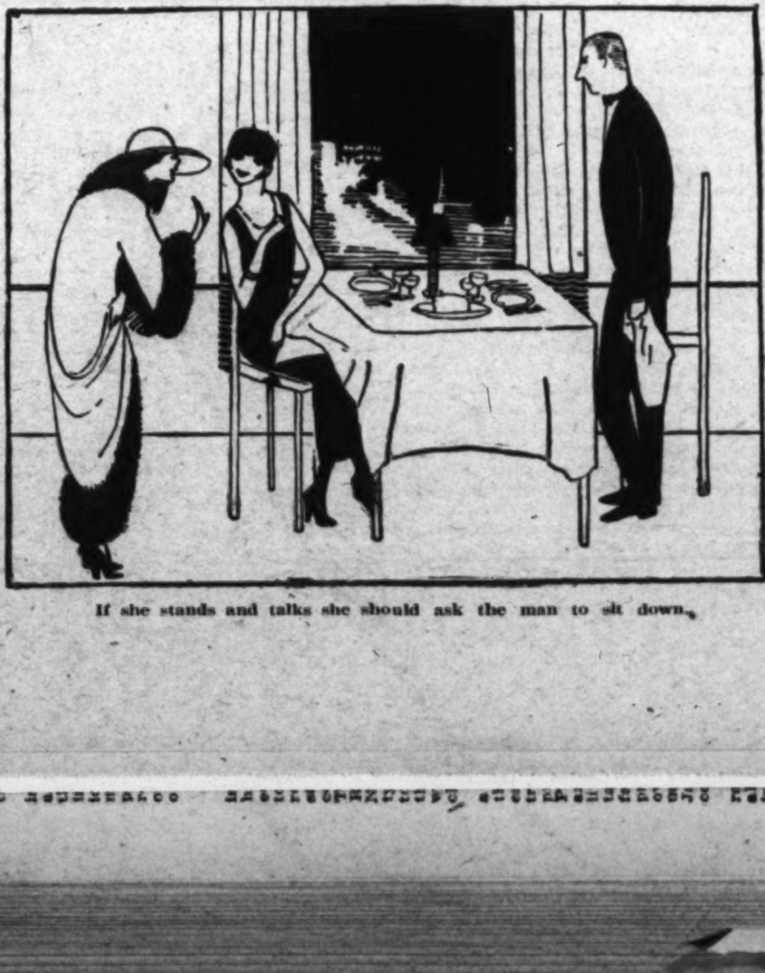
A man in speaking of a lady—particularly in front of that lady—to people who know her very little, generally uses "Miss" or "Mrs.," even if he himself calls her by her first name. I am more or less in sympathy to a certain extent with the Lucy Stone Leaguers, who claim that a woman should have as indefinite a title as the man and should keep her own name. After all, why should we be labelled as married or unmarried, any more than the men should?

Keep Check Secret

IN PAYING restaurant checks the man should, theoretically, not allow the ladies to see the amount of his check. Sometimes he will stay behind the others and pay it after they have gone, though it is perfectly permissible for him to pay it while they are still at the table.

The question of the man's return of the hospitality he has received depends largely on his finances. Naturally the young man starting out in business can not be expected to entertain, and he fulfills his obligations by calling, or perhaps sending flowers, and general courtesy to his hostesses when he meets them anywhere. If the man has enough money to do some entertaining there are many ways for him to do so. If he has an apartment or house he can give charming dinner parties. I have known some delightful hosts of this kind.

If not he can entertain them at a restaurant and take them to the theater. If he prefers to pay back all his obligations at one time he can always give a small dance, either at a room in some hotel or restaurant, or, if he is able, at his own house. There is certainly not as much demanded of a man in the way of entertaining as there is of the average girl or woman.



If she stands and talks she should ask the man to sit down.

PROLOGUE

The big wedding is near at hand, and the respective parents, the Potters and the Millers, do not know each other as well as they might . . . nothing like one of those get-together family dinners to make everybody feel clubby . . . so Ma is having Mr. and Mrs. Miller over to dinner tonight . . . and great are the preparations and anxieties thereof.

SCENE I

Ma is going through that peculiar domestic torture known as coaching the maid . . . the object of her anxious solicitude is a wide-mouthed, flat-footed female, a trifle darker than a five cent cigar and twice as classy . . . but Asperina has a good heart and the best of intentions . . .

MA: You won't forget, now, to always serve on the left side?

ASPERINA: Yaz'm.

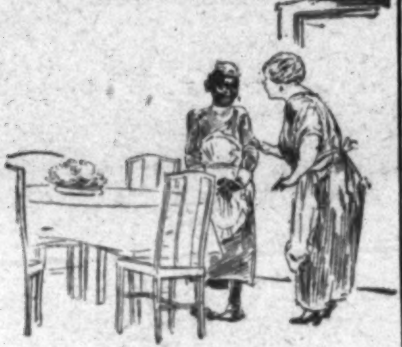
MA: You know which is the left side?

ASPERINA: Oh, yaz'm.

MA: And now what comes after the soup?

ASPERINA (thinking hard:) The big spoons?

MA (trying to smile pleasantly:) No, no, Asperina, the fish . . . you'll remember the fish?



"O, yaz'm."

ASPERINA (brightly:) Yaz'm.

MA (querulously:) It would sound much nicer if you could say "Yes, ma'm . . . can't you?

ASPERINA (brightly:) Yaz'm.

MA (giving it up . . . after all, there are more important things to be settled, and it is getting later and later:) Don't forget to have the salad forks on the table . . . you know the salad forks, don't you?

ASPERINA: Yaz'm . . . sorta spraddled out on one side, ain't they?

MA (hurriedly, glancing at the clock:) And you won't forget to keep the biscuits hot and the water glassed filled . . . and make the coffee later, so it will be fresh . . . and don't forget about serving on the left side, and when you announce dinner say "Dinner is served."

ASPERINA (who stopped registering with the biscuits:) Yaz'm, Ah getcha . . . Ah'll fixya all up.

(We have a vague premonition, Ma, that she is going to do just about that.)

SCENE II

Pa is being backed into his dinner clothes, much against his will . . . Ma is trying to dress herself and Pa and to keep the dinner preparations going . . . one of those touching domestic scenes that would wring the most calloused heart.

PA (bitterly:) All dam foolishness, I call it . . . why couldn't you let them come in and have pot luck, like we have to put up with all the time?

MA: It won't hurt you to act civilized once in a while . . . You'll see the Millers'll be in dinner clothes . . . and she will probably have a gown that'll make me look like Little Orphant Annie.

PA: Where did you get that cartoon in the kitchen?

MA (angrily:) Who did you expect me to get in a moment's notice? Peggy Joyce?

PA: Well, of course, I'm no judge of feminine beauty, but I could pick one that didn't look like the Hunchback of Notre Dame.

MA (bitterly:) Well, if she just gets through the dinner all right, I don't care how she looks.

PA (born optimist:) She'll probably mess everything all up. I never saw it to fail . . . every time you try to throw a little dog you fall flat on your nose. . . . Get me another collar, will you?

MA (thoroughly distraught:) Get it yourself . . . I have enough on my mind this evening without dressing you. They'll be here any minute now. (Door bell rings.) There they are now. . . . (Frantically) Run quick and let them in. . . . No, wait a minute, I'll have Asperina go.

PA (helpfully:) Yes, send Asperina to the door . . . she'll give them a laugh.

(Asperina goes and does . . . Mr. and Mrs. Miller enter in faultless evening attire, followed by Red, who has just stepped out of one of those

ILLUSTRATIONS-BY J. H. STRIEBEL.

What the Well-Dressed Man Is Wearing This Year ads . . . the usual hubbub of greeting in the living room, followed by the usual enthusiastic discussion of the weather, followed by the usual strained pause during which everyone is trying desperately to think of something to say . . . Pa obviously stiff and uncomfortable in his garb . . . Ma suffused with hauteur and quite Ritzy, to Mamie's great surprise . . . the tenseness of the scene is suddenly shattered by the apparition of Asperina in the doorway.

ASPERINA (with great good will:) Supper's ready . . . come and eat.

(Poor Ma! The beginning is hardly auspicious . . . what will the harvest be?)

SCENE III

The company is seated with Mr. Miller at Pa's right and Mrs. Miller at Ma's. . . . the new electric push button that works with the foot is somewhere under the table near Ma's place, but Ma is already feeling frantically for it . . . the expression of wistful searching is beginning to appear on her face . . . Junior has been banished to his room and told if he doesn't go right to sleep something will happen to him . . . the dear little fellow doesn't seem convinced.

MA (as Asperina comes in with two plates of soup, which she manages at arm's length with commendable dexterity:) The crackers, Asperina.

ASPERINA: Crackers on the next trip, ma'm.

(Disappears into kitchen.)

MA (gushingly, to Mrs. Miller:) I hope you will make allowances for our new girl, Mrs. Miller . . . breaking in new help is so trying . . . don't you find it so?

MRS. MILLER (to Ma:) Yes, indeed, Mrs. Potter. (To herself) Where do you suppose she found that awful creature?

ASPERINA (reappearing proudly with two more soups and the box of crackers tucked firmly under her arm . . . thoughtful girl!:) There's another box in the kitchen if this ain't enough.

(Beams on Mrs. Potter, who, fortunately, has nothing to shoot her with . . . the helpful Asperina passes around with the box, dealing crackers out of it to the left . . . Mr. and Mrs. Miller exchange glances.)

RED (to Ma, as Asperina disappears to think up another good deed:) Where did you get her, Ma? She's a jewel.

MAMIE (to the defense:) She's just as good as you're apt to get these days.

MRS. MILLER (covering up strained situation:) Wait till you children have been running a place for a while, and see how much fun it is . . . isn't that right, Mrs. Potter?

MA (gayly, to hide a breaking heart:) Yes, indeed . . . it isn't all sunshine and roses.

JUNIOR (a voice from the dark:) Da-dee, I wanna drink . . . I wanna drink, Daddy . . . Oh, Da-dee!

MA (to Pa:) Don't pay any attention to him. . . . (To Mrs. Miller, by way of explanation) That's my little boy . . . he wants a drink. (Mrs. Miller nods, in complete understanding.) He does that every night.

MRS. MILLER: Isn't that sweet? How old is he?

MA; Just five and a half . . . his father spoils him.

(The dinner is progressing . . . all the soups in and accounted for . . . Asperina brings in the fish before the plates are cleared, and is shooed out by Ma.)

PA: I spoil him? . . . That's good! . . . You're the one that always makes me give him a drink.

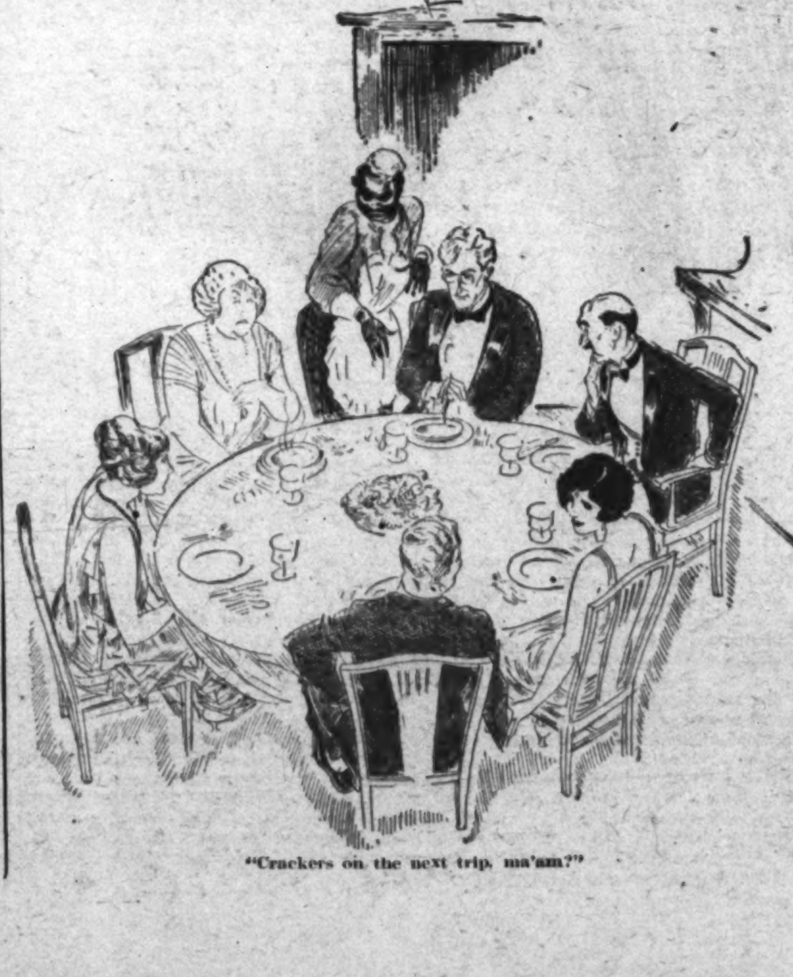
MA (with the social playfulness reserved for company:) Now, Pa, that isn't so . . . you know it isn't. (Hisses to Asperina flapping by) Where are the salad forks, and some ice for the glasses?

JUNIOR (louder and firmer:) Da-dee! I want a drink, Daddy . . . Oh, Da-dee! (The Potters pretend not to hear . . . the conversation becomes gay and excited . . . too gay and too excited for the matters under discussion.) Da-dee! Oh, Dadee! I wanna drink! I wanna drink!

PA (breaking the spell:) I guess I better go and give him a drink . . . maybe he's thirsty.

MA (forgetting the social playfulness reserved for company:) That's right, spoil him . . . he ought to have a good spanking.

(Pa slips out with a wink to Mr. Miller . . . subdued noises in the far bedroom . . . Pa returns glowing with the consciousness of a good deed performed . . . returns just in time to carve the roast . . . even without Asperina's artless aid, this were no ordinary ordeal . . . with her well-meaning assistance, it is catastrophe all along the line . . . the Millers carry on a gay conversation to drown out the splashing and the general confusion . . . Asperina deals out the results impartially . . . right and left and across the board . . . why should any good 100 per cent American stay-favorites? . . . Pa sits down at last to eat . . . his noble brow is bedewed with beads of honest toil.)



"Crackers on the next trip, ma'am?"

JUNIOR (in the clear, penetrating tones of innocent childhood:) Da-dee! Da-dee! Oh, Da-dee!

Pa (forgetting company:) Now, what the devil does he want now?

Ma (jumping into the familiar opening:) Well, if you didn't spoil him——

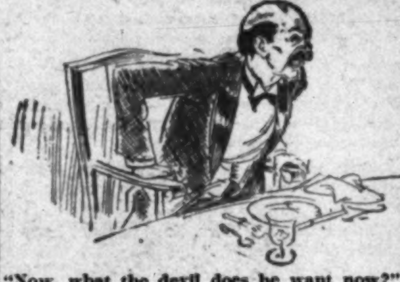
PA: Who spoils him?

(Silence—while the Millers try to think of something to say and decide to say nothing.)

JUNIOR (with sweet faith:) Da-dee! I wanna drink I wanna drink, Da-dee!

(Pa rises suddenly and disappears into the dark . . . sounds of a short but decisive struggle . . . loud wails . . . OWWWWW! Ooooooooh! WAAAAAAHHHHHH!)

MA (with flashing eyes, as Pa returns reeking with triumph:) Brute! I suppose you half killed the poor child.



"Now, what the devil does he want now?"

(Pa does not trust himself to reply . . . the dinner proceeds, glorified at every turn by the original touches of Asperina, who winds up the occasion in a burst of splendor by forgetting to use Ma's silver service for the coffee, specially borrowed for the occasion, bringing in instead the old coffee pot and breakfast cups and helping every one generously . . . it isn't her fault that the dinner hasn't quite come off . . . she did her best, dear good soul.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

Too Much for Him

IT HAPPENED recently at Santa Ana. The man was not sure that he had speeded and took exception to the officer's statement. Finally the judge said:

"Well, if you weren't going forty-five miles an hour, how fast were you going?"

"Well, judge, I think——"

"I don't want to know what you think—tell me how fast you were going," exclaimed the judge.

"I think——"

"I told you not to tell what you think!"

"But judge," protested the accused, "I ain't a lawyer; I can't talk without thinking."

Up Against It

THE clerks at the marriage bureau had a great laugh the other day when a girl came in to get a marriage license, a fact which of itself shows the trend of the times.

While she was waiting, her girl chum whispered in a voice that was louder than she thought:

"Are you really going to marry a man to reform him?"

"Yes, I decided I'd have to," replied the other, "I couldn't find a single one that suits me the way he is now."

Revenge

ONE is inclined to figure that the circus is for laughing purposes only, but the latest to play Los Angeles and vicinity nearly resulted in a tragedy. The denouement came in local police court.

"But why did you beat this man," the judge asked of the prisoner.

"Because, Yo' Honor, he done call me a rhinoceros, a year ago,"

"A year ago? Well, why did you wait all this time before settling your argument?"

"'Cause I ain't neber seed no rhinoceros till yesterday."

Wise Guy

THERE'S a certain Hollywood doctor who is not above prescribing for some patients, who only imagine they're sick, some remedy he imagines they'd like to take, hence, when a pretty movie widow came to him with a vague complaint, he was right on the job.

"My dear," he murmured, "you are slightly morbid. You should look about you, and marry again."

"Why, doctor," beamed the little lady, "is—is this a proposal?"

"My dear lady," protested the doctor in alarm, "let me remind you that a doctor prescribes medicine, but he doesn't take it."

Great Honor

THERE'S a little darky down at one of the Culver City studios who is very popular, and to say the least, he's unique. The other day, when the long-prayed-for rain arrived, it was accompanied by some thunder and lightning, if you recollect.

Right in the middle of the storm, Sammy's boss, chancing to look out the window, saw the little fellow sitting on the steps in the rain, grinning from ear to ear.

"What you doing out there in the rain, Sammy?" asked the boss curiously, to which the little darky replied:

"Boss, when dat rain fust come, ah was gwine go in, but ah guess de Lawd done think I'se a movie star 'cause he's done been takin' flashlights ob me."

Oh, Boy

THERE'S a certain member of the Hollywood Athletic Club who didn't know what he was getting into, when he joined. It seems that his wife took a great fancy to the beauty parlor, and when she discovered that she could go there as often as she pleased and merely sign a tab, she got the habit bad.

Hubby, being a busy man, had not gone to the club, and thinking that the bills at the end of each month were merely announcements of coming events, he never opened them. Finally he did open one envelope, and it chanced to be a letter telling him that no more service could be extended his wife until the account was settled.

After inspecting the bill, he decided that this was great news and sent the club a letter of thanks.

Sharps and Flats

LON CHANEY is credited with being the real Hollywood optimist. A friend of his was complaining that his daughter was learning to play the piano and that it drove him out of house and home.

"That's pretty tough," sympathized Lon. "It's a good thing you live in the country."

"But I don't," exclaimed his friend, "I recently moved into a bungalow court here in Hollywood."

"Is that so? What do the neighbors think of your daughter's music."

"Rotten, same as I think," wailed the distracted parent.

"Great," cried Lon, "then you ought to be able to buy their places at half price and make yourself some money."

Quick Connection

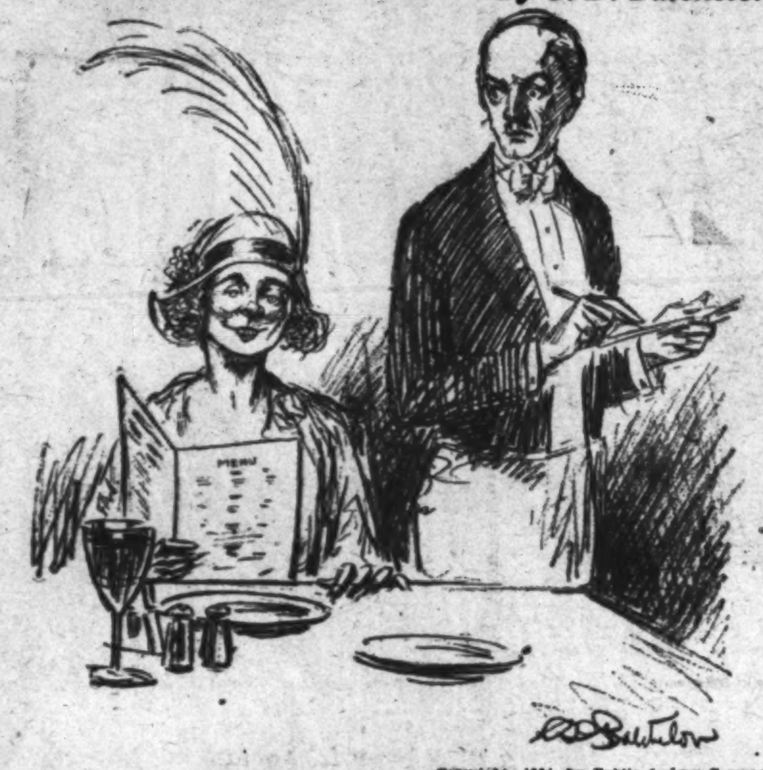
PROBABLY the public has never quite forgiven a certain judge for giving a certain pretty motion picture star several days in jail, but recently he went a long way toward redeeming himself. A speeder was brought before him, but the case was unusual for in addition to going too fast, he had started a fight with the arresting officer.

"What is your name?" demanded the judge, "what is your occupation and what are you charged?"

"Your Honor," replied the prisoner, "my name is Sparks, I'm an electrician and I'm charged with battery."

"Put him in a dry cell," snapped the judge, as soon as he had caught his breath.

THE HUMAN ZOO - - - - - - By C. D. Batchelor



Copyright, 1924, by Public Ledger Company

It was the first time she had stepped out with a "gentleman friend" and she did not know whether it was proper to lead off with Blue Points or with consomme. She wanted two orders of steak, but was at a loss to know whether to order them one at a time or in a group. And imagine her confusion when she later discovered, from Mrs. Van Gelder's "Etiquette Hints to Beginners," that one should never spread macaroons with Russian caviar.

Enough Now

IN SPEAKING of the possibility of a third party, H. C. Van Ness, the banker, said in an interview:

"I do not believe there will be any more parties for sometime to come, in view of the Teapot Dome scandal. With the Republicans trying to blame it on the Democrats and the Democrats trying to blame it on the Republicans, think what would happen if a third party came in and damned them both.

"It reminds me of little Ethel, who went to inquire the health of a sick playmate. She could barely reach the doorbell and when the nurse answered her ring she said:

"'I would like to come in, but they tell me I'm too noisy.'"

Rubbing it In

AT LEAST one little knot of shoppers had a good laugh in a Seventh street department store the other day. A lady came up to the jewelry counter and taking off a pair of chamois gloves, asked to look at some rings.

Evidently some of the rings had been recently handled and the sales girl, picking up the polishing rag, gently rubbed them back to brilliancy one by one as she tried to make her sale.

Finally, however, the prospective customer stopped her in the middle of a most persuasive monologue by saying:

"I believe I'll go, if you have finished cleaning up all your old brass rings with my new gloves."

Right Path

UNCLE BILL WALKER, who lived at the foot of Great Smoky Way, became an easy convert to the propaganda of Mormon missionaries. His brother Sammie, an old magistrate of considerable means and great influence in the coves of the Smokies, was eagerly sought after as a prospect. Squire Sammie was sitting on his front porch one afternoon when two elders of the new faith came up from the road.

"Brother Walker," one of them began courteously, "we have come to tell you about the Church of the Latter Day Saints, and we should like to leave some tracts for you to look over."

"That's all right, gentlemen," the old mountaineer replied without even taking his pipe from his mouth. "You-uns is welcome to leave all the tracks you want to, jist so's the toes of 'em is p'intin' t'wards yon gate!"

Good Riddance

OLE SVENSON, a son of the silent North, after having lived by himself and prepared his own meals for three years, had taken a wife. Mrs. Svenson proceeded to live with her husband for the better part of two months, after which she ran away to the city.

"Well, Ole," said a friend some time after the lady's departure, "are you sorry she went?"

"No," replied Ole.

"No? Why not?"

"Vell," was the reply, "she was always getting in de vay ven I vas cooking."

Complex

WHEN asked what she thought of the present situation in Turkey, Martha Sinclair, the recently returned missionary, laughed. "It seems to be all wrong, any way you look at it," she replied, "like the two kiddies in the garden.

"'What are you crying about, little boy,' asked a passer-by.

"'I'm digging for worms and I can't find any.'

"'Then why is your little sister crying?'

"'She's afraid I'll find some.'"

Unlucky

NOT so very long ago, two Hollywood girls were returning from the opera on the trolley car and were discussing their favorite pieces. Just as the conductor came to collect the extra fare after passing Sanborn Junction, one girl said to the other:

"I simply adore 'Carmen.'"

The conductor blushed and whispered:

"Try the motorman, miss; I'm married."

SPEAKING of France's change of attitude regarding the reparations, Senator Lodge remarked: "It reminds me of little Johnnie.

"Johnnie was given a dime and sent to the store on an errand. When he entered the store he held out the money in the palm of his hand, to the grocer.

"'What do you want, Johnnie'? smiled the clerk, and the lad replied:

"'I want candy, but you might as well give me a loaf of bread.'"

An Amateur Detective Matches His Wits Aga
Wiles of a Crafty Oriental—In Unraveling
Mystery He Encounters Another

I NOTICED the parcel-post delivery come to a stop before the house of my neighbor, John Sandys, and watched with some interest an oblong, paper-wrapped box, carried to his door. The box might have contained flowers, but the habits and character of Mr. Sandys made flowers incredible. He was the type of man who might send his wife a present of a sirloin steak upon her birthday or of a waffle iron at Christmas, but for him to have sent a box of flowers casually upon no occasion whatever was unimaginable.

Alpin Stone, my adjoining neighbor—a dealer in second-hand books—and, so I have discovered, an individual well worth cultivating—was trimming the grass about a flower-bed. I called to him.

"Alpin," said I, "a parcel has just been delivered to the Sandyses. It looks like flowers."

"Then," said he, "Mrs. Sandys must have an indiscreet admirer."

"It might," said I, "contain food."

"If it came from Sandys," said he, "it might contain anything that is devoid of beauty or sentiment, and is useful."

"But," said I, "he's not such a bad chap. Seems fond of his wife, and she of him."

"A good husband and bountiful provider," said Alpin sententiously, "but as empty of imagination as a puffball is of honey."

At that moment Mrs. Sandys appeared in the door. Even at the distance of a hundred yards one was aware of her exceptional prettiness, even though her features were indistinguishable.

She stood in the door an instant, looking up and down the street; then spying Alpin and myself, ran across the porch, down the steps and toward us. She paused before my house breathless.

"Will you come? Will you please come—quick?" she said.

"What has happened?" said I, though Alpin already had moved toward her.

"The box, I'm afraid of the box!" Then as we walked beside her—and her pallor and trembling made it apparent she was the victim of no ordinary fright—she said: "I don't know what it is. I never felt so before. It isn't fright exactly, but a kind of loathing. The moment I touched that box it overcame me. I felt that I had somehing horrible in my hands."

"You opened it?" Alpin asked.

"No—No!"

Alpin paused. "You say your sensation was one of loathing and horror?"

"Yes."

"Was the box light or heavy?"

"It was—it was quite heavy."

"Did it feel," asked Alpin, "alive or dead?"

"It felt," she said after a pause, "malignant."

"There was no mechanical ticking?"

"No."

Alpin nodded to himself. In Mrs. Sandys's hall he paused and said impatiently, almost petulantly, "The box! The box!"

"There." She pointed to a table on the library where rested a container some two feet long by ten inches wide and six inches deep. It was wrapped in stout Manila paper and secured intricately by a strong cord, knotted and knotted again.

We approached it. No sooner had we come within its immediate neighborhood than Mrs. Sandys covered her face with her hands and uttered a sort of moan. I, myself, was conscious of a peculiar and highly disagreeable sensation, not unlike the feeling one has in a rapidly descending elevator. Alpin Stone's face mirrored some unpleasant emotion, but his lips were compressed and his brows drawn. As if by a tremendous effort of the will, he compelled himself to lay his hand on the cover of the box. He lifted it, weighed it, shook it. From the sound the box contained some heavy substance, packed loosely in paper. He set the box down—and the movement within continued.

Alpin turned to look at me, and nodded, as if confirming some conjecture already made.

"Wait," he said. "Don't touch it until I come back. On your life, don't untie a knot. Or better, I will carry the box into the garden. Come along."

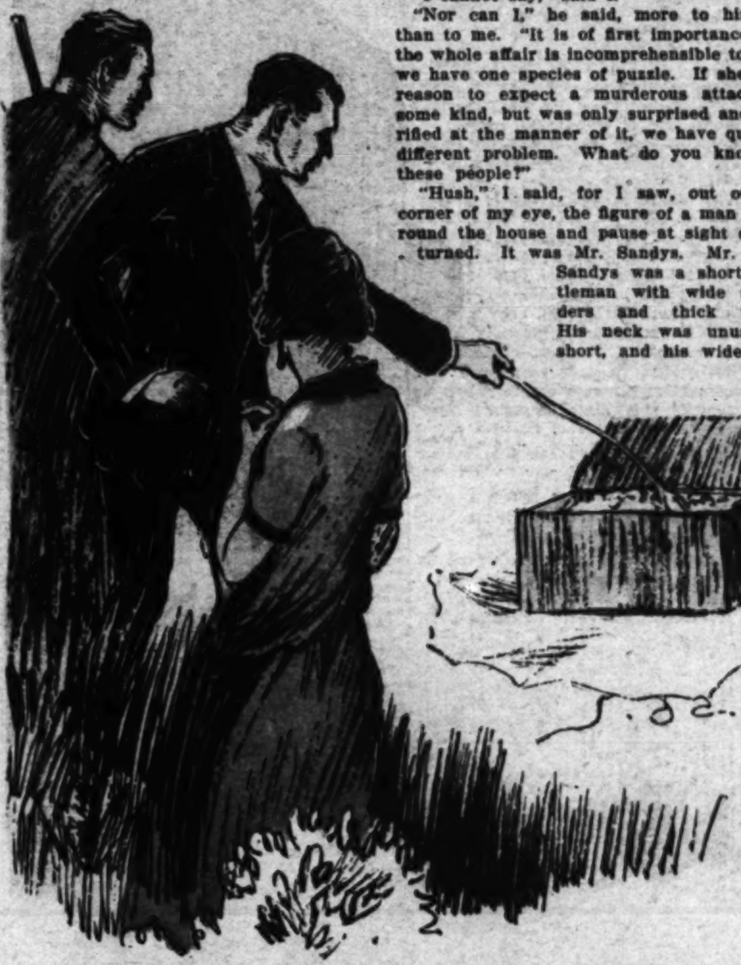
We walked through the house to the back yard, a little plot secluded by high shrubs, and Alpin placed the box on the lawn; then he walked to a young fruit tree and ruthlessly cut a strong limb with his jack-knife—a limb with forking branches. This he trimmed meticulously until he held in his hand a stout wand, some six feet long, with a crotch at its extremity.

"Mrs. Sandys, stand at a distance, please. You, Jenkins, take that hoe and be ready."

The cord was unfastened. Alpin stood back, and with his wand loosened the wrapping paper, disclosing a strong box of corrugated board. He placed the tip of his wand under the cover and flipped it upward, poising tensely.

The box was filled loosely with white paper such as is used to pack fragile objects, paper cut into narrow strips and looking like white excelsior. That was all. Alpin reached forward with his wand and stirred the mass of paper!

Slowly something emerged. Something dark, sleek, loathsome reared itself from its concealment with a lithe, graceful, horrible, undulating movement, slowly swaying to and fro. I think I uttered a cry Alpin lunged forward deftly with his wand. The box was overturned amid a disconcerting flopping and thrashing about, and then Alpin turned to me, calm restored, and said in his natural voice. "Have a look."



"Alpin reached forward with his wand and stirred the mass of paper!"

I ventured nearer. There, pinned to the ground, with the arms of Alpin's fork imprisoning its throat, if the thing can be said to have a throat, was a reptile which I recognized as the hooded cobra of the Dekkan Peninsula!

"Imagine," said Alpin, almost with pleasure, "a man, unsuspicious, opening that box and fumbling blindly in the loose paper to see what he had."

I could imagine it, and the thought nauseated me.

"Better take Mrs. Sandys over to your wife," he said. "Then hurry back and help with the execution."

I left Mrs. Sandys, who seemed struggling with hysteria, in the hands of my wife, a woman of stable disposition and much tact; after which I returned to Alpin Stone, and together we completed the unpleasant task of disposing of the snake.

"Did you observe Mrs. Sandys closely?" he asked. "Was it your opinion she acted as one would expect a woman to act in the presence of a wholly unexpected and frightful occurrences? Or was it your opinion she showed fright without such astonishment as you would expect to find?"

I considered. "She was exceedingly upset," I said.

"Naturally," he replied shortly, "but was she astounded that anyone should try to take her life by such an abhorrent means?"

"I cannot say," said I.

"Nor can I," he said, more to himself than to me. "It is of first importance. If the whole affair is incomprehensible to her, we have one species of puzzle. If she had reason to expect a murderous attack of some kind, but was only surprised and terrified at the manner of it, we have quite a different problem. What do you know of these people?"

"Hush," I said, for I saw, out of the corner of my eye, the figure of a man come round the house and pause at sight of us. turned. It was Mr. Sandys. Mr. John Sandys was a short gentleman with wide shoulders and thick waist. His neck was unusually short, and his wide face habitually wore an expression which, to give it the best of it, was placid.

"Good afternoon," said Alpin.

"Howdy do?" he responded.

"A frightful thing has happened," said I

"Is that so?" he responded in exactly the tone he would have used if I had mentioned my belief that it would rain.

"An attempt," said Alpin, "has been made to murder your wife."

"Who did it?" said Mr. Sandys.

"Some one," said Alpin, "sent your wife a poisonous snake by mail."

"What kind of a snake?" asked Mr. Sandys. Then, after a moment's apparent study of the situation. "Didn't bite her, did it?"

"No."

He hesitated, as if striving to cope with the situation. "Must have kind of frightened her, I guess," he said.

"Mr. Sandys," Alpin said sternly, "do you know of any reason why your wife might fear a murderous attack?"

"Susan?" He pondered it briefly. "Why—no."

"Have you or Mrs. Sandys an enemy?"

"I s'pose," he said, "there's folks that don't like us. Everybody can't like everybody. But that ain't a reason to send snakes."

"Hardly," said Alpin dryly.

"You will notify the police at once?" said I.

"What for?" he responded with the minutest trace of irritation. "There ain't any harm done."

"Because," said I angrily, "the individual who made this attempt will try again. He must be discovered before that can happen."

"It is a matter," said Alpin in an odd tone, "for Mr. Sandys to decide." With which he turned his back squarely and walked out of the yard. Mr. Sandys, apparently, paid no attention to our going. As we crossed the street we met Mrs. Sandys returning; she walked hurriedly and passed us without token of recognition.

"Jenkins," said Alpin Stone, when we reached my piazza and dropped into chairs, "John Sandys is either a very good man or a very bad man. In either event he is a remarkable man."

"He impresses me as being a clod," said I.

At that moment the newsboy threw a folded paper upon the steps. I opened it to glance at the day's news. The first item my eyes encountered was a so-called feature story in the middle of the page under the cartoon. I imagine the occurrence of the word "snake" in the headline arrested my attention. I read it hastily and passed it to Alpin.

The item, written in jocular vein, described with much detail how some unknown had broken into the snake-house at the zoo, admitting himself by cutting the pane from a window with a diamond. There were surmises as to the purpose and alcoholic condition of the burglar; but the telling point of the narration was the fact that a certain snake, a cobra recently arrived from India, was missing.

"Perhaps," said Alpin, "we should not have killed the reptile. Doubtless it was a valuable specimen."

He was silent a moment, looking apprehensively from time to time toward his own house. His especial worry when engaged upon some criminal problem was lest his wife should discover his activity. Mrs. Alpin Stone regarded her husband's penchant for criminal investigation as a low habit, savoring of large feet and broad shoes and taking of snuff, which she learned was a habit common among policemen.

"We may group premeditated murders," he said, "into three general classes. Those arising from greed (perhaps a majority,) those arising from some of the numerous by-products of so-called love, and those arising from the desire for vengeance. It has long been my conclusion that crimes of a fantastic nature have their origin in the last."

"Then—" said I.

"I am inclined to believe this was an attempted crime of vengeance."

"But what," said I, "could a pretty, commonplace little home body like Mrs. Sandys have done to call down such a horrible revenge?"

"Jenkins," he said solemnly, "there is no such thing as a commonplace home body. The mere fact of sex invests every woman with tremendous poten tialities."

"Sandys attitude—" said I. "It is incomprehensible. Doesn't he realize? It piles the responsibility upon us, does it not? If he refuses to take action for his wife's protection, we must."

"And shall," said he. "I was about to go to the shop to consult my indexes. This is an exceptionally fascinating set of circumstances, bizarre, exotic. It should be a matter of small labor to find the right road. But to follow it—that may prove both difficult and—hazardous."

Alpin, as you may perhaps not know, is an omnivorous reader. He buys many books for his second-hand shop, but is distressed if a purchaser carries one away. And he had, for a quarter of a century, made a study of the crimes of fiction and of fact, studiously classifying them as to their characteristics, and cross-indexing them, so that, given a set of facts, he can, with a reasonable degree of certainty, build up from his data the true conclusion.

It was next morning before I saw him again.

"Have you noted," he said, "the remarkable increase in the number of vanished young women for the past six months?"

"No," said I.

"It is remarkable," he said. "And the notable feature is the class of young women who vanish. In New York it is girls who shop in expensive Fifth avenue shops, in San Francisco, it is girls who live on the Hill, in Cleveland it is young women whose photographs appear in the society columns. There have been no less than seven such disappearances in six months."

"Which indicates?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Anything you choose," he said, "but, undoubtedly, something! None of them have been found."

"But that has no bearing on the Sandys affair."

"I wish," he said, apparently ignoring my remark, "I knew from what part of the world Sandys came. If I knew it were Australia, matters would be simplified."

"Ask him," said I, and his only reply was an ironical smile.

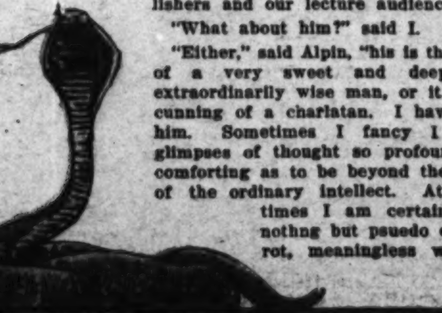
He gazed off across the street a few moments, and I fancied his brain busily engaged with the affair in hand, but what was my astonishment to hear him say, with every sign of a keen interest in the subject, "I wonder how one recognizes real poetry. The borderland between the sublime and balderdash is so narrow. Drivel and loftiness run along side by side."

"I never read poetry," said I, with some displeasure.

"You should. Not so much for the poetry itself, perhaps, but for the pleasure of determining if the sentiment comes from the heart of the writer, or if he were only stringing together, with a certain degree of skill, words which seem to mean something, but are utter rot."

"Meantime," said I, "Mrs. Sandys sits in danger of her life."

"I am not unmindful of Mrs. Sandys," he said with that irritating placidity which sometimes settles upon him, "but I chanced to think of this Hindu poet who has conquered our drawing-rooms and our publishers and our lecture audience."



"What about him?" said I.

"Either," said Alpin, "his is the mind of a very sweet and deep and extraordinarily wise man, or it is the cunning of a charlatan. I have read him. Sometimes I fancy I catch glimpses of thought so profound and comforting as to be beyond the grasp of the ordinary intellect. At other times I am certain it is nothng but psuedo esoteric rot, meaningless with intent." He arose and walked across the street to the Sandys home, mounted the porch, and rang the bell. Mr. Sandys appeared and stood in the door, staring at us, in his mild, vague, uninterested way.

"When do you go?" Alpin said abruptly.

"Go?" said Sandys with an air of not comprehending.

"Move on," said Alpin, "to the next stopping place. This one, of course, has become impossible."

Mrs. Sandys appeared, her eyes flashing, her cheeks flushed to extraordinary prettiness by sudden danger. "Don't annoy him. Don't question him. I won't have it. Isn't it enough——"

"Quite enough," said Alpin. "I do not wish to annoy. My purpose in coming was to ask for your promise not to—disappear—for forty-eight hours. You can do so with safety, I think. I am almost willing to guarantee it."

"Forty-eight hours," said Sandys unemotionally. "Why should I move on in forty-eight hours?"

"Mrs. Sandys," said Alpin, "you have been making inquiries about me. Do they warrant you in begging your husband to place some confidence in me?"

"John. Please."

He did not look at her; scarcely did he look at us. He merely seemed to stand there like some immovable piece of household ware, not endowed with consciousness.

"Mr. Sandys," said Alpin, "are you Canadian?"

"No."

Alpin nodded. "Nor English—I mean a former resident of the island?"

"No."

"I have always wanted," said Alpin, "to make the voyage to Australia."

Sandys waggled his head uneasily. "It must be a—long trip. I—personally I don't like long trips."

"Did you notice in the paper of this morning," said Alpin, "that Marylin Graine, one of this season's most photographed debutantes, has disappeared?"

"No," said Sandys.

"Who is the richest man in the world?" asked Alpin.

"Why," replied Sandys after a pause, "I suppose Mr. Rockefeller."

"Wrong. It is the Maharaja of Sawnpore Good evening. I have your promise. Do not leave this house for forty-eight hours. Admit no one but yourself. Take in no parcels except from my hands. Preferably keep to the second floor and away from all windows. Good evening."

"Well!" said I in exasperation, when we reached my own porch again, "that was a peculiar conversation."

"Most illuminating," said Alpin. "I was sure I must be correct. The manifestations are identical." He leaned forward and touched my knee. "Come, I have secured an invitation to call upon the great Hindu poet—the Beggar of Benares."

"But I have no interest in poets."

"All the same, I imagine this one will interest you. He seems to have a great message and to be a striking personality."

"Very well, if it will please you," said I, with the air of one making a sacrifice.

"Have you," said he, "such a thing as a firearm?"

"To visit a poet?"

He smiled. "Do you remember the multiplication table?" he asked.

"Naturally."

"Bear in mind," said he. "If I touch your arm, fix your mind upon it. Recite it to yourself as if your life depended upon it. Which it may. Concentrate upon it to the exclusion of everyhing else. Carry your pistol in the inside breast-pocket of your coat—on the left side."

The taxicab stopped before the door of a brick house, set well back from the street in a profusion of trees and shrubbery. I was taken somewhat aback, for the house

Quarantine Stations Spring up at County Lines

All but the main highways are closed to motorists as a result of the spread of the hoof-and-mouth disease, and the bars are up on practically all the roads and trails leading into the mountains. The photos above were taken at the Los Angeles-Ventura county line, showing the dips through which cars are required to run and a line of cars awaiting their turn to be fumigated. The map of Los Angeles county shows the main open roads with the closed areas heavily shaded, and was drawn from information furnished by the Auto Club.

OLD CARS STILL ON HIGHWAYS

Pope-Hartford of the 1908 Vintage Registered Each Year by a Sacramentan

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SACRAMENTO, April 19.—If the knock or snort in the motor car you bought last year conjures up a cruel vision of negotiations with the junk dealer don't despair.

The Division of Motor Vehicles has determined that the average car in California lasts from seven to eight years and your old boat may weather many a stormy trip before it wheezes out a swan song.

Even this is only an approximate average, division officials explain. If your car be of ancient make there is still hope. The 1924 records of the division show some four or five hundred cars of the 1910 model whose owners apparently considered sufficiently travel worthy to justify the payment of another year's registration fees.

KICKING OFF

Whether it be cause for alarm or congratulation the records prove that the old timers are shuffling off at a speedy clip. Only about 27 per cent of all the cars registered in the State this year were manufactured prior to 1919. Of the 98 models there are only about 80,000 left. Survivors of the 1917 vintage are apparently as numerous as those of 1918 due, the officials believe, to the decrease in production of 1918 caused by the war.

But from 1917 backward there is a steady dwindling in the ranks of the veterans. Of 1916 models there are only about 60,000 left while those of 1915 have dropped to about 20,000. Cars manufactured in 1911 run only about three to every thousand registered.

Who owns the oldest car in California. Several might lay claim to that honor as there are a few of the patterns of 1908 and '09 in the records.

TO WIDEN SAN FERNANDO ROAD

Wider San Fernando road is on its way. Last week Glendale started proceedings to widen and improve the stretch of highway leading through that city at Tropico, and this week Burbank followed suit by adopting a resolution providing for the same work through that municipality. The Burbank improvement will extend from Palm avenue to the widened link in the chain at Benmar Hills.

BANS PLEASURE TOURING

Auto Club Asks Motorists to Co-operate With Hoof-and-Mouth Authorities; Only Main Roads Open

Estimates of experts that 90 per cent of the spreading of the hoof-and-mouth disease is done by human beings and motor vehicles have elicited the keenest interest of motorists in preventative measures. The strict quarantine measures enforced, which constantly are being made more drastic, have brought the public to realize that this epidemic among cattle affects the economic welfare of every resident of the State.

The seriousness of the situation has forced individuals to recognize the rights of public policy, and emphasized the fact that it is up to everyone to aid in combating the disease.

From the report of the first case in this section, the Automobile Club of Southern California has been actively co-operating with the authorities in fighting the epidemic. Branch managers of the organization in twenty-nine cities have been kept in close touch with every development; the touring bureau has given out the latest traveling information; the public safety department has sent out warnings; the sign-posting department has placarded the closed roads and placed warning signs for quarantine dips; the news department has been supplying bulletins to the papers, and the entire organization has devoted its energies to organizing the 600,000 motorists of Southern California into a solid phalanx for fighting this dreaded malady.

GOOD ROADS MEET BEING ADVERTISED

News Organizations Spread Word of Annual Convention All Over the Country

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) April 15.—The twelfth annual convention of the United States Good Roads Association and Bankhead National Highway Association and United States Good Roads Show, which meets at Albuquerque, May 26-31, is being widely advertised throughout the nation. The various news-gathering organizations are carrying stories about the acceptances, program and events that will take place during the convention.

Gov. J. F. Hinkle of New Mexico has evinced a wonderful amount of enthusiasm and interest in the coming conventions. He has notified Director-General Rountree that he has sent the following invitation to the good-roads workers throughout the nation. It reads as follows:

STATE CAPITOL,
Santa Fe, N. M.,
April 14, 1924.

To all Good Roads Workers:
It gives us pleasure to extend to you a most cordial invitation to attend the convention of the United States Good Roads Association and the Bankhead National Highway Association to be held at Albuquerque, N. M., May 26-31, 1924.

New Mexico, the Sunshine State, will welcome you most heartily.

TRANSIT STAGES ON NEW ROUTE SCHEDULE

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

ANAHEIM, April 18. — Motor transit stages are maintaining a regular schedule between Anaheim and Santa Ana following the inauguration of new service between these points as a result of the revision of a ruling made by the Railroad Commission more than a year ago. The revision grants a permit for the carrying of passengers between the county seat and Anaheim. Although through tickets from Santa Ana to Los Angeles may be purchased at the former office, passengers must change stages at Anaheim, according to a ruling by the Railroad Commission.

YOSEMITE IN LINE FOR PAVED ROADS IN VALLEY

Plan Includes Reconstruction of the Wawona, Big Oak Flat and Tioga Pass Routes

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, April 19.—The recent unanimous vote recorded by Congress in approving the national parks road bill indicates favorable action on the appropriation measure to follow that provides $7,500,000 to be expended for good roads within our national parks. Following the passage of the latter bill, Yosemite National Park will receive $1,500,000 to be expended on road improvement during the next three fiscal years, ending June 30, 1927.

At the present time the entire national park road system possesses only twelve miles of paved road, with none to be found in Yosemite. Originally, all roads in Yosemite were built for horse-drawn vehicular traffic. The pioneer motorist found them step, narrow and tortuous. Today they are entirely inadequate to serve as automobile roads until marked improvements have been completed.

Summer Census Will Show Where to Spend Taxpayers' Money

TRAFFIC CHECK IS UNDER WAY

To Record Flow on Main Traveled Roads

Sundays and Mondays Being Used for Count

Fund Apportionment to be Based on Result

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

REDLANDS, April 19.—A traffic census, in an effort to equalize the State Highway fund, was taken on Sunday and Monday throughout the State and E. O. Sullivan, division engineer for the commission, with offices in San Bernardino, had charge of the census for this division. It was carefully taken and is probably the first of several such to be taken all through the summer.

The census taking started on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock and continued for sixteen hours. There were fifty men working in two shifts. On Monday morning at the same hour, the men again watched the highways for an additional sixteen hours.

The system was used throughout California in order to make a check of the traffic on various highways and reapportion the funds.

Twenty-five points were covered in the record taking in this county alone. The Ocean-to-Ocean Highway, the Sunkist Highway, the Old Trail Highway and the Borderline route were all carefully watched, a total of 600 miles being accounted for.

To date no records have been kept of highway traffic, excepting a Federal census which was taken some time ago. The system now under way will be used every two months for a set period until a correct average is reached.

Different days will be chosen for the census taking so that a weekly average may be secured. Sunday is usually a day of heavy travel, Monday travel is light. In taking the two extremes a balance can be reached.

PAVEMENT FOR THE YOSEMITE

proval of the appropriation measure, work will commence simultaneously on improving 128 miles of the 138 miles of road found in Yosemite National Park. While no definite announcement can be made at this time relative to plans of procedure, it is believed the improvements will be carried out as detailed below:

Twenty of the twenty-six miles of road in Yosemite Valley will be paved, at an average estimated cost of $20,000 a mile. The heavy volume of traffic concentrated on these roads necessitates concrete paving, which will materially reduce the present dust nuisance to a minimum.

The Wawona Road entering the park from the south will be reconstructed, surfaced, and its present width doubled, so as to eliminate the present one-way turn-out method of motoring. An efficient sprinkling system will also be installed along the entire twenty miles of road. It is believed that these improvements will amount to $10,000 per mile. Statistics show at this time that the Wawona is Yosemite's most popular road. Forty-five per cent of the park visitors enter from the south.

The Big Oak Flat is the second most important road and is fourteen miles in length. It enters from the north, traversing the famed "Bret Harte" country. The improvements planned for this scenic route, as well as others subsequently described, in general approximate the changes as outlined for the Wawona Road. The estimated cost of construction on the Big Oak Flat Road is $10,000 per mile.

UNEQUALED SCENERY

The connecting link between the Wawona Road and Glacier Point, known as the Glacier Point Road, passes through fourteen miles of unequaled mountain scenery. It provides the only means by which Glacier—"The Wonder Point"—is accessible by automobile. Thousands of motorists make annual pilgrimage to this supreme spot. Approximately ten miles of road will be reconstructed at an outlay of $5000 a mile.

A similar improvement of roads in the Mariposa Grove of Big Trees is planned. These consist of a principal entrance road from the park boundary and a ten-mile loop system within the Groves. Good roads and a recent ruling allowing camping beneath the giant Sequoias, will bring new thousands to witness the majesty of the Mariposa Big Trees Grove. An estimated expenditure of $5000 a mile will be required to complete this project.

A trail for the painted Red Man, later converted into a wagon road by the early pioneer, and today a popular motor highway, the Tioga Road threads its way through forty-six miles of High Sierra grandeur. It bisects the northern half of Yosemite National Park, reaching an elevation of 9945 feet at Tioga Pass. The entire road will be improved at an average cost of $9130 per mile.

The El Portal Road, serving as a connecting link between Yosemite Valley and El Portal, the railway terminus, will be concreted its entire length of eight miles. This road is subjected to much heavy travel. Last season, for example, about 30,000 visitors and 7000 tons of supplies were transported over this road into the valley. The estimated cost of paving the El Portal Road is approximately $30,000 a mile.

Immediately following the passage of the appropriation bill by Congress, and approval by the President, the road improvements outlined above will be prosecuted vigorously. This work will give employment to some 700 men.

MAIN HIGHWAYS ONLY ARE OPEN

ern California touring, the club urges motorists to refrain from pleasure driving, especially in the neighborhood of the infected districts. It has called upon them to be cheerful under the annoyance, delays and possible damage to cars through the use of disinfectants so necessary in fighting the epidemic. It is pointed out that Californians must exercise the same control and self-sacrifice as during the World War, for an unseen and little understood foe has attacked the prosperity of the State. Unless this ruthless enemy is conquered promptly it may bring ultimate ruin to agriculture and commerce.

In view of the serious menace, the Auto Club is urging its members any every motorist in the State to co-operate to the fullest extent with the authorities in stamping out the hoof-and-mouth disease.

Here are some facts that will indicate the importance of the newspapers, civic organizations and public generally organizing into a solid phalanx as in the war-time to eliminate this little-known but virulent and costly disease.

California will not be considered clean from a sanitary and quarantine standpoint until three months after the last infection has been obliterated. Hence, it is apparent that the sooner everyone co-operates in the work of elimination, the sooner quarantine will be lifted.

The only highways open in Los Angeles county today are main thoroughfares. Persons traveling these must expect disinfection of cars and in some cases fumigation of themselves, with the resultant delay and annoyance.

All roads to mountain resorts, including Yosemite, Mt. Lowe, Mt. Wilson, etc., are closed not only to automobiles but to hikers.

Experts assert that 90 per cent of the infection is carried by human beings through dust and dirt on feet and automobile tires, or even clothing where they have violated quarantine.

It is highly important that no one violate any quarantine regulations. Most of the new outbreaks have been traced directly to violation of quarantine either through ignorance, or deliberate disregard of public welfare.

Every day the quarantines established by other States are building a higher wall around California, bringing business paralysis. This wall cannot be removed until the last vestige of foot-and-mouth disease is removed.

Pleasure drivers and hikers should be warned to stay at home over the week-end. On many of the main thoroughfares into other counties only those having legitimate business will be allowed to pass. All intercounty roads are becoming so congested that in some instances several hours are required to get across the county line.

No pets, or animals of any kind are permitted to pass over county lines or through any quarantine stations.

Moving of plants and fruits of any sort are prohibited except under special permit.

DIPS POSTED

The Automobile Club sign-posting department has made every effort to place adequate warnings before all quarantine dips where there is danger of motorists coming unexpectedly upon these depressions. All motorists are warned to drive very carefully along the main highways.

The following letter, signed by U. G. Houck, special representative, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and J. P. Iverson, chief, Division of Animal Husbandry, State Department of Agriculture, has been received by the Automobile Club of Southern California, which is co-operating in every way with the city, county and State and national authorities in the fight against this calamitous disease:

"On behalf of the Federal, State and county authorities charged with the control and eradication of the foot-and-mouth disease in California, it is requested that your organization, through its extensive contact with the motoring public, endeavor in every way possible, to discourage all unnecessary travel by motorists, especially in quarantined counties.

CARRY GERMS

In the opinion of those who have had extensive experience in similar outbreaks of this disease, 90 per cent of the infection is spread by human carriers. This is the reason that it has been absolutely necessary to impose such stringent quarantine regulations and request the co-operation of the public in preventing the dissemination of the infection. It is important that your organization take steps to discourage all unnecessary travel until the situation is more favorable."

The situation in surrounding counties is much as it is in Los Angeles county. The most drastic quarantine is established in Inyo county where rigid disinfection has been established by the county officials. All cars, persons, baggage and personal effects must be fumigated at Little Lake. This will cause a delay of two to four hours. The Associated Chambers of Commerce of Inyo county request the Automobile Club of Southern California and other organizations to discourage all travel into Owens Valley during the life of the epidemic.

In Ventura county nineteen county roads and trails have been closed and strict quarantine is being maintained.

Orange county maintains quarantine stations on the line and these roads are congested at the county line.

Riverside county is maintaining strict quarantine.

VETERAN CARS STILL RUNNING

is registered under the name of Joseph Haflinger of Sacramento. The premier registrant was M. H. DeYoung of San Francisco who paid the first motor vehicle fee in California in 1905.

Of the cars manufactured prior to 1919 about 10 per cent of those registered in 1923 failed to turn up for 1924. This means, say the officials, that ten out of every 100 gave up the ghost and went the inevitable route to the junk man.

OME HYBRIDS

Sometimes an ancient engine will turn up in a rebuilt car with a hyphenated title. In such cases the division requires a bill of sale from the various persons involved in the deal and thus arrives at the origin of the motor.

Some interesting stories are told in the transfer records of what happens to many cars after their third or fourth year of service. Usually, it is shown, the original buyer keeps the car for about three years and then disposes of it to a dealer. From that point it is passed around, like a hot coal, from Jones to Smith to Brown to Green until the records look like the score, by innings, of a ball game. After its fourth transfer the car generally disappears although some change hands more than a dozen times before they reach the "ultimate consumer."

Based on registrations and transfers for 1923, four out of ten cars change hands once every year in California. This rate, however, is not as great over a period of years. This is indicated in the following table:

	Registrations (Autos and trucks)	Transfers
1920	583,623	135,937
1921	680,614	220,000
1922	861,807	321,041
1923	1,100,283	425,008

Pioneers of Closed Cars Still Reign

"Franklin exhibited at the New York show in 1913 a sedan, the first practical closed car body designed and produced in America," says J. B. Tevis, secretary and treasurer of Ralph Hamlin, Inc. "Since then Franklin supremacy in the closed car field has been undisputed. In 1915, two years after the sedan was put in production, 13 per cent of Franklin's output was closed cars. The industry's total output was only 1½ per cent closed cars. During nine following consecutive years Franklin produced twice as many closed cars in proportion to output as the balance of the industry.

"As a fitting climax to the eleventh anniversary of the sedan, all records for Franklin, or any other company, were broken last year when 47 per cent of Franklin's production consisted of sedans alone, and 80 per cent closed cars. Although the percentage of closed cars in relation to output for the industry has shown a gradual and steady increase, Franklin has gone ahead until today statistics indicate it is the leader in the closed-car field. Franklin not only leads the industry, but also its own class where the percentage of closed cars produced in 1923 was 41 per cent of output."

JUMPS AHEAD

"According to official figures, compiled in Detroit, the Hudson-Essex factory has jumped to first position in production," said Harold L. Arnold. "The first three months of 1924 showed Hudson-Essex leading the field with the exception of two low-priced four-cylinder makes."

NEW SALES RECORD

A new high sales record for the entire United States has been set by the Essex-six coach. It is reported that 2500 Essexes are being sold each week. This is the greatest volume ever reached by a closed car of this price.

STANDS TEST OF TIME

"Few inventions relative to the motor-car industry have withstood the test of time like the Hudson super-six patented crank-shaft," said Harold L. Arnold, Hudson distributor. "This crankshaft was invented in 1915, and applied to the first super-sixes turned out. Hudson increased its power 75 per cent by this invention, reducing friction to the vanishing point. The new Essex six is now using the same crankshaft as the super-six, which accounts for its remarkable smoothness and flexibility."

The new Hudson super-six has a stove in it. Not a stove to warm your feet and hands, but one to warm the gasoline. This stove "cooks" the raw gasoline and has the effect of breaking it into very small particles as it passes through the carburetor. According to Harold L. Arnold, local Hudson distributor, a marked increase in efficiency has been noted in the new super-six. Gasoline economy has been increased, starting is easier, and more power is also obtained.

NASH

93%

Tremendous Saving in Overhead

93% of Every Nash Car is Built Within the Nash Plants Eliminating the Profits of the "Parts Manufacturer"

To the best of our knowledge there is no other maker of motor cars who builds so large a proportion of each of his own cars as Nash.

The great Nash factories at Kenosha and Milwaukee, including the affiliated plant of the Seaman Body Corporation, give The Nash Motors Company plants and machinery surpassed by none in the industry for efficient manufacturing.

Within these vast walls more than 7,000 highly trained workmen in their various departments produce under careful supervision not only the Nash Perfected Valve-in-head Motor, but Nash bearings, Nash transmissions, and hundreds of other component parts, which when assembled form the famous Nash motor car.

By building almost the entire automobile in its own plant, Nash gains a powerful advantage over cars which are largely assembled, since there are no profits to pay out to various "parts manufacturers."

Production costs are considerably lowered. Great savings are effected. This explains why Nash can actually give more value for less money.

A detailed inspection and a trial ride will reveal to you vividly the significance of "93% Nash Built."

Research in Combustion Chemistry Results Notably

DISSERTATION ON NEW FLUID

Scientists to Hear About Tetra Ethyl

Doubles Gasoline Mileage, it is Said

Eliminates Knocks in the Power Plant

Mileage will be doubled with the same amount of gasoline through research in combustion chemistry carried on by the General Motors Research Corporation, it is announced by the petroleum division of the American Chemical Society.

Hailed as an outstanding development in a series of researches in the field, and one which, according to the announcement, "has resulted in very practical results as to cost and comfort for the motoring public," it will be extensively described to scientists in a paper to be presented before the division at the spring meeting of the society to be held in Washington, D. C., April 21 to 26.

"The investigators found, for example," it was stated, "that when they added a very small amount of a liquor called tetra ethyl lead, something like 1-10 per cent, to gasoline the motor knock which the engine experiences when it is pulling uphill with the throttle wide open is entirely eliminated. This increases the efficiency of the engine and adds to the comfort of the driver. However, the important thing is that it will enable engine builders to construct motors capable of withstanding very high compression probably double the present compression. When this is done, one can get almost double the mileage out of the same amount of gasoline."

Marked advances in the cracking method of producing gasoline from petroleum will be reported at the sessions of the division. "The cracking industry," it was said, "is only about 10 years old, but the production at the present time is nearly 30 per cent of the gasoline used throughout the country."

The division also announced that a paper dealing with research by W. P. Yant of the Pittsburg station of the United States Bureau of Mines would reveal dangers of carbon monoxide asphyxiation under certain conditions in garages. Results of other researches to be made public by men of science include a new and cheaper method of refining gasoline, used successfully in seventeen plants; extracting gasoline from natural gas by charcoal process; improved methods of separating gasoline and other distillates from petroleum, and physical studies in gasoline, benzol and alcohol.

Recent developments in the production of helium, of which the United States has a monopoly, have, it was disclosed, both cut the cost and increased efficiency. This progress, it was asserted, is vital to American supremacy in the air. Controversy, particularly in the case of the Shenandoah, has arisen over the relative merits of the use of helium and hydrogen in airships.

Helium's possibilities to the country will be outlined in an address by Dr. Richard B. Moore of New York City, formerly with the United States Bureau of Mines. Other researches to be described has disclosed, it was said, methods for the more efficient use of lubricating oils.

OLD MAN GLOOM BEING ROUTED

heard of the alleged depression circulated by John Knocker Gloom.

A. P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, in a statement issued commenting on the reported purchase by General Motors Corporation of the outstanding common stock of the Fisher Body Corporation, said:

"The General Motors executives have discussed informally from time to time with executives of the Fisher Body Corporation the subject of absorption of the outstanding stock of that company. However, no agreement at any time has been arrived at between the two companies, and there is no basis of fact for the report on that subject, which has been published in a New York paper.

"General Motors owns 60 per cent of the outstanding common stock of the Fisher Body Corporation and there has been no change in the relations existing between the two companies."

Capacity production of 150 cars daily will be reached before the end of the month at the Chrysler plant and, according to J. E. Fields, general sales manager, orders on hand indicate that it will be necessary to maintain this peak production for several months. Although production gains have to some extent taken care of back orders, new orders have also been received in increasing proportion. Cars are now being delivered to buyers and are beginning to dot the highways from coast to coast.

It seems that the old joy-killer has been making a tour of these United States. He stopped off at Washington where he got an ear full of the kind of news he thrives on, during the oil inquisition. The country and all its industries were on the way to the demnition bow-wows. All our Congressmen and Cabinet officers were crooks and President Coolidge was going down with the rest of the crew. All this coarse stuff was water on John Gloom's wheel and he gleefully broadcast it far and wide. He was fairly revelling in the situation. He visited other sections of the country and heard humors that auto dealers were being overloaded with cars, that the drought was making paupers out of the farmers, and that the sun would not shine until early in July and as is his wont, Gloom spread the dismal tidings to whomsoever would listen. Unfortunately a number of this gentry inhabit every commonwealth and old Gloom's prognostications had their effect. But his short career has been checked. Like many of his kindred, John K., still harbors the delusion that the autmobile is a fad, instead of the most vital commodity in the economic life of this or almost every other nation. And this is the rock on which Gloom and his kind split.

Henry Ford knew this years ago; so did John N. Willys; A. R. Erskine believes it, so do W. C. Nash, Harry C. Jewett, W. C. Durant, A. P. Sloan and other leaders of the industry.

And what is more they are furnishing material evidence of their views. Ford is working at a rate never before achieved or conceived. A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, points to the fact that South Bend and Detroit plants are operating at capacity on schedules of more than 14,000 cars each for April and May. This, he says, is justified by dealers' demands and current deliveries to consumers, which are greater than last year, the peak year of the industry in a number of cases.

Waving a Fond Farewell at the Pier

President Sid Black of the Cleveland Company declares his organization was never busier, with the greatest staff of employees the company has ever employed working at capacity to meet the demand for this car. Fully 50 per cent of the Cleveland company output comprises closed cars, Mr. Black says.

George Holzbaugh of Detroit is the champion Ford salesman of the United States. He is employed by the P. J. Platte Motor Sales Company. He sold a total of 202 Ford cars and trucks during the month of March leading the entire organization of 30,000 Ford salesmen in the country. His sales averaged better than seven Fords a day for the twenty-six working days of the month. While the Chicago Ford dealers led all cities in the United States in actual number of sales during March, in percentage of dealers to population, the Detroit dealer organization exceeds all others.

M. H. Hoepli, for more than a year acting chief of the automotive division of the Department of Commerce in Washington, has resigned. On May 1, Mr. Hoepli will rejoin the General Motors Corporation to assist in its European sales program. He will spend some time in the company's New York offices and Detroit plants before going abroad.

Prior to Mr. Hoepli's connection with the Department of Commerce he was with the General Motors organization being actively affiliated with the General Motors Acceptance Corporation and the General Motors Export Company, to which he now returns. He gained his initial automobile experience in the introduction of foreign cars into Switzerland.

The value of American automobile exports in February was $1,000,000 more than in January, according to Commerce Department figures announced this week, although shipments of passenger cars and trucks from the United States and of both cars and trucks from Canada, occurred in the face of advances in most other products. A notable increase in exports of engines was recorded in February.

Total value of shipments from the United States in February, was $19,566,226.

The factory of the Peerless Motor Car Company is working both night and day shifts in an effort to keep pace with the increased demand for Peerless automobiles, both eights and sixes. The regular day force, which is larger than at any other time during the last twelve months, is working an extra hour overtime every day and every Saturday afternoon as well. A night force, which has recently been added, will probably continue to operate all summer, according to Peerless factory officials.

Bucks Snow in Motor Trip to Winter Cabin

"Butting through two feet of snow and breaking trail over a narrow mountain road is not exactly what one would include under the heading of winter sports," said Harry Zier, Packard eight manager for Earle C. Anthony, Inc., last week. "However, it is a supreme test of endurance and ability to perform under adverse conditions.

"Every one who has driven a Packard eight knows there is a world of power under the hood, but only a few owners have put their car to as severe a test as did Harry P. Furlott on a trip to Rancho Contento during the heavy snowfall of last week. Furlott's ranch is located about twelve miles west of Lebec at an altitude of 6400 feet and without much regard for conditions at that end of the line he started in his Packard eight roadster accompanied by two other cars. Everything was smooth sailing over the Ridge and the first six miles off the highway passable butnot pleasant. The real test came on the last stretch up Cuddy Canyon which climbs 2200 feet in the last six miles. Furlott took the lead and bucking snow that was flush with the runnningboard and drifts that were up to the headlights, he broke the trail for the other cars."

ON DEALER SURVEY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MOLINE (Ill.) April 19.—F. E. Bradfield, vice-president of the Velie Motors Corporation, Moline, Ill., is making a dealer survey through the southeastern section of the country. After visits to Louisville, Cincinnati, and other points in that section, he reports that while the spring selling season is a little late, things are picking up quickly and dealers are in excellent condition to handle any sales situation.

YEARS OF PREPARATION BACK OF NEW CAR

The Rollin car occupies a unique place in the motor world, while it is one of the newest cars on the market, it is already well known and is spoken of every day just as though it had been in production for years.

In commenting on this, Mr. Crossman of A. W. Crossman, Inc., distributors, said, "This is true because Rollin H. White, designer and builder of the Rollin, did not need to enter his car at the bottom and gradually gain recognition after years of effort. On the contrary Mr. White's vast experience in the design and building of fine automotive equipment and his immense prestige among those who know cars have brought about this remarkable condition of instant popular approval.

"Coupled with these facts is the factor of preparedness. For the past five years Mr. White has been thinking out this car and designing it. During the past three years he has been engaged in actual development work with several test cars which have been severely handled over all kinds of roads and hard driving conditions. During this time he was also preparing for production so that when the time came his factory was all ready to build cars and his organization all over the country was ready to handle them."

QUAIL EXECUTED

Personality

Discriminating taste demands personality in a motor car—

Distinctive hub caps and radiator front may give to it a certain degree of individuality—but these are so easily imitated as to be of little value.

Personality must be built into a car—

It must be expressed in the graceful sweep of the body lines—in the poise and character of outward appearance and in the artistic blending of finish and equipment.

You will find in the Wills Sainte Claire the superb craftsmanship of custom builders—for the first time applied to factory production—

You will find a rare beauty of line—a richness of finish as unusual and distinctive as they are pleasing—

And you will find this same striking individuality displayed in the mechanical excellence of the car.

Have you seen the new Wills Sainte Claire? —Have you driven it?—

Seven beautiful new body styles, hydraulic four wheel brakes (Lockheed), and perfectly balanced balloon tires are standard equipment.

100,000 and more--

NO ONE has ever worn out a Studebaker Light-Six—

Not one has ever gone to the junk man.

Yet owners have reported 50,000 miles 75,000 and on up close to 100,000 miles of service with 1920 models,—the first of the Light-Six Studebakers.

Numerous firms have standardized on Light-Six Studebakers. They have found by comparison of operating costs that the Studebaker Light-Six furnishes the lowest cost, first class transportation available with motor cars.

Not only that—they have found that they cover more miles per month than other light cars and increase the efficiency of the men who operate them.

We have these facts. They are matters of record. Before you spend $1000 for any motor car look into the value of an investment in Studebaker Light-Six motor transportation.

We will furnish the car for you to try out. Drive it yourself for Driving is Believing. Just call us on the telephone and the car will be sent to your door.

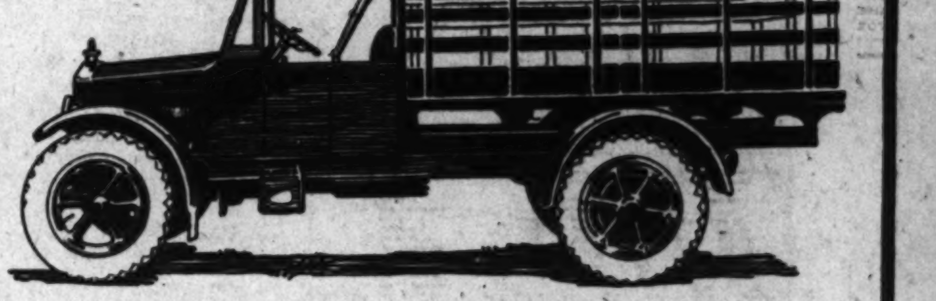
The Gotfredson Truck



This is the Gotfredson 1-ton Speed Truck.

Like all Gotfredson trucks it has clean lines and extreme simplicity, being designed for economy and efficiency under practical conditions of every-day use. It is noted for its exceptional strength—equalling that of many larger trucks.

Comparison of Gotfredson trucks with any other makes on the market reveals outstanding improvements in design and construction. And owners' operating records establish the fact that these fine trucks do cut haulage costs.

ENTERS ANNUAL TIGHT-WAD RUN

Oakland Signed Up for the Camp Curry Dash

Open and Closed Cars to be Competitors

Regulations Are Different for 1924 Contest

The first car to be entered for the eighth annual Los Angeles to Yosemite economy run is the two-time winner, the Oakland six, according to Reeve Gartzmann, president of the California Oakland Motor Company.

"We are going to enter the Oakland six in the Yosemite economy run again this year," says Gartzmann. "We have won the sweepstakes cups for two years straight as well as walking away with our class cups and we will keep up the performance until some other car comes along and surprises us by copping the big honors.

"I feel that the regulations for the run this year merit the consideration of everyone interested in the economical maintenance of an automobile. The old method of running and coasting has been ruled out and the car must now be driven just as any owner would drive it under normal conditions. We have been strong advocates of this method as we feel it will have the effect of showing the public exactly what the various cars can actually do on gasoline saving as well as oil.

"It is our plan to enter two cars this time, one a closed car and one an open model, to give Oakland enthusiasts the opportunity to draw direct comparisons between open and closed-car economy as a balance against the greater comfort. We believe that a closed car can be operated at about the same cost and this test will give us the answer.

"Last year the Oakland broke all existing records by averaging 36.92 miles on a gallon of gasoline, using less fuel than any car has ever used on a trip from Los Angeles to Yosemite Valley regardless of size or price. It set up a ton mileage that should stand for all time, and I believe that the stupendous mileage made by the Oakland last year was one of the outstanding reasons for the change in the driving rules and we are glad of the change."

OPEN NEW PLANT

The Able-Smith Company, Reo representatives for the Long Beach and Whittier districts, plan the opening of a new sales and service plant at Whittier about May 1.

GAMBOL IN THE SNOW

Fourteen automobile loads of enthusiastic motorists left Los Angeles on Saturday afternoon, April 12 for Arrowhead Lake and a gambol in the heavy snow that covered the San Bernardino range after the big snows of week before last. It was an annual stag party and was arranged by the Peerless Laundry Service Corporation drivers and employees.

A majority of those in attendance are drivers for the laundry company and average close to 125 miles a day with their Reo speed wagons in picking up and delivering laundry bundles, yet they are always ready for a frolic and were away to a flying start at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving at the Raven Hotel for supper.

The leaders of the caravan got together and ambushed the late comers at the roadforks near Arrowhead, snowballing them as they turned toward the lake.

A surprise was pulled on the party as they sat down to the banquet table when L. E. Seymour of the Peerless Laundry executive staff, announced that the banquet was "on" the company.

On Sunday there was snowballing, sleighing, canoeing and building snow men, besides hiking around the lake and various stunts in the heavy snow. The party returned to Los Angeles late Sunday afternoon.

Included in the party were the following: Roy Johnson, L. E. Seymour, superintendent, Ed Clay, superintendent, George Nahas, Harry Safady, O. K. Maple, Jimmy Martin, Ray Amy, "Doc" Thompson, A. F. Steadman, Bert Maddox, Fred Mergenthaler, Billy Goertz, Harry Knoll, W. A. Colley, A. M. Olson, J. E. Ahr, R. A. Boardman, R. A. Asher, W. J. Bradbury, L. E. Torian, M. E. Wolfe, J. W. Jones, L. R. Smith, A. W. Allen, H. M. Berg, W. Austin Denehie and A. R. Hromatka, the last two representing the Reo Motor Car Company of California, Inc.

PRICE RAISE IS HINTED

Automobile prices are due for a raise within the very near future. This is the definite trend of the industry, according to a letter received yesterday by F. S. Howard, general manager of the Howard Automobile Company in this city from his brother, C. S. Howard, president of the Howard Automobile Company, Buick distributors, written April 3 from New York City.

Howard left San Francisco two weeks ago with his family, and stopped at the motor manufacturing centers long enough to look over the industry.

His letter stated in part, "I believe that raises in prices are inevitable within the next few months. Motorists will have to order their cars early to insure delivery. Indications here are that all automobile dealers are facing shortage of cars, and many factors will force the price increases."

According to executives of the Howard company here, the condition is practically the same throughout the trade. Production cannot possibly supply the demand and labor, material, and other manufacturing conditions will shortly force the prices of cars sharply upwards.

Howard said that all the bigger factories were running at capacity, building as many automobiles as possible under existing conditions. Production for 1924 is far ahead of 1923, except in the case of a few smaller manufacturers.

He pointed also to the fact that people were getting more automobile value today than they ever have before, especially in light of the many advancements that mark the 1924 model car as the biggest step forward in the trade in many years.

General Sales Boss of Flint Is Appointed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FLINT (Mich.) April 19.—T. S. Johnston, who since the inception of the Flint Motor Company, has had charge of the sales in the eastern territory, and has been associated with W. C. Durant for many years, has been appointed general sales manager of the Flint Motor Company, Flint, Mich., with headquarters in New York City. Mr. Johnston is to have sales jurisdiction over the entire country.

Theodore S. Johnston, popularly known as "Ted," is a pioneer in the automobile business, his experience covering manufacturing, production, distribution and retailing.

This appointment places a man of well-rounded experience at the head of the sales organization which markets the Flint "Fifty-five" and Flint "Forty," and especially valuable is his understanding of the retailer's problems from actual experience.

A Car Such as You've Never Driven Before!

YOU haven't the faintest idea of what this big, handsome Six will do until you try it out.

Here's a car for crowded places as well as the open road.

Take it through traffic where you need quick action and easy handling. Note its saucy confidence as it weaves effortlessly in and out at walking speed.

No choking—no balking—no sputtering, here.

With the flash of the semaphore—give it gas. Feel it leap from under you like a thoroughbred given the rein. See how it leaves the crowd behind. Then you realize there is a difference in driving a Peerless Six.

4-Wheel Brakes for Safety

Yet, instantly when needed, the hydraulic 4-wheel brakes bring you to a safe, smooth, skidless stop.

Now out to the open road! Let 'er go until the telephone poles look like a picket fence. Climb the long hills without a thought of shifting gears. Don't mind the ruts for this sturdy car is built for hard, gruelling service.

You've never seen a Six perform like it.

The deep upholstery snuggles against you. Absolute relaxation holds you in its soothing grasp. You are rested as the Peerless Six piles up the miles. Riding becomes an actual luxury.

Surely, to own the Six is to possess a car that is truly Peerless.

For whether it's an Eight or a Six—after all it's a Peerless.

Eight Latin Americans to Study Highways

Twenty Nations Will Have Representatives

U. S. Highway Board Sends the Invitation

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
WASHINGTON (D. C.) April 19.—Eight of the forty delegates from Latin-American countries who are to make a field study of highways in the United States this summer as guests of the Highway Education Board have formally consented through the Department of State their acceptances of the invitation extended them, it is announced today. Other acceptances are expected daily.

The delegates are from Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, and Salvador, four of the twenty nations to be represented on the tour. Nations from which delegates are yet to be reported include Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru and Venezuela.

The delegates from these countries will be known as the Pan-American Highway Commission. According to present plans the representatives will arrive in the United States about the first of June. They will proceed to Washington where the commission will be entertained by officials of the government and after a brief period of entertainment proceed at once to make an intensive field study of highway conditions in the United States.

The itinerary of the commission has not yet been definitely settled but it will be announced presently. States to be visited will be those where the climatic, soil, topographic and financial characteristics as closely approximate Latin-American conditions as possible, and where, too, the commission will have an opportunity to study the most approved highway engineering systems in the United States.

The tour will extend over the greater part of June, and the commission will cover several thousand miles by automobile and rail. In this project the Board has the co-operation of the leaders in highway education, highway transport and highway engineering in this country, and the national organizations concerned in highway improvement both here and in the countries to the south.

MOUNTAIN RECORD'S CLAIMED

Prevalence of Buicks in Yosemite National Park Each Year is Pointed Out

Buick's record of sales in Los Angeles during March, when more new cars were registered than any other make excepting two small four-cylinder lines, bids fair to be eclipsed this month, according to H. W. Tuttle of the Howard Automobile Company, Buick distributors here.

Tuttle declares that with the call of the open road spelling vacation in large letters to busy business men and office toilers, there is an extraordinary spring demand for Buicks, which have acquired an outstanding record for exceptional performance in the mountains.

More persons visit the Yosemite National Park, for example, by Buick than any other car except one make of low price. Over the Wawona, Coulterville, Big Oak Flat and Tioga Pass roads, with their steep grades and winding turns, practically one-tenth of the 87,870 persons who visited Yosemite last year by means of the automobile used Buicks as the transportation medium.

According to the figures supplied by the Department of the Interior, National Park Service, on travel into the Yosemite National Park last year, 2419 Buicks entered the great California playground. A grand total of 27,233 cars, including 150 different models, were admitted to the park, and of this number 5896 were cars which returned for a second visit and were not classified.

The total classified amounted to 21,337 cars, of which Buick's contribution of 2419 was better than 11 per cent as a choice for a mountain performer.

Special Delco Ignition Put on Ford Cars

The Dayton Engineering Laboratories Company, manufacturers of Delco starting, lighting and ignition equipment, announces the production of special Delco ignition equipment for Fords.

The Delco distributor for Fords is of the standard Delco type and quality, and has an automatic spark advance. It can be quickly and easily installed in place of the Ford timer.

The automatic spark advance mechanism of the distributor reduces to a minimum the necessity for using the hand spark advance lever and has been worked out especially to give the finest results with the Ford engine at all speeds.

In addition the Delco distributor is provided with a hand advance that can be used in unusual driving conditions to supplement the work of the automatic advance. The hand advance is provided with definite stops in order to eliminate getting the engine out of time by any shift of the lever.

A special ignition coil for Fords is also put out by Delco to supplement the distributor and increase its efficiency for cold and rainy weather starting and driving, and better all-around engine performance.

The equipment is being distributed through United Motors Service, Delco's official, national service representatives.

PROTEST SWITCH IN ROAD FUNDS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]
FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) April 19.—The only part of the Old Trails highway in this section not graded and surfaced is the sixty-two-mile stretch from Flagstaff to Angell, to the eastward. There had been expectation that this stretch would be paved this spring. Now keen protest has arisen over a reported switch of $50,000 from $117,000 of forest road funds that have been available for the work. Most of the money to be thus diverted is to be used on a road from Fredonia, near the Utah line, to the north rim of the Grand Canyon. There is insistence here that 478 miles of 2000 miles of roadway maintained by Coconino county are used almost exclusively by Indians and, in simple justice, aid is asked of the general government for construction and maintenance of the main highways.

WOMEN DRIVERS KEEP ENGINEERS ON ALERT

"One has only to look about to discover the significant fact that there are almost as many women drivers as men," asserts Sidney A. Briggs, manager of the Western Motors Company, distributors here for the Wills Sainte Claire. "It has been but a few years since the sight of a woman driver was so rare as to attract considerable attention.

"Conditions have changed greatly," he continued. "So greatly in fact, that the automotive engineers have had to recognize the change and take action accordingly.

"It is a mistaken opinion that the woman driver considers only the appearance of the car. She also wants a machine that is easily handled. Women demand easy steering, easy gear shifting, flexibility and simplicity of control. Usually they are more particular about these points than the average man. They also demand cars that are safe, for when they take the children out for a ride they want every possible assurance against mishap."

Billion Bucks Lost Annually by Motorists

A billion dollars or more is annually lost to motorists in this country through their cars not receiving proper lubricating and tightening care, is the astounding claim made by D. R. McBryde of the McBryde Lubricating Service here.

McBryde backs up his statement with some very concrete and evidential figures: "Authoritative statistics for the whole industry show that the consumption of pistons, piston bushings and piston rings increased 1480 per cent from 1914 to 1923," he says, "and that of piston pins increased 1380 per cent. Registration covering the same period increased only 700 per cent or about one-half that of worn-out and replaced parts.

"The value of replacement parts has increased from being $11,000,000 in 1914 to be $198,000,000 in 1923—an increase of 1800 per cent. When we add the cost of service labor, the public charge is approximately $450,000,000. These figures do not take into consideration replacement parts for used cars, which are repaired by factory dealers or factory service stations. About 2,000,000 cars per year are so handled which would add at least one-third more to the parts replacement figures and about $59,000,000 more to the value. Figured in this way," McBryde continues, "the total cost of replacement due to piston parts wear alone was close to $500,000,000 last year. When we consider the probable cost of replacing other automobile parts which suffer equally from lack of lubrication and which in the instance of the differential, cost even more to replace, the general estimate of $1,000,000,000 a year is seen to be extremely conservative"

We Challenge you to find Automobile Value equal to Overland at $495 f.o.b. Toledo.

With all the advantages of the Overland, there is no need to pay more—and nothing is gained by paying less for a cheaper car.

POWER, special Overland-designed power plant, bigger and more powerful than ever.

ECONOMY, 20 to 25 miles per gallon of gasoline. Known upkeep costs are smallest on record because the Overland is built from steels that resist wear.

COMPLETENESS, first cost provides all conveniences of equipment.

ALL-STEEL BODY, pressed from sheet steel and welded at the seams into one single unit.

BAKED ENAMEL FINISH, gives lustrous and lasting finish not possible with wooden bodies.

REMOVABLE UPHOLSTERY that quickly turns cars into a commercial unit. Big factor in economy.

COMFORT, spring base of 130 inches gives riding ease never before possible in a light car.

TRIPLEX SPRINGS, give short wheelbase but long spring base, insures easy riding at all speeds and road conditions.

BRAKES, Overland has more braking area than any light car—one square inch of braking surface to every fourteen pounds of weight.

EASE OF CONTROL, steers easily, clutch and pedal control smooth and positive. Turning circle 34 feet.

The most automobile in the world for the money.

BOB WEAVER TO BE RUN REFEREE

Asked to Boss Annual Camp Curry Economy Dash

Dealers Interested in New Change of Route

Cup Exhibition Proves to be a Big Success

The 1924 Los Angeles-Camp Curry economy run will have Bob Weaver for its official referee, J. A. C. Waters, run manager, announces.

Weaver is well known here, both in automobile circles and in the realm of athletics, and it is expected that his choice as arbiter of the famous contest May 16-17 will prove extremely popular with all followers of the event. Other economy run officials, beside Mr. Weaver and Mr. Waters, are Val Haresnape, member of the A.A.A. contest board supervising the Pacific Coast, and George F. Stephenson, A.A.A. technical representative.

According to Mr. Waters, things are looming up in great shape for a record-breaking entry list this year. Dealers and distributors who never before put their cars in the contest are manifesting strong approval this season. This is believed to be particularly due to the new rules which eliminate trick driving, the adoption of the Mint Canyon-Mojave route to Bakersfield instead of the former trail over the Ridge, and the provisions made for inclosed car competition.

In regard to the latter change, it is learned that in addition to the usual awards a special sweepstakes trophy is being offered for the inclosed car making the best economy score, regardless of class.

The exhibition of the economy run cups in the windows of the Owl Drug Store at Sixth and Broadway attracted an extraordinary amount of attention from throngs of passers-by last week, it is said, and Mr. Waters announces that the display in that location will continue until the eve of the contest.

Early Battles Fought Out in Scenic Spots

The serenity that now prevails in Southern California has not gone on year after year without interruption, as history relates. Battles and bloody ones were fought on soil that now is thought of only in terms of hospitality and beauty.

"I have read oftentimes of early California battles and I looked up in authoritative records the location of the most conspicuous battle fields near Los Angeles," said H. E. Franklin, manager of the California Oakland Motor Company," and with a party of friends in an Oakland six we made the circuitous trip that encompasses these fields.

"We first visited the new Los Serranos Country Club near Chino, which stands on what is said to be the battlefield upon which was fought the first battle between the Americans and the Californians. This battle was fought on September 26 and 27, 1846.

"The battle of Chino was the fuse that fired the whole State into conflict and the battles spread from south to north. The Americans under Kearney were attacked near San Pasquale in San Diego county and defeated by the Californians. This last defeat so embittered the Americans that they took a determined stand to defeat the enemy and conquer the State.

"The combined forces of Gen. Kearney and Commodore Stockton marched on Los Angeles from San Diego and on January 8, 1847, they reached the lower ford of the San Gabriel, but later decided to advance by way of the north ford and here the Californians from their position on the bluffs of the river stormed the advancing troops. In spite of much firing the casualties on either side were reported as none and the Americans forded the river in pursuit of the Californians.

"With defeat overtaking them after a brief thrill of victory, the Californians lost courage and surrendered to the Americans who took possession of the city of Los Angeles. The battle of San Gabriel was fought just south of the Valley Boulevard and the spot bears no distinguishing mark to relate its history to posterity."

Old Battle Ax Has Seen Lots of Real Work

What is declared to be the oldest truck in active service on the Pacific Coast is owned by J. Mullany, a wood and coal dealer of San Francisco. This old truck, the first White truck ever sold on the Pacific Coast, has been in continuous service since May, 1910, according to O. R. Fuller, president of the White Auto Company, White distributors.

A relic of the days of Doc Yac and his old 346, it has lived through thirteen of the most revolutionary years in the motor-truck industry. From the time when a man who bought a motor truck insisted upon having a whip-socket placed on the instrument board, so that his drivers would feel at home, to the present day of the advanced double-reduction gear drives for heavy duty trucks, this old White has kept going.

Mr. Mullany's truck is the same type as the White Company showed at the New York auto show in 1910 when it brought out its first gasoline truck. It was the forerunner of the complete line of White trucks that have enabled this company to build up a $48,000,000-a-year business.

Visitors Rush to Showing of New Peerless

The Peerless six, brand-new companion of the Peerless eight, made its Los Angeles bow last week, when it was on display for the first time at the showrooms of Stanley W. Smith, Inc., Southern California distributors for the car. Anxious for a glimpse of this newest entrant into the fine automobile field, visitors thronged the sales floor throughout the announcement week, and the demonstrator has been busy every day carrying passengers over a selected five-mile course.

"Peerless engineers have succeeded in their designs of the six of developing a motor unlike any power unit ever before produced of a like number of cylinders," said Smith yesterday. "Its performance is astounding, and only a demonstration will convince the public that any six could possibly be just like like this one. For years automotive engineers have tried to produce such a motor, but to Peerless designers goes the credit for first arriving at the goal.

"Anxious to disclose the wonderful power and flexibility of the new six and confident that it will deliver any sort of test the most critical observer may ask, we have chosen a demonstration course which will accomplish this end. Over the roughest streets, then again on fine boulevards, over brick streets, and up and down the steepest hills, weaves the representative course. We have every day of the last week averaged three trips an hour, carrying at least three passengers each trip.

The Park View hill, up from Sixth street, one of the legs of the demonstration spin, serves to disclose two of the qualities of the new Peerless. As most motorists will testify, it is one of the steepest hills, and also one of the roughest in the city. From a negligible start at the bottom, the six accelerates in high gear all the way up to a speed of almost thirty miles at the top, and the balloon tires, coupled with the long semi-elliptical springs, iron out every bump and rut encountered, say those who have taken the spin."

OWNERS ARE PUBLICIZED

Chrysler owners—the first to receive deliveries of this year's automobile sensation—are getting plenty of free publicity, according to first-hand information received by the Greer-Robbins Company, Southern California distributors. "The owners may not be seeking it, but they seem to be getting it just the same," declared an official of the concern. "Here's the 'how of it.'

"Since deliveries of the new Chrysler started, whenever an owner parks his car at the curb and goes into some building to transact business, a crowd is sure to gather about, according to their own statements. When he returns, he is bombarded with questions concerning it that run the gamut from specifications to purchase price. He is asked how long he has operated it, what he thinks of it, and his name and address are frequently asked in order that the inquirer may get further details from him at a more auspicious time. One owner stated that he had really taken considerable time from his business in order to be courteous and answer questions as far as he was able.

"It is remarkable and at the same time very satisfying to have owners take the trouble to call upon us and tell us how enthusiastic they are over their Chrysler ownership. They seem to get more kick out of it than many youngster does out of a new bike. Factory production is steadily being speeded up toward the maximum point is the information we have recently received from the big Detroit plant."

Survey Proves Worth of New Sales Scheme

It is almost a year since the Jordan factories created somewhat of a sensation in motoring circles with their announcement of a new plan for the reconditioning and sale of used Jordan cars.

A survey recently completed of the results and effects of this plan was received here by Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, and, according to Lord, proves exclusively that there is country-wide approval of every detail of the plan.

The plan has been used by every Jordan dealer and distributor in the country. None can depart from it, because it is made a condition of his selling franchise, and to sell a used Jordan car in violation of the rigid terms of this contract is to sacrifice his franchise and thus be dropped from the list of Jordan dealers.

The plan has succeeded so well, and the dealers are so well pleased with it everywhere, that several other manufacturers are formulating plans for a similar system of stabilizing the used car market insofar as their product is concerned.

"STEVE" STEVENS LANDS A NEW JOB

Wm. Stevens, better known as "Steve" to a host of Franklin owners, is now a member of the sales staff of Ralph Hamlin, Inc., Los Angeles, distributor of the air-cooled six. "Steve" has been in the new car department for many years and knows Franklins from end to end, top to bottom, and has a very large acquaintance among Franklin owners who will no doubt be glad to hear he has blossomed out as a Franklin salesman and is now pledged to spread the gospel of air cooling and lightweight.

Truck Drivers Showing More Road Courtesy

That truck drivers and operators are showing an increased tendency to fully respect the right of motorists in general and further to observe in a courteous manner many written and unwritten road laws which formerly were more or less disregarded by many is the opinion of Capt. Cannon, head of the Los Angeles county motor police patrol.

The signs furnished all truck operators free by the D-Q Service Corporation, local distributors for Firestone truck tires which read "Blow horn—will let you pass D-Q," have been of great assistance in promoting good will," stated Capt. Cannon, a few days ago, "and I believe the large demand for these signs more than proves that truck operators and drivers appreciate the necessity of relieving traffic congestion wherever possible by giving way to speedier machines.

"I have noticed that most all of those trucks with the aforementioned sign on the rear are driven much more carefully and courteously than those without signs and I consider that the free distribution of them by the D-Q Service Corporation has been of inestimable value in assisting us to maintain traffic law and order.

"If we could only impress upon all operators of slow-moving vehicles the absolute necessity and the benefits to be derived by their keeping to the extreme right of all roadways and streets, traffic conditions would be remedied to an enormous extent," concluded the captain, "consequently I cannot speak too highly of the assistance which the D-Q Service Corporation are rendering along this line by the distribution of their 'courtesy signs.'"

Personnel of Cab Company is Excellent

In forming the personnel of the new Fuller Taxicab Corporation, O. R. Fuller, who is president and general manager of the Motor Transit Company and the White Auto Company, selected men of standing and experience in this particular phase of the motor industry.

F. D. Howell, vice-president and assistant general manager of the Motor Transit Company, is secretary and treasurer of the new firm, and Ben C. Hirschfield, formerly general sales manager of the Checker Cab Manufacturing Company of Kalamazoo, Mich., is vice-president and general manager of operations.

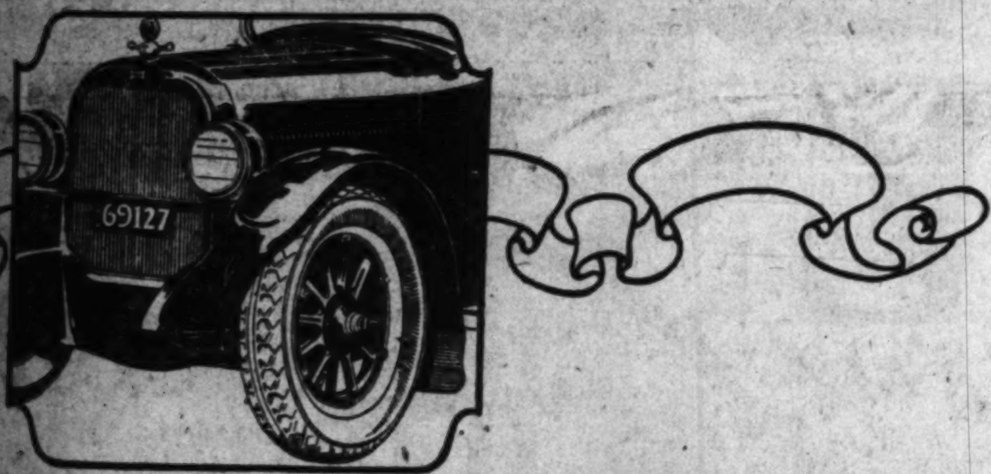
The equipment selected for the Fuller Taxicab Corporation included Checker cabs made by the Checker Cab Manufacturing Corporation of Kalamazoo, Mich.

ADVANCED DESIGN IS DAILY KEYNOTE

Advanced design is the keynote in the style song being sung this spring by the makers of the Auburn Beauty Six, according to Fred Johnson, sales manager of the passenger car division of the White Auto Company, Southern California Auburn distributors.

"The newest thing out," said Johnson, "is the Auburn with the permanent top. It comes from the factory with this beautiful, sturdy covering as standard equipment.

"Auburn designers and engineers tell us that next year and the year following will see the majority of manufacturers adopting many of the features now carried by this year's Auburn car."



at Balloon Tires Add to Chandler Performance

IF you want to experience the supreme luxury of motoring—drive a balloon tired Chandler!

The Pikes Peak Motor gives you the flawless power mastery you naturally expect from the national performance champion.

Thanks to the Traffic Transmission you cannot clash gears—cannot fail to make a split-second, silent, positive change under any and all conditions.

And augmented by Chandler's scientific spring suspension, the balloon tires provide an indescribably luxurious feeling of comfort and relaxation over roads of every sort.

In addition to absorbing the shock of ruts, bumps, and holes, the resilient yielding cushions of low-pressure air add to Chandler's sure-footed safety.

With greater tire-to-road contact area, the car steers easier—stops quicker. There is no skidding—even on wet, greasy asphalt; no slewing in sand, gravel or rutted clay.

Chandler is able to offer super-size balloon cords as optional equipment at a very moderate extra cost because Chandler standard construction allows their application without the slightest impairment of proper clearances.

Touring Car $1485 f. o. b. Cleveland 4-Door Sedan $1895

Consider This Oakland Sedan at $1445

THERE is genuine satisfaction in owning this Oakland Six Sedan. It actually incorporates more advanced construction and worth-while features than you will find in any other Sedan selling at a similar price. Here are just a few of the facts you can verify for yourself.

Oakland's new six-cylinder engine is compact and powerful. Its full pressure lubrication to all bearings, automatic spark control, patented bronze-backed bearings and all-round advanced design give it the smoothness so desirable in a closed car.

Oakland's four-wheel brakes are sound and practical. In the Sedan, a family car, don't overlook this very real safety feature. If you doubt their desirability just drive an Oakland.

The body is distinctive. It is Fisher-built—beautiful and complete. Comparisons with other sedans will increase your desire for it.

Oakland's new Duco finish will be a revelation to you. More beautiful than ordinary finishes, it is also many times more durable. In no other car, similarly priced, can you obtain this finish.

The control system is exclusively Oakland. Horn, throttle, ignition switch, choke and light controls—all are on the steering wheel, right under your hand. There is nothing on the dash, except the neat, indirectly lighted instrument board.

Disc steel wheels are standard on the Sedan. They are safer, better looking, more desirable in every way.

These are the facts, and the Sedan price is only $1445 at the factory. To insure complete satisfaction you cannot afford to pay less, and you need not pay more. Consider the Oakland—see it, ride in it, drive it—then decide for yourself.

Resort Notes

Girls' Camp at Catalina

The Toyon Camp for Girls, situated three miles west of Avalon on Santa Catalina Island, will open for the third season on July 1. The camp is under the personal direction of Mrs. D. F. Laurie of the Girls Collegiate School in this city.

Rustic cabins and tents are provided. Swimming and water sports, riding, tennis, golf, basketball, archery, target shooting and hiking are some of the sports in which the girls interest themselves.

Resort is Enlarged

The recent completion of six rock and finished lumber cabins varying in capacity from two to ten persons each, is announced by John T. Opid, proprietor of Opid's Camp in the mountains back of Pasadena and Sierra Madre.

Construction will be started shortly in Opid's Camp, which is reached by trail from Mt. Wilson or Alpine Tavern, of a mammoth swimming pool which will comply in every way with the State law which applies to the building of swimming pools in mountain resorts.

Mr. Opid also has planned a new dance and recreation hall, thirty by fifty feet in size, with a large fireplace and a porch around the entire building.

In Linnard Service

Wallace F. Vail, for seven years with D. M. Dinnard, and formerly the controller of the Fairmont and Whitcomb Hotels in San Francisco has recently been appointed manager of the Samarkand Hotel in Santa Barbara.

Jack Matthews, the oldest man in the Linnard service, of which service he has been a part for the past sixteen years, has recently been appointed manager of the El Encanto Hotel and Cottages, also in Santa Barbara.

The control of the Samarkand and the El Encanto Hotels was assumed by the Linnard interests January 1.

Interest in the History of "Balloons"

The history of balloon tires contains fully as much of interest in their development as any other important advance credited to the automotive industry.

Tire and rim sizes and the necessary clearance to permit balloon tire installation have proven the greatest difficulties in the way of the universal adoption of this new "comfort cord," as the French call them.

According to Byron C. Foy, president and general manager of the Reo Motor Car Company of California, Inc., Reo engineers were interested from the beginning of this experimental stage and immediately saw the possibilities of such equipment. "It is due to that fact today," says Mr. Foy, "that both the 1922 and 1924 model Reo passenger cars can all be equipped with full size genuine ballon tires without other mechanical changes than the smaller rim and wheel size needed. Earlier models can be so equipped by an off-set of one inch for brake toggle clearance.

"The difficulty of fitting these large diameter comfort cords to many cars has been the one of clearance between tire and running board or fender, as well as brake-band sizes and wheel position. Mr. J. E. Hale, engineer for the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, placed the first balloon tires ever made on a Reo and they are still there. Because of this fact and the close co-operation in balloon-tire development between the tire people and Reo engineers the housing and whole line-up of Reo are adapted to balloon tires."

Scout Car Dashes Over Into Arizona Before the Bars Go Up Against Motorists

Readers of The Times Auto Section will recall that early in March the famous Franklin Camel II, air-cooled scout car, made a rapid round trip to the Petrified Forest in Northern Arizona, covering 1428 miles on the journey during three and one-half days. On this trip the car made the entire run using only one quart of medium motor oil.

Not content with the recent jaunt to the northern part of our neighbor State the Camel recently made another trip to Arizona, going by way of Yuma to Phoenix, and visiting Roosevelt Lake, Black Canyon, Prescott and returning home by way of Ashfork, Kingman and Needles—a total of 1353 miles. The car returned to Los Angeles last week.

Accompanied by his wife, Rupert L. Larson, advertising manager for Ralph Hamlin, Inc., made the jaunt in rather good time (300 miles per day average) despite the fact that very little night driving was indulged in and many stops for pictures were made.

The Franklin Camel crossed into Arizona the day before the ban on autos went into effect, and at Yuma Larson met Manuel Garfias, an automobile dealer in the border town, who was one of Hamlin's two employees when Ralph started handling Franklin cars back in 1905.

In commenting on road conditions in our neighbor State, Larson said: "A great many folk have gained the impression that Arizona roads, for the most part, are very poor. This idea has been fostered in California from time to time by advertising effect stories, yet nothing could be further from the truth. There are many bad sections, to be sure, but on the whole the roads are very good. Paul Lowry, automobile editor of The Times, who indulged in a bit of Cameloping at the time of the Petrified Forest trip, was well pleased with the condition of the National Old Trails road in Arizona as a whole, though he was most rightfully indignant over the inexcusable condition of the stretch between Flagstaff and Canon Diablo.

"In proof of the fact that the majority of main-traveled routes in Arizona are good I will state that though on the way from Yuma to Phoenix via Gila Bend there is one uncompleted stretch of twenty miles out of Aztec, and another shorter piece above the Gillespie Dam, we averaged thirty-three miles per hour from the Colorado River to the Arizona capital. Then again, the scenic drive from Phoenix to Roosevelt Lake, known as the Apache Trail, has been called a 'gruelling' road. It may be, and there is no question but what it has plenty of curves and grades, and is narrow in spots, yet we averaged twenty-eight miles per hour over this stretch."

BURBANK EXPERIMENT IN PAVING'S WATCHED

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE]

BURBANK, April 19.—Highway builders and better boulevard bodies are watching with considerable interest the experiment of this city in applying new paving specifications to the improvement of Central avenue for a strip of three and one-half miles, reaching from San Fernardo Road to the city limits on the southwest. The paving consists of three and one-half inches of gravel and asphaltic mixture as a base, and a finishing course or wearing surface of an inch and a half of national paving. The first coat is applied hot, being brought from the material plant located at Lankershim. The wearing surface is also applied hot and the application of each coat of paving becomes a separate operation in the project.

World Champ Ball Players on Auto Nine

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

FLINT (Mich.) April 12.—From the list of 1924 major-league baseball players who own Buick cars, nine players could be selected who, during the 1923 season hung up a collective average batting mark of 320—by far a higher average than any major league team has attained in the last thirty years, either in the regular season or the world series.

This team would consist of Dauss, Detroit, pitcher; Severeid, St. Louis Browns, catcher; Pipp, New York Yankees, first base; Frisch, New York Giants, second base; Rigney, Detroit, shortstop; Dugan, New York Yankees, third base; Archdeacon, Chicago, White Sox, left field; Speaker, Cleveland, center field; Tobin, St. Louis Browns, right field; all 300 or better hitters, excepting Dauss and Dugan.

The fan who thinks the above team could be improved as a Buick "all-American" entry might choose from Buick owners a pitcher more to his liking in either Sam Jones of the Yankees, Clarence Mitchell of the Phillies, or Sylvester Johnson of the Tigers. Dauss and Jones were among eleven pitchers (in the two major leagues combined) who succeeded in winning twenty or more games during 1923.

If the infield, as outlined in the .320 team named above, does not exactly suit the captious critic, he can have the entire infield of the world champion Yankees and still confine his choice to Buick owners. Pipp, Ward, Scott and Dugan are all Buick owners and boosters. Besides those four stars, there is the renowned Marty McManus of the St. Louis Browns, and the veteran Jimmy Austin of the same team. They own Buicks, too.

And when it comes to the outfield, how that old "leather" would suffer in a pinch with such drubbers available as Bobby Veach and Ira Flagstead of the Boston Red Sox, Hi Myers of the St. Louis Cardinals, and "Bing" Miller of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Who will manage these all-American Buickites? How about Tris Speaker? or Connie Mack? Or Miller Huggins? Or Wilbert Robinson? They all own Buicks.

School Stops Didn't Count All Last Week

School stops didn't count last week. It was Easter vacation.

While patient motorists carefully hesitated at the broad white marks at every other intersection or so, the kids were out behind the barn revelling in a game of mumblety peg, stretched full-length on their tummies on the nice cool ground, or down at the playgrounds or over in the swimming pool.

"I can tell pretty accurately who has children at home just by watching motorists at school stops," said Lynn C. Buxton, distributor of Stearns-Knight Sixes and Fours in Southern California. "Monday morning as I drove down to the city I was held up more than once by a row of childless motorists rigidly obeying the law at the school stops. I was wise, for I have a young lady of school age at home, and all I have heard for more than a week were the plans for Easter vacation.

"With no children going to school, of course school stops were superfluous. The officers were nowhere to be found. They had been transferred to other stations for the week. Their swarms of little friends had dashed off far afield, the farther away from the school the better.

"When school stops are in force the motorists who have children of their own seldom slip by one, for they remember that an ounce of caution is worth a ton of remorse, and they are hoping every other driver will be as careful at the school stops where their kiddies pass as they are in their daily rounds."

AUTO MAGAZINE IS ANNOUNCED

Los Angeles is about to acquire another automobile magazine, according to Thomas J. Lynch, president of the Standard Automobile Club, Inc., 1126-1127 Loew's State Building. According to Mr. Lynch, the club will start issuing a monthly magazine early in June which will be devoted to the interests of all Pacific Coast automobile owners. The magazine will be known as the Standard Automobile Review of California. According to Mr. Lynch the magazine will be edited by John L. Proctor.

Dominance

The Stearns-Knight dominates in its field through its generous fineness, trim grace and solid elegance.

And use improves the Stearns-Knight motor. Its lack of vibration; its silent sleeve-valve action; its freedom from valve grinding, carbon scraping, tappet adjusting—all are points that make for Dominance.

See our special display of Stearns-Knight cars with Hydraulic 4-Wheel Brakes and Balloon tires, with special steering for easy handling.

Established in 1907 by Joseph W. Moon, the Moon Motor Car Co. is one of the oldest in this country. Back of this was a groundwork of almost fifty years of superb coach building, which coaches were famous for their style and comfort.

The fact that the Moon is built throughout—100 per cent—of standard units, designed by the leading automobile specialists working in collaboration with Moon engineers, is a source of undisputed strength. It enables the Moon to give greater automobile money's worth than the purchaser can get elsewhere at equal prices.

Moon has adopted 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes and Balloon Tires.

"It is the Car for Everyone"

Says H. A. Tarantous, noted automobile authority, in "MOTOR"

"The New Essex possesses many qualities which I did not believe could be incorporated in a closed car selling for $975.

"It is a type long needed in this country. It possesses grace and beauty, can travel at sustained high speed without passenger discomfort, is surprisingly economical to operate and does not cost much to buy.

"These qualities combined in a 6-cylinder closed car selling for less than $1000, shows what can be done by an organization that can work just a little bit ahead of the market, and see public demand before it arrives.

"It is unusually smooth, accelerates better than the previous Essex, which is saying a great deal, and is 'the' car for everyone."

Somewhere West of Laramie

SOMEWHERE west of Laramie there's a broncho-busting, steer-roping girl who knows what I'm talking about.

She can tell what a sassy pony, that's a cross between greased lightning and the place where it hits, can do with eleven hundred pounds of steel and action when he's going high, wide and handsome.

The truth is—the Playboy was built for her.

Built for the lass whose face is brown with the sun when the day is done of revel and romp and race.

She loves the cross of the wild and the tame.

There's a savor of links about that car—of laughter and lilt and light—a hint of old loves—and saddle and quirt. It's a brawny thing—yet a graceful thing for the sweep o' the Avenue.

Step into the Playboy when the hour grows dull with things gone dead and stale.

Then start for the land of real living with the spirit of the lass who rides, lean and rangy, into the red horizon of a Wyoming twilight.

You can't blame a healthy girl for wanting to have a car of her own.

Why—you really can't go anywhere or do anything worth while nowadays without one.

Mother is always using hers—

Of course father can't give up his own.

How is a fellow going to get out to the country club when a fellow really wants to be there on time?

Father gets tired chauffering his daughters around to parties, and think of all the sleep he loses waiting for the party to be over so he can take his daughters home.

He might be playing bridge, Mah Jong, or reading Gibbon's "Rome."

There was a time in mother's day when the girls she knew lived just down the block.

Nowadays it's seven miles to the place where daughter wants to go.

Happily, she drives just as well as father, and just as cautiously—and no one knows better than father how well she looks.

She won't be satisfied with an ordinary car.

That's why the Playboy was built for her.

The Clippinger-Kincaid Company has detailed a "trouble" car to help out stranded motorists, particularly the kind that drive Chevrolets.

GRAND-DADDY CAR'S RECORD BRINGS IN RIVAL REPORTS

A record of mileage was claimed for Granddaddy Studebaker by the Paul G. Hoffman Company when that veteran big-six was started for New York. Within a week after the car left Los Angeles to visit the New York Automobile Show a resident of the State of Washington drove into town and told the Studebaker representatives that the records of the stage company which he represented had operated the car he was touring in for more than half a million miles.

The publicity given the transcontinental trip of the Granddaddy car brought in a flood of reports to the factory officials of other big-six Studebakers with exceptional records.

A questionnaire sent to all Studebaker dealers disclosed the fact that there were at least 136 veteran big-sixes in the United States and Canada that had total combined mileage in excess of 17,000,000 miles. The general average for all of the cars reported was 126,476 miles per car. From Birmingham, Ala., came a report of a big-six that has travelled 401,518 miles, while Phoenix, Ariz., reported one with 316,000 miles. Another at Phoenix had 250,000 as did one at Spokane, Wash. Of the 200,000-mile class seven were reported while only thirty-three of the entire group of 136 had not reached the 100,000 mark but had exceeded 50,000.

As the yearly average mileage of motor cars has been set by common consent at 6000 miles a half million miles of service is equivalent to eighty-three years of ordinary travel. Even the average mileage of the 136 cars brings their average years of service up to better than twenty-two. In commenting on what seem a rather remarkable record of long life in motor cars, Paul G. Hoffman pointed out that the cars were not really old for the first one built in the entire group is only a 1919 model. He stated that the conception of the public relative to the ability of motor cars to run economically over long mileage periods is due for a sharp revision after such a demonstration as has been made by these scores of Studebaker big-six cars.

The Hoffman organization was the first among motor-car dealers to exploit their veterans of the road by holding reliability-economy contests in which no cars could be entered until they had passed the 50,000-mile post. Old Ganddaddy Studebaker took part in the first of these runs and make a perfect score for reliability to Big Bear and Lake Arrowhead from Los Angeles and return.

It was considered a daring experiment and quite unusual to feature cars that had run for such long periods when the usual tests are made with the latest models.

Hoffman ascribes the extensive use of Studebaker fleets by corporations, automobile stage companies and motion-picture organizations to the records of performance that Studebakers have made in the service of the firms who have built up fleets of them because of their known economy and reliability. He pointed out that a car would have to be on the road a good part of every twenty-four hours in a day to accomplish 500,000 miles in a period of five and one-half years as some of these big sixes have done and that little time could be spent in repair shops while making such records.

BUYS NEW CAR BUT KEEPS "OLD BONES"

To drive a car 62,000 miles in four years, to buy a new car, and yet to be so well pleased with the old one as to keep it rather than trade it in on the new is a situation seldom encountered in the automobile game. However, just such a case was disclosed at the salesrooms of Stanley W. Smith, Inc., last week when B. H. Hiss, prominent local realty man, took delivery on a Peerless eight seven-passenger sedan. Mr. Hiss says the bolts have never been out of the crankcase of his 1920 Peerless touring car, and that the only mechanical work necessary has been the grinding of the valves every 15,000 miles. He is keeping the touring car for frequent trips to his ranch near Bakersfield.

VIEW NEW SIX

Open house for the local automobile distributors was held Wednesday at the showrooms of Stanley W. Smith, Inc., and all of the members of the different sales organizations along auto row were invited to drop in and see the new Peerless six, which made its debut here last Sunday.

There is no Better Top!

Personal examination of the new Apperson Permanent Top will give you a new understanding of the vast difference between ordinary so-called permanent tops and this distinctive Apperson improvement. It will last throughout the life of the car—always rigid, without rattle, and maintaining its original beauty. Side curtains, individually fitted to each top and body, always stay straight in line, providing closed car comfort under extreme weather conditions.

This is only one of the many exclusive features built into this good automobile, and again marks Apperson as a leader in advanced construction.

Out-of-Doors Repair Car's Put on Road

They're forever thinking up something new in the service department of Clipping-Kincaid, Inc., "downtown" Chevrolet dealers here.

The latest innovation to be sprung on the local motoring public by this organization is what they call their "out-of-doors" repair and inspection service. This service consists of a Chevrolet touring car fitted up with tools and small spare parts and manned by two alert young mechanics. All day long the boys drive their car here and there throughout the maze of city traffic. Whenever they see a motorist parked along the roadside or one who is obviously in trouble, they stop and offer their services. Inspection and miner adjustments are said to be made free of charge.

According to "Ted" Herlihy, superintendent of the "downtown" service department, this "perambulating" branch of his shop is at present in the experimental stage. "If it proves as popular as we expect, however," he says "it will undoubtedly be increased to include a fleet of cars covering the whole city."

Driveaway Mark From Cleveland to Medford, Or.

The longest distance driveaway from the Rollin factory at Cleveland so far this year was to Medford, Or. C. E. Bolds, a prominent business man from that city and a motoring enthusiast who has driven many thousands of miles in this country and abroad, arrived at the Rollin factory at noon on March 26 and two hours later was headed west. Combined snow and rain storms from the general directions Mr. Bolds traveled failed to dampen his ardor. His schedule was Cleveland, Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Denver, Santa Fe, Phoenix, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Medford.

IMPERIAL VALLEY'S PROSPERITY TOLD

According to those closely in touch with conditions the present season will be one of the most prosperous that has been experienced by Imperial Valley in many years. Brooks Hart, Mack truck dealer in the valley, was in Los Angeles a few days ago and stated that in his opinion conditions in the valley never were better and indications for the purchase of automotive products this year are splendid.

More than 6000 carloads of lettuce were shipped from the valley this season, the market remained strong and growers profited proportionately. The income from asparagus has been bigger than ever known before. The strawberry harvest is now nearing its peak and returns from this crop are about $1590 per acre. In a few weeks cantaloupes will be ready for market and as this is one of the most famous products of the valley, thousands of carloads will be shipped out and thousands of dollars brought in.

"Mack trucks practically dominate transportation in the valley," said Mr. Hart. "Truck work in that part of the State is unusually hard and carried on under very trying conditions. During the years I have represented the Mack almost every make of truck has been sold in the valley, but none has stood the grind as the Mack."

REPEAT SALES RECORD OF FOUR MONTHS AGO

For the second time since the new Oakland 6-54 was announced last September the total sales of these cars in Southern California have reached the 222 mark in one month, according to H. E. Franklin, manager of the California Oakland Motor Company.

"In November we sold and delivered to owners 222 Oakland sixes," says Franklin, "and we repeated this record in March, establishing the Oakland firmly in fourth place among six-cylinder cars sold in Southern California.

"In all we have actually sold and delivered more than 1000 of these latest-model Oaklands since they were announced last year. We could have exceeded this volume if we had been able to get cars from the factory."

FRED WAGNER HAS RIDE IN MAXWELL

Fred J. Wagner, famous race starter, has been associated with the speed sport for years and as a result has become a stickler for good transportation.

When "Wag" went from Lancaster to Muroc, a distance of more than thirty miles, most of which was over dirt roads, he had to have a machine to take him to and from the scene of activities. Along came Conan A. Doyle of the Union Motors, Inc., Maxwell distributors in Southern California, with a Maxwell club sedan. Mr. Doyle asked Wagner to be a passenger in the car and the latter accepted with celerity.

DUST ONE OF WORST ENEMIES TO TRUCK

Dust is one of the worst enemies of the dump truck, according to G. O. Fries, manager of the new factory branch of the Gotfredson Truck Corporation situated in temporary quarters at 1240 East Ninth street until the completion of their modern new sales and service plant.

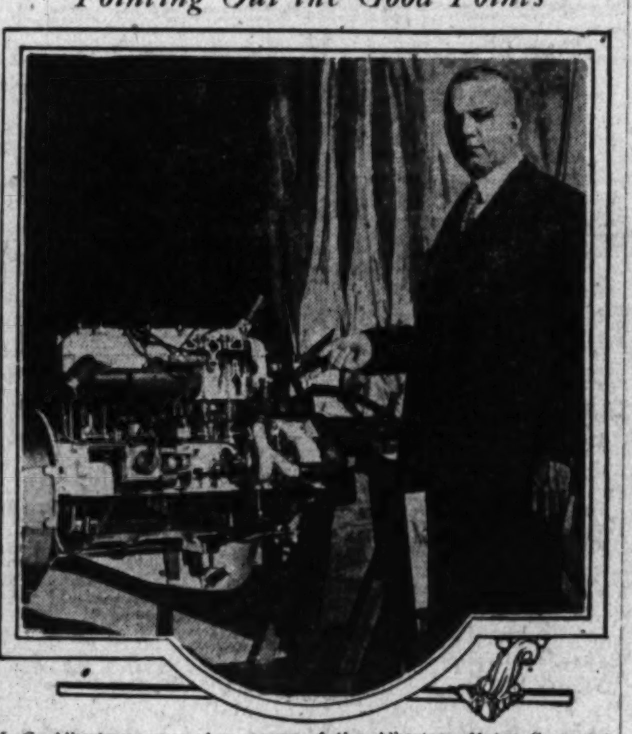
"Dump trucks receive the hardest use of all," said Fries. "Rough roads are common. Overloads are daily occurrences. The truck must be able to travel in and out of pits and excavations with heavy deadweight loads. These factors, together with the dirt and dust, combine to put dump trucks to the severest test."

NEW DEALERS ADDED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

MOLINE (Ill.) April 19.—More than forty new distributors and dealers have been added to the sales organization of the Velie Motors Corporation, Moline, Ill., during the last ninety days. Points recently closed include Columbus, Chicago, San Francisco and Charleston, W. Va.

Pointing Out the Good Points



M. C. Albertson, general manager of the Albertson Motor Company, Dodge dealers, and the power plant of the new Dodges, which, with a cutaway chassis, is on exhibition at the big store on South Figueroa street.

Gizzard Show Well Received by Motorists

Hundreds of enthusiastic motorists have inspected the Dodge mechanical display during the last week at the big Sixteenth and Figueroa street establishment. Not only does the exhibit reveal the exceptional quality of the steel which goes into the manufacture of the car, but it also provides an opportunity for an educational insight into the innermost workings of a motor car's power plant, for each vital working part has been cut away in such a manner that a phantom view of even the most intricate mechanical detail is laid bare. From an educational point of view, declares M. C. Albertson, the exhibit is proving as attractive to motorists in general as it is to Dodge Brothers' owners in particular.

"Sales figures recently published by Dodge Brothers," said Albertson, "reveal the fact that the week ending the 5th inst., showed the largest volume of sales in the history of Dodge Brothers, and that deliveries of new Dodge Brothers automobiles for the first three months of 1924 exceed that of the same period for 1923 by 21 per cent. This huge jump in sales is due, first of all, to the fact that the high grade of material and workmanship built into the car by Dodge Brothers has now become common knowledge, and the recent improvement in appearance and riding comfort has crystallized the desire of thousands of motor-car buyers all over the world to own a Dodge Brothers motor car."

"The exhibit now on our floor," continued Albertson, "especially the chrome vanadium steel display, leaves no doubt as to the reason why 90 per cent of the million Dodge Brothers cars produced are still in daily service. Many of these parts have been fractured to show the close, even texture of the core, and the hard glass-like outer case which resists wear. Axles, steering knuckles and connecting rods have been twisted into knots to show the ductile strength, and a sample piece of metal has been pulled to a taper by an enormous testing machine to show the tensile strength of material used in the manufacture of the car."

LeRoy Pelletier Selected as Our Internationalist

E. LeRoy Pelletier, manager of advertising and sales promotion of the Rickenbacker Motor Company, is one of six Americans selected to represent this country at the International convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, London, England, next July.

Mr. Pelletier will represent the newspaper division and his address will be on the subject of "The Successful Use of Newspapers in Developing the Automobile Industry."

Having been one of the first advertising men to use large space in daily newspapers throughout the country and hooking them up so as to constitute a national campaign; having been from the first an ardent champion of the daily and consistent user of this medium, he was the unanimous choice of the committee to represent this division.

The American delegation have chartered three entire ships, new ones now under construction and which will make their maiden trips as the official transports of the American advertising men.

FAT TIRES ADD TO APPEARANCE

Balloon tires have other merits besides those of added riding comfort. In the opinion of Harley Earl, head of the Don Lee Coach and Body Works, the massive appearance of the new tires adds very materially to the good looks of certain types of cars, and he has just produced a custom-built Cadillac town car that seems to amply bear out his assertions.

"The smaller wheels and large tires lend a touch to the enclosed model especially that is very pleasing," said Earl last week. "To me the former type of tire and wheel always seemed not quite in keeping with the other proportions of the enclosed cars."

STIFFEN INSPECTION

The highest quality automobiles must pass more and severer inspections today than any other machinery of comparable construction, declares George H. Layng, vice-president and manager of manufacturing for the Peeless Motor Car Company. Some of the craftsmanship entering the highest quality cars might almost be likened to that in watch making, he says.

INNER TUBES OFTEN SEAT OF TROUBLE

"Very frequently tire troubles enter in the inner tube rather than in the casing, it is declared. And even these may in large part be avoided if the motorist will only take the proper precautions, according to Max Schiffner of the Commercial Tire Company. These are a few of his suggestions:

"When replacing the tube along the road extreme care should be taken to keep it out of the dust, as many small particles of sand will cling to the rubber. This may cause no immediate trouble, but in time the tube will be covered with many small holes, like pin holes. This will then mean a slow leak, or even worse. Some have found it a good plan to carry an old newspaper in the car to be used in spreading over the ground when such work is to be done."

So he took James Anthony Murphy and Stapp into his confidence and outlined his plan to them. They immediately became enthusiastic. James A. got his Marmon touring car into action and tied a rope on the rear which was connected with a tailboard conveniently removed from the Richfield truck.

Melcher took a whirl at riding behind Jimmy, then Babe Stapp "did his stuff" and finally Jimmy got onto the terra-plane. However, Jim almost lost his balance and for a few days afterward had painful memories of his experience.

NEW BUS ARRIVES

Arrival in Los Angeles last week of one of the new six-cylinder Reo passenger busses has aroused a great deal of interest among stage line operators and school boards. The new bus is the result of many years' experiences by the Reo engineers in bus and coach design and is being produced exclusively for passenger transportation.

Luck Pursues Driver Across the Continent

Conan Doyle of the Union Motors, Inc., distributors for the Maxwell, has heard many stories on the economy of Maxwell operation, but the information given him by Fred G. Barber of Coldwater, Mich., who is wintering at 400 East Sixty-third street, he considers the strongest possible argument for the sturdiness of the Maxwell.

Mr. Barber told him that his total cost for repairs after driving the car 11,500 miles was 50 cents. This expenditure was caused by the replacement of an electric headlight bulb.

"If there is anyone who has a more sensational story than that I certainly would like to hear it," asserts Mr. Doyle. "In the arduous drive across the continent from Coldwater to Los Angeles the Maxwell club coupe never missed a shot the entire way out, averaging 26.3 miles to the gallon of gasoline clear through. This in itself is considered wonderful when one considers that Mr. Barber drove through the mud three days in Iowa and two in Nebraska."

DETROIT RECORD FOR SALES MADE

"As Kentuckians know horses, Detroiters know motor cars. Nearly a quarter-million workers are engaged in making them every day. That is why it is so significant that Hudson-Essex, since bringing out the Essex six, has become the largest selling line of six-cylinder cars in that city," said Harold L. Arnold, Hudson-Essex distributor in Southern California and Arizona. "For the first three months of 1924, in fact, the new Essex and the super-six have been purchased by more people in Detroit than any other make, except the two lowest-priced four-cylinder machines. These figures are from official registrations."

Round Trip to Denver, Colo., Is a Thriller

Many motorists who were stalled in the Arrowhead Woods several weeks ago thought they saw deep snow, but they should have been with W. G. Smith and wife, who made the round trip from Los Angeles to Denver, Col., in an Essex touring car.

Leaving Los Angeles in the early morning hours of March 10, the Smiths drove to Denver, a distance of 1500 miles, in five days. At this time of the year, the roads are in poor condition through Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado. They encountered snow on several mountain summits, and found no less than six bridges washed out necessitating detours. Mr. Smith took a picture of his Essex which shows the wheels so packed with mud that they look like discs.

After reaching Colorado they were caught in a blizzard, and had to buck their way through eighteen inches of snow. Here they found one snow bank so deep that it took four horses to pull them through. With all of this rough going they only used five pints of oil and averaged seventeen miles to the gallon of gasoline. They had only one puncture on the entire trip.

Mercedes Cars Represented in This City Now

Short Cuts to Motor Car Economy—

ACQUAINT YOURSELF THOROUGHLY WITH THE CLUTCH ON YOUR CAR

Do Not Drive Car With Clutch Slipping

There are numerous types of clutches used in the various makes of cars, some of these run in oil, the majority operate dry. However, both types need a certain amount of care and adjusting even though they are listed as nonadjustable clutches. Therefore, if you wish to save money and avoid delays, find out something more about your clutch besides just pushing the pedal down to shift gears.

In the case of clutches operating in oil a close study of your instruction book will reveal something to you in the way of care which the salesman did not tell you about or which the service man, who is doing your work may be overlooking.

DIFFERENT GRADES

Oil clutches usually require a certain grade of oil for winter use and perhaps a little heavier grade for summer use or in extremely warm climate. Also clutch housings should be drained and replenished every so often with fresh, clean oil. Slippage and chatter sometimes develop through improper lubrication and adjusting. Wear develops in the course of time, causing the pedal to hit the floor board. This would tend to hold the clutch out and can be corrected by readjusting pedal stop. Also bodies shifting due to loose body bolts often cause interference at the clutch pedal. See that you body has not shifted and that the toe and floor boards do not interfere with operation of clutch pedal.

A great many dry-plate clutches are nonadjustable so far as the pressure springs and plate wear are concerned, but there are other things needing attention and adjusting.

The throw-out bearings in some cases are lubricated automatically from the transmission by a hole through the clutch shaft. If the proper grade of oil is not used in the transmission this may cause underlubrication in one case and overlubrication in another. This can be determined after removing clutch cover plate. Overlubrication may wet the plates, causing slippage and shortage of oil in transmission. Underlubrication may cause noisy throw-out bearing or complete bearing failure. These points should be considered when analyzing clutch difficulties.

Another cause of clutch slippage is leakage through rear main motor bearing. This results sometimes from irregularities in manufacturing, also from rear bearing being damaged through lack of oil or improper lubrication. In this event it is always best to consult representatives of the car. The service station specializing on the difficulties in a given make of car are usually in a position to put their finger on cause right away, while a strange shop may have to study the situation over a period of days, thus entailing a lot of extra expense.

Other conditions contributing to clutch failures are improper adjusting of the clutch fingers in relation to the pedal position. This may limit the throw, causing clutch to drag and difficult shifting of gears, or may tend to hold the clutch out slightly, causing slippage. It is important that pedal be adjusted to provide a little free play at the toe boards.

FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS

Many clutches develop a chattering condition after a certain amount of service, which is usually remedied by certain wash treatments specified by the manufacturer. It is important that the instructions be followed carefully, for good clutches are often ruined by flushing with the wrong solution. Slippage sometimes develops, necessitating removal of plate for baking and burning off linings that have become saturated with oil, while in some cases the slippage is corrected by an application of fuller's earth.

When your clutch starts slipping drive slowly to the nearest service station for attention. Do not drive car with clutch slipping. This causes high temperatures, will make gears hard to shift and may draw temper from springs, buckle the plates and destroy the linings.

Discuss these possible causes with your repairman when he cannot set you right on clutches or in the absence of a car instruction book.

Another condition in certain types of clutches resulting in gears clashing when shifting, which is often laid to clutch, is setting the throttle stop too high for idling speed of motor or having the hand throttle open too much. If throttle stop is set for a comparatively low idling speed of motor gears can be shifted more readily and without clashing.

A Few of the Twenty-nine Palms

The spot known as Twenty-nine Palms was a famous water hole known to the early prospectors of the days of '49. A privately constructed road which hooks up with the National Old Trails route runs by there now. A Cleveland car is pictured.

SERVICE DISHED OUT ON MILEAGE BASIS

Every Case owner is entitled to dollar-for-dollar value not only in the purchase of this fine motor car, but in the years that follow, according to Cyril Vandenbraak, local Case dealer.

"Case service is rendered on a mileage basis. At no cost of labor to the owner, 3000 miles of service accompanies the purchase of each car. Between the time of delivery of the car at zero miles and completion of 3000 miles, it receives six separate and distinct services.

"Six special charts for lubrication and adjustment have been made up and these are rigidly adhered to by men trained in Case service, and take from three to eight hours, depending on the particular chart. Every detail has been thoroughly covered by this service leaving nothing for the owner but the filling of the gasoline tank and the intelligent use of his car."

New Trail is Link Between Old Highways

Interested in taking a look at the new trail which has been recently opened from the vicinity of Twenty-Nine Palms to form a junction with the Dale-Amboy freight road at the summit of the Sheep Hole range, a party in a Cleveland six sedan, furnished by W. P. Herbert Company, local Cleveland distributors set out one day last week and followed the paved highway through Pomona, Beaumont and Banning.

Twenty-Nine Palms lies in the center of the desert plateau, on the east side of the San Gorgonio range, and in the old ranch days was the headquarters for numerous cattle outfits and a night camping place for the freight teams and crew en route to the Dale mining region which lies close by.

The presence of domestic water close to the surface near Twenty-Nine Palms, as well as favorable climatic conditions, has resulted in considerable homesteading of parcels of land in this valley. For those seeking relief from asthmatic complaints, too, the climate in the vicinity is particularly favorable, and the valley is dotted with tents and houses of these seekers after health.

Although the new road has only been open for a very few weeks, being constructed by private interests, the news of its availability has already spread and the volume of travel is daily increasing to such an extent that the roughly broken out trail bids fair to soon be considered as a connecting link between the Ocean to Ocean Highway and the National Old Trails Highway.

To those contemplating a week-end trip to Twenty-Nine Palms and vicinity, it is suggested that a night's stop be made at Banning, in order that a full day may be devoted to the scenic beauties of the desert in this particular region.

No Evidence of Bad Year, James Sterling Finds

"If anybody wants to believe that business will be bad because this is a Presidential year, why then his business very probably will be bad. Good business is very largely a good state of mind and bad business a bad state of mind. If there is any logical reason why this should be a poor year for business in Southern California, I cannot find it. And I certainly cannot find evidence of it in our own business this year because we have been breaking sales records every month so far, and we are going to do it again in April."

Back from a comprehensive swing around Southern California, J. M. Sterling, head of the Paige Company of Southern California, Paige and Jewett distributors, voiced these sentiments last week. He backed them up with the Paige and Jewett sales totals for his company for the month of March which showed that they had delivered, wholesale and retail, 337 cars during the month. The best previous record was set up in February when 284 were delivered.

"That isn't all, either. April looks better than March did, by a whole lot, because of the rains we have had. We are going to deliver 350 cars in April or know the reason why," continued Sterling.

WANT PERMANENT PAVED HIGHWAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, April 19. — Petitions are in circulation seeking approval by the electors of a plan for bonding the State for $7,000,000 for a "permanent, hard-surface State highway from the Colorado River bridge at Yuma to the city of Tucson, by way of Gila Bend and Phoenix, and for constructing a highway bridge across the Gila River at Gillespie dam." This has developed an assault by the State Taxpayers' Association, with statement that automobiles would pay in taxes only $1.70 of every $100 collected in the event the issue were voted. The gross tax valuation of all Arizona automobiles is $12,054,000, while nearly $2,000,000 a year would be needed to pay the interest on the bonds and provide a sinking fund, according to the association's figures. Last year, within the State, automobiles in direct property taxes paid $246,326, through gasoline taxes $422,692 and through license collections $281,670, a total of $949,690.

Some day all buyers will demand that a car's comfort be tried out over cobblestones, "washboard" going, back-road ruts and heavy sand. That is the kind of test we like to give alongside of any car. We find it sells Franklins.

What It Means To the Owner

—counts most, after all

MACK is the only truck on the American market having a casehardened crankshaft.

Other trucks do not have casehardened crankshafts, because of the expense or the fact they are not designed structurally to permit this type of processing.

Casehardening means added quality—MACK Quality, only.

MACK crankshafts are guaranteed against breakage except from accident for the life of the truck. Think that over.

The casehardened crankshaft in the MACK means less wear and tear on engine parts. This means longer life for the bearings and this means fewer delays and less expense to owners. This counts Most after all.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

Engine—Its six-cylinder engine represents the finest talent and work of Oldsmobile and General Motors engineers. It develops 40 H. P.—has full force-feed lubrication to all bearings—oversize crankshaft with main bearings almost as large as the cylinders—ample water circulating space between each cylinder—dome-head type cylinder head—interchangeable Chadwick bronze-backed bearings.

Coachwork—All Oldsmobile closed bodies are built by Fisher—a fact that in itself is complete guarantee of quality, refinement and comfort. The bodies of the open models are assembled by Oldsmobile, from parts manufactured by Fisher.

Mechanical—Oldsmobile Six uses Delco starting, lighting and ignition system, the same system used on the finest cars generally. It has a Borg & Beck clutch—the best known. It has a Harrison radiator, Klaxon horn, Willard storage battery, Zenith carburetor, Alemite lubrication.

Equipment—High grade non-skid cord tires—oversize—are standard equipment. Also Oldsmobile's open models have every necessary feature that would contribute to satisfactory motoring—the closed models embody a wealth of added accessories and refinements.

One of these amazing cars traveled from coast to coast in high gear—with low, second and reverse gears removed!

It pulled through Missouri mud, hub-deep, where other cars were stuck.

It crossed the Allegheny and Rocky Mountains in high gear—though everyone said it couldn't be done!

It established the remarkable economy record of 27.8 miles per gallon of gasoline, for the entire 3,674 miles.

Arriving at Los Angeles—it proceeded at once to the Los Angeles Speedway and ran 68 miles an hour, under official observation.

Immediately thereafter, it negotiated the 452 miles from Los Angeles to San Francisco in 10 hours and 45 minutes!

And at no time during this tremendously trying transcontinental run, was the car's emergency kit opened!

Frankly, we know of no severer tests that have ever been applied to a motor car, regardless of size or price!

Yet—if you can think of a severer test, if there is anything else within reason we can do to demonstrate any feature or quality of this car—tell us what it is —AND WE'LL DO IT!

If you're in doubt about one single point—put your problem squarely up to us and we will demonstrate that this Oldsmobile Six, at $795, offers all that the most exacting could ask of an automobile—and considerably more!

What the Motor Car Owner Has a Right to Expect From the Dealer.

He has a right to expect salesmanship that invites confidence, and service that justifies it.

It is not hard for the Haynes dealer to measure up to 100 per cent in these things.

The quality of the Haynes car itself makes it easy to sell without resorting to exaggerations.

The dependability of Haynes performance simplifies the problem of service.

Ask any Haynes owner to tell you his experience with his car and dealer, too.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

By James W. Marsh.

Question: If you have space will you be so kind as to describe in detail how to test and adjust Ford coils? FRED F. G., Bell.

Answer: You will need a battery, an ammeter that will indicate the fractions of an ampere, and a small piece of pointed steel wire bent at right angle, one leg being about two and a half inches long, and the other about half an inch. Of course a screwdriver, small wrench, a carborundum stone and a pair of pliers will be at hand. First, adjust the points to about .025 of an inch apart, providing the points are free from high sharp points, and are set directly over each other. If the tungsten points are bad, remove the vibrating blade and the bridge and smooth them down on the carborundum stone, replace and adjust as directed. Connect the coil in circuit with the battery and ammeter, drive the short, sharp point of the piece of wire into the wood so that it touches the lower brass button on the side of the box, the other end of the wire should be set just one-fourth of an inch from the other button; this furnishes the air gap across which the secondary spark will jump when the primary circuit is completed. The primary circuit should be as follows: Soft copper wire from the battery to the ammeter, from the ammeter to the bottom button on the coil and from the upper button to the other post of the battery. When this circuit is complete the coil will buzz and a spark will jump from the point of the wire to the button. Read the amperage on the ammeter, if it is from 1.2 to 1.4, the coil has the right spring tension; if lower than one ampere press down the back end of the brass seat to which the vibrator is fastened with two screws. This will increase the flow. If too high, place the screwdriver blade under the seat and raise it a little. Continue trying until the amperage is right. You should now have a bright, fuzzy secondary spark.

If the spark is thin and stringy looking, your trouble will probably be found in the condenser. To test this, have a good Ford condenser and connect this across the point of primary interruption. Fasten one terminal of the condenser to the seat of the vibrator and the other to the bridge. Connect up the primary circuit and note the secondary spark. It should be bright and strong. If not, something is wrong inside of the coil and I doubt if you can do anything. If there is anything wrong either with the condenser or internal parts, the only thing you can do is to get another coil. Clean up the commutator at the front of the engine at the same time you adjust the coils. If any of the circuit wires are bare or oil soaked, put on new.

Q.: I have purchased two new Dodges in the past twelve months, both were well broken in, using Penn oil; they have run about 11,000 miles, and each is pumping oil so badly that the soft, tarry carbon has to be removed every 1000 or 1200 miles. Will new rings correct the trouble?

J. M., South Pasadena.

A.: I am certainly surprised at your experience. In days gone by the Dodge did have a tendency to pump oil, but the cars put out in the past twelve months do not. The new light-weight pistons, with four rings above the wristpin, have given unusual freedom from oil trouble. I would recommend installing the new type of pistons, if for some unaccountable reason your engines are not so fitted, and four standard Dodge rings. You can overcome much of the carbon trouble by using a high-class western asphaltic-base oil. Paraffin-base oil in leaking cylinders carbonizes first into a tarry substance which ultimately burns down to a hard, flinty carbon.

Q.: I am considering having a Ruckstell axle placed on my Ford. My driving is usually in the level San Joaquin Valley, with an occasional run to Los Angeles. Would a gear ratio of 2¾ to 1 on Ruckstell high go over the Ridge Route easily? Do you recommend such an arrangement?

A. J., Woodlake.

A.: I am not in favor of recommending any additions and changes on the Ford car as a usual thing. The Ford engineers thoroughly well know what they are producing and changes in the mechanism throw the entire fabrication out of harmony and usually bring the flivver to an early junk pile. However, to answer your direct quesion, the axle you mention and the gear ratio will do the work you wish. It will do the car as little harm from a general mechanical standpoint as any of the changes which are so often attempted. Thousands of Fords give excellent service in the San Joaquin Valley and over the Ridge Route without rebuilding. It does not pay, either in performance or gasoline mileage.

Q.: I have a Dodge which has run 33,000 miles; it is all right but it uses a lot of oil. Will special rings be the proper method of stopping the trouble?

P. O., Oxnard.

A.: I do not believe in halfway measures in the gasoline automobile. If the cylinders and pistons are worn, do not patch up with makeshifts but go to the seat of the trouble and save money. If necessary have the cylinders reground, have light-weight cast-iron pistons and rings fitted and start out with an engine as good as new. Oil rings are made to sell. If a cylinder and piston are worn so there is from .006 to .008 of an inch of difference in diameters, then the job should be reground and new pistons and rings fitted.

BOOKLET GIVES MAXWELL "DOPE"

A handy booklet has been prepared by the Union Motors, Inc., distributors here for the Maxwell, giving in concise form the history of the new series Maxwell cars. According to Conan Doyle of the Union Motors this booklet has found much favor with owners and prospective purchasers. Pictures of the complete line, namely, the five-passenger touring car, two-passenger roadster, five-passenger sedan, four-passenger coupe, club coupe, club sedan and sport touring car, are also shown, as well as the specifications of these machines.

PARTS BUSINESS THRIVING AFFAIR

"Few people realize the magnitude of the parts business of a motor car factory and its relation to the factory's position in the industry," said George R. Bury, vice-president and general manager of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., last week. "It functions as a sort of mutual insurance with the benefit divided equally between factory and owner. By insuring a speedy replacement of worn parts it protects an owner's investment in his car and by so doing maintains a service standard for the factory which insures future business.

"It is the boast of the Packard factory that repair parts for Packard cars and trucks built fifteen years ago are still being supplied from service stocks and no parts, however old or obsolete, are discontinued until the demand ceases to exist. This is particularly true of Packard trucks for it is in this field that the heaviest service demands are made and a profitable parts business results. The sale of truck parts from the factory last month totaled 40 per cent of the entire parts sales of the month despite the fact that the manufacture of Packard trucks was discontinued fourteen months ago. Packard has never built any orphans and is morally obligated to service the 30,000 Packard trucks now in operation and carry a complete stock of replacement parts for them."

PRAISES THE ROADS ALL OVER ARIZONA

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 12.—H. H. Weatherby, lately returning to California from the East, here declared that he found the Arizona roads the best from Kansas City westward. He especially expressed pleasure over the condition in which he found the Borderland route, from Rodeo to Phoenix, with only twenty miles of construction yet to be done west of Gila Bend. Mr. Weatherby has motored five times across the continent.

CABS TO BE PUT ON ALL DRIVERS' SEATS

Announcement was made last week by G. O. Fries, branch manager of the Gotfredson Truck Corporation, that Gotfredson trucks in all models are to be equipped with drivers' cabs.

The cabs will not be entirely enclosed, but will be built here in Los Angeles especially for the Gotfredson trucks, will be of durable materials and will be equipped with good heavy waterproof storm curtains.

Thirsty Are to be Cared for Properly

Preparations for the "thirsty season" are in full swing among the makers of palate-cooling beverages in Los Angeles.

Gauging the growth of Los Angeles and surrounding territory by the demand of her inhabitants for liquid refreshment would put the "Queen City of the Coast" far in the lead, according to a brief survey of the situation given out last week by Stanley M. Barbee, president of the Coca Cola Bottling Company.

Mr. Barbee said it is going to be a "wet summer" as far as the imbibing proclivities of Los Angeles are concerned.

New machinery is now being installed at the Coca Cola Bottling plant at Fourteenth and South Central, which will more than double the daily production.

In order to get adequate and speedy distribution of their increased output the Company has just added three new White trucks to their fleet. These trucks were purchased from the White Auto Company after a careful check had been made and after dollars and cents had been figured against serviceability, Barbee stated.

All the territory within a fifty-mile radius of Los Angeles is served by the company's White truck fleet.

Where they were formerly producing 60,000 bottles daily they will, with their new equipment, turn out 125,000 bottles a day. The new equipment will be in full operation by May 15, and will make the plant probably the largest in California.

EXPORT MAN RESIGNS FROM NASH FACTORY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

KENOSHA (Wis.) April 19.—John A. Rose, manager of the export sales department of the Nash Motors Company, has resigned to engage in an undertaking he has had under consideration for some time but details of which are not yet ready for announcement. Mr. Rose has had charge of export sales for Nash Motors and its predecessor, the Thomas B. Jeffery Company, since 1915 and his resignation, as expressed by C. W. Nash, was accepted with extreme reluctance.

"It was with deep regret on my part and on the part of the Nash Motors Company that we accepted the resignation of Mr. Rose," said Mr. Nash. "The resignation was tendered to me personally several months ago and came as a great surprise and, I might add, a disappointment to me, as I had always considered Mr. Rose as a permanent part of our organization."

VISITS PORTLAND DISTRICT MANAGER

N. M. Day, salesmanager of the Pennzoil Company in Los Angeles, and Eugene Baker journeyed North last week to pay their first official visit to Fred M. Powell, new district manager of the new Pennzoil plant in Portland.

In a breezy letter sent back by Day to the Pennzoil boys here he tells of some of their experiences en route.

Day reports business in the San Francisco district booming, with Stockton running away from some of the other plants in sales. He says the San Francisco Pennzoil plant deserves a lot of credit for increasing their business in the face of quarantines and dry weather.

The Pennzoil plants are having a sales race and Day warns his Los Angeles colleagues to be on their toes for the Northern boys are creeping up on them.

Truck Owners Want to Help the Advisers

California truck owners are awaiting with keen interest the report of the advisory committee recently appointed by Gov. Richardson to suggest a comprehensive highway building plan, the cost of which is expected to run to probably $200,000,000.

Arguments that the commercial truck damages pavement is not denied by officials of the California Truck Owners' Association, but it is declared that the present system of highways did not take into consideration the heavy traffic which has resulted since the roads were built.

It is with this thought in mind that the Truck Owners' Association will co-operate to the end that the proposed new highway system shall be built to care for not only the heavy traffic of the present but for years to come. It is agreed that the truck is a necessity and some provision must be made for the truck traffic with the minimum of wear and tear to the highways of the State.

"Our present highway system was more or less experimental. We therefore are much interested in the proposed new highway program," said Frank L. Allen, local man who is president of the State Truck Association. "Highways can and must be built to care for the heavy traffic of the future. If the highway system will take care of the truck traffic then one of the complaints against trucks—that of damaging the highways—will be removed. And through our own organization we are attempting to weed out those drivers who break the traffic laws. We are willing to co-operate and we want the co-operation of the public. Our prosperity is at stake with the adverse sentiment against trucks and one has only to visualize what an important part in our daily lives the truck plays to realize that problems now confronting the trucking industry must be eliminated."

SEATTLE PREFERENCE RELATED TO DEALER

William Wilson, former distributor for Case cars in Seattle, Wash., recently visited Gail Vandenbraak, Case distributor for Los Angeles, and related the popularity of the Case in the northern city.

Wilson told Vandenbraak that in Seattle nearly 2600 Case cars are now in use, some of them dating as far back as 1910. He stated that many Case cars were used by the fire department of Seattle.

Cars finished better than new

FROM the standpoint of beauty and durability, a car refinished with ZAPON actually is better than the car was when new.

Zapon, America's pioneer lacquer product, gives a finish that is hard and durable, that mud may be cleaned from with a dry cloth without scratching, that will withstand heat that would blister an ordinary finish, being the hottest sun can never affect it.

Zapon, also, is ideal for automobile refinishing because of the time it saves. Instead of the usual four to eight weeks required for refinishing a car, our special equipment and Zapon make it possible for us to completely refinish any job in ten days.

Drive around to the showroom of any of the firms listed below. Let them explain in detail what they can do in refinishing your car "better than new."

The Magic Mirror

THE man who is on the verge of buying a new car can obtain a good idea of automotive values by studying the used car market. ¶ Here are assembled the new cars of former years of all manufacturers. ¶ All of them have been subjected to the acid test of usage, have been driven many months and many miles. ¶ Their performance, endurance, economy and position in public esteem are all graphically summed up in their resale value. ¶ Looking into this market, as into a magic mirror, one can learn the true merits of the new cars of today from the resale records of the old. ¶ A high resale value is positive evidence of fine quality in materials, engineering and manufacturing. ¶ It points indisputably to a product that is exceptionally reliable, enduring and economical. ¶ Investigating this market, buyers of fine cars will rediscover concerning the Cadillac what they already know: that it is supremely dependable, that no limit has yet been found to its life, that it is the paying investment in its field. ¶ They will find, in fact, that "Cadillac resale value is the envy of the industry."

WITH THE CHECKER PLAYERS

BY JOHN DOUGHERTY
APRIL 20, 1924

Chess and Checker Headquarters, 820 Union League Building, corner of Second and Hill streets. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information regarding the club, see or write the secretary, D. H. Bowes, at the clubrooms.

All communications intended for the department should be addressed to John Dougherty, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal.

AMONG THE FANS

Anker Jensen and the editor started a twenty game match for a small purse at the local clubrooms last Wednesday night. The play is to continue each Wednesday evening until finished.

The "go-as-you-please" tourney has been held up while waiting to see who would qualify for the eighth place in the finals—Walter M. Ellis or John A. Hunter. Last week Ellis looked like a "cinch" but Hunter upset the dope by defeating Nichols, 2 to 1 and 1 draw and Davis 1 to 0 and 1 draw. He still has two games to play with Davis and four with Wilson in the preliminaries.

The drawing for the first round in the knockout finals brought out: Lundy vs. LeClere, Davis vs. Matthews; Nichols vs. Dougherty, and Wilson vs. either Ellis or Hunter.

A Pittsburg fan sends the following: "I stepped into the Central "Y" one evening and watched a couple playing a game of checkers. One of the players was taking an unreasonable long time in making a move that had to be made, and his opponent asked him if he ever visited the zoo. The slow player replied that he had not and the other player came back with 'You ought to go out there some time, it's a great place, and I know you would enjoy watching the turtles whizz by.'"

4-8	11-16	3-7b	20-24	W. wins
22-18	22-18	18-14c	25-21

a—Now a Double Corner.
b—This varies from published play, but Hanson, being a game down, decided he would try something, hoping for 30-25 in reply.
c—30-25 would have lost by 10-14, etc.
d—The position is now a published loss brought up from the 10-15, 21-17 opening; 6-9 draws as follows:

6-9	16-23	19-26	10-17	7-11
13-6e	27-18	25-21	21-14	9-6
2-18	1-6	16-19	6-10	10-15
29-14	30-25	17-13	14-9	Drawn.

e—If 14-9, then 7-11 and Black is lost.
f—After the game Townsend said he thought Black could have drawn by 7-11, 14-7, 6-10, but White could have won easily by 32-28, 11-15, 28-24, 3-11, 25-22.

28-19	3-7	32-27c	8-11d
10-15b	25-22	11-15	24-20

a—This is something new, but Hanson had to try something different as Townsend is well versed in published play.
b—6-11 looks better, the text seems to give Black a weak game.
c—White now is very strong and it doubtful if Black can draw from here. It would take considerable analysis to tell just which was Black's losing move. d—16-20 looks stronger but seems to lose, as under:

16-20	8-11	9-14	12-17	15-24
25-22	24-20	18-9	18-9	25-21

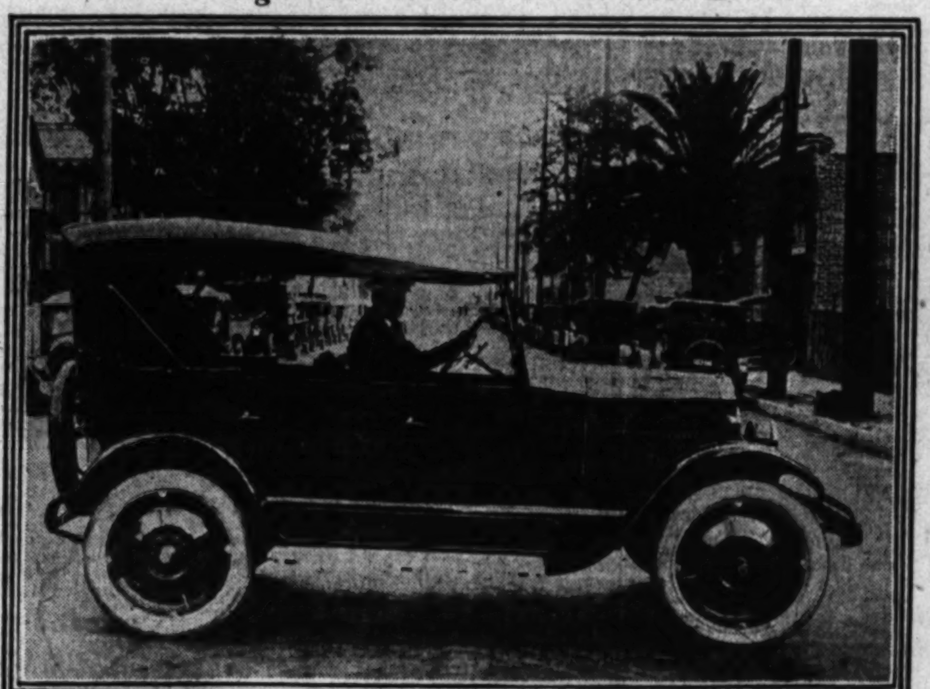
a—Hanson again tries something new in an endeavor to even up the score, 7-11 is the regular play.
b—10-15 also draws.
c—25-21, 4-8, 21-14, 9-25, 29-22, 8-11, 7-3, 11-20, 3-7, and White, though a piece down, has the best game.

First Light Car With Four-Wheel Brakes



FRANKNESS NEEDED IN CRITICISM

Review of New Cars Would Help All Conerned if All Blah Was Deleted

Franker criticism of motor car design in motor journals and in newspapers would be an excellent thing for the entire motor industry of America in the opinion of Jack Benell, Haynes distributor for Southern California. Benell believes the improvement of motor car design would be greatly accelerated if the writers who "review" the new motor cars of the season were as prone to say what they really think of them as are the dramatic critics.

"If a show is poor, a dramatic critic does not hesitate to 'pan' it, and for that very reason his praise of a good show carries much more weight," said Benell last week. "It is a system which seems to have worked very well as far as the theater is concerned, and it is one which English motor magazines have followed to a very considerable extent.

"The British motor magazine has a motor expert who describes the new cars as they appear, and who is equally ready to hand out praise or criticism as the car may deserve. I believe that a similar system in America would serve an excellent purpose.

"If the criticism was made before the model was actually placed in production, and while changes could be made at an expense that would not be prohibitive, I think it would accomplish a real purpose. The criticism would of course have to be made by a competent motor expert, after a thorough test of the car under varying conditions.

"Public interest in motor cars is so keen today, and the average buyer is so good a judge that I believe if motor cars were 'reviewed' in that fashion that it would be immensely interesting reading. American motor cars lead the world today, but that is not saying that they could not still be bettered. Very often the public discovers things about motor cars that the skilled engineers who designed them overlooked, and expensive changes are necessitated. The frank opinion of motor experts on magazines and newspapers all over the country would go a long way toward preventing such thigs, and also to spur the manufacturer to perfecting every detail of his car in every possible way."

Jordan Out in Good Word for Balloons

Mr. E. F. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Company, in a recent conversation with one of the officials of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company volunteered his opinion of the full balloon tire in the following words:

"I'll tell you why balloon tires are likely to become universal. The people like a fat tire on fat wheels—that's appearance.

"Everyone craves comfort; ride on air. No one likes rattles; balloon tires banish rattles.

"Everybody dislikes skidding; they cut down skidding. They are more economical.

"There is one disadvantage to the car manufacturer; they make a car last twice as long."

BUMPERS CERTAINLY SAVE THE FENDERS

This question is often asked the Harold L. Arnold accessory department: "Do bumpers save the car in an accident?"

The answer is: In a serious accident they do very little good, but the percentage of serious accidents to those of slight importance is 1 to 1000 or more. In cases where two automobiles collide at comparatively slow speeds the smooth surface of the bumpers prevents serious damage to fenders, running boards, etc.

With no bumpers the points of the springs cause fenders to be dented or car bodies to be gouged. It is in these accidents that bumpers pay for themselves many times over.

ANOTHER WEEK

Due to the insistent demands of Los Angeles motorists, Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the Apperson Motor Car Company, Apperson distributors here, has announced that the annual sale on used cars will be continued for another week. According to Mr. Hanshue the same low prices will prevail during the second week that marked the success of the opening days.

Here we have the new Star touring, for which four-wheel brakes of the shoe type have just been announced. The brakes act both on the inside and outside of the drum. Measurement of the brake drums with a foot rule shows that they are of proportionately good size.

NEW STAR ON THE TAPIS

Has Four-Wheel Brakes N' Everything Else the Motorist is Said to Crave in an Automobile

With the announcement today of a new Star model in which four-wheel brakes are optional equipment at a very slight added cost, a genuine sensation was created in the motor-car world, and one that is apt to have a far-reaching effect in many ways. With the Star announcement, the four-wheel brake is now firmly intrenched in a price field far below that which was dreamed of last year when the first four-wheel brakes appeared. Behind this addition to the Star equipment is a year and a half of the most intensive research and experiments by the engineers of the entire Durant organization, and for the last twelve months, the experts of the Star factory at Oakland have subjected the new braking system to the severest possible tests in California touring, and it is admitted that California usage, with the many mountain grades the State possesses, is probably the severest testing ground for brakes in the United States.

Last Tuesday the new Star model was privately shown to Southern California Star dealers at a special meeting at the Seventh and Central branch of Walter M. Brown Motors, Inc., Star distributors for Southern California. Jean Peters, of the sales promotion division of the Star Motor Company of California, gave a talk on the new car and told of the work that went into the perfection of the new braking system.

"The Star engineers have not only developed a highly efficient type of brake for four wheels, but one which we believe to be much simpler and more effective than any that has yet appeared," Peters told the Star dealers. "Two brake shoes, instead of bands, are used. One is applied on the inner and one on the outer side of the brake drum simultaneously.

"The principle of the brake shoe is probably as old as the first vehicle, but it remained for the Durant engineers to successfully apply it to motor-car design. Its effectiveness lies largely in the extraordinary leverage that the two brakes apply and the dissipation of heat that is made possible by the fact that the brake shoe does not completely encircle the drum. Heat is the greatest enemy of efficient braking. The Star brake shoes engage only a portion of the drum, and the rapid cooling of the portion that is not engaged keeps the brake efficient and prevents deterioration of the brake lining that heat causes.

"Other important changes in the new Star model are the addition of the latest type of Alemite lubricating system and a change in the oiling system of the motor, which forces ten gallons of oil per minute through the motor bearings at a speed of only twenty miles an hour. No motor has a more efficient oiling system than this new Star."

OLD TIMERS

Three hundred and forty-two employees, or more than 11 per cent of the entire working force, have been employed at the H. H. Franklin Manufacturing Company of Syracuse, N. Y., for ten years or more. Of this number, 162, or practically one-half, have been employed fifteen years or more in the building of Franklin motor cars.

Parts Display Takes Mystery Out of Motors

To what extent the automobile industry is responsible for better steels, is well illustrated in the educational Hupmobile parts display now being shown by Hupmobile distributors and dealers throughout the country. This industry is chiefly responsible for the high grade nickel, chrome, molybdenum and other alloys now extensively used in the better motor cars, as well as in other fine machinery.

"A parts board takes the mystery out of the motor car," says an official of the Greer-Robbins Company, State Hupmobile distributors. "It gives you the facts that count. Buying a car with knowledge of what is in it, is the sound business-like way. And finding out what is in these vital parts is a liberal education in what makes motor car values. The whole question of price and value, is bound up in these immensely important exhibits.

"It is not necessary for one to be an expert on fine motor car practice. Every part displayed is labeled plainly, so one can see it all for oneself. It is a kind of proof that is convincing beyond all doubt. The parts board our dealers are displaying shows not only Hupmobile material, but engineering design and manufacturing as well. It is ocular evidence of what the trained mechanic and modern precision machinery have accomplished.

"For the first time in motor car annals, Hupmobile has shown the way to get at facts—and facts that count. It shows why a couple of hundred dollars is not extravagance, but real economy."

DECLARE OLD TRAILS ROAD NO SPEEDWAY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) April 19.—Declaration has been made of a spring drive on motorists who are beginning to use the Old Trails highway as a speedway. A local officer suggests that this class of travelers should be dubbed "meteorists."

The English Coach

Here is a real sedan! The soft, flowing lines of this new type Auburn English Coach make the ordinary harsh-angled closed car look old-fashioned.

Curved sides, back, top and windows blend in striking symmetry and stream-line charm. Smartness is added to smartness by a high European waistline. Arched contours give greater strength with less weight and it is as easy as an open car to handle.

A completely appointed car, fully equipped, with every extra necessary for style and safe, comfortable driving.

NEW CAR INTEREST KEEN

That there is little abatement in the public's interest in the Chrysler six was evidenced by the recent exhibits held by the Early-Bassett Company of Pasadena and the Barrows Motor Company of Hollywood, both prominent Chrysler dealers, according to the Greer-Robbins Company, distributors for Southern California.

Almost 1000 visitors attended the Hollywood show the opening day, and there was almost an equal number present at the Pasadena affair. In fact, at both places people were waiting for the opening of the doors the first day. Every day, and particularly each evening, there were so many present that the salesman could only explain the qualities of the Chrysler creation to groups.

"It is also very noticeable," said an official of the Greer-Robbins Company, "that whenever a Chrysler pulls up to the curb in any of the smaller towns, that it is surrounded by interested ones who ply all manner of intelligent questions. Most of these questions indicate very plainly that the car has been widely heralded and that its many new features have a very strong appeal to those who are but fairly motor-wise."

IN LANSING

Thomas E. McKnight, secretary and treasurer of the Reo Motor Car Company of California, Inc., is now at the Reo factory in Lansing, Mich., attending a conference of executives from the various Reo branches in the United States and Canada. Mr. McKnight plans on returning to Los Angeles about the middle of May.

NEW DIRT ROAD IS PICTURESQUE

Cuts Off Eight Miles on Oakdale Highway

Leaves Ridge Route Near Sandberg's

Runs Directly Through Two Cool Canyons

Although just opened to the public and, as a one-way picturesque highway, passable at present to motor cars, the seven-mile new cut-off dirt road from the Ridge Route to the Collins store on the Oakdale-Pine Canyon Highway, will not be completely finished before about May 1.

Already a total of $5000 has been spent in surveying, grading and otherwise getting this new link of the highway into shape, and with gangs of men working on it for the next two months, several thousand more will be spent.

The foregoing information was given out yesterday by George W. Jones, County Road Commissioner, following a "pathfinding" trip made over the new route by a Nash six touring car from the Troy Motor Sales Company. Members of the party found the road in fairly good shape and one penetrating a most picturesque country, but as yet a one-car path.

As yet unsigned, work of properly signing the entire highway from where it turns off the Ridge Route—just north of Sandberg's—to Elizabeth Lake, will be started shortly, it was announced by road officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

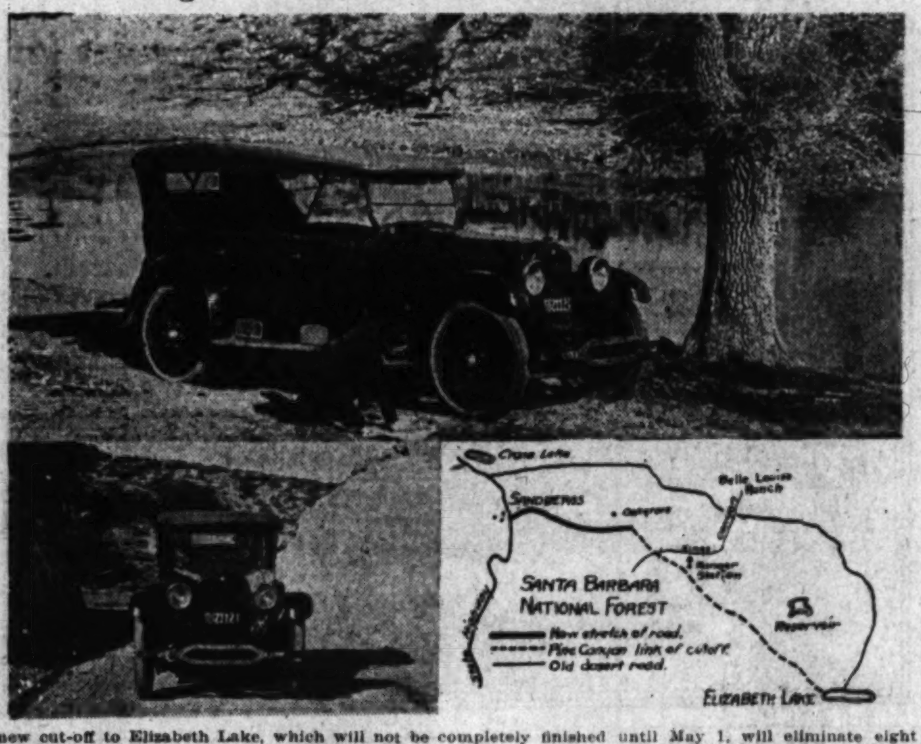
The advantages of this new road are set forth by Road Commissioner Jones as follows:

It will cut off about eight miles from the old route, which ran east from near Crane Lake on the Ridge Route) to Neenach and thence to Elizabeth Lake.

Since the former road was almost entirely a desert route, the new highway will be most attractive to motorists, especially in the summer time, in offering a path through two cool canyons—the oak-filled Oakdale and the pine-clad Pine Canyons.

According to the county plans as outlined by Mr. Jones, the short link, still uncompleted, will be widened to eighteen feet, the soft places filled in and several miles finished with a gravel surface. The link between Collins's store (also called Three Points) and Elizabeth Lake is said to have cost a total of more than $5000 in improvements during the last few months, and more county money also is to be spent on this link, mostly in the way of continued upkeep. Gangs will be kept on the road all summer, according to the county officials.

Along That New Road in Oakdale Canyon



A new cut-off to Elizabeth Lake, which will not be completely finished until May 1, will eliminate eight miles of desert travel and take motorists through two cool canyons. Above we have a Nash touring car beside a tiny lake in Oakdale canyon and below the car in one of the passes with a map of the route.

Owens Valley Roads Are in Dandy Shape

Roads to the Owens Valley were never in better condition than they are now, according to Clair R. Savage, sales manager for J. W. Leavitt and Company, Oldsmobile distributors. Savage returned last week from a brief trip to Lone Pine with a report of much work that has been done.

"East of Mojave there has been a new road graded north of the railroad tracks that leads all the way to Cinco in a straight line. The old winding road south of the track is replaced by the new highway, which, though rather soft from grading still permits speed up to the legal limit. The road is extremely wide, and if it packs enough before summer will make much better traveling on this portion of the route. The Olds six traveled from Little Lake to Mojave in two hours and a half without any effort at speed.

"The road by way of Freemans and Indian Wells was closed by quarantine, so it was necessary to take the longer route out of Red Rock by way of Inyokern and Brown. On the upper road, however, Inyo county has done a great deal of work in widening and straightening the road.

"With the exception of a few soft stretches east of Olancha, the road from Little Lake to Lone Pine is in wonderful condition. A great deal of work has been done toward straightening and widening it, and it is a much safer and faster road than ever before.

"There is not much snow on the Sierras this season, and what there is has chiefly fallen within the past month. Owens Lake has practically vanished because of the dry season and the diversion of the waters through the aqueduct.

"Travelers will find at Little Lake that their cars must be disinfected. When we passed through, there was only one fumigating tent in service, and it was necessary to leave each car in the tent 35 minutes, which as may be imagined is a considerable handicap to travel."

Proportion of Open to Closed Cars a Problem

Motor car men have ceased to predict just what the eventual ratio of closed cars as against open cars will be. The demand for closed cars continues to grow at such an amazing rate that not even the men closest in touch with the motor car market feel able to prophesy just where it will stop. When some factories began to produce as many closed cars as open cars, it was thought that the ultimate point had been reached, but in many cases the open car is now rapidly sliding down the small end of the percentage scale.

"The old adage, 'Once a motor car owner, always a motor car owner,' was true enough, and apparently it can be changed to 'once a closed car owner, always a closed car owner,'" says J. E. Clark, sales manager of the Los Angeles organization of Don Lee.

"In the case of our own line, Cadillac manufactures thirteen different styles of bodies. Only three of them are open types, and it is interesting to note that the roadster is apparently the only type of open car that is holding its own against the rising tide of closed car popularity. For example, we have sold this year a third more five passenger sedans than we have open cars of the five passenger type. The seven passenger sedan has chalked up almost twice as many sales as the seven passenger open type. And the grand total of all models shows about two and one-half times as many closed cars sold as open cars."

NEW TYPE BALLOON TIRE IS ANNOUNCED

A new type balloon tire known as the "Grooved" geared-to-the-road Miller balloon," was announced last week by J. O. Ward, special representative of the Miller Rubber Company of California.

"This new balloon tire may now be called an approved and standardized product," said Ward. "We made some balloon tires by request before this one was perfected. In fact the first balloon tires appearing in Los Angeles as original equipment on a car were Millers. Our first balloon tire was a black-tread tire with white side walls. That was a good tire but it didn't satisfy our engineers. Next they made an all-black tire that had side walls made of the tough tread rubber the same as the tread. Still our engineers were not satisfied. But this new grooved and geared-to-the-road balloon is finally pronounced right."

CHANGING OIL REAL ECONOMY

The poorest economy a driver can practice is seeing how far he can drive his car without changing the oil in the crankcase, is the opinion of Hal Baker, sales manager for the Western Auto Supply Company.

"The fellow who brags about his car never needing oil and runs it for hundreds of miles without flushing out the crankcase and refilling with clean oil, is deluding himself," says Baker. "When his car begins developing all kinds of mysterious ailments he blames the manufacturer, the dealer, the mechanic who overhauled it—in fact he censures everybody for his car's misbehavior, except himself."

SIXTEEN CARS IN SERVICE

The transfer of man-power has developed a transportation business which has resulted in the extensive use of motor cars for rapid and safe travel. John Proper and Son of Los Angeles are engaged in the business of transporting labor to California, Oregon, Washington, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah. For this purpose they use a fleet of sixteen cars, all of them Studebaker big sixes.

They co-operate with the State Employment Bureau. They have been in business for thirteen years. During this time they have used every make of seven-passenger car and have had an opportunity to test their performance under the most trying usage that a motor car may be subjected to.

However, it was not until 1919, when the Studebaker big six was introduced, that Proper got an opportunity to give the Studebaker a test on a long drive into Oregon. Proper had made the drive with several other makes of cars and had encountered not only difficulty but a great amount of trouble. With the Studebaker he found the going easy. He obtained a maximum power performance and a new economy in gasoline that induced him to give the Studebaker big six serious consideration.

Succeeding trips with the Studebaker over very bad roads and up steep mountain grades convinced him that he wanted to use nothing but Studebakers in his work of delivering man-power.

He purchased seven-passenger Studebaker big sixes from the used car department of Paul G. Hoffman Company, Inc., and sold the cars he had. He kept adding to his fleet until today he uses sixteen Studebakers exclusively in his work.

Proper calls these sixteen Studebakers "Veterans of the Road," for often they are compelled to make from 400 to 500 miles a day, carrying a full load of passengers and baggage, many times over roads that are almost forbidden trails to other motor cars.

The speedometers show a registration of from 50,000 to 250,000 miles. And each car is still giving the same dependable service as it did the day is was purchased. The oldest car in the fleet, a 1919 model, has more than 250,000 miles to its credit."

MOON DEALERS ADDED

Further evidence of the popularity the Moon six line is gaining in Southern California is seen in the announcement of Don P. Smith, Inc., that three more Moon dealers have been appointed.

Brent Harding, one of the pioneer dirt track race drivers of Los Angeles, has opened a new Moon sales and service plant in the southwest section.

Harding has been through the motor mill, so to speak, he knows automobiles and his choice of the Moon as the car to offer his many friends is looked upon by Don P. Smith as a valuable endorsement of Moon quality and popularity.

Harry Anderson is the new Moon dealer in Hollywood. He styles his new plant on Sunset Boulevard, the Hollywood Moon Company. Anderson has a wide circle of friends in Hollywood. He is a veteran automobile man, and has been associated with some of the very best factories in the country.

Another new Moon plant was opened this week in Glendale. It is known as the Penn-Ralls Motor Company. Mr. Penn was formerly engaged in the real estate business in Glendale. Ralls has been in the automobile business for ten years. He has a wide acquaintance in Long Beach, where he was associated with dealers handling some of the leading makes of high grade cars. He says he is finding Glendale an unusually neighborly city and reports that both the new company and the new Moon are making friends fast and also fast friends among the Glendale motor car devotees.

Still another new Moon agency is announced at Monrovia. The Silcotte Brothers have signed up for that territory and claim to have corralled a goodly share of the business there already.

YOUNG BIRDS

There is not a man in the Jordan factories older than 42. This was found recently when a canvass of the ages of all the thousands of employees was made. The average age was found to be 31 years, 8 months. When it is remembered that Edward S. Jordan himself is under 40, it will be seen that this is distinctly an organization of young men.

The Consolidated Motor Freight Lines, Inc., of Oakland, operates a fleet of large trucks in merchandise transportation. Zerolene oils are used exclusively.

A big motor freight line settles THE OIL QUESTION—

The Consolidated Motor Freight Lines, Inc., of Oakland, Calif., has solved its lubrication problem — by standardizing on Zerolene.

Independent Tests Verify Claims

Subjecting the anti-western oil superstition to the test of actual comparison in service, this Company verified independently our claims that Zerolene will lubricate the modern automobile engine as well or better than any oil on the market, irrespective of price, and whether of eastern or western origin. Their letter states:

"During the past three or four years we have experimented with various brands of eastern and western lubricating oils, including Zerolene oil. The results of these tests have proved to our satisfaction that Zerolene lubricates our equipment with the greatest efficiency.

"Our recent decision to lubricate our trucks exclusively with Zerolene oils has resulted in the reduction to a minimum of mechanical difficulties which were due to faulty lubrication."

Less Carbon — Better Gasoline Mileage

Why pay tribute to a superstition? The use of Zerolene, of the proper body, will not only cut down your oil bill, but give you better continuous lubrication, and better lubrication means greater gasoline mileage, less carbon, lower upkeep costs, and a longer life for your car.

Insist on Zerolene, even if it does cost less.

ZEROLENE F for FORDS

— the Standard Oil Company's new improved oil for Ford cars, "Feeds Those Oil-Starved Fords."

WHY pay tribute to a SUPERSTITION?

A series of independent and impartial reports showing the experience of large users with Zerolene motor oil has been collected in our booklet, "Why Pay Tribute to a Superstition?" Ask any Standard Oil Company sales or service station representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.
